J. E. Redman and wife of Gaylord, visited at the home of his wife's mother, Mrs. Cutler, on the south side, last Sunday.

Mrs. William Wallace and son, Louis, left for Detroit, Sunday evening, and will drive back a new Willys-Knight car.

Ray Ashdon and family left for Troverse City, Wednesday morning, where they will attend the Grand Traverse county fair.

Mrs. Joe Left arrived from St. James, Tuesday evening, and motored to Petoskey, where she will visit friends at the hospital.

Miss Florence Stout left last Saturday for Bay City and Fairgrove, where she will visit relatives and friends for three weeks.

William Wallnce and family left for Traverse City, Wednesday evening, where they will attend the Grand Traverse county fair.

Clarence N. Wood and wife left on Thursdny of last week on a ten dny auto trip to Knlnmazoo, Chicago and other southern Michigan points.

Mrs. Bridget Gallagher, with her grandson, Philip O'Brien of Chicago, attended the funeral of Mrs. Philip Gallagher at St. James, last Tuesday.

Harry Hooker and wife motored to Cincinnati, Ohio, the first of the week and will attend the national derby horse races held in Kentucky.

Mrs. Clara Todd, who has been living in Grand Rapids for several months, arrived in Charlevoix last week and will spend the winter here.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Zellers left for Bethel, Ohio, Saturday evening. Mr. Zeller was employed at F. E. Cartier's toilor shop the past season.

Rev. Cecil Pollock and family arrived from Otsego, Wednesday morning. Rev. Pollock is the new pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church.

Rev. H. R. E. Quant left for Grand Rapids, Wednesday noon. He will be in charge of St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal church on Jefferson avenue.

Mrs. George Emery, daughter Ruth, and mother Mrs. Kate Galbraith, left Sunday for Conneaut, Ohio, after spending the summer in Charlevoix.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Shores ore leaving this week for Gloucester, Mass., where they will spend the winter and then return to Chnrlevoix some time next April.

Pomona Grange will meet with Barnord Grange, Soturday, September 26. A good program has been arranged and a good attendanco is anticipated.

The Misses Alice Chew and Ruth Stroud left for Kalomazoo, Sunday evening on the resort special. They will nttend Western State Normal school this year.

David Bachelor, one of the instructors at the Hooker Riding Academy this summer, left for St. Louis, Mo., Sunday evening, where he will spend the winter.

John E. Baker motored over from Kingsley, Wednesday, September 10, to spend a few days visitlng friends and relatives. He returned on Monday, September 14.

Mrs. Belle Hiller left for her home in Lake Odessa, Thursday morning of last week, after spending the past six weeks at the home of her son, E. J. Hiller and family.

Mrs. and Mrs. F. S. Fessenden and daughter, Lola, left Sunday on a two weeks auto trip to Carlton, Minnesota, where they will visit at the home of Mrs. Fessenden's parents.

Mrs. James Gaskin and Mrs. Joe Foster, accompanied by George Bingham, a former employ at the Northern Auto company, motored to Pontiac Sunday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Hammond and children, Doris and Stanley left early Sunday for Los Angeles, California, where they will spend the winter They will make the trip by auto.

A. W. Sankey, manager of the Hooker Riding Academy the past summer, left for Cincinnati, Ohio, Monday, with Harry Hooker and will attend the derby races held in Kentucky.

Dr. Verne Miller of Bellaire, was a guest of George Beeman, Saturday and Sunday. Dr. Miller will leave next week for Clearwater, Florida, where he will open a new dental office.

Mr. and Mrs. George Johnston and son, George Jr., returned to their home in Grand Rapids, Monday, after visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Johnston and Charles Munyon.

Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Dodge of Flint, have been visiting at the home of the former's brother, C. S. Dodge, on Antrim street the past week. Carlton Overlin returned with the visitors to Flint.

Mrs. J. A. Mayne and ebildren, Gwen and Jackie, left Thursday for their home in Detroit, after spending the summer months with their parents and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Price.

W. B. Scroggie and wife, accompanied by their son, Val, also Dr. and Mrs. Kline of Detroit, motored up Sunday to spend a couple days at the home of William Scroggie, Sr., on Petoskey avenue.

Mrs. Joe Allers arrived from St. James, Tuesday evening. Mrs. Allers' home is located in St. Ignace and she attended the funeral of her mother, Mrs. Phillip Gollagher, who was buried Tuesday.

Garrett Cole arrived with his boat the Cole, in Round Lake, Wednesday morning. Mr. Cole is transporting lumber from Nomad, Beaver Island, to the McManus Lumber company, located at Petoskey.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Hamilton leave today for a ten day visit among friends and relatives at Newaygo, Muskegon, Grand Haven and other southern Michigan points. They will make the trip by auto.

Miss Ellen Cook left for Kalamazoo, Sunday evening on the resort special, where she will attend Western State Normal school this semester. Miss Cook wns formerly n school teacher in Charlevoix.

Probate Judge S. A. Correll, left today for Muskegon, where he will visit at the home of his daughter, The Judge will also spend a few days in Grand Rapids ond expects to be gone a week or ten days.

George Bacon left for Sarasota, Florida, Sunday morning, where he will work for the Western Union. Mr. Bacon was operator in the local Western Union office on Bridge street for the past season.

Mrs. Millard Olney left Sunday evening for Mt. Clemens, where she will spend the winter with her daughter, Mrs. Wm. Houck. Mrs. Thomas Powell nccompanied her. Mr. Olney will follow loter in the season.

The Ladies' Literary and Sewing Club of the M. E. church will meet with Mrs. F. F. McMillan, at her home on Park avenue, Thursday afternoon, September 24, at 2:30 p. m. Members are requested to attend.

The Giant Killers, Willing Workers, Blue Bird and Sunshine classes of the junior department of the Congregational Sunday school were entertained at a rally supper in the church dining room last Saturday evening.

P. S. Day left Sunday evening for LeLand Stanford University, California, where he will study for his master's degree. Mr. Day was formerly principal of the local high school and acted as trnffic manager for the police department the past summer.

Mars Kinsleye left for Flint and Grand Rapids, Friday, where she will spend a few days with relatives and friends before leaving for St. Petersburg, Florida. Mrs. Kinsleye has been pianist at the Palace theatre for the past summer.

Edward and Norman Shanahan left for Olivet, Sunday evening on the resort special. Norman will attend Olivet college this year. Edward will leave Olivet for Edwardsburg, where he will visit his grandparents for a few days and then on to Annapolis, Maryland, where he will enter the naval training school.

Important Changes in Train Schedule.

Pere Marquette R'y.

Effective Sunday, Sept. 20
New schedule will go into effect.

Inquire of Ticket Agent.

At Least Two Cups

Monarch Coffee is so extraordinarily good that it takes two cups to satisfy the average person. Take home a pound tonight and try it for breakfast.

All Monarch Canned Goods are the Same

They are considered by all as the better grade of canned goods. We have yet to find the person who was not satisfied with the order we sent them. You can always use them with absolute safety.

Milton Block

LAKE FRONT PROPERTY CHANGES HANDS

A. J. Wright Purchases Acreage South of Park

A. J. Wright, president of the Mayfield Woolen Mills, Mayfield, Kentucky, has purchased one-half of the property at the south end of Park avenue, known as the Baker five acres, and has plans completed for the erection of a fine, substantial summer home, to be ready for occupancy by the opening of the resort season next year.

The location selected by Mr. Wright for his summer residence is considered to be one of the best fronting on Lake Michigan. Rumor has it that the other half of the five acres will soon change hands and one or more summer homes built thereon.

You will find high quality merchandise at reasonable prices at the Charlevoix Hdw. Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

COURIER BARGAIN COLUMN.

Courier Want Advs. are One Cent par word par insertion. Minimum charge is 20 cents par insertion, for anything under 20 words. All Want Advs. are strictly cash in advance except to those who have ledger accounts. Please remember this when sending in your copy.

FOUND

FOUND—A hound pup. Inquire Everett Crain, Charlevoix Rt. 1.—38-tl pd.

FOUND—On shores of Little Traverse Bay off Norwood, a 24x8 skow, painted white. Owner can have snme by paying odvertising expenses ond proving property. Inquire Dick Kirby, Norwood, Mich.—38-t3 pd.

FOR SALE—MISCELLANEOUS

FOR SALE—Kitchen Range. Price $10. Inquire at this office.—38-tf.

FOR SALE—Over-head valve head, complete, for Ford car. Inquire Dick Kirby, Norwood.—38-t3 pd.

FOR SALE—Beagle pup, six weeks old. 209 Burns street, phone 197.—38-t1 pd.

FOR SALE—A large size Florence heater—good condition. Inquire Henry Johnston, 309 Mason street, or phone 252.—38-t1.

FOR SALE—Grand Upright Cable Piano. Inquire nt 405 Antrim street or phone 474.—37-t2.

FOR SALE—Ford roadster—1920 model. A renl bargain. Inquire Arlo Wickersham, Charlevoix Rt. 2, phone 7012-f2.—37-t2 pd.

FOR SALE—6 dining room chnirs, 2 porch chairs, 3 small tables, sewing tnble, sewing machine, cupbonrd, New Process Oil stove and oven, Round Oak Chief rnnge No. 8 and hot wnter tank. Mrs. H. Berdan, 202 Belvedere avenue, phone 118.—38-tf.

FOR RENT—HOUSE

FOR RENT—Furnished house for the winter nt 302 Clinton street. Inquire at house.—37-t2.

FOR RENT—Furnished house nt 302 State street. Mrs. E. B. Ward.—37-t2.

FOR RENT—Furnished cottage for the winter at 102 W. Hurlbut avenue, Charlevoix.—37-t2 pd.

WANTED—TO RENT

WANTED—Good unfurnished house with lights and wnter. Inquire of Lyle Kowalske, at the Express office.—38-t2 pd.

WANTED—MISCELLANEOUS

WANTED—Old False Teeth. We pay high as $10 for full sets. Don't matter if broken. We buy crowns, bridges. Western Metal Co., Bloomington, Ill.—38-t2 pd.

FOR SALE—LIVE STOCK

FOR SALE—10 choice cows, all fresh; 3 choice yearling heifers, 2-year old half-blood Jersey-Durham bull, quiet and easy to handle; pile of lawn manure. Antoine Sharrow, Rt. 4, on M-11, 4½ miles south of Charlevoix.—33-tf.

WANTED—MISCELLANEOUS

CASH for Dental Gold, Platinum, Silver, Diamonds, magneto points, false teeth, jewelry, and valuables. Mail today. Cash by return mail. Hoke S. & R., Otsego, Mich.—12-tf.

MISCELLANEOUS

FOR INFORMATION regarding Florida land and investments, write Ernest E. Galloway, 845 N. W. 2nd St., Miami, Florida, Licensed Broker.—36-tf.

HELP WANTED.

WANTED—Competent girl for general housework. Permanent position. Inquire at McCann's Bakery. 34-tf.

WANTED—Experienced man to rent the D'Ooge farm. Good proposition offered. Inquire of Frank F. Bird at Court House.—37-t2.

Friday and Saturday, Sept. 25--26

Silk and Fiber Hose

50c Fiber Silk Hose—20 inch boot, double heel and toe, ravel stop. Colors, fawn, sunburst, nude and black, for

42c pair

$1.00 all silk, 20 inch boot, mercerized top, ravel stop, high spliced heels, double soles and toes. Sizes 8 1-2 to 10. Colors, black, white, nickel, nude, bran, beige, dawn and silver, for

79c pair

No Stamps Given

A. E. MASON

NEW PALACE THEATRE

ATTRACTIONS FOR THE COMING WEEK

Thursday, September 24

Great big special of today and tomorrow, "THE AIR MAIL." One day only With a special cast including Warner Baxter, Billie Dove, Mary Brian, and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. Thrilling aeromance by the author of the famous "Wally" Reid motor stories. Produced by the man who made "North of 36." See the great flight three thousand feet aloft. See the startling parachute leap and the airplane flight through a raging blizzard, in the air classic of the age. Also a Cameo comedy, "CUT LOOSE."

Friday, September 25

Wm. Fox presents "IT IS THE LAW," from the stage play by Elmer L. Rice. A big screen melodrama. Just filled with mystery, thrills and one of the most startling climaxes you ever saw. A J. Gordon Edwards production. Also a Fox News reel.

Saturday and Sunday, September 26 and 27

The screen's greatest drama, "THE ADVENTURES OF ABRAHAM LINCOLN." We are proud of the chance to bring his great life before you—to show him from early youth, rising, fighting, plugging with soul of iron, to the top—no life gives such romance, drama, humor and thrills as the unforgetable man of the ages. A nation acclaims it—the world will never forget it. "We're coming Father Abraham—300,000 strong"—those words sounded around the world—and the situation is one of the greatest you've ever seen. Young and old—everyone finds something different in it to admire and applaud. One of the finest entertaining pictures you have ever seen. Also a Cameo comedy, "WATCH YOUR PEP." Every man, woman and child in Charlevoix should see this great special production. Special children's matinee Saturday, at special matinee prices of: Children, 10c; Adults, 25c. Evening prices: Children 15c; Adults, 30c.

Monday and Tuesday, September 28 and 29

A Rupert Hughes comedy production, "EXCUSE ME." A Pullman joy ride. The farce that carries a train full of laughs. It's a joy trip that's crowded with laughs and excitement. If you are looking for fun—fast and furious—here it is. Every minute a thrill. Every thrill a delight. Funny?—It's a riot of merriment. And exciting?—Wait until you see the train wreck. "Excuse Me" is a great entertainment. Also the first of the new O. Henry stories. Two reels of gems of fiction by America's foremost short story writers. Humor, pathos, love and thrills of everyday life—penned by a master hand. Never before screened.

Wednesday, September 30

Wm. Fox presents Edmund Lowe, star in "The Fool," in "CHAMPION OF LOST CAUSES," a mystery romance with lives at stake. Stalking mystery, stark, gripping, tenseness, startling situations—these will hold you enthralled when you see "Champion of Lost Causes." Also a Fox News reel.

Coming for Five Days, starting Monday, Oct. 5

Engagement extraordinary—the super mental marvel of all time—the great, mysterious "MAHENDRA."

SOAP SPECIALS

—FOR—

Friday and Saturday

We are slightly overstocked in soap and have decided to unload at prices that should move it quickly.

10 bars Yellow Rub-No-More Soap.....48c
10 bars White Rub-No-More Soap 48c
Large Gold Dust, pkg. 27c

Remember, we are exclusive dealers for the famous Chase & Sanborn Coffees and Teas. None better and few as good.

MARTIN BLOCK
Opposite Post Office
Phone 12 or 142

Neighbors

By
ROBERT STEAD

Author of
"The Cow Puncher," "The Homesteaders"

WNU Service
Copyright by Robert Stead

(Continued from page three.)

We made our camp on the hill. It we can be said to have made camp at all. Jake found a little slough (pronounced slew) of snow water not far away, and he unharnessed his horses and hobbled them nearby. I was fussing with the tent when he returned.

"We won't need that, son," and I thought there was a note almost of affection in his voice that made me warm to the man. "It couldn't rain tonight on a bet. Clean out the wagon an' you two boys sleep on the floor of it. You get the benefit o' the springs that way, an' it's dryer'n the ground."

"But where will you sleep?"

"Oh, I'll roll up somewhere. I'm an old-timer."

Jake gathered some dry grass and buffalo chips and out of an astonishingly little fire he soon had the tea boiling. Then he fried bacon and laid the strips of hot bacon on slabs of bread. And we ate bacon and bread, and then jam and bread, and drank hot black tea, while the slow twilight settled down about us.

* * * * * * * *

When daylight came we had breakfast and started on our journey again. The day was much the same as the one before, except that we were now well out on "the bald-headed." Once in a while, at great distances, we could see a homesteader's shack, a little isolated sentinel box of the vanguard of settlement. Once we were intercepted by another team and democrat, much like our own, which cut across our trail. The driver asked if we could spare any water. We gave him half of what was in our keg, and he extended his plug of chewing tobacco all round. We chatted a few minutes, and then with mutual friendly shouts and waving of our arms we were off again.

We camped that night by a stream of which Jake knew, because there was little water on the prairies, even at the first of May. Next day we drove all day, and later into the evening than usual; it was quite dark when we stopped.

"This is the place," Jake said, "but you can't see it tonight. Have a good sleep and we'll size 'er up in the mornin'."

We tried to eat breakfast without concern, but we were hurried and nervous, and eager to see how our judgment would tally with Jake's. On the road he had tried to explain to us the system of survey, and we had a general idea of it in our heads. Now he took a township map from his pocket and showed us in detail where we were.

"This is us," he said, pointing with a thick, stubby finger, "right on the northwest quarter o' Fourteen. Immedjut west of us is a road allowance, runnin' north an' south. Immedjut west of that again is section Fifteen, which is railroad land, an' can't be took up free. But immedjut northwest, cornerin' right against this quarter, 'cept fer the road allowance, is the southeast quarter of Twenty-two, which is open. Now these two quarters, northwest Fourteen an' southeast Twenty-two, is as good as any land that lays out o' doors, an' better than most. There's a bit of a gully here—you'll see it in a minute—runs down from the northeast an' cuts off to the southwest, an' runs right between these two quarters. There's springs in the gully somewhere, an' runnin' water practical the year round, an' shelter fer stock an' all that kind a' thing, an' you get the benefit of it all, an' it don't take two acres off'n your land. It's a plumb paradise an' you can't beat it nowhere."

"How far is it to a railroad" Jack asked.

"Plumb down that road allowance, thirty-two miles, straight as the crow flies, when it ain't sittin'." he threw in with a little snicker.

"Thirty-two miles!" Jack exclaimed. "Pretty well in the wilderness, isn't it?"

"Wilderness nothin'! This is suburban prop'rty. This is close in. I take some of 'am back sixty an' seventy an' eighty miles. Thirty-two miles is jus' right, an' I'll tell you why. When a new railroad comes its likely to come about thirty miles from the other; that's about a sensible distance apart. An' here you are, in the middle of the right-of-way, an' may be cuttin' your homestead into town lots; ten lots to an acre an' two hundred dollars a lot. Can you beat it? The Lord sure has been good to you, fer no special reason that I can notice. 'Tain't your good looks an' 'tain't your good sense, excep' in selectin' me as your financial advisor, so to speak. I reckan it's all account o' those girls—sisters, you said."

Jake threw a querying stress on the word sisters, but it was against all nature to be offended at him. Had we resented his remark he would have laughed our seriousness out of court. But we decided to see some of the adjoining sections.

Sixteen appealed to Jack. We could have taken the west half, and so, working together, we would have had a mile furrow. The gully also touched Sixteen, and would have given us the same advantages as Jake claimed for the sections he had recommended. However, we found him very fixed in his preference for Fourteen and Twenty-two, and finally we accepted his arguments, and set out to make a more detailed survey of the land. The gully angled between the two quarters, taking scarce an acre off either of them. A jolly stream, brown with the grass of its banks, gurgled along its bed.

I knelt down to try the water; there was the taste of snow, but there was also the harder, sharper note of spring water mingled with it.

"Runnin' water like that is worth a thousand dollars on any man's farm," Jake declared. "An' come up this way. Wait till I show you somethin'."

The "something" proved to be a widening in the valley, where was a considerable growth of small willows and poplars. "Fence posts and firewood," said Jake, "an' on railroad land, too, that won't be sold for years. You'll have 'em all cut down before then. That timber's worth another thousand, or half that, anyway."

I thought of the great pine back on the old farm in Ontario, and the "timber" looked to me like gads and switches. None of it was tall enough to reach out of the little valley and show a green tip to the bald surface of the prairies. But we were not in Ontario now; we were in a land where even a three-inch tree was not to be despised.

"An' here's somethin' more," he said, setting an example for us by walking stealthily on his pudgy legs through the clumps of willows. At the other end of the wooded space we found a little pond opening out, and a score of wild ducks drowsing placidly on its smooth surface.

"An Englishman," Jake remarked, when we had turned back, "would take this farm fer the duck pond alone. They're the dangdest people ever was fer wantin' to kill somethin'. He don' care if his farm is all sand or willows, 'a long as there's somethin' ta shoot, the Englishman don't. But fer a Yankee it mus' be every acre wheat land. He don't care fer nothin' but the long green." Jake paused as though to think over these national characteristics.

"Let's find a badger hole," he continued, and we had little trouble in locating one. "Now look at this. This hole goes down five, six, seven feet, maybe more, in the ground. Look what his nibs has kicked out. Fine, loamy, sandy soil, not too light an' not too sticky, all the way down. That goes plumb to kingdom come. Course, the top is a little darker, on account o' the grass roots, but it's all soil. None o' yer down-east three inches-o'-muck-an'-a-rock-bottom to that."

Jake took a fresh chew of tobacco and looked out over the greenish-brown prairie.

"I have it figgered out like this," he went on, "an' my figgers is right; this land is worth more than any gold mine between hell an' Whoopup. When you take the gold out o' a mine you ain't got nothin' left, but you can take gold out o' this mine next year, an' the year after, an' the year after, fer ever an' ever, an' there's still as much there as when you started—if you farm it right."

Our inspection satisfied us in every particular. Jake explained, as we already knew, that we would have to build separate shacks on the two quarters, to comply with the law about sleeping on the land claimed. "But you can build one stable in the gully fer the live stock," he added; "the government don' care where they sleep, jus' so's the homesteader himself is sufficiently uncomfort'ble."

We smiled over his interpretation of regulations which, as we knew, were necessary to prevent the wholesale blanketing of the free lands by people who had no intention of living on them.

"Now we better pick a second an' a third choice, jus' in case someone slips in ahead o' us on this," said Jake, and we spent the afternoon driving about and making fresh locations. Much of the land was already taken up, Jake told us, and although there were as yet no signs of settlement we would see a great change by fall.

We camped on Fourteen that night, and Jack and I were filled with plans for our shacks and our stable. The shacks would be up on the prairie level, on opposite sides of the gully, in full view of each other, and about a hundred yards apart. The stable would be in the gully, close to the road allowance, sheltered from the winds, and convenient to water. The crossing of the stream was passable, but would stand improvement.

Early in the morning we started back, and after three full days in the democrat we found ourselves one evening swinging up the now strangely familiar streets of Regina. The raw prairie city of 1904 already almost seemed like home. We were like travelers returning from strange lands to scenes of old recollections. We had been away just seven days, but in that time we had swung far out into the universe; we had drunk of the air of God's new creation; we had been strangely conscious of the company of our souls.

In the morning we went with Jake to the land office; Fourteen and Twenty-two in the township where we had decided to locate were still open, and we had no difficulty in filing our claims. We returned to the stable with Jake.

"What's the damage?" Jack demanded.

Jake expectorated profusely, spread his feet, and scratched his head. "Seven times seven is forty-nine; fifty dollars fer locatin' makes ninety-nine; I guess she's ninety-nine, boys; gosh darn it, we might have made it a hundred."

We paid him the ninety-nine and Jack threw in another. "We'll make it an even hundred," he said. "Come out and see us when you get a chance; we may have a bite of fried coyote for you."

"Oh, I'll be along, I'll be along," said Jake. "I'll blow out there often."

We shook hands with Jake and turned away with a strange feeling of cutting ourselves adrift. We had not known how quickly an attachment may grow—on the prairies.

(Continued next week)

SORE THROAT
tonsilitis or hoarseness, gargle with warm salt water. Rub Vicks over throat and cover with a hot flannel cloth. Swallow slowly small pieces.
VICKS VAPORUB
Over 17 Million Jars Used Yearly

Getting Spot Business

When you have innovations or specials that must be marketed quickly, Long Distance offers you the speediest way of circularizing your trade. Long Distance calls to your customers will keep them informed.

Long Distance is Direct, Speedy, Economical

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE CO.

BUSINESS CARDS

R. B. ARMSTRONG
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Special Attention to Diseases of Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat
Priest Bldg. Phone 255

DR. F. F. McMILLAN
Physician and Surgeon
Office above Postoffice
Phone 17
Charlevoix 11 Michigan

A. L. FITCH
ATTORNEY AT LAW
Office in Court House
Phone 48
Charlevoix 11 Michigan

D. T. McHUGH
General Contractor
Phone 214
CHARLEVOIX MICHIGAN

WM. J. BOGART
CONTRACTOR and BUILDER
No Job Too Large
No Job Too Small.
Phone 139 Charlevoix, Mich.

VIRGINIA RYALL BROWN, D. C.
PALMER CHIROPRACTOR
PHONES:
Office 347 Residence 89
Postoffice Building

TWO KINDS OF COMMUNITY CRITICS

(Continued from page one)

such instances he is enabled to do damage that a dozen reputable citizens cannot undo in a dozen years. Even among ordinarily good and respectable residents, this insidious individual finds his victims and as a result of his planting the poison many a dangerous falsehood is cultivated until it has withered the truth and blasted the character of good men. We have had such experiences right here in Newberry, and may have them again. In fact the town never has been entirely free from the knocker. At times he has subsided only to reappear in a new role and under a new disguise.

He comes as a thief in the night to steal that which profiteth him not, but which is of priceless value to the man or woman thus despoiled. He works in many ways and is a missionary of hell in many directions. But the one most numerous is the knocker who takes upon himself to look after the political affairs of the community. Ordinarily he is not a heavy taxpayer, if he pays any taxes at all. But that makes no difference; he is absorbed in the task of saving people from being robbed blind by pirates who are holding office. He knows the facts and the figures that prove every assertion he makes. He will relate incident after incident wherein this official and that official and then all officials combined have ravished this fund and that fund to cram the money into the capacious depths of their respective trouser pockets. If the recipient of this startling information happens to be of an inquiring turn of mind and invites the knocker to show him the records or otherwise produce proof you will invariably find him ready with an elaborate excuse for his unpreparedness to supply the evidence. He wants you to take his word for it and repeat it as a "they say" story.

Invite Mr. Knocker to prove that he is not a liar and you won't be able to haul him to the place where he claims he has proof of his statements with a yoke of oxen and a chain. Mr. Knocker isn't looking for the facts. The facts would put him out of the slander business. It is his mission to tear down, not build up. What's the reason for this particular type of knocker? He's a natural born thief, and if placed in a position of trust would get himself into the penitentiary at the first opportunity. Being inherently dishonest himself he is unable to understand or believe that any man in public office is not there for the express purpose of stealing. If by any hook or crook Mr. Knocker could get into office he knows he would attempt to steal, accept bribes, betray the public's interests, juggle records to cover up crime—in short he knows he would be an all 'round vagabond. This being his natural tendency he knows none other.

W. E. Parmelee builds storm windows.—Adv. 37-tf.

PILGRIM HOLINESS CHURCH
Phelps and Ellsworth

Phelps

Sunday school, 10:00 a. m.
Preaching, 11:00 a. m.
Prayer meeting, Wednesday evening at 8:00 p. m.

Ellsworth

Sunday school, 1:15 p. m.
Preaching, 2:30 and 7:30 p. m.
Prayer meeting Thursday evening at 8:00 p. m.

B. E. Manker, Pastor.

Several autos, used during the summer by resorters, going at bargain prices. See Benj. Brown at once. —Adv. 37-tf.

A score of Russian "whites" were sentenced to death, which probably made them see red.

LEGAL NOTICES

Order for Publication

State of Michigan, the Probate Court for the county of Charlevoix.

In the matter of the estate of Ruth L. Darrah, deceased.

Notice is hereby given that four months from the 3rd day of September, A. D. 1925, have been allowed for creditors to present their claims against said deceased to said court for examination and adjustment, and that all creditors of said deceased are required to present their claims to said court, at the probate office, in the city of Charlevoix, in said county, on or before the 12th day of January, A. D. 1926, and that said claims will be heard by said court on Tuesday, the 12th day of January, A. D. 1926, at ten o'clock in the forenoon.

Dated September 3rd, A. D. 1925.

Servetus A. Correll,
Judge of Probate.

Adv. 36-t3.

Order for Publication

State of Michigan, the Probate Court for the county of Charlevoix.

At a session of said court, held at the probate office in the city of Charlevoix, in said county, on the 19th day of September, A. D. 1925.

Present: Hon. Servetus A. Correll, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Ruth S. Darrah, mentally incompetent.

Ruth A. Colden having filed in said court her final account as guardian of said estate and her petition praying for the allowance thereof;

It is ordered, that the 15th day of October, A. D. 1925, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, be and is hereby appointed for examining and allowing said account and hearing said petition;

It is further ordered, that public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix Courier, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Servetus A. Correll,
Judge of Probate.

A true copy. Adv. 38-t3

N 2 H

GRADE MARKED HEMLOCK (Old Faithful) GOOD LUMBER

How to Read the Hemlock Grade-Mark
The initials H and H of the design signify that the lumber is Northern Hemlock—your native building lumber. The numeral within the diamond is the grade of the piece on which it is stamped by the expert grader at the mill.

Northern Hemlock, as an all-round construction lumber, has long been favorably known for its immunity to dry-rot, an important factor in the service life of your buildings. Being free of resin, it takes and holds paints and stains perfectly.

Add to these natural qualities of native Hemlock, the guarantees of the Grade-Mark—responsible manufacture and rigid, uniform grading at the mill with every piece plainly identified; that Northern Hemlock lumber is full standard size; that Northern Hemlock studding, rafters and joists are extra standard size, more wood and greater strength to the piece, assuring greater strength and rigidity to your buildings—and you'll appreciate the many advantages and investment value in Northern Hemlock construction.

Also, when you utilize the products of home industry, you contribute to the prosperity of your State and community upon which your income directly or indirectly depends. Prosperity, likewise, enhances property values.

Yes, any practical way you figure it, it pays to use Northern Hemlock. BUT—BUY BY THE GRADE-MARK. SAVE MONEY. Your Lumber Dealer will gladly assist you in selecting the right grade for the right purpose.

THE NORTHERN HEMLOCK MANUFACTURERS
of Michigan and Wisconsin
327 F. R. A. BUILDING, OSHKOSH, WIS

BUILD OF NORTHERN HEMLOCK FOR STRENGTH AND STABILITY

PRIVATE SALE
--of--
Good Household Furniture
—ON—
Friday and Saturday, Sept. 25--26
—AT—
206 Michigan Avenue

Consisting of
Brass and Enamel Beds, Springs and Mattresses; several small Oak Tables; Set of 6 Oak Diningroom Chairs, leather seats; 4 Oak Dressers; 2 very good 9x12 Rugs, one Brussels, one velvet; 2 large Rockers; 4 Walnut straight-back Chairs.

Hours of Sale between 11:00 a. m. and 5:00 p. m.

MISS EVA E. ADAMS

PRIVATE SALE
—of—
Household Goods
—on—
Wednesday, Thursday and Friday
Sept. 30 - - - Oct. 1--2

At the George M. Miller Home
306 Belvedere Ave.

MARJORIE MILLER HOLMAN

Ellsworth Section

A. W. Carr of Bellaire, called on old friends here on Tuesday of this week.

Wm. Wallace of Charlevoix, was in town on business one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Sage of Central Lake, called on friends here on Sunday.

Miss Margaret Scheppers is attending county normal at Charlevoix this year.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Davey were Traverse City visitors on Monday of this week.

Everett Denny and son of Lansing, are visiting his parents here this week.

Miss Blanche Boss of Detroit, arrived on Monday to visit friends here for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. George Liberty entertained friends and relatives from Alden on Sunday.

H. J. Timmer was at Charlevoix on Tuesday, as clerk of the Frank Supernaw auction sale.

County Highway Overseer Barney Mitchell, of Mancelona, was in town on business on Saturday of last week.

F. O. Gillett is driving a new Dodge car, purchased from the Benj. Brown Auto Sales of Charlevoix this week.

H. L. Elzinga left on Wednesday of this week for Detroit, and will drive back an Essex coach for the Ellsworth Garage.

Frank Davey is making repairs on his store building, which will be occupied by the Davey & Son general store about the first of the year.

Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas DeYoung are at Grand Rapids this week, where their little daughter is receiving special treatments for an injury to her eye.

Mike Hauss and Chas. Kohn of Wapakoneta, Ohio, who have been spending the past month at Big Fish Inn, returned to their homes on Friday of last week.

Frank Deline of Linden, Washington, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Deline, here for a few days. This is Mr. Deline's first visit since he left Ellsworth about twenty years ago.

The East Jordan band, of which Herbert and Howard Bearss and John TerWee of Ellsworth are members, are playing at the Grand Traverse County Fair on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week.

M. J. Anderson of the Citizens Bank, and Geo. Klooster are assisting Mr. Hoxie of the Michigan Public Service Corp. in securing a right of way for the company's electric ligbt line through Banks township this week.

Rev. and Mrs. Conklin returned last week from the M. E. conference at Lansing and will preside as pastor of the M. E. church here for the coming year. This is certainly good news for the entire commuaity, as during the past year the Conklins have endcared themselves to all.

WANTED TO BUY—A well bred Oxford Ram. Duncan Crawford, Ellsworth, Mich., phone 4f31.—37-t2.

B. J. BEUKER
Physicien and Surgeon
Office over Blue Stora
Ellsworth, Michigan
Office Hours: 2-4 p. m., Pbone 38

ROCK ELM

The silo fillers are at the Nicholls ranch this week.

Ed. Metz left for Chicago, Friday, and Miss Sadie Metz left for Mt. Pleasant, Sunday evening.

Mrs. Dan Swanson had the misfortune to fall and sprain her wrist quite badly and also hurt her side one day last week.

The Grange held a special meeting Saturday evening in honor of Mrs. Metz's seventieth birthday and also as a farewell to her, as she expects to spend the winter in Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. George Metz and nieces, Jean and Gertrude Barnhisle, also Mrs. Elizabeth Metz, started on their journey to Florida, Monday afternoon. They will spend one day visiting friends in Grand Rapids and one day in Lansing, where they will be joined by Mr. and Mrs. Houghton and Mr. and Mrs. Archie Kowalski and children of East Jordan. Their many friends join in wishing them a safa and pleasant journey.

You will find high quality merchandise at reasonable prices at the Charlevoix Hdw. Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

MILES DISTRICT

Mr. Pangborn of East Jordan, was a caller at the Dett Evans home Sunday.

Miss Irene Holben was an over Sunday guest of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Miles.

E. R. Armstrong of Secord, Mich., was a caller at the A. Miles home Sunday.

The Medemn children were absent from school on account of illness last week.

Mr. Nash of Ellsworth, was a business caller at the A. Miles home Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Art Gidley and son, Dick, of Ellsworth, and Mrs. Lyman Miles called at the A. Miles home Friday.

Mrs. Will Walker and daughter, Ruby, of East Jordan, spent a part of last week at their farm home near Intermediate Lake.

Mrs. Elmer Reed of East Jordan, spent Saturday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Moble.

Elmer Reed and children of East Jordan, were Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dett Evans.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Lindenau of Boyne City, were visitors at the home of her sister, Mrs. Fred Bancroft, Sunday.

FOR OVER 40 YEARS
HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE has been used successfully in the treatment of Catarrh.
HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE consists of an Ointment which Quickly Relieves by local application, and the Internal Medicine, a Tonic, which acts through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces, thus reducing the inflammation.
Sold by all druggists.
F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio.

FAIRVIEW-BANKS

Beautiful fall weather.

Jay Kuiper is filling silos in the neighborhood this week.

William and Margie Timmer were in East Jordan Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Kuiper called on Mr. and Mrs. Jay Kuiper, Sunday evening.

H. J. Timmer was in Charlevoix, Tuesday, attending the sale of Frank Supernaw.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Kasa visited with Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Kuiper Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerrit Oosterbaan visited with Mr. and Mrs. Frank DeJong, Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Boss of Wright district, visited witb Mr. and Mrs. H. DeGroot, Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Timmer visited with Mr. and Mrs. Albert Kuiper, near Central Lake, Tuesday evening.

John Timmer, Sr., and Miss Margaret Elgersma left for Zeeland, Michigan, Friday morning, after an extended visit with relatives here.

ANTRIM CITY

Mrs. Baumback, visited the school last Wednesday.

Jack Smith and family were visitors at the Dennis home, Sunday.

Mrs. Baker of East Port went with Mrs. Clyde Baker to Charlevoix, Saturday.

Jack Smith bailed hay for Mr. Knight and Mr. Stott a couple of days this week.

Mrs. Roen and her brother of Charlevoix, were visitors at the Baker home Sunday.

—Bargains in slightly used bicycles and autos. Will sell at your price. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 37-tf.

STILL BOOSTING FOR GOOD ROADS

(Continued from Page One)

fisherman in the state and be was very proud of it.

When I was in business I always carried a "memo" book in which I made notations for things to be done and material purchased. Then when I was seated at my desk desk out came the little book and all matters were promptly attended to. I had an average memory but the book was a great help and I recommend the habit. This may account for some of my letters being somewhat jumbled. They ought not to be so, when writing on roads, because I have been doing this for forty-two years. The old files of the Charlevoix Courier will show this. This reminds me of one of the times when I came up from my home to Charlevoix. Bridge street was a mud hole. The water stood in the street about where the Masonic temple now stands six to eight inches deep. I told the business men instead of having a canal to drive a team through, that they should have either a steam boat or hard road streets, and if they were business men they would have them, but that they only had two business men in town, Effie Berdan, who ran a dry goods store, and the late lamented Mrs. Baker, who was running a blacksmith shop. And after saying this I had to get out of town pretty lively.

I am willing to admit I am a card crank but not a card shark, for instance. A great many of you know that I began the manufacturing of shoe lasts and cutting dies in 1872, and continued the sama until 1915. I had to think out a trade mark and decided, "I Die but still I Last." This card I sent out to all the boot and shoe manufacturers in the west without my name signed to it. This kept them guessing until two or three weeks later I sent out my cards and circulars. I am now enclosing my card that I made up when building concrete roads in 1917, and avery school teacher should use this card when teaching the children.

Where the Roads?

Hordes of autos now remind us
We should build our roads to stay,
And departing, leave behind us
Kind that rains don't wash away.
When our children pay the mortgage,
Fathers made to haul their loads,
They'll not have to ask the question:
Tbere's tbe bonds, wbere are the roads?

"Uncle George" H. VanPelt,
Advocate for Good Reinforced Concrete Roads, Fireproof Hotels, and America for Americans.

P. S.—Florida has notbing on good, sound, old reliable Michigan. Property in Cbarlevoix county will sell for more money next year than it is selling for today, wbetber we build a good, reinforced concrete road around Pine Lake or not. But if we do build this road, tbere are plenty of places tbat will sell for from $500 per acre to $2,500 per acre. All adjacent property will advance in proportion.

ARE YOU ALL RUN DOWN?

Many Charlevoix Folks Have Felt That Way.

Feel all out of sorts?
Tired, achy, blue, irritable?
Back lame and stiff?
It may be the story of weak kidneys!
Of toxic poisons circulating about
Upsetting blood and nerves.
There's a way to feel right again.
Help your weakened kidneys with Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic.

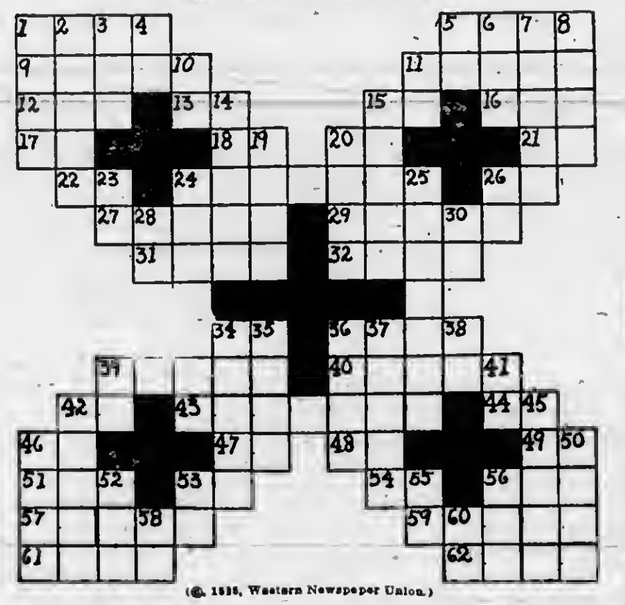
Doan's are recommended by many Charlevoix people:

Mrs. Delora Cutler, 101 W. Garfield St., Charlevoix, says: "My back ached and I had pains through the small of my back. I always felt tired and weak and my kidneys acted irregularly. After using a few boxes of Doan's Pills, from Metcalf's Drug Store, I was rid of the trouble." (Statement given May 4, 1920.)

On October 10, 1924, Mrs. Cutler said: "Doan's Pills rid me of kidney trouble in a lasting way and I am glad to confirm my former statement."

60c, at all dealers. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Cross-Word Puzzle No. 74



(©, 1925, Western Newspeoper Union.)

Horizontal.

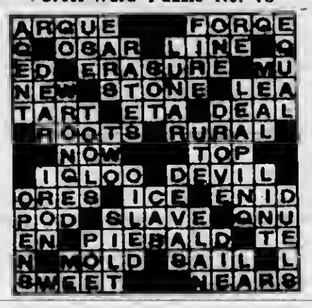
1—Elisabethan collar
6—Game played on horseback
9—Apart 11—Nobleman
12—Prefix meaning under
13—Mother
15—Personal pronoun
16—Remainder (abbr.)
17—Hour (abbr.) 18—Preposition
20—Italian river
21—Eastern state (abbr.)
22—Jumbled type
24—Walks leisurely
26—Like 27—Test
28—One who consumes
31—Not well done, as meat
32—Extent 33—To sense
34—End of arm
35—Division of society in India
36—Mixture of metals
37—To accomplish 42—Zealously
44—Printing measure
46—Polite title (abbr.)
47—Addition to a letter (abbr.)
48—Same as 13 horizontal
49—Preposition denoting location
51—To be unwell
52—Poetic form of "you"
54—That man
56—To make a mistake
57—Derisive expression
58—To immerse in clean water
61—To slide on a slippery street
62—Like ambers

Vertical.

1—Unthinking
2—To encroach upon
3—A lie (coll.)
4—Fidei defensor (abbr.)
5—Father 6—Eye
7—Money lent (plural) 8—Mere
10—Printing measure 11—Exist
14—Perfume 15—Grinding tooth
19—Border of a shield
20—Request
23—Impersonal pronoun
24—Pertaining to Siam
25—Severely 28—Land measure
26—Railroad (abbr.)
30—Each (abbr.)
32—Note of diatonic scale
34—Public storehouse
35—Limbs 36—To hurt
37—Supreme being of Arabs
38—Accomplish
39—Company (abbr.)
41—You (arch.) 43—To imbibe
45—Swamp
46—Religious service
50—Three of any suit of cards
52—Hawaiian garland
53—Yser (abbr.)
55—Exclemetion of hesitation
56—Printing measures
58—Menager of a publication (abbr.)
60—Middle-western state (abbr.)

Solution will appear in next issue.

Cross-Word Puzzle No. 73



$795
ESSEX COACH
World's Greatest Values
Everyone Says It
—Sales Prove It
HUDSON COACH
$1195
Hudson Brougham $1495 Hudson 7-Pass. Sedan $1695
All Prices Freight and Tax Extra
H. R. FOWLER, Charlevoix, Mich.

His word is his bond!

A "personal guarantee" means very little to you unless you know the man who makes it.

Ninety per cent of the things bought for your home are selected by the lady member of the firm. She is the purchasing agent. Most men admit that she is a capable buyer, and the reason is this: She must be shown—convinced by proof—that an article is what she needs and is worth the price!

For that reason, she sees the advantage of dealing with a local merchant—a man whose "personal guarantee of satisfaction" means just what it says.

She knows that what he advertises in this paper is entitled to her consideration. Because she has confidence in her neighbor—the local dealer—she can safely invest the family funds in what he guarantees.

Read the Ads in this Paper
and save yourself money by trading at home

POMONA MEETS WITH BARNARD

GRANGERS WILL MEET THERE NEXT THURSDAY

Program of Interest to Members Will Be Rendered—Pot Luck Dinner and Supper

Charlevoix Pomona Grange will meet with Barnard Grange at their hall south of the city, on Saturday of this week. There will be both afternoon and evening sessions, with a pot luck supper. A part of the program follows:

Afternoon at 2:30

Singing, "No Time Like the Present."

Welcome, A. J. Bolhuis.

Response, E. E. Stroud.

Roll Call: Naming papers and magazines taken.

Discussion: If you had your choice, would you choose an auto or a college course, and why?—Mable Stutzman and Walter McElroy.

Address, Dr. Herman Burns, Charlevoix.

Song.

Evening, 8:15 p. m.

Singing.

Roll Call: A favorite fruit.

Rope tying: A talk with demonstration—Mrs. S. McNeal.

The Human Ford, Jerry Saunders.

Changes I have seen in fifty years: Oldest Grange member present.

Remarks, B. C. Mellencamp, county agent.

This is a busy time of the year but it is hoped that every Granger in this section will be present. Those not Grangers and interested in the program, are invited to attend.

FOR SALE

1 Dodge Sedan
1 Overland Touring
Also 40 h. p. engine suitable for Marine use.

EN-AR-CO MOTOR OIL
There are no detours on a poor road.
Proper lubrication helps smooth all roads.
En-ar-co Motor Oil means finest quality.
WHITE ROSE GASOLINE
COPYRIGHT 1917 THE NATIONAL REFINING CO CLEVELAND, OHIO

THE AUTO SHOP

Phone 93 204 Mason St.

PEACEFUL SLEEP

LAST thing before retiring Granny drinks a steaming glass of Wither's milk. Her sleep is always refreshing and undisturbed. Better for young and old than bromides and sedatives.

MARION CENTER DAIRY
Pure Aerated Milk and Cream
CHARLEVOIX, MICH.

For a Limited Time

We are going to give a guaranteed

COWHIDE FOOTBALL

--WITH--

10 Bon Ton Bread Warps and 69c Cash

Ask About It At KORTH'S Market

BON TON BAKING CO.

Petoskey, Michigan

Cold weather will soon be with us. We have a stock of warm blankets in all weights, colors and prices. We also have sheets, pillow cases, etc., and the materials for making them. Better call soon and look them over at Redpath's.—Adv. 38-t1.

* * * * * * * * * * *
* CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH *
* Rev. B. G. Mattson, Pastor *
* * * * * * * * * * *

At the morning service, ten-thirty o'clock, the pastor will preach the second sermon on "The Outlook Upon the Kingdom," dealing with the principles of the kingdom laid down by Jesus.

The Sunday school meets at twelve o'clock.

Evening service will not be resumed until the following Sunday, October 4.

The Ironton service it at two-thirty p. m.

Announcement is made of the meeting of the Cheboygan Association of Congregational Churches to be held in this church on Wednesday and Thursday, September 30 and October 1. The closing session will be preceded by a banquet Thursday at six-thirty, and will feature an address by Dr. J. W. Sutherland, superintendent of the Michigan Congregational conference.

Good news for home dressmakers—Our new fall line of piece goods is here. All new patterns in the wanted colors and fabrics at Redpath's.—Adv. 38-t1.

BOYS' BROTHERHOOD GATHER AT CHURCH

Elect Officers and Make Plans for the Winter

The Junior Boys' Brotherhood of the Congregational Sunday school enjoyed a friendship supper at the church last Friday evening. Among plans for the year's work was the purchase of a large flag for the church.

Throughout the summer these boys have been of material use to the church board and Missionary Society in circulating literature, and all who could have been regular in attendance at Sunday school, and they are now ready to enter the winter schedule with the best of enthusiasm.

The Winners Class elected Dan Geneit, president; Teddy Bergman, vice president; Edwin McCann, secretary, and Junior Supernaw, yell master. The Honor Class will hold their election later and are now ready to purchase their half of the flag. They hope by Rally Day to have all the members in regular attendance at Sunday school.

New fabrics for fall and winter are here. No old patterns or stock. See them in our dress goods section. Redpath's.—Adv. 38-t1.

Bargains in slightly used bicycles and autos. Will sell at your price. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 37-tf.

PESKY FORDS ALL ON A RAMPAGE

Frequent Smashups Cause Consternation Among Owners

Apparently the reckless autoists in this county have not applied the newer slogan to themselves: "Watch Your Step" (on-it.) Anyway Prescott Adams thinks the most dangerous thing about an automobile is the driver.

Last Sunday evening he parked his car in front of his home on Antrim street and went in for a lunch. He had been seated at the table but a minute or so, when he heard a crash—tin meeting tin—sounded like it, he states. He found his Ford runabout with a smashed running board, curled up fender, and a flat tire. Somebody had rammed him.

Jumping in the car, still in running condition, he raced up the street after the offender. He found an Indian, hide full of alcho-rub or something of like odor, just off the road at the corner of Antrim street and Norwood road. The condition of both himself and his car was evidence enough that he was the person who rammed Adams' car.

His front wheels were pushed back under the crank case, headlights smashed and wind shield broken. He was covered with blood from a deep gash under his eye and one ear was nearly torn off. Prescott says he promised to settle for the damage.

According to statistics at the Ford garage, this was the thirteenth Ford to be dry docked for repairs during the past week. The situation regarding accidents recalls a short squib we read the other day:

There was a man in our town,
And he was a speedy guy.
He turned the corners on two wheels,
Crossed crossings on the fly.
But yesterday, the papers say,
This wise man saw the light,
His flivver stalled on the railroad track—
Toot, toot! Ding, dong! Good night!

Our new fall and winter models are arriving. The coats are lavishly fur-trimmed and run from $19.75 to $150.00. The frocks, in the newest shades, are also fur-trimmed. Our prices lower than surrounding towns. Redpath's.—Adv. 38-t1.

WILL CELEBRATE OPENING OF M-11

Manistee Will Have Gala Day and Invites Visitors

The Board of Commerce and the City Commission of Manistee are extending an invitation to all the people of western Michigan to visit their city and show with them their appreciation for the building and constructing of the paved highway on the Western Michigan Pike, just completed, and known to all as M-11 paved highway, from the Indiana state line to the Benzie county line, through the city of Manistee.

September 26th has been designated to celebrate the event by having each and everyone turn out and inspect the work done by the Michigan Highway department, also to congregate and visit Manistee at that time.

A large attendance is expected and people who expect to attend are asked to make reservations for the luncheon, banquet and hotel accommodations.

Steps will be taken at this time to urge the building of concrete highways from that point north to Mackinaw City. It should be remembered that the completion of M-11 with concrete is of vital importance to every city and village on the route. Charlevoix is as vitally interested as other points. It is hoped the city will be well represented at the Manistee meeting.

P. M. TO OFFER LOW RATE TICKETS

Fifteen Day Limit Tickets for $10 Round Trip

Charlevoix people are going to have an opportunity to visit their friends and relatives in southern Michigan, Toledo and Chicago at greatly reduced rates.

The Pere Marquette railroad will run a special excursion train south from Petoskey, leaving Charlevoix on Tuesday, October 6, at about 8:00 a. m. to all points south. This will be a through train from Traverse City, and will connect with other trains at various junctions south.

Tickets for Detroit, Toledo and Chicago, good for 15 days, with stop-over privileges, will be sold for $10.00. This price will prevail for all intermediate points. If you want to visit a friend in Flint, buy your round trip ticket to Detroit. It will cost you the ten bucks if you go to any point south.

The excursion will be a popular one and without doubt will carry a large number of northern Michigan people to southern points.

W. E. Parmelee builds storm windows.—Adv. 37-tf.

CHARLEVOIX GIRL MARRIED AT FLINT

Wedding Solemnized in St. Matthews Church

The Courier is in receipt of the following account of the marriage of Miss Rose Josephine Coates, formerly of this city: "A pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Matthews church, Flint, Michigan, Saturday, September 12, at 9:00 a. m., when Miss Rose Josephine Coates, a former Charlevoix girl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. R. Coates, became the bride of Marcus L. Sutten.

The groomsmen were Lewis Sutten, brother of the groom, and George Coates, brother of the bride. Miss Ann Coates, sister of the bride, assisted as maid of honor. Miss Coates' gown was made of orchid georgette over yellow, with a picture hat to match. Her boquet composed of yellow roses and orchid asters. Miss Mary Sutten, sister of the groom, acted as bridesmaid. Her dress was made of blue georgette over pink with a picture hat to match. She carried a boquet of pink roses and blue asters.

The bride's gown was a charming creation of white embroidered georgette over satin. Her veil was beautifully embroidered in white silk and was held in place by a wreath of lillies of the valley. Her boquet was a combination of valley lillies, bride's roses and blue forget-me-nots. The bride also carried a beautiful silver rosary, blessed by the Pope, given her cousin, Rev. Jos. N. Trainon of Ohio, who just returned from a visit to Rome.

Following the wedding at the church, a dinner was served to the immediate families at the home of the bride's parents, 331 Forest street.

After a two week's honeymoon through the east, Mr. and Mrs. Sutten will make their home in Flushing, where Mr. Sutten is engaged in business.

We have some new and very attractive flannel frocks. Modest in price, they come direct from New York. Ask to see them at Redpath's.—Adv. 38-t1.

* * * * * * * * * * *
* BAPTIST CHURCH *
* * * * * * * * * * *

For week beginning September 27th., 1925. At 10:30 a. m. the Pastor will discuss the theme "A Mountain Climb," and at 7:30 p. m. "Indebtedness." Nearly everybody these days enjoy a vacation and some time has climbed the rugged side of a mountain and will enjoy recalling the experience and nearly every body has passed through the burden bearing experience of indebtedness and will profit by recalling it. At 12:00 m. the Bible School will meet to review the studies of the past quarter. They have been wonderful lessons and we will enjoy going over them again.

At 6:30 the B. Y. P. U. will hold its meeting and will welcome all young people who wish to spend the hour with them.

The Mid-week service will be held on Thursday evening and will study the characteristics of a christian.

The Pastor spent last week at his home in Cassopolis and while there attended the annual meeting of the St. Joseph Valley Association held with the Mason Church of which former Pastor C. A. Rice was until this summer the Pastor.

The women of the church held a largely attended Annual meeting at the Russel Cottage in Belvedere on Wednesday. Their officers for the ensuing year were elected.

Earl A. Hubbard, a deacon af the Escanaba church, and cousin of Dr. Burns was among the strangers in our congregation last sunday morning.

HOLD RECEPTION FOR TEACHERS

Public Meeting in Parlors of M. E. Church

A public reception will be held in the Methodist church, Wednesday evening, September 30, at 8:00 p. m., under the auspices of the Epworth League, for the teachers of the Charlevoix public schools.

The object of the meeting is to offer an opportunity to the patrons of the schools and public in general to meet with the teaching force of the schools. Parents are especially invited to attend.

A short program has been arranged, but a greater portion of the time will be utilized in getting acquainted. Where parents are personally acquainted with the instructors of their children, there is always a better understanding, which results in closer co-operation between the teacher and the child.

The reception is for all and everyone is invited to attend.

Better see Redpath's before you start that new dress. We may have just the material you have been seeking.—Adv. 38-t1.

Charlevoix Hdw. Co.

Fall Decorating Hints

Here's the most practical, the most sensible thing you can do to make a "new" home out of your present dwelling place: cover your old scarred floors with an

Armstrong Floor

Of Cheerful Color and Design

It's being done in the smartest homes by prominent decorators. It's a lustrous, comfortable surface, one that needs no scrubbing to keep brightly clean.

We have splendid designs in both plain and inlaid. Make your selections early.

Charlevoix Hardware Company

302 Bridge St Phone 1.

CHEER UP! Things could
BE A lot worse than
THEY are—what if we
HAD to burn coal in
OUR automobiles, and
WHAT if we had to.
LATHER the lawn before
WE could cut the grass—
OF course, we realize
THAT we all have our LITTLE ups and downs
BUT if you will sit DOWN and figure it
ALL out, we'll wager
You'll find that you
HAVE a lot more "ups"
THAN you have "downs"—
AND that just leads
US to remark that you
WILL always find that
IF you will come in and
LOOK over our stock you
WILL find something
THAT will fit right
INTO the bright side of your LIFE and will make your home
HAPPIER—just try it and see.

Forest & Clarence

WOOD BROTHERS

Hardware & Electrical Supplies

BARGAINS!

When we say Bargains, we mean bargains in every sense of the word. When Brown says he has a bargain in anything, sit right up and take notice, for it means that he has something you will sooner or later buy, and he can save you money on the deal. This time it is

Bicycles and Automobiles

A number of bicycles and several automobiles rented by our summer people and used only during the summer season. They are not damaged in any way and are just as good as new.

If Want a good Deal, Come In

If you want a bicycle or an auto, come in, look these over, and we will get together on a price that suits both of us. We are going to sell every one of them and several people around Charlevoix will get the best bargain they ever had.

Benj. Brown Auto Sales

Phone 60

CHARLEVOIX COURIER

VOLUME 32. NUMBER 39. EIGHT PAGES COURIER, CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 30, 1925 PRICE $2.00 PER YEAR

ANXIOUS TO MEET OPPONENTS

C. H. S. FOOTBALL PLAYERS READY FOR ACTION

Will Meet East Jordan Team Next Friday for First Game of the Season

The football players of Charlevoix high school have been working hard this week in preparation for their first game of the season with East Jordan, to be played here next Friday.

Coach Alldread has heen giving out some new plays and the boys are putting in overtime work in perfecting them along with the old ones. It is very encouraging to see the new players go into practice with a determination to do their best.

At center, Captain McCann is going to make things pretty solid, both on offense and defense. "Red" is a fighter and can be relied upon to keep the opposing team worried. George Higman probably will be worked as guard and at center, as he is showing exceptionally good at both places. This is his first year of football and he is showing up like a veterun with experience. Brown will be used at the other guard and is going to be a tower of strength in the line and much is to be expected of him. "Brownie" is playing his last year for C. H. S. and from all indications it will be his best.

At the tackles, Kelderhouse and Struthers are experienced men with lots of fight—and aggressiveness. These two players are going to make it pretty tough going for the opponents to make gains, as both are hard and sure tackles.

At the ends, Coach Alldread has not decided just who shall play. At right end Cooper seems to be nearly a fixture, as he played this end last year. Left end is where the problem has to be solved. Davenport, Usher and Dutcher will probably be tried. These boys are going to give a good account of themselves whoever is in there, and they all will be used.

At quarter, Marshall and Harrington, with a possibility of Captain McCann being shifted from center, are the most likely candidates. All three of these players are showing up fine at quarter. Harrington is a good man carrying the ball and can use his toe to a good advantage. Marshall is going exceellent. Being a small man will put him at a somewhat disadvantage, but "Dickie" is a fighter and will work.

At halves, Sharrow and McMulkin seem to be doing the best at present, with Dutcher and Harrington also working fine in the positions. All these players are fast on their feet and can carry the ball for gains.

At fullback, Winder, the 200 pounder, seems to be the man. This player is showing up fine. He can kick, run and plunge. From all appearances, Coach Alldread has found a triple-threat man.

The probable line-up for Friday's game:

Ends—Davenport, Dutcher, Usher and Cooper.

Tackles—Kelderhouse and Struthers.

Guards—Higman, Brown, Bird, Shearer.

Center—Higman, Captain McCann.

Quarter—Harrington, Marshall, McCann.

Halves—Sharrow, McMulkin, Harrington, Dutcher.

Fullback—Winder, McMulkin.

Everyone come out and see this bunch of players work Friday. Give them your support.

NEW ROAD RAPIDLY NEARING COMPLETION

Contractor Shapton Will Soon Complete His Contract

Edward Shapton, road contractor, reports that the work being done on the mile and a quarter extension of the county road through Marion township is nearing completion.

This new addition to the county road is greatly appreciated by those who live on the route as it has been some time since vehicles could easily drive through the sand nnd mud that constantly menaced traffic on the old road.

The new extension is being constructed of the finest gravel and is well graded on both sides. Large ditches and proper culverts are being built to divert the water from the road during the rainy seasons.

Mr. Shapton states that the road will be ready for traffic in about two more weeks.

PRIMARY NONEY SLIGHTLY LESS

WHILE NUMBER OF CHILDREN SHOW INCREASE

Total of Primary Distributed Amounts to $69,009.30—Treasurer Makes Distribution

County Treasurer Joseph Wm. Flanders received the check for the Charlevoix County primary school money on Friday, September 18, from the auditor general's office in Lansing. Charlevoix county received a total of $69,009.30, or $941.70 less than last year.

This is a per capita distribution of $13.70 per child, based on a school population of 5,029 children. Last year Charlevoix county had a school population of 4,971, and the per capita division was on a basis of $14 per child.

Practically every township show a slight increase in school children, the difference between the two years being 58 students.

The list of townships, number of school children in each, and the sum to be received follows:

Bay	132	$ 1,808.40
Boyne Valley	374	5,123.80
Chandler	140	1,918.00
Charlevoix	696	9,535.20
Evangeline	1308	17,919.60
Eveline	185	2,534.50
Hayes	227	3,109.90
Hudson	26	356.00
Marion	236	3,233.20
Melrose	166	2,274.20
Norwood	128	1,753.60
Peaine	45	616.50
St. James	178	2,438.60
South Arm	1043	14,401.10
Wilson	145	1,986.50

WORK UNDER WAY ON NEW COURTS

Improvements at Inn Meet Approval of Community.

Work has commenced on The Inn hotel's tennis courts, which will be ready for use next season. Two new courts are being added to the old ones, making a total of six courts.

A. I. Creamer of The Inn states that with the addition of two new courts Charlevoix will be in a position to hold the state championship tournament in future seasons. Local tennis players and enthusiasts were highly interested in the tournament held here last season and hope that Charlevoix will be able to entertain the state meet next year.

Mr. Creamer states: "The new courts will be made up of the finest clay material possible to obtain and the foundations for the courts cannot be built better and stronger."

It will be remembered that much credit goes to Harold Cartier, W. G. Parker and Mr. Creamer for sponsoring the tennis matches held here last season, thus tending to make Charlevoix a rendezvous for tennis lovers.

The Charlevoix Camp Fire Girls will hold a benefit dance Friday evening, October 2, in the lobby of Hallett's Inn, after the football game. Everybody welcome. 75c per couple, extra ladies 25c—Adv. 39-tf.

W. E. Parmeloe builds storm windows.—Adv. 37-tf.

REV. POLLOCK MEETS MEMBERS

GREETINGS EXTENDED BY THE CHURCH MEMBERSHIP

Reception Held in Church Parlors Monday Evening—Comes Here Highly Recommended

A reception was held for Rev. Cecil Pollock and family in the parlors of the Methodist Episcopal church, Monday evening at eight o'clock. Greetings were made by the church members and the reception was sponsored by the ladies of the church.

Dr. F. F. McMillan gave the address of welcome. Frank Poole sang in his usual splendid way, "Song is Sweet" and "Sleepy Hollow Tune." Sylvia Black rendered a solo "If I Were a Rose" and Mrs. E. A. Stewart gave a reading, "Naming the Baby."

Rev. Pollock responded to the welcoming address in a very sincere manner and spoke about the beauties of Charlevoix as a city and the cordial hospitality shown him by the members of the church and the community. He knows that he will be pleased with his new pastorate and the people of Charlevoix wish him the best of success.

A few of the side lights mentioned on the career of Rev. Pollock in Otsego and Trowbridge, former pastorates. Rev. H. M. Rogers, pastor of the Congregational church in Otsego, says: "I didn't think I liked him at first, then I grew to like him, then our attachment grew into love for one another and now I feel that Otsego will be all the poorer because of his departure. I shall miss the tall form and pleasant greetings of a big man in more ways than one. He is big in progression, thought, up-to-date, a big worker, a typical Methodist, and made a name that will live far beyond the limits of Otsego and Trowbridge."

Rev. Pollock has two sons attending the University of Michigan. John Pollock is studying electrical engineering, and is in his fourth year. Russell Pollock is taking a law course and is in his second year. Rev. Pollock's daughter, Cecilo Louise, is a junior in the Charlevoix high school.

We extend the heartiest welcome to Rev. Pollock and family, and trust that he will be well pleased with Charlevoix and its citizens.

IMPROVES LOOKS OF HIS STORE FRONT

Campbell Boot Shop Builds Attractive Canopy

One of the latest nnd newest improvements on Bridge street is the overhead canopy constructed in front of P. D. Campbell's Boot Shop.

The Sanitary Engineering company of this city built the new structure and it certainly adds a fine appearance to the store. The canopy is placed eight feet high from the sidewalk, runs the width of the store front and extends seven and a half feet out from the building.

The covering affords protection for pedestrians from rain and sleet weather when shopping, and is well lighted at night for those who wish to observe the different displays of footwear in Campbell's window.

Reserve the date of Friday, October 9, for the grand opening ball of the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs. Invitations will be out later.—Ad39t1.

MUST ELIMINATE THE RAGWEED

CONCEDED TO BE RESORT'S GREATEST ENEMY

Hay Fevar and Asthma Suffarers Will Not Live Where Weed is Allowad to Grow

The resort is Michigan's greatest summer industry. And the ragweed is the resort's greatest enemy—that is, as far as the hay fever sufferers are concerned who flock to Michigan every summer for relief. Michigan has long been a refuge for the unfortunnte vietims of this most unsympathized with and distressing malady. But once it becomes a resort for ragweed as well, its popularity will be sadly imparied. For, with susceptiblo persons, where there is ragweed there is hay fever, and where there is hay fever there is a change of resort.

Of course, the innocent-looking little ragweed is not wholly to blame for hny fever. Many people who live in localities where the weed blooms profusely do not so much as sneeze at it, while others may rnce at sixty miles an hour along the highway where there is scarecly a ragweed in sight, and develop all the distressing symptoms. Sueh persons are born to that fate, with a peculiar hypersensitiveness to certain proteins contained in the pollens of various plants. In the majority of persons these pollens are changed before they pass through the lining of the nose, so that they are harmless to the body. But to those who are susceptible they act as a poison.

There are three kinds of ragweed common in Mlehlgan. The giant ragweed is found in low places throughout the larger part of the Lower Peninsula and in the hottom lands along rivers in tho Upper Peninsula. The perennial small ragweed, growing in more or less sandy soil, is found in scattered regions from Newago up the valley of the Muskegon River, near Alpena, through the central portion of the state to the Straits, and here and there in the Upper Peninsula. The common small or dwarf ragweed, becnuse it is more abundant than the other varieties, is responsible for the greater number of cases of hay fever. The plant may be recognized by its resemblanee to the young tomato plant and by the strong odor of the leaves when bruised. Its chief habitats are fields and fence corners, roadsides, vacnnt lots und waste places, nnd wherever it may dwell undisturbed.

Three distinct seasonal types of hay fever exist. Spring hay fever, developing in March and April or early May, is caused by the pollens of certain flowering trees, as elm, cottonwoods, swamp poplar, aspen, hlack willow, white ash, birches, oaks, maple, walnut, nnd pines. The type of hay fever eaused by this apparently indefinite list, is usually mild and of short duration nnd is fairly uncommon.

Early summer hay fever, often known as "rose eold" or June grass type, appenrs about the time roses are in bloom, although roses themselves, since they produce very little pollen and are insect-pollinated, nre seldom n cause of hay fever. The flowering grasses nnd weeds, such as June, or Kentucky blne grass, red top, timothy, orehard grass, and sometimes dandellons and daises, are chiefly responsible. This type also is relatively unimportunt. It is August or autumnal hay fever whieh is most popular, being of long duration and severity of symtoms. While practically only one per eent of the population are afflicted with hay fever, 98 per cent of these cases occur in the fall, heginning about mid-August and lasting until frost. The heavy pollen grains of the goldenrod, marigold, dnisy, aster, sweet clover, eorn, and other late summer blooming plants and weeds, cause occasional eases, hut the light wind-hlown pollen of the ragweed is responsible for perhaps more than nine-tenths of the cases of the fall type of hay fever.

For indivual relief for the hay fever sufferer, simple skin tests have been devised for determining to which of the various pollens a given individual is susceptible. Minute amounts of an extract of each of the pollens are inoculated into the skin of the arm, and the offending pollen is deteeted by the skin reaetion. It is then possible to desensitize the person by giving small increasing doses of a sterile extract of the specific pollen six or eight weeks prior to the pollination of the partieular plant responsible, thus enusing

(Continued on Page 7)

MOTOR CLUBS TO CONDUCT TOUR

SPONSOR MOTORCADE TO FLORIDA RESORTS

Make Trip Through Central Section —Two Routes Offered for Final Stretch

The Lake Shore Motor Club, in a recent bulletin to its members, has invited them to join the motorcade to Florida sponsored by the National Motorists Association. This invitation is also extended to all motorists regardless of whether they nre members of the Club or not.

The plnn calls for leaving Chieago, Mondny, Octoher 12. The objectivo of this motorcade is the Mississippi Gulf Coast and the west coast of Florida. The route followed will be over Illinois State Highway No. 1 to Momence, No. 17 to Kankakee, No. 25 to Effingham, No. 11 to Vandalia and No. 2 to Cairo. At this point it will cross the river at Bird Point, Mo., thence over the Missouri State Highway No. 16 to Silkeston, and No. 9 to the Arkansas-Missouri state line, continuing thru Arkansas to Memphis, Tenn.

At Memphis the party will be divided into two sections, one continuing to Florida via Birmingham, Ala., Columhus, Gn., et al; the other to the Mississippi Gulf Coast, thence to the west coast of Florida via Pensacola and southern Florida. A detailed schedule will he published later. There will be no admission fee charged for entry. All that is required is the inclination and nn automobile. The reception nnd entertainment which is being plnnned by the various communities along the route assures the participants that this trip cnn be negotiated at n minimum expense.

Anyone planning a trip to Florida or Mississippi would double the pleasure of the trip by traveling in this mnnner with the motorcade. Registrations can be made through the Lake Shore Motor Club, Occidental Hotel, Muskegon.

OVERHEATED STOVE-PIPE CAUSES FIRE

Grant Crandall Home Scene of Threatening Blaze

A small fire occurred at the home of Grant Crandall, 211 Lewis street, Monday evening at about 6:30 o'clock.

The fire originated in the front room from an over-heated stove pipe, and rnpidly spread its way into the dining room and kitchen.

Before the fire had gained much headway, Mr. Crandall and his son tried in vain to quench the blaze with water from a garden hose, but their efforts were futile and the fire department was called.

The damnge caused by the fire will not exceed one hundred dollars and is covered by insurance.

Choice Apples for Sale

Apples for sale at the Geo. Meggison orchard. Get your winter's supply. Cider apples 10c per bushel, winter apples 25c to 50c per bushel. Piek them yourself. Phone 7010-f5, Charlevoix Rt. 2.—Adv. 39-tf.

For all the news read the Courier.

U. P. SPORTSMEN TO FIGHT CLUBS

ARE OPPOSED TO CLOSING OF HUNTING PLACES

Aroused Over Purchase of Large Tract by Chicago Parties—Pass Resolution

Sportsmen in the upper peninsula, especially around Negaunee, are up in arms over the recent press announcement that the Hnmilton club, of Chicago, has purchased a 40,000-acre tract of land lying south of Ishpeming and comprising some of the best hunting nnd fish territory in this section of tho peninsula. The tract, which is approximately 70 squarc miles in extent, is made up largely of plains and swamp areas and has for a number of years been the property of the Stephenson company, of Wells.

Negaunee residents, as represented by members of the Negaunee Rod and Gun club and Negaunee chapter, Izaak Walton league, went on record with a resolution opposing the uequisition by privnte interests of large traets of lnnd for hunting nnd fishing preserves. It was pointed out at that time that unless some plan could ho worked out under which public shooting grounds would be established by tho state, the individual hunter and fisherman would, in a short time, find himself, not facing a shortage of either fish or game, but a shortage of land or water where he could hunt or fish. The action of the Negaunee club followed an announcement in an Ishpeming paper that a group of Chieago sportsmen was negotiating for a tract near Kates.

With the announcement last week that the huge tract south of Ishpeming has been sold to Chicago sportsmen, n meeting of the executive committee of the Negaunee Rod and Gun Club was called and a resolution drafted which clearly sets forth the orgnnization's attitude. The suhstance of the resolution follows:

"While existing private fishing and hunting preserves have ocensioned no adverse comment for the reason that the remaining nvailable acreage was ample, thanks to the good-will and courtesy of many of the larger corporations and individuals, this proposed private club, however, is of such magultude thnt the public at large may well ask if it is to be denied the right to enjoy the woods and waters of northern Michigan. They may well ask if fish nnd game propagated nnd protected hy the state is to become the property of a few, the most of whom are not citizens of the state.

"For mnny years the lakes and strenms lying within the confines of the nren in question have heen given serious attention by sportsmen of Negnunee nnd Ishpeming in an effort to make them more nttractive to migrnting waterfowl by the systemntic planting of wild-fowl foods. Many cans of fish fry have

(Continued on Page 7)

DISTRIBUTION OF LIBRARY MONEY

Charlevoix County Receives $1,591.67 from Fines

Fines paid by certain offenders during the last year have been apportioned to the library funds of the several townships in the counties of the state on a basis of the number of school children. Charlevoix county received $1,591.67. This is based on a distribution of 31 plus cents per child. The number of children included in the list was 5,029.

The distribution to the Charlevoix county townships including the number of children and sum going to each township is as follows:

Bay	132	$ 41.78
Boyne Valley	374	118.37
Charlevoix	696	220.28
Chandler	140	44.31
Evangeline	1308	413.98
Eveline	185	58.55
Hayes	227	71.85
Hudson	26	8.23
Marion	236	74.69
Melrose	166	52.54
Norwood	128	40.51
Peaine	45	14.24
St. James	178	56.34
South Arm	1043	330.11
Wilson	145	45.89
Total	5029	$1591.67

Electric light bulbs that give service at Charlevoix Hardware Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

AUCTION SALE SEASON NOW IN FULL BLAST

The fall auction season is now on in full blast. This week's Courier contains three, as follows:

Tuesday, October 6

At the farm home of William Cellner, four miles south of Charlevoix on the Adams Lnke road. This sale starts at 10:00 a. m. Free lunch at noon. Read ndv. on page 3.

Thursday, October 8

At the farm home of Louis Veenatra, loeated one mile north of Atwood on M-11. Another all day sale starting at 10:00 a. m. Free lunch at noon. Read adv. on page 7.

Saturday, October 10

A combination sale of farm implements and household goods at the Goldbold farm, about a half-mile north of The Inn on the Petoskey road. Sale starts at 1:00 p. m. Read adv. on page 3.

W. E. Byers, the popular local auctioneer, will cry each of the sales.

Fall Coloring

DAME NATURE
MOTHER HOW DO YOU LIKE THIS COLOR OR SHOULD I ADD A LITTLE MORE RED TO IT?
JACK FROST
RED DYE
YELLOW DYE
ORANGE DYE
BROWN DYE

HEAD COLDS

Melt a little Vicks in a spoon and inhale the medicated vapors. Apply frequently up the nostrils. Always use freely just before going to bed.

VICKS VAPORUB

Over 17 Mill. Jars Used Yearly

CORRESPONDENCE

NORWOOD

We are pleased to have Rev. Conklin with us again this year.

Mrs. Wm. Cowen of Charlevoix, visited her sister, Mrs. Nelson Empey, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Adam Pfister called on Mr. and Mrs. I. L. Dice last Tuesday evening.

Miss Hipp, teacher of the Norwood school, spent the week end with relatives in East Jordan.

Mrs. Colon McKenzie and children visited her sister, Mrs. Merrill Richardson, last Wednesday.

Miss Violet McGuire of Grand Rapids, is visiting at the home of her parents for u few days.

The Foster cottage was closed last week, also Mrs. Law expects to close her cottage this Wednesday.

Several families from Norwood attended the Truverse City fair last week und report a good fair.

Mr. and Mrs. Hanna and son, Billy, of Charlevoix, visited relatives in Norwood Saturday and Sunday.

Miss Lucy Routley and her sister, May, are visiting their grandmother at Hart, Michigan, for a few days.

Albert Smith attended the funeral of his sister, Mrs. Jennett Shapton, of Charlevoix, last Saturduy morning.

Mrs. Chas. Raber and daughters, Mrs. Gntliff and Mildred Raber, also Mrs. Maggie Santos of Boyne City, were callers in Norwood and Atwood Sunday.

Bert Jones and wife, who live on the H. Brock farm near Charlevoix, were Sundny callers at the Pierce home.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Mike Richardson one day last week, a pair of twins. Oh!- we forgot to mention that those twins were calves.

Mr. nnd Mrs. John McCall, accompanied by friends from Traverse City, called at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Richardson, Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Chase and daughter, Eleanor, expect to close the Chase cottage this week and will be at home ut the Young cottuge on Park avenue in Charlevoix.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Holmes, Mr. and Mrs. Ackert, Mrs. Lou See, Miss Aldrich und Mr. and Mrs. Charles Raber, all of Charlevoix, visited the Pierce home Sunday evening.

Mrs. Pierce entertained a few friends and neighbors on Tuesday evening of last week in honor of her sister, Mrs. Dan Slick, who, with her young son, Dan Jr., started on Wednesday for their home in Superior, Wis., after a few weeks visit at Manton and Charlevoix.

We are selling a genuine 13-plate rubber case Willard Battery for $16.50. Benj. Brown Battery Shop. Adv. 39-tf.

BARNARD

Silo filling time and everybody is very busy.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Cole of Boyne City, visited old friends in Barnard on Sunday.

Rev. G. DeJong of Zeeland, Mich., will preach at the South Barnard church on Sunday, October 4th.

Mrs. Wm. Seegmiller and son of Detroit, are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Walker and family.

Peter Block accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Milton Block to Muskegon, stnrting on Sunday morning. They will visit relatives in that city.

The Ladies' Aid will hold a cafeteria social at the church on Friday evening, October 9th. Everybody come and bring all the family.

The Pomona Grunge meeting on Saturday was an interesting gathering. Rev. Burns and County Agent Mellencamp gave very entertnining talks, also the remainder of the program was much enjoyed, making the day one to be long remembered.

Electric light bulbs that give service at Charlevoix Hardware Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

By B. C. Mellencamp

CALF CLUB EXHIBIT AT FAIR REFLECTS ITS VALUE

The three outstanding events in the Calf Club work in Charlevoix county were the exhibit ut the County fair, the trip to Detroit, and the awarding of the county championship.

Although this phase of extension service in the county is only one year old, it has proven to he of untold value to the members, and is rapidly making its presence felt throughout this section. There is nothing quite so satisfying and pleasing to u young boy or girl as the pride of ownership and the knowledge of how to properly care, feed, and maintain thnt which he or shc owns. These boy's and girls are directly responsible for the paying for the calf and thls means they are doing work of a constructive nature to earn the money. Space does not permit a discussion of the many benefits calf club members are receiving.

The climax of the entire year was reached during fair week when each boy and girl had their calf on exhibition and in competition for prize money. You never saw a more proud bunch of youngstera in your life than these members when they had their calves in the judging ring and hopefully waiting for the judges dicision. These 16 purebred and high grade calves with their highly interested and enthusiastic awners made an exhibit that will not be forgotten and again causes us to realize the merit of this particular work in that it is directly reaching the greatest asset that America possesses today; her boys and girls.

The following are the results of the Judging:

JERSEYS

1st place—$5.00—Rex Supernaw, Charlevoix.

2nd place—$3.00—Eddie Omlnnd, East Jordan.

3rd place—$2.00—Ernest Brown, Ironton.

HOLSTEINS

1st place—$5.00—Frank Severance, Eust Jordan.

2nd place—$3.00—Clarence Trojanek, East Jordan.

GUERNSEYS

1st. place—$5.00—Arthur Elliott, Chnrleyoix.

2nd. place—$3.00—Albert Elliott, Charlevoix.

Grand Champion Calf on exhibit, Premium—$10.00—won by Rex Supernnw.

The several banks in the county that hnve so willingly contributed the finances making this exhibit possible are to be commended for their co-operation and assistance.

The free trip to the Detroit State Fair awarded to three members of the club and their leaders was still nnother of the many opportunities in this kind of work to the members meriting this recognition. Charlevoix and Alpena counties were selected by the State Calf Club Leader to send a judging team to compete foi state honors at Detroit.

In this county it was a difficult task to select the three as we have a great difference in the ages of the members nnd the work coming as it did just previous to the county picnic and county fair, only made it possible for your agent to spend three days in the judging work. The oldest seven boys were given instruction and out of this crew three boys were selected. The first days work was on Jerseys owned by Geo. Meggison, next on the Traverse City hospital herd of Holsteins, and third day in Guernseys owned by Chas. Fox of Kewadin and at this time the three fortunate boys were Ernest Brown of Ironton, Rex Supernaw of Charlevoix, and Eddie Omland of East Jordan. All the expenses of the three boys and County Agent Mellencamp were paid by this state fair. When one stops to consider that none of the boys had even seen Detroit, two had never seen a street car, and one had never ridden on a train, one can begin to realize what a treat it was. The group left Gaylord Thursday afternoon, arrived in Detroit that evening and spent the night at the fair grounds in n tent furnished for the boy's and girl's by fair assoeiation.

Friday, was the day that Charlevoix county had to judge against the other county teams selected to represent the other sections. There was a total of 16 teams in the contest and Charlevoix ranked 9th, which is fine considering this was our first attempt. Rex Supernaw led Charlevoix team in judging landing 16th place out af 47 places, while the other two boys were tied for 35th place.

The boys spent all day Friday at the fair and Saturday on a slght aeeing tour of the city. Sunday morning found all the party back to their respective homes, a tired bunch to be sure, but having spent the best time in their career.

As a result of winning the championship at the fair exhibit with his Jersey Calf, of placing highest in the judging at Detroit, and the greatest interest and enthusiasm that he displayed with his calf club work, Rex Supernaw of Charlevoix was chosen as calf club champion of the county for 1925. Next spring this makes him eligible to attend a state boy's and girl's camp with expenses paid by the state.

Honornry mention is given to Arthur and Albert Elliott for their consciencious endeavor and the fine appearance of their ealves at the fair, reflecting the care and attention they were given.

We are very pleased to state that the calf club work thus far has been 100 per cent, meaning that all members have completed the work set out for them and exhibited all calves at fair.

We are all glad to doff our hats to you boys and say—stay with the work.

Wanted—a Man to Lead

There isn't a lnd but wants to grow
manly and true at heart,
And every lad would like to know
The secret we impart.
He doesn't desire to slack or shirk
Oh, haven't you heard him plead.
He'll follow a man at play or work
If only the mnn will lead.

CLARION

Mrs. Sarah Ecker returned last week from Charlevoix.

Mrs. Palmer will entertain her Sunday school class Friday evening.

The roof of the M. E. church was repaired last week and other repairs are planned.

The Ladies' Aid met Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Fineout, at Walloon Lake.

Mrs. Margaret McCracken of Pontiac, is visiting her brother, Dan Buckley, of Walloon Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Wheeler, Mrs. Jean Moreau and Mrs. J. W. Colden were in St. Ignace on Sunday.

ARE YOU RHEUMATIC

Many Pangs That Pass for Rheumatism Are Really Due to Weak Kidneys

Do you suffer the agonizing pangs of rheumatism? Are you tortured with rheumatic joints and stabbing twinges? Then you should know that many so-called rheumatic troubles are due to an excess of uric acid and must be treated through the kidnoys. When the kidneys weaken the whole system is upset by these bady poisons. Help your kidneys with a stimulant diuretic. Use Doan's Pills, the remedy your neighbors recommend! Here is a Charlevoix ease:

Mrs. J. H. O'Neill, 101 Green Ave, saya: "I was just miserable with a lameness aeross the small of my back. Then I had rheumatic pains and twinges in my limbs. I was nervous and always had a weak, tired aut feeling. My kidneys acted irregularly, too. I used Doan's Pills and they drove the trouble away, and I soan felt like a different person." 60c, at all dealers. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Auction Sale

All day sale of Cattle, Hogs and Farm Implements at the five miles southeast Ellsworth at the head of Six Mile Lake, on Wednesday, October 7th

DAVID GAGNON FARM

Free Lunch at Noon

"RIDE THE GREYHOUNDS"

NEW SCHEDULE

NOW IN EFFECT

LV. CHARLEVOIX 8:45 a. m. 2:15 p. m. 6:15 p. m.
AR. TRAVERSE CITY 10:45 4:15 8:15

GREYHOUNDS OF THE HIGHWAY — MOTOR COACH LINES

FIFTEEN MINUTES BETTER TIME

FARE $2.40

For a Limited Time

We are going to give a guaranteed

COWHIDE FOOTBALL

--WITH--

10 Bon Ton Bread Warps and 69c Cash

Ask About It At KORTH'S Market

BON TON BAKING CO.

Petoskey, Michigan

BEAUTY • COMFORT • CONVENIENCE • UTILITY

Good Looks as Well as Good Service

The improved Ford Runabout, with its all-steel stream-line body, is an unusually good-looking car.

It hangs low to the ground, and the body has been lengthened and re-designed for greater comfort and convenience.

The gas tank under the cowl is filled from the outside, and the weather-proof storm curtains open with both doors.

Under the sweeping rear deck is an unusually large compartment designed for convenience in carrying luggage.

Standard equipment includes four cord tires, nickeled head-lamp rims and windshield wiper.

The price remains the same $260, and you can buy on the Ford Weekly Purchase Plan.

RUNABOUT $260 F. O. B. DETROIT

TOURING CAR $290
COUPE 520
TUDOR SEDAN 580
FORDOR SEDAN 660

Demountable Rims and Starter Extra on Open Cars
Closed Cars in Colors

FORD MOTOR COMPANY, DETROIT, MICH.

Ford

NO INCREASE IN PRICES

"PEOPLE OF MODERATE MEANS"

Who are they? How best described? Perhaps by calling them PEOPLE WHO CANNOT AFFORD TO LOSE.

Are they buying securities? They are tempted to buy those promising an uncommonly large return. BEWARE! They should be quite sure what is the prevailing ordinary return,—and that they are dealing with people on whose judgment, advice and honor they can rely with a large degree of confidence.

It is a sad fact that "people of moderate means", who doubtless always feel they need the highest obtainable return, should be the most cautious of all investors,—should have the very best advice.

It is a great mistake to assume that the service to them by such a concern as this, costs too much, or begins only with someone's death.

THE MICHIGAN TRUST COMPANY

Grand Rapids.
The Oldest in Michigan.
Organized in 1889.

Reduced Prices on

King Midas Flour

For the balance of the month of September we will give a discount of on all King Midas Flour in stock, sold in barrel lots. Order what you need for the winter at this discount price.

10 %

Charlevoix Co-Operative Assn.

Let The COURIER Sell IT for YOU

CHAPTER IV

If we thought we had finished with Jake it was evidence that we still had much to learn about our guide's business qualities. Jake had a follow-up peculiarly his own, and that afternoon he came steaming into our presence as we sat in the bare lounge room of the hotel, making a list of necessities on the back of an envelope.

"I been chasin' you fellows all over hellangone," he announced, with a profuse expectoration to facilitate speech. "I got a fistful o' luck fer you. Chap down at the stables—trouble o' some kind or other—wants to sell his horses; as pretty a team o' bays as ever switched a tail in flytime, an' I can put you next."

"That's good of you," said Jack, "but we've just figured that we can't afford horses. It's a case of horses and no cow, or oxen and a cow, and the vote at the moment stands unanimous for milk to our porridge, even at the risk of our characters. They tell us that even a good man swears when he drives oxen."

"That's wrong," Jake corrected. "A good man don' drive oxen. He may be good before he drives them, but not while he drives them, nor immejut afterward. It's agin human nature. I've seen profanity on some o' the ox trails o' this country so thick it lay jus' like a fog on the prairie. Oxen has started more fellows on the wrong road than any other critturs—'cept women."

"Well, we're going to take a chance with both," was Jack's answer. "You don't happen to have a hard-up friend who would part with a yoke of oxen, for a consideration, do you?"

Jake scratched his tousled hair meditatively. "Come to think o' it, I believe I do," he said at length. "I jus' recommember a chap who was talkin' o' sellin' his oxen t'other day. As sleek a yoke as ever switched a tail in flytime; gentle an' strong, an' speedy as a scairt rabbit. I reckon I could get you a special price on 'em, pretendin' it was meself that was buyin'."

"And a cow," I ventured. "Have you a cow on your bargain list?"

"Jake has everything on his bargain list that we may happen to need," said Jack. "Everything from a cow to a cookstove. It's all right, Jake; we don't mind your little graft so long as you play the game half fairly, and see that we get at least fifty cents' worth on the dollar. Buying on our own judgment we would probably get less than that."

So it was arranged that Jake was to be our purchasing agent, with a sort of gentleman's understanding that he might cheat us a little in consideration of his services in preventing other people from cheating us a great deal. The arrangement, I believe, worked out to our advantage. Jake undoubtedly bought our supplies for less than we could have bought them, even after providing his secret commissions. Moreover, he knew what was essential and what was not, and he saved us valuable time.

When at last our outfit was complete it presented a picturesque and somewhat pathetic turnout. On our wagon we had built a temporary box of boards, and on this were piled our trunks and personal effects, a plow, a stove, food supplies, a tent, a crate with hens and another with a young pig, while over all roosted, if I may use the term, the two girls. The cow we tied behind, while Jock and I walked as a sort of flank guard on either side of the oxen. These two phlegmatic creatures rejoiced in the names of Buck and Bright, and stolidly pursued their destiny at a pace of two and a half miles an hour. Their resignation in adversity was sublime; in fact, we soon found it impossible to invent any adversity to which they were not resigned.

With such an outfit our progress was much slower than it had been with Jake and his "flyin' ants," but it was an experience of unbounded freedom and delight. The days held bright and warm, as it was still too early for the Race Across the Prairies.

May rains; the nights were cold and starry, with a tang of frost toward morning; the dawns were a rush of color, and the sunsets indescribable.

At nights we pitched the tent and made down blankets for the girls, but Jack and I slept under the stars. We were roughing it, but every muscle in our young bodies was vibrating with the tense new life of the open. When the girls called us to breakfast of fried bacon and potatoes and steaming coffee and milk from our traveling dairy, we were more happy and more hungry than anything we had ever known to be possible.

And the girls! We saw them growing browner every day, but with their sunburn they seemed to take on a strange new charm and competence. They treated the whole experience as a high adventure, and after cramped hours on the top of "the ark" they would race like wild things across the prairies, their hair flying in the breeze, and a vagrant wind tossing the skirts about their shapely limbs.

They had taken the precaution to provide themselves with sunbonnets, but the prairie sun is an impetuous lover, and their cheeks and lips showed the mark of his caresses. He was a rival who did not pique my jealousy, for in his embrace I saw the woman Jean bursting forth from the bud of girlhood in a beauty that kept my blood a-tingle.

There was just one note that bothered me. It was sounded a day or two after we left Regina in some covert remark which Marjorie made about Jean's Mounted Policeman. It seemed that while Jack and I had been away land hunting the girls, too, had been doing a little prospecting. Regina was the headquarters of the mounted police, and the fine figures of these young riders of the plains with their scarlet tunics and trim gold-ribboned riding trousers and clanking spurs have turned more heads than Jean's before and since. It seems the girls were walking along a business street when they saw a young policeman coming at a short distance, and they happened to stop to admire something in a window while he approached. He also stopped to admire, and Marjorie said something—which Jean would not have done—and a conversation started up, and the policeman seemed to prefer Jean, perhaps because she had not spoken first. At any rate he saw them safely home, and dallied over his responsibility and the gate post until they said they must go in. He called the next night and wanted to take them to a "show," but they would not go; at any rate, Jean would not go.

"But you went walking with him," Marjorie challenged.

"He asked you, too," said Jean, her pretty face coloring. "You started with us, and then went back."

"I saw how the land lay, or the wind blew, or whatever it was. I had nothing to do at home, but I knew I would be busier there than out walking with you and your policeman."

"Marjorie! How can you—"

"And he told her he would call on her after we were settled."

"He did no such thing! He asked me where we were going to settle, and I told him I didn't know, and he said he hoped he would be patrolling there. He's going to be sent out from barracks soon, and he said it would be safer for me—for us—if someone were patrolling our district."

"Not for you, dear," said Marjorie, pleasingly, and there was a little sting in her words which brought me into action.

"I believe you're jealous, Marjorie," I said, in tones intended to be severe.

"And aren't you?" she retorted. "You ought to be."

The truth is, I was. Jean had always belonged to me so absolutely that I had never thought of the possibility of a rival. Even now I did not think of such a thing seriously. It was true that there was no engagement between us, unless the word of a man of six and a woman of four can be taken as binding, but I looked on Jean as mine, nevertheless, and I resented the action of the mounted policeman in seeking her acquaintance. I resented, too, the fact that she had gone walking with him, and I told her so at the first opportunity.

It came that afternoon. Jean said she was tired riding, and got down to walk, on my side of the wagon. We trudged along for some distance in silence, save for my occasional words of rebuke and exhortation to the oxen.

"You're cross at me," she said at length.

"I'm not." Why I said that I can't imagine. I was, and wanted her to know it.

"I didn't mean to offend you," she went on. "Marjorie was just a little bit—spiteful."

"I know she was," I agreed. "But you shouldn't have gone walking with him."

"Why?"

"He was a stranger. You didn't even know his name."

"I do now. It's Harold Brook. Besides, in this country, you don't have to know people's names. You just speak anyway."

"Oh, do you?" I said, sarcastically. "So I see."

"Don't be cross," she coaxed. "See, I can beat you to that badger hole. One—two—three—"

She was off like the wind. For a moment I hesitated, then joined in the race. But she had too much start, and besides, she was almost a match for me. She reached the little mound first, and as she turned she swerved a little from her course, and I happened to plunge into her. To save herself from falling she seized me about the neck, and her hair brushed against my face. . . .

We walked back slowly, arm in arm, and I had a sense of being very much of a brute. . . . Jean had wound me around her little finger.

There are certain thrills of accomplishment, certain epochs of development, which come only once in a lifetime. One of these is when a young man writes his first check, or first turns his key in his own door, or first sees his name on an office signboard. But the greatest is when he first looks upon land he can call his own. True, this land was not yet ours, but it was pledged to us if we carried out our part of a very simple agreement, and already we had a proprietary interest in it. We showed it to the girls with the pride of a mother displaying her first born. We were desperately anxious that our choice should be justified.

We waited for their verdict, but neither spoke. "Well, what do you think of it?" Jack asked at length.

"It looks all right," said Marjorie. "I suppose it is as good as any. But I don't see how you are going to tell it from other people's land. It's all alike."

"What do you say, Jean?"

But Jean was looking at the sunset, where the Master Artist was splashing pastels of bronze and copper against a background of silver and champagne. "Wonderful, wonderful!" she murmured.

"Fourteen is Frank's and Twenty-two is mine," Jock explained. "We'll pitch the tent for the girls here, and Frank may do as he likes, but I'm going to cross the gully and sleep tonight under my own vine and fig tree, so to speak. My six months' residence begins tonight!"

"Fig tree!" Marjorie exclaimed. "The trees around here are just about high enough to tickle your ear—when you're lying down."

"You haven't seen the trees yet," said Jack, knowingly. "Now, let's pitch camp."

We dragged the tent close to the brow of the gully and pitched it on the spot where we had planned that my shack should be. We also unloaded part of our equipment so that we could make use of it in the housekeeping operations. It was with great zest that we carried our cookstove to the door of the tent and strung up two or three lengths of pipe. In a few minutes Jack appeared from somewhere with an armful of wood, and as the darkness settled down we gathered about a fire on our own farms, for the first time in our lives.

And so we chattered on, saying nothing of moment, but feeling the great joy of possession welling in our hearts. It was a day and a night to be lived over many a time in memory. For the first time in our lives we were drinking of the wells of possession—the enchanted streams which draw men and women into the wilderness to live and die on the outposts of civilization.

We had finished supper, and the gray gloom of twilight was crawling slowly up from the east when a sharp, whistling rustle almost above us brought the girls to their feet with a start.

"What was that!" Jean exclaimed. "It was almost like a bullet."

"Nay, nay," said Jack, indulging in a very sorry joke. "It is a ducklet."

"A ducklet? What ducklet?"

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

You will find high quality merchandise at reasonable prices at the Charlevoix Hdw. Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

AUCTION SALE

The undersigned will sell at Publie Auction on what is known as the Charles Pierce farm, four miles south of Charlevoix on the Adams Lake road, on

Tuesday October, 6

Commencing at 10:00 a. m., the following described property:

Bay Horse, 7 yrs. old, wt. 1500
Brown Mare, 12 yrs. old, wt. 1250
Brown Mare, 3 yrs. old, wt. 1350
Bay Horse, 9 yrs. old, wt. 1100
Grade Jersey Cow, 6 yrs. old, due to freshen in Jan.
Grade Jersey Cow, 6 yrs. old, due to freshen in October
Grade Jersey Cow, 8 yrs. old, due to freshen in Jan.
Grade Jersey Cow, 5 yrs. old, due to freshen in Feb.
Guernsey Cow, 8 yrs. old, due to freshen in March
Grade Jersey Cow, 3 yrs. old, freshened Sept. 1st.
Guernsey Heifer, 2 yrs. old, due to freshen soon
Guernsey Heifer, 1 ½ yrs. old
5 Duroc Pigs, 4 months old
Deering Mowing Machine — Hay Rake
Double Cutaway Disk
Weber Wagon and Potato Rack
Parker Plow, No. 52
Spring-tooth Harrow
Spike-tooth Harrow
Corn Sheller, new — Beet Lifter
Pair Heavy Sleighs and Rack
Cutter — Buggy
Sharpless Cream Separator
Set of Heavy Work Harness
Single Work Harness
Single Driving Harness
Riding Cultivator
5-Shovel Cultivator — Land Roller
A No. 1 Rabbit Dog
Stack Canvas, 18x24 feet, new Fairbank-Morse Engine, 1 ½ H. P., new Kettle — 350 bushels of Oats
10 Tons Alfalfa Hay
8 Tons of Straw
8 Tons Timothy and Clover Hay
50 White Leghorn Hens
Victrola
Kalamazoo Wood Heater
CHEVROLET SEDAN
Bed, Chairs, Dresses, Ice Box and other
Beds, Chairs, Dressers, Ice Box and other tion.

FREE LUNCH AT NOON

TERMS OF SALE

All sums of $10.00 or under, cash; all sums over $10.00, one year's time on good, approved, endorsed bankable paper bearing interest at 7 per cent, payable at the Charlevoix County Bank. Five per cent off for cash on all sums over $10.00. No property to be removed until terms of sale are complied with and all settlements must be made on day of sale.

William Cellner, Prop

ROBERT BRIDGE, Note Clerk
H. J. TIMMER, Clerk

W. E. BYERS, Auctioneer.

AUCTION SALE

The undersigned will sell at Public Auction on what is known as the Samson Goldbold farm, on the Petoskey Road, about a half mile north of The Inn, on

Saturday, Oct. 10

Beginning at 1:00 p. m., the following described property:

Hallett-Davis Upright Piano
Two Iron Beds, Springs and Mattresses
Oak Dresser
Bureau — Sanitary Cot
Bookcase and Writing Case, combined
Sewing Machine
Three Stands
Kitchen Cupboard with glass doors
Kitchen Cabinet
Three Rocking Chairs
Eight Dining Chairs
Two Extension Tables
American Oak Heater
Hard Coal Burner
Banner Range
Oil Stove — Iee Box
8-day Cloek — Several Pictures
Window Curtains and Window Shades
Sofa Pillows
Bed Pillows
Quilts — Blankets
9x12 Congoleum Rug
Bench Wringer
Quantity of Dishes
Cooking Utensils
Wash Stands
Ironing Board
Forks, Shovels, Hoes, Rakes, Brush scythe Crosseut Saw
2 Ice Saws — 2 Tree Pruners
Quantity of Eave Spouts
Some Grass and Vetch Seed
Log Chains, Chicken Wire
Potato Crates, Lath
Work Bench — Plow
Some Shingles and Lumber
Bone Grinder — Grindstone
Cultivator — Spike-tooth Harrow
Chicken Self-feeders
Other articles too numerous to mention

TERMS OF SALE

All sums of $10.00 or under, cash; all sums over $10.00, six months time on good, approved, endorsed, bankable paper bearing interest at 7 per cent, payable at the Charlevoix State Savings Bank. No property to be removed until terms of sale are complied with and all settlements must be made on day of sale.

Mrs. Samson Godbold, Prop.

H. J. TIMMER, Clerk
ARCHIE LIVINGSTON, Note Clerk

W. E. BYERS, Auctioneer.

WRIGLEY'S

AFTER EVERY MEAL

THE FLAVOR LASTS

Probably one reason for the popularity of WRIGLEY'S is that it lasts so long and returns such great dividends for so small an outlay. It keeps teeth clean, breath sweet, appetite keen, digestion good.

Fresh and full-flavored always in its wax-wrapped package.

Over $400,000,000 Hoarded

IT has been estimated that more than $400,000,000 has been taken out of circulation by folks who, for some reason or other, prefer to keep their cash in safe deposit boxes, old socks, under mattresses or in some other place. 3 per cent the average interest paid by banks—on $400,000,000 amounts to $12,000.000 a year in interest lost by these folks who will not use the banks. If you have been keeping your money out of circulation, stop it now. Get it into the bank, where it will do you and someone else good.

Charlevoix State Savings Bank

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

W. S. Richardson, President.
A. D. Crimmins, Vice President.
Archie Livingston, Cashier.
G. W. Richardson, Asst. Cashier.

SOLID LEATHER
$5.00

A Better womans shoe has never been offered for the money.

CAMPBELL BOOT SHOP

Makes Night Driving SAFE

The Controllable Beam on the Better Buick

Night driving strain, the blind insecurity when you dim to keep glare out of the eyes of an approaching driver—both have been eliminated by the Controllable Beam Headlight, a feature of the Better Buick.

Daytime visibility every inch of the way! Bright light all the time!

And this is only one of many 1926 improvements which Buick engineering has given to the Better Buick. 75 horsepower and more; Duotone in Duco finish; Triple Sealed Valve-in-Head engine; light-pedal-pressure clutch; approved mechanical 4-wheel brakes; and many other exclusive advancements now make the Better Buick the better car to own and drive.

Look it over! Drive one! We have a Better Buick waiting for your telephone call, any day or any evening.

BUICK MOTOR COMPANY
Division of General Motors Corporation
FLINT, MICHIGAN

the Better BUICK

HEATON & HOOPER
Boyne City, Michigan

WHEN BETTER AUTOMOBILES ARE BUILT, BUICK WILL BUILD THEM

The Charlevoix Camp Fire Girls will hold a benefit dance Friday evening, October 2, in the lobby of Hallett's Inn, after the football game. Everyhody welcome. 75c per couple, extra ladies 25c—Adv. 39-t1.

DEATH CAUSES PROFOUND SORROW

Pillip Howe Home Saddened by Death of Beloved Wife

Mrs. Nita Howe died of septic poisoning at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. F. Johnson, of Eveline township, Thursday, September 24, at 9:45 p. m. Funeral services were held from the home of Wm. F. Johnson, Saturday at 2:00 p. m., Dr. Mattson of the Congregational church officiating. Interment was made in Brookside cemetery.

Mrs. Nita Howe was the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. F. Johnson of Eveline township. She was born in Fairgrove, Tuscola county, Michigan, December 21st, 1900. She leaves her parents, husband, Phillip E. Howe, and four children, Elliot, eight years; Billie, 5 years; Clare, 15 moaths, and Stanley, three weeks, also two brothers, Elwyn Johnsoa and Foster Johnson.

Those present at the fuaeral from out of town were: Alfred Johnson and Alvah Werth, of Fairgrove, Michigaa; Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Johason and Werth Johnson of Boyne City.

METHODIST CHURCH

C. E. Pollock, pastor

"Believing By Faith,"—next Sunday's sermon suhject, 10:30.

"The Inevitable Book"—a book sermon, 7:30 p. m. Dr. Lynn Harold Hough, pastor of Central Methodist Episcopal church, Detroit, has written a book of the above title, which serves as the illustrative basis for this sermon next Sunday evening. Good music always.

Sunday School Rall day next Sunday. The school convenes at twelve o'clock sharp. It is hoped and expected that every teacher and pupil will be present on time, and if possible, bring a friend.

A good leader and a good topic for the Epworth League devotional hour next Sunday at 6:30 p. m. The church is a good plaee for young and older to spend "Happy Sunday evening."

The regular monthly officlal board meeting is called for next Monday at 7:30 at the church.

The regular Sunday School board meeting is called for Wednesday evealng next at 7:30 at the church.

Prayer meeting each Thursday evealng at 7:30. All people are welcome.

W. E. Parmelee builds storm windows.—Adv. 37-tf.

NEW COACHES TO BE PUT INTO SERVICE

First Shipment Has Arrived io Grand Rapids

The first shipment of the new palatial observation coaches soon to be placed in service on Greyhound Chicago line arrived in Grand Rapids last week, and represented the finest type of Fageol motor coaches.

Similar in appearance to the familiar Greyhound parlor coach, the new observation models are equipped with a glass-enclosed covered platform at the rear, where easy chairs with adjustable backs provide unusual comfort for the eight hour run from Chicago.

These beautiful new observation coaches have exceptionally wide-cushioned arm chairs in the main section of the car, and are equipped with aickeled hat and package racks, so that the passengers may have plenty of room during their trips. Special consideration has been given to providing plenty of room, so there will be no crowdiag, by placing all chairs far enough apart so there is plenty of leg room.

Six months ago the company operated only two lines, one to Muskegon and one to Fremont from Grand Rapids. Today it is operating over five huadred miles of Michigan's roads with over sixty coaches in service. This unusual growth has been brought about by giving the public a much waated means of rapid, safe, comfortable transportntioa. No detail that will improve the service of the coaches themselves has been omitted. The Greyhound has one popular approval everyhwere, besides the eighteen observation coaches. Twelve more parlor coaches are on the way and during the busy hours, half hour service will be maintained between Grand Rapids and Muskegon. The only handicap confronting the Greyhouad lines is a lack of sufficient production by the makers of their coaches to furnish machines fast enough by next summer. It is believed a veritable network of Greyhound routes will cover western Michigan.

We are selling a geauine 13-plate rubber case Willard Battery for $16.50. Benj. Brown Battery Shop. Adv. 39-tf.

INTERESTING BITS OF INFORMATION CLIPPED FROM OUR EXCHANGES

"One lawyer acts for both sides," says a Ludington headline. And, no doubt, being where he was, for the middle.

A report from Sault Ste. Marie says the St. Mary's Fall are almost dry and prohibition of raiafall or something up there is evidently a success.

However, if that prisoner who has broken out of the Sturgis jail four times keeps on, sooner or later he will inevitably strike the strong spot.

A Pontiac sportsman points out that skunks do not become offensive until they reach a certain age. And not very oftea even then, to persons who have reached an age of discretion.

The average life of an ant is from eight to 10 years, an observer at Benton Harbor remarks. A well-balanced diet of picnic lunches and picknickers is held to be largely responsible for this.

The state law requires that motor vehicles shall be equipped with not more than two white headlights, and one still sees some motorists who are keeping well within the law by having none.

Three automobiles, a passenger bus, a motorcycle and a buggy figured in a traffic smashup at Muskegon the other day. It is estimated that more than 1,000 pedestrians in the vicinity were scarcely worried at all.

A pair of motorists at Iron Mountain parked their car on the railroad track and feel asleep. Every one should learn to park on railroad tracks. The tracks usually aren't crowded and the fine thing about it is that as soon as the train has passed there is as much room as ever, again.

Extension Work for Teachers

Arrangements are being made by Commissioner A. C. Belding whereby the teachers of Charlevoix county may secure additional credits at the Mt. Pleasant State Normal. Those interested should see Mr. Belding this week.

Card of Thanks

We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks for the kiadness and sympathy extended to us during the illness and loss of our beloved daughter and wife. Wm. F. Johnson and family, Phillip E. Howe and family. Adv. 39-t1 pd.

CLOSING OUT

Stock of Men's Suits

We have decided to sell out our stock of Men's Suits including the well known Hart, Schaffner & Marks brand. Price reductions will be made at a great saving. Now is your opportunity! Come early, you may be too late.

M. A. Levinson & Co.

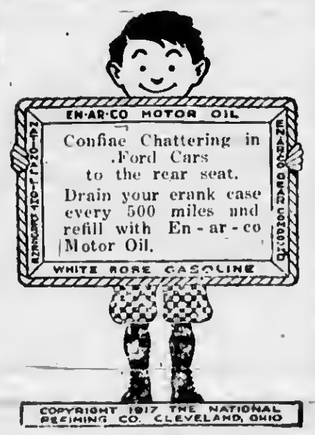
Hautin Clothes
have won a National reputation
by giving unusual values.

Suits $20 $22.50 25~

Extra pants to match from $5.00 to $6.50
Hautin's Best: Strictly hand-tailored $35.00 two pants

F. E. CARTIER, Tailor and Cleaner

PHONE 248



EN-AR-CO MOTOR OIL
Confine Chattering in Ford Cars to the rear seat.
Drain your crank case every 500 miles and refill with En-ar-co Motor Oil.
WHITE ROSE GASOLINE
COPYRIGHT 1917 THE NATIONAL REFINING CO. CLEVELAND, OHIO

Eliminates chattering—prolongs life of all wearing parts.

THE AUTO SHOP

Phone 93 204 Mason St.

LOCAL GARDNER GROWS FINE CELERY

Gordon W. Parker Successful With Experiment

That celery for the home eaa be successfully raised on ordinary Charlevoix county land has been demonstrated by G. W. Parker, one of our local gardners.

Mr. Parker, who raised his own plants, has 400 stalks growlag in four short rows. It is of fine size coasidering the dry season. The crop last season was also good. Full information will be cheerfully furnished to callers who may wish to plant eelery next year.

Information for Teachers

No more teachers examinations—no more special certificates. Teachers will from now on receive certificates upon presentation of certain credits to the county board of examiners. Those wishing to teach hnd best secure special information from the county school commissioner's office.

CHURCH OF GOD

Preaching services at 10:30 and 7:30 each Sunday.

Sunday school, 11:45.

Young people's meeting at 6:30 each Sunday evealng.

Prayer meeting each Wednesday evening at 7:30.

Wm. Eldridge, Pastor.

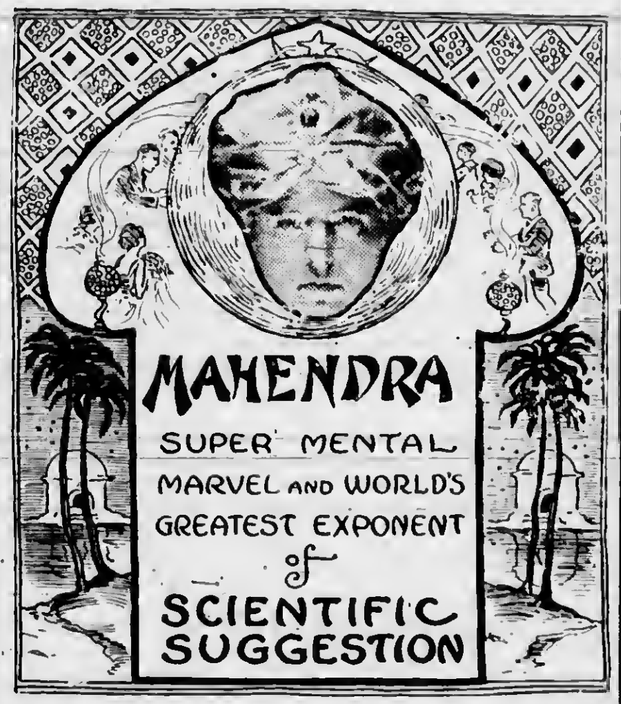
Palace Theatre

Five days starting Monday, October 5th

The Great Mahendra

—AND—

Miss Anna Lundh, Oriental Dancer



SPECIAL EXTRAORDINARY ADDED ATTRACTION

MAHENDRA will give the most awe-inspiring demonstration of Psychic Power ever presented.

HE ANSWERS ALL QUESTIONS

Miss Lundh will interpret the Dance of the Pharohs.

Motion pictures at 7:15 p. m. and 9:30 p. m. Mahendra shows once every evening from 8:45 to 9:30. Big double attraction—no advance in prices. Admission: Children under twelve, 15c; Adults, 30c.

TWO ATTRACTIONS FOR THE PRICE OF ONE

THE OLDEST BANK IN CHARLEVOIX COUNTY
FORTY-FIRST YEAR IN BUSINESS

1884 1925

A Checking Account prevents mistakes—provides receipts for all bills paid—and furnishes a convenient, business-like way of handling your money.

Can you think of any good reason why you should not step into the bank the next time you come by and open a Checking Account?

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY BANK
CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN
Nicholls, Buttars & Bridge, Bankers
THE BANK ON THE CORNER

LOCAL NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

Get the Habit—Read the Courier

SINCE MOTHER BOBBED HER HAIR

When my mother sits at breakfast
With dad and sis and me,
She looks as neat and pretty
As anyone could be.
She doesn't twist her hair up tight,
And caps she will not wear.
She's combed as nice as for a ball,
Since mother bobbed her hair!

Somehow she seems so young to me;
She whistles all the day;
She doesn't scold me half as much;
And life is oh, so gay!
I'm crazy to be where she is,
For playmates I don't care.
Somehow I'd rather play with her,
Since mother bobbed her hair!

I think my daddy feels the same,
For it's amazing quite
To see how spoony-like he acts
When he comes home at night.
He says it takes him back to days
When he just wouldn't dare
To grab her like he grabs her now,
Since mother bobbed her hair!

My mother thought my grandmamma
Would be the one to scoff
She hardly dared to tell her
That she'd her hair cut off,
But grandma only looked at her,
And said, "Why, I declare,
My little girl is back again
Since mother bobbed her hair!

Mrs. Frank Metcalf returned from Central Lake, Monday afternoon.

Nels Lafrenier of St. James, is visiting friends in Charlevoix this week.

Joe Howard will leave next Tuesday for Cleveland, Ohio, where he will visit his parents.

Miss Hazel Geer left for Orlando, Florida, Monday evening, where she will spend the winter months.

William Poole, who has been seriously ill for the past summer, is improving rapidly in health.

R. White arrived from St. James, Friday, and is stopping in the city on business for several days.

Mrs. Nellie Godfrey of Kalamazoo, is visiting at the home of her sister, Mrs. H. C. Plum.

Charles Hamlin returned from Detroit, Monday, where he has been visiting friends the past two weeks.

Dare Burke drove up from Detroit and spent the week end at the home of his mother, Mrs. Geo. W. Priest.

Wm. E. Wilkins and wife left for Indianapolis, Indiana, last Monday, where they will reside for the winter.

Miss Mary Clark returned last Friday to Muskegon, after spending the summer with friends in Charlevoix.

Albert Widdifield left last week for Chicago, where he will resume his studies at the University of Chicago.

Father Wegemer of St. Mary's church will leave some time this week for Arizona, where he will take a rest.

Andrew McCall, Jr., returned last Thursday from Detroit, where he visited relatives and friends for ten days.

R. E. Olds, president of the Reo Motor Car corporation of Lansing, Michigan, is in the city on business this week.

Lysle Glossinger, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Glossenger, died Saturday evening at their home in Petoskey.

Mrs. J. H. Saunders left Monday for St. Charles, Illinois, to attend the funeral of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Will Johnson.

Mr. and Mrs. Byron Cook and their son, Jack, are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Cook on Muson street.

J. A. Salner arrived from St. James last Friday and will visit relatives in Charlevoix and vicinity for a couple weeks.

Will E. Hampton and wife left Sunday for their home in Ann Arbor, after spending the past two weeks in the city.

Walter Quant returned from Grand Rapids, Monday, after spending the week end with his parents at their new pastornte.

Mrs. H. R. E. Quant and her grandmother, Mrs. E. W. Batemen, left Thursday morning for their new home in Grand Rapids.

The Ladies Literary and Sewing Club will meet at the home of Mrs. Harold Meggison, on Antrim street, Thursday afternoon at 2:30 p. m.

Charles A. Harwood and wife, accompanied by Mrs. Tom LaLonde, motored to Detroit, Monday, where they will visit friends for a few days.

Mrs. John Roen arrived home last Saturday after spending a week with her husband, Capt. John Roen, at Manistee, returning on the Str. Marquis Roen.

Mrs. A. E. Mason will leave for Ann Arbor next Monday, where she will visit her son, Perry Mason, who is a professor in the University of Michigan.

A. O. Skye left last Friday to attend the University of Chicago, after spending the past two weeks with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Christ Lyngklip.

E. S. Trautman left for Cincinnati, Ohio, Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Trautman is an enthusiastic fisherman and is a regular visitor here every season.

Lee MacDonald left for St. Ignace, Wednesday afternoon, where he will visit his parents for a few days. Mr. MacDonald was accountant at The Inn during the past summer.

R. E., George W. Leedle, Grand Lecturer of the grand chapter of the state of Michigan, will be a visitor of the Charlevoix chapter No. 141, Monday evening, October 5th.

Mrs. Blanche Greenman left for Grand Rapids, Monday afternoon, where she will spend a few days with friends and then go on to Detroit, where she will reside for the winter.

Milton Block and wife and his father, Peter Block and wife, left Sunday for a two weeks vacation to be spent with friends and relatives at Holland, Muskegon and Chicago.

William Flynn will drive to Damariscotta, Maine, with A. I. Creamer some time this week, and then will resume his duties at Highland Pines Inn at Southern Pines, N. C., this fall.

W. T. Driggett and wife are touring different points in southern Michigan, including Flint, Monroe, Ypsilanti, Detroit and Ann Arbor, to visit their children and other relatives.

George W. Priest, who has been confined to his bed by illness for the past three weeks, is reported as convalescing, although it will be some time before he will be out on the street and at the studio.

Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Harrington will leave for St. Louis, Mo., next Sunday morning. They will go by auto and visit their daughter, Beatrice Tuttle, who is teaching in the public schools of St. Louis.

Henry Hamlin and family left Tuesday for Clearwater, Florida, where they will spend the winter and spring months. They will make the trip by auto, driving down on what is known as the southern route.

Frank Welsh left for Southern Pines, N. C., Wednesday morning, where he will have charge of the Welsh riding school for the winter. Mr. Welsh is the proprietor of the Charlevoix Riding school of this city.

Miss Virginia Parker left last week on an extended visit to her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Clark of Wichita, Kansas. Virginia expects to return in the early summer and resume her work at Loeb Farms.

The Congregational Ladies' Aid Society will meet next Wednesday, October 7th, with Mrs. Bert Elliott, R. F. D., No. 2. A potluck dinner at 1:00 p. m. (standard time) will be followed by the monthly business meeting.

H. Fales, recently an employe of the Northern Creamery Company of this city, left Monday with his family for Traverse City, where he will work for the Freeman Dairy Co. and make Traverse City his future home.

Joe, Archie and Philip Lemieur and wife, accompanied by Frank Krulick, had a very enojyable trip through the southern part of the state last week. They motored to Detroit, and then came back via Grand Rapids, Muskegon, Manistee, Traverse City and thence home.

A. E. Fitch, wife and daughter, Catherine, returned Sunday from Detroit, where they have spent the past two weeks. While there Art had his tonsils removed. It is interesting to hear him relate the details of his operation.

Mr. and Mrs. A. I. Creamer, manager of the Inn, expect to leave this week for Damariscotta, Maine, where they will take a vacation and rest prior to the opening of Highland Pines Inn at Southern Pines, N. C., in early December.

Luther McCann and Don Faunce, on their way to California, have arrived safely in Billings, Montona, and their little old Ford is having a hard job to run through a heavy downfall of snow in that section. They report very cold weather in the western Pacific states.

Sam Hamilton returned from Detroit last Sunday night. Mr. Hamilton piloted the speed boat, Laura-B, owned by Julius Gilbert of Detroit, to the dry docks on Detroit river last week. Mr. Gilbert is trading in the Lauro-B for a more speedier boat, a bear-cat special with 285 h. p. engines.

Mahendra, who will show at the Palace theatre for five days next week starting Monday, will answer all questions. He especially insists that questions be sensible and prefers that questions be written at home and brought to the theatre in a sealed envelope with name or initial signed.

A card from Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Hammond, on their way by auto to Los Angeles, California, mailed at Greeley, Colorado, reached the Courier Tuesday. "Dit" said they had driven 1530 miles and had averaged 250 miles a day. The trip is a wonderful one and no mishaps or car trouble have bothered them. They were at the time of mailing the card six days from Charlevoix, nearly half way to their destination.

Reserve the date of Friday, October 9, for the grand opening ball of the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs. Invitations will be out later.—Ad39t1.

BUY EXCURSION TICKETS EARLY

Pere Marquette Officials Make This Request of Public

Next Tuesday, October 6, is the date of the cut rate, round trip excursion on the Pere Marquette to southern points.

Local Agent Russell has asked the Courier to make the following announcement. "If Charlevoix people would be kind enough to buy their tickets early, it would give the P. M. a chance to know approximately how many are going, thereby making sure that the required number of coaches would be provided. We want to give them the best service possible and this means seating capacity on trains. By knowing in advance about how many intend to take the excursion in, we can provide plenty of room for all."

This is a good suggestion on the part of Mr. Russell and the Courier is glad to give the matter the necessary publicity.

Reserve the date of Friday, October 9, for the grand opening ball of the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs. Invitations will be out later.—Ad39t1.

COURIER BARGAIN COLUMN.

Courier Want Advs. are One Cent per word per insertion. Minimum charge is 20 cents per insertion, for anything under 20 words. All Want Advs. are strictly cash in advance except to those who have ledger accounts. Please remember this when sending in your copy.

FOUND

FOUND—Sum of money, also some out of town addresses. Owner may have the same by proving property and paying for notices. Inquire at Courier office.—39-t1.

FOUND—On shores of Little Traverse Bay off Norwood, a 24x8 skow, painted white. Owner can have same by paying advertising expenses and proving property. Inquire Dick Kirby, Norwood, Mich.—38-t3 pd.

FOR RENT—HOUSE

FOR RENT — Small apartment, steam heated, furnished or unfurnished as desired. See R. L. Lewis.—39-t1.
39t1.

FOR SALE—MISCELLANEOUS

FOR SALE—Kitchen Range. Price $10. Inquire at this office.—38-tf.

FOR SALE—Good car with panel top, in good condition. Inquire Mick O'Neil.—39-t1 pd.

FOR SALE—Over-head valve head, complete, for Ford car. Inquire Dick Kirby, Norwood.—38-t3 pd.

FOR SALE—6 dining room chairs, 2 porch chairs, 3 small tables, sewing table, sewing machine, cupboard, New Process Oil stove and oven, Round Oak Chief range No. 8 and hot water tank. Mrs. H. Berdan, 202 Belvedere avenue, phone 118.—38-tf.

WANTED—TO RENT

WANTED—Good unfurnished house with lights and water. Inquire of Lyle Kowalske, at the Express office.—38-t2 pd.

WANTED—MISCELLANEOUS

WANTED—A good closed car in exchange for a good 50 acre farm. Phone 144 or inquire at 432 North street, Boyne City, Mich.—39-t1.

WANTED—Old False Teeth. We pay high as $10 for full sets. Don't matter if broken. We buy crowns, bridges. Western Metal Co., Bloomington, Ill.—38-t2 pd.

FOR SALE—LIVE STOCK

FOR SALE—10 choice cows, all fresh; 3 choice yearling heifers, 2-year old half-blood Jersey-Durham bull, quiet and easy to handle; pile of lawn manure. Antoine Sharrow, Rt. 4, on M-11, 4½ miles south of Charlevoix.—33-tf.

WANTED—MISCELLANEOUS

CASH for Dental Gold, Platinum, Silver, Diamonds, magneto points, false teeth, jewelry, and valuables. Mail today. Cash by return mail. Hoke S. & R., Otsego, Mich.—12-tf.

MISCELLANEOUS

FOR INFORMATION regarding Florida land and investments, write Ernest E. Galloway, 845 N. W. 2nd St., Miami, Florida, Licensed Broker.—36-tf.

HELP WANTED.

WANTED—Man and wife for general farm work. Steady position. Inquire George Fink, Waters, Mich.—39-t1 pd.

WANTED—Competent girl for general housework. Permanent position. Inquire at McCann's Bakery, 34-tf.

Friday and Saturday Special
OCTOBER 2nd and 3rd

OUTING FLANNEL

36 inch wide Outing Flannel, a very good qaulity for gowns, pajamas, children's sleepers and petticoats. White background with pink, blue and tan stripes and checks. Gray, brown and navy background with harmonizing colored stripes and checks, for 22c Yd.

A. E. MASON

NEW PALACE THEATRE
ATTRACTIONS FOR THE COMING WEEK

Thursday, October 1

Florence Vidor in "THE GIRL OF GOLD." A sensational story of the tragedy of a rich girl's life, teeming with thrills, money and romance. See the society dance in a gold mine. Here is a story that will thrill you. Also a Neeley Edwards comedy, "BLACK GOLD BRICKS."

Friday, October 2

A richly-mounted romance with a strong vein of comedy and invincible cast—"IN THE NAME OF LOVE," with Richard Cortez, Grata Nissen, Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton. A 1925 version of Bulwer Lytton's famous play, "The Lady of Lyons." The screen's most beautiful blonde, Greta Nissen, lovelier than ever. The love classic of the screen. The story of a girl who was tricked into marriage to a man she had tricked in love. One of the new Greater Forty Paramount Pictures. Also a Fox News reel.

Saturday and Sunday, October 3 and 4

Wm. Fox presents a special production, "AS NO MAN HAS LOVED," from Edward Everett Hole's story, "The Man Without a Country." The producer's answer to better film advocates. A stirring drama built on events of United States history. An adventure story filled with thrilling dramatic action, but combined with one of the most appealing romances of all time. This picture has heartfelt appeal to youth of the United States, carries a most powerful lesson in patriotism. Also a Lloyd Hamilton two reel comedy, "CRUSHED." No advance in prices—15 and 30 cents.

Starting Monday for Five Days
THE GREAT MAHENDRA

in person. See advertisement in other part of this paper. Admission prices all the week of 15 cents for children under twelve; adults, 30 cents.

Monday and Tuesday, October 5 and 6

"THE TOP OF THE WORLD," with Anna Q. Nilsson, James Kirkwood, Raymond Hatton and Sheldon Lewis. See the amazing flood scenes and a hundred other breathless thrills in the most spectacular and unusual melodrama in screen history. Also MAHENDRA and the Oriental Dancer.

Wednesday, October 7

Wm. Fox presents the "human monkeys" in "DARWIN WAS RIGHT." Quest for something different in pictures brings forth Darwinian comedy classic. Local picture goers are promised an all-novelty diversion in "DARWIN WAS RIGHT," which revives interest in popular theories. Also MAHENDRA and Oriental Dancer.

At Least Two Cups

Monarch Coffee is so extraordinarily good that it takes two cups to satisfy the average person. Take home a pound tonight and try it for breakfast.

All Monarch Canned Goods are the Same

They are considered by all as the better grade of canned goods. We have yet to find the person who was not satisfied with the order we sent them. You can always use them with absolute safety.

Milton Block

Friday and Saturday SPECIALS

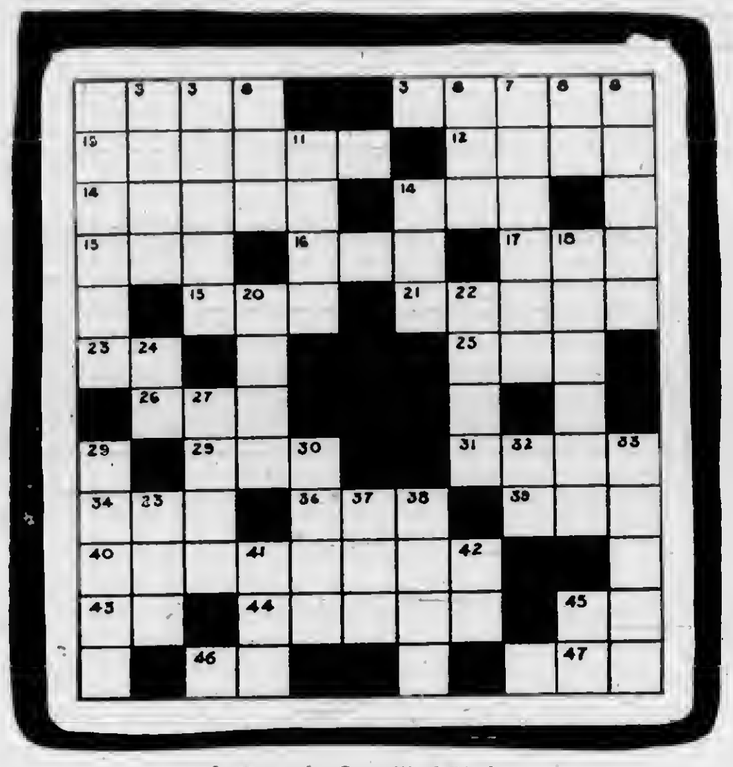
If you are in a saving mood, these specials will appeal to you:

2½ lbs. Chase & Sanborn's Coffee.....95c
1 doz. Oranges, for 32c
5 lbs. Sweet Potatoes, for 25c

Remember this: Chase & Sanborn's Coffee is about the best coffee on the market. We have the exclusive Charlevoix agency. We handle it because we believe there is more value to the pound than any brand we could carry.

MARTIN BLOCK
Opposite Post Office
Phone 12 or 142

GOOD ROADS CROSS WORD PUZZLE



Synonyms for Cross Word Puzzle

Verticle.

1—First name of a man about Charlevoix County who is an advocate of good reinforeed conerete roads.
2—Singly.
3—Command.
4—Expire.
6—Open (poet.)
7—Assisting.
8—Department of Navigation (abr.)
9—Fur-bearing animals.
11—Press tightly.
14—Wager
18—Pertaining to the Lent period.
20—Girl's name.
22—Large bird (plural).
24—Negative.
27—Felled with an axe.
28—Your father's brother.
30—Uncommon.
32—Each (abr.)
33—Put away for future use.
35—Period of time.
37—Possessive pronoun.
38—Suffix meaning "of the kind of."
41—Feline.
42—Electrical Engineer (abr.)
45—Forward.

Horizontal.

1—Adjective describing the kind of road we all want to drive over.
5—Highways.
10—To make rich.
12—Name of one of Charlevoix County's lakes.
13—More matured.
14—The bottom of a river.
15—A grain.
16—Part of verb "to he."
17—Not well.
19—Male sheep.
21—Sound (plural).
23—Printer's measure.
25—Chicago Tribune's radio call letters.
26—Electrical unit.
29—Part of the head.
31—Beholds.
34—Recent.
36—Exclamation expressing triumph.
39—Emmett.
40—The best road possible.
43—Latitude North (abr.)
44—Nest of a predatory bird.
45—Else.
46—Pronoun.
47—A number.

CONDITIONS OF THE CONTEST

Work the cross-word puzzle. Then write an essay of not more than 500 words on the subject: "Advantages of a Good Concrete Rond Around Pine Lake; Its Effect on Increased Valuation of Lake Shore Property as Well as Adjncent Property."

Send the essays nnd cross-word puzzle solutions to Miss Isabel Mitchell, Charlevoix, Michigan, who will act as judge in the contest.

First prize—$10.00 in cash.

Second prize—$5.00 in cash.

Third prize—$3.00 in cash.

Fourth prize—$1.00 in cash.

Fifth prize—$1.00 in cash.

Winners will be determined according to the correctness of their solutions to the cross-word puzzle, and according to the essay submitted on the subject: "Advantages of a Good Conerete Road Around Pine Lake; Its Effect on Increased Valuation of Lake Shore Property as Well as Adjacent Property."

Contest is open to everyone except editors and owners of the publications carrying it, and their employees.

Solutions and essays must both bear contestant's name and address and must be submitted by Thanksgiving Day.

The winning solutions and essays will be published in this paper.

In judging the essays neatness will be considered.

There are no "eatch-words" in the cross-word puzzle, nor any foreign or obsolete words.

Prize Money Pledge

This is to certify that "Unele" George H. VanPelt, pioneer good concrete road advocate, has deposited the sum of twenty (20.00) dollars with me with which to pay the prizes won by the contestants for the solution of the cross-word puzzle and the best essay on the subject: "Advantages of a Good Concrete Road Around Pine Lake; Its Effect on Inereased Valuation of Lake Shore Property as Well as Adjacent Property." All essays and solutions must be in the hands of Miss Isabel Mitchell of Charlevoix, Michigan, the judge, by Thanksgiving Day. Prize money will be promptly sent.

Signed: Robert Bridge,
Charlevoix County Bank.

Outselling

in the World's most exacting market!

These new car registrations in Detroit and Wayne County for August tell their own impressive story:

Buick	1151	Jewett	101
Essex	463	Cadillac	100
OAKLAND SIX	322	Oldsmobile	94
Hudson	305	Packard	80
Chrysler Four	286	Hupmobile	51
Nash	247	Willys-Knight	39
Dodge	236	Lincoln	33
Chrysler Six	191	Elcar	32
Studebaker	184	Rickenbacker	31
Overland	114	Reo	22

(Exclusive of Chevrolet and Ford)

In Detroit, the best informed and most exacting market in the world, the new Oakland Six has passed car after car in its steady march towards leadership in its field. This tremendous popularity in metropolitan Detroit is typical of the manner in which Oakland is winning and holding good will everywhere. Retail deliveries for August the country over were 78% ahead of the same period last year and thousands of orders for August delivery could not be filled until September.

The New Oakland Six embodies more than 100 improvements including Air Cleaner, Oil Filter, 4-Wheel Brake Refinements and the Harmonic Balancer

—Yet prices are $70 to $350 lower

HENRY BLOCK

WINNING AND HOLDING GOOD WILL

OAKLAND SIX

PRODUCT OF GENERAL MOTORS

welcoming the delegates and visitors, and providing flowers for the officers' tables, and for the supper which was served in the diningroom of the Grange hall. The address of Judge Parm C. Gilbert, which was to have been given in the evening, was necessarily postponed to some futare date.

Mrs. E. E. Cross, Sec'y.

If your battery is run down or needs repairs, bring it to our battery shop. Work guaranteed. Brown Battery Shop.—Adv. 39-tf.

BAPTIST CHURCH
Rev. Herman Burns, Pastor

"Proper Environment and Can We Produce It" will be the theme at 10:30 Sunday morning.

"True and False Ideas of God" will be the theme in the bible school at 12:00 m.

The young people will meet at 6:30 p. m. for study and devotions.

"Meeting God" will be the theme of the pastor's discourse at 7:30 p. m.

The annual meeting of the church will be held on Tuesday evening with a pot luck supper. The election of officers and reports from all depnrtments of the work will make up the program and a fine social time will be enjoyed. It has been a wonderful year and the reports ought to encourage us for further endeavor. Every member should be present.

"Charaeteristics of tbe Christian Life" will be the theme at the midweek service on Thursday evening.

This church welcomes all who come and especially those who are not worshippers elsewhere.

Christian Science Society

Sunday service, 10:45 a. m., subjeet, "Unreality."

Sunday school, 12:00.

Wednesday evening serviee, 7:45 p. m.

Reading room open Tuesday and Saturday, 3:00 to 5:00 p. m.

The publie is cordially invited to use our reading room and attend the services.

W. E. Parmelee builds storm windows.—Adv. 37-tf.

THE SIMPLEST LIGHT & POWER PLANT IN THE WORLD

"KEEP THEM CONTENTED AND YOU KEEP THEM HOME."

YOU don't hear of children leaviag a farm bome that has the beaefits of the city dweller. The girls will be proud of home aad mother and the boys will be fascinated with the power application possibilities of the Marco.

The electric washer, vacuum cleaner, electric lroa, toaster aad electric lights will keep the wife contented and make her days aad nights pleasaater.

Ths Marco (1,500 watt capacity) furnishes lights and electricity for every electrical need of the modern farm, aad the powerful 5 H. P. simplified "New-Way" Air-Cooled Eagine can be removed to run all other farm aachiaery.

Ask us to show you the many features of the Super-Powered Marco.

Benjamin Brown Auto Sales
CHARLEVOIX, MICH.

The SUPER-POWERED MARCO

FROM OFFICE BOY TO GENERAL MGR.

Salary Increase Comes With Promotion

Chicago, Sept. 29—After a careful survey of the entire labor situation extending from office boy to president, indications are that positions showing increases in salnries require experienced help.

Consulting the president of one of our largest industries, the writer inquired regarding the rapid suecess of a certain young mnn who had become generni manger and who a few years ago was but office boy; his answer was, Brown started as offiee boy, the lowest salaried position in our office, he was ambitious and managed to purchase a typewriter on small monthly payments and after three weeks of practice at home he was promoted to bill clerk, which position gave him knowledge of the selling price of nll merchandise. Ilis next advance was that of typist, which taught him the numerous forms of letter-writing and enabled him to hold a stenographic position, giving him complete knowledge of letter-writing. Ile was then made secretary, bringing him into contact with all business details and qualified him for the general manager's office at ten thousand per year.

The aamo opportunity awaits every young man and woman. Education or age have nothing to do with operating so simple a machine as tho typewriter. We are informed that a great piece of benevolent work is being carried on by a large Chicago mail order house in furnishing typewriters to people worthy of credit, hy selling on small monthly inatallments, so low as to average about elght cents per day and actually teaching their customers how to use and operate any typewriter in about three week's time. You can get other information by writing the International Typewriter Exchange, 184 W. Lake Street, Chicago, Illinois.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

The county W. C. T. U. meeting was held in the Grange hall, at Ironton, September 16, 1925. The county president, Mrs. B. Saltonstall, presided over the meeting. Miss Nettie Correll, assisted by Mrs. Dean, led the convention in an inspiring song service, and Mrs. Furman, of Boyne City, with a soul-inspiring influence, led the devotionals.

The reports of the unions in the county show a steady growth nnd the work for the year was very gratifying.

The annual address of the county president presented the scope of the work, explained the extension membership plan, the necessity of departmental work in all unions, the importance of enrolling members in Washington, D. C. to strengthen the forces of prohibition; and in loving memory, read the names of the departed members for the year, Mrs. Alson Wood of Charlevoix, Mrs. M. H. Robinson of East Jordan, and Mrs. P. J. Howard, former president of the eleventh distriet, who died in Grand Rapids.

Mrs. T. J. Smith of Boyne City, read a paper on the International conveation at Edinborough, giving excerpts of Lady Astor'a address, among which she said: "If the public men will not face the drink evil, the public women will." Alao, "Women are in the political world free from the promises that men are bound with, to the politeal bosses."

A paper on the Parent, Teachers' Associatlon was given by Mrs. E. E. Cross. Among some of tbe suggestioas were: co-operation to establish church night in the community, by naming one night in the week tbat the churches could entertain tbe young people of the congregation without interfering with some social or athletic engagement of the school progrnm; and as the Ten Commandments are the standard of law in the United States, the reading of the bible in the public schools is recommended. Parents and teachers will beenme better aeqainted if the teachers are invited into the homes, frequently, to spend the evening with the family. Homes and schools are elosely allied in the training of Americans. A Pnrent, Teachers' Association in the community might be of mutual benefit.

The election of officers resulted in all sueceeding themselves: Mrs. B. Saltonstall, presideat; Mrs. E. E. Cross, secretary; Mrs. T. J. Smith, treasurer; Mrs. Gleason, vice president at large.

A copy of the state liquor laws may be secured by writing to tho secretary of state, Charles Deland, Lansing, Michigan. We believe the prohibition laws are just and right nnd we aro much encouraged by the recent re-organization of the federal unit to make enforcement more effective. All citizens can be of use in helping to enforce the law by reporting violations to the officers.

The ladies of Ironton added mucb to the pleasure of the eonvention by

Simple Mixture for Gas on Stomach

Simple Buckthorn bark, magnesium sulph. e. p., glycerine, etc., as mixed in Adlerika, helps any ease gas on the stomach, unless due to deep-seated eauses. Tho pleasant and QUICK aetion will surprise you. Beeause Adlerika is such an excellent intestinal evacuant it is wonderful for constipation—it often works in one hour and never gripes. Fessenden's Drug Store.
ase!..uefn,tde

BUSINESS CARDS

R. B. ARMSTRONG
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Special Attention to Diaeases of Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat
Priest Bldg. Phone 255

DR. F. F. McMILLAN
Physician and Surgeon
Office above Postoffice
Phone 17
Charlevoix :: Michigan

A. L. FITCH
ATTORNEY AT LAW
Office in Court House
Phone 48
Charlevoix :: Michigan

D. T. McHUGH
General Contractor
Phone 214
CHARLEVOIX MICHIGAN

WM. J. BOGART
CONTRACTOR and BUILDER
No Job Too Large
No Job Too Small.
Phone 139 Charlevoix, Mich.

VIRGINIA RYALL BROWN, D. C.
PALMER CHIROPRACTOR
PHONES:
Office 347 Residance 39
Postoffice Building

LEGAL NOTICES

Order for Publication

State of Michigan, the Probate Court for the county of Charlevoix.

At a session of said court, held at the probate office in the city of Charlevoix, in said county, on the 19th day of September, A. D. 1925.

Present: Hon. Servetus A. Correll, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Ruth S. Darrah, mentally incompetent.

Ruth A. Colden having filed in said court her final account as guardian of said estate and her petition praying for the allowance thereof;

It is ordered, that the 15th day of October, A. D. 1925, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, he and is hereby appointed for examining and allowing said account and hearing said petition;

It is further ordered, that public notice thereof he given by publication of a copy of this order, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix Courier, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Servetus A. Correll,
Judge of Probate.

A true copy. Adv. 38-t3

Ellsworth Section

Thomas Routley of Bellaire, visited friends here on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Usher and dnughter, Alice, visited at the A. L. Ely home on Sunday.

J. T. Rushton of Scottville, Mich., was a business visitor here one day last week.

Mrs. Fred Glazier is working at the local postoffice doring the postmaster's absence.

M. J. Anderson, A. L. Ely and Jake VanUnen were Bellaire visitors one day last week.

L. O. Isaman and Connie Klooster left on Tuesday for Detroit. They will drive back in new Ford cars.

L. O. Isaman and family enjoyed n motor trip to Cross Village, Mackinac, Onaway and Cheboygan on Sunday.

Mrs. Frank Anderson of Hannibal, Missouri, arrived on Saturday fnr a short visit with her daughter, Mrs. H. H. Elzinga.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Dawson left on Wednesday of this week for a short visit at the latter's old home at Hartford, Michigan.

The canning factory started operations again this Tuesday morning with good prospects of a straight run of at least thirty days.

Wm. Allgire leaves for Florida on or about October 10th. He has taken a position as salesman with a Florida real estate firm.

This week will see the finish of the gravel haul on the Ellsworth-Atwood road, which hns been under way for the past three weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Parsons are holding an auction sale of their household goods on Saturday of this week and will move to Grand Rapids in the near future.

Mrs. A. L. Ely received word of the death of her brother-in-law, Larry T. Meade, which occurred very suddenly on Saturday morning at his home nt Minneapolis, Minn.

J. H. Allgire, proprietor of "Big Fish Inn" here, is planning on closing his place and expects to leave for Ohio on or about October 15th. Mr. Allgire expresses himself as more than pleased with business this summer.

The Klooster building, occupied by the Ellsworth Drug Co. and the Chatterton feed store and cream station, is receiving a new cont of paint which will change the time honored blue to a gray tint. F. O. Gillett is doing the work.

A Willard Battery for $16.50. Fits Ford, Chevrolet, Overland, Maxwell, Stnr and others. Benj. Brown Battery Shop.—Adv. 39-tf.

FOR SALE—Two fresh cows, one Jersey, three years old, 6-40 test three weeks after freshening. Frank Davey, Ellsworth.—39-t2pd

B. J. BEUKER
Physician and Surgeon
Office over Blue Storo
Ellsworth, Michigan
Office Hours: 2-4 p. m., Phone 38

MILES DISTRICT

Carl Moblo is helping Lou Shaw with his farm work.

Miss Irene Holben is helping in the Brabant store in East Jordan.

Miss Jessie Metz of Rock Elm, is visiting Mrs. Frank Addis this week.

Carson Brothers of East Jordan, called at the Eugene Miles home Sunday evening.

Warner Alexander and Arthur and Albert Elliot of Phelps, were Sunday visitors at the Fred Bancroft home.

Mrs. Mary Tillotson and sons, Edward and John of west Ellsworth, spent Sunday evening at the A. Miles home.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Addis of Walloon Lake, spent Sunday at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Addis.

Mrs. Laura Lindenau of Boyne City, Mrs. Mary Evans and Mrs. Delia Bancroft called on Mrs. Edna Moblo Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Art Farmer and little daughters nnd Joe M. LaLonde of East Jordan, called at the A. Miles home Saturday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Addis and son, Jamie, tonk supper at the home of their son, Mr. and Mrs. L. Addis at Walloon Lake, Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Miles entertained Sunday with a dinner for: Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Holben nnd daughters, Irene and Geneva, Mr. and Mrs. A. Miles. Also Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Strong of East Jordan, it being Mr. Strong's birthday anniversary.

FAIRVIEW-BANKS

Winter is coming.

John VanStraten is building a new chicken coop.

Lots of our young people are leaving for the city for the winter.

Miss Ella Hofman of Atwood, spent Sunday in this neighborhond, visiting friends.

Mr. nnd Mrs. Albert Kuiper visited with Mr. and Mrs. Jay Kuiper, Sunday evening.

Jim Wilson's benn threshing outfit was in the neighborhood the first part of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. William Kooyer visited with Mr. nnd Mrs. Wm. G. Drenth, Sunday evening.

Farmers in this locality have started digging potatoes, and report a small crop on account of the dry season.

Mr. and Mrs. John Parsons of Ellsworth, also Mr. nnd Mrs. Oscar DeGroot of Wright district, visited with Mr. and Mrs. H. DeGroot Sunday afternoon.

FOR OVER 40 YEARS
HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE has been used successfully in the treatment of Catarrh.
HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE consists of an Ointment which Quickly Relieves by local application, and the Internal Medicine, a Tonic, which acts through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces, thus reducing the inflammation.
Sold by all druggists.
F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio.

ATWOOD

We want a market for apples.

Mrs. Lillian Blow is on the sick list.

Dr. McMillan of Charlevoix, was here on Friday last.

Klooster & Company are making their many customers glad by getting a enrload of peaches.

The Leonard Seed Company of Chicngo, shipped 855 bushels of garden peas from Ellsworth last week.

Wesley Joliffe and Rosemary Henry, who are attending school at Charlevoix, were home over Sunday.

John Parsons, Sr., who has been visiting relatives and old friends here during the past week, returned home on Monday last.

Rev. C. M. Conklin, pastor of the M. E. church, is with us again for another year. He seems very much pleased to be returned to us again—so are we all.

You will find high quality merchandise at reasonable prices at the Charlevoix Hdw. Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

ANTRIM CITY

Jack Smith is filling silo in this neighborhood now.

Mr. Stott and family ate supper nt the Brooks' home Sunday evening.

Mrs. Barnes and parents of Elk Rapids, were visitors at the Brooks' home Sunday.

Some of the people of this neighborhood attended the Traverse City fair last week.

Joe Evans and mother, sister and brother, were visitors in this neighborhood Wednesday.

U. P. SPORTSMEN TO FIGHT CLUBS

(Continued from page one)

also been planted in the lakes and streams of this district, many times at more or less expense to the individual sportsmen. Are these streams and lakes, wild lands and berry plains to be closed to the public?

"It is our belief thnt this procedure is un-American and in direct opposition to the principles upon which the republic is founded and if allowed to continue with the sanction of the State of Michigan, will eventually result in the creation of a system of property ownership that will rival and eclipse conditions on the European continent; conditions which drove our ancestors forth upon the bosom of the uncharted ocean to seek freedom from tyrannicnl encroachment upon rights.

"The Negaunce Rod and Gun club is emphatically opposed to the nequisition by private interests for control as private hunting preserves of such an extensive tract as thnt involved in the Kates deal, and we believe that we voice the opinion of the vnst majority of the people of the State of Michigan."

Similar situations exist in other parts of the stnte, one of especial importance being on Pine river southeast of Manistee. It could happen right at our doors and greatly injure our resort business. For instance, an organization of this kind get possession of the Jordan river valley and closes it against all but its membership. Hundreds among our summer colony fish the Jordan. It could happen on the Black, Sturgeon and Pigeon rivers, where we send many fishermen each senson.

Sportsmen of the upper peninsula nre right in their protest. Every man or woman who enjoys the outdoor life should make a vigorous protest against movements of this kind. If something is not done soon, we might as well hang up our fishing rods and put away our guns.

PILGRIM HOLINESS CHURCH

Phelps and Ellsworth

Phelps

Sunday school, 10:00 a. m.
Preaching, 11:00 a. m.
Prayer meeting, Wednesday evening at 8:00 p. m.

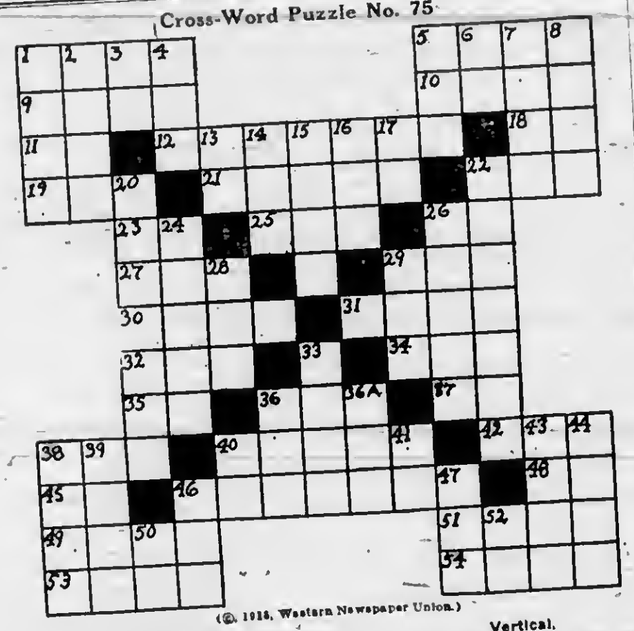
Ellsworth

Sunday school, 1:15 p. m.
Preaching, 2:30 and 7:30 p. m.
Prayer meeting Thursday evening at 8:00 p. m.

B. E. Manker, Pastor.

Batteries recharged and repaired. Electrical work of all kinds. Bring your car troubles to us. Brown Battery Shop.—Adv. 39-tf.

Cross-Word Puzzle No. 75



(©, 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

Horizontal.

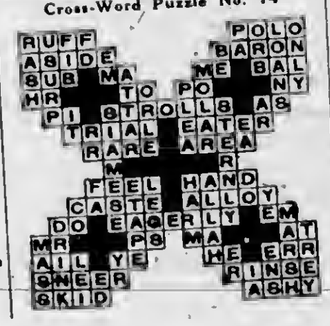
1—Crawfish
5—To lie in warmth
9—Airplane (coll.)
10—Powerful
11—Sun god
12—Alcoholic beverage
18—Preposition
19—To make a mistake
21—To go within
32—Fuss
23—Heavenward
25—Wooden peg
27—Doleful
28—Boy's name
29—Unit of work
30—Horse's pace
31—Renown
32—To allow
34—Rebel (abbr.)
35—Boy's name
36—To decay
37—Physician (abbr.)
38—Rattle
40—Was affected with pain
42—Toward the stern of a ship
45—Preposition
46—Gaseous compound of hydrogen and nitrogen
48—Nots of scale
49—Anything sought
51—Foot covering
53—To give off
54—Longitudinal timber at bottom of A ship

Vertical.

1—Worry
2—Back part
3—Land measure
4—To flex the body
6—Inlet
6—Month of Hebrew calendar
7—Coasted
8—Gambling game
13—That man
14—Hostelry
15—To cease
16—Small wooden barrel.
17—Exclamation of hesitation
20—Cattle thief
22—Branch of higher mathematics
24—Peeled
26—Provided with weapons
28—Period
29—Hearing organ
32—Game played on horseback
26—Circumference of a wheel
36A—Number under twelve
33—Salary
33—Small particle
40—Part of "to be"
41—Prefix meaning twn-fold
43—Floating mass of ice
44—Chinese coin
46—High in the scale
47—Request
50—Three-toed sloth
52—That man

Solution will appear in next issue.

Cross-Word Puzzle No. 74



$795
ESSEX COACH
WORLD'S GREATEST VALUES
Everyone Says it — Sales Prove it
HUDSON COACH
$1195
Hudson Brougham $1495
7 Passenger Hudson Sedan $1695
All Prices Freight and Tax Extra
H. R. FOWLER, Charlevoix, Mich.

AUCTION SALE

I will sell at Public Sale on my farm located 1 mile north of Atwood on M 11, on Thursday, Oct. 8th

beginning at 10 o'clock a. m. the following personal property, towit:

Team of Mares, Wt. 2600 lbs.
Black Cow, 4 yrs. old, Fresh Dec. 10
Red Cow, 6 yrs. old, Fresh Nov. 15, '25
Spotted Cow, 3 yrs. old, Fresh Feb. 2, '26
Spotted Cow, 6 yrs. old, Fresh Nov. 7, '25
Guernsey Cow, 7 yrs. old
Jersey Cow, 12 yrs. old, Fresh Feb 15, '26
Jersey Cow, 4 yrs. old, Fresh Mar. 1, '26
Jersey Cow, 9 yrs. old, Fresh Mar. 5, '26
Jersey Cow, 3 yrs. old, Fresh Dec. 6, '25
Jersey Cow, 10 yrs. old
Jersey Bull, 16 months old
Jersey Heifer, 16 months old
Jersey Calf, 4 months old
100 Brown Leghorn Chickens
5 Pigs, 4 months old
Collie Dog
Range, Royal Banner
Oil Stove with Oven
Heating Stove
Kitchen Cabinet
Kitchen Table 6 ft.
9 Dining Chairs
Morris Chair
Rocker
Couch
Buffet
Extension Table
Dresser
Commode
Iron Bed
Wooden Bed
Baby Buggy
High Chair
Wagon and Box, Complete good as new Set of Heavy Sleighs
Deering Mower
Deering Hay Rake
Riding Cultivator
5-Shovel Cultivator
Harpoon and Rope, Complete
Drag
Surrey
Parker Plow
Wheel Barrow
Cycle Grinder
Hay Rack
Stone Boat
Grain Cradle
Iowa Cream Separator
Set of Work Harness
250 Shocks of Corn
175 Bushels of Oats
18 Tons of Hay
Some Straw

80 Acre Farm will be offered For Sale

Forks, Shovels, Chains, Eveners and lot of Small Tools, and articles too numerous to mention.

FREE LUNCH AT NOON

TERMS OF SALE

All sums of $10 and under cash, over $10, 1 years time on approved notes bearing 7 per cent payable at the Citizens Bank of Ellsworth, 5 per cent discount for cash on sums over $10. No property to be removed until terms of sale are complied with, and all settlements to be made on day of sale.

Louis Veenstra, Prop.

W. E. BYERS, Auctioneer.

H. J. TIMMER, Clerk
M. J. ANDERSON, Note Clerk

MUST ELIMINATE THE RAGWEED

(Continued from Page One)

the body to manufacture its own antidote. The treatment usually consists of from fourteen to eighteen injections administered at intervals of one week or less. One authority advises that treatments should begin about three or four months before the onset of hay fever symptoms, in January for spring hay fever, in March for June grass hay fever, and in mid-April for ragweed hay fever.

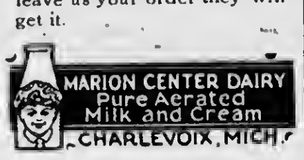
Experience with the treatments points to relief in practically all cases and to a cure in about 50 per cent of the cases, providing that the diagnosis is correct and the treatment properly carried out. As a rule the treatments must be repeated each year.

Pre-seasonal treatment is far more efficacious than treatment administered after symptoms have developed, for a preventive is always wiser than a cure. But to remove the external cause is more important still. Aside from the question of relief to suffers from hay fever, extermination of the ragweed is essential to the prosperity of Michigan as a resort state. It behoovea the resort towns and districts, therefore, to elmininate the ragweed from their annual list of summer visitors. Unless the weed is pulled or mowed before it blossoms and goes to seed, it will reappear the following year a thousand-fold. Only by blotting out the ragweed can the citizens of Michigan preserve the state's reputation as a refuge from hay fever.

No community is going to go forward so long as some of its citizens continue to go backward.

"For the whole world"

YOUNG SAMSON makes a gift to the world, Bottled Health--or, in other words, pure milk. Your youngsters deserve the best milk in the city, and if you leave us your order they will get it.



AT THE MOVIES

He Sees-Knows-Tells All

That is the heading under which the management of the Palace Theatre announces the engagement of Mahendra, the mental marvel, starting Thursday of this week.

Not only is Mahendra thoroughly versed in the teachings and practices of the East Indian Yogis; he is a keen student of the present-day exponents of mental telepathy and auto-suggestion, and applies these newly developed principles in his answers to questions asked by his audiences.

Questions may be written at home and brought to the theatre in sealed envelopes; no subjects are barred except those of an embarrassing nature to mixed audiences. And in this latter connection a matinee for ladies only has been arranged for Friday at 2:30 p. m., at which time questions of an intimate nature will be answered. Positively no men will be admitted.

Amazing Cast Assembled for Fox Wonder Picture

An amazing cast was assembled by Director Rowland V. Lee for "As No Man Has Loved," the massive Fox film production which comes to the Palace Theatre on Saturday and Sunday.

In this story of the repentance of the fiery lieutenant who cursed the flag and swore he never wished to see the United States again, historical truths permit the introduction of historical characters, and one thrills as he sees Jefferson, Monroe and Lincoln in the White House and Aaron Burr floating down the Mississippi River with his flotilla.

A terriffic storm off the Carolina Capes, and a mighty battle scene between a battleship and a pirate slave ship provide heart-stopping thrills. More than 1,000 soldiers, sailors and pirates are engaged in a terrific hand-to-hand struggle.

Retain Old Friends

A Long Distance telephone call will do much to hold and cement old friendships. It is direct and convenient — a personal way to exchange greetings of love and regard.

Your Long Distance Message is Personal

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE CO.

Call for Your Shoes Before Next Sunday

People having shoes in my shop for repair are requested to get them before next Sunday, as I am leaving for Florida, Monday, and desire to have all business closed before leaving.

Be Sure and Get Your Shoes

John Bronersky

APPLES

Now is the time to place your order for the winters supply of Apples.

ORCHARD BAY FARM

E. J. EDWARDS, Manager

Well I just can't afford to go to Florida

"Sorry Mister, but you can have a Florida climate in your home, if you heat your home with Argo Quality Coal."

Call us, we are ready to respond

ARGO MILLING COMPANY

$10.00 ROUND TRIP EXCURSION

CHICAGO DETROIT TOLEDO

AND INTERMEDIATE POINTS VIA

PERE MARQUETTE

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 6TH

TICKETS GOOD 15 DAYS

Stop-over allowed on going trip at any Intermediate point South or East of and including Grand Rapids at which Regular Train No. 4 is Scheduled to stop and on return trip at any Intermediate station South or East of and including Grand Rapids or Saginaw

Tickets Good in Coaches Only—Baggage Checked

Inquire of Ticket Agents for full particulars

DEATH RELIEVES MONTHS OF SUFFERING

Pioneer Norwood-Charlevoix Resident Buried Saturday

Mrs. Janet Shapton died of pernicious anemia at her home, Thursday evening, September 24, at ten o'clock. Funeral services were held from her home, 114 East Upright avenue, Saturday morning at ten o'clock. Rev. Herman Burns officiated and interment was made in Brookside cemetery.

Mrs. Janet Shapton was a patient sufferer for ten months before her departure. She was born in Hamilton, Ontario, Canada, January 20, 1856. At the age of fourteen years she came with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Smith, to Norwood, where they made their home. Eleven years later she married Richard S. Shapton of Barnard. Three children were born to this union, Allan L. Shapton and Mrs. Harry Webster of Charlevoix, and Mrs. Dexter A. Cushman of California. She is also survived by three brothers, John Smith of Barnard, Albert J. Smith of Norwood, and Norman Smith of Detroit, also three grandchildren.

ADDITIONAL LOCALS.

William Shields, a well known resident of Charlevoix for a great number of years, died in the State hospital af Traverse City early Wednesday morning, September 30th, at 2:00 a. m. A complete obituary will be published next week.

Dan C. Walsh left for New York City, Wednesday afternoon, where he will visit friends for a few days. From New York City he will go to Damariscotta, Maine, where he will join A. I. Creamer and then leave for Highland Pines Inn, Southern Pines, N. C. Mr. Walsh is Mr. Creamer's private secretary.

A Willard Battery for $16.50. Fits Ford, Chevrolet, Overland, Maxwell, Star and others. Benj. Brown Battery Shop.—Adv. 39-tf.

Batteries recharged and repaired. Electrical work of all kinds. Bring your car troubles to us. Brown Battery Shop.—Adv. 39-tf.

TEACHERS AND PARENTS MEET

Reception Held Friday Evening at Ingalls Home.

Members of the Baptist church of this city extended the hand of welcome and fellowship to the teaching staff of the Charlevoix Public schools at a reception held at the farm home of D. E. Ingalls, three miles south of the city last Friday evening.

Rev. Herman Burns gave the address of welcome and called on each member of the teaching staff for a response. Superintendent George Coverdale the first to respond, briefly covered many points regarding school matters, which was followed by remarks by others of the staff present. Many and varied were the expressions given, but the keynote of all was the appreciation of their reception.

A unique form of greeting was used. Paper sacks were given each present, which were placed on the left hand, and then the hand-shaking began, which afforded considerable amusement. Games followed, the winners of the word contest facing the audience and eating a generous piece of pie.

At the close of the reception a delicious lunch was served. The result of a meeting of this kind cannot be estimated. Parents and teachers met, various school problems were discussed and it should bring parent, student and teacher into closer relationship, all resulting in better work in the schools.

If your buttery is run down or needs repairs, bring it to our buttery shop. Work guaranteed. Brown Buttery Shop.—Adv. 39-tf.

OBJECT WILL BE ROAD BETTERMENT

County Highway Situation Talked Over at Road Meeting

The meeting held at the Hotel Wolverine, Boyne City, last Wednesday evening, the object of which was to revive interest in the county road association, was productive of a great deal of good, although the attendance was small.

Frank Thompson of Boyne City, was elected permanent chairman, and H. A. Craig of Charlevoix, permanent secretary. Roads, those already built and those to be built, were the main topic of the evening. The proposed concrete road around Pine Lake came up for general discussion, and a committee composed of Roscoe Mackey of East Jordan, E. A. Ruegsegger of Boyne City, and R. C. Hammett of Charlevoix were appointed to look into the matter of financing the project.

A committee of three was appointed to perfect the organization of what will probably be known as the Charlevoix County Concrete Road Association. "Uncle" Geo. H. VanPelt was elected to the position as honorary chairman of the new organization.

The Ironton Ferry came up for a general discussion and Frank Wangeman, Mr. Sanderson and Clarence Wood were appointed a committee to investigate the cost of its annual operation and maintenance.

Committees will report at a meeting to be held in Charlevoix some time next week.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

Rev. B. G. Mattson, Pastor

The First Congregational church will observe Rally Day, Sunday, October 4. At the morning service at 10:30, Dr. Mattson will continue his series of sermons on the kingdom, with the theme "The Secret of Apostolic Confidence."

The Sunday school at twelve o'clock will have some special Rally Day features.

6:30—The young people of the church are invited to meet the pastor and a group of workers for a council on plans for re-organization of the Young People's Society.

At 7:30—the evening church service will be resumed. The pastor will give the first of a brief series of addresses on "The Struggling Forces in the Modern World with Christianity in the Midst."

The Ironton church service is held at two-thirty standard time.

New Method of Census Taking

Child Accounting is the term used for the new method of census taking which goes into effect next spring. It is a card system of keeping the school records of the boys and girls of the state, and necessitates special forms and filing equipment. This precedes the adoption of the uniform system of school officer's records. School officers will continue using their present forms until that time. Adv. 39-t1.

Pansy Plants

This is the time to set Steele Mastodon Pansies for fall, winter and spring blooming. Large blooms —long stems. The opening flowers will aid selection. The Gardens of Mokoton, Ironton, Mich.—38-t2 pd.

YESTERDAY a lady came INTO our store and
TOLD us that she didn't WANT to buy anything
IN PARTICULAR but that
SHE did want to tell us
THAT she certainly did
APPRECIATE the way we
HAD always treated her
AND that she enjoyed
TRADING with us, and while
WE frequently hear such COMPLIMENTS we couldn't HELP thinking when she LEFT the store how good
A LITTLE praise like
THAT makes us feel and
HOW few people indulge
IN IT: for so many folks
NEVER think of COMPLIMENTING anybody
BUT when a chance comes
ALONG to criticize
THEY'RE on hand with EVERY cylinder workin',
AND so we've made up our MIND to hand out a bouquet
WHENEVER we can instead
OF throwing bricks

Forest & Clarence

WOOD BROTHERS

Hardware & Electrical Supplies

Charlevoix Hdw. Co.

"That Reminds Me"

Heaters and Stoves for Fall and Winter

WE HAVE THEM

Three sizes of Circulating Heaters. The Reliable Florence Heaters in several styles, and others; surely one among them to make the Home Cozy and Comfortable.

RANGES, STOVE PIPE ELBOWS

EVERYTHING NEEDED

Charlevoix Hardware Company

302 Bridge St Phone 1.

BATTERIES

WE HAVE THAT

$16.50

13-plate, Rubber Case Genuine

WILLARD

FITS FORDS —— CHEVROLET —— OVERLAND
MAXWELL——STAR AND OTHERS

Other Willard Batteries for all kinds of cars. If your battery is down, bring it to our battery shop for re-charging or repairs. We guarantee our service.

Benj. Brown Auto Sales

Phone 60

CHARLEVOIX COURIER

VOLUME 32. NUMBER 40. EIGHT PAGES COURIER, CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1925 PRICE $2.00 PER YEAR

CHARLEVOIX WINS FROM EAST JORDAN

TAKE SLOW, FUMBLING GAME BY SMALL SCORE

Many Changes Predicted in Line-up for Next Game—Mancelona Here Saturday

Charlevoix high school football team romped over East Jordan high school to the tune of 6 to 0. In the game played at the south side grounds on Snturday afternoon of last week. This was the first game af the season for the local aggregation and the result was very encouraging to both the coach and members of the squad. East Jordan camc here with every intention of repeating last year's victory, but were sent home a defeated team.

During the first half, the playing was very ragged on both sides, each team fumbling time after time, which always mars the thrills of football and good team work. Three times East Jordan was within scoring distance, but by good defensive play Chnrlevoix kept their opponents from crossing the goal.

Thc half ended with neither team scoring. At the beginning of the second half the local squad came back on the field with the determination to score and in a short time smashed their way to the first touchdown, with Winder, playing fullback, carrying the ball across. On the try at goal the ball hit the cross-bar, but went over, making the score 7-0. During the rest of the half the ball was in East Jordan's territory most of the time, the lumber-town boys not getting within scoring distance at any time.

On defense, the local boys played a hard and consistent game, and did very good work considering the fact that it was their first game of the season. Coach Alldread was fairly well pleased with their work and with a few minor changes in the line-up and the hard drilling he is putting them through this week, expects to have all deficiencies ironed out in time for the next game.

On offense the attack was not up to the standard and at times was discournging to both fans and the coach. The blocking and interference lacked the proper punch, and the coach and players are determined that fans will see a better grade of work in these departments in the next game.

Winder, nt fullback, and Davenport at end, showed a fine grade of football for the first gamc of the season and in future games should mnke things interesting for the opposing teams. At quarter, "Dickie" Mnrshall, a freshmnn, hnndled the team in good shape, taking to his post like n veteran. Capt. McCann will likely be at the helm when the gnme opens with Mancelona here Saturday. According to Coach Alldread, "Red" is running the team in fine shnpe and with his fight will keep the squad going at full speed.

Charlevoix will play Mancelona here Saturday. The boys nre working hard to iron out their mistakes nnd fans will be assured of a real game when the team takes the field. They nre trying to make good and when they see you on the side lines and interested, they will do even better. They need your help. Remember—Charlevoix vs. Mancelona, Saturday, October 10, south side grounds, at 2:30 p. m.

Batteries recharged and repaired. Electrical work of all kinds. Bring your car troubles to us. Brown Battery Shop.—Adv. 39-tf.

Canvas Gloves and Shot Gun shells at prices that are right. Charlevoix Co-Ops.—Adv. 40t1.

COULDN'T FINE OLAF TWICE FOR THE SAME YAG

"What'eya doing here again?" growled a Ludington judge when Oscar Olafson, a local fisherman, appeared in court on a charge of drunkenness. "Weren't you here yesterday? Didn't I fine you?"

"I skall told you about that," said Olafson. "I vas drunk three days ago, I vas drunk two days ago, I vas drunk yesterday and I'm still drunk and if you'll let me I skall go get another drink."

"Well, I'll dismiss the charge on the grounds that you have once been in jeopardy. Constable, see that this man goes home. I can't fine him twice for the same "yag" was the dictim of the judge.

CITY'S SHADE TREES LACK MOISTURE

Dead Limbs and Early Falling Leaves Prove This Fact

We note with much interest that Dr. W. W. Mitchell is improving the appearance of his property on Park nvenue by trimming the excess foliage from the trees in front of his residence.

This is a very commendable practice and should be done by more of our residents who are interested in lengthening the life of their shade trees and keeping up our reputation as "Charlevoix, the Beautiful." With the construction of cement sidewalks and hard macadam pavements, much damage is done to the shade trees of the city from the loss of molsture, which cannot penetrate the hnrd surface and therefore supply moisture to the roots. The consequence is that the trees, when in full foliage, do not receive the moisture nature intended nnd the lenves and limbs in the top die.

The only way to remedy this deficiency is to trim out all excessive foliage, tbus giving enough moisture to the remaining limbs. This is the proper time of the year for tree trimming. Every tree in the city needs it.

KILLED IN ACCIDENT AT BAY CITY

BERT McGHAN RUN DOWN BY AUTO

Died From Internal Injuries at Hospital—Burial and Funeral to Be Held in Charlevoix

Bert McGhan, oldest son of Elmer McGhan, a former Charlevoix resident now living in Battle Creek, was run down by an auto at his home in Bay City, last Sunday night, and was so badly injured tht he died several hours later at a hospital in that city.

The accident occurred at about 9:30 last Sunday evening when Mr. McGhan was returning home from the factory where he was employed. A drizzling rain was falling and when he stepped out on the curb to cross the street he stopped to allow an approaching car to pass. He then stepped out into the street and directly into the path of a Ford car which was following closely behind the first.

The impact of the collision drove the rndiator of the car back nearly eight inches on the frame and bent the supporting rod up like a jack knife. Both front windshields were broken and a bundle of lath Mr. McGhan was cnrrying went through the windshields and out through back curtain.

The victim was picked up seventy-five feet awny from where he was hit nnd rushed to a hospital. Here it was found that he had received a broken arm, one leg broken and severe cuts about the face and head, besides internal injuries which caused his death the morning after the accident at 6:30.

The injured man never regained consciousness after being struck by the car. Mr. McGhan was a small man, weighing around 130 pounds, and in spite of the damage done to the car nnd the fact that he was thrown seventy-five feet by the impact, the driver of the death car stated he was only going twenty miles an hour. The car could not he stopped until it had gone 125 feet from where he was hit.

Bert McGhan is survived by a wife and five children, also his father, Elmer McGhan, three brothers, Vern and Harlan of Charlevoix, and Marion of Libby, Montana; three sistera, Mrs. Howard Mosher of Bay City, Mrs. Myrtle Decker of Libby, Montana, and Mrs. Forrest Morris of St. Louis, Mich., besides many other relatives.

The body was brought to Charlevoix Wednesday afternoon. Funeral services will be held from the Methodist church, Thursday afternoon at 2:30, o'clock, Rev. Cecil Pollock officiating. Interment at Brookside. The sympathy of the entire community is extended to the bereaved family.

Choice Apples for Sale

Apples for sale at the Geo. Meggison orchard. Get your winter's supply. Cider apples 10c per bushel, winter apples 25c to 50c per bushel. Pick them yourself. Phone 7010-f5, Charlevoix Rt. 2.—Adv. 39-tf.

For all the news, read the Courier.

PILE DRIVERS TO HAVE BUSY FALL

LOWERED CONDITION OF LAKES NECESSITATES CHANGES

Goldman, Lowenstein, Block and Others Making Improvements on Their Holdings

The lowered condition of the lakes, especially Round lake, has caused a great financial loss to bout house owners. This condition is general all along the shores of the Great Lakes and has caused equal damage in all ports. It is a regretable circumstance and is becoming worse from year to year.

Roe brothers, with their boat, the Columbia, and other pile driving equipment, are scheduled for a busy fall in Charlevoix. Their first job was on the boat house belonging to A. D. Goldman of St. Louis, Mo., a Charlevoix summer resident and property owner. The water in Round Lake has lowered to such an extent that it has become impossible to run his boat into the boat house, thus necessitating the dredging out of the slip to allow the boat to enter and then driving sheet piling along the sides to hold the banks from caving back in again. This work was completed last Saturday.

The pile drivers pulled all the remaining piles from the old Charlevoix Lumber Company's log boom Monday morning and proceeded to Roy Brady's new property on the south shore of Round lake, where they will be busy for a number of days driving piles for his new docks and boat houses.

Lowenstein and Block, who have a jointly owned boat house on the rear end of the Paddock property on the north shore of Round lake have also been forced to make alterations on their property. Their present plans call for a 15 foot addition to their boat house. This move on the part of the owners was necessitated by the low condition of the water, they being unable to get their boats far enough into the boat house to close the doors.

Other operation of the pile drivers will include the work on Logan Thompson's boat house for his new yacht, work on which will commence as soon as land deeds have been straightened out and city and government permits have been issued. The work will be under the direction of Roy Ranger, and will be rushed to completion as soon as possible.

Local residents and summer visitors will see many improvements, both on the water front and bridge street by the next summer. It is to the benefit of the community at large to have such property improvements as are taking place and everything should be done to encourage other property holders to do likewise.

Attempted Jail Delivery

Traverse City had an attempted jail delivery over the last week-end when three prisoners attempted to cut their way through the jail wall. They used fixtures off the bath tub in their work. John Reynolds, held for forgery and wanted in Muskegon, and other cities for the same crime, is said to have been the leader in the uttempt.

Stenographer wanted, steady position for the right party. Wood Bros.—40t1.

W. E. Parmelee builds storm windows.—Adv. 37-tf.

ON A STRICTLY BUSINESS BASIS

STATE'S BUSINESS CONDUCTED IN THIS MANNER

Administrative Board Has Caused Complete Reorganization of Business Methods

Putting Michigan on a strictly business basis has been the task of the state purchasing department during the past four years under the direction of Fred B. Perry, director of the state department of account and purchasing and secretary of the state administrative board.

When Governor Groesbeck went into office in January, 1921, he had all sorts of ideas as to how the stute government of Michigan ought to be run and he set out to have laws passed which would make it possible to govern the state his way. And since the legislature was with him, the necessary statutes were passed and old boards, departments and commissions along with their personnel were done away with in a most sweeping reorganization of the entire government.

Chnrges of extravagance and carelessness in the administration of state affairs on the part of various politicians had been made during the campaign und Groesbeck wanted to answer them if possible. He found, upon investigation, that nobody could give him the figures by which he might ascertain the accuracy or inaccuracy of the charges and he determined right then that he would have things so the next man, as well as himself, could lay his hands on nny figures at any time.

Coordination Needed

Further investigation showed that each department was doing its own purchasing, making its own expenditures and knew very little or nothing about either. The problem then was to bring about some sort of coordination of all the entire operation of the various departments was that very few if any case discounts were being taken.

In order to make it possible to take the cash discounts which ought to be taken and thus to save the stnte thousnnds and thousands of dollars it was necessary to centralize and consolidate the purchasing and accounting of the many departments under one head. Ordinary common sense applied by a new law created an ndministrative board and a department of nccounting and purchasing, the latter under the direction of Mr. Perry.

Then the work began.

Centralize Everything

Housed in the 26 state institutions were about 17,000 state nwards who had to be clothed, fed and cared for at the expense of the state. Each institution had its own governing board and did its own purchasing much to the depletion of the state treasury. It was up to the Governor and his able helper, Fred Perry, to centralize the whole thing.

Each state hospital had a board of its own, a total of 32 members. They were consolidated into one board of seven members.

Five commissions in the welfare department with 17 members were consolidated into one with seven members.

Cut Out 35 Departments

Three prison boards with 12 members were put into one with seven members. And so it went down through the entire organiznton of the state government until 52 former departments, boards nnd commissions were abolished and 17 new ones created making a net reduction of 35 and a corresponding reduction in the cost of operation of the state government.

Taking every possible discount was the first move of Perry and his assistants in the purchasing and accounting departments. 1920, the last year before the installation of the new centralized huying system, only $10,050.57 was taken in cash discounts. After a study of the situation, no less than $17,000 in discounts were taken during the last six months of 1921. In 1922, the total discounts were $160,000, In 1923 they increased to $177,000, and last year the state saved $268,000 in discounts.

Save $377,204.35

Added to this amount, the traffic department, which was organized to take care of the proper routing of shipment, the return of containers, the filing of claims with the express office, and other similar duties, saved $108,760 in 1924, making a total saving in these two divisions of $377,204.35. Since the total legislative appropriation for the entire department for 1924 was but $227,700, the

(Continued on Page 7)

EDUCATION BODY VISIT JORDAN

VIEWING PROPOSED NORTHERN NORMAL SITES

Party Royally Entertained and Banqueted By City's High School Children

Members of the state board of education, who are touring Northern Michigan inspecting sites for the proposed new state normal school, visited East Jordan last Friday forenoon, leaving in the afternoon for Mancelona and Traverse City.

The party consisted of Thomas E. Johnson, superintendent of public instruction, and members Frank Cody and Allen M. Freelnnd. Fred A. Jeffers, third member of the board, started out with the state officials, but was detained at Traverse City on account of illness. Frank M. Sparks, special writer for the Grand Rapids Herald, was also a member of the party.

East Jordan presented a gala appearance to the visiting committee. The high school band was out in full force and forcefully demonstrated that music, while not usually included in school routine work, had not been neglected.

After a sumptuous dinner served in the auditorium by the high school domestic science department, a short address was given by Hon. Wm. J. Pearson, state senator and father of the normal bill, who briefly stated the needs of northern Michigan for a normal, and went on record that East Jordan was the proper location, and also it was the site he favored and the location he would use his influence and prestige as the place to locate it.

The committee then investigated the city's qualifications as a normal school town, and were most favorably impressed with its offerings. The actual site offered consists of 63 acres within a block of the high school, overlooking Pine Lake, level grounds, fringed in background with wooded hills. The city also presents the state with its entire school system to use as a training school and two commodious houses.

While no final decision was made, the visitors expressed satisfaction over the beautiful, well located site offered, and East Jordan and its citizens did themselves proud in the matter of entertainment.

Over twenty-five business and professionnl Charlevoix men were in attendance, and will at any time use their influence towards the loeating of the normal school at East Jordan.

HOSPITAL NOTES

Wm. Dennison of Central Lake, was admitted to the hospital Tuesday for medical treatment.

Mrs. Clyde Justice, Maude Cooper, Alice Keat and Jennie Trojanek were discharged from the hospital last Saturday, all having nicely recovered from recent operations for removal of the appendix.

Herman Lamerson of East Jordan, was operated on Monday.

Buy your feed now. Greatly reduced prices at Charlevoix Co-Ops.—Adv. 40t1.

OVER 50 WERE IN ATTENDANCE

CHEBOYGAN ASSOCIATION OF CONG. CHURCHES

Forty-ninth Annual Meeting Held in Church Parlors Last Wednesday and Thursday

The forty-ninth annual meeting of the Cheboygan Association of Congregational churches was held in the Charlevoix church last Wednesday and Thursday, with over fifty in attendance. The churches at Atlanta, Big Rock, Central Lake, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Eastport, Gaylord, Ironton, Johannsburg, Vanderbilt and Wolverine were represented.

After the opening devotionel services on Wednesday afternoon, the the meeting was turned over to the Woman's Association, Mrs. E. E. Cross presiding. Reports of the Missionary activities of the church were given at this time. The church at Gaylord reported a missionary society composed of all the members of the church, the monthly meetings of which are held in the evening and usually led by the men.

Rev. (Mrs.) A. W. Collens, of St. Clair the state lield representative of Woman's work gave a fine address glimpsing the home and foreign missionary fields of the church.

Rev. Lawerence Horning of Cheboygan, preached the Association sermon on Wednesday evening, giving an inspiring address on "The Romance of Christian Experience," after which the sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered.

The reports of the church were presented on Thursday morning. As it happens many of the pastors nre new and their view-point and plans were most interesting.

Rev. Arnold and Rev. Davies were transferred to other associations by letter and Rev. L. Horning of Cheboygan and Rev. M. Snook of Wolverine were received from other associations by letter. Albert L. Coombs, Johannesburg, was licensed to preach for one year. A. L. Allard, Central Lake, was examined and recommended for ordination. His church invited the churches of the assacintion to send delegates to the ordination service, October 13th. The constitution was amended to make the association president a member of the advisory committee.

Officers the ensuing year were elected as follows:

Moderator, Rev. B. G. Mattson, Charlevoix.

Assistant, Rev. L. Horning, Cheboygan.

Registrar, Mr. Harry Sowton, Wolverine.

Association President, Mrs. E. E. Cross, Charlevoix.

It was voted to hold the Juhilee meeting of the association with the Cheboygan church.

Rev. J. W. Sutherland of Lansing, in an nddress on "Our Day of Opportunity," included a report of rural work in Michigan and the assistance being given by President Butterfield of the Michigan State Collage in an effort to solve the problem of over churched rural communities in the vicinity of the college. He is doing this with the help

(Continued on page two)

HERE IS A NEW FISH YARN THAT'S A HUMDINGER

A strange bird, presumably a large hawk not native of Northern Michigan, has been shipped to George McCabe, of the McCabe Hardware, Petoskey, by J. VanSkiver, who operntes the hotel at Central Lake, with instructions that the bird be mounted.

The capture of the bird brings to light a strange fishing yarn. "Strange but true," says the hotel man.

VanSkiver was taking a try for bass nenr his hotel when his bait hooked into the bird in the air. VanSkiver believed the bird dove for the bait and that it struck him in the back. The first intimation the fisherman had that he had "hooked something" was when his line slackened and the bird came tumbling into the boat.

The air creature soon hopped right out again and started flying away. He pulled out all the line and landed in the lake where he was shot.

Central Lake naturalists believed the bird an eagle but sportsmen here think it a hawk. The wing spread is more than four feet.

They're Not All in Pittsburgh

Mothers Treat Colds The New "Direct" Way

No Longer Necessary to "Dose" Children With Internal Medicines to Break Colds.

Children's digestions are easily upset by too much "dosing." Vicks VapoRub being externally applied, does not upset little stomachs.

At the first sign of croup, sore throat, or any other cold trouble, apply Vicks freely. There is nothing to swallow—you just "rub it on."

VICKS VAPORUB

OVER 21 MILLION JARS USED YEARLY

CORRESPONDENCE

NORWOOD

A. M. Patterson closed their cottage in Norwood last Thursday.

Dick Kirby has the contract for remodeling the church steeple nt Norwood.

Mrs. Frank Brown and son, Myron, left Tuesday morning for Detroit by auto.

Mr. nnd Mrs. Fred Coon of Charlevoix, called at the home of Sam Alward, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Gregory, living near Charlevoix, visited Mr. and Mrs. Morris Henry, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. O'Neil of Charlevoix, accompanied by some friends, were Norwood callers Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Dye of Traverse Cty, visited at the Frank Richardson home over the week end.

Mrs. Joe Holecheck took advan- Plenny Jennett's mother, Mrs. Jennett of Charlevoix, has been visiting at their home for a few days.

Mrs. Sommerville, who has been employed nt the Pntterson cottage this summer, returned to her home in East Jordan, Thursday.

Harry Parsons and his friend, Miss Werten, of Grand Rapids, nlso his pnrents, had dinner with Mr. nnd Mrs. I. L. Dice, T sdny evening.

The members of the Ladies' Aid Society will meet at the town hnll in Norwood, Wednesday afternoon, to hold election of officers and will serve a pot luck lunch and have a social hour together.

Geo. Lord and Mrs. Colon McKenzie and family motored to Traverse City, Saturday, and from there to Kalkaska, where they visited at the home of a grand-daughter, Mrs. Gordon Rhodes and family, over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Parsons and family of Ellsworth, spent Sunday with their mother, Mrs. Haskins. They expect to leave Ellsworth some time this week for Grand Rapids, where they will make their future home.

Mr. and Mrs. John Resignol and family of Petoskey, called at the Merrill Richardson home and also at the home of Irving Lord, Sunday. tage of the excursion and went to Detroit to visit her son, George, for a few days.

You will find high quality merchandise at rensonable prices at the Charlevoix Hdw. Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

IRONTON

Miss Ethel Ward went to Chicago, Monday, to work for the winter.

The Ladies' Aid Society will meet with Mrs. Munson, Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Saunders and sons spent Sunday nt the Ogden home.

Mr. and Mrs. Sarnsin of Boyne City, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Hugh King.

Mr. and Mrs. Jones, who live on the Flanders farm, spent Sunday at the McMulkin home.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Reber from Wildwood, spent Sunday and Monday with Mr. and Mrs. Ogden.

Mrs. Jerry Saunders was called to St. Charles last Monday on account of the death of her brother's wife, Mrs. Will Johnson.

Ten of the church people from here attended the Cheboygan Association meeting at the town church

A TALK WITH A CHARLEVOIX MAN

Mr. Himebauch Tells Something of Interest to Charlevoix Folks.

There's nothing more convincing than the statement of someone you know and hnve confidence in. That's why this talk with Mr. Himebauch of W. Upright Ave., should be mighty helpful here in Charlevoix.

Daniel Himebauch, 107 W. Upright Ave., Charlevoix, says: "My back nched and mornings when I got up, catches took me across my kidneys. My kidneys were weak and acted irraguinrly nnd I had to get up many times during the night to pass the secretions. I heard a lot about Doan's Pills, so I used n few boxes, from Metcalf's Drug Store, and they fixed me up in fine shape." (Statement given May 4, 1920.)

On October 10, 1924, Mr. Himebauch said: "I am glad to recommend Doan's Pills for they certainly helped me."

60c, at all dealers. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

last Thursday. It was a meeting well worth nttending.

The whole community was saddened by the death of Mrs. Neta Howe. Neta was raised here and was much loved nnd respected by everyone. Mrs. Johnson, her mother, is caring for Billie; Mrs. Alfred Williams for Clare and Mr. and Mrs. Dates Dean for Elliott and the small baby.

Mrs. Mary Hammond celebrated her eighty-eighth birthday October 2nd. Twenty-five of her friends and neighbors spent the afternoon with her. Mrs. Hammond received a large number of gifts. A delicious lunch was served, the main feature being a beautiful nnd delicious cake Mrs. Alexander brought to her. Mrs. Hammond does all her own work and is a remarkable woman considering her age.

We are selling a genuine 13-plate rubber case Willard Battery for $16.50. Benj. Brown Battery Shop. Adv. 39-tf.

CLARION

G. W. Taylor returned last week from Detroit.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Moreau were Topinabee visitors on Saturday.

Mrs. Irma Gibbs, of Petoskey, was a dinner guest of the Colden's Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Wheeler were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Dell Taylor, of Petoskey, on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Hime and family visited at the home of Frank Winters of Petoskey, on Sunday.

Sunday school was held in the town hall on account of the M. E. church being redecorated.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Campbell and little son have returned from a visit with relatives in Minnesota.

Mr. and Mrs. James Hilbert of Traverse City, were guests Sunday of their dnughter, Mrs. Gladys Palmer.

Peter VanDigglen, who has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Kent, has returned to his home at Tampa, Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Wheeler and Mr. and Mrs. Dan Moreau were guests nt the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Darrah of Petoskey, on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Wheeler and children and Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Colden and grand-daughter, Marian Wheeler, called on Charlevoix friends on Sunday.

Electric light bulbs that give service at Charlevoix Hardware Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

BARNARD

Don't forget the social at the church on Friday evening.

John Smith is visiting his daughters in Detroit and Ypsilnnti, this week.

A new baby girl nrrived nt Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Potter's last Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Albert Beattie of Dexter, Mich., is visiting relatives in Barnard and Charlevoix.

Mrs. Russell Shaw of Traverse City, visited her sister, Mrs. Clarence Benttie, last Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Garrett Myers of Jamestown, visited their aunt, Mrs. Henry Petter, a few days last week.

Mr. nnd Mrs. Willis Gillett and baby of Zeeland, Mich., visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Zylstra, the latter part of the week.

Barnard Grange elected officers at their regular meeting lnst Friday evening. Nenrly all the old officers were re-elected.

Batteries recharged and repaired. Electrical work of all kinds. Bring your car troubles to us. Brown Battery Shop.—Adv. 39-tf.

MOUNTAIN DISTRICT

If your car breaks down just call Richard Hosegood.

Mr. nnd Mrs. G. A. Weaver of Petoskey, attended the Star of Hope Sunday school lnst Sundny.

Mrs. Carr and her daughter, Ethel, of Detroit, spent the past week with Mr. and Mrs. Loren Duffey.

Mr. and Mrs. Chnrles Healey and family spent last week in Muskegon, visiting Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Dnvis.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Wilkins and son, Robert, of Traverse City, spent Sunday afternoon nt the home of Wm. L. Scott.

Forty-five at the Stnr of Hope Sunday school last Sunday. The report showed sixty-five dollnrs on hand after the supplies for the new quarter were paid for. So it was voted to send fifty dollars to Mr. Weaver, our home missionary.

Christian Science Society

Sundny service, 10:45 a. m., subject, "Are Sin, Disease, and Death Real?

Sundny school, 12:00.

Wednesday evening service, 7:45 p. m.

Reading room open Tuesday and Saturday, 3:00 to 5:00 p. m.

The public is cordially invited to use our reading room and attend the services.

We are selling a genuine 13-plate rubber case Willard Battery for $16.50. Benj. Brown Battery Shop. Adv. 39-tf.

THIS IS A STUDEBAKER YEAR

Pledge to the Public on Used Car Sales

1 All used cars offered to the public shall be honestly represented.

If a car is suitable only for a mechanic who can rebuild it, or for some one who expects only a few months' rough usage on a camping trip, it must be sold on that basis. Each car must be sold for just what it is.

2 All Studebaker automobiles which are sold as CERTIFIED CARS have been properly reconditioned, and carry a 30-day guarantee for replacement of defective parts and free service on adjustments.

This is possible because tremendous reserve mileage has been built into every Studebaker, which it is impossible to exhaust in years.

3 Every used car is conspicuously marked with its price in plain figures, and that price, just as the price of our new cars, is rigidly maintained.

The public can deal in confidence and safety only with the dealer whose policy is "one price only—the same price to all." For, to sell cars on this basis, every one of them must be honestly priced to begin with.

4 Every purchaser of a used car may drive it for five days, and then, if not satisfied for any reason, turn it back and apply the money paid as a credit on the purchase of any other car in stock—new or used.

It is assumed, of course, that the car has not been smashed up by collision or ... in the meantime.

Not only to the public, but also to The Studebaker Corporation of America, whose cars we sell, we pledge adherence to the above policy in selling used cars.

J. W. LALONDE

The Studebaker Corporation of America takes pride and pleasure in announcing that the above Pledge is being carried out by

J. W. LALONDE

EAST JORDAN, MICH.

THE Pledge speaks for itself. It is a formal declaration of the fair and square attitude of Studebaker dealers toward the public.

It is an assurance of honest dealing in a line of merchandising which in some times and places has fallen into ill repute.

It is an assertion of confidence in the reserve mileage built into the sturdy "one-profit" Studebaker automobiles.

THE STUDEBAKER CORPORATION OF AMERICA SOUTH BEND, INDIANA

OVER 50 WERE IN ATTENDANCE

(Continued from Page One)

of the lenders of the denominations co-operating in the community church at East Lansing.

The whole afternoon program was devoted to the topic, "The Church and her Young People"—four ministers speaking on various forms of the subject and another leading the discussion which followod. The topic not having been nearly exhausted, the discussion wns continued in the evening, as the speaker scheduled for the banquet could not be present.

Rev. Collins presented the work of the Olivet Young People's Conference for the last four years. The churches sent their young people there for training in leadership nnd various helpful courses are presented under competent instructors. Some outing features are of course introduced and every year the attendance has increased until the college resources are taxed about to the limit.

Very few young people from this part of the state were able to attend because the cost of trayleing such a long distance. Out of the discussion grew the idea that a similar work might be established farther north without detracting from the attendance at Olivet. Mrs. Mattson very generously offered her camp equipment at Crystal Lake, free of charge, for such a project nnd spoke of the possibilities and difficulties connected with such a venture.

The ministers, who have sent their young people to Olivet are most enthusinstic supporters of the idea and consider it not too early to begin now to plan for such a conference in 1927. The matter was left with the advisory committee.

All in all, the association meeting was very successful nnd the visitors were well pleased with their entertainment, while here and loud in their praises of the city and the hospitnlity shown them.

W. E. Parmelee builds storm windows.—Adv. 37-tf.

CHURCH OF GOD

Preaching services at 10:30 and 7:30 each Sunday.

Sunday school, 11:45.

Young people's meeting at 6:30 each Sundsy evening.

Prayer meeting each Wednesday evening at 7:30.

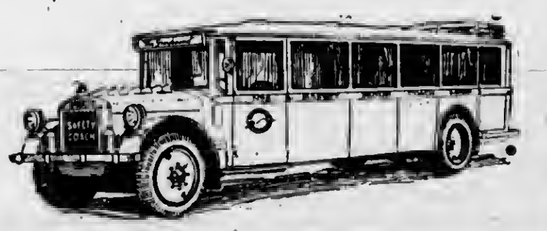
Wm. Eldridge, Pastor.

Small girls can't see the logic of the argument thnt they should wash their faces so often when mother only applies a litte more powder.

"RIDE THE GREYHOUNDS"

GREYHOUNDS of THE HIGHWAY SAFETY MOTOR COACH LINES

They're CLEAN



RELIABLE COURTEOUS DRIVERS
DEPENDABLE SERVICE ALWAYS
STATION, CHARLEVOIX HOTEL Get a Schedule

Are You a Courier subscriber? If not, Why not

NEIGHBORS

BY ROBERT STEAD

AUTHOR OF "THE COW PUNCHER," "THE HOMESTEADERS."

WNU SERVICE

COPYRIGHT BY ROBERT STEAD

CHAPTER IV—Continued.

"That, my dear sister, was the whistle from the wing of a wild duck, darting into the darkness at a couple of hundred miles an hour. He had just got his eye on you."

"More likely on the gun," said Jean, for we had included a cheap shotgun among the articles considered indispensable. "Wait until Frank gets after him."

I was greatly flattered by Jean's wholly unwarranted confidence in my marksmanship and eager to justify it at the earliest moment.

"No time like the present," said I, picking up the gun and filling my pocket with cartridges. "Besides, we have a surprise to show you."

So we started out in the gathering darkness, I going first, as became the bearer of the gun; Jean at my heels; Jack and Marjorie a little in the rear. Down the steep edge of the gully we worked, and then along by the marge of the brown snow water which rippled happily over beds of bending grass. It was quite dark in the little valley, and I had to hold Jean's hand to guard against the possibility of her slipping into the stream.

At a short distance we came to the spot where the valley broadened out and the little grove of trees had found its place of shelter from Chinook winds in winter and prairie fires in spring and fall. The air was full of the sweet scent of bursting willow buds and balm-o'-Gilead, and as we picked our steps as noiselessly as we could the slightly stirring limbs above us wrought their dark tracery against the blue and starry heaven.

"Oh, Frank! You never told me of this! How wonderful!"

"Wait until you see the pond," I whispered, as one who keeps the best to the last. "We did not select Fourteen and Twenty-two without a reason."

There was no path between the slim, close-growing trunks of poplar and balm, and we had to make progress as best we could. . . . Jack and Marjorie had fallen considerably behind.

Then, suddenly, the still waters of the pond burst upon our view, and at the same moment, as though the very heavens conspired to set the stage to the best advantage, a blood-red moon sent its first pinion of light sweeping down from the northeast and splashing burnt-orange and ochre across the slightly ruffled surface of the pond. We stood for a time as mortals transfixed, watching the great red globe drawing swiftly into the blue above, until its light painted Jean's face and mine. In the moonlight her fine features were wonderful, irresistible. . . .

We were brought to earth by a flutter and splashing in the water. Two ducks, sweeping swiftly down out of the darkness, alighted not a dozen yards in front of us, and directly in the line of light. I drew my gun to my shoulder, and even as I did so their murmured grumblings, sibilant almost as the lisp of water on a gravelly shore, came to our ears, and they began to swim slowly about in graceful little circles. There was even a motion about the head of the mate, as he brought it close to that of his mate, that was surely nothing short of a caress.

"Don't, Frank, don't; you mustn't!" Jean exclaimed suddenly.

Her arm darted out in front of me, seized the barrel of the gun and drew it swiftly to one side. I had been taking a most deliberate aim, to justify the high opinion already referred to, but at Jean's sudden interference I pressed the trigger, or, as I always claimed, it pulled itself against my finger, and went off. There was a loud report, and the sound of shot harmlessly lashing the water.

"Did you get him—did you get him?" shouted Marjorie and Jack, rushing down upon us.

"No, I didn't get him," I explained. "I didn't even try to get him. I just wanted to see how far the gun would carry."

"I wouldn't let him," said Jean. "It would have been a—just a horrible thing to shoot one of those four creatures, the very first night we were here! How beautiful they were, and how—how loving!" She said the last word with a bashful, falling inflection that was wonderful to hear.

"It's much more horrible to have no wild duck—ducklet I mean—for tomorrow's dinner," said Jack.

"And those cartridges cost ever so much; what is it?—three or four cents each," Marjorie remonstrated. "Well, let's go back."

We returned to our camp and started to make ready for the night. But Jack, true to his promise, gathered up his blankets, waded the cold stream, and slept under the stars of Twenty-two. We had begun our "period of residence."

CHAPTER V

The morning was another gorgeous burst of sunshine. The girls were early about. As I came up from the stream where I had washed, I met Jean going down, wearing a blanket, Indian fashion, for lack of a bathrobe. A week on a dusty trail had made the presence of snow water, as deep as one wanted it, a peculiar luxury.

"Gee, but it's good to be alive!" she exclaimed, swinging her arms, to the peril of her costume. "Does one always feel like this on the prairies?"

"Always mildly intoxicated, so Jake says, but those are not his words. That's why westerners are more optimistic—and more reckless—than easterners. Always an atmosphere jag under their belts."

"Here's to Jake," she cried. "Have one with me!" as she took a great chestful of fresh air. "See you at breakfast—if I'm sober enough!"

That day, and those that followed, were busy, busy days. The oxen were tired and footsore with their long journey, and we decided to let them rest, but Jack and I took no holiday. I was determined that on the very first day I would plant some crop on my farm, so I started at once to spade up land for a garden. By mid-afternoon I had spaded quite a sizable garden plot. Then I broke the clods as best I could and planted a few rows of potatoes. The following day I continued my digging, and that evening, with assistance from Jean and Marjorie, planted onions, carrots, beets, lettuce and radish.

We agreed that by the third day the oxen should be ready for the road again, and Jack was away soon after sunrise of the bright spring morning. He took the trail for the railway station some thirty miles to the south, and the sound of his wagon rumbling over the soft earth came floating back on the breeze as a sort of accompaniment to the bellicose voice which Jack affected when he was ox-driving.

My next effort was the digging of a cellar. The location of our shack had to be decided upon, and for this I called Marjorie and Jean into council. We agreed that it should be close to one brow of the ravine, and that Jack should build his close to the other, so that each would command an unbroken view of his neighbor. Perhaps even then we had some premonition of the specter of loneliness creeping down upon us through the night mists of the summer or the snow-wraiths of the blizzard, and already we were planning our lines of defense.

"How many rooms will there be?" asked Jean. "Let me see—reception room, living room, parlor, dining room—you must at least have that."

"We shall," I said, "and one door will lead into them all. A room is anything you call it. We can change the name as we change the purpose. One moment it is kitchen, the next, living room, and so on."

"Draw a plan of it," said Marjorie, turning up the planed side of a board. So I sat down and drew a plan, while the girls watched over my shoulders with as much intentness as though I were an architect designing a palace.

"The house will be one story," I explained, "and long and narrow, because that is the simplest as well as the cheapest way to build it, and we are to be our own carpenters. The walls will be of shiplap, covered with matched siding, with tar paper between. The roof will be of two thicknesses of boards, bent to a gentle oval over a stout ridge-pole, and again with tar paper between. You have no idea how much the West owes to tar paper. Wherever the new settler goes, goes tar paper, I would almost say," I continued, warming up to my subject, "that if a flag is ever needed for these western prairies it should be a banner of tar paper, nailed between two laths. 'Oh, say, does the tar paper banner still wave?'—you see, it has possibilities."

"But isn't it awfully smelly stuff?" said Jean, who had a strain of delicacy in her that at times conflicted with her surroundings.

"Ah, that is one of its chief virtues. You may not know yet, but you will learn—at least, so Jake assured me—that population is not nearly so scarce on the prairies as it seems. He says that the inmates of one of these little bachelor shacks in many cases number literally millions. Millions. Well—they don't like tar paper. Blessed be tar paper!"

I scratched the outline of the shack in the sod with my shovel and began digging a cellar in the center of the little plot. For a depth of nearly two feet I dug through a brownish-black loam that turned easily and threw clean from the shovel. Then I struck a sticky, yellow clay, and the going was much slower. But by the time we heard Jack's hoarse voice and his tired oxen clicking their hoofs up the trail on the evening of the second day I had succeeded in making a hole which we agreed to call a cellar.

Next day we set about our building in earnest. There were no union hours with us. We worked from early morning until after sunset, and laid down our tools at last with affectionate reluctance. We were stiff and sore in every joint and muscle; our hands were calloused and our finger nails were battered with misdirected energy, but our hearts were with the gods. I relate only absolute truth in saying that when our shack was finished we moved into it with a sense of accomplishment such as perhaps no king ever knew amid the luxury of his palaces.

As soon as our first building was finished we started a similar one for Jack and Jean. Then we built a little stable down in the gully for the oxen, the cow, the pig, and the hens; we improved the crossing of the stream; we dug a well; we plowed a small area on each farm and planted it to oats, and then we went on plowing for next season's crop; we bought a mowing machine and rake—on credit—and cut an ample supply of wild prairie hay for our winter needs. We had decided that, as fall came on, Jack and I, with the yoke of oxen, should make a pilgrimage into the more settled districts with a view to getting work with some farmer, and so replenishing our resources.

It was a hot day in the middle of July when, up the trail from the south a speck grew out of the distance. Traffic did not often come our way, and Jack and I both stopped work in the field to study its approach and to conjecture as to whom or what it might be. As we watched, the figure took the form of a horse and rider of heroic size charging down upon us literally out of the heavens. As it approached the mirage lost its illusion and horse and rider came back to earth. By this time we were sure that the glint of color which had seemed to dance vaguely about the figure had a basis in fact; there was no longer a doubt that an atom of scarlet was approaching along the trail.

Leaving the oxen to their midday meditations we walked over to my shack, where Jean had already joined Marjorie. It could now be seen that the figure was approaching at a rapid gait, and its outline, no longer blurred by the shimmering of the mirage, stood out sharp and clean against the distance. It was a mounted policeman.

As he drew up beside us I had a sense of being in the presence of physical perfection. His horse, although wet over the flanks, showed little sign of fatigue; the dust of travel clung to the rider's sunburned face, but the smartness of his bearing and uniform was unimpaired. He saluted as he brought his horse to a standstill; then sprang lightly to the ground.

He Saluted as He Brought His Horse to a Standstill.

"I see I am right," he said, addressing Marjorie and Jean. "Won't you introduce me?"

Marjorie was the first to act, although I suspected, even then, that he had spoken more particularly to Jean. "My brother, Frank," she said, "and Jean's brother, Jack. This is Mr. Brook."

We shook hands cordially, and Jean asked our visitor if he had had dinner. "I have not," he confessed, "but please don't go to any trouble." But the girls were already in the house, making preparations.

"There's a stream around here, if my maps are right," the policeman continued, speaking to us, "and both Dick and I could do with water."

We led him down to the stream, and to the well, and although I was disposed to be prejudiced against this strapping young fellow who seemed to take more than a casual interest in Jean, I lost much of that prejudice through a little incident that happened when we reached the water. Although Brook was undoubtedly suffering from thirst he removed his horse's bit, so that he could drink in comfort, before he accepted the proffered cup of water which Jack brought him from the well. Jack and I spoke of it afterward and agreed that a chap who did that sort of thing was a good bit of a man.

After a hearty drink Brook took off his hat and tunic, produced towel, soap, comb and brush, and cleaned up even more thoroughly than seemed necessary. As I watched him parting his hair by the reflection in the water I realized that Brook had not forgotten what so many of us pioneers often did forget—the value of personal appearance. While we walked up the bank together I admitted to myself that although I was as good a man as he was, I didn't look it.

The meal which the girls had prepared loosened all our tongues, and before it was over we were chatting merrily. Brook had the latest gossip from Regina, and interesting news about himself. At last he had escaped from barracks, temporarily, at any rate. He was detailed to two months' relief duty at a point farther west; he promised himself another meal at our board on his way back, a prospect which Jean and Marjorie and Jack received with much satisfaction, and I trust I showed no smallness about it.

At length Brook insisted that he

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Ford

INCREASED values recently built into Ford cars are particularly noticeable in this attractive, compact Ford Coupe.

All the practical advantages which have made this car so universally popular, are here in greater measure, every added feature giving comfort, style and good looks in addition to remarkable utility.

See your nearest Authorized Ford Dealer for a practical demonstration.

FORD MOTOR COMPANY
DETROIT, MICHIGAN

COUPE
$520
F. O. B. Detroit

No Increase in Prices

Runabout $260 · Touring $290 · Tudor Sedan $580 · Fordor Sedan $660.
Demountable rims and starter extra on open cars. All prices F. O. B. Detroit.

Hautin Clothes
have won a National reputation
by giving unusual values.

Suits $20 $22.50 25~

Extra pants to match from $5.00 to $6.00
Hautin's Best: Strictly hand-tailored $35.00 two pants

F. E. CARTIER, Tailor and Cleaner

PHONE 248

For a Limited Time

We are going to give a guaranteed

COWHIDE FOOTBALL

--WITH--

10 Bon Ton Bread Warps and 69c Cash

Ask About It At KORTH'S Market

BON TON BAKING CO.

Petoskey, Michigan

AFTER EVERY MEAL
WRIGLEY'S
makes your food do you more good.
Note how it relieves that stuffy feeling after hearty eating.
Sweetens the breath, removes food particles from the teeth, gives new vigor to tired nerves.
Comes to you fresh, clean and full-flavored.
WRIGLEY'S JUICY FRUIT CHEWING GUM
THE FLAVOR LASTS
SEALED TIGHT KEPT RIGHT

FRESHENING BREEZES

The boom is on. Hudsonville, which had only one robbery in 30 years, has suddenly made a fresh start and had two in one week.

Officers who went to a home at Algonac to tell the owner that complaints had been made against his dog, found 22 cases of beer which they confiscated. Another proof that makers of beer should become law-abiding, and not keep a dangerous dog.

While a farm hand at Tekonsha was working on top of a load of hay, a rattle snake was pitched up to him from the ground. He was doing very well in the city, according to a letter written from his new address a few seconds later.

Over $400,000,000 Hoarded

IT has been estimated that more than $400,000,000 has been taken out of circulation by folks who, for some reason or other, prefer to keep their cash in safe deposit boxes, old socks, under mattresses or in some other place. 3 per cent the average interest paid by banks—on $400,000,000 amounts to $12,000.000 a year in interest lost by these folks who will not use the banks. If you have been keeping your money out of circulation, stop it now. Get it into the bank, where it will do you and someone else good.

Charlevoix State Savings Bank

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

W. S. Richardson, President.
A. D. Crimmins, Vice President.
Archie Livingston, Cashier.
G. W. Richardson, Asst. Cashier.

ADDITIONAL LOCALS.

Jas. McCafferty came over from St. James, Monday, on business.

Fons Sandenberg is over from St. James having his injured hand treated.

Mrs. Harry Walstead left Tuesday morning for Detroit for an extended visit.

Mrs. Alice Rock[illegible] Tuesdny morning for Detroit and other points south.

Sheriff Charles Novak was in Boyne City, Tuesday afternoon, on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Block are making an extended tour of the Upper Peninsular.

Mrs. Fred Nackerman arrived from St. James, Monday, for a short visit with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted L. Penrl made a business trip to Lansing, Sunday, returning Tuesday.

Arthur Ranger left Tuesdny morning for St. Louis, Mo., where he will spend the winter months.

Mrs. Willinm Wallace and Mrs. Swain Smith drove to Detroit, Monday, on a two week's visit.

The nnnual meeting of the Baptist church was held on Monday evening of this week with a pot luck supper.

Mrs. Frank Left of St. James, arrived in Charlevoix, Mondny and will visit her sister, Mrs. Earl Miller.

Jud Markham substituted at the post office, Monday, for Dan McSaube, who was under the weather.

Rev. Herman Burns will preach at the Burgess school house, Sunday afternoon, at three o'clock standard time.

Chet See and Pete Hallett left Inte Tuesday night on a duck hunting trip to Birch lake nnd Intermediate lake.

rMs. rFank Gillispie arrived from St. James the first of the week nnd will visit friends in Charlevoix for a short time.

Mrs. Lnwrence Malloy nnd three children from St. James, were in Charlevoix, Monday, on their way to Chicago.

A. B. Chew and family have moved from their farm home in Hayes township to 224 Antrim street, for the winter months.

Anthony O'Donnell arrived in Charlevoix Monday from the southern part of the stnte on his wny to his home nt St. James.

The Charlevoix Hardware compnny is having new flues installed in their furnace this week. Charles Raber is doing the work.

Mrs. Mary Blissett left Tuesday morning for Detroit and Toledo, and will spend the next two weeks visiting friends and relatives.

Barney Harrington and wife left last Sunday morning for St. Louis, Mo., where they will visit their daughter, Mrs. V. Y. Tuttle.

Mrs. A. E. Mason left Tuesday morning on the P. M. excursion for Ann Arbor, where she will visit her son, Perry Mason nnd family.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Glassford will leave Thursday for Detroit and go from there to Miami, Florida, where they will spend the winter months.

Raymond Seymour, wife nnd children nrrived home Sunday night, after spending n week visiting relntives and friends in Flint nnd Detroit.

Miss Fanny Powell left Tuesday morning on the P. M. excursion for Detroit, where she will spend the next two weeks visiting friends nnd relatives.

Henry Block, wife and family visited friends and relatives in Battle Creek lnst week end. They made the trip by auto and returned Monday of this week.

Mrs. Milo Todd left Tuesday morning for Lansing and Portlnnd, where she will spend the next two weeks visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Barnes.

Harry A. Craig, wife nnd two children, accompnnied by Mr. and Mrs. George D. Swinton, left Thursdny for Marquette, where they will visit friends and relatives.

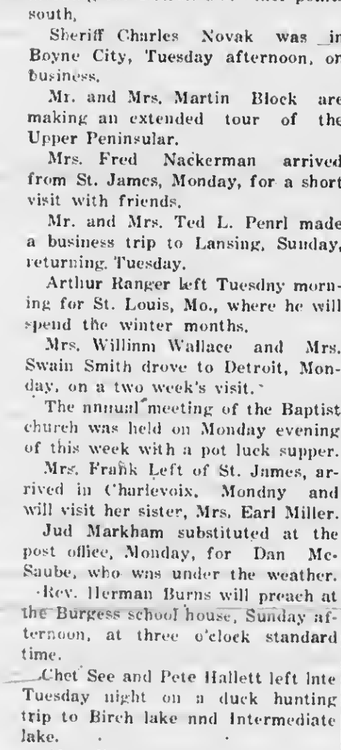
Harry Taylor is making extensive improvements to his property on Antrim street. A front porch is being ndded to the building and an addition constructed to house a bnthroom.

Miss Catherine Fitch left Monday via Gaylord and the Michigan Centrnl for Detroit and New York City on her way to Cornl Gables, Florida, where she will go into business for herself this winter.

Mr. nnd Mrs. Chas. Sterritt left Wednesday for Rochester, Minn., where Mr. Sterritt will take trentments nt Mayo Brothers' hospital. Capt. Ance will have charge of the station during Mr. Sterritt's nbsence.

The Benj. Brown Auto Sales reports the following sales of Dodge cars for last week: L. G. Dowe of Boyne City, an A sedan; Jack Gallagher and Mrs. Smith of Charlevoix, Dodge coach; Loren Hamlin of Hayes township, Dodge special coach.

Dr. W. H. Parks, of East Jordan, who purchased the Bernard Klise home on East Mitchell street, Petoskey, some time ago, plans extensive repairs and improvements during the next few weeks. Dr. Parks will likely move to Petoskey some time in October and open an office in the Magnus block.



GRANDA and Junior have lots in common. They say health and vitality largely depend upon drinking plenty of good, wholesome milk—the kind we leave for them each morning.

MARION CENTER DAIRY
Pure Aerated
Milk and Cream
CHARLEVOIX, MICH.

CHARLEVOIX BOY MARRIED AT FLINT

Alfred Jones Marries Miss, Doris Jones of Loganport, Ind.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized on Friday evening of last week, when Alfred Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Jones of this city, was united in marriage to Miss Doris Jones, daughter of Mrs. C. J. Jones of Loganport, Ind.

The young couple were attended at the wedding by Miss Vera Andreen of Flint, who acted as bridesmaid, and Harold Jones of this city, brother of the grooom, who neted as best man. The ceremony was performed by Rev. D. Kernes, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Flint, in the presence of a few intimate friends and relatives.

The happy couple left for Charlevoix Saturday morning and are now at the home of Mr. Jones' parents, where they will spend a couple weeks visiting before returning to Flint to make their future home. The Courier and their many friends wish them the best of success in their new venture.

Priest's Studio is now open for business.—Adv. 40 tf.

AN EXPERT AT GROWING DAHLIAS

Johnston Will Move Dahlia Farm Nearer to Charlevoix

The Courier acknowledges receipt of the gift of a beautiful boquet of dahlias from the Grand View Dahlia Farm, located on the east side of the south arm of Pine Lake, in Eveline township.

The farm is operated by Joel Johnston, who specinlizes in dahlias, beside being an expert on producing other flowers of like nature. The boquet consisted of seven or eight varities, riot of color and tints, full foliage nnd large in size. He gave the name of each individual flower, but we have forgotten them, not being familiar with the flower gnme.

Mr. Johnston states his dahlia fnrm is located on one of the beautiful sites on the shores of Pine Lake, about three miles south of Ironton. But, as he says, despite the advantages of location, it is too far from a marketing place for his product.

Next season he will occupy the Samson Godbold farm, just north of The Inn, with a greatly increased planting.

ELMIRA GIRL HAS HER NECK BROKEN

Regina, 9-year-old daughter of Frank Dobzewski, farmer residing one mile west of Elmira, was dragged to death by a horse she was riding Monday afternoon of last week.

The girl had been with her father in the field, and at supper time attempted to ride the horse home, a distance of nhout a half mile. The horse objected, and either threw the girl or she tried to dismount. Her foot caught in the harness, and she was dragged at the side of the running horse to the house.

When disentangled from the harness at the house she was still nlive, but died before any help could be secured. Her neck was broken. Both arms were also broken and she had undoubtedly heen kicked.

METHODIST CHURCH

"The Breath of a New Life"—sermon, 10:30 a. m. next Sunday.

The hour of evening church changes next Sunday from the summer time to 7:00 p. m. Epworth League meets at 6:00 p. m. followed by the "Happy Sunday Evening" of "Song nnd Sermon."

Sunday School is rallying for a great seasons study of the great message. The Sunday School hour is twelve o'clock sharp.

Midweek service each week on Thursday evening. A welcome awaits all who nttend, and a profitnble time is the rewnrd of attending. Some studies in the fourteenth of John are the bible lessons during this month.

BAPTIST CHURCH

Rev. Herman Burns, Pastor

The usunl services at 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. will be conducted by the pastor.

Bible school at 12:00 m, will elect its officers and study about Paul in Corinthians.

The B. Y. P. U. will meet at 6:30 p. m.

A cordial invitation is extended to all to all of these services.

The annual meeting held last Monday evening will be reported next week.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Hnmilton returned Friday afternoon from a two week's visit with relatives at Grand Hnven and Muskegon.

CLOSING OUT

Stock of Men's Suits

We have decided to sell out our stock of Men's Suits including the well known Hart, Schaffner & Marks brand. Price reductions will be made at a great saving. Now is your opportunity! Come early, you may be too late.

M. A. Levinson & Co.

$50.00 REWARD

For the man who was in Atchison's Auto Shop, Saturday, September 26, with Ford Coupe. He failed to drain his crank case, and fill up with Fresh, Clean, Pure

En-Ar-Co Motor Oil

"The Oil of a Million Tests"

A special demonstration by Representative of National Refining Co. will be given Saturday, October 10, 1925. At Garage 204 Mason St.

Endorsed by Charlevoix Road Commissioners

All I ask is, use it once and you always use En-Ar-Co

FREE OIL ON THIS DAY

ATCHISON AUTO SHOP

Charlevoix, Michigan

Phone 93 204 Mason St.

NEW PRICES EFFECTIVE AT ONCE

These prices may not last long, so you had better take advantage of them while they are good.

	Cwt.
Corn, whole,	$2.30
Corn, cracked or ground	2.40
Corn, steel cut	2.50
Corn Gluten Feed, 25 per cent	2.85
Oats, home grown	1.90
Oats, ground	2.00
Oats, ground extra finc	2.10
Bran, pure	1.80
Midds, standard	2.00
Midds, flour	2.30
Ground Barley, (oaty)	2.10
Ground Rye	2.00
C. S. Meal, 43 per cent	2.85
Oil Meal, 34 per cent	2.75
Purina Cow Chow	3.10
Pillsbury Dairy Ration	2.50
Purina Hen Chow	3.40
Purina Hen Chowder	3.75
Purina Omolene (horse feed)	3.00
Purina Pig Chow	3.50
Purina Calf Chow	4.75

Ton lots, 10c per cwt. less
Delivered price, add 10c per cwt.

SPECIALS

Salt Bloeks, short time only	$ .40
Cattle Salt, ewt.	.75
Steamed Bone Meal, cwt	2.50
Poultry Meat Scrap	4.25
Oyster Shells	1.50
Hay, light mixed, for	18.00
Straw, ton	15.00

SEE OUR STOCK OF CANVAS GLOVES AND SHOT GUN SHELLS

Charlevoix Co-Operative Assn.

Farmers Supply House

THE OLDEST BANK IN CHARLEVOIX COUNTY
FORTY-FIRST YEAR IN BUSINESS

1884 1925

IN SPEAKING --

of this bank, it will always be our aim to merit the implied compliment of any customer who says,

"That's where I get real service"

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY BANK

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN
Nicholls, Buttars & Bridge, Bankers
THE BANK ON THE CORNER

LOCAL NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

Get the Habit—Read the Courier

Regular communication of Charlevoix Lodge, 282, F. & A. M., Tuesday evening, October 13. Work in the F. C. degree. Refreshments.

Pete Bulow of East Jordan, was a Charlevoix caller last Sunday evening.

Arthur Ranger spent the week end with relatives and friends at Horton Bay.

Sheriff Charles Novak was an East Jordan caller on Friday of last week.

Ray Faulkner is having a new roof put on his house at the foot of Clinton street.

"Fish" Illaverson spent the week end at the home of his brother-in-law at Ironton.

P. J. Moran is building an addition to the cellar of his residence on Clinton street.

Fifteen gentlemen friends of Chas. Heise held a lathing bee at his house Monday night.

Mrs. H. L. Iddings is having the roof on her residence on Park avenue re-shingled this week.

Volley Fox and wife of Horton Bay, spent Monday in Charlevoix, visiting friends and relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Hawley are visiting at the home of their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Price.

Henry Gregory and wife motored to Central Lake, Bellaire and East Jordan, Sunday, on a pleasure trip.

Harold Meggison and Glenn See spent Sunday near Central Lake duck hunting. They report bagging two ducks.

The Troy Laundry has moved back to their winter quarters in the old Courier building in the rear of the post office.

Judge Our Groceries

By the Quality the Taste the Economy fo Serving Good Food to your Family

The price is no higher and the service is just as good as any store in the city.

Milton Block

Bert Cable, who has been running E. J. Block's boats the past summer, has returned to White Lake for the winter months.

Miss Elizabeth West of Horton Bay, spent Sunday and Monday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Ranger in this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Theo Scott of East Jordan, spent Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Usher in this city.

Walter Quant of the Courier staff, left Monday for Grand Rapids, where he will join his parents in their new home in that city.

James Wyers and family, accompanied by Will Myers and family, also Mrs. Charles Hamlin, motored to Johannsburg, Sunday.

Miss Mary Powers of Honor, Michigan, is the new bookkeeper at the Charlevoix State Savings Bank. She started work last week.

J. A. Anderson, inspector connected with the Pere Marquette railroad, is a visitor at the home of J. L. Price and wife.

Miss Adeline Hulley left Tuesday morning for Detroit, where she will spend the next two weeks visiting relatives and friends.

Miss Myrtle Guild, bookkeeper at S. M. See & Sons' furniture store returned Sunday from a two week's vacation spent in Flint.

Earl Shupton left Tuesday morning on the P. M. excursion for Chicago, where he will spent the next week visiting relatives.

Richard Finucan returned Tuesday from the Soo, where he has been spending a few days with his wife at the home of her parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Gus Carlson left Tuesday morning for Grand Rapids and Cleveland, Ohio, where they will visit their sons for two weeks.

Mrs. George Russell and daughter, Francis Ellen, left Tuesday morning on the P. M. excursion for Chicoga, where she will visit her husband.

Fred Taylor, brother of Wm. Taylor of this city, returned Tuesday morning to Detroit, after spending the past week visiting relatives here.

Eugene Fairchild left Tuesday morning for Detroit and Toledo, where he will visit friends and relatives and enjoy a two week's vacation.

Mrs. R. O. Cram, accompanied by her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Jenkins, motored to Flint last Friday, where they will visit for two weeks.

P. J. Moran and wife left on Friday of last week for Detroit, on a short business trip. They will return Monday or Tuesday of this week.

The Ladies Literary and Sewing Club will meet at the home of Mrs. George Sands, Hurlbut avenue, Thursday afternoon, October 8th, at 2:30 p. m.

Work was begun in earnest Monday morning on the new building being constructed by the Charlevoix County Bank on their vacant lot next to the bank.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Usher and little daughter returned Sunday afternoon from a week's vacation, spent with relatives and friends at East Jordan.

Lee Allard, wife and daughter of Pontiac, spent the week end in the city visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Marshall and Mr. and Mrs. Lou Allard.

Henry Partridge returned from Chicago, where he has been for the past week on business. Mrs. Partridge is in Detroit on an indefinite visit to relatives.

Paul Kreker, for the past year or more bookeeper at the Charlevoix State Savings Bank, leaves for his home in Milan, Tuesday, where he will visit for some time.

Norn and Aileen Hebert left Tuesday morning for Detroit and from there they will go on to Buffalo, New York, where they expect to spend the winter months.

D. J. Eckinger left Sunday morning by auto for Flint, where he will spend a week visiting at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Roy McArthur, and son Harold Eckinger.

Mrs. Chas. Jefferies left Tuesday morning on the P. M. excursion for Chardon, Ohio, where she will visit her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Roy D. France.

Mrs. Nels Tillotson, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Wm. Straw, Sr., left Tuesday morning for Detroit, where they will visit relatives and friends for the next ten days.

Mrs. Walter Smith left Tuesday morning on the P. M. excursion for Detroit, Flint and Saginaw, where she will spend the next two weeks visiting relatives and friends.

Milton Block, wife and family returned home Monday afternoon. They have been spending the past ten days in Chicago and touring the southern part of Michigan.

Benjamin Brown of the Brown Auto Sales, accompanied by his brother, George, left Sunday for Detroit, and will drive back a Dodge Truck and a sedan for local purchasers.

The Elmer Poole home was saddened last week by the death of their infant son, Ardine, age 5 days, which occurred on Thursday last. Burial took place on the same day at Brookside cemetery.

Archie Livingston and wife and Mrs. Geo. D. Ash of Bellaire, left on Friday of last week for a two week's visit at Buffalo and other eastern points. They expect to be gone about two weeks.

Mrs. Richard Hall and small daughter, accompanied by her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Molet, left Tuesday morning for Chicago, where they will make their home this winter.

"Buster" Bugbee returned last Thursday from Northville, Mich., where he has been stationed at the government fish hatchery for the past summer. He will be stationed at Charlevoix for the winter.

Capt. John Roen was in the harbor last Saturday with his boat the Marquis Roen, leaving again Sunday morning for Shell Drake, on Lake Superior, where he will pick up a load of iron consigned for the Soo.

Harry Porter left early Tuesday morning for Sturgis, Michigan, by auto. He will be accompanied as far as Sturgis by A. M. Hamlin, who will go from there to Elkhart, Ind., to visit his son, Louis Hamlin and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Lance Neff and family, Miss Frena Handhal, Mr. and Mrs. Gus Walgren and daughter, Catherine, motored to Mancelona last week and were the guests of John Peterson and Raymond Notstine.

Don McHugh left Tuesday morning on the P. M. excursion for Chicago, Battle Creek, Jackson, Pontiac, Lansing, Grand Rapids and other southern Michigan, where he will spend the next ten days on business.

Jack Smith, son of James A. Smith, former pastor of the Congregational church in this city and now residing in Pennsylvania, left on Monday of this week for his home after spending the summer months in Charlevoix.

Mrs. Sarah Emrey left Tuesday morning on an indefinite visit to her daughter, Mrs. Tom LaLonde, in Detroit. She was accompanied by her sister, Mrs. J. R. McMullen of Detroit, who has been spending the past week visiting here.

B. A. Herman returned last Saturday from Chicago, where he spent a few days of last week. He made the trip by auto, accompanying C. F. Missinger of the Ironton resort, who was returning to his home in Oak Park, Ill., after spending the summer here.

Mrs. Andy McCall, Jr., accompanied by her little grand-daughter, Virginia Lee Shumsky, left Tuesday morning on the P. M. excursion for Detroit, where Mrs. McCall will visit relatives and friends for a couple of weeks and little Miss Shumsky will return to the home of her parents.

Virgina Parker, who is attending high school at Wichta, Kansas, has had her hair bobbed. Virginia writes that another girl and she were the only ones with long hair in a class of 361. The new Wichta high school is one of the finest in the country, with generating plant, magnificent gymnasium, etc.

Wm. E. Driggott, wife and two sons returned Sunday from a week's visit with friends and relatives in Flint, Pontiac, Detroit, Ypsilanti, New Boston and Flat Rock. They were accompanied home by Mr. Driggett's two sisters, Mrs. S. Bisbee of Milan, and Mrs. Sarah Parish of Detroit, also his nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Fales of Detroit, who will spend a week here.

MOON ACQUIRES McHUGH PROPERTY

May Not Disturb Majestic Theatre When Building Starts

L. A. Moon, owner of the Palace and Majestic theatres, has recently acquired what is known as the McHugh property, and now has a Bridge street frontage of 53 1-2 feet not counting the Majestic.

In a statement made to the Courier today, Mr. Moon says he will probably start building operations on his new $50,000 theatre very soon, and utilize the McHugh and Young frontage for this purpose. This will leave the Majestic untouched, which he may also run during the summer season.

Work started Tuesday on clearing up the rubbish on the McHugh property, and we may see the commencement of the foundation for the new play-house with in a short time.

COURIER BARGAIN COLUMN.

Courier Want Advs. are One Cent per word per insertion. Minimum charge is 20 cents per insertion, for anything under 20 words. All Want Advs. are strictly cash in advance except to those who have ledger accounts. Please remember this when sending in your copy.

FOUND

FOUND—On shores of Little Traverse Bay off Norwood, a 24x8 skow, painted white. Owner can have same by paying advertising expenses and proving property. Inquire Dick Kirby, Norwood, Mich.—38-t3 pd.

LOST

LOST—Brown female hound, four white feet and white strip on nose. Return to Mont Withers, phone 200. Reward.—40 t2 pd.

FOR SALE—MISCELLANEOUS

FOR SALE—Kitchen Range. Price $10. Inquire at this office.—38-tf.

FOR SALE—Overcoat, nearly new, size 36. Inquire at Fountain City House.—40 t1 pd.

FOR SALE—Over-head valve head, complete, for Ford car. Inquire Dick Kirby, Norwood.—38-t3 pd.

FOR SALE—Good hard coal burner, cheap. Inquire of Lon Hewitt, 213 W. Lincoln Ave., phone 388. —40t1.

FOR SALE—Pair 7 1-2 Edmonds Footfitting shoes, worn less than two weeks. Reason for selling—too narrow for owners feet. Name your price on them if they are what you want. Inquire at this office.—40tf.

FOR SALE — Building material. Save 50 per cent in building. Phone W. S. Shaw Co., No. 75, Boyne City, for prices on lumber (boards and sheathing,) steel beams, brick, pipe, pipe fittings and roofing.—40t10.

FOR SALE—LIVE STOCK

FOR SALE—Four beagle puppies (male), $5.00 each. 209 Burns St., phone 197.—40 t1 pd.

FOR SALE—6 Cows, one—fresh, others will be fresh this month. Inquire of Frank Bird at Court House.—40t2.

FOR SALE—2 year old hound, good on rabbit or fox, price $25. Inquire of Milo Todd at Block's garage.—40t2 pd.

FOR SALE—Span of iron gray geldings, 4 and 5 years old, weight 2650. Good work team and well broken. Phone 7012f22 or call at home of Hans Jensen, Charlevoix-East Jordan road, 8 miles from Charlevoix.—40t2 pd.

WANTED—MISCELLANEOUS

WANTED—Tent in good condition, 9x12. Forrest Fowler, at Loeb Farms.—40 t1 pd.

CASH for Dental Gold, Platinum, Silver, Diamonds, magneto points, false teeth, jewelry, and valuables. Mail today. Cash by return mail. Hoke S. & R., Otsego, Mich.—12-tf.

MISCELLANEOUS

FOR INFORMATION regarding Florida land and investments, write Ernest E. Galloway, 845 N. W. 2nd St., Miami, Florida, Licensed Broker.—36-tf.

HELP WANTED.

WANTED — Stenographer, steady position for the right party. Wood Bros.—40tf.

WANTED—Competent girl for general housework. Permanent position. Inquire at McCann's Bakery. —34-tf.

WANTED—Women to assort dill pickles. Easy work, warm room. Phone 25-J or inquire at Pickle Station.—40 t1.

Friday and Saturday Specials
OCTOBER 9th and 10th

Figured Satine for Linings and Petticoats	49c
Small Gingham Check Aprons	72c
Coverall Aprons	85c
Bar-None Sheets, 81x90 and 72x90	$1.55
Pepperell Unbleached Sheating 81 inches wide especially good for spreads	49c
Oil Cloth squares, 54x57 inches. Colors Blue, Rose and Gold with White back ground at	85c
Daisy Trim, Colors, Blue Pink and Green	4c
Ric-Rac, All Colors	4c
Black and White Darning Cotton	4c
Black and White Snaps	4c
Pear Buttons	4c
Six Strand Floss	4c

A. E. MASON

NEW PALACE THEATRE

ATTRACTIONS FOR THE COMING WEEK

Thursday, October 8

Wm. Fox presents Edmond Lowe in "GREATER THAN A CROWN," a whirlwind romance of a modern adventure seeker. Also Mahendra and Oriental dancer.

Friday, October 9

Agnes Ayers in "HER MARKET VALUE." A magnificent adaptation of the appealing drama of love and honor that stirred all London as a stage play for over a year. What is a woman's market value? Can it be reckoned in dollars and cents? See "Her Market Value." Also a Fox News reel. NOTICE:—This is the last day of Mahendra's appearance here, with a special matinee for ladies only. The first ten ladies buying tickets to matinee may question Mahendra in private, free.

Saturday and Sunday, October 10 and 11

Zane Grey's "CODE OF THE WEST," a roaring western romance with comic and melodramantic trimmings, with an all-star cast. A story of a New York flapper who tried to vamp a cowboy, and was tamed and taught the "Code of the West." Thrill 1—The greatest forest fire scenes ever screened. Thrill 2—The thonsand foot leap of horse and rider from cliff to river. And the other hundred thrills are just as real and heart-quickening. A Zane Grey master-piece. Also a Carter De Haven two reel comedy, "HOT SHEIKS." Both Paramount pictures.

Monday, October 19

First National presents "PLAYING WITH SOULS," a soul-stirring drama, a musical show, comedy pathos—all the range of wonderful entertainment. A sensation as a book—a fascinating picture.

Tuesday and Wednesday, October 13 and 14

Henry King's great woman-picture in "SACKCLOTH AND SCARLET," with Alice Terry. The human-interest love drama of a girl who shouldered the responsibility for her weaker sister's folly. One of the strongest heart-dramas ever filmed. A big human theme with a mighty heart-grip that never lets go for a single second. Also a Fox News reel.

Well I just can't afford to go to Florida

"Sorry Mister, but you can have a Florida climate in your home, if you heat your home with Argo Quality Coal."

Call us, we are ready to respond

ARGO MILLING COMPANY

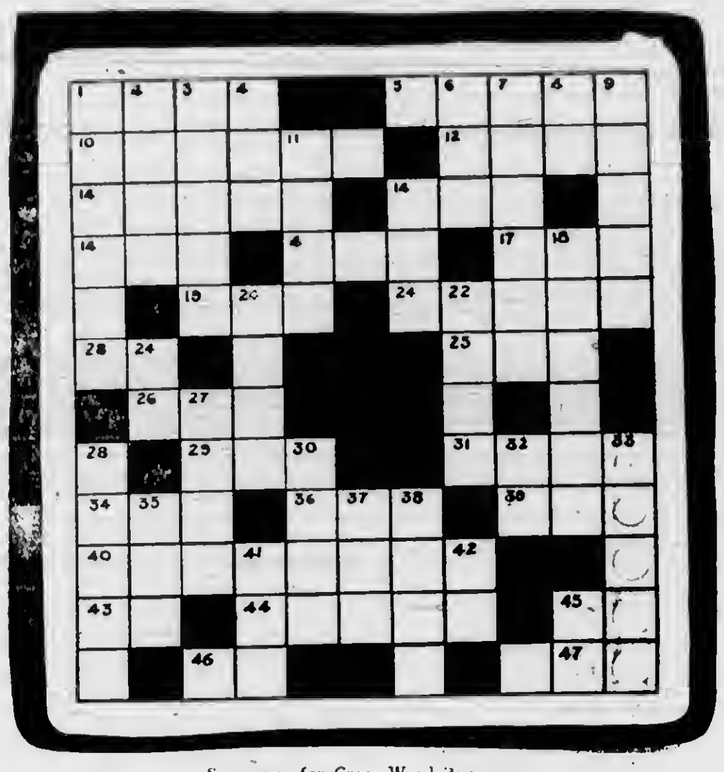
APPLES

Now is the time to place your order for the winters supply of Apples

ORCHARD BAY FARM

E. J. EDWARDS, Manager

GOOD ROADS CROSS WORD PUZZLE



Synonyms for Cross Word Puzzle

Verticle.

1—First name of a man about Charlevoix County who is an advocate of good reinforced concrete roads.
2—Singly.
3—Command.
4—Expire.
6—Open (poet.).
7—Assisting.
8—Department of Navigation (abr.)
9—Fur-bearing animals.
11—Press tightly.
14—Wager
18—Pertaining to the Lent period.
20—Girl's name.
22—Large bird (plural).
24—Negative.
27—Felled with an axe.
28—Your father's brother.
30—Uncommon.
32—Each (abr.)
33—Put away for future use.
35—Period of time.
37—Possessive pronoun.
38—Suffix meaning "of the kind of."
41—Feline.
42—Electrical Engineer (abr.)
45—Forward.

Horizontal.

1—Adjective describing the kind of road we all want to drive over.
5—Highways.
10—To make rich
12—Name of one of Charlevoix County's lakes.
13—Mere material.
14—The bottom of a river.
15—A grain.
16—Part of verb "to be."
17—Not well.
19—Male sheep.
21—Sound (plural).
23—Printer's measure.
25—Chicago Tribune's radio call letters.
26—Electrical unit.
29—Part of the road.
31—Beholds.
34—Recent.
36—Exclamation expressing triumph.
39—Emmett.
40—The best road possible.
43—Latitude North (abr.)
44—Nest of a predatory bird.
45—Else.
46—Pronoun.
47—A number.

CONDITIONS OF THE CONTEST

Work the cross-word puzzle. Then write an essay of not more than 500 words on the subject: "Advantages of a Good Concrete Road Around Pine Lake; Its Effect on Increased Valuation of Lake Shore Property as Well as Adjacent Property."

Send the essays and cross-word puzzle solutions to Miss Isabel Mitchell, Charlevoix, Michigan, who will act as judge in the contest.

First prize—$10.00 in cash.
Second prize—$5.00 in cash.
Third prize—$3.00 in cash.
Fourth prize—$1.00 in cash.
Fifth prize—$1.00 in cash.

Winners will be determined according to the correctness of their solutions to the cross-word puzzle, and according to the essay submitted on the subject: "Advantages of a Good Concrete Road Around Pine Lake; Its Effect on Increased Valuation of Lake Shore Property as Well as Adjacent Property."

Contest is open to everyone except editors and owners of the publications carrying it, and their employees.

Solutions and essays must both bear contestant's name and address and must be submitted by Thanksgiving Day.

The winning solutions and essays will be published in this paper.

In judging the essays neatness will be considered.

There are no "catch-words" in the cross-word puzzle, nor any foreign or obsolete words.

Prize Money Pledge

This is to certify that "Uncle" George H. VanPelt, pioneer good concrete road advocate, has deposited the sum of twenty ($20.00) dollars with me with which to pay the prizes won by the contestants for the solution of the cross-word puzzle and the best essay on the subject: "Advantages of a Good Concrete Road Around Pine Lake; Its Effect on Increased Valuation of Lake Shore Property as Well as Adjacent Property." All essays and solutions must be in the hands of Miss Isabel Mitchell of Charlevoix, Michigan, the judge, by Thanksgiving Day. Prize money will be promptly sent.

Signed: Robert Bridge,
Charlevoix County Bank.

FROM OFFICE BOY TO GENERAL MGR.

Salary Increase Comes With Promotion

Chicago, Sept. 29—After a careful survey of the entire labor situation extending from office boy to president, indications are that positions showing increases in salaries require experienced help.

Consulting the president of one of our largest industries, the writer inquired regarding the rapid success of a certain young man who had become general manager and who a few years ago was but office boy; his answer was, Brown started as office boy, the lowest salaried position in our office, he was ambitious and managed to purchase a typewriter on small monthly payments and after three weeks of practice at home he was promoted to bill clerk, which position gave him knowledge of the selling price of all merchandise. His next advance was that of typist, which taught him the numerous forms of letter-writing and enabled him to hold a stenographic position, giving him complete knowledge of letter-writing. He was then made secretary, bringing him into coatact with all business details and qualified him for the general manager's office at ten thousand per year.

The same opportunity awaits every young man and woman. Education or age have nothing to do with operating so simple a machine as the typewriter. We are informed that a great piece of benevolent work is being carried on by a large Chicago mail order house in furaishing typewriters to people worthy of credit, by selling on small moathly installments, so low as to average about eight cents per day and actually teaching their customers how to use and aperate any typewriter in about three week's time. You can get other information by writing the International Typewriter Exchange, 184 W. Lake Street, Chicago, Illinois.

Neighbors

By
ROBERT STEAD

Author of
"The Cow Puncher," "The Homesteaders"

WNU Service
Copyright by Robert Stead

(Continued from page three.)

must be on his way, but before going he laid a dollar bill on the table in payment for his meal. We objected most strenuously to accepting money for our hospitality, but as he pointed out that it was the government that footed the bill, we allowed ourselves to be persuaded. Governments, like railways, are legitimate prey. Also, from somewhere, the policeman produced a small box of candy, which he presented impartially to Marjorie and Jean. But most important, in so far as this story is concerned, was a bundle of letters. They were tied together with a stout string, with only the backs of the envelopes exposed, and on them was written in a bold hand the single word "Spoof."

"They're for a young Englishman who is to be a neighbor of yours," Brook explained. "He left word at the Regina post office, asking to have his mail sent out if there was any chance. It seems he had some local fame under the name of Spoof, and the clerk in the post office readdressed his letters that way. That's discipline for you!

My word, what they wouldn't do to a man in the force—"

"I know him," I broke in; "at least I have heard of him. Jake, our land guide told us about him. Where does he settle?"

"Northwest quarter of Two," said the policeman. "Two miles due south of you, as the crow flies, or would fly if he had occasion to. Spoof isn't there yet—I came by the quarter this morning. I suppose he's traveling by ox team and will arrive some time later in the season. You'll see his sign up on Two when he gets here, and perhaps one of you wouldn't mind dropping in on him with this mail, if he doesn't call on you within a few days. He's English, and he may wait for an introduction."

We shook hands with the policeman and parted with him, and the girls stood watching the scarlet figure as it faded to a speck in the distance.

"Isn't he wonderful, Frank?" said Jean, turning to me with an enthusiasm dancing in her eyes which, under any other circumstances, it would have been good to see. "Don't you think that he—that all of the mounted police—are very wonderful?"

"All of the mounted police are wonderful," I agreed, catching at the impersonal noun.

Two mornings later we saw the white gleam of a tent on section Two. We quit work early that afternoon, hitched the oxen to the wagon, and went down en masse to call on Spoof. He saw us when we were yet afar off, and, when it was evident we were headed for his tent, he came striding out to meet us. He was tall and slim and sunburned; he wore leggings and corduroy trousers and a belt, and he took off his hat when he saw the girls.

"My first callers," he said, in his clear, English voice. "This is jolly decent of you. Won't you get down, ladies, and visit my farm—this is it, all around here—while we unhitch the bullocks and turn them to grass. I suspect you are my neighbors from Fourteen?"

"Fourteen and Twenty-two," said I, acting as spokesman, and introducing our little party. "We have heard of you, but only as Spoof."

"Spoof is good enough. In fact, I think it is rather a ripping name, don't you? And I know enough already about the West to know that a catchy nickname, once supplied, sticks. So Spoof I am, to everybody, except the dear folks at home, who, of course, could never understand. When I wrote the governor and said the people here called me Spoof he answered, 'Such insolence! I'd have the law on them! Remember you are still an Englishman!' Poor old governor!"

"Here are some letters, Mr. Spoof," said Jean, extending the little bundle. "Mr. Brook, the policeman, left them as he rode by a few days ago."

"Good old post office!" Spoof exclaimed. "Wonderful how they chase 'em about down. Isn't it? They even know me by my Canadian name. Good old P. O."

Spoof made us come into his tent. The furnishings were not elaborate, but they had a little air of something that seemed to be missing in ours. There was a tin trunk, which had been sat on until it had a great depression in the top, and a leather trunk, generously plastered with labels. There was a great box, which he used as a table, and dishes of inappropriately delicate china. There was a folding cot with steamer rugs. Quite a handsome shaving set was strapped to a wall of the tent, and a great cartridge belt with a prodigious revolver hung from a tent pole, while a rifle leaned against it. Spoof evidently meant to sell his life dearly, if there should be any demand for it. Three or four English magazines lay about, and a tobacco jar with pipes stood in the center of the table. But what caught Jean's eyes were the pictures on the walls. Spoof's tent was up less than a day, and there were pictures on the walls.

"This is my diggings," our host was saying. "A little crowded inside, but plenty of room outside. The law of compensation, you know. Have to do for the present. Beastly expensive business farming. We'll have some tea presently, if there's any spirit left in the spirit lamp. Sorry I can't offer you anything better." So he rattled on and made us feel very much at home, even while I found rising in my heart some yearning of sympathy for him.

The sun was setting when our little caravan started homeward, casting its mammoth shadows across the soft, warm prairies, and hearing Spoof's promise to return our visit at the earliest opportunity.

(Continued next week)

W. E. Parmelee builds storm windows.—Adv. 37-tf.

INTERESTING BITS OF INFORMATION CLIPPED FROM OUR EXCHANGES

One of the water wells at St. Johns has ceased to flow and investigation has failed to determine the cause. Maybe it is for the same reason that most of our oil wells cease to flow—because there is no more water.

A Kalamazoo college baseball star taking subscriptions for a popular magazine at Muskegon punched a prospective customer in the jaw. Those who would have the boy barred for brutality, however, must remember that he did not sell him the magazine.

"Heavy dew helps check fires near Cheboygan," says a headline. What a relief to know that at last something vigorous was done about it.

"Anything for a change," as the fellow remarked when he kicked on the meals served to him at the Albion county poor farm, and was sent to the county jail.

Aroused by a burglar in her room at 2 o'clock in the morning, a Niles girl thought it was her mother, and it is true, of course, that mothers often are coming in as early as that.

A chorus director in Western Michigan tested a large audience to see how many knew all the verses of "America," and it proved there was not a single one. Some weren't even sure of the first line.

A good arguer is one who can prove that a man isn't a slave to fashion because he throws away his straw hat in early September, just when the weather becomes hot enough for him to need it.

A gang of boys suspected of "cooning" watermelons from a field near Munith were brought before the court and released with a warning. And with a melon, too, some thought, judging by the speed with which they made off to their secret gathering place.

Satan's Advantage.

"Conscience has a still small voice," said Uncle Eben, "but old Satan uses a megaphone."

Requires Much Annual Capital.

Public service corporations of the United States require new capital of $20,000,000,000 annually.

Venice Built on Seventy Islets.

About 60,000 is the estimated population of Venice, which is built on between 70 and 80 islets.

Is Supreme in Quality—Performance—Dependability

Read this letter sent in voluntarily—we have hundreds like it:

"I expect you have many testimonials of achievements for Red Crown gas, but I don't think you have reports of many cars making such a trip as we did, down through the Ozark Mountains — muddy roads—dry roads—paved roads—rocky roads—up and down roads and corkscrew roads—drives in torrential rains and on stinging cold nights and never in low gear but once when we passed a man stalled on a steep mountain grade in a car that was evidently not using Red Crown, as our engine always delivered the full power whenever called upon."

Red Crown is a Premium Gasoline, at a standard price. It is the best gasoline you can buy regardless of price. To pay less is to get less.

Buy Red Crown and

Save Money in the End

At the following Standard Oil Service Station:
State and Antrim

And the following Filling Stations and Garages:

Booth Fishers Co.
E. E. Cross, Petoskey Ave.
M. H. Hooker, Antrim St.
H. Fowler
E. O'Neil, Bridge St.
C. S. Dodge, Antrim St.
Charlevoix Co-op. Ass'n. Co.
Sam Hamilton & Son
N. Lefranier, Beaver Island
Sam Alexander, Ironton

Standard Oil Company, Charlevoix, Mich.
(Indiana)

4056

LEGAL NOTICES

Order for Publication

State of Michigan, the Probate Court for the county of Charlevoix.

At a session of said court, held at the probate office in the city of Charlevoix, in said county, on the 19th day of September, A. D. 1925.

Present: Hon. Servetus A. Correll, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Ruth S. Durrah, mentally incompetent.

Ruth A. Colden having filed in said court her final account as guardian of said estate and her petition praying for the allowance thereof;

It is ordered, that the 15th day of October, A. D. 1925, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, be and is hereby appointed for examining and allowing said account and hearing said petition;

It is further ordered, that public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix Courier, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Servetus A. Correll,
Judge of Probate.

A true copy. Adv. 38-t3

VIRGINIA RYALL BROWN, D. C.
PALMER CHIROPRACTOR
PHONES:
Office 347 Residence 39
Postoffice Building

BUSINESS CARDS

R. B. ARMSTRONG
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Special Attention to Diseases of Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat
Priest Bldg. Phone 255

DR. F. F. McMILLAN
Physician and Surgeon
Office above Postoffice
Phone 17
Charlevoix :: Michigan

A. L. FITCH
ATTORNEY AT LAW
Office in Court House
Phone 48
Charlevoix :: Michigan

D. T. McHUGH
General Contractor
Phone 214
CHARLEVOIX MICHIGAN

WM. J. BOGART
CONTRACTOR and BUILDER
No Job Too Large
No Job Too Small.
Phone 139 Charlevoix, Mich.

Ellsworth Section

Wm. Allgire was at Traverse City on business one day last week.

L. VanSkiver of Central Lake, was in town on business on Monday.

J. H. Elzinga and L. O. Isaman are at Detroit on business this week.

H. H. Fales and family of Traverse City, visited relatives here on Sunday.

Harry Parsons of Grand Rapids, is spending a few days at the home of his parents here.

Geo. Liberty landed a fourteen pound and ten ounce muskie while fishing last Sunday.

Geo. Klooster, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Skow and Tracey Boss are spending a few days at Detroit.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Routley spent Saturdny and Sunday as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Davey.

Station Agent Wm. Slough reports nearly seventy-five tickets sold for the P. M. excursion on Tuesday.

Township Highway Commissioner Essenberg has a gang of men at work building sidewalks in town this week.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Patterson attended a county meeting of rural letter carriers at Mancelona, on Saturday of last week.

Quite a number from here took advantage of the excursion rates of Tuesday and are visiting points in the southern part of the state.

Rev. C. A. Jacobs and Miss Mary Elmer are conducting the special meetings at the M. E. church. These meetings started last Sunday evening and will continue during the balance of the month. All are invited.

If your battery is run down or needs repairs, bring it to our battery shop. Work guaranteed. Brown Battery Shop.—Adv. 39-tf.

ATWOOD

Ernest Brown is attending school in Huntington, Ind.

—Master C. Klooster is in Detroit, selecting a "Lizzie."

A. Newland, who has been sick so long, is no better at this date.

Mrs. Lillie Blow is in the Charlevoix hospital for medical treatment.

A railroad crossing is dangerous only when made so by careless driving.

Rev. Chas. A. Jacobs of Charlotte, Mich., (evnngelist) occupied the M. E. pulpit on Sunday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Adam Ooms nnd Mr. and Mrs. Henry Deckker, all of Chicago, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Boss.

Five babies are born every minute in the United States and Henry Ford, at the same time, turns out a rattle for each one.

FOR SALE—Two fresh cows, one Jersey, three years old, 6-40 test three weeks after freshening. Frank Davey, Ellsworth.—39-t2pd

---

* * * * * * * * * *
* B. J. BEUKER *
* Physician and Surgeon *
* Office over Blue Store *
* Ellsworth, Michigan *
* Office Hours: 2-4 p. m., Phone 38 *
* * * * * * * * * *

Why can't the Indies of Atwood have an old fashioned Harvest Home Supper? Winter will soon be here and then—nothing doing.

Eber Joliffe, who has been in the employ of Mr. Edison, road contractor, about 65 miles south of Traverse City, returned home on Monday last. He goes to Flint this week.

A Willard Battery for $16.50. Fits Ford, Chevrolet, Overland, Maxwell, Star and others. Benj. Brown Battery Shop.—Adv. 39-tf.

MILES DISTRICT

Mr. E. A. Holben is very ill at the home of his sister Mrs. A. Miles.

Herbert Evans shipped on the W. J. Neff out of East Jordan Saturday for Erie, Penn.

Dett Evans and Fred Bancroft motored to Vanderbilt Saturday with a load of honey.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Strong of East Jordan spent Sunday with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Miles.

Contractors Montroy and Carson of East Jordan are building a fine sheep barn for George Nichols.

Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Miles and daughter Averll nnd son Ira also Mr. and Mrs. Art Gidley and son Dick of Ellsworth motored to Northport and spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bnumberger.

ANTRIM CITY

Mr. Baumback is bailing hay around Norwood now.

Jack Smith is going into the Clark neighborhorhood to fill silos.

Wilbur Robinson is harvesting Jack Smith's beets for him.

Jack Smith filled silo for Henry Klooster of Atwood Saturday.

Mr. Stott was a visitor at the Will Alward home of Norwood Sunday.

Mr. Baumbach and family were visitors at the Oscar Ward home at Ironton Sunday.

---

* * * * * * * * * * *
* PILGRIM HOLINESS *
* CHURCH *
* Phelps and Ellsworth *
* * * * * * * * * * *

Phelps

Sunday school, 10:00 a. m.
Preaching, 11:00 a. m.
Prayer meeting, Wednesday evening at 8:00 p. m.

Ellsworth

Sunday school, 1:15 p. m.
Preaching, 2:30 and 7:30 p. m.
Prayer meeting Thursday evening nt 8:00 p. m.

B. E. Manker, Pastor.

You will find high quality merchandise nt reasonable prices at the Charlevoix Hdw. Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

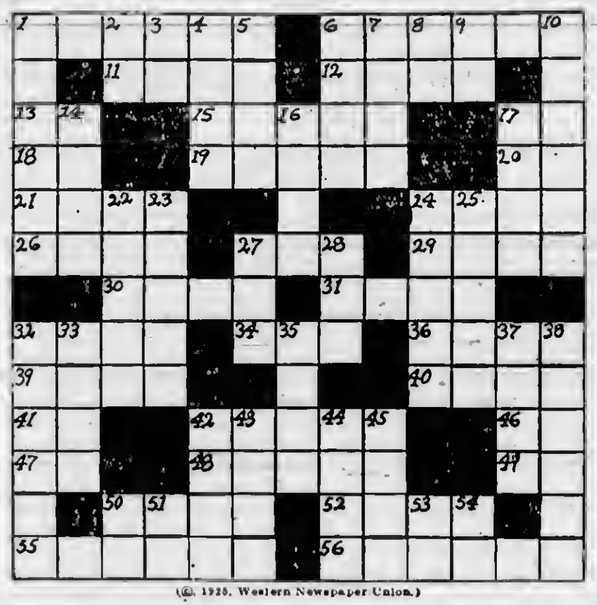
HOW'S THIS?

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE will do what we claim for it—rid your system of Catarrh or Deafness caused by Catarrh.

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE consists of an Ointment which Quickly Relieves the catarrhal inflammation, and the Internal Medicine, a Tonic, which acts through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces, thus assisting to restore normal conditions.

Sold by druggists for over 40 Years.
F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.

Cross-Word Puzzle No. 76



(©, 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

Horizontal.

1—Delicate gradation
6—To desire with eagerness
11—Vessel 12—Disorder
13—Plural (abbr.) 15—Pattern
17—Steamship (abbr.)
18—Southern state (abbr.)
19—Petty thief
20—Impersonal pronoun
21—The rainbow
24—Additional amount
26—Part connecting head to trunk
27—Appropriate 29—Always
30—To tramp 31—To govern
32—Small body of water
34—Pig pen
36—Makes a mistake
39—Nobleman 40—Toilet case
41—Otherwise 42—Challenged
46—Assimilated form meaning "not"
47—Addition to a letter (abbr.)
48—Fat 49—Point of compass
50—Wind instrument
52—Spike 55—Skilled worker
56—Attempt

Solution will appear in next issue.

Vertical.

1—Servietle 2—Jewish month
3—Negative
4—Part of auto valve mechanism (plural)
5—English school for boys
6—Extent 7—Sailinlike fabric
8—Italian river
9—Impersonal pronoun
10—Church festival
14—Ancient harp
16—Having depth 17—Father
22—Ethereal fluid that flowed through the veins of the gods (Greek myth.) 23—Ability
24—Brawl 25—Open to view
27—Bronze
28—To attempt 32—Folk
33—Rowing implements
35—To fatigue 37—To wreck
38—Noiseless 43—Opening
43—To encourage
44—Anglo-Saxon slave
45—Unable to hear
50—Musical work (abbr.)
51—Exist 53—Provided that
54—Behold!

ON A STRICTLY BUSINESS BASIS

(Continued from page one)

savings in these two divisions not only paid for the running of the department but also took in $149,504.35 over the total expenditures.

Built Garage

As another part of the program, the department constructed entirely from its savings and without a cent of appropriation from the state, the new state garage, departments so that there would be a system comparable to that used by every business concern no matter how small both in the matter of purchasing and accounting.

Fred B. Perry, who had been the Lansing correspondent of the Detroit News for ten dears and who was at the time employed in the board of state auditor's office, was selected hy the Governor as the man to assist him in devising a necessary system whereby the government could be placed on a sound business basis.

Michigan in Hole

The first thing thnt Fred and the Governor discovered was that Michigan was in the hole to the tune of about $6,000,000 with practically all departments unable to pay their bills and yearly overdrnwing their appropriations. And what was most unsystematic about the main part of which is 80 by 100 feet, and two lnrge warehouses for the storage of equipment and materials of the various state departments.

At the garage, which is managed by Jack Morley, 23 different makes of touring cars and trucks were taken care of by from 25 to as many as 75 mechanics. Fred Meyers is shop foreman and directs the work in the mnin repair floor where the cars and trucks are brought for service work.

Parts Stored and Listed

In connection with the main service floor, there is the crib where thousands of parts are stored and listed so that they can be procured at any time. Everything but cam shaft grinding is done in the repair of the vnrious machines.

It is here that the 5-ton Liberty U. S. A. trucks which the state reclaims from the government at the mere cost of the freight are brought for rehuilding. Here they are torn down and entirely rebuilt at a cost of about $1,000 as against $4,800 which they would cost if purchased outright. They are sold to the highway depnrtment for exactly the cost of the repnirs and placed nt work on the state roads.

Lockers for Clothing

Stored in the front wing of the gnrage in long rows of 10-ft. lockers are ladies' coats, men's suits, blankets, overcoats, flannel shirts, mittens and all sorts of clothing for use by the inmntes of state institutions. These goods are bought at bnrgain prices and in large lots nt the markets in New York and Chicago at an enormous saving to the state.

One job lot of ladies' coats now on hand were secured at about $7.50 each, while men's suits which cost but $12.50 fill many of the lockers. The last of a job lot of 10,000 five-pound blankets is about exhausted and ready to be replaced by others.

Save on Government Goods

Another huge saving to the state in the matter of clothing for its wards was effected when the stnte was able to buy from the national government, thousands of yards of khaki cloth which is used as the basic mnterinl for vnrious garments such as conts, suits and shirts nfter being dyed the desired color.

Stored in another part of this wing are hundreds of brooms, rakes and shovels, the latter of which are purchnsed in cnrlond lots. Tires, purchased early last spring, hnve saved the state thousands of dollars since tire prices are 45 per cent higher thaa they were when the stock was put in. The inventory on tires is low nt the present time, according to Morley, who says it is but $35,000.

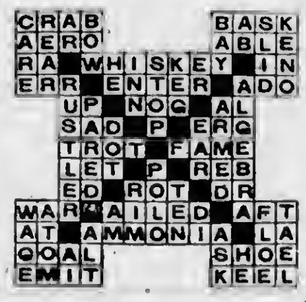
Salvage Parts

In the salvage department, where parts of cnrs which cannot be rebuilt are taken, more money, is saved by salvaging good parts which are used in the repair of other cars. At the privnte gas station in the rear of the garage, where gas and oil are sold to state employes, six cents a gallon on gasoline is the usual saving.

The two warehouses just recently completed upon the hill directly back of the garage are filled with supplies, materials and equipment for the highway department including government trucks which have been reclaimed and are waiting to be tnken out upon the roads, denatured alcohol bought in car lots for state cars, and 78 confiscnted booze cars which will be rehabilitated and turned over to the state department of public safety unless reclaimed by their owners.

And after the whole story is told it may be reviewed in a single phrase —state government on a business basis.

Cross-Word Puzzle No. 75



Barnum said there was one born every minute, but the success of get-rich-quick schemes inclines us to the belief that the birthrate is increasing.

The Greatest of All HUDSONS at Lowest Prices in History

$1195 for the COACH

$1495 for the Brougham — $1695 for the 7-Pass. Sedan
All Prices Freight and Tax Extra

Everywhere Hudson is known as the "World's Greatest Buy." That is not alone because of its selling price. The value is in performance, endurance and low operating cost. Such qualities are outstanding long after the price is forgotten.

Hudson prices are lowest because the world's largest production of Sixes—Hudson and Essex—has made possible economical methods of manufacture. Through increase of quality, greater sales result, and volume economies that permit lower prices. There you have the reason for Hudson's leadership in value, in price, in sales.

World's Greatest Value

Everyone Says It—Sales Prove It

H. R. FOWLER, Charlevoix

Auction Sales

If you are going to have a sale your biggest problem will be how to get the bidders, for bidders are what make a successful sale. If you do not have proper publicity it may mean

Hundreds of Dollars Lost

Your neighbors and friends are not the ones that make your sale a success, neither are they the ones you want to reach with your advertising for they know about your sale. It is the outside bidder who comes from 5, 10 or 20 miles and comes to bid, that you want. It is not at all unusual for one good bidder to raise the proceeds of a sale $50 to $100.

The solution to the problem is to use a paper which covers the field, a recognized auction sale medium with a county-wide circulation, which has published thousands of successful sales.

Use the

CHARLEVOIX COURIER

Charlevoix's Auction Sale Paper

W. E. Byers, Auctioneer

Twenty years experience in handling Auction Sales, both on farm and household goods.

Let Me Cry Your Sales

Phone me at Charlevoix or call the Charlevoix Courier, where all dates are made.

Cups for Lunch Furnished if Requested

LOCATED HERE DURING YOUTH

W. H. SHIELDS LONG IN GOVERNMENT SERVICE

Death Took Place in State Hospital September 29th After Years of Suffering

William H. Shields, a residence of Charlevoix for the past 25 years, died at the state Hospital, Traverse City, Tuesday evening of last week after an illness covering n period of years brought on by exposure when he attempted to cross the stretch of water from Squaw Island to the mainland in an open boat after the season of navigation had closed.

The remains were brought to his home here, 913 State street, Wednesday of last week. Funeral services were held Saturday from St. Mary's church, after which the body was taken to Harbor Springs for interment.

Mr. Shield spent a long term of years in the government service. A year at Isle de Galates, one and one-half at the head of Beaver Island, nine years at Squaw Island and 22 years in charge of the government supply station in this city.

The closing of his station at Squaw Island n number of years ago resulted in a tragedy which cost the lives of three , one his wife, his neice, Mrs. Lucy Davis, both from freezing, and that of his assistant, Owen McCauley, who from sufferings brought on by freezing and exposure, cast himself from the open boat and was drowned.

Mr. Shields wns the only survivor of the party four when picked up by the steamship Manhattan in the north channel of Squaw Island, in a freezing condition, after spending two dnys in an open boat on Lake Michignn. The bodies of the two women and Mr. Shields were taken to Manitowoc, Wisconsin. Mr. Shields was placed in a hospital where he remained until April, when he was discharged, almost a physical wreck, the amputation of one leg being necessary to save his life.

Deceased was a native of Scotland, born at Armagh, December 5, 1864. He cume to the United States when but a boy, locating near Kalamazoo. At the age of 18 he cnme to northern Michigan, residing at Cross Village, later entering the government service where he remained until about two years ngo, when he retired.

He was united in marriage to Miss Kate Maloney, who survives him, September 6, 1902. Other survivors are one son, Wm. H. Shields, Jr. of Kalamazoo, and a brother, James Shields of Victor, Montana. He was a member of two fraternal lodges, the Knights of Pythias and Odd Fellows.

Prices we are quoting on Stock Feed won't last long. Buy your fall needs now. Read display adv. on another page. Charlevoix Co-Ops.—Adv. 40t1.

Electric light bulbs that give service at Charlevoix Hardware Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

Friday and Saturday SPECIALS

Baking Powder of the right kind is the best to have in the house. Every housewife knows this. Here's a chance to save a little on your Baking Powder needs:

LARGE CAN OF ROYAL BAKING POWDER per can .....

45c

POUND CAN OF CALUMET BAKING POWDER per can .....

25c

There is still some of that good Chase & Sanborn's Coffee left that we are selling 2 1-2 pounds for 95c

MARTIN BLOCK

Opposite Post Office

Phone 12 or 142

AUCTION!

I will sell at Publie Auction at my farm on the southern border of the City of Petoskey, on M-13, on

On Saturday, Oct. 10th. Next sale starting at 10:30 a. m., the following articles:

2 Percheron Stallions, with register papers
1 Brood Mare
1 three year old Colt
1 yearling Colt
1 suckling Colt
1 heavy Team of Roans well matched, 6 years old, weighing 3,600
1 Pair Black Geldings, weight 3,800
1 Gray Mare eight years old, weight 1,500
1 Mare Colt 2 years old
2 New Sets Harness
2 Wagons and Hay Racks
1 Gas Engine
Hay Rake used one season
2 Separators, standard makes
3 Drags, standard styles
3 Oliver Plows, No. 42
1 Buick 7 passenger car, 1924 model
1 Fordson Tractor
2 Sets Double Harness
1 Buggy
1 Root Cutter

2 Land Rollers
1 Riding Plow
1 Disc Harrow
1 Spring-tooth Harrow
1 Spike-tooth Harrow
1 Riding Cultivator
1 Grain Drill
1 Johnson Binder
1 Mowing Machine
1 50-gallon Kettle
1 Pair Driving Sleighs
1 Heavy Logging Sleighs
1 Driving Cutter
3 Galloway Robes
1 Garden Seed Drill
1 Hay Car
20 Tons Hay
Set Hay Slings
1 Gas Tank
1 Kerosene Tank
Hay and Potato Forks
Shovel Plows
Walking Cultivators
Churns
1 Sow and 20 Shoates
Household Furniture many kinds
Many other articles

FREE LUNCH AT NOON

TERMS—All sums of $10.00 and under, eash; over $10.-00, six months' time at 7 per cent interest on approved bankable paper payable State Bank, Boyne Falls.

J. D. ANDEREWS, Proprietor

S. C. Nicholls, of Gaylord, Auctioneer.

LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICERS MEET

GUESTS OF PARM C. GILBERT AT ELK RAPIDS

Subjects Pertaining to Better Observance of Law Discussed. Ask for Co-operation

Law enforcement officers of the Thirteenth judiclal circuit, made up of Charlevoix, Antrim, Grand Traverse and Leelanau counties, were dinner guests last Friday evening, October 2, at Elk Rapids, of Circuit Judge Parm C. Gilbert, where mutual problems of c -operative law enforcement were discussed in detail.

Officers present included Sheriffs Novak of Charlevoix, Kittle of Antrim, Campbell of Grand Traverse and George Heimforth of Leelanau with their deputies and Prosecuting Attorneys Fitch of Charlevoix, Wellman of Antrim, Tweddle of Grand Traverse and Thomas of Leelanau. E. B. Judson of Benzie, though not in the circuit, was a guest.

In explaining the object of the gathering Judge Gilbert said: "With the advent of the automobile a county is too smull a unit for law enforcement efforts. With our paved roads a criminal may commit his crime in one county and in 10 minutes be across the county linc. With this in mind it is time we got together and adjusted ourselves to the new conditions. We have a circuit of four counties here, which must be drawn more closely together if we are to be of mutual aid, although the co-operation among officers of these counties always has been satisfactory."

It was decided to establish indentification bureaus in each of the counties of the circuit. Each person will be photographed and copies of his picture sent to other counties in the circuit. Speakers referred to the prevalence of forgery throughout tbe state and urged that business men exercise greater care when accepting checks from strangers.

The problem of juvenile delinquency was discussed and Judge Gilbert expressed the opinion the new state law giving circuit courts jurisdiction over children as young as 15 years may help to check crime among boys and girls.

It is expected the dinner conference will result in a greater measure of co-operation between officers of the four counties and will perhaps set an example for other circuits in the state.

Batteries recharged nnd repaired. Electrical work of all kinds. Bring your car troubles to us. Brown Battery Shop.—Adv. 39-tf.

BETTER ROADS IS AIM OF ASSOCIATION

County Boosters Meet at Court House Tuesday Evening

The second meeting of the Charlevoix County Concrete Road Association held this fall took place at the court house Tuesday evening. Representatives were present from East Jordan and Boyne City, with a scattering of local members.

Various road problems were discussed, all leading to the betterment of conditions in Charlevoix county. Committees appointed at a previous meeting asked for further time on reports they were to make.

One proposition that would greatly benefit Charlevoix county and with all probability could be put across, would be the extension of trunk line number 32 from Elmira through the eastern part of Antrim county to East Jordan, thence over the Pine Lake drive to Charlevoix. This extension would complete an east and west road from M-11 at Charlevoix across the state through Gaylord, Atlanta, Hillman to Alpena.

The association decided to make an effort along this line and by resolution will ask the support of the county board of supervisors in the undertaking. Other road problems were discussed and the meeting adjourned to meet again subject to the call of proper officials.

McCANN'S NEW BOAT NEARLY COMPLETED

Will Soon Be Placed in Commission Out of This Port

Ulysses McCann's new boat, the Sea-Hawk, has been taken from the ways in W. E. Parmelee's lumber yard and is now moored at Pearl's dock in Round lake. The finishing touches to place the boat in commission are now being completed and she will soon be in running order.

The new boat was designed and built by Ulysses McCann, the owner, who has used the best material obtninable and so designed the craft to stand the roughest weather and get the minximum amount of speed from the minimum amount of power. The Sea Hawk's frames are constructed of white oak and her planking of fir. She is 65 feet in length, 16 feet beam and will draw about 4 feet of water when not loaded. The motive power will be furnished by an 80 h. p. Winton marine engine and it is expected that she will make around 12 miles an hour.

The boat was originally built for the fruit run between Benton Harbor and Milwaukee and will be used for that purpose next fall. Mr. McCann states that he will do general freight hauling out of Charlevoix und ncurby ports this fall as soon as the boat has been put in commission. The job shows every evidence of good workmanship and Mr. McCann is to be congratulated on his accomplishment.

If your battery is run down or needs repnirs, bring it to our battery shop. Work guaranteed. Brown Battery Shop.—Adv. 39-tf.

NEW KITCHEN AND STOREROOM

Mont Withers Making Extensive Improvements on Property

Along with the general trend of property improvements taking place in the city this fall, Mont Withers has joined the rest and is making extensive alterations on his Bridge street holdings. Mr. Withers states that the gradual increase in his business has forced him to make new additions to allow for more storage space and a larger and more up-to-date kitchen.

The building in the rear of Mont's Cafe nnd dancc hall, formerly used for a garage and miscellaneous storage, has been moved twelve fect to the south and a concrete wall is being placed under it. This building will be remodeled inside and made into a regular store room. The kitchen in the rear of the main dining room is being torn down and rebuilt, completely, with a full cellar beneath in which a furnace to provide heat for all the buildings will be installed.

The kitchen is also to be enlarged and extended west to connect with the store room which is being remodeled. New equipment will be placed in the kitchen and when complete, Mr. Withers states that he will have one of the most up-to-date and sanitary kitchens in the state.

We are glad to see these new improvements taking place. It shows that business is good and property owners are keen to take advantage of this fact and make their places of business more attractive to the buying public.

A Willard Battery for $16.50. Fits Ford, Chevrolet, Overland, Maxwell, Star and others. Benj. Brown Battery Shop.—Adv. 39-tf.

P. M. EXCURSION ATTRACTS HUNDREDS

Well Patronized by Charlevoix and Surrounding Territory

Charlevoix and vicinity was well represented on the Pere Marquette's fall excursion which left Tuesdny morning for Detroit, Toledo, Chicago and other southern points. The local station took on the appearance of a busy summer day, the only thing missing being the noticeable lack of heat.

Station Agent Russell, reports that eighty-five tickets were sold from the Charlevoix station, the largest number, however, being for Detroit, Toledo nnd Chicago.

Eighty tickets were sold from the Petoskey station and the train, upon arriving at Charlevoix was made up of six coaches and haggage car. Mr. Russell reports that at Traverse City the special will pick up nine more conches and the train will proceed from there with a total of fifteen.

Although the one hundred mark was not reached in ticket sales as anticipated, officials of the P. M. were well pleased with their efforts to give patrons of the road a late fall excursion at low rates. It is predicted that similar excursions and special inducements will be continued next year.

---

* * * * * * * * * * * *
* CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH *
* Rev. B. G. Mattson, Pastor *
* * * * * * * * * * * *

Services for week beginning October 11th.

Sunday

Morning worship and sermon at 10:30 a. m.

Church school at noon.

Services at the Ironton church at 2:30 p. m.

Young people's meeting at 6 p. m.

Evening service at 7 p. m.

Note the change of hour of the evening services.

Thursday

Midweek service at 7 p. m.

Friday

Thank offering meeting of the Women's Missionary Society.

Charlevoix Hdw. Co.

Radiolas, Radiotrons, Radiola Loud Speakers and R. C. A. Accessories

Every Home wants-needs a Radio Set. Music—The Score of the Game just finished, Our Country's Geratest Speakers, Church Services all brought to your fireside by the "Miracle" Radio.

Our line is complete and we also make a specialty of

Radio Service

Tubes and Batteries tested. If your Set is sick consult us.

Charlevoix Hardware Company

302 Bridge St Phone 1.

WE KNOW a small boy
IN THIS town who is
ABOUT seven years old
AND the other night he
HAD a spell of the
TOOTH ache and we asked
HIM the next day how
HE LIKED the tooth ache
AND he said he liked it
FINE because it felt
SO GOOD when it quit
HURTING—and it just
STRIKES us that that
BOY has the right idea
AND if we didn't have ANY troubles to worry
US and if times were NEVER hard and if the SUN never got clouded OVER, how would we
BE ABLE to appreciate
THE good times and the SUNSHINE when we had
THEM? And if there
WAS no poor paint
ON THE market you
COULDN'T appreciate the WONDERFUL value and QUALITY in MONARCH
100% PURE PAINT that we
ARE selling.

Forest & Clarence

WOOD BROTHERS

Hardware & Electrical Supplies

BATTERIES

WE HAVE THAT

$16.50

13-plate, Rubber Case Genuine

WILLARD

FITS FORDS —— CHEVROLET —— OVERLAND MAXWELL —— STAR AND OTHERS

Other Willard Batteries for all kinds of cars. If your battery is down, bring it to our battery shop for re-charging or repairs. We guarantee our service.

Benj. Brown Auto Sales

Phone 60

CHARLEVOIX COURIER

VOLUME 32. NUMBER 41. EIGHT PAGES COURIER, CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 14, 1925 PRICE $2.00 PER YEAR

C. H. S. LOSES TO MANCELONA

FINAL SCORE IN SATURDAY'S GAME 14 TO NOTHING

Local Team Handicapped by Absence of Fullback Winder—Charlevoix Lacks Loyalty to Team

Charlevoix high school football team lost their first game of the season last Saturday afternoon on the south side grounds when Mancelona high school took the measure of the local boys and defeated them to the tune of 14 to 0. There was no glory lost to the home team, however, as they played a very good brand of footfall and lost against a better team.

The game opened with Charlevoix kicking to Mancelona. Mancelona carried the ball back to the center of the field on the kick-off, soon losing it on downs. Charlevoix failed to gain in the first part of the game and the ball went over. From here the opponents carried the ball over for their first touchdown. The opening counter was the result of a series of end runs and off tackle smashes which the locals seemed unable to stop. Mancelona carried tha ball to Charlevoix's ten ysrd line, putting over the score on a short and well executed forward pass. Hickman kicked goal and the quarter ended.

With the beginning of the second period the locals took on added pep and threatened to score repeatedly. Hard breaks and penalties from being off-side seemed to be lot of C. H. S. and they lacked the final punch to put the ball over for a touchdown. The half ended with no further scoring on either side. Mancelona kicked at the beginning of the second half and the battle surged back and forth, neither team having any advantage until the third quarter. Here the opponents opened with an old cross-buck play and soon had the locals fighting in their own territory, unable to soive the attack, Mancelona's second touchdown coming late in this period.

Charlevoix played a very good game on defense as they did last week against East Jordan. Hickman, Mancelona's right half, was the only man who gained ground against the locals, he accounting for both of their touchdowns. Mancelona has a promising star in this player, who could pass, punt, carry the ball for consistent gains, in fact, was the "whole team."

Charlevoix's offense showed improvement over last week but still needs much improvement to make a acoring team. The interferance is ragged and affords n runner little or no protection. This department of the game will stand some brushing up if the locals expect to win games this season. No fumbles marred the game Saturday and everyone present expressed their satisfaction in the performance of both teams. The team was somewhat handicapped by the absence of Winder, fullback, who was not in the line-up. McCann handled the team like a veteran at quarter and Clare Usher, a new man in the line, played a stellsr game nt guard.

Attendanee at the game was small and shows a lack of interest on the part of local people in what the school is accomplishing in the line of athletics. For this reason Charlevoix has booked only three home games this season. It takes money, and this means attendance at home games, to pay the expenses of visiting teams. The next home game is scheduled with Petoskey, October 31st. Let's turn out and give the football boys a boost.

PROWLERS ENTER FARM HOME NEAR WALLOON

Mr. Scow, who bought the Frank Lauria farm two miles south of Walloon Lake, has not lived there for three years, having another home in Chicago and employment. A few weeks ago Mrs. Scow and children motored up and found, in addition to window breakage by storm and shot, aomeone had stolen all their silverware, dishes, iamp, clock, phonograph records and cooking utensils ao they were foreed to tako refuge with a neighbor and shorten their stay. Mr. Seow la now here and finds sineo his wife left another window has been broken, a keg planted outside with a board leading insido so the miacreants couid go in and out at ease. Hla underwear and bedding, like old Grimes' cow, turning up missing. Yesterday a party of neighhors, Louie Laurie and two Larson boys, helped him board and nail up all the windows, the authoritiea have been notified and it is to be hoped those committing tbe depredation will be caught—Boyne Citizen.

LICENSE FUNDS APPORTIONED

Charlevoix Receives Close to $17,000 From Sale of Plates

Apportionment of six million dollars weight tax money to countles has been announced by Secretary of State Charles J. Deland.

The statute provides the state shall return to counties one-half of the money, not to exceed six million dollars, in proportion to the amount paid in by the residents for licenses.

Total receipts for nine months are $12,962,050. This gives counties about 46 percent of the money paid in by residents during the period.

Returns to counties follows:
Charlevoix—$16,902.12.
Cheboygan county—$11,626.93
Chippewa county—$21,735.32.
Emmet county—$19,201.12.
Mackinsc county—$7,766.52.
Mecosta county—$19,704.14.
Wexford county—$21,317.38.

GOLF COURSE BEING CHANGED

ONE HOLE ADDED AND ONE IS ELIMINATED

New Sprinkling System Installed to Cover Entire Links—Has Successful Year

The Cbicago Golf Club of Charlevoix has started a program of improvements on its local links that are destined to make the course more attractive and up-to-minute in every detail. A large force of men are now at work under the supervision of James Gaskin, care taker of the Club grounds and the work will be completed to such an extent as the weather will permit this fall and finished in the spring.

The work commenced with the second hole, to which modern traps are being added. The tee on hole number three has been changed, as bas the entire course of the hole, and now is located immediately north of green number two. Hole three will be shortened to a distanee of 168 yards, running east, where a clearing has been cut through the woods. Hole number four starts at the east side of the cleared space, circles back west and ends up on the same green as has formerly been used encircling a small patch of woods on the right which forms n natural hazard and adds to the beauty of the lay. Former hole number four is now number five and will remain unchanged as far as lay-out is concerned. Hole number five will be elminated and six will start on the tee which was formerly number five; cutting around the orchard on the right and ending up on the same green as before.

Mr. Gaskin states that a new modern sprinkling system is to be installed, two carloads of pipe having arrived Monday of this week for the work. A motor driven pump with a capacity of 40,000 gallons a day will pump water to the tank on the grounds. The new sprinkling system will be installed to cover greens, fairways and tees on the entire course.

New and modern trappings are being constructed over the entire course and players on the links next year will have to play in good form or be in hot water most of the time. The changes have added much to the scenic effect of the links and have helped greatly in eliminating the monotony of so many straight holes and sameness of the course.

Last year was a very successful season for the Chicago Golf Club. The links were taxed to capacity every day and in avery respect the year was good. These improvements will add grently to the beauty of the course and help hold up its reputation of being one of the best eighteen hole golf links in Michigan.

Certain-Teed Shingles are Quality Shingles. Sold from coast to coast. Sold by Louis S. Orlowski.—Adv. 41t1.

The ladies of the M. E. church will serve a chicken pia supper, Tuesday, October 20th, in tha church parlors. Price 50c.—Adv. 41-t1.

WANTS ROADS 100 PER CENT

COUNTY SHOULD COMPLETE PINE LAKE DRIVE

Pinoeer Summer Visitor Calls Attention to Condition of Part of 52 Miles Scenic Drive

John R. Wineman, of Chicago, for many years a Charlevoix summer visitor, has asked the Courier to cooperate with him in an endeavor to have what is known as the Pine Lake Drive completed. He says, and we agree with him, that everything Charlevoix advertises should be 100 per cent.

He calls attention to the stretch of road between White's corner east and south to Bird's corner, and that part of the road from Ironton, south to Eveline Orchards. This he terms as the inner road around the lake—the real scenic drive.

The following is a letter written by Mr. Wineman to the board of supervisors, now in session:

"Having a deep interest in Charlevoix the beautiful and it's surrounding townships because I consider Charlevoix my second home, spending on an average of three and one-half months there each summer, I feel that anything Charlevoix advertises should be carried out 100 per cent. They advertise the most beautiful drive around the lake. I respectfully desire to call your attention to the fnct that this is not correct as the inner road around the lake is not complete; also, that the road between Ironton and Eveline whicb is the most beautiful part of the drive is in a most precarious and dangerous condition at the present time. In the first place, there is only room for one machine, and secondly, there is quite a bit of mire on each side of the road so that it is utterly impossible for one automobile to pass another without great danger. If this road, which is the natural drive around the lake, were properly completed you can readily see how much better it would be for the surrounding townships because motorists touring would leave behind them in each and every township some money as you full well know that motorists touring spend money along the road.

"Michigan today is continually improving it's roads and I must say they are wonderful. Can I get you to eo-operate with me in insisting that this incompleted road around the lake be completed so that Charlevoix and it's surrounding townships will rank 100 per cent.

"Assuring you of my appreciation for your consideration in this request, anything that I can do at nny time for Charlevoix and it's townships, do not hestitate to eall on me."

City Improving Bad Corner

Work has been started and is now well under way under the supervision of the city council of widening the corner at the junction of Dixon nvenue and Meech street. The corner has been cut in nbout twenty feet and made on a gradual curve. This was a dangerous corner during the heavy summer traffic and the city fathers aro to be commended on their wise action. Bert Sharrow has the contract for the job.

The ladies of the M. E. church will serve a chicken pie supper, Tuesday, October 20th, in the church parlors. Priee 50c.—Adv. 41-t1.

MICHIGAN AWAKE TO POSSIBILITIES

RESTORATION OF FORESTS MEANS GREAT FUTURE

Prosperity Due to God-given Outing Charms and Investment in Trunklino Highways.

Under the caption "What is Comling in the Development of Michigan," Arthur Stace of the Grand Rapids Press, in a recent address covers the subject so clearly that we aro glad to reproduce the article as published in The Engineering News:

Michigan's threatened tragedy of dying towns and slowly starving rural cummunities ieft resourceless and hopeless by the utter destruction of the wealth-yielding forests and the subsequent failure of agriculture on more than 12,000,000 cut-over northern acres, is being turned into triumphant drama by the widespread recreational development that is sweeping over the two peninsulas.

Thanks to the state's own God-given outing charms, thanks to its chief product, the automobile, and thanks to its daring and enterprising investment of $100,000,000 in trunk line highway sytem, Michigan is beginning to grow a tourist crop richer in its annual yiold than the vanishing timber crop and almost as rich as the harvests dreamed of by the farmers who tried to follow the pineland paths laid bare by the lumbermen.

This recreational industry, still in the early stage of its possibilities, is hringing a new prosperity to add to Michigan's outstanding industrial and agriculture wealth. It is putting back on the tax rolls lands long bankrupt. It is establisbing added business enterprises.

But the most important return promised by the recreational awakening is the restoration of great forests on the twelve to fourteen million acres of idle cut-over land—one-third the area of the state—that now constitutes Michigan's greatest economical problem. Utilization of these lands for outing purposes will bridge over the gap between the establishment of the new forests and the time when they become productive of commercial timber. That gap has hitherto stood as a chasm in the path of popular enthusiasm for governmental reforestation.

The idle acres once grew magnificent timber that helped develop Michigan. They built towns, they drew in railroads, they established industries, they produced widely distributed wealth.

They were left blackened wastes by the logger's axe and recurrent brush fires. In the light soil pine areas repeated attempts at agricultural development failed. The settlers are abandoning the unproductive lands. So are the big land owners who were holding them on speculation. They are flowing back to the state for non-payment of taxes at the rate of 3,000 acres n year. This flow threatens to become a flood within a yenr or two, as more than 7,000,000 acres were reported to the auditor general as delinquent on last year's taxes.

Michigan now has more than 700,000 acres of theso lands, hnlf of which have been set aside as state forests. The United States Forest Service has aequired some 200,000

(Continued on Paga 7)

A Troubled Conscience

NEW BOAT HOUSE IS BEING BUILT

Marine Railway and Dock Included in Plans

Among the numerous building operations taking place on the lake front this year is a new boat house being constructed for E. F. Cooley of Lansing, Michigan. The new structure is being built on the old skating rink property on the south shore of Round lake, the land acquired from Roy Ranger.

A bont house 20x50 feet has been construeted and is now nearly completed. A marine railway will he built from the lake into the boat house to allow the owner to pull his boat up in the winter. Plans include n dock 12 feet long running north and south into the lake, where the boat will be kept in the summer, the boat being kept inside only during the winter. Roe Brothers of Harbor Springs are to do the pile driving work and the job will be finished and ready for use this fall.

M. Roy Brady has charge of the operations in the absence of Mr. Cooley. It is also stated that the owner will build a house fronting on Belvedere uvenue on his new holdings, but just when is not known at this time.

FARMERS! HERE'S AN OPPORTUNITY

CHARLEVOIX VEGETABLE AND GRAIN SHOW OCTOBER 30

Crank Up the Car and Get in On the Prizes and Bargains to Bo Offered

Saturday, October 31st, will be gala day in Charlevoix. Plans are now being worked upon and nearly completed for a vegetable and grain show, money-saving bargains to be offered by local merchants and business houses and a general get-together of country and city neighbors. Band music and entertainment throughout the day will be other features.

A list of prizes cannot be given at this time but participants in the show may rest assured that they will be sufficiently valuable to warrant making of all the displnys at your disposal. Prizes will be awarded on the following grains and vegetables: Best bushel of apples, 7 varieties, pears, grapes, potatoes, 2 varieties; sugar beets, tnble beets, mangles, onions, 2 varieties; carrots, cabbage; best peck of corn, wheat, rye oats, bnrley, buckwheat and btans. Prizes will also be given on the best display of pumpkins, squash, two varieties; nlso the best crock of butter. Awards may also be given nn displays of canned fruits and vegetables, nnnouncement of which will be made in this paper next week.

Fnrmers, here is your chance! Bring in everything you have in these lines and let's make this a show long to be remembered. The success of the enterprise lies entirely in the hands of the fnrmers of Charlevoix county. Charlevoix merchants will offer every inducement and bend every effort to make the show a success, and with your cooperation and willingness to help the venture is bound to be a winner. Exhibits are to be tnken to the vaeant building formerly occupied hy Fessenden's Drug Store, at the corner of Bridge street and Park avenue, where the show will be held and judging take place. Come enrly and stay late—you will never regret the time and effort spent.

The show will be given under the auspices of the Charlevoix Association of Commerce, co-operating with local merchants and the following committees have been appointed to handle the affairs: Manngement—Chas. See, chairmnn, Milton Block, Clarenee Wood; Advertising—A. J. Usher, F. E. Cartier, Benj. Brown; Finunce—Wm. Wallace, James Bogart, J. E. Redpath, Martin Block, M. A. Levinson. Any information regarding the show will be gladly given by Chas. E. See, chairman of the management committee.

Golf Course at Fisherman Paradise

A golf course is to be added to tha other nttractions at Fishermen's Paradise, next spring, according to announeemtn of H. D. Smith, owner and manager of the resort in Antrim county. Grounds will ba full 18 holes and will be along the east shore of Grass lake, close to the hotel.

WORK ADVANCING ON BRADY'S YARDS

LEASES CALL FOR OCCUPANCY THIS FALL

Job of Pile Drivers Complete—Building to be Rushed to Completion

Work is progressing rapidly on the new docks nnd buildings under construction for M. Roy Brady on his property recently acquired from the Charlevoix Fish Co. Work of the pile driving outfit was completed the first of the week and building will now be rushed to completion.

The plans include a boat house 36x44 feet on the west side of the property, in which will be housed boats belonging to John Keiler, Fred Lazarus, James Reise and Mr. Cohn, each having a five-year lease, which calls for occupancy this fall. Slips will be made 11x36 feet, with docks seperating each. Everything will be done to add to the convenience of occupants and modern equipment installed for handling the storage of the boats in the fall. Six slips with docks for landing on either side are to be built immediately east of the boat house. This includes four docks extending into the lake the same distance as the boat house itself. Excavation has been made for the marine railway, located on the east side of the property. Boats up to 65 feet can be taken care of on the new ways, which will be equiped with new, modern devices. Mr. Brady has remodeled the old ice house on the property into a fine work shop, which is to be fitted with up-to-thaminute equipment for handling boat repair work.

The rapid increase in Mr. Brady's repair and storage business and the lack of equipment compelled moving to sufficiently larger quarters to enable him to handle its volume. The new yards will be a model of perfection and all future increases in this line of business can easily be taken care of from now on.

Eaeh year more summer visiters are bringing boats to Charlevoix and the yacht traffic into the harbor in steadily increasing. Last season's sailing and motor boat races were the largest and most successful yet held. This condition is beneficinl to Charlevoix as a resort town and everything that can be done to give this class of travelers good plnces to land and make necessary repairs on their yachts should be encouraged

The improvements set forth will add greatly to the beauty of the shore line on the south side of the lake and will provide a place where all kinds of boat work can be quickly nnd thoroughly done. Gas filling stations and good docking facilities will attract yachts to the harbor nad with the present program carried out, Charlevoix can be assured of her share of plasure boat trnffic on the lakes. Beauty calls tourist, service and courteous treatment brings them baek again. Charlevoix gives both.

The ladies of the M. E. church will serve n chicken pie supper, Tuesday, October 20th, in the church parlors. Priee 50c.—Adv. 41-t1.

Certain-Teed Shingles are Quality Shingles. Sold from coast to coast. Sold by Louis S. Orlowski.—Adv. 41t1.

For all the news, read tbe Courier.

EAST JORDAN THE SCENE OF FREAK AUTOMOBILE MIX-UP

A mixture of rub alcohol, canned heat, sugar, water, Indinn and an ancient Ford touring, produced a freak nuto accident on our streets, Monday ufternoon. Two Indians had left a car parked just east of Main on Esterly St. next to tho drug storo. Evidentiy they hnd been imbibing too freely of the above fire-water, for when they again started tha auto they first rammed tho aedan belonging to Glenn Bulow; the Berserk car then swung to the opposite side of the street and rammed a coupe belonging to Dr. Dieken. One running board and tho fore part of the twu autos were somowhat damaged. The Lizzie was too far gone to sustain damage. It la understood tho Indians will take care of the cost of repairs on the smnshed autos.—East Jordan Herald.

Children's Colds

Are best treated externally. Check them overnight without "dosing" by rubbing Vicks over throat and chest at bedtime.

VICKS VAPORUB

CORRESPONDENCE

NORWOOD

Oliver McGuire of Flint, is visiting his parents for a few days.

Sam Routley and family attended church at Phelps last Sunday morning.

Mrs. Albert Hull and Mrs. Neil of Petoskey, are spending a few days at the Hull home this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dunn of Petoskey, visited Mr. and Mrs. Merril Richardson and family Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. William Supernaw of Charlevoix, visited at the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. I. L. Dice last Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Richardson, left last Wednesday for a pleasure trip. They will visit Traverse City, Saginaw and Flint.

Raymond Stafford supervisor of Norwood township is attending the board of supervisors meeting in Chrlevoix' this week.

The members of the Ladies Aid Society have made plans to serve sandwiches and coffee at the McGuire sale Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. William Cowan and Mrs. Henry Wagner of Charlevoix, visited at the home of their sister, Mrs. Nelson Empey of Norwood last Wednesday.

About forty friends and relatives of Irving Lord gathered at his home last Thursday evening and reminded him of his birthday. The evening was spent in dancing, after which a fine pot luck supper was served and all enjoyed a good time and wished Irving many more happy birthdays.

We nre selling a genuine 13-plate rubber case Willard Battery for $16.50. Benj. Brown Battery Shop. Adv. 39-tf.

CLARION

Mr. nnd Mrs. N. C. Griswold are visiting relntives in Traverse City.

The Ladies Aid Society met Thursday at the home of Mrs. A. Jubenville.

Mrs. Laura Young had the misfortune to frncture her wrist, on Friday.

John W. Colden is nttending the meeting of the board of supervisors, at Charlevoix.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Garringer of Walloon Lake, have gone to Indiana for a short time.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Webster have returned from a month's visit in London, Canada.

Miss Lnuretta Webster, of Flint, is visiting her grandpnrents, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Webster.

John C. Sornbury of Martin, Mich., is acting as relief agent for Mr. N. C. Griswold, who is having a vacation.

Mrs. Margnret McCracken of Pontiac, returned home Thursday, after spending two weeks visiting friends and relatives.

Mrs. G. Barnes gave a Hard Time party at the Gill school house on Saturday evening. A jolly time was reported by all.

Mr. nnd Mrs. James Hilbert of Traverse City, spent Sunday with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Palmer.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Buckley and daughter, Miss Lecureta, left Thursday for Pontiac, where they expect to locate for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Wheeler and two children, who have been visiting Mrs. Wheeler's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Colden, returned to their home in Deming, New Mexico, on Wednesday.

A pot luck dinner was had at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Brown, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Mizer and Mrs. Elizabeth Kay and daughters, the Misses Bessie and Ethel, who leave shortly for Florida.

You will find high quality merchandise at reasonable prices at the Charlevoix Hdw. Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

BARNARD

Bean threshing nnd silo filling about finished up.

Mrs. Albert Beattie is visiting her son, Clarence nnd fnmily this week.

The Ladies Aid nre meeting this week Wednesday with Mrs. William Shapton.

Mrs. J. P. Roen and two children, of Charlevoix, and Mrs. William Edmunds and three children of Grand Rapids, also Mr. and Mrs. George Block were callers at the Clarence Beattie home on Sunday.

George Dougherty, took his daughter, Clnra, to Traverse City on Saturday, where she had an operation on her nose by a specialist in that city. She remained with Mrs. Thos. Meggison until Tuesday. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Matchett nlso accopanied them.

Electric light bulbs that give service at Charlevoix Hardware Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS
By B. C. Mellencamp

Stump and stone demonstrations are to be held in county, October 22nd. nnd 23rd. are the dates. Are you interested in blowing out those pesky stumps that are forever in the way and cnusing more expense on your fnrm implements than the work they do? One farmer blew out a stump for 15 cents, and found 8 broken plow points. Wonder whnt his thoughts were? Or have you some big stones that nre alwnys a source of nnnoyance and are an expense in your field operntions? If you want to know how to put an end to these obstacles i an inexpensive mnnner plan to nttend one of the two demonstrations to be given by N. A. Messler, blasing specialist. The first will be held on the fnrm of Fred Larsen two miles south of East Jordan, at 2:00 o'clock fast time on Thursday afternoon, October 22nd. Both stumps and stones will be demonstrnted on. The second demonstration will be conducted nt the farm of Howard Stephens, one mile west of Horton's Bay at 9:00 fast time on Friday forenoon on October 23rd.

Dynnmite costs over 20 cents a pound while Pyrotol, the wnr snlvnge explosive, costs only 9 1-2 cents and it will be shown that it is just as effective.

We nre not advocating the clenring of more land but rather the clearing up of the land you are working, the better for farm efficiency and profit, in addition to showing the proper wny of hnndling nnd snfety precautions. Remember the dates and places nnd plan to nttend.

Statement of the Ownership

Mnnagement, circulation, etc., of the Charlevoix Courier, published weekly at Charlevoix, Michigan, required by the Act of August 24, 1912.

Editor—A. J. Usher, Charlevoix, Mich.

Managing Editor—A. J. Usher, Charlevoix, Mich.

Business Manager—A. J. Usher, Charlevoix, Mich.

Publisher—DuBois & Usher, Charlevoix, Mich.

Owners—A. J. Usher, Charlevox, Mich., Margaret S. DuBois, Charlevoix, Mich.

Known bondholders, mortgagees, and other security holders, holding 1 per cent or more of total amount of bonds, mortgages, or other securities—None.

(Signed) A. J. USHER, Business Manager.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 13th day of October, 1925.

Robert Bridge, Notary Public, Charlevoix County.

My commission expires January 4, 1929.

Since Mr. Bok has offered a second hundred thousand for a peace plan, we are about convined that he is for peace at any price.

NEW TIME TABLE FOR GREYHOUND LINE

Booklet Shows Observation Coaches on Scenic M-11

The Saftey Motor Coach Lines have just issued their new time table complete with rates, schedules, maps, views and general information on all divisions. There is a marked contrast between this profusely illustrated sixteen page booklet and the usual time table published by a "Bus Line."

Nine months ago the concern were operating only two lines and with the announcement of the publication of this new schedule, the Greyhounds take their position with the great Motor Coach Transportation Company's in America. Perhaps the most interesting part of this new time table is the enlarged Chicago schedule showing that frequent, clean, comfortable service is rendered daily from all cities along Lake Michigan to and from Chicago. The time table gives the leaving and arriving times at all points and shows that provisions are made for a thirty minute lunch period and two 5 minute rest periods at comfort stations on long runs.

A complete list of Greyhound stations is included, as well as a map of Michigan showing all of the lines and a detailed street map of Chicago showing the route of the Greyhound coaches through that city.

The time tablo contains sixteen 4x9 pages and is printed on Indiatone enamel paper. The front cover shows one of the palatial new Observation Coaches traveling along scenic M-11. Close-up views of the seating arrangement, and a number of scenes taken along the various routes, ornament the booklet, which also includes a panoramic picture of the fleet of observation coaches, Lafferty Advertising Service of Grand Rapids, directing all of the Greyhound publicity and advertising, designed and edited publication, which is now obtainnble at any Greyhound station.

SCOTTS REFUSED A DIVORCE DECREE

Presiding Judge Finds Neither Party Entitled to Freedom

Last week both Congressman Frank D. Scott of Alpenn nnd his wife, Edna James Scott, were denied a divorce in a decision handed down by Circuit Judge Frnnk D. Emerick, the presiding trinl judge.

Congressman Scott first sued for divorce, charging Mrs. Scott with cruelty nnd misconduct, naming three men. Mrs. Scott's cross bill charged her husband with drinking and gambling for high stakes. The case has been in the courts for nearly a year and was filled with sensational testimony which startled officials at Wnshington.

The decision of the judge was: "In this ense the plaintiff and the defendant ench sued for n decree of absolute divorce from the other upon the asserted grounds of extreme cruelty.

"It is my deliberate conclusion upon proofs taken and submitted, herewith, that neither party of said parties is entitled to such a decree. With the result thnt plaintiff's bill of complaint and the defendant's cross bill will be dismissed without costs.

"In the meantime until either or both of said parties perfects nn appeal and until the further order of this or the supreme court plaintiff shall pay defendant for her support nnd maintenance the sum of $150 per month on the first day of each calendar month."

METHODIST CHURCH

"The Mnn With Another Chance"—sermon next Sunday 10:30 a. m. This is the fourth in the October series of post-resurrection themes. Get acquainted with the pnstor and people by attending these services.

"Listen"—sermon next Sunday evening at 7:00. All young people nre especially invited. Special music. A big sing nnd a hnppy evening.

Epworth League meets for its devotional hour at 6:00. A good topic and a good lender and good music will be features of the hour.

Sundny school begins at 11:45 next Sundny and each succeeding Sunday. Let parents prompt the children to be present on time. This will nllow the school to close at 12:45. Be present when the orchestra begins to play.

Prayer and praise service each Thursday evening at 7:30. The pastor usually leads this service. This is everybody's service. Lots of singing, praying and testimony. A brief bible lesson, nlso, each midweek service.

DOES YOUR BACK ACHE?

Bad Backs Bring Suffering to Many Charlevoix Folks.

Is that dull, constnnt bnckache making you old and miserable? Does your back throb and ache until it seems you just can't keep going? Do you suffer headnches, dizzy spells and urinnry disorders; feel wenk, tired and worn-out? Then look to your kidneys. Delay may menn serious kidney sickness! Use Donn's Pills—n stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. Donn's are recommended by Chnrlevoix folks.

Mrs. R. B. Stafford, 103 Green Ave., Chnrlevoix, says: "I had a dull ache through the small of my back and when I stooped to pick up anything, sharp cutting pains darted ncross my kidneys. Dizzy spells came over me frequently when little black specks came before my eyes, blurring my sight. My kidneys netted irregularly, too. Donn's Pills, from the Central Drug Store, rid me of the trouble."

Price 60c, nt all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Pills—the same that Mrs. Stafford had. Foster-Miller Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Choice Apples for Sale

Apples for sale at the Geo. Meggison orchard. Get your winter's supply. Cider apples 10c per bushel, winter apples 25c to 50c per bushel. Pick them yourself. Phone 7010-f5, Charlevoix Rt. 2.—Adv. 39-tf.

The fellow who opposes a public improvement is often among the first to compliment it when he finds that it is popular.

EXCEPTIONAL RIDING COMFORT

The riding comfort of a motor car is not dependent upon its length, weight or cost, any more than the comfort of a home depends upon its size.

If the seats are deep enough and the proper distance from the floor; if the seat backs are correctly pitched for relaxation; if the upholstery is sufficiently stuffed and there is plenty of leg room; above all, if the springs are rightly designed and of proper length, you will have exceptional riding comfort. Otherwise, you will not.

Dodge Brothers, with characteristic thoroughness, studied and experimented with these details for years. Their findings were ultimately incorporated in the design of Dodge Brothers Motor Car—without question now a vehicle that ranks with the first in this vitally important feature.

BENJ. BROWN

Charlevoix, Michigan

Hautin Clothes

have won a National reputation by giving unusual values.

Suits $20 $22.50 25~

Extra pants to match from $5.00 to $6.50

Hautin's Best: Strictly hand-tailored $35.00 two pants

F. E. CARTIER, Tailor and Cleaner

PHONE 248

Cheering Up the Boy

There's nothing quite so chcering to the boy—or the girl—away from home as the voices of Dad and Mother. No written word can take the place of the voices of the loved ones back home.

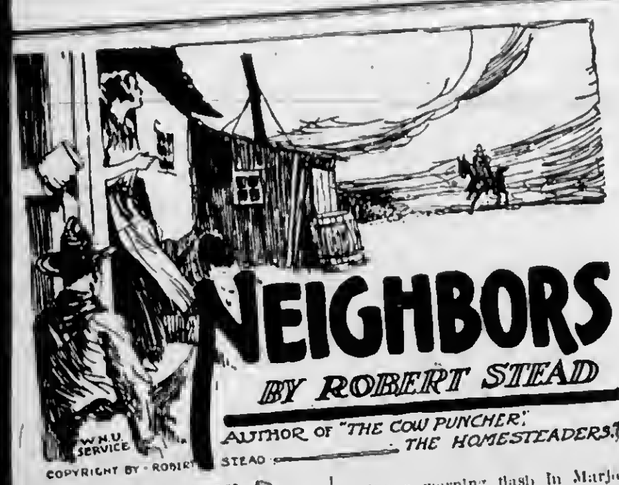
Use Long Distance Its Cost is Low

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE CO.

RUB-NO-MORE

CLEANS MILK BOTTLES

Let The COURIER Sell IT for YOU



NEIGHBORS

BY ROBERT STEAD

AUTHOR OF "THE COW PUNCHER," "THE HOMESTEADERS," ETC.

W.N.U. SERVICE

COPYRIGHT BY ROBERT STEAD

CHAPTER VI

Spoof was as good as his word. The following Sunday we saw his ox team as a slowly-growing speck on section Eleven, and a mile away we heard remarks to the "bally bullocks" which, presumably, were intended to be confidential.

"I just brought the bullocks for exercise," he explained, when he drew up before our shack. "I could have walked much easier, and much quicker, but they keep my arms and voice in form."

The girls were waiting in the shade at the eastern side of the shack; in their Sunday dresses of flimsy stuff appropriate to the hot weather they looked very sweet and charming.

"Ah, here are the ladies," said Spoof, and in his manner there was a touch of gallantry that in some way seemed foreign to either Jack or me. "Real prairie roses, and no imitation," as he took their hands in his. "It's jolly decent to ask a stranger over. All this out-of-doors; dawns, sunsets, sky, distance—all very fine, but it isn't good to be too much alone with it. Rather overwhelms one, don't you think?"

"I have felt that," said Jean, while Marjorie was fumbling for words. "It's too grand; it oppresses one. It's—it's all soul; no body."

"That's it—that's it!" Spoof agreed. "All soul—no body.—I shall write that to the governor. The governor, dear old chap, thinks this country is rather a bit off the map. I have promised to shoot him a polar bear for Christmas, and he's quite looking forward to it. He writes to know if I find the native labor satisfactory, and can my man mix a decent whisky and soda. I must set his mind at rest. I let him think I run quite an establishment, you understand; he sends a check now and again, which, of course, bears a relationship to the position I am supposed to occupy in local society."

"Doesn't your conscience trouble you?" Marjorie queried, the conversation having swung into her orbit.

"Not at all. I am doing the governor a kindness. He spends rather too much money on whisky and soda—particularly the former—so I am merely getting him interested in another kind of extravagance. A Younger Son is a very successful form of extravagance, don't you think? What is it Kipling says—'By the bitter road the Younger Son must tread,' or something like that? So why shouldn't the governor sweeten the bitter road a little, and drink less whisky to his soda?"

While we were busy thinking of some appropriate remark Spoof remembered his bundle of papers.

"I ventured to bring these over," he said, tendering them to Jean. "Just some old copies of the Illustrated London News and the Graphic. There are some sketches by an artist showing his conception of homestead life. I rather suspect the governor has let him read my letters."

Presently the conversation turned to agricultural topics, and we were more at ease.

"My plowing," Spoof explained, "has gone better since I discarded my compass. The bullocks never took kindly to the compass. No doubt it was a foolish notion of mine that a furrow should run either east and west or north and south, seeing that the whole farm has to be plowed anyway. I now let them veer and tack as they please, and we are making considerable headway."

"Any crop in?"

"Not this year. A chap in Regina advised me to plant a sack of rolled oats and raise my own porridge, but, thank Heaven, I'm not Scotch. No reflection on the Scotch," he added hurriedly, noting a warning flash in Marjorie's eyes. "They are a very wonderful people. They eat oatmeal, and thrive on it. A very wonderful people. Oh, I say! Can't we have some tea? Beastly dry business, homesteading; no afternoon tea. I must speak to my man about that. He's the same man as mixes my whisky and sodas, according to the governor's idea of it," Spoof explained.

The girls went inside, and in a short while brought out tea and sandwiches.

"Do you know," said Spoof, when the girls had cleared up the tea things and were out of hearing, "the thing of which I stand most in need at the present moment—that thing which is so essentially English, and from which I have been divorced for more days than I care to number—that thing for which I would gladly give half of my kingdom, meaning the northwest quarter of section Two? No? Observe the blushes beneath my sunburned cuticle as I admit that for weeks I have not had a bath. For weeks, literally. If my poor governor could know that, not even the hide of a polar bear would reconcile him to leaving me to live the life of a savage."

"We can soon fix that—I mean, we can furnish the wherewithal," said I, "and I will expect the deed of eighty acres in return." So we led Spoof down to the pond.

"My word, my word!" said Spoof. "Why didn't Jake tell me about this? I will have that lund-guide's gizzard for this omission! My word, if only I had a bathing suit! I say, do you think there would be any great danger—any danger at all, that is—of an interruption?"

"Not a bit. We have that all organized," and I showed him a red handkerchief tied to a stick. "When the pond is in use we fly this banner on the bank of the gully, and we're as safe as Sunday. The girls usually have their plunge in the middle of the afternoon, for that matter, and leave us undivided possession in the evening."

Spoof was already half undressed. "My word, and do the young ladies swim?"

"Jean is the best swimmer I ever knew," I confessed, modestly. "We lived beside a river at home, and she had a way of bagging all the prizes at our swimming races."

"She bagged bigger game than that," Jack put in. "She stored up a lot of trouble for herself and the rest of us by pulling our worthy Frank out of the millpond one day, after the bubbles had begun to come." So then I had to tell Spoof about that incident. But I avoided reference to the pledge that had followed it.

When we had had our swim and dried ourselves on the sand we went back up to the house. The shadows were now falling, long and narrow, to the eastward, and the prairie lay hushed and silent in that deep and peaceful calm which marks the summer evening an hour or two before sundown.

After supper Spoof sat and chatted until it was time to light the lamp. Jean set it on the table, and as its yellow glow fell across his face I realized for the first time that Spoof was not a boy, as were Jack and I. There were lines in the cheeks and about the eyes which, magnified by the shadows under the lamplight, bore evidence that Spoof had known more of this world's cares than was hinted by his usual light-hearted conversation.

Presently he was talking of England; easing, perhaps, the homesickness in his heart by calling up scenes of leafy lanes and misty sun-shot landscapes sinking deeply into his life. He had tales of London as well; tales of art treasures and music and theaters all alight with life and beauty; tales of gravestones marking the great of a nation with a history reaching back into the early obscurity of western civilization. Something about the pride he showed in the great deeds of the past seemed to strike us strangely—we of a country whose history was still so much in the future and whose greatest deeds were still to be done.

"Do you sing, Mr. Spoof?" Marjorie asked.

"Only at great distances from civilization—my bullocks could say a word or two about my musical voice if they were so disposed. But surely you, Miss Hall—"

"Jean sings and plays, if we had anything to play on," Marjorie declared, "But we haven't added a piano yet to our equipment. I suppose we shall have to buy a binder and horses and perhaps a thrashing mill before we have any money for musical instruments."

"And a house," I added. "I'd like to see you keep a piano in tuna in a cage like this."

"You should have a banjo," said Spoof. "By Jove, just the thing! I've a banjo tucked away somewhere in my belongings. Something I forgot to pawn at Regina. I'll bring it over and give you lessons, if you'll let me."

"I should be delighted," said Jean, and her voice was quite unnecessarily low and sweet.

There was a late twilight glow in the northern sky and the smell of dew on the prairie grass filled the air when Spoof decided it was time to go home. We helped him hitch the "bally bullocks" to the wagon and watched him disappear into the darkness. Long after he was lost to sight the rumble of his wagon and the voice of his exhortation could be heard wafting up out of the distance.

"A fine chap," said Jack, as we parted for the night. "I am glad we are to have him for a neighbor."

"Yes," said I. But my voice had no ring of enthusiasm.

CHAPTER VII

Affairs began to move with some rapidity in our little settlement. Until now we had had the world, as far as the eye could carry, to ourselves, but Spoof proved only the advance guard of a stream of neighbors which, from its source in a dozen different springs of humanity, was to pour in upon us during the next few months. Wednesday night we came back from Spoof's, as we had a little shyness about being overtaken in our good works, and the next morning, while I was gulping great draughts of ozone in front of the shack before breakfast, Marjorie called over my shoulder:

"What's that, away to the east, Frank?"

Sure enough, there was a little white pyramid outlined against the horizon; another tent pitched against front trenches of civilization.

"Neighbors, Marjorie; neighbors!" I said. "We're getting to be quite a community. Do you ever think of the day when all this wilderness of prairie will be plowed, every foot of it; all hearing something for the world's needs, with prosperous farmhouses at every corner, schools, churches—"

"I smell the porridge!" Marjorie exclaimed, rushing into the shack. She had a way of cutting off my rhapsodies like that.

Jack had seen the tent, too, and he and Jean came over at noon to discuss it. We decided to knock off work early that evening and all drive over to make the acquaintance of the newcomers.

We found that the tent was pitched on Eighteen, in the next township to the east. As we came up we were greeted by a fine collie dog, who seemed to be suffering from the conflicting emotions of his natural good humor and a sense that we had no business on Eighteen. His rush upon us with great barking and show of ferocity ended in much amiable tail-wagging. Evidently we measured up to his requirements, which we took to be no mean compliment.

A team of ponies were tethered on the prairie not far away, and a democrat stood beside the tent, with some of its burden still to be unloaded. A woman of slender build and rather striking beauty stood at the door. There was surprise, and, as I thought, a suggestion of fear in her eyes. More remarkable was the sudden and unmistakable relief which sprang into her expression when she had seen us clearly.

A Woman of Slender Build and Rather Striking Beauty Stood at the Door.

I am not a detective, even of the amateur kind, but I found myself instantly gripped by a conclusion. "The woman is afraid," I said to myself, "and yet she is no coward, she has no fear of strangers, but she is afraid of someone—afraid of someone she knows. She was relieved when she saw we were strangers." The thought was one which was to recur to me from many angles during the next few months.

She seemed to hesitate about greeting us, and Jean, always the quick-witted one of our quartette, was the first to break a rather stupid silence. She sprang lightly from the wagon and went forward with arms outstretched.

"We are your neighbors, from Fourteen and Twenty-two," she explained. "We saw your tent, and thought we would welcome you to prairieland."

"That is good of you," said a well-modulated English voice, but some way the voice seemed to break just there, and the lips of the newcomer went all a-tremble. The next we knew she and Jean had their arms about each other. . . .

"Oh, how horribly stupid of me!" the stranger exclaimed, in a moment or two, disengaging herself and dabbing her eyes with a little lump of handkerchief. "One gets a bit—a bit lonely, in spite of everything. You will think I am rather a bad pioneer. My name is Mrs. Alton, and I'm so glad you came, Miss—Miss—"

Jean introduced herself and the others of our party, and then we clambered down out of the wagon.

"Gerald and I have been very much alone," Mrs. Alton explained. "Gerald doesn't seem to mind it a bit—rather glories in it, I think. Already he has made some great explorations, but always under Sandy's watchful eye. Sandy is a great comfort. Aren't you, sir?"

She turned to the dog, who sedately held up one paw in acknowledgment of her remark.

"Gerald, I should have told you, has just turned three. I am a widow," Mrs. Alton rattled on, as though not wishing to stress the point—"and Gerald and I have our way to make in the world. He is tired now, and asleep after a great day's roaming, but I shall wake him before you go."

"Oh, please don't!" Jean entreated. "Let us see him as he sleeps," and without waiting for an invitation she gently made her way into the little tent.

"Don't you think me clever?" Mrs. Alton asked, when we had at last discovered it.

It consisted of a trunk, with the lid turned back, and about half the contents removed. In this she had laid a little mattress, and on the mattress slept a beautiful boy, his face still ruddy from his wrestle with the prairie winds; his lips cherry red and slightly parted; his little arms thrown jauntily above his head. Jean leaned and touched the breathing lips with hers, and so did Marjorie, and a little later I saw tears on the cheeks of both. It was then I remembered that those girls had not seen a child since we left Regina in the spring, and the mothering instinct in them, pent up through all those lonely months, now burst forth in sweet silent tears. I began to realize that Gerald Alton was to be one of the important members of the community.

"Isn't he lovely—lovely?" Jean was murmuring as though unable to tear herself from his side. "Mrs. Alton, I am sure you have placed us all under a debt of gratitude. This community simply had to have a baby."

After that, conversation came easier, and we found ourselves talking about farm life, and the problems of the homesteader. Mrs. Alton drank in every word with avidity; she was eager for information on the most casual affairs.

"I am so frightfully stupid!" she exclaimed. "You see, I know nothing about farming, and I suppose it was a very wild notion that I should take a homestead. I did it on Gerald's account. I shall manage some way, and in three years—by the time he must start to school—the farm will be mine. Then I shall sell it or mortgage it to give him an education."

"By that time we may have a school next door," I suggested. "People will flow in here in crowds, once they make a start. Have you plans for carrying on the work of the farm?"

"I have two men following with horses to build a house; just a very tiny house, in keeping with my purse. Then I hope to hire a neighbor to do some plowing, and I will plant some corn next spring. I shall raise chickens, and have a great garden—I know all about gardening," she added naively, with a sudden return of confidence. "You should have seen my English roses!"

We had not the heart to tell her that there lay a great gulf between English roses and a Canadian cabbage patch, and she rattled on, evidently glad of someone to watch with sympathy the mirage castles which she was building on her horizon.

"For myself, I am quite penniless," she confessed, thrusting her upturned palms toward us with a little impulsive gesture. "Gerald is my resource, as well as my responsibility. He has a hundred pounds a year. We shall invest it in this farm. I am sure we are going to prosper wonderfully.

"All the world seems to circle around Gerald," she added, as though it were an afterthought.

She made Jean and Marie sit down on a box on which she had spread a steamer rug. Jack and I stood at the door of the tent, where the setting sun bronzed our wind-tanned faces a ruddy red.

"How healthy you men are!" she exclaimed, clasping her fingers in a nervous grip. "If only Gerald will grow up like that!"

"We will come over when the men bring the lumber, and help them build your house," Jack volunteered.

"The lumber—what lumber? Oh, the boards! Oh, how good of you!" The regard in which she held us appeared to rise another degree.

"And are you carpenters, as well as farmers?" she asked. "How wonderfully clever you men are, here. I had to go to a doctor in Regina—Gerald had a rush, or something—it was in the evening and I found him at his house, building a chicken-coop. Jolly wonderful, isn't it?"

As the shadow of the democrat filled the tent door we spoke of leaving.

"Not until you have had tea," she insisted. "We shall have tea with biscuits and jam. I bought an oil stove in Regina—a most wonderful machine. We shall have it ready in a moment."

While she started her oil stove she asked, casually enough, "Am I the only newcomer in all the big prairie which you have been having to yourselves?"

"No; you are the second," I answered.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

WRIGLEY'S

AFTER EVERY MEAL

affords benefit as well as pleasure.

Healthful exercise for the teeth and a spur to digestion. A long-lasting refreshment, soothing to nerves and stomach.

The Great American Sweetmeat, untouched by hands, full of flavor.

SEALED TIGHT KEPT RIGHT

RIDE THE GREYHOUNDS

Now Ready

Elaborate New 16-Page

GREYHOUND TIME TABLES

GREYHOUNDS of THE HIGHWAY ALL MOTOR COACH LINES

Includes Street Map of Chicago Showing Greyhound Route

—Profusely Illustrated
—Schedules, Rates, Maps, Views, etc. Complete information on all lines.

Get Yours at the Greyhound Station:
Charlevoix Hotel

RED CROWN GASOLINE

Quality Counts

Red Crown—A Premium Gasoline at a standard price—glides up the grade of popular favor with great ease.

Thousands of motorists have recognized the force of the "price per mile" argument and switched over to Red Crown.

The price per gallon contention is weak-kneed—has no bearing.

The story is told better by what is built in the gasoline.

Of what significance is the question of a saving of a few cents on an investment of hundreds of dollars?

If you pay less for your gasoline than the price of Red Crown, you are getting less—and that is false economy raised to the nth power, no matter how it is disguised.

At the following Standard Oil Service Station:

State and Antrim

And the following Filling Stations and Garages:

Booth Fishers Co.
E. E. Cross, Petoskey Ave.
M. B. Hooker, Antrim St.
H. Fowler
E. O'Neil, Bridge St.
C. S. Dodge, Antrim St.
Charlevoix Co-op. Ass'n. Co.
Sam Hamilton & Son
N. Lefrancier, Beaver Island
Sam Alexander, Ironton

RED CROWN GASOLINE

Standard Oil Company, Charlevoix, Mich.
(Indiana)

4061

Are You a Courier subscriber? If not, Why not

Over $400,000,000 Hoarded

IT has been estimated that more than $400,000,000 has been taken out of circulation by folks who, for some reason or other, prefer to keep their cash in safe deposit boxes, old socks, under mattresses or in some other place. 3 per cent the average interest paid by banks—on $400,000,000 amounts to $12,000.000 a year in interest lost by these folks who will not use the banks. If you have been keeping your money out of circulation, stop it now. Get it into the bank, where it will do you and someone else good.

Charlevoix State Savings Bank

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

W. S. Richardson, President.
A. D. Crimmins, Vice President.
Archie Livingston, Cashier.
G. W. Richardson, Asst. Cashier.

The CHARLEVOIX COURIER
issued every Wednesday at
CHARLEVOIX . . MICHIGAN

DuBois & Usher, Publishers
A. J. Usher, Editor and Business Mgr.
Caurier Building Van Pelt Place

Entered at the Post Office in Charlevoix, Mich., as second class matter.

Member Michigan Press Ass'n.

Advertising Rates.

For advertising rates apply for schedule.

Notices of church or lodge socials and entertainments, where admission is charged, regular rates.

Obituary poetry, regular rates.

Card af Thanks, 25 cents.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

One copy, one year.....$2.00
One copy, six months.....$1.00
One copy, three months..... .60

Rev. Mny, a Breckenridge minister speaking at a Klan meeting near St. Johns is quoted in the St. Johns Republican-News as assailing all members of the order who "complained about other folks'" religion when they didn't have any themselves. It is time for a good many of us tn clean our own houses.

We extend our compliments to this gent. It harmonizes with our own theory, that a man with no religion is hardly in position to criticize the man with more religion than the critic. This much for the Catholics—they support their church. You can finish this comment just as well as we can and both our opinions would be the same and the truth, which substantially is this—that the average protestant is not nearly as interested in his church as he is in the gas consumption of his automobile.

FRESHENING BREEZES

The most that can be said in favor of a hotel bath tub, you can leave it for the chamber maid to clean.

What has become of the old fashioned bum who ust to get bounced out of the town saloon a couple times a day?

The old-fashioned citizen who told of a late lodge session has been succeeded by the modern gent that gravely informs friend wife that he had a little tire trouble on the way to the old homestead.

The Ohio farmer whose home was in the path af the Shenandoah must have been as surprised as Dawes was the day he took the taxicab back to the senate chamber.

Many a good old farmer of our boyhood days who thot it the height of extravagance to get a 25-cent dinner at the town hotel when he brot in a load of grain, now has a son who thinks a little flier in the wheat pit is about the most useful thing in modern agriculture.

One thing that can be said in favor of prohibition; it got rid of the seashore serpents.

Now that the church has started to investigate prohibition mebbe we can locate that warehouse of bonded liquor the state police lost in Detroit that time.

The broader a man's viewpoint the less points he generally has to view.

Has any wise legislator thot to propose a tax on those roadside stores the farmers have nowadays?

A lot of us who are inclined to refer to the hick towns should remember they are the only spots left where a man can get a good meal and a perfectly clean toothpick for 35 cents.

Strange how the vacation season ends just in time to allow dad to settle back in the harness and begin paying those college bills.

Now that Henry Ford has started to take advertising for his weekly newspaper we wonder if any of the boys will ask him to take part of it in trade?

Hotels and private homes are so crowded down in some sections of Florida that late comers are gladly paying as high as two dollars for the privilege of slumbering in a porch chair all night. Probably the same fellows who ust to kick about the big grocery bills back home.

It's a pretty good idea to so live that you won't have to ask the editor to keep it out of the paper.

The million ar more motorists who toured the state this summer left many times that number of dollar certificates. One crop that should always be well cultivated.

And Now in Closing

Industry, combined with thrift and an average amount of intelligence, will bring you old age security, peace and happiness. But it is a hard lesson to learn for those who ure continually preaching that the day of opportunity has passed in this country.

Electric light bulbs that give service at Charlevoix Hardware Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

Notice W. R. C.

Notice to all members of the Baxter Post W. R. C. No. 173. The 12th annual convention of the W. R. C. will be held at Cheboygan, October 22nd and 23rd. Also, the members of the Walter Clifford W. R. C. of Boyne City extend a cordial invitation to the G. A. R. soldiers and W. R. C. members of Charlevoix to meet with them on Saturday, October 31st. Those wishing to attend please notify Mrs. George Kelderhouse, phone 458.

Now Located in New Hall

The local chapter of the Loyal Order of Moose are now nicely located in their new hall in the Paddock building. The hall has been entirely redecorated, and new furniture and fixtures have been installed. Two nicely furnished and equipped club rooms are now at tha disposal of members, and plans being made for a busy winter.

Luck isn't everything, but it's an item to be considered when added to hard work.

IMPROVEMENTS AT THE CHICAGO CLUB

Extensive Changes Will Furnish Work Until Winter Sets In

Work has been started on a number of improvements to be made on the Chicago Club house this fall. Cnrpenters are now busy and work is being rushed to completion before winter sets in.

A new wall is to be laid under the entire club house, the work on the front of the structure being well under way. James Gaskin, caretaker of the grounds, also states that several coltages will be remodeled and some nearly rebuilt between now and next summer. Altogether, including the changes being made on the golf course, the Chicago Club will expend between $75,000 and $100,000 dollars on its Charlevoix property for the season of 1926.

Citizens, the old town is "looking up." Why go to Florida in the winter time? With all the improvements taking place in Charlevoix this fall there is no reason to look elsewhere for work. Get the idea out of your head, Charlevoix is a good place to live the year round. Lay up the ol' hammer and let's get behind the cart and push!

ANNOUNCE LYCEUM COURSE PROGRAM

Local Committee in Charge Have Made Splendid Selection

The committee in charge of securing attractions for the local Lyceum course, announces that it has been fortunate in contracting a group of attractions that rank among the very best in the lyceum field. With such an especially strong course there is no question but that the sale of season tickets will be unusually large.

A lyceum course is essentially a community-building influence. It offers good, clean entertainment features and lectures which are informative and inspirational. So universally recognized is the worth of such courses that they are found in almost every community throughout the United States and Canada.

The fact that the attractions on the local course have all been secured from the Redpath Bureau, the founder of the modern American Lyceum, is in itself a guarantee of their excellence.

The following attractions will appear here this season:

November 2, Miss Nellie Walker.
November 26, E. T. Bailey.
December 3, Greenfield Orchestra.
February 19, Edna Means.
March 19, Wood Bell Ringers.

W. E. Parmelee builds storm windows.—Adv. 37-tf.

ANOTHER FALSE ALARM RUN DOWN

Three Bootleggers Taken to Ionia By Sheriff

Last week Thursday the report was current that Bernard Newson, living at Burgess, on the Petoskey road, had been shot and was found in a serious condition lying beside the highway. He was picked up by Lisle Shanahan and Robert Paddock and taken to the Petoskey hospital.

Investigation by officials showed that the injury was only a slight flesh wound, all evidence leading to the fact that it had been self-inflicted. This is the third time in the past few years that reports have come from the same source of hold-ups, assaults and things of a like nature and investigation has always brought them to the same conclusion as the present incident. We are of the opinion that the subject needs no further discussion and will let it rest as it is.

Speaking of our county officials, we might mention the fact that three bootleggers were deported last week to a place where they will not bother for some time to came. The following men and their sentences are mentioned: John Pesek, 7 months; John Tisron, Boyne Falls, 6 months, Tony Grotrowski, Boyne Falls, 6 months, all taken to Ionia by the sheriff.

"Pleading the Baby Act"

According to law a child aot of age caanot be bound by contract. If a miaor makes a contract and does not abide by the agreement he may plead his minority as a defense in court. "Pleading the baby act" refers to these statutes protecting minor childrea. It is pleading "legal infancy." Figuratively, a person is said to "plead the baby act" when he pleads weakness or inexperience as an excuse for his mistakes or wrongdoings. The expression carries with it an implication of weakness or cowardice.—Pathfinder Magazine.

All too often people who try to leave the impression that they mean what they say never say much.

Women may have the vote, but the men are doing a fairly good job of clinging to the offices.

CLOSING OUT

Stock of Men's Suits

We have decided to sell out our stock of Men's Suits including the well known Hart, Schaffner & Marks brand. Price reductions will be made at a great saving. Now is your opportunity! Come early, you may be too late.

M. A. Levinson & Co.

NEW PRICES EFFECTIVE AT ONCE

These prices may not last long, so you had better take advantage of them while they are good.

	Cwt.
Corn, whole	$2.30
Corn, cracked or ground	2.40
Corn, steel cut	2.50
Corn Gluten Feed, 25 per cent	2.85
Oats, home grown	1.90
Oats, ground	2.00
Oats, ground extra fine	2.10
Bran, pure	1.80
Midds, standard	2.00
Midds, flour	2.30
Ground Barley, (oaty)	2.10
Ground Rye	2.00
C. S. Meal, 43 per cent	2.85
Oil Meal, 34 per cent	2.75
Purina Cow Chow	3.10
Pillsbury Dairy Ration	2.50
Purina Hen Chow	3.40
Purina Hen Chowder	3.75
Purina Omolene (horse feed)	3.00
Purina Pig Chow	3.50
Purina Calf Chow	4.75

Ton lots, 10c per cwt. less
Delivered price, add 10c per cwt.

SPECIALS

Salt Blocks, short time only	$ .40
Cattle Salt, cwt.	.75
Steamed Bone Meal, cwt	2.50
Poultry Meat Scrap	4.25
Oyster Shells	1.50
Hay, light mixed, for	18.00
Straw, ton	15.00

SEE OUR STOCK OF CANVAS GLOVES AND SHOT GUN SHELLS

Charlevoix Co-Operative Assn.
Farmers Supply House

SUPERVISORS ARE NOW IN SESSION

Much Important Business to Be Transacted Before Adjourning

The Charlevoix county Board of Supervisors went into session on Monday morning, October 12. Routine business is being transacted and so far operations have been mostly confined to the various committees. Many important matters are under discussion at the present session and a detailed report of accomplishments will be published in next week's issue of the Courier.

Reports on the extension of trunk line 32 from Elmira to Charlevoix by the way of East Jordan have been made and the county road commission is seeking the aid of the board of supervisors in putting the project across. The matter is now in the hands of a committee. Letters from James I. Dissette and J. Raleigh Nelson, property owners on the lower road from Ironton to the Taft farm, were read, the owners endeavoring to have the road rebuilt and put in better shape. No definite conclusion has as yet been reached with the Michigan Tourist and Resort Assn. and the matter is still up in the air.

Three hundred dollars was voted by the board for the Soldier's Relief fund. One thousand dollars was also voted for the East Jordan bridge fund. Wm. J. Pearson of Boyne Falls, was elected delegate to the meeting of the state Board of Equalization at Lansing, with expenses paid. This concludes all finished business up ta Tuesday night.

BAPTIST CHURCH
Rev. Herman Burns, Pastor

Personal consecration will be the morning theme at 10:30 and at 12:00 m, the Bible school will study Paul's letter to the church at Corinth. At 6:30 p. m. tha B. Y. P. U. will meet and at 7:30 preaching service conducted by the pastor.

Wednesday afternoon the Ladies Aid will hold its meeting with a potluck lunch, and the Mid-week service will be held Thursday evening.

All are welcome to all of these services and a special welcome is given to those who are not identified with any other church work.

The pastor "goes a fishing sometimes" and on last Wednesday afternoon the Laides Aid served a Perch supper at the Carey home. It was a great "fish stary."

Several members of the congregation went on the Pere Marquette excursion to various points in the sauth part of the state and to Chicago. We miss them but hope they are having an enjoyable trip.

The Evangelistic committee are busy making arrangements for the Pease-Nybury meetings to be held in November. They will begin November 15th and include November 29th. There will be later announcements introducing these men and their work.

Friday and Saturday SPECIALS

Charlevoix housewives are keeping close watch on our Friday and Saturday Specials. They mean a saving. This week we offer:

SPRAGUE & WARNER'S JELLY POWDER
3 packages for.....25c

3 CANS OLD DUTCH CLEANSER
for.....22c

4 LBS. OF SEEDLESS RAISINS
for.....50c

Buy your needs in canned goods for the winter. We offer you the Hart line, none better—many not as good. We believe they are best on the market.

MARTIN BLOCK
Opposite Post Office
Phone 12 or 142

Come to Us

For Good Shoe repairing
We use the best grade sole leather
Compbell Boot Shop

THE OLDEST BANK IN CHARLEVOIX COUNTY
FORTY-FIRST YEAR IN BUSINESS

1884 1925

THIS IS YOUR FINANCIAL "HOME"

This bank has long made a specialty of personalized service. It will always take a friendly interest in the success and welfare of its customers. We want you to feel that this institution is your business and financial "home"—and that we are here to help. Our advice and cooperation are yours—for asking.

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY BANK
CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN.
Nicholls, Buttars & Bridge, Bankers
THE BANK ON THE CORNER

LOCAL NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

Get the Hebit—Read the Courier

Regular meeting of the R. A. M. Chapter, No. 141, Monday evening, October 19th.

A. F. Bridge was a business caller in Petoskey last Saturday.

Mrs. Harry Belding returned last Friday to her home in Muskegon.

Mrs. Clara Todd spent last week end with her daughter in Petoskey.

J. W. Colden of Clarion, is in the city this week on business at the court house.

O. E. Solomon and Bill Goss were Enst Jordan business callers on Tuesday last.

Chas. H. Emrey is having his roof reshingled this wek. W. J. Bogart has the job.

Ally Ward is building a three-stall garage on the rear end of his Mason street property.

Hon. Wm. J. Penrson of Boyne Falls, is in the city this week on business nt the court house.

Ulysses McCann's new boat, the Sea Hawk, left Tuesday morning for St. James on her maiden trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Wright Carr of East Jordan, were Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Usher.

Prescott Adams and wife left Tuesday morning for Detroit, where they expect to spend the winter.

Mrs. Clinton Cooper, accompanied by Mrs. Henry Cooper, were Petoskey visitors on Friday of last week.

Hornce B. Hipp of East Jordan, is in the city this week, attending the meetings of the board of supevisor.

W. J. Gallagher of St. James, is in the city this week, atteading the meetings of the board of supervisors.

Mrs. James Ish of Gaylord, Michigan, is visiting her duaghter, Mrs.

AT LIFE'S END

When a fellow's done with living,
And the minister is giving
To his list'ners all the facts about the dead;
Have you noticed his oration—
Never told of wealth or station—
When you recollect the things the speaker said?

Have you ever hear a mention,
How 'twas someone's fixed intention,
To pay with gold his way across the Styx?
If he did, I wish to venture
He came in for righteous censure
When his clock at close of life had tolled out six.

It's the good a man has scattered
'Mongst his brothers, scarred and batter'd
The man that needed help that he could give,
Whom we talk of when he leaves us
When the parting comes and grieves us—
They're the thoughts which cling about our hearts and live.

If a man throughout his labors,
Gnins the love of all his neighbor:
If he smiles upon the children met eneh dny;
You can wager he's a fellow—
with a heart that's kind and mellow—
He's the sort we miss when he has gone away.

So, just let me say, my brothers,
It's the things you do for others
Thnt we'll guage you by when you have "checked your trunk;"
And the gold that you've collected
By your judge will be rejected—
It will figure nothing more or less than junk.

—By James M. Woodman.

A. T. Jeffrey, on State street this week.

R. F. Sloan left Monday afternoon for Grand Haven, where his firm has a concrete road under construction.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Marshall left the first of the week for Detroit, where they will spend the coming winter.

Frank F. Wangeman of East Jordan, is in the city this week on business connected with his office of supervisor.

Robert Krulik, pump repair man for the Standard Oil Company in this district, is in town this week on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Leachman are in the city on a two week's visit to their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jone Duranee.

Irene and Vera Halvorson left Tuesday morning for Gloucester, Mass., where they expect to spend the winter.

The L. O. T. M. Busy Bees will meet this week Friday with Mrs. E. N. Davy, 106 W. Hurlbut avenue. Pot luck lunch.

Mrs. Rudolph Krulik and daughter, Doris, leave this week for Grand Rapids, where they will spend the winter months.

James Wyers has sold his pool room and eigar store to Edgar Smith. The deal was closed Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Garn leave on Wednesday of this week for Petoskey, where they will make their home for the winter.

Archie Livingston is having a new furnace installed in his house on Sheridan street, this week. A. T. Jeffrey is doing the work.

Floyd Jeffrey left Tuesday afternoon for Grand Rapids and other southern Michigan points, where he will visit friends for a week.

The women of the Congregational church hold their annual thank-offering meeting with Mrs. H. S. Harsha this week Friday, at 2:30 p. m.

Mrs. Jone Durance left Tuesday for Frankfort, where she will visit at the home of her daughter and soa-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jones.

Edward Potter, lumber scaler from Munising, was ia the city last Thursday visiting friends while on his way to his home in Manistee.

W. E. Driggett left Tuesday morning for St. James, where he will spend a couple of days on busiaess for the Sinclair Oil Co. of this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Emery D. Gimble left the first of the week on a three week's vacation, stopping at Big Rapids, Battle Creek and Chicago.

Dr. Frank H. Wilkinson, W. E. Parmelee and T. B. Dimmick attended a Knights Templar field day at Cheboygan on Friday of last week.

C. A. Daniels and wife and Mr. Layman of Grand Rapids, were in the city last Friday and Saturday enjoyiag the fishing on Pine lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Buttars of Pellston, spent Sunday at the home of their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Buttars, of this city.

Mrs. H. K. Allen and daughter, Jessie, also Mrs. Oakley Hammond and Miss Lucille Usher were Petoskey visitors on Friday of last week.

Dr. Vernard L. Miller, formerly located in Bellaire, left Detroit this week for Clearwater, Floridn, where he will open dental offices in that city.

A party consisting of Forrest Fowler, Harold Meggison, Glenn nnd Chester See spent Sunday duck hunting in the vicinity of Central Lake.

Friends of George Priest will be interested to hear that he is rapidly improving from his recent illness and will soon be out and around again.

Alfred Jones and wife left last Sunday for their home in Flint, after speading the past week at the home of Mr. Jones' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Jones.

Henry Block left last Sunday, returning from Flint and drove back turning Tuesday from Flint and drove back a Chevrolet truck for John Martin.

Capt. and Mrs. Nels Palmer, accompanied by their son, Gordon, of Ludington, are visiting at the home of Mrs. Palmer's mother, Mrs. J. M. Clark, of this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl E. Shenrer and family left Tuesday morning for Chicago, via Detroit, nfter having spent the past week here visiting friends nnd relatives.

Mrs. Robert M. A. Johnston had the misfortune to fall and break her arm on Monday of this week while on her way to fish perch off the dock in front of Sears' garage.

Henry Jacobs is spending a few days at Grayling, Frederick and other places in that vicinity, which was his former home, where he is visiting relatives and friends.

Mrs. S. I. Merriam and her niece, Mrs. Amelia Goffar, expect to leave next Saturday, enroute for Los Angeles, Calif., nnd Bellnton, Washington, to spend the winter months.

Harold nnd John Hallett left last Monday for French Lick Springs, Ind., where they visit their brother, Irving Hallett and family, and incidentally locate positions for the winter.

L. P. Adams nnd family left Tuesday morning for Lawrence, Michigan, where they will make a short visit with Mr. Adams' sister before going to Miami, Floridn, for the winter months.

Miss Julia Wood left on Wednesday of last week for her homo in Boston, Mass., after spending the last two months at the home of her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William Wood.

Fred Staffeld and wife left Sunday for a visit among friends and relatives at Bay City, Manistee and other southern Michigan points. Mr. Staffeld has been working in Petoskey since his removal from this city.

Mr. nnd Mrs. John Dago and two sons, Carl and Donald, of Maple City, and Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Kropp, of Good Harbor, Mich., were tho guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Kelderhouse and family last Sunday.

Several carloads of local Congregationalists attended the ordination of A. L. Allard, pastor of the Central Lake church, on Tuesday evening of this week. Dr. B. G. Mattson of this city preached the ordination sermon.

Horace Fowler left Sunday, for Detroit, where he will attend the Grand Lodge Eastern Star as delegate from the local order. He was accompanied by Mrs. Fowler and Mrs. L. D. Atchison, who will visit their sister, Mrs. Nat Burney.

A. T. Jeffrey, wife and son, Theo, returned last Sunday from an extended trip to the upper peninsula. They visited at the Soo, Canadian Soo, Marquette, Big Bay, their former home, also visiting their daughter, Miss Carrie Jeffrey at Escanaba.

W. A. McCool of Traverse City, president and general manager of the Northern Creamery plants at Traverse City, Alpenr, Mackinaw City and Charlevoix, was in this city last Saturday nnd reports the season of 1925 as the best and most profitable the company has ever had in all the plants.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Randall left Tuesday morning for their home in Hamilton, Ohio. They have been spending the past month enroute from Newport, R. I., on their yacht, which will be laid up in Charlevoix this winter and make Charlevoix their hendquarters this coming season. Capt. M. J. Bonner of this city made the trip with them as captain on the boat.

Good Victuals by the Basketful

Buy your groceries here by the basketful. It is both economical and practical. The quality of our stock assures you always serving the best victuals for your family --and at no increase in cost.

Monarch Coffee

We notice a daily increase of users among Charlevoix residents. We said it was good coffee--now you know it, too.

Milton Block

COURIER BARGAIN COLUMN.

Courier Went Advs. ere One Cent per word per insertion. Minimum charge is 20 cents per insertion, for anything under 20 words. All Went Advs. ere strictly cesh in advance except to those who heve ledger accounts. Please remember this when sending in your copy.

LOST

LOST—Brown female hound, four white feet and white strip on nose. Return to Mont Withers, phone 200. Reward.—40 t2 pd.

LOST—Saturday, a souvenir brown leather handbag containing 25 cents. Finder please return to Daisy Dutcher, 205 Antrim street. —41-t1.

FOR RENT—HOUSE

FOR RENT — Furnished 6-room house, 303 Antrim street. Phone 182 for particulars.—41-t1 pd.

FOR SALE—MISCELLANEOUS

FOR SALE—Kitchen Range. Price $10. Inquire at this office,—38-tf.

FOR SALE—Lloyd-Loom baby carriage, good as new, price $10.00. Inquire 211 East Lincoln. —41t1.

FOR SALE—Ford two-door sedan. Good condition, $165.00. A. C. Belding, Charlevoix, Mich.—41tf.

FOR SALE—Good hard coal burner, cheap. Inquire of Lon Hewitt, 213 W. Lincoln Ave., Phone 388. —41-t1.

FOR SALE—Nice dry 16-inch poplar wood. Price $2.50 per cord. Orchard Bay Farm, phone 7008-f2.—41t2.

FOR SALE—A good office safe, with inside compartment. Inquire Mrs. B. W. Miller, 306 Clinton street.—41t2.

FOR SALE—1500 feet of good rough lumber. Inquire Harry H. Taylor, 106 Dixon Ave., phone 387.—41-t1 pd.

FOR SALE—Pair 7 1-2 Edmonds Footfitting shoes, worn less than two weeks. Reason for selling—too narrow for owners feet. Name your price on them if they are what you want. Inquire at this office.—40tf.

FOR SALE — Building material. Save 50 per cent in building. Phone W. S. Shaw Co., No. 75, Boyne City, for prices on lumber (boards and scantling,) steel beams, brick, pipe, pipe fittings and roofing.—40t10.

FOR SALE—LIVE STOCK

FOR SALE—6 Cows, one fresh, others will be fresh this month. Inquire of Frank Bird at Court House.—40t2.

FOR SALE—2 year old hound, good on rabbit or fox, price $25. Inquire of Milo Todd at Block's garage.—40t2 pd.

FOR SALE—Span of iron gray geldings, 4 and 5 years old, weight 2650. Good work team and well broken. Phone 7012f22 or call at home of Hans Jensen, Charlevoix-East Jordan road, 8 miles from Charlevoix.—40t2 pd.

WANTED—MISCELLANEOUS

WANTED—Old Falso teeth. We pay high as $10 for full sets. Don't matter if broken. We buy crowns, bridges. Western Metal Co., Bloomington, Ill.—41t2 pd.

CASH for Dental Gold, Platinum, Silver, Diamonds, magneto points, false teeth, jewelry, and valuables. Mail today. Cash by return mail. Hoke S. & R., Otsego, Mich.—12-tf.

MISCELLANEOUS

FOR INFORMATION regarding Florida land and investmonts, write Ernest E. Galloway, 845 N. W. 2nd St., Miami, Florida, Licensed Broker.—36-tf.

HELP WANTED.

WANTED — Stenographer, steady position for the right party. Wood Bros.—40tf.

WANTED—Competent girl for general housework. Permanent position. Inquire at McCann's Bakery. 34-tf.

Friday and Saturday Specials
OCTOBER 16th and 17th

OUTING GOWNS

We have a complete line of outting gowns, Pink, Blue and Tan stripes.

Ladies sizes from 17 to 24. Full sweep and well made, trimmed with hemstitching, embroidery and braid at .....$1.00, $1.25, $150 and $1.75

White Flannelette gowns, square yoke, round neck and trimmed with hemstitching and embroidered in Pink and Blue at.....$1.85

Misses Gowns, sizes 2 to 10 years, trimmed with hemstitching and braid for.....$1.00

Men's two-piece pajamas, fastened with braid frogs for .....$1.50 and $2.00

Children's Outing Sleepers with feet, size two to eight years for 89c

Kozy Kid Sleepers, sizes, six to ten years for.....$1.25

A. E. MASON

NEW PALACE THEATRE
ATTRACTIONS FOR THE COMING WEEK

Thursday, October 15th

"SHE WOLVES," A vivid picture of Parisian life From David Belasco's stage play, "The Man in Evening Clothes." With Alma Rubens, Jack Mulhall, Harry Myers, Judy King and Diana Miller. And a two reel comedy "Low Tide."

Friday, October 16th

"FOLLY OF VANITY." With Betty Blythe a 1925 Queen of Sheba in a dazzling dramatic fantasy, and the comedy "Low Tide." Also a Fox News reel.

Saturday and Sunday, October 17th and 18th

Wm. Fox presents Tom Mix with Tony the horse and Duke the Dog in "TEETH." A red-blooded drama of the west. A courageous man aided by a horse and a dog in a single handed fight for love and honor. Excitement, suspense, scenie grandeur, drama, comedy. Everything that goes to make the ideal pictures. One of Tom Mix's best. And a two reel comedy "Cloudy Romance."

Monday, October 19th

We are bringing back the great super-special production, "THE TEN COMMANDMENTS." For one day only. Special reduced prices for the second showing of this the greatest of pictures. Children under twelve 15 cents. Adults 30 cents. Don't miss this great piteure.

Tueday and Wednesday, October 20th and 21st

Paramount presents, Bebe Daniels in rebellious society girl in her newest starring production in "WILD WILD SUSAN." Friskier than a bucking broncho, wilder than the wild man of Boreno and Oh, lady how funny. That's Bebe in the title role of this gay, gingery, high-geared comedy. With Rod LaRocque and superb cast. Also a Fox News reel.

Well I just can't afford to go to Florida

"Sorry Mister, but you can have a Florida climate in your home, if you heat your home with Argo Quality Coal."

Call us, we are ready to respond

ARGO MILLING COMPANY

W. E. Byers, Auctioneer

Twenty years experience in handling Auction Sales, both on farm and household goods.

Let Me Cry Your Sales

Phone me at Charlevoix or call the Charlevoix Courier, where all dates are made.

Cups for Lunch Furnished if Requested

Neighbors

By
ROBERT STEAD

Author of
"The Cow Puncher," "The Homesteaders"

WNU Service
Copyright by Robert Stead

(Continued from page three.)

swered. "We already have one neighbor, a countryman of yours, down on section Two. Spoof, he calls himself, although that is not his real name."

She was working over the stove, with her back toward us, and perhaps she dallied longer than there was any need for, but I took no notice of the matter at the time.

"What a strange name," she said, after a while. . . . "Is he there now—I mean, have you seen him lately? A countryman of mine; you know, I must be interested in him," she added, brightly, turning her face to us again.

At length, with assurances that we would repeat our visit soon, and a promise from Mrs. Alton that she would return it when the men had her house under way, we clambered into our wagon and started the oxen on their slow, lumbering gait homeward. Sandy saw us properly off the place, and even stood at attention until we faded out of sight in the twilight. There is likely to be a nip to the night air on the prairies even in midsummer, and Jean, I noticed, snuggled comfortably beside me on the board across the wagon box which served us a seat. . . . Or perhaps it was that for the first time in months the latent motherhood in her nature had been stirred into consciousness.

It was Sunday before we heard or saw anything more of Spoof. In a khaki-colored shirt and corduroy breeches and leggings and an Indian helmet which he had dug up from somewhere he was a picturesque and striking figure as he strode into the grateful shade of the shanty. Under his arm he carried a banjo case.

Spoof took off his helmet and sat down in the shade. A ring of dust had formed on his fair temples and forehead and his brown hair was curly with perspiration. He was a man good to look at; straight and lean, but not too spare; with white teeth that flashed behind lips always ready to spring to a smile beneath a sandy mustache that had more in it of promise than of realization. His hands were small and finely formed, with long, delicate fingers, and he gave his nails a degree of attention not often found among those so close to the realities of life as were we pioneers.

Opening the banjo case he produced not only a banjo but a box of candy, which he had managed to smuggle into it.

"The ladies, I hope, will accept," said he, tendering the candy to Jean.

"If accompanied by a serenade in our honor?" was the quick rejoinder.

"But not until after I have had a bath, and have somewhat recovered my wind," Spoof pleaded, and was excused.

It was evening before he took up his banjo, but almost with the first sweep of its clamoring strings he started vibrations which seemed to catch our little band of exiles somewhere about the heart and squeeze us suddenly hollow with loneliness. Then he sang, dipping into little fragments of repertoire, until at last he hit upon something that Jean had learned before we left the East, and there her clear soprano joined his tenor as naturally as one brook mingles with another and both flow on, singing a new song which is all of the old one, and something more. I had never learned to sing, and while I felt the heart-tugs of their harmony there were other strings tugging at my heart as well.

"But we forgot the greatest news," Jean exclaimed, in a pause after one of their selections. "We have neighbors—two new neighbors—three, counting Sandy. They are living on Eighteen, to the east; surely you saw the tent?"

"So I did," said Spoof, "but I thought it might be a wandering Indian family. Two, did you say? A married couple?".

"No, a widow, Mrs. Alton, and her baby Gerald, the dearest little chap. He pals us down for Indians, and with some reason."

"Gerald?" said Spoof. "How old is he?"

"Just turned three, so Mrs. Alton told us. You should see her; not very big, but plucky to the marrow. She has taken a homestead so that she can raise the money to educate her boy. She is coming over as soon as she is settled, and we must have you meet her. She's English, and you'll love her."

Jean's frankness rather set me at ease again. Evidently I was magnifying the grip that Spoof was gaining upon her. She was content that he should love his new English neighbor.

"I shall be wonderfully interested in her," Spoof said, gayly, but it seemed to me that his mind had suddenly gone all a-ramble. There was a moment's silence, then he took up the thread again. "I once knew a little boy of that name—Gerald—was much attached to him. Strange how an incident—a name, for example—will recall a whole chain of memories."

What memories of Spoof's were aroused he did not say, but he sang no more, and presently decided it was time to go home.

(Continued next week)

NELLIE VERNE WALKER

Nellie Verne Walker, noted woman sculptor and lecturer, is an interesting figure both from the standpoint of the truly notable work which she has produced, and because of the fact that here is another woman who has forged to the front in the field of art.

The enormous progress that women have made in art, literature, science, politics and commerce is receiving the attention of the world as never before. It is especially interesting, with this thought of woman's achievements in mind, to note what one woman has accomplished in the realm of sculpture.

NELLIE VERNE WALKER

Miss Walker was born in Iowa and studied at the Art Institute of Chicago, where she later became an instructor of modeling. She has a splendid gift of characterization and this, as well as her control over line and mass, has made her work notable in the plastic art.

Miss Walker is represented in the Chicago Art Institute by a sculptural group which is called "Her Son." "Courage," designed for St. Luke's Hospital, Chicago, as a memorial to deceased hospital interns, is among Miss Walker's finest pieces. Her statue of the Indian chief Keokuk, overlooking the Mississippi river at Keokuk, Iowa, is heroic in size and finely and compactly modeled.

Miss Walker's work is possessed of astonishing power and force. Paradoxically enough, she is a mite of a woman, with a grace and charm of manner delightfully feminine.

Lorado Taft writes of her: "She has intelligence, personality and charm. She has an admirably clear voice, twice as big as herself. She is an accomplished sculptor with great and imposing works to her credit in various states. Above all, she has a burning desire to make art the heritage and possession of our beloved West."

At Palace Theatre on November 2

Read the Courier and get the News

LATE RAINS INJURE CROPS

SOUTHERN MICHIGAN SUFFERS IN MANY SECTIONS

Northern Michigan's Crops Greatly Improved by Late Rains—Condition in State

The month of September was very favorable for the maturing of late crops, the moisture having been sufficient and no frosts occurring except in northern counties. The ground was in excellent condition for wheat and rye seeding although rains delayed the work in some sections. Corn cutting was well advanced at the end of the month and silo filling was practically completed. Rains delayed bean harvesting and causing considerable damage to the crop in some of the heaviest producing counties, according to the October 1 report issued by L. Whitney Watkins, Commissioner of Agriculture and Verne H. Church, Agricultural Statistician, U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

Corn: Michigan has an excellent corn crop this year being good in practically all sections except in some northern counties where extreme drought prevailed during the greater part of the season. The condition of 93 per cent is equivalent to a production of 66,796,000 bushels, the largest crop without exceptions on record for the state, and over 50 per cent larger than harvested in 1924. The quality is also very good.

All Wheat: The percentage of the crop marketed up to October 1, according to the estimates of correspondents, is 38 per cent, or a total of 5,974,000 bushels.

Oats: The yield of oats is placed at 32 bushels per acre, nearly two bushels below the average for the last ten years. The total production is 52,224,000 bushels against 67,200,000 last year, the yield being ten bushels less per acre. The quality is 88 per cent, one per cent above the average but six per cent under last year. Rains during harvest discolored a portion of the crop while in the shock.

Barley: The reports of correspondents indicate that the average yield of barley is 24 bushels. The straw was shorter than usual but well filled. Rains discolored a considerable quantity of the grain while standing in the shock thereby reducing the quality to 84 per cent.

Buckwheat: Dry weather shortened the yield in northern districts, and heavy storms did considerable damage to the crop in some southern districts.

Potatoes: Prospects did not improve in September as is usual in most years. The condition of 76 per cent represents a production of 26,384,000 bushels as compared with 38,252,000 in 1924. The early crop was light and the late crop varies greatly between different sections, being rather light in many central, southwestern and northern counties and very good in some of the west-central counties. The quality is excellent.

Beans: Frequent rains during September interfered with the harvesting of the crop and damaged many fields, as a result of which the pick will be heavier than usual on the late crop. Correspondents' reports indicate an average yield of 12 bushels per acre and an average pick of 8.5 per cent.

Tame Hay: The crop has steadily increased in volume during the season as a result of many second cuttings of clover and second and third cuttings of alfalfa. The average yield is estimated at 1.0 ton per acre, or a total crop of 3,194,000 tons of compared with 5,010,000 tons last year.

Clover Seed: The outlook for clover seed is only fair. The estimated production, based on a condition of 67 per cent, is 149,000 bushels.

Sugar Beets: The season has been favorable and beets are attaining good size and quality, with a prospective yield somewhat above the average.

Apples: The total apple crop averages 60 per cent of a normal one, or 10,756,000 bushels of which 1,864,000 barrels is rated as commercial. This includes all summer, fall and winter varieties. As the winter varieties represent 54 per cent of the commercial crop, according to the reports of growers, they amount to 1,007,000 barrels.

The Better Buick is a Man-sized Motor Car

People appreciate a smart-driving, easily-handled, but full-sized, man-sized car. The Better Buick for instance.

Each Buick model seats its capacity of full-grown people—in relaxed ease—without cramped legs or necks. Tall people, especially, enjoy its extra head-room and leg-room.

American men and women are above the average stature. And a smaller car than Buick is apt to be tight-fitting, low-ceilinged, crowded!

Drop in and try the ample, arm-chair comfort of a car that is right in size. Bring some of your six-footer friends. You will find another big reason why Buick is so widely considered a better motor car—another reason why there are a million and more enthusiastic Buick owners.

Or telephone, and we will send a Better Buick to your home or office for you to try.

BUICK MOTOR COMPANY
Division of General Motors Corporation
Flint, Michigan G-10-12

The Better BUICK

WHEN BETTER AUTOMOBILES ARE BUILT, BUICK WILL BUILD THEM

HEATON & HOOPER
Boyne City, Michigan

WHEN BETTER AUTOMOBILES ARE BUILT, BUICK WILL BUILD THEM

★ INTERESTING BITS OF INFORMATION CLIPPED FROM OUR EXCHANGES ★

It may be true that the duck marshes, are drying up, but after another year or two of shooting they should make excellent lead mines.

That 10-year-old boy who woke up at 12 o'clock in an empty theater at Port Huron should of course take some older person along to waken him at the end of the play.

Lightning which struck an Upper Peninsula miner, tore the boot off his foot, but did not otherwise injure him. He must have remembered, just in time, that he intended to die with his boots on.

The fire department at Benton Harbor was called out to save a wood shed that was burning at the rear of a home. For once a paddle must have been just as hot as a boy thought it was.

Officers at Flint are baffled by the theft of $60 worth of cigarets from a freight house. It is only a suggestion, but we believe they will get the right parties if they arrest every one who asks for a match.

People on the train which was snowbound in Montana for three days, with a couple on their way from Alaska to be married in Adrain, are said to have put in the time singing, "O that we two were Maying!"

Working spare times and evenings, an Orion man has spent four years carving a minature railroad engine and tender with a jack knife. One can only exclaim, in a burst of admiration, "Well, he used the right tool."

A traveler wants to know why it is that in Ludington, which is in the peach belt, the restaurants do not serve peaches or peach pie. Most likely the peaches are kept for the use of dairymen, who have them served without cream.

"Be collegiate. Wear the right clothes at the right time," says an editorial in the humor magazine at Michigan State College. "And in the right place," it should add, for the benefit of those who apparently have an overcoat on either leg.

Civilization still advances, and since the coming of the automobile tramp, says an item from the resort country, where a single hobo used to plead at the back door for a cup of coffee, a whole family now pleads for a full meal, a tank of gasoline and a spare tire.

THE SIMPLEST LIGHT & POWER PLANT IN THE WORLD

"DOES THIS PICTURE ILLUSTRATE YOUR HOME SURROUNDINGS?"

THIS happy group was made by Marco. The father's labor was lightened by the power features of this super-powered plant. The mother's hours were shortened by the labor saving devices which were operated from the current supplied by Marco—and the entire family is brightened by the electric lights furnished by Marco.

Nothing less than Marco capacity (1,500 watts) will do all the work necessary on the farm, so do not foolishly consider anything of lesser capacity because it may be cheaper.

It costs you nothing to find out what Marco can do for you—ask us.

Benjamin Brown Auto Sales
CHARLEVOIX, MICH.

The SUPER-POWERED MARCO

THE
Well-Known Bargain Store
Announces to the Public it's 15th Annual Gigantic
Money Saving Sale
Beginning THURSDAY, OCTOBER 22 and continuing for Thirty Days.

The crowds that have attended our Sales it the past are proof of the Huge Money-Saving Opportunities we offer.

COME EARLY: The Early Buyer Is the Wise Buyer.

Gasoline or Carfare free any place in the County with a $20 purchase.

Store Open 8:30 a. m. to 8:30 p. m.

Remember the Date,
THURSDAY, OCTOBER 22

A. I. GOLDSTICK
The Well-Known Bargain Store
BELLAIRE - MICHIGAN

FROM OFFICE BOY TO GENERAL MGR.

Salary Increase Comes With Promotion

Chicago, Sept. 29—After a careful survey of the entire labor situation extending from office boy to president, indications are that positions showing increases in salaries require experienced help.

Consulting the president of one of our largest industries, the writer inquired regarding the rapid success of a certain young man who had become general manger and who a few years ago was but office boy; his answer was, Brown started as office boy, the lowest salaried position in our office, he was ambitious and managed to purchase a typewriter on small monthly payments and after three weeks of practice at home he was promoted to bill clerk, which position gave him knowledge of the selling price of all merchandise. His next advance was that of typist, which taught him the numerous forms of letter-writing and enabled him to hold a stenographic position, giving him complete knowledge of letter-writing. He was then made secretary, bringing him into contact with all business details and qualified him for the general manager's office at ten thousand per year.

The same opportunity awaits every young man and woman. Education or age have nothing to do with operating so simple a machine as the typewriter. We are informed that a great piece of benevolent work is being carried on by a large Chicago mail order house in furnishing typewriters to people worthy of credit, by selling on small monthly installments, so low as to average about eight cents per day and actually teaching their customers how to use and operate any typewriter in about three week's time. You can get ather information by writing the International Typewriter Exchange, 184 W. Lake Street, Chicago, Illinois.

Live Stock Facts

Turn idle horses on pasture and thus save grain.

Use the sheep to clean up vacant lots which are infested with weeds.

With our live stock farmers one big trouble is low yields of feedstuffs per acre.

Proper sanitation means the difference between success and failure in raising a crop of pigs.

Provide plenty of fresh water and shade for the hogs. Do not drive hogs in the heat of the day.

The care and feeding of the weaning foals determines, to a large extent, their size and value as mature horses.

Salt serves as a spice or condiment which whets the appetite and increases the palatability of feed for all live stock.

Purebred cattle are 48 per cent more efficient producers than scrubs, says the United States department of Agriculture.

Feeding the lambs a little grain each day affords an opportunity for seeing them often and hence for detecting troubles before they become unmanageable.

Record Hard to Beat

Umbrella "borrowers" are fair game for the jokesmiths, but Lemuel Taylor of Tacoma claims to have carried the same umbrella daily for the last 42 years. Of course, as the old man, who has a small cobbler's shop, admits, it hasn't rained every day, but he carries the faithful old umbrella back and forth "to be on the safe side."

R. B. ARMSTRONG
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Special Attention to Diseases of Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat
Priest Bldg. Phone 255

DR. F. F. McMILLAN
Physician and Surgeon
Office above Postoffice
Phone 17
Charlevoix :: Michigan

A. L. FITCH
ATTORNEY AT LAW
Office in Court House
Phone 48
Charlevoix :: Michigan

D. T. McHUGH
General Contractor
Phone 214
CHARLEVOIX MICHIGAN

WM. J. BOGART
CONTRACTOR and BUILDER
No Job Too Large
No Job Too Small.
Phone 139 Charlevoix, Mich.

VIRGINIA RYALL BROWN, D. C.
PALMER CHIROPRACTOR
PHONES:
Office 347 Residence 39
Postoffice Building

Ellsworth Section

Charles Elson purchased a cow from Horace Taylor, last week.

G. M. Heims of Central Lake, was a business caller in town last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Murl Kring visited at the Eugene Best home Sunday.

Ira Springstead and family, spent Sunday with his parents nt Torch Lake.

Mr. Cummins and Mr. Gilbert of Thompsonville, attended the revival last Wednesday evening.

E. A. Dean has finished digging his potatoes. They were a light crop, but a good quality.

Arthur Tucker of Big Rapids, a nephew of Mrs. Wm. Eastcott, arrived Monday for a short visit.

Arthur Tucker of Huntsbury, Ohio, is visiting his uncle, E. A. Dean, and other friends for a few days.

Wallace Dean and Arthur Tucker, motored to East Jordan, Boyne City, Charlevoix and the Loeb Farms one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Ely and son, Gordon, and Billy Moon, left Wednesday for Traverse City, where they will visit for a week and then go on to Detroit, where they will make their future home. Mr. Ely will manage a Smith store there. The Elys have made a host of friends here, who regret their going very much.

You will find high quality merchandise at reasonable prices at the Charlevoix Hdw. Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

ATWOOD

Halloween soón.

Frost and a little snow, Whew!

Alice Klooster is visiting in Holland, Mich.

Miss Elmer of Grand Rapids, occupied the M. E. pulpit on Sunday morning last.

Lou Veenstra and family leaves for Grand Rapids next week, to make it their future home.

One of our home boys, made this remark the other day: "I go to school to learn, whether I like the teacher or not." That boy is bound to succeed.

Some people live through October, just as they live through the other months. Some people enjoy living in October. We Atwood folks are apt to envy the big city dweller. What does October mean to those in the city. "Gather your Autumn lenves." Give us nature's best at your very feet during the golden month of October.

W. E. Parmelee builds storm windows.—Adv. 37-tf.

* * * * * * * * * *
* B. J. BEUKER *
* Physician and Surgeon *
* Office over Blue Store *
* Ellsworth, Michigan *
* Office Hours: 2-4 p. m., Phone 38 *
* * * * * * * * * *

FAIRVIEW-BANKS

Keep smiling.

Lots of rain the past week.

Mrs. C. VanStraten is in Chicago this week visiting relatives.

A number from here attended the Veentra's sale last Thursday.

The first flakes of the "Beautiful" came down Friday afternoon.

H. J. Timmer and family were in Atwood Thursday of last week.

L. B. Canniff of Traverse City, was in this neighborhood Friday.

Wm. J. Goeman left for Grand Rapids for a couple of weeks vacation.

Farmers are very busy at present digging potatoes, and hauling red beets.

John W. Brown and family, are visiting friends and relatives in the southern part of the state.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Goeman left for Zeeland, Mich., last week, where they will make their future home.

William Timmer and Gerrit Postmus were in Central Lake Thursday aftrenoon, loading a car of Dill pickles at the Libby McNeill & Libby Pickle station.

A Willnrd Battery for $16.50. Fits Ford, Chevrolet, Overland, Maxwell, Star and others. Benj. Brown Battery Shop.—Adv. 39-tf.

ANTRIM CITY

Mr. Stott made a business trip to Ellsworth Tuesday.

Mrs. Isabell of Eastport, ate dinner at the Stoel home Sunday.

George Lord of Atwood, was a visitor at the Brant home Sunday.

Mr. Baumbach took Will Dennison to the Charlevoix hospital Tuesday.

Mrs. VanderStreek and Mrs. Baumback, visited the school Wednesday.

C. L. Stott was a visitor at the McGuire home at Norwood Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Baker and Mrs. Stott, attended the Louis Veenstra sale Thursday.

Some of the people of this neighborhood, attended the dance at the Lord home at Atwood Sunday evning.

MILES DISTRICT

Clarence LaLonde expects to leave for Detroit in the nenr future.

Mrs. Anna LaLonde moved to East Jordan last week for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred LaLonde and children of East Jordan, called at the Dett Evans' home Sunday.

HOW'S THIS?

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE will do what we claim for it—rid your system of Catarrh or Deafness caused by Catarrh.

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE consists of an Ointment which Quickly Relieves the catarrhal inflammation, and the Internal Medicine, a Tonic, which acts through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces, thus assisting to restore normal conditions.

Sold by druggists for over 40 Years. F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.

Mr. and Mrs. Rodger Speyer and daughter, Harriet, of Ellsworth, were Sunday visitors at the A. Miles home.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Mablo were Sunday callers at the home of their dnughter, Mrs. Elmer Reed in East Jordan.

Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Addis of Walloon Lake, were Sunday dinner guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. Addis.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Fowler and children of Atlanta, were over Sunday guests of tbeir mother, Mrs. Mary Clark.

If your battery is run down or needs repairs, bring it tn our battery shop. Work guaranteed. Brown Battery Shop.—Adv. 39-tf.

MICHIGAN AWAKE TO POSSIBILITIES

(Continued from page one)

acres more which it has turned into the Michigan National Forest.

Heretofore these returning lands have been looked upon as expensive liabilities. The state authorities have been dismayed by the vast herds of "White Elephants" they saw advancing upon them.

But the recreational development is giving the people a new point of view on Michigan's "vast open space." They are beginning to see in them big outing assets. They vision the idle lands covered with second growth, natural and planted, and this second growth serving as cover for game, as wild life refuges, as public outing places, public health resorts, public play grounds.

And so popular sentiment is growing for reforestation. This reforestation must be accomplished mainly through public ownership of forests—town forests, state forests, and national forests. Private enterprise had had its chance, but except in a few cases has passed it by, being unable or unwilling to wait 15 to 25 years while inferior woods like jack pine reach merchantable size, or 40 to 60 years while Norway and white pine are growing real timber.

With leadership like that which Gifford Pinchot gave to Pennsylvania, with forest management on a "big business" scale, and with bond issue money for proper development along modern forestry lines, Michigan can put its "White Elephants" to work. It can establish forests that will produce real money from jack pine and people within 25 years; that will be turning out high-priced white and Norway timber in 50 to 60 years; that will restore Michigan's lumber industry on a permanent basis; that will provide a perpetual source of supply for good working establishments; that will breed wild life, as in Pennsyvania, surpressing in value all the domestic live stock on Michigan fnrms; that will serve forever as recreational grounds for the state's own people and their pnying guests; that will pay off their bonded costs for all this; nnd that will reduce the tax burdens on Michigan's rising generaions for all time tn come.

Michigan has immense tourist and recreational resources in its 1,800 miles of exterior coasts, its 5,700 interior lnkes, its rushing rivers, its multitude of trout streams, its watch tower hills, its vallys, its Lake Michignn dunes, its Lake Superior cliffs, its Lake Huron terraces. The new state highway system of 5,775 miles of improved road, of whish 2,235 miles are pavemeat nnd 3,530 miles are gravel, has opened up these resources to the world, and the world, riding in Michigan nutomobiles, is flocking in to see, to enjoy, to desire, and to buy. Thus three Michigan products, naturnl attractions, highways, and nutomobiles, have joined in partnership to make all Michigan richly productive, all of Michigan happily prosperous, and all of Michigan a joy to itself and to a less favored world.

* * * * * * * * * * *
* CHURCH OF GOD *
* * * * * * * * * * *

Preaching services at 10:30 and 7:30 each Sunday.

Sunday school, 11:45.

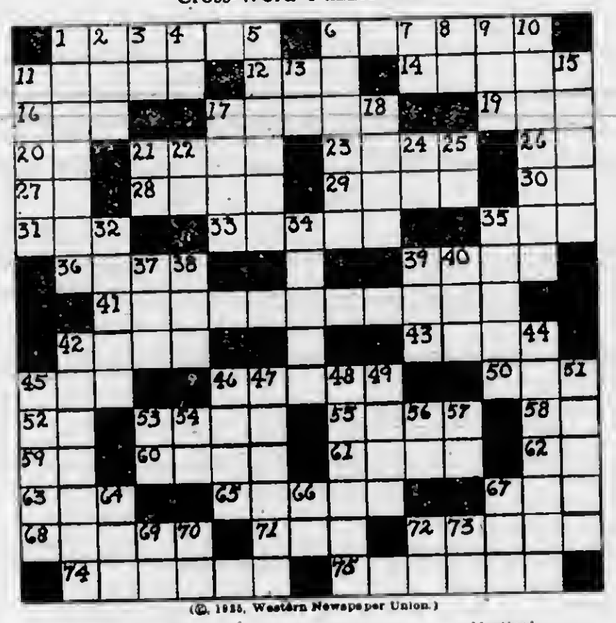
Young people'a meeting at 6:30 each Sunday evening.

Prayer meeting each Wednesday evening at 7:30.

Wm. Eldridge, Pastor.

Telephones are for business and pleasurc, but not for conversations lasting a half day.

Cross-Word Puzzle No. 77



(©, 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

Horizontal.

1—Overhanging shelter or shade
6—Teachings of Christ and the apostles
11—Orchestra leader's stick
13—Wiggly fish
14—Lubricated
16—Native metal
17—Relieve 19—To scratch
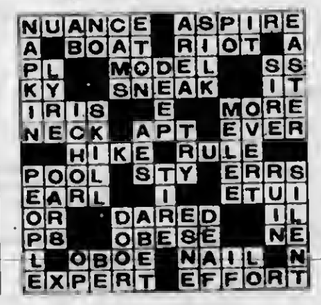
20—Georgia (abbr.)
21—The post
23—Clown
26—Preposition
27—Printing measure
28—To unfasten
29—Therefore
30—Horsepower (abbr.)
31—Still
32—Inducted, as into office
35—Affirmative
36—To exist
39—Smell
41—Fallen into partial ruin
42—To sense
43—Birds of night
46—Possesses
46—Impertinent. (coll.)
50—Female sheep
52—Preposition
53—Young horse
55—To rip
58—Printing measure
59—Provided that
60—An accomplishment
61—To rant
62—French article
63—To droop
65—Boy, under twenty-one years
67—Consumed
68—To put faith into
71—To hasten
73—Stream
74—To lure
75—Hose supporter

Vertical.

1—Chewy confection
2—Devoured
3—Negative
4—Preposition
5—One of primary colors
6—Man who repairs windows
7—Thus
8—3.14159
9—Kind of tree
10—Tanned hide
11—Goblin
12—Elevated railway (abbr.)
15—Lets fall
17—Halps
18—Woolen thread
21—Greek letter
22—Indefinite article
24—No good (abbr.)
25———— ho, and a bottle of rum
32—Ebbs and flows of sea
34—Leaves out
35—Swiss song
37—To contend
38—Measure of cloth
39—Combining form meaning ear
40—Condensed vapor
42—Blare of trumpets
44—To oppress with heat
45—To raise
46—To bang
47—Raiment
48—Powerful
49—Period of time
51—Arabian ruler
53—Compare (abbr.)
54—Old English (abbr.)
56—Wide street (abbr.)
57—Note of scale
34—Weapon
67—Hall!
69—Highway (abbr.)
70—Note of scale
72—Railroad (abbr.)
73—Indefinite article

Solution will appear in next issue.

Cross-ward Puzzle No. 76



ESSEX

a Famous Six—Built on Hudson Patents

$795 for the Coach

Quality Gave Volume—Volume Gave This Amazing Price

Everyone knows the superiority of six cylinders.

Those who know are not content with less than Super-Six performance. It increases power, smoothness, flexibility and car life without adding to weight or motor size. Its principle is patented and exclusive to Hudson and Essex. It accounts for the world's largest selling sixes.

In Essex the cost is within the price of practically all car buyers. Super-Six advantages and Hudson Essex quality give vast volume, and volume makes possible the lowest prices in history.

There is a big saving in Essex cost, a greater econony in operation, and a finer satisfaction from the ease and comfort of riding and driving. Everywhere it is regarded with Hudson as the

World's Greatest Value

Everyone Says It—Sales Prove It

Hudson Coach $1195 · Hudson Brougham $1495 · Hudson 7-Pass. Sedan $1695

All Prices Freight and Tax Extra

H. R. FOWLER, Charlevoix, Mich.

Auction Sales

If you are going to have a sale your biggest problem will be how to get the bidders, for bidders are what make a successful sale. If you do not have proper publicity it may mean

Hundreds of Dollars Lost

Your neighbors and friends are not the ones that make your sale a success, neither are they the ones you want to reach with your advertising for they know about your sale. It is the outside bidder who comes from 5, 10 or 20 miles and comes to bid, that you want. It is not at all unusual for one good bidder to raise the proceeds of a sale $50 to $100.

The solution to the problem is to use a paper which covers the field, a recognized auction sale medium with a county-wide circulation, which has published thousands of successful sales.

Use the

CHARLEVOIX COURIER

Charlevoix's Auction Sale Paper

* * * * * * * * * * *
* PILGRIM HOLINESS *
* CHURCH *
* Phelps and Ellsworth *
* * * * * * * * * * *

Phelps

Sunday school, 10:00 a. m.

Preaching, 11:00 a. m.

Prayer meeting, Wednesday evening at 8:00 p. m.

Ellsworth

Sunday school, 1:15 p. m.

Preaching, 2:30 and 7:30 p. m.

Prayer meeting Thursday evening at 8:00 p. m.

B. E. Manker, Pastor.

A single track mind is all right providing it never gets on a siding.

W. E. Byers, Auctioneer

Twenty years experience in handling Auction Sales, both on farm and household goods.

— Let Me Cry Your Sales

Phone me at Charlevoix or call the Charlevoix Courier, where all dates are made.

Cups for Lunch Furnished if Requested

CHOSEN FOR PLACE ON W. S. N. SQUAD

East Jordan and Harbor Sprioge Represented

Two Northern Miehigan boys are among nine men chosen as a special debating squad at Western State Normal for which three will be picked to debate Cambridge University of Kalamazoo Saturday night. They are Arthur Secord of East Jordnn and James McManagle of Harbor Springs. Secord, who wns a member of East Jordan high school's state championship debating team of several years ago, has debated two years nt Kalamazoo Normal and McMonagle is a veteran of one year. The English debaters will take the negative side of the prohibltion question in the Western stnte contest.

A Willard Battery for $16.50. Fits Ford, Chevrolet, Overland, Maxwell, Star and others. Benj. Brown Battery Shop.—Adv. 39-tf.

FORMER CHARLEVOIX COUNTY MAN DIES

Efton Holben Passes Away at Home of Sister, Mrs. A. Miles

Albert Efton Holben was born in South Arm, Charlevoix county, May 13, 1883, and passed away at the home of his sister, Mrs. A. Miles, at the age of 42 years, 4 months and twenty-three days.

Deceased was a resident of Charlevoix county until the year 1889, when he and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Holben, left Michigan for a number of years, returning in 1904 for a short time. In 1907 they again moved to Arkansas, where he remained until this year. Here Mr. Holben married Miss Della May Wooten, December 1, 1907, to which union were born two daughters, Irene and Geneva, ages eleven and sixteen. On account of his poor health, deceased returned to the home of his sister, Mrs. Mattie Miles, in hopes of recuperation. He passed away after being there five weeks.

Mr. Holben is survived by his widow and two daughters; father, James Holben; three sisters, Mrs. Margaret Mayfield, Carterville, Mo.; Mrs. Jessie Erbacher, Conway, Ark.; Mrs. Mattie Miles, Ellsworth, Mich.; three brothers, Robert J., North Little Rock, Ark.; Moses L., Clarksville, Ark., and George S., Rose Lake, B. C., besides a host of other relatives and friends to mourn his dépnrture.

Funeral services were held last Friday afternoon at two o'clock, Rev. Conklin, pastor of the Ellsworth M. E. church, officinting. Interment in Sunset Hill cemetery, East Jordan.

If your hnttery is run down or needs repairs, bring it to our battery shop. Work guaranteed. Brown Battery Shop.—Adv. 39-tf.

MISS SARAH WYERS BECOMES A BRIDE

Pretty Home Wedding Solemnized Wednesday Eveoing

A very pretty home wedding was solemnized last Wednesday evening at five o'clock, when Miss Sarah E. Wyers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Wyers, Sr., of this city, became the bride of Mr. Jack Frier of Deroit. Rev. C. E. Pollock, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal ehurch, was the officiating minister.

Aldon Stutler acted as best man and Ruth O'Brien, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Miss Wyers was prettily gowned in a dress of old rose crepe and carried n boquet of pink and white roses, the house decorations being carried out in the same eolor. Other features of the wedding were the wedding march, played by Mrs. Prescott Adams, the beautiful wedding ring service and an excellent dinner to which thirty-two relatives and friends of the contracting parties were guests.

The bride and groom left the following morning on a honeymoon trip to Hamilton, Ontario, Toronto and Niagara Falls, and will return to Detroit, where Mr. Frier has a position as steward in the Book-Cadillac hotel. The groom has been in the employ of R. E. Olds as steward on his yacht for the past three years, while the bride has been in Dr. Armstrong's office for the past two or three years. The Courier and their many friends wish a long and happy married life.

Batteries recharged and repaired. Electrical work of all kinds. Bring your car troubles to us. Brown Battery Shop.—Adv. 39-tf.

FIRST SNOW FELL FRIDAY EVENING

Light Fall in Charlevoix—One Inch at Boyne City

Winter stretched n long hnnd out of the north Friday night and shook n warning finger in the face of midwestern, eastern and New England states. Temperatures ranging from freezing to 40 degrees were reported in most states and snow and frost blanketed many regions.

Charlevoix and nortbern Michigan were included in the territory visited hy the winter-like temperature, snow and sleet. The tempernture dropped below freezing nnd at Boyne City and points east, snow fell to the depth of an inch or more. Locally little snow fell, which melted as soon as it struck the ground.

At Elmirn, Mancelona, Alba nnd points south snow fell nearly all day. Coal and wood dealers have been rnshed with orders, most of them of the "hurry up" kind since Friday. The temperature has been near the frost line ever since.

* * * * * * * * * * *
* CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH *
* Rev. B. G. Mattson, Pastor *
* * * * * * * * * * *

Morning service at 10:30 a. m., with sermon by the pnstor, Rev. B. G. Mattson, D. D., on "The Patriotism of Christian Missions in the Home Land."

The congregation is asked to mnke n generous offering in support of our national budget for the home extension societies of the Congregational denomination.

Sunday school at 12:00 noon.

A special vesper sarvice will be held at 4:15 for the Ivanhoe Commandery No. 36, Knights Templar, of Petoskey. The commandery will attend in a body and conduct a Hospitalers service assisted by the pastor of the ehurch. This service will bo held in the Charlevoix Congregational ehureh and the general public is eordially invited.

Thore will be no evening service.

W. E. Parmelee builds storm windows.—Adv. 37-tf.

BUICK AND LIZZIE LOCK HORNS TUESDAY

Both Were Badly Smashed—Neither Driver Injured

An auto neeident which might have resulted fatally to the drivers of the two cars involved occurred yesterday afternoon at nhout three o'clock. The mishap took place on the Petoskey road, between the John Curtis and Marsa homes.

Byron Black of this city was driving toward Petoskey and upon reaching the cross road which leads to the second hole of the golf links, turning to the left, intent upon returning to his work on the course. Charles Barnhart, in a Buick roadster with a winter top was following closely behind Black, who was driving a Ford touring car, and, failing to put out his hand before making the turn, Barnhart evidentally became confused and turned in the same direction with the result that the two cars eame together.

The cars were a sorry looking sight. The Ford lost one wheel, fenders, running board, radius rods and, in fact, lost the entire front running gear. The Buick fared even worse with the two right hand wheels broken, the left hnnd running board and fenders smashed where the car turned over on them, and most the glass broken from the windows and windshield.

The mystery of the accident is the fact that neither of the drivers were even scratched. It looked impossible to anyone viewing the wrecked Buick, for a man to come out of the car uninjured. Both can consider themselves fortunate in not landing in the hospital.

STATE CONVENTION IN DETROIT SOON

Dr. Erdman of Princeton, To Be the Spiritual Leader

Dr. Charles R. Erdman of Princeton, New Jersey, Moderator of the Presbyterian church of the U. S. A., the highest position within this great church, is to be the spiritual leader of the 2,500 Sunday school delegates expected to be in attendance at the Detroit eonvention, November 3-4-5.

He is to direct the delegates in their worship in the St. John's Episeopal ehurch at 8:30 o'clock the seeond and third mornings. In addition to these hours he is scheduled to appear three times before the main session.

Sunday school superintendents and teachers, ministers, and young persons of senior high school and college age will find it a pleasure to "sit nt his feet" during these three days. Each county has a quota of delegates to send.

Special convention hotel rates have been obtained for registered delegates as has also an excursion rate on all steam railroads in Michigan. This special fare is obtainable only upon presentation of a certificate obtained through the local hooster, Wm. M. Sanderson, of R. 2, East Jordan, Michigan.

STATE TAX SET FOR CHARLEVOIX

County Must Pay $29,501.29 Into Treasury This Year

Charlevoix county's share of the Michigan state tax this year is $29,501.29, it is announced by County Treasurer J. W. Flanders. This nmount will be collected from tax payers of the county in December, commencing on the ninth and continuing to the ninth of January. After the latter date a premium is added for delinquency.

The state institutions receiving the large amounts are: Normal college, $1,231.43; Trnverse City State Hospital, $1,140.27; Kalamazoo State Hospital, $1,322.09; War loan Fund (1917), $414.34; New Jackson prison building, $828.69; Circuit Judges, $559.10; new State Normal School, $580.08; Home and Training School, $1,267.89; Jackson prison, $1,325.90; Western State Normal, $1,204.91; Michigan State College, $1,657.38; Soldier's Bonus Sinking Fund, $5,032.13; University of Michigan, $6,132.29.

Batteries recharged and repaired. Electrical work of all kinds. Bring your car troubles to us. Brown Battery Shop.—Adv. 39-tf.

ADOPTS A $2,750.00 ADVERTISING PROGRAM

Harbor Springs Lays Plaos for Big Seasoo's Work

Harbor Springs, as well as other northern Michigan resorts, have awakened to the fact that if they want a good resort business, they must go out after it. They have come to the conclusion that their town is NOT SOLD in advance, the idea as some residents of resort towns seem to carry.

They have added new pep to their commercial association and adopted a definite advertising program. Their budget is set at $2,750. They figure this will cover the expense of their year's activities. This amount will be apportioned as follows: Road signs $1,200; newspaper advertising $1,000; booklets and pamplets $300.00, and $250.00 for incidental expenses.

A committee of five was appointed to handle the publicity campaign. They have the water front park over there too, and cumtemplate converting their entire water front into a park.

Another committee was appointed to arrange for a generni clean-up week. All these plans were made at a recent meeting followed by a luncheon, held in the Emmet Hotel.

Go to it, neighbors, you are on the right track. The only way you will increase your resort husiness is by advertising your attractions. Charlevoix discovered this several years ngo and results have proven that our conclusions were right.

ODD FELLOWS OPEN NEW HALL

With Dancing Party and Light Refreshments

The new Odd Fellow's hall was officially opened to the public last Friday evening with a dancing party. The affair was an invitation dance with nearly one hundred and fifty people in attendance. The hall was very prettily decorated with toy balloons and Japanese lanterns, with dainty refreshments served during the course of the evening.

Members of the Odd Fellows certainly have hall to be proud of. The lay out and floor plan could not be better, rooms being large and well arranged. Upon reaching the landing at the top of the stairs, one is confronted with an array of doors. Access to all rooms may he gained from the hallway without passing through another room. To the right on the east side of the huilding are two club rooms, one for ladies and the other for men, a hall running from the top of the stairs leading to them, toilets connected with each. North of the club rooms and running to the east wall is a large dining room. The kitchen and property room are on the left of the dining room and can be entered from the hallway. A large and commodious lodge room takes up the entire west end of the building.

Athough the hall is yet to be furnished with new equipment, the quarters are such that any lodge might be proud to call their own. A program of entertainments are being planned for the winter months to which the public will be invited to attend.

* * * * * * * * * * *
* AT THE MOVIES *
* * * * * * * * * * *

"Wild Wild Susan"

The Paramount picture, "Wild, Wild Susan," which comes to the Palace Theatre next Tuesday and Wednesday is a New York story of a peppy society girl whose craving for adventure makes her the bane of her parents' existence nnd almost is the undoing of the city's police and fire departments.

Bebe Daniels is starred in the title role, with Rod LaRocque, as Tod Waterbury, a kindred wild, wild spirit, featured in support. From the time that Bebe complicates a traffic jam in lower Fifth avenue until, as a girl sleuth, she bags a gnng of "despernte bond thieves" in a haunted house, you discover thnt she is truly Wild, Wild Susnn. Fire trucks dash out of n side street and she leads the procession at top speed through the traffic for blogk after block, with cops, firemen and bystanders scared stiff.

New Tom Mix Picture Pretentious Production

Admirers of Tom Mix, with the inseparable Tony and the more recent co-star, Duke, the dog, will have the opportunity to see their favorite in a new wonder picture when "Teeth" comes to the Pnlace Theatre next Saturdny and Sunday. He appears as Dave Deering a happy-go-lucky wandering prospector, a lover of his horse Tony, nnd later a dog Duke, that he finds sorely wounded. From this point the story moves with intensified action, with many realistic scenes, one vivid feature being a real forest fire. It is an ideal vehicle for Mix.

"Teeth" was directed by J. G. Blystone for Willinm Fox and was adapted from "Sonny" the popular novel by Virginia Hudson Brightman.

Christiao Scieoce Society

Sunday service, 10:45 a. m., subject, "Doetrine of Atonement."

Sunday school, 12:00.

Wednesday evening service, 7:45 p. m.

Reading room open Tuesday and Saturday, 3:00 to 5:00 p. m.

The public is cordially invited to use our reading room and attend the services.

THE week days yesterday and tomorrow Use En-ar-co-Motor Oil today!
WHITE ROSE GASOLINE
COPYRIGHT 1917 THE NATIONAL REFINING CO. CLEVELAND, OHIO

Don't put it off. Your car will feel better, and you too.

THE AUTO SHOP
Phone 93 204 Mason St.

Arch Support
HAMILTON-BROWN SHOE CO. $5.00 MAKERS
ALL SOLID LEATHER
It's a Great Shoe For Only
$5.00
AT Campbell's

Milk helped to make Cleopatra beautiful!
STRAIGHT FROM THE SPHINX
YOUNG SAMSON learns that the fascinating flapper of the Nile kept beautiful because she drank plenty of milk! You can do likewise—only be sure of getting the best by leaving your orders with us.
MARION CENTER DAIRY
Pure Aerated Milk and Cream
CHARLEVOIX, MICH.

Charlevoix Hdw. Co.

AMMUNITION HEADQUARTERS

Guns, Shells, Hunting Coats and Jackets, Everything you need.

"You have tried the rest now buy the best"

Remington U.M.C. Shells
Loads for every purpose

Charlevoix Hardware Company
302 Bridge St Phone 1.

WE believe everyone
HAS a hobby of some KIND—with Ralph Priee
FOR instance, it's
A Young canning factory
AND with A. J. Stelter its ITS pickles and
RIGHT here in our STORE we've got another
EXAMPLE—as a rule
FORREST is pretty quiet
AND hasn't much to SAY, but just give HIM a Winchester Repeater
AND his dog Red and lead
HIM out where the
RABBITS are plentiful
AND you'll see him
IN a different light—
THAT'S his hobby—
WHICH makes us think
THAT there may be
OTHERS here in CHARLEVOIX who has
THE hunting hobby
AND if you're one of THEM, just remember
THIS fall and winter
THAT this is the WINCHESTER headquarters
WHERE you'll always FIND the right gun
AND the right ammunition
Forest & Clarence

WOOD BROTHERS
Hardware & Electrical Supplies

BATTERIES

WE HAVE THAT
$16.50
13-plate, Rubber Case Genuine
WILLARD

FITS FORDS — CHEVROLET — OVERLAND
MAXWELL — STAR AND OTHERS

Other Willard Batteries for all kinds of cars. If your battery is down, bring it to our battery shop for re-charging or repairs. We guarantee our service.

Benj. Brown Auto Sales
Phone 60

CHARLEVOIX COURIER

VOLUME 32. NUMBER 42. EIGHT PAGES COURIER, CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1925 PRICE $2.00 PER YEAR

BOARD ENDS A BUSY SESSION

COMPLETES ITS WORK LATE SATURDAY EVENING

Adopt Extensive 1926 Road Building Program—Numerous Appropriations Were Made

The Charlevoix County Board of Supervisors adjourned their annual October meeting on Saturday, having completed ull business nt hand. Many importnnt matters were threshed out und the meetings were productive of the usual amount of routine business and some important appropriutions and measures, among which are the following:

The Michigan Children's Aid Soelety of St. Joseph, Michigan, received a gift of $350.00 to aid in the carrying on of their work. The Hospital School for Crippled Children at Farmington, Michigan, received a like amount. Two hundred dollars was appropriated by the board to carry on the work of eradication of honey bee disenses in the county. The County Farm Bureau presented the necessity of T. B. eradication in the county and the sum of $1500.00 was appropriuted by the board for this purpose.

Hugh J. Gray, secretury of the Western Michlgnn Tourist and Resort Bureau, came before the board asking for an appropriation to aid in their work of ndvertising western Michigan resorts. The matter was given over to much discussion pro and con and no definite decision was arrived nt the first afternoon. A motion for the appropriation of $1000,00 was defeated by the board. The second motion for the sum of $750.00 carried, and the board voted this amount to the resort bureau for the purpose of advertising Charlevoix county as a whole.

The county road commission, in their report to the board, reported the construction of the following pieces of road during the year 1925: 1 mile on Boyne Falls and Deer Lake road, ½ mile on East Jordan-Central Lake road; 2 1-2 miles on East Jordan and Peninsula road; 1 1-6 miles on Horton Bny north rond; 3-4 mile of grade on Wilson road and 1 1-2 miles of class A gravel on Wildwood Harbor road. It was voted to raise n five mill tax, 1 1-2 mills more than has been authorized in previous years, for carrying on the road program for 1926.

The sum of $59,390:12 will be rnised from the five mill tax and will be expended as follows: Marion Center road, $7000.00; County Line road, $2,000.00; Boyne Falls east road, $5,000.00; Ironton south rond, $6,000.00; Trunk line 11-46, $1,500.00; Wildwood Hnrbor road, $4,000.00; Advance road, $8,000.00; maintenance, Eust Jordan district, $6,000.00, the bnlance to be used for generni mnintennnce nnd equipment.

It wus voted to ralse the sum of $29,695.06 for the county sinking fund to be used in retiring county road bonds, federal aided road bonds nnd interest thereon, and for no other purpose unless so authorized by the county sinking fund commssion.

It was voted hy the board to put the county superintendents of the poor on a salnry basis, the secretary to receive $600 and the other two superintendents $200.00 each.

The Chnrlevoix County Agricultural Society was given an appropriation of $1,000.00 by the board and 1-10th of a mill will be raised by taxation und turned over to the society for the payment of premiums at the fair and to defray other expenses. The board considered the work of the society of great educational benefit to the county and it should thus be encouraged.

In the report of the Ironton Ferry committee read to the hoard it wns brought out that the ferry was not of sufficient size to hnndle the traffic over it; the engine was nearly worn out and the approuches were in a dangerous condition and in need of much repair. It was also set forth it would be inadvisable to rebuild the ferry in its present condition. The ferry has been a source of great expense to the county for many years, last year $1800.00 being spent for gas and oil alone. The county hns stood this expense, making no charge for it use. It was decided by the board that it was high time for something to be done to remedy this condition and therefore the following action was taken. The Ironton ferry committee, composed of Jay Adums, Frank Wangeman and S. M. Rose were given full power to purchnse a new ferry, make necessary repairs to the approaches and adopt n toll system whereby the ferry will become self-supporting.

A petition to the state department of conservution to close Charlevoix county to deer hunting for a perlod

(Continued on Page 7)

EDITOR TAKES FALL OUT OF TODAY'S FLAPPER

An editor of a southern Michlgan paper takes a fall out of the present day "flnpper" and at the same time issue some friendly advice:

"Every time a new 'Miss America' is ehosen from a lot of beautiful girls she tells how to become beautiful—plenty of exercise, wash tho dishes, help around the house and usa this or that kind of beauty cream, ete. However, there still remain some far from perfect mugs on young ladies who have been fnllowing all this advice and who have not yet been ablo to eop any beauty prizes. We are wondoring what the trouble is? Yet believe It would be far better for America's young ladies to pay more attentlon to manners, conduct, sweetness of disposition and usefulness about the home than to their bobbed hair, face, bare knees and cuteness."

LEGION BUYS AYERS PROPERTY

TO BE MADE INTO HOME FOR WORLD WAR VETS

Will Be Arranged for Holding Public Meetings, Social Events and Place for Younger Set to Meet

A real estate transaction of no little importance to the community was consumated recently, whereby the Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226, American Legion, acquired the Martha Ayres property on the corner of State street and Hurlbut avenue. The Legion will take possession of the property on November 5th, but will take no action on making the place ready for occupancy before next spring.

It is the express purpose of the locnl post to remodel the house into a community hall which will be thrown open to the public, to provide n suitable place for public meetings of uny nature, give the so-called "waywnrd" boys and high school students a place where they can come and rend, play billiards and cards under proper supervision, in fact, a place where any organization with the public welfare as their aim enn hold their meetings nnd enjoy a social gathering.

The first, or ground flonr, will be mnde into club rooms with card tnbles, reading tables, shower baths, billiard tables and gymnasium equipment. The heating plant also to be installed on this floor. Partitions will be removed from the second floor and the spnce converted into one large room to serve for meetings of different organizations, social events such as dances, parties and the like, and nrranged so the furnishings may be moved to one side and eonvert the room into a large dance floor. The third story will be remodeled into elub rooms for both men and women.

The American Legion is to be congratulated for their spirit of community welfare and it is needless to say that their action will fill a long felt want in this community. There is hardly a city of its size anywhere that is so devoid of a place for public gatheringa as Charlovoix. People complain that their boys go to the pool rooms and spend their time, but where elsa have they to go? Now that a place is to be provided, let the public get behind the project and give it the support that it deserves.

Tune in On Station WFDF

Charlevoix radio fans are due for a pleasant evening's entertainment on Friday evening of thia week, when Mra. Roy I. MacArthur, (formerly Miss Mildred Ecklnger), will be among the entertalners whose voices will be broadeast from station WFDF, Flint. Mrs. MacArthur has a beautiful soprano voice and will appear several times on the evening's program.

Look out for the Rummage Sale on Bridge street Saturday, October 31st.—42t2.

WESTERN TRIP A GREAT DRIVE

HAMMOND'S NOW LOCATED IN LOS ANGELES

Writes Interesting Description of Twelve Days Drive and Country Passed Through

The Courier has received a very interesting letter from Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Hammond of this city, who left here on Sunday September 20, by auto for Los Angeles, California, where they will spend the winter. "Dit" must have hit the trail to make the trip in twelve days. The letter follows:

Los Angeles, Calif., Oct. 10.

Editor Courier: We arrived here a week ago last night and are nicely situated at 317 West 45th street. I will give you a little sketch of our trip.

Left Charlevoix at 7:30, Sunday, the 20th of September. Drove out to my mother's home at Ironton and bade her goodby. Left there at 8:30 via East Jordan and struck M-13 at or near Mancelona, thence on to Grand Rapids. We left Grand Rapids at 7:00 n. m. the following day and drove Holland, where we took M-11 through St. Joe and Benton Harbor on to Gnry, Indiana, and thence across to Chicago Heights and through Joliet, on to Aurora, Ill., where we arrived at 5:30 and spent the night.

Left Aurora at 8:30 n. m. Arrived nt Mooseheart the 22nd and stopped there nnd went through some of the buildings and drove through the grounds, leaving there at 11:00 a. m. Then on to Cedar Rapids, Iowa, arriving there at 6:00 p. m. We crossed a toll bridge over the Mississippi at Clinton.

Left Cedar Rapids at 7:30 the 23rd, driving to Council Bluffs, where we arrived at 6:30 p. m. Left Council Bluffs nt 7:00 a. m. the 24th, crossing the toll bridge over the Missouri river into Omaha. Looked over the city and then drove on to Lexington, Nebraska, arriving there at 5:16 p. m.

Left Lexington at 7:30 a. m. the 25th and on our way west drove through thousands of acres of sugar beets. Crossed the Nebraska-Colorado line at 2:00 p. m., arriving at Greeley, Colorado, at 6:15 p. m. Greeley is a city named after Horace Greeley, the author who wrote the hook "Go West Young Man, Go West."

Left Greeley at 7:15 a. m. the 26th, headed for Denver, where we arrived at 9:00 a. m., then through to Colorado Springs und on to Trinidad, where we put up for the night. Left Trinidnd at 9:00 a. m. tbe 27th and drove up the Raton Pass and over the mountains and down to Rutan, arriving there at 10 a. m. This was the first time the kids ever rode over the mountains, and they drew a long breath when tho trip ended at Santa Fe, where we arrived at 6:00 p. m.

Left Santa Fe at 8:00 a. m. the 28th and continued our journey to Albuquerque, New Mexico. The scenery along the road through this territory was very interesting.

(Continued on Page 7)

The Odd Fellows will give a dance Friday evening, October 23, in the I. O. O. F. temple, for Odd Fellows and Rebekahs. Invitations will be issued to outsiders. Music by "Blind Jim's" orchestra.—Adv. 42-t1.

KINO WORDS FOR TOURIST CAMP

CARETAKER BRADY REPORTS ON SEASON'S BUSINESS

Occupants Declare there is Not a Better Equipped or Managed Camp in United States

The season at the Charlevoix tourist camp is concluded for the year and after an interview with Manager Hugh Brady we will produce herewith a report of the camp's activities and business this past year. The camp has had a very successful year and from statements of pruise made by visitors is fulfilling the purpose for which it was intended in an excellent manner.

According to figures turned in to the city clerk's office by Manager Brady, 750 cars visited the park during the period included between May 9th and September 9th of this year. The occupants averaged four to a car, making the total visitors to the camp 3,000 for the season. Revenue derived from this traffic was $426.75. The tourist traffic was greatly curtailed during the month of August by propaganda and reports published by city dailies in the southern part of the state on the forest fire situation in the upper peninsula. It was stated by these papers that the condition was so serious that officials had halted traffic on the car ferries, not allowing them to carry tourists across the straits until fires were under control. This turned back many people who had planned visiting northern Michigan and took much revenue away from the various auto camps.

It can be readily seen from the above figures that in the course of a year or two the camp will be self-supporting without any additional help from the city. The main item in the expense nt the present time is the money expended for labor to put the camp in shape. Mr. Brady has been at the camp continually since last May doing work that had to be done. When all the necessary work is completed and the camp put in the shape it should be, a man will be needed to take care of it only three months in the year, revenue in the busy months being sufficient to take care of this item of expense and more besides.

Quite a few improvements will be made at the camp before the season of 1920. A new line fence on the west side of the grounds is now nearly completed. New septic tank and equipment will be instulled either this fall or in the spring, two more kitchens built and those now built have been housed in, the side being hung on hinges which may be lowered during rainy and stormy weather. This new feature was a novelty to visitors this summer and won much favorable comment. Tiling has been laid throughout the camp, and piped through to the lake. A big area of the camp has been leveled off and high spots filled in, also brush and trees have been cut and removed to make room for approximately 20 more cars, there being sufficient ground left, after being cleared, to make room for twice that number. A wood supply sufficient to last two years is neatly piled in handy places about the camp. Roy Brady made the camp this present of the old lumber taken from the former Charlevoix Fish company buildings now torn down.

Mr. Brady states that so fur no "kicks" have been received on the camp or its service from any of its patrons. They came from all parts of the United States and have visited most of the auto parks of the nation and seem unanimous in declaring Charlevoix's camp the best located, equipped and managed they have found in their travels.

CLEARWATER IS SURE BOOMING

So Writes Henry Hamlin Now Located in Southern City

Henry Hamlin, well known Charlevoix citizens who spends his winters in Florida, writes the Courier as follows, under date of October 10:

"No doubt some Charlevoix people wonder if we got through all right. We sure did and it was a continuous joy ride all the way down. We left Charlevoix on Tuesday, September 29, at 6:30 a. m., and were in Florida the following Sunday at 1:00 p. m. We were in Ohio the first night. Drove through Kentucky and Tennessee for two dnys in the rain.

"Clearwater is sure booming. Buildings going up everywhere you go in a radius of ten miles. Lumber has advanced $5.00 per thousand feet and other building material is climbing. There are 250 real estate men and women in Clearwater."

FIERCE STORM DOES DAMAGE

SENDS VESSELS SCURRYING IN-TO SHELTERED PORTS

Sign Boards, Telephone Poles and Lines Leveled—Great Loss Sustained by Orchard Owners

Charlevoix and northern Michigan were visited Monday by a storm which was termed by old-timers as the worst in years. A strong wind intermingled with snow flurries and a decided lowering in temperature has blasted all hopes of Indian summer prospects this fall.

The storm attained such a great velocity that it sent large as well as small craft scurrying to shelter in the various lake ports. Waves 20 to 30 feet high dashed against the concrete pier at Charlevoix with such force that they broke clear over the light house. Wharfs were ruined or badly damaged by the fury of the waves. The 102-foot elevator tower recently erected hy the Petoskey-Portland Cement Company was destroyed by the storm Monday morning and a box car blown from the tracks at the plnnt.

The mail hoat, Sanford and the sand sucker, Gen. Mead, laid in during the storm and navigation from this port was at a standstill until the fierce storm subsided, as was also the cnse with ports all along the lake. Car ferries and passenger steamers out of Grand Haven were all held in Monday.

Considerable damage was done in Charlevoix harbor, boats being blown from their mooring and fish net reels piled in a jumbled henp along the south shore of Round lake. Rowboats and wreckage was strewn all along the shores, and many a short-sighted boat owner is now reaping the toll of his carelessness is not securely sheltering his craft.

Farmers of the vicinity were dealt equally as hard n blow. Reports have been filtering in of silos blown down, telephone poles down with lines out of order, and all fruit remaining on the trees is now strewn about the ground, which will cause considerable financial loss to orchnrd owners.

MASONS AND THEIR FAMILIES INVITED

Hospitaler Services Sunday at Congregational Church

The Ivanhoe Commandery No. 36, Knights Templar of Petoskey, has accepted the invitation of the Congregational church and pastor to hold their Hospitaler service in the Congregational church here on next Sunday afternoon, October 25th, at 4:15. This meeting was postponed from last Sunday.

All Masons and their families are especially invited and the general public is heartily welcomed. The service will be conducted by the officers of the Commandery and the Hospitaler address will be given by Dr. Mattson, who received his temple degree in Mansfield, Ohio.

For all the news, read the Courier.

GET INTO LINE FOR PRIZE MONEY

VEGETABLE AND GRAIN SHOW OCTOBER 31

Charlevoix Merchants Offer Liberal Cash Prizes for Best Exhibits of Farm Products

Plans for the Vegetahle nnd Grain show—which will be held in Charlevoix on Snturday, October 31st, are rapidly nearing completion and everything is about set for the big event. The display will be made in the building formerly occupied by Fessenden's Drug store, corner Bridge street and Park avenue.

First and second prizes of $3.00 and $2.00 will be awarded on seven varieties of apples mentioned in an advertisement on page three of this issue, besides a prize of $1.00 for the best bushel of any distinct variety other than those named. First and second prizes are also offered on potatoes, beets, ruta hegas, carrots, onions, squash, pumpkins; six different varieties of grain; best roll of dairy hutter; best dozen of eggs; hest and most complete display of canned fruit and vegetables.

Besides awards mentioned on the articles above, the Argo Milling company will give a 25 pound sack of Occident flour for the best loaf of bread haked from Occident flour. The Charlevoix Co-Operative Assn. offers a 25 pound sack of King Midas flour for the hest loaf of bread and the same for the best pan of buns made from King Midas flour. Along with these special prizes, S. M. See & Sons, Wood Brothers and the Charlevoix Hardware company have offered $2.00 in trade at their stores for the best loaf of bread baked with a Perfection oil stove, Hot-Shot electric range and New Process oil stove, respectively.

Entries may be made from Friday afternoon until Saturday morning at 9:00 a. m. It is very important to the success of the show that entries are not made later than the hour designated. Much time will be taken in arranging the displnys and getting things in shnpe for judging and it can be readily seen that confusion and unnecessary delays can be avoided if fnrmers are prompt about bringing in their displays.

After the judging has taken place and awards determined, an auction sale will be held and the articles on display sold to the highest bidder. Exhibitors will receive the money from their nrticles after they are auctioned off. This feature is entirely optional with those making the displays, whether they care to have their goods nuctioned or not.

A complete list of prizes, amounts and nrticles which they are to be given on may he found an page three of this paper. Look them over carefully and you will see that they are well worth your time in preparing and plneing an exhibit on display, not to mention the many special bargains which will be offered hy local merchants on this day of days. Farmers, we expect to see you one and all. Bring the family with you nnd enjoy the day in Charlevoix. Don't forget the date, Saturday, October 31st.

CAMP FIRE GIRLS ENJOY HOUSE PARTY

McCann's Norwood Home Scene of Annual Banquet

The Norwood home of Mr. and Mrs. John McCann was the scene of a very enjoyable event last Thursday evening, the occasion being the annual banquet of the locnl Camp Fire Girls.

The house was very prettily decornted in the Camp Fire colors, orange and brown nnd dninty place cards marked the places at the tables. The dinner was one that will long linger in the minds of the participants. Games nnd dancing formed the amusement for the remainder of the evening, the girls attending voting the affair a decided success.

Those In attendance were the Misses Jesse Allen, Lucille Usher, Mary McCann, Gwen Geneit, Irene McCnnn, Geraldine Halverson, Lila Heise, Marian Bartlett, Noreen Moran, Madelon Lemieur, Dorothy Withers, Helen Smith, Fern Crandall, Arleen Supernaw, Frenchy Martin, Dorothy Fairchild, Myrtle O'Neill and their guardian, Miss Duprey.

W. E. Parmelee builds storm windows.—Adv. 37-tf.

Foiled Again

CORRESPONDENCE

PHELPS

Mrs. Koo Klooster of Ellsworth, was a caller in Phelps, Friday afternoon.

James Bognrt of Charlevoix, was a business caller in our burg Tuesday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Boss and family of Barnard, were dinner guests at the F. R. Klooster home Sunday.

Fred Mason and Chas. Mascho are putting in concrete floors and installing drinking cups in their stables.

Jack Jardine of Charlevoix, spent Saturday night and Sunday at the H. L. Francisco home, visiting his wife and two-weeks-old son.

The O'Neill farm has been sold to a party from Walloon Lake, and it is reported that the new owners will take possession at once.

Mr. and Mrs. Fabican Ecklund and Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Klooster and children attended the revival meeting in Ellsworth, Sunday evening.

Leslie Klooster, who attends high school at Ellsworth, is spending a week at home, the school in Ellsworth being closed for potato digging.

Miss Bernice Smalley, who has been quite ill with tonsilitis, is much improved at the present writing. Margie Manley is quite ill witb the same disease.

Philo Mascho, whose health has been very poorly for the past ten months, but was some improved during the summer months, is reported at this time to be very ill.

Miss Jennie Hoogewerf, who has been a clerk at the Klooster store for the past year and a half, has resigned her position and will journey southward for the winter months.

Mrs. Harold Hill has returned to her home in Bellaire, after a two week's visit with her sisters, Mrs. Chns. Stevens and Mrs. Ralph Klooster, also her brother, Marion Jackson of Ironton.

Tom Matchett, an old-time resident of this place and now of Detroit, made a ten day visit here with friends and relatives. We are always glad to see Tom's smiling face, so come again.

Arthur Walker moved onto the Charlevoix Lumber Co. farm, recently occupied by Mr. Vandenberg. Mr. Vandenberg and Mr. Nichols have about fifty head of cattle to be housed and fed there this winter.

Elmer West started for Ponca City, Oklahoma, Thursday morning of last week. Mr. West is from the south and naturally when our country begins to dress in "white" his longing for the southern sunshine sends him traveling that way.

Cornelius Vandenberg has moved his family to the George Nichols farm near the Miles school. Friends and neighbors regret to see the Vandenbergs leave our community, but are consoled with knowing what is our loss is someone else's gain.

We are selling a genuine 13-plate rubber case Willard Battery for $16.50. Benj. Brown Battery Shop. Adv. 39-tf.

NORWOOD

Glen Holecheck of Norwood, left last week for Flint.

Vern Sarasin left for Saginaw for the winter last week.

George Light is building an addition to his house in Norwood.

Mrs. Henry Wagner of Charlevoix, attended church services at Norwood Sunday.

Mrs. Eva Pearl, formerly of Muskegon Heights, visited Mr. and Mrs. William Alward last week.

Mrs. Joe Holecheck, who has been visiting in Detroit and Flint is expected home this week.

Mr. and Mrs. William Alward and also Mrs. William Mayne made a business trip to Petoskey last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Richardson, while on their trip last week visited Mr. Schriner, of Frankenmuth, Mich.

Mr. and Mrs. McGuire, who have lived on the Gennett farm for the past two years, have moved to Central Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Colen McKenzie and family of Charlevoix, visited Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Richardson and family Sunday evening.

Mrs. A. Stafford of Charlavoix, is visiting her son, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Stafford and her daughter, Mrs. Floyd Wagner and family, this week.

Mrs. Haskins left last Saturday morning for Grand Rapids, where she expects to visit her daughters, Mrs. Albert Parsons and family and also Mrs. Clarence Boomstra and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Jones received word last Wednesday of the death of their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Robert Jones of Port Huron. Besides her husband, Robert, she leaves an infant one week old and two other small children. Robert Jones was formerly a Norwood boy and this vicinity extends their heartfelt sympathy in his bereavement.

EAST CHANDLER

Mr. and Mrs. John Eastwood were Wolverine callers Saturday.

Miss Alta Allen spent the week end with Miss Hazel Kurtz.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Hughes were business callers at Boyna City on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hager of Petoskey, visited at the Carl Clark home Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Georga Hager from near Clarion, visited at the home of Will Hugbes, Sunday.

Ralpb Odell of Coldwater, Mich., has been visiting his nephew, Carl Clark, the past week.

BARNARD.

Rather wintry at tbe present writing.

The grange will giva a box social at the ball on Friday evening. All are welcome.

Mrs. Henry Petter bad tha misfortune to have her ailo blown down in the big wind atorm Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Zylstra and daughter, Alice, nlso Geo. Petter, motored to Zeeland and other southern Michigan points last Saturday, for a week or ten days stay.

A finc 8 pound boy arrived at tha Clarcnce Beattie home on Friday evening. His name is Harold Vernon.

Courier Want Ads pay.

Treat Colds Externally

For sore throat, bronchitis or deep chest colds, rub Vicks VapoRub briskly over throat and chest and cover with warm flannel.

Vicks acts in two ways—both direct: absorbed like a liniment and inhaled as a vapor. A quick relief for the cold troubles of all the family.

VICKS VAPORUB

OVER 21 MILLION JARS USED YEARLY

BACK OF A GOOD NAME

Rarely in manufacturing history has a name entrenched itself so firmly in the confidence of the entire world as the name Dodge Brothers.

Everywhere and to everyone this name means but one thing: a product built honestly of the best available materials and sold at a just price.

Behind this product, this price and this enviable reputation lie certain impressive and fundamental facts.

So important is a knowledge of these facts to the motor car buyer that Dodge Brothers, Inc., have determined to publish them, from time to time, until every newspaper reader in America may be presumed to have read them:

Dodge Brothers, during the past eleven years, have built and sold more than one million four hundred thousand motor cars—and more than 90% of these cars are still in service. This record requires no comment. It stands impressively alone in motor car history.

It has never been Dodge Brothers policy to build yearly models. When an improvement, that is really an improvement, is discovered, it is made at once. Their slogan, "Constantly Improved But No Yearly Models" is familiar the world over.

Dodge Brothers build one chassis and only one. This policy materially lowers manufacturing cost. It also enables Dodge Brothers engineers to concentrate their entire time and thought on the betterment of this one type.

Dodge Brothers have never had an "off year" or an "off car." This is because they have never used the public as a testing ground for "new models" or lowered the quality of their product in the slightest degree. Every change has been an improvement on the original design.

Dodge Brothers pioneered in building the first all-steel open car and the first all-steel closed car. These epochal developments have saved Dodge Brothers owners many millions of dollars by materially prolonging motor car life and by effecting marked economies in manufacture. This construction has also reduced incalculably the danger from accident and fire.

Dodge Brothers sell directly through their dealers to the purchaser. There are no sectional distributing agencies to increase the cost of distribution and the cost of the car.

Dodge Brothers have never given so-called "free service." The car is sold at a fair and honest price. Nothing is added to this original purchase price to pay for service that the owner may never need.

Dodge Brothers Dealers were pioneers in unanimously adopting the flat rate service system. By this system, the owner knows in advance what any service job will cost. There are no unpleasant surprises in his bills

The sturdiness and long life of Dodge Brothers Motor Car is reflected in its resale value. Comparatively few Dodge Brothers Motor Cars are advertised in the resale columns of the newspapers. The values they bring testify unanswerably to their goodness—and the public's belief in their goodness.

The time has passed when transient novelties can lead a thoughtful buyer to overlook the great essentials of motor car worth. A few of these essentials, outlined above, go far to explain why Dodge Brothers name is accepted, the world over, as the hall mark of dollar-for-dollar value.

DODGE BROTHERS, INC.
DETROIT

NEIGHBORS

BY ROBERT STEAD

AUTHOR OF "THE COW PUNCHER," "THE HOMESTEADERS."

COPYRIGHT BY ROBERT STEAD

CHAPTER VIII

It was the first day of August of that first year on the prairies that Jack and I hitched the oxen to the wagon, threw on board a kit consisting mainly of a change of clothes and a blanket for each of us, said a brave but undemonstrative good-by to the girls, and turned our faces to the older settlements. We were setting forth to earn what money we could during the short season of high wages. Our own out field could wait; we would cut it for feed, anyway, and a little frost wouldn't matter.

We Were Setting Forth to Earn What Money We Could During the Short Season of High Wages.

On the second day out, as we halted on the side of a little knoll to let the oxen graze and to eat our lunch, we were suddenly aware of the rumble of an approaching vehicle and the tones of a lusty voice, lifted in something evidently intended for song. Even before we had identified the "flyin' ants" we caught the burden of the refrain—

"Lived a min-er, a forty-nine-er,
An' his daugh-ter, Swee' Marie."

"It's Jake, of all the world!" shouted Jack, and together we rushed down upon him. His pudgy form, sheltered from the hot sun by a broad felt hat, lolled on one end of the seat of his democrat.

"Hello!" was his greeting. "Dang it, stand still a minute, you plebald lump o' fox-bait!"—this to one of the broncbos, switching at a horse-fly—"don' you know your friends when you meet 'em? Well, how goes it on the gopher ranch?"

We shook hands and made him stop and eat with us.

Jake was fresh charged with Regina gossip, and that of the country for two hundred miles around. The settlers were streaming in, he said, but the country was so big it was just like pouring water into the sea. "Only more profitable," he added, thumping his hip pocket.

"This locatin' game is like a pint flask—all right while it lasts, but it don' get anywhere," Jake continued. "I've made some lumps o' easy money, but while I was doin' it other fellers that I brung into the bald-headed were busy bustin' the sod, an' today, dang me, they're better off 'n I am. Fellows with no more brains than a grindstone! Got a farm an' stock an' a wife an' kids, an' let me tell you, them last genooine col-

WRIGLEY'S
AFTER EVERY MEAL
THE FLAVOR LASTS
Probably one reason for the popularity of WRIGLEY'S is that it lasts so long and returns such great dividends for so small an outlay. It keeps teeth clean, breath sweet, appetite keen, digestion good.
Fresh and full-flavored always in its wax-wrapped package.
WRIGLEY'S P-K CHEWING CONFECTION
P-K
1925

laterals. So I figgers to myself, 'Jake, you've trod the primrose cow-path, or whatever it is, long enough. It's time to get down to business.'

"Yep," said Jake, taking a fresh mouthful of tobacco to give his words time to sink in. "After I saw you fellows trailin' those two fine girls out into the bald-headed I says to myself, 'Jake, this one-horse business is out o' date. Better get into double harness.' So bein' a man of action I wrote out an ad an' put it in a big paper in the States. Here it is:"

Jake unfolded a scrap of paper from a notebook in which he kept a list of vacant quarter sections and handed it to us to read.

WANTED—Wife, about 18 hands high, chestnut preferred, sound in wind and limb and built for speed. Good looks not necessary; I'm pretty enough for two. Jake, 148 ——— St., Regina, Canada.

"Do you mean to say any fish rose to such a bait as that?" Jack demanded skeptically.

"Fish? Shoals of 'em. Say, in about four days I begun to get as much mail as a new millionaire. An' photographs! I wish I had some to show you, but she—Bella—burned 'em all up. They were what I call pictures o' real life. I got so much mail the postman says to me, 'What ya doin', Jake; startin' a lottery?' an' I says 'Yep.' Guess I wasn't far out, at that.

"Well, just as I was thinkin' o' goin' to a business college an' hirin' a few dozen stenographers, along comes this telegram." He produced a yellow sheet.

"Meet me at Regina station Thursday five p. m. you'll know me I am the only one in the world. Bella Donna."

"Well, I reckons right off that Bella Donna is an alibi, or whatever you call a false name, an' that some o' the boys is pulling a gag on me, but like a fool down I goes to the station, an' there I sew her comin' right up the platform like a sandhill crane out of a marsh. I knew her, jus' like she said, so when she comes up I calls her hand.

"'Madam,' says I, 'are you the lady o' the porous plaster?'

"'I'll plaster you,' says she, 'if you give me any o' yer lip. But do you happen to know a Mr. Jake?' says she, gettin' out a paper; 'here's his address.'

"'Know him!' says I. 'I should say so. An' in case you're thinkin' o' marryin' him let me tell you something, just between friends. Jake buries a wife once a year, regular.'

"'He does, eh?' says she. 'Well, I'm promisin' I'll be a relic before he's a widower,' says she. 'Relic' is what she said, but it didn't sound right to me.

"'That's bettin' on a cinch,' says I, 'seein' that she would get the red ribbon for relics at Regina fair already, but my wit goes over her head, as it often does, an' she comes back at me with 'Wha'd' you know 'bout anybody marryin' Mr. Jake?'

"'Everythin', says I, humpin' my wishbone with importance. 'Jake tells me everythin'. I'm his spiritooal adviser, so to speak, which includes matrimony. The women that wants to marry Jake—lots of 'em rich, too, madam,' I says. 'I'm steerin' him clear o' them every day,' I says, 'partly out o' sympathy for them, on account o' his—his severe habits,' I says.

"'Who are you, anyway?' says she, an' with that I flashes my telegram on her. 'I'm the party of the first part,' says I, as they say in the law offices.

"'So you're Jake,' she says, pullin' herself up till all her angles stood out like the bannches of a starved mustang. 'Well, you got a h—l of a nerve', she says.

"I begun to think maybe she was about right, but she gave me no time for reflections.

"'Where's a preacher?' she says. 'You wanted speed, an' yer goin' to get it.' With that she hustled me over town an' had me married before I knew it, so I'd have to settle for the supper, as I figgered it out afterward. Then after supper we go to my shack an' she climbs into my business papers like a hound after garbage.

"'Wha'd' you do for a livin', may I ask?' she says.

"'Do!' says I, musterin' all my dignity. 'I'm a specialist—a specialist in land. I know the sections with the weak lungs an' the broken knees an' the spavined joints, an' if a man pays me enough I put him wise, an' if he don' I let him get wise at his own expense,' says I. 'I'm a specialist, an' I charge like a specialist,' I says.

"'Humph!' says she, jus' like that. 'Between your fine words I figger that you pick up a dollar now an' again by totin' these tenderfoot sod-busters out over the bald-headed.' I dunno where she got it, but she had all the language necessary, an' more. 'Let me see your bank book,' she says.

"So I dug it up, an' it showed a balance in my favor of forty-three dollars an' twenty cents. Fortunate there was nothin' in it about the hundred dollars I owed at the livery stable for the board o' the flyin' nags, but I let sleepin' dogs lie, as the sayin' is.

"'How old are you, Jake, dear?' she says, all of a sudden as smooth as oil.

"'Forty-three,' I says, perhaps because that was the figger in my mind at the moment, an' I was shavin' it a little, at that.

"'Then you've made a dollar a year—so far,' says she, dropping back to her nat'ral voice that kind o' sounds like two railwheels an' you between 'em. 'You'll die before you're sixty,' she says; 'I can see it in your eyes,' although I wasn't lookin' at her, thinkin' that rather painful, 'an' leave an estate o' less than sixty dollars. Jake, that wouldn't buy me an outfit for the funeral, for believe me I'm goin' to do you justice when the time comes. We're goin' to take a homestead.'

"'Not me,' I says. 'The seat o' my democrat is as near as I want to get to a homestead. They're all right for sod-busters, but for a woman o' culture—'

"I thought that would get her, but she was as nervous to compliments as an ox to an oration, so to speak.

"'Very well,' says she. 'If you won't take a homestead, I will.'

"'You can't,' says I, with sudden boldness. 'You ain't a widow.'

"With that she gives me another o' those through-the-gizzard-and-nailed-to-the-wall looks o' hers. 'I will be, in about twenty-seconds,' she says, 'if there's any more discussion,' she says. So here we are."

"Have you located?" I asked Jake, when he was silent for a minute, and seemed to have dropped off into meditation.

"Yep. It was easy for me, knowin' as I do ev'ry willow between the Souris an' the Saskatchewan."

We expressed the hope that Bella Donna would prove a sticker.

"She will," Jake prophesied. "Of course, that ain't her real name; I jus' gave you that for—for instance, an' her first name's Bella, so it's half true, which is a pretty good average in this country. Wait 'til you see us, a-chariotin' behind the flyin' ants over to Fourteen an' Twenty-two. I'm figgerin' on organizin' a school district right away."

We gave Jake our blessing and watched him ride off in his wobbly democrat with its spring seat uptilted to starboard and his fat figure settling down like a sack with a hat on it.

Sitting on the grassy knoll, digesting our lunch by the aid of the straws which each of us was unconsciously chewing, we watched Jake until he was a speck in the distance.

"What do you make of it?" said I at last.

"I'm not saying," was Jack's cautious rejoinder. "Either he's married, or he isn't."

But we had occasion to be thankful we had fallen in with Jake, for he had been able to direct us to a farmer within a day's drive who hired both us and our oxen for the harvest, or until the beginning of threshing.

It was the middle of October, and there was a crisp tang in the air night and morning, before we again hit the trail for Fourteen and Twenty-two. During all this time we had no word from our homes, as there was no one to carry mail in or out, and it was with anxious and eager hearts that we hurried Buck and Bright along the homeward winding trail.

On the second day, as we were bowling along at the two-and-a-half-mile-an-hour clip which Buck and Bright considered the limit of furious driving, Jack drew my attention to a speck on the horizon ahead of us. It grew rapidly, and although there was no mirage this time to bring our visitor down from heaven, we soon were able to discern the scarlet uniform of the mounted police. It came along at the smart trot to which the police horse is educated, and in half an hour Harold Brook drew up beside us.

"Hello, Lone and Hall!" the policeman greeted us. "Getting back from your harvest excursion?"

So it was evident he knew we had been away, and why. But Jack, whether he thought of this or not, answered him cordially.

"We're on the home stretch," he admitted, "and old Fourteen and Twenty-two will look pretty good to us, after cook cars and cabooses."

The lightest kind of a smile flickered about Brook's lips. "And so it should," he agreed, "with two fine girls such as adorn your respective homesteads. I was in the district last night."

"Were the girls well?" I forced myself to say, partly because I felt my silence was beginning to shout, and partly because of a real anxiety about them.

"I believe so. I didn't see them, myself; came in by the south and landed first with your neighbor, Spoof. Capital chap; I stayed overnight with him, and smoked up nearly all of his English tobacco. At breakfast I finished his last jar of marmalade, so if Spoof is flying a flag of distress when you reach home you will know the cause of it. Imagine an Englishman without marmalade—breakfast without marmalade! My dear fellow, I'm English myself, and I—I assure you it isn't done."

"But the girls?—" I persisted.

(Continued next week)

Electric light bulbs that give service at Charlevoix Hardware Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

The Closing Event of Charlevoix's Summer and Fall Activities

VEGETABLE AND GRAIN SHOW

Under auspices of the Charlevoix Association of Commerce and Local Business Men

Saturday, October 31

ALL DAY AND EVENING

As the closing event of a season filled with unusual and delightful entertainment for the thousands of tourists and summer visitors who visited Charlevoix during the summer and early fall, the Charlevoix Association of Commerce and Local Business Men will sponser a Vegetable and Grain Show, on the above date, for the benefit of residents of the rural district. They will not only entertain them all day, but have put up a purse of money to be distributed as prizes for the best display of Grains, Vegetables and other Farm Products. The show will be held in the building formerly occupied by Fessenden's Drug Store, corner Bridge street and Park avenue, known to old settlers as the Blanchard Hardware Store building.

Music in Afternoon by Charlevoix Band

Charlevoix's Band will furnish music during the afternoon, and in the evening will conduct a dance at Lakeside Pavilion. There will be something doing every minute of the day and evening.

List of Articles and Premiums Offered:

APPLES

	1st	2nd
Best bushel of apples	$3.00	$2.00
Varieties—Spy, Wagner, Snow Wealthy, King, Greening, Baldwin.
	1st	2nd
Best distinct variety other than above	$1.00

POTATOES

	1st	2nd
Best bushel	$3.00	$2.00
Varieties—Rural Russett, Irish Cobbler, Long

BEETS

	1st	2nd
Best bunch of six	$2.00	$1.00
Varieties—Table, Sugar and Mangle

RUTA BAGAS

	1st	2nd
Best bunch of six	$1.00	.50

CARROTS

	1st	2nd
Best bushel	$2.00	$1.00

ONIONS

	1st	2nd
Best bushel, yellow and red	$2.00	1.00

SQUASH

	1st	2nd
Best three	$2.00	$1.00
Yellow and Green

PUMPKIN

	1st	2nd
Best three	$2.00	$1.00
Pie and Common Field

GRAIN

	1st	2nd
Corn, best bushel ears	$3.00	$2.00
Varieties—white, red and Yellow
	1st	2nd
Wheat, best peck	$2.00	$1.00
White and red
	1st	2nd
Oats, best peck	$2.00	$1.00
	1st	2nd
Rye-Rosen, best peck	$2.00	$1.00
	1st	2nd
Buckwheat, best peck	$2.00	$1.00
	1st	2nd
Beans, best peck	$2.00	$1.00
Pea, kidney, large white

FARM PRODUCTS

	1st	2nd
Butter, best 2lb. roll	$2.00	$1.00
	1st	2nd
Eggs, best dozen	$2.00	$1.00
White and brown
	1st	2nd
Canned Fruit and Vegetables best and most complete display	$5.00	$3.00

Note—First and Second prizes will be given for each variety in all classes named.

Special Prizes For Bread and Bun Makers

The Argo Milling Co. will give a 25 pound sack of Occident Flour for the best loaf of Bread made from Occident Flour.

The Charlevoix Co-Operative Association will give a 25 pound sack of King Midas Flour for the best loaf of Bread and also for the best pan of Buns from King Midas Flour.

S. M. See & Sons offer a prize of $2.00 in trade for the best loaf of bread baked in a Perfection Oil Stove.

Wood Brothers offer a prize of $2.00 in trade for the best loaf of Bread baked in a Hot Shot Electric Range.

The Charlevoix Hardware Co. offer a prize of $2.00 in trade for the best loaf of bread baked in a New Process Oil Stove.

MAKE YOUR ENTRIES EARLY

Entries may be made from Friday, October 30, at 1:30 p. m. up to nine o'clock in the forenoon on Saturday, October 31. This time limit is made so there will be plenty of time to place the exhibits and do the judging.

FREE AUCTION SALE IN AFTERNOON

W. E. Byers, the popular auctioneer, will sell at auction any exhibit made FREE OF CHARGE, if the owner so desires. All moneys received from goods sold at auction will be given to the person owning the goods.

Special Bargains Offered By Charlevoix Merchants

Saturday, October 31, will be gala day for bargains in Charlevoix. Local merchants are determined to make the Vegetable and Grain Show an event that will long be remembered. Bargains that will make you "sit up and take notice" are to be they offering they make. Every live merchant in the city is hacking the the committees in their work. Dollars will have a wonderful purchasing power on this date. Watch the columns of the local newspapers next week for their offerings.

BRING THE WHOLE FAMILY WITH YOU

Charlevoix merchants and citizens extend an invitation to every rural resident, also to those in neighboring cities and villages, to spend the day here. If you are a producer of farm products, enter the contest for premiums, which are liberal ones. If you have nothing to enter, come anyway. Charlevoix bids you welcome.

"He Was a Slick Talker"

"For he talked me out of my savings, and he talked me into his worthless promotion. I had his guarantee that the company would buy back the stock at any time."

That is the experience of thousands of people—victims of the glib stock salesman.

Had they only known the facts—known that the promised big profits on a sure-thing promotion were only a dream, that dependable investment houses never "guarantee" to buy back their stock, they would never have lost their savings. But they didn't and they lost.

To those about to invest, the experience of others should serve as a warning.

Know the facts—know for a certainty whether or not an investment is safe and the income assured.

Consult your banker. He will assist you in making your investment.

Charlevoix State Savings Bank

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

W. S. Richardson, President.
A. D. Crimmins, Vice President.
Archie Livingston, Cashier.
G. W. Richardson, Asst. Cashier.

EXTRA SPECIAL SALE

Womens and Misses 4 Buckle Arctics

Due to a misunderstanding with one of our largest rubber mills, we have just received by mistake an extra shipment of 84 pairs of women's nnd Misses' 4-buckle Arties. Rather thun to send them buck we are offering to the women and Misses of Charlevoix, for a short time only, at special prices of all sizes and for all heels. The regular price of these Artics is $3.65 and $3.35, so you can see the money we are offering to snve you if you act at once. The stock is fresh from the mills. A half dollar is worth saving, surely.

$3.19 and $2.95

CAMPBELL BOOT SHOP

The CHARLEVOIX COURIER
Issued every Wednesdny at
CHARLEVOIX - MICHIGAN

DuBois & Usher, Publishers
A. J. Usher, Editor and Business Mgr.
Courier Building Van Pelt Place

Entered at the Post Office in Charlevoix, Mich., as second class matter.

Member Michigan Press Ass'n.

Advertising Rates.

For advertising rates apply for schedule.

Notices of church or lodge socials and entertainments, where admission is charged, regular rates.

Obituary poetry, regular rates.

Card of Thanks, 25 cents.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

One copy, one year.....$2.00
One copy, six months.....$1.00
One copy, three months..... .60

WILL HOLD A DISTRICT GLEANER RALLY

Four-County Assembly Scheduled for Evening of October 24

For the past two weeks Alta M. Crampton and Elizabeth Bennett of the Gleaner Lecture Bureau, Detroit, have been working among the Gleaner orders of this district for a Gleaner rally, and they announce that the Ancient Order of Gleaners of Emmet, Cheboygan, Charlevoix and Antrim counties will hold a four-county Gleaner assembly and class initiation in the Odd Fellow temple, Petoskey, Saturday, October 24, at 7:30 p. m.

Opening and introductory degree by Ironton Arbor, Adoption degree by Globe Arbor; closing ceremony by Ironton Arbor.

Lecture hour progrnm: Singing of America by all; nddress of welcome, George North of Alanson Arbor; response, Charles Murphy of Ellsworth Arbor; vocal solo, Mrs. Viola Derby, Aloha Arbor, reading, Mrs. Frank Dietz of Eveline Arbor; song, ladies of Enterprise Arbor; rending. Miss Lucia Bellamy, secretary, National Gleaner Lecture Bureau, Ionia, address, Herbert F. Baker, Cheboygnn, member Supreme Council.

A pot luck supper will be served at the close of the meeting.

HOPES TO BUILD PRESENT SEASON

New Owner of Lake Shore Frontage Visits Charlevoix

H. J. Wright, president of the Muyfield Woolen Mills, Mayfield, Kentucky, has returned to his home after spending a week in the city, n guest of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Graves.

Mr. Wright is the recent purchaser of the two nnd one-half acre tract of lake frontage at the west end of the city park. Several days were spent during his visit here arranging building plans for his contemplated new summer home. While present plans are not completed, nor hns a contract been awurded for the building, Mr. Wright hopes to complete the necessary work in time to break ground for the new structure this fall.

The recently acquired tract hns a frontuge of 350 feet on Park uvenue, and is considered one of the most benutiful building sites on the lake shore frontage.

If your battery is run down or needs repairs, bring it to our battery shop. Work guaranteed. Brown Battery Shop.—Adv. 39-tf.

*** * * * * * * * * * ***
 CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH ***
 Rev. B. G. Mattson, Pastor ***
*** * * * * * * * * * ***

Morning service at 10:30 with sermon by the pastor on "The Gospel Enterprise in the Homeland," a missionary address with important facts and graphic illustrations. An offering for Congregational home missions will be asked for. Come prepared to give.

12 m., Sunday school.

2:30 p. m., church service at Ironton.

4:15 p. m., a special vesper Hospitaler service for Ivanhoe Commandery, Knights Templar, postponed from last week. All Masons and their families are invited. Dr. Mattson will give the address.

7:00 p. m., this church unites with the other churches in the union meeting at thu M. E. church in the interest of the Anti-Saloon League. The film, "Lest We Forget," a high grude production, will be presented by moving picture machine and the address will be by Dr. Holsaple of Lansing. Admission free—the public is cordially invited.

The man who watches the clock while on duty detests leap year on account of that extra dny he has to work.

NATIONAL HEALTH AIM OF RED CROSS PROGRAM

Nurses Guard Community Health; Home Hygiene and Nutrition Featured.

The increasing appreciation by the American people of the value of a national health structure is reflected in the comprehensive machinery built up by the American Red Cross and kept in constant operation in the past year, in the interest of national health.

Instruction in home hygiene and care of the sick, in nutrition; inspection of school children, the maintenance of an effective nursing service, all formed a part of the Red Cross organization assisting in keeping America well.

Altogether 51,121 students were instructed in home hygiene and care of the sick, including 31,430 school students, of whom 20,381 received certificates. This work reached the Girl Scouts, Camp Fire Girls and Girl Reserves; also telephone companies, public and private schools, community and industrial groups. An unusual fact of this service was its adaptation to the needs of the blind, through transcription of the text book in Braille print.

The year's work also demonstrated a growing understanding and appreciation on the part of Red Cross field representatives, chapters, co-operating agencies and others, of the place of nutrition in community programs; looking to community health.

There were 2,800 dietitians enrolled during the year; regular nutrition instruction reached 138,065 children; 20,359 adults attended nutrition meetings, while 1,885 schools were aided in furnishing lunches.

Co-operative relationships were established with various Government and educational agencies in making this branch of the Red Cross health work more effective.

Another of the health-promoting activities of the Red Cross lies in its public health nursing service. There are nearly 1,000 such nurses serving in every part of the country.

As an invaluable reservoir in time of a great national emergeacy, there is enrolled under the Red Cross banner a reserve of 42,002 nurses. In a number of disasters during the past year in which the Red Cross has aided, and where the services of the nurses were required, they have been among the first to mobilize.

At Lorain, O., last year 34 enrolled Red Cross nurses were engaged in relief work, while 124 were employed in the mid-west tornado disaster relief operation of this year. The work of Mrs. Dorothy Davis Sleichter, a Red Cross public health nurse stationed at Fairbanks, Alaska, in checking a flu epidemic at Fort Yukon, in the Arctic, has won praise from all who knew of it.

It is to assist in maintaining such valuable services to the community that the American Red Cross invites members during its ninth annual roll call, November 11 to 26, the only such appeal which the Red Cross makes in the year.

*** * * * * * * * * * ***
 METHODIST CHURCH ***
*** * * * * * * * * * ***

"The Benediction of a Crowned Ministry." Sermon theme next Sunday at 10:30 a. m. This is the fifth in the post-resurrection series. Always good music and a cordial welcome at all our services.

The church is providing its winter fule. It is good business to be forehanded. Nearly every one wants to have this enrly provision for bitter weather made. A good beginning has already been secured. It is desired to finish this matter at once, and a few minutes will be taken in the morning service to permit any not otherwise solicited to help. See Oluf Nordrum, or any member of the official board if you are interested.

A grent union service at 7:00 p. m. The other churches of the city are uniting with us for this great evening. Mr. Holsaple, representing the Anti-Saloon League will show a very interesting moving picture entitled, "Lest we forget." The Methodist pastor has been seen this picture nnd highly recommends it as a picture that is true to other days, and will stir the hearts of those who see it. The service is free. An opportunity to contribute to the work of the League for law enforcement will be given. No one is under any obligation because of nttending this service to make a contribution.

Sunday School at 11:45 a. m.

Epworth League at 6:00 p. m.

First Quarterly Conference meets next Tuesday evening at the church. A reception will be tendered our new district superintendent and his wife. All are invited.

Midweek service each Thursday evening 7:30.

Rev. C. E. Pollock spoke in the First Methodist Episcopal church, last Tuesday evening at a young people's banquet.

W. E. Parmelee builds storm windows.—Adv. 37-tf.

CHILDRENS HOSE

That is Guaranteed to give satisfaction or another pair in place. Under these conditions are sold to you. Buy a pair and give them a trial. 50c a pair.

Cadet Hose

M. A. Levinson & Co.

NEW PRICES EFFECTIVE AT ONCE

These prices may not last long, so you had better take advantage of them while they are good.

	Cwt.
Corn, whole,	$2.30
Corn, cracked or ground	2.40
Corn, steel cut	2.50
Corn Gluten Feed, 25 per cent	2.85
Oats, home grown	1.90
Oats, ground	2.00
Oats, ground extra fine	2.10
Bran, pure	1.80
Midds, standard	2.00
Midds, flour	2.30
Ground Barley, (oaty)	2.10
Ground Rye	2.00
C. S. Meal, 43 per cent	2.85
Oil Meal, 34 per cent	2.75
Purina Cow Chow	3.10
Pillsbury Dairy Ration	2.50
Purina Hen Chow	3.40
Purina Hen Chowder	3.75
Purina Omolene (horse feed)	3.00
Purina Pig Chow	3.50
Purina Calf Chow	4.75

Ton lots, 10c per cwt. less
Delivered price, add 10c per cwt.

SPECIALS

Salt Blocks, short time only	$ .40
Cattle Salt, cwt.	.75
Steamed Bone Meal, cwt	2.50
Poultry Meat Scrap	4.25
Oyster Shells	1.50
Hay, light mixed, for	18.00
Straw, ton	15.00

SEE OUR STOCK OF CANVAS GLOVES AND SHOT GUN SHELLS

Charlevoix Co-Operative Assn.
Farmers Supply House

SUITS and OVERCOATS

Latest Styles and Patterns

$20 to $40

We are closing out our stock of Ladies Slickers
Prices reduced from $8.50 to $5.00

Cleaning and Pressing

F. E. CARTIER, Tailor and Cleaner

PHONE 248

Come to Us
For Good Shoe repairing
We use the best grade sole leather
Compbell Boot Shop

Charity begins at home and it ought to stay there awhile before straying into new pastures.

Candidates blossom in the spring, dry up in the summer and get frostbitten along about November.

W. E. Byers, Auctioneer

Twenty years experience in handling Auction Sales, both on farm and household goods.

Let Me Cry Your Sales

Phone me at Charlevoix or call the Charlevoix Courier, where all dates are made.

Cups for Lunch Furnished if Requested

THE OLDEST BANK IN CHARLEVOIX COUNTY
FORTY-FIRST YEAR IN BUSINESS

1884 1925

To Save Money, "Just For a Change"

is a step in the right direction. It is most apt to result in the valuable habit of saving from "choice." That's the way a good many savers made their start at this strong, friendly institution.

Why not step into the bank the next time you pass and open a Savings Aecount of your own?

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY BANK
CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN
Nicholls, Buttars & Bridge, Bankers
THE BANK ON THE CORNER

LOCAL NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

Get the Habit—Read the Courier

Ed. Shapton is spending a few days with relatives and friends at Flint.

Mr. and Mrs. Nassau Burns left last Sunday morning for Plainwell, Michigan.

Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Shafer of Petoskey, visited friends in Charlevoix Saturday evening.

Frank Poole and a party from Charlevoix attended the Charlevoix-Trnverse City football game at Traverse City, last Saturday.

County Agent Mellencamp was a caller nt the Courier office on Tuesday afternoon of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Hull left last Friday for Columbus, Ohio, where they will spend the winter.

Chas. Heise left on Monday of this week on an extended visit at Grand Rapids, Coldwater and St. Joe.

Mrs. Frank Left arrived in the city from Chicago, Friday, on her way to her home at St. James.

Mr. and Milo Bennett of Flint, visited at the Ed. Shapton home in this city a few days last week.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Baptist church will meet next Wednesday, October 28, with Mrs. O'Brien.

The roof of the Gilbert residence on Park avenue was reshingled last week by Will Bogart and his crew of carpenters.

Dr. and Mrs. F. H. Wilkinson left Tuesday morning for Lansing, Mich., where they were called by the death of a relative.

D. J. Eckinger and wife, left Tuesday by auto for Tawas and other eastern Michigan points on a week's business trip.

Mr. and Mrs. George Glados were in Petoskey last Saturday, where they attended the wedding of some friends in that city.

James Bogart made a business trip to towns south of Charlevoix, Tuesday, in the interests of the Argo Milling compnny.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Usher spent Sunday at East Jordan visiting at the home of Mrs. Usher's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Guy King.

The ladies of W. R. C. meet October 29, at the hall, at 2:00 p. m. Election of officers. Every member is requested to be present.

Mr. and Mrs. Pearl Johnson returned Tuesday afternoon from Grand Rapids, where they have been spending the past five weeks.

Rev. Herman Burns, pastor of the local Baptist church, left on Monday of this week for Lansing, where he will spend a week on business.

H. E. Richmond and Jnke Lindeman spent Sunday at Pickeral Lake, north of Petoskey where they went on a duck hunting expedition.

Robert Bridge left Tuesday for Lansing. He will be joined there by Mrs. Bridge and they will go to Chicago for a week or ten days.

Mrs. Lavina Newberry will leave Charlevoix this week for Saginaw and other southern Michigan points, where she will spend the winter.

Mrs. E. L. Denny and children spent from Thursday until Sunday with friends at Petoskey. Mr. Denny went to Petoskey Saturday evening, returning with his family Sunday.

Jack Jardine, attendant at the Standard Oil company's filling station here, spent Sunday with his wife at the H. L. Francisco home near Phelps.

Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Moran, daughter, Noreen, and son, Pat, left early Wednesday morning for Detroit, where they will spend the week end visiting.

Mrs. Dan Gallagher left on Tuesday of this week for her home in Grand Rapids, after having spent the summer with her mother, Mrs. Katherine Kyssela.

Don McHugh returned the latter part of last week from Chiengo and points in southern Michigan, where he has been spending the past ten days on business.

Mrs. W. G. Parker returned last week from Grand Rapids, her daughter, Mildred, remaining to attend school and undergo an extended dental operation.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gebeau left last Sunday for Greenville, Michigan, where they will spend the next week visiting at the home of Mrs. Gebeau'a parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wexstaff and son, Bobby, leave the latter part of this week for the southern part of the state, where they expect to spend the winter months.

School will be closed Wednesday afternoon for the remainder of the week on account of the teachers' institute being held at Big Rapids on Thursday and Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Hines left Tuesday for Detroit, where they will visit their son, Carl and family, for a few days before going to California for the winter.

Mrs. Ollve Nowland returned Monday from a two week'a visit among frienda and relatives at Detroit, Ann Arbor, Jackson, Marshall, Eckeford, Charlotte and Flint.

Mrs. George Russell and daughter, Francis, returned Tuesday afternoon from Chicago, where they have been spending the past two weeks visiting their husband and father.

Dick O'Neill a former resident of Ellsworth, having disposed of his property there, has moved to Charlevoix and purchased the Chas. Raber property on E. Hurlbut avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Fales returned to their home in Detroit, Sunday morning, after having spent the past two weeks at the home of W. E. Driggett and family in this city.

Mrs. Rosa Nettleton left Monday afternoon for Grand Rapids, where she will be met by friends and go from there to St. Petersburg, Florida, to spend the winter months.

Mrs. Sarah Parish returned to her home in Detroit Sunday morning, after having spent the past two weeks in this city at the home of her brother, W. E. Driggett and family.

Mrs. R. O. Cram, accompanied by her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Jenkins, returned last Friday from Flint, where they have been visiting relatives for the past two weeks.

Miss Annie M. Metcalf attended the Methodist District Missionary Convention nt Traverse City last Friday, and from there went to Muskegon to visit her brother, George Metcnlf.

Mr. and Mrs. James Wyers and daughter, accompanied by Leo Powers nnd Frank Poole, left Wednesday morning by auto for Clearwater, Floridn, where they will spend the winter months.

William Bogart nnd wife, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Box of Central Lake, motored to Kingsley, Sunday morning, where they visited Mr. Bogart's father and other relatives.

Mrs. Andy McCall, Jr., returned Tuesday afternoon from Detroit, where she has been spending the past two weeks visiting her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Don Shumsky, and other relatives.

Mrs. Ben Yettaw and Mrs. George VerSnyder returned last Saturday from Traverse City, where they have been spending the past week visiting friends and relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Burns, accompanied by Mr and Mrs. Wm. Scroggie, Sr., left Monday for Plainwell, Michigan. Mr. Burns has purchnsed a garage and equipment there and will enter business for himself.

Mrs. Cora Tomerassen spent the latter part of last week and the fore part of this week in LaCrosse, Wisconsin, on business. Mrs. Chas. Lamphear attended to Mrs. Tomerassen's duties in the county clerk's office during her absence.

S. J. Ulrich, wife and son, Arden, left Thursday morning for southern Michigan points where they will visit about two weeks. They will then resume their journey to Highland Pines Inn, Southern Pines, N. C., where they expect to spend the winter.

Judge Parm C. Gilbert hns issued an order postponing the regular October session of circuit court, scheduled to open Monday, October 26th, to Monday, November 2nd. The order also stipulates that the jury appear on the opening day of court.

Frank Left of St. James, came over to Charlevoix with his tug, Link, last Fridny, and will have the boat pulled out here and repairs made before the opening of the fishing season. Mr. Left towed Will Boyle's hoat over here where a new engine will be instnlled in it.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Tyler came over from Petoskey, Saturday evening, Mr. Tyler returning the same evening, Mrs. Tyler remaining here with her parents. Mr. Tyler has accepted a position as news editor on the Petoskey Evening News, having commenced his duties there last Thursday.

Mrs. J. M. Saunders and granddaughter, Peggy, left last Friday for Kalamazoo, where Mrs. Saunders will visit at the home of her sister for a short time. From there they will go on to Wilmington, California, where they will join Mr. Saunders and other members of the family.

Fear was expressed Monday for the safety of Ed. Eagleton, John O'Neil and Charles Bissell, who had headed for Cheboygan with their tug to fish and were out in Sunday night and Monday morning's storm. They have turned up at Harbor Springs and the report Tuesday morning stated they were safe and sound.

The U. S. Bureau of Fisheries boat, Fulmar, is undergoing an overhauling in anticipation of the opening of the fishing season, probably along about the first of next month. The boat has recently returned from Chicago, where it was in dry dock making repairs. S. M. Rose and Roy Ripley took the ship to Chicago.

Last week a pnrty consisting of Joaeph and Ben Friece, Mrs. Annie Eggering, Mrs. Kate Grothaus and nephew, Walter Scott, motored up from St. Louis, Mo., to visit their sister, Mrs. Bert Alcox and family, for n week. They left for their home on Monday morning, saying they had greatly enjoyed their trip and that Charlevoix was certainly a most benutiful place to live in.

A Willard Battery for $16.50. Fits Ford, Chevrolet, Overland, Mnxwell, Star and others. Benj. Brown Battery Shop.—Adv. 39-tf.

MISSES KRULIK AND GASKIN ENTERTAIN

Twenty-three Guests at Card and Dancing Party

The Misses Peggy Krulik and Kay Gaskin were hostesses at a party given Tuesday evening of this week to twenty-three of their young friends. The event was staged at the Krulik home on Lewis street.

The evening was pleasantly spent in cards and dancing, the party breaking up at a late hour after enjoying dainty refreshments of waffles and coffee. Those present were unanimous in voting the party a huge success.

Guests were the Misses Ina Geneit, Henrietta Baldwin, Hilda Hyers, Lillian Kay, Racine Wilson, Eleanor Thomas, Helen Ross, Marie Duprey, Miss Finer; also the Messers George Beeman, Gerald Richardson, Robert Krulik, Robert Miles, Martin Halverson, Louis O'Neill, Marshall Ackert, Harold Jones, Jack Winder and Howard and Robert Armstrong of Harbor Springs.

Batteries recharged and repaired. Electrical work of all kinds. Bring your car troubles to us. Brown Battery Shop.—Adv. 39-tf.

COURIER BARGAIN COLUMN.

Courier Want Advs. are One Cent per word per insertion. Minimum charge is 20 cents per insertion, for anything under 20 words. All Want Advs. are strictly cash in advance except to those who have ledger accounts. Please remember this when sending in your copy.

LOST

LOST—Diamond pin, diamond in center with gold scroll surrounding it. Reward. Leave with C. R. Bellinger.—42t1 pd.

FOR SALE—MISCELLANEOUS

FOR SALE—Ford two-door sedan. Good condition, $165.00. A .C. Belding, Charlevoix, Mich.—41tf.

FOR SALE—Nice dry 16-inch poplar wood. Price $2.50 per cord. Orchard Bay Farm, phone 7008-f2.—41t2.

FOR SALE—A good office safe, with inside compartment. Inquire Mrs. B. W. Miller, 306 Clinton street.—41t2.

FOR SALE—Piano, range and other household articles. Call at 106 E. Hurlbut Ave., October 26 and 27. E. D. Shafer.—42t1.

FOR SALE — Building material. Save 50 per cent in building. Phone W. S. Shaw Co., No. 75, Boyne City, for prices on lumber (boards and scantling,) steel beams, brick, pipe, pipe fittings and roofing.—40t10.

FOR SALE—LIVE STOCK

FOR SALE—2 year old hound, good on rabbit or fox, price $25. Inquire of Milo Todd at Block's garage.—40t2 pd.

FOR SALE—Span of iron gray geldings, 4 and 5 years old, weight 2650. Good work team and well broken. Phone 7012f22 or call at home of Hans Jensen, Charlevoix-East Jordan road, 8 miles from Charlevoix.—40t2 pd.

FOR SALE—CITY PROPERTY

FOR SALE—Twenty-room house, modernly equipped with hot and cold water in rooms, baths, etc. This is a splendid business opportunity for anyone desiring to get into the board and room business in the best resort town in northern Michigan. House is beautifully located on a series of natural terraces overlooking Charlevoix harbor and has had a high-class patronage of resort people. Owner has other interests to look after. This is a first-class, money-making proposition and worth looking into. Address all Inquires to this paper.—42-t4.

WANTED—MISCELLANEOUS

WANTED—TO buy a good kitchen range with reservoir. Write Everett Crain, Rt. 1.—42-t1 pd.

WANTED—Old False teeth. We pay high as $10 for full sets. Don't matter if broken. We buy crowns, bridges. Western Metal Co., Bloomington, Ill.—41t2 pd.

CASH for Dental Gold, Platinum, Silver, Diamonds, magneto points, false teeth, jewelry, and valuables. Mail today. Cash by return mail. Hoke S. & R., Otsego, Mich.—12-tf.

MISCELLANEOUS

FOR INFORMATION regarding Florida land and Investments, write Ernest E. Galloway, 845 N. W. 2nd St., Miami, Florida, Licensed Broker.—36-tf.

HELP WANTED.

WANTED—Competent girl for general housework. Permanent position. Inquire at McCann's Bakery. 34-tf.

Good Victuals by the Basketful

Buy your groceries here by the basketful. It is both economical and practical. The quality of our stock assures you always serving the best victuals for your family—and at no inerease in cost.

Monarch Coffee

We notice a daily increase of users among Charlevoix residents. We said it was good eoffce—now you knowit, too.

Milton Block

Friday and Saturday Specials
OCTOBER 16th and 17th

OUTING GOWNS

We have a eomplete line of outting gowns, Pink, Blue and Tan stripes.

Ladies sizes from 17 to 24. Full sweep and well made, trimmed with hemstitching, embroidery and braid at .....$1.00, $1.25, $150 and $1.75

White Flannelette gowns, square yoke, round neck and trimmed with hemstitehing and embroidered in Pink and Blue at.....$1.85

Misses Gowns, sizes 2 to 10 years, trimmed with hemstitching and braid for.....$1.00

Men's two-piece pajamas, fastened with braid frogs for .....$1.50 and $2.00

Children's Outing Sleepers with feet, size two to eight years for 89c

Kozy Kid Sleepers, sizes, six to ten years for.....$1.25

A. E. MASON

NEW PALACE THEATRE
ATTRACTIONS FOR THE COMING WEEK

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 23

Wm. Fox presents "IN LOVE WITH LOVE", a comedy drama from the stage success. And a Fox News Reel.

SATURDAY and SUNDAY, OCT. 24-25.

Paramount presents Douglas MacLean in George M. Cohan's greatest comedy, "7 KEYS TO BALDPATE." Seven reels of laughs, giggles and thrills. Doug's first Paramount starring comedy. Brand new, released day and date of our showing. Don't miss this one and be sorry. Also one of the O'Henry two reel stories, "TRANSIENTS IN ARCADIA."

TUESDAY and WEDNESDAY, OCT. 27-28.

Jack London's "ADVENTURE," a stirring action tale, rich in drama and thrills. With Tom Moore, Pauline Starke and Wallace Beery. Jack London was the master of adventure and here is his masterpiece. As vivid a tale of bold adventure as was ever sereened. As paeked with thrills as a picture could be. Also a Fox News Reel.

PLEASE NOTE—Monday and Thursday shows have been discontinued for the season.

COMING—October. 31 and November 1, John Golden's triumph, "LIGHTNIN."

Well I just can't afford to go to Florida

"Sorry Mister, but you can have a Florida climate in your home, if you heat your home with Argo Quality Coal."

Call us, we are ready to respond

ARGO MILLING COMPANY

Friday and Saturday SPECIALS

If the saving is only a small amount, it means much to the housewife who has just "so much" weekly table money. This week we offer:

Large ean Royal Hawaiian Pineapple.....35c
One dozen cans for $3.60
Large bottle Ketchup for 20c
Pound ean Hersey's Cocoa.....30c
Hamburger, per lb.....10c

A good cup of Coffee starts one off right for the day. Get a Chase and Sanborn morning start.

MARTIN BLOCK
Opposite Post Office
Phone 12 or 142

WRONG IDEA OF RIGHT OF WAY

LEADING QUESTION OF TODAY FULLY EXPLAINED

Because One is on Trunk Line Does Not Mean Cross Roads Can Be Ignored

The question of "right-of-way" has been discussed many times among automobile drivers, and there seems to be a wide range of opinion regarding the issue. Frank C. Miller, city attorney of Ionia, explains the rights of each driver nnd backs up his statements by supreme court rulings. The article so thoroughly covers the subject we are reproducing it for benefit of our readers:

"Much confusion seems to exist in the minds of automobile drivers and others, as to the rights of people driving upon our streets and public highways, with particular reference to those streets and highways denominated right of way streets or highways, and this particularly applies to state trunk line highways.

"The general idea seems to prevail among automobile drivers that if one is on the state trunk line, or upon a so-called right of way street, that he has the right to drive right along without regard to people coming in from the other streets or highways, or in other words, that the one crossing the state trunk line or right of way highways must look out for himself.

"Now this is entirely erroneous, it is not the law and never was, and our supreme court in two cases handed down in the month of September, have clearly defined the meaning of this term, right of way.

"Tbese decisions are strictly in line with what I have maintained ever since such laws were passed. It is this:

"1st. Every person driving upon the highway, whether a trunk line, right of way street, or any other street, must have his car under such control that he can stop it at the corner without colliding with another car. That is the first proposition.

"2nd. If two cars approach each other at an intersection of street at approximately the same time, then the one upon the trunk line or right of way has the privilege of passing first. That is all right of way means, according to the opinions of our supreme court. That is sense.

"The case of Pline vs. Parsons, 321 Michigan, 466, holds in a case where a collision occurred at the intersection of a state trunk line highway and a road crossing the same that the driver upon the trunk line was guilty of negligence, and allowed the one upon the cross road to recover, and used the following language, quoting first the state law upon the question, as follows:

"When motor vehicle approach an intersection of a state trunk line highway and other highway at the same time, the vehicle proceeding on the state highway shall have the right of way."

Now in regard to this the court says:

"This regulation does not apply unless there is a car on the favored road near enough to demand the right of way, and this right depends to some extent upon the relative positions of the vehicles. Deceased was not required to refrain attempting to cross merely because defendant's car was in sight, distantly approaching. If the Hudson car was so close to the intersection as to indicate, reasonably, to the deceased, that there was danger of collision if he attempted to cross, then it was his duty to wait and permit it to cross. It was the duty of each driver to use care to avoid injury to others.

In the case of Arvo vs. Delta Hardware company, 231 Michigan, 488, the court said:

"The law giving defendant's car the right of way does not mean that all persons desiring to cross must wait the passing of an approaching car. It simply means, that if two cars meet at a crossing, the one on the trunk line is entitled to pass over it before the other.

"The last case above cited was not on a right of way street, But I have used the words trunk line in place of the words in the decision to show the application of the rule of "right of way."

The great number of accidents can be almost entirely eliminated if drivers will bear this rule in mind and get it out of their heads, that because they are on a "trunk line" or "right of way" street they can "shoot" right along and that everyone must get out of their way. They owe just exactly as much duty to the other fellow upon the "cross road" as he owes to them and that is they must use due care at all intersections, and if they drive into someone without using due care, even though they are upon a trunk line or a right of way street, they are guilty of negligence. No one wants an accident, but from the way in which some people drive and then after an accident happens, says, "I had the right of way," one is almost compelled to believe that they purposely invite an accident. If every driver will put upon his windshield in red letters, or any other color for that matter, the words "Be careful at all crossings," it will practically eliminate 95 per cent of all the accidents, and nearly all accidents do occur at crossings. Simply remember that at all crossings it is your duty to use due care, as the other fellow may not do so. Keep this article before you and you will have more joy in automobiling than you have ever had before.

FROM OFFICE BOY TO GENERAL MGR.

Salary Increase Comes With Promotion

Chicago, Sept. 29—After a careful survey of the entire labor situation extending from office boy to president, indications are that positions showing increases in salaries require experienced help.

Consulting the president of one of our largest industries, the writer inquired regarding the rapid success of a certnin young mnn who had become general manger and who a few years ago was but office boy; his answer was, Brown started as office boy, the lowest salaried position in our office, he was ambitlous and managed to purchase n typewriter on small monthly payments and after three weeks of practice at home he was promoted to bill clerk, which position gave him knowledge of the selling price of all merchandise. His next advance was that of typist, which taught him the numerous forms of letter-writing and enabled him to hold a stenographic position, giving him compleltc knowledge of letter-writing. He was then made secretary, bringing him into contact with all business details and qualified him for the general manager's office at ten thousand per ycar.

The same opportunity awaits every young man and woman. Education or age have nothing to do with operating so simple a machine as the typewriter. We are informed that a great piece of benevolent work is being carried on by a large Chicago mail order house in furnishing typewriters to people worthy of credit, by selling on small monthly installments, so low as to average about eight cents per day and actually teaching their customers how to use and operate any typewriter in about three week's time. You can get other information by writing the International Typewriter Exchange, 184 W. Lake Street, Cbicago, Illinois.

Get There First

When you need goods in any particular line in a hurry it will pay you to use Long Distance. A telephone call will enable you to discuss prices and to secure the earliest possible delivery.

An Order by Long Distance is Direct

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE CO.

Ford

The demand for Ford cars has already outstripped all previous records.

Motor car buyers who seek beauty and comfort are finding the improved Touring Car exactly suited to their desire.

See this good looking car at the nearest Authorized Ford Dealer's. As you inspect its many new features, bear in mind that this improved car is available at no increase in price.

Runabout - $260 Coupe - - $520
Tudor Sedan - 580 Fordor Sedan - 660

Closed cars in color. Demountable rims and starter extra on open cars. All prices f. o. b. Detroit.

Touring $290 F. O. B. Detroit

FORD MOTOR COMPANY, DETROIT, MICHIGAN

R. B. ARMSTRONG
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Special Attention to Diseases of Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat
Priest Bldg. Phone 255

DR. F. F. McMILLAN
Physician and Surgeon
Office above Postoffice
Phone 17
Charlevoix :: Michigan

A. L. FITCH
ATTORNEY AT LAW
Office in Court House
Phone 48
Charlevoix :: Michigan

D. T. McHUGH
General Contractor
Phone 214
CHARLEVOIX MICHIGAN

WM. J. BOGART
CONTRACTOR and BUILDER
No Job Too Large
No Job Too Small
Phone 139 Charlevoix, Mich.

VIRGINIA RYALL BROWN, D. C.
PALMER CHIROPRACTOR
PHONES:
Office 347 Residence 39
Postoffice Building

THREE GREAT MISTAKES

1. To think that it costs more to have a LARGE OR A SMALL ESTATE administered IN A FIRST CLASS MANNER, by such an old concern as this, than it does to have it done by any individual. Fact is, we do it for the same fees, fixed by law passed in 1846, unchanged to date, (no one would say they are large) and our specialized personnel saves a lot of expense besides. We do it all promptly, in first class manner, keeping full accounts which are always available. Inquire for particulars.

2. To think that a corporation like this takes no interest in family problems. Fact is, its practice of doing so is one of many reasons why its services are desirable. It will be both business manager and friend, if given a chance. Come in to see us.

3. To think one needs to wait until anticipated death to make trust provisions for caring for family members. Fact is, there are distinct advantages in doing so in advance. Why not make a Living Trust and provide for your needs under possibly changed conditions. Ask for particulars.

THE MICHIGAN TRUST COMPANY
Grand Rapids.
The Oldest in Michigan.
Organized in 1889.

CASH PRIZES for BEST LETTERS on HOW GRADE MARKED Old Fashioned HEMLOCK LUMBER SAVES MONEY

(More about this Letter Competition below—read our ads for Prize-Winning Ideas.)

Grading of Northern Hemlock is based upon the broad economic ground of its relative usefulness to you. The Grade-Mark takes all the guesswork out of the selection of Hemlock Grades for their profitable utilization.

USE THE GRADE THAT FITS THE JOB—ASK YOUR DEALER!

Native Hemlock has long been favorably known for its immunity to dry-rot, an important factor in the service life of your building. Being free of resin, it takes and holds paints and stains perfectly. Add to this the extra strength factor in extra standard size Hemlock joists and studding (GUARANTEED BY THE GRADE-MARK) and you'll appreciate the many advantages and investment value in a building constructed of Grade-marked Northern Hemlock.

YES, IT PAYS TO USE IDENTIFIED LUMBER. BUY YOUR HEMLOCK BY THE GRADE-MARK. SAVE MONEY!

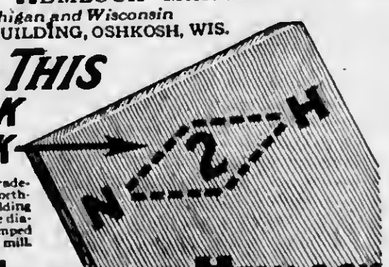
30—THIRTY CASH PRIZES—30

for the 30 Best Letters on "Why Grade-marked Northern Hemlock", for building construction and industrial uses. Write for full details of competition and list of prizes to address below.

EVERYONE HAS AN EQUAL CHANCE TO WIN A PRIZE—GET POSTED TODAY!

THE NORTHERN HEMLOCK MANUFACTURERS
of Michigan and Wisconsin
327 F. R. A. BUILDING, OSHKOSH, WIS.

LOOK FOR THIS GRADE-MARK TRADE-MARK



The initials N and H of the Grade-mark signify that the piece is Northern Hemlock—your native building lumber. The numeral within the diamond is the grade of the piece, stamped on by the expert grader at the mill.

BUILD OF NORTHERN HEMLOCK FOR STRENGTH AND STABILITY

W. E. Parmelee builds storm windows.—Adv. 37-tf.

CHURCH OF GOD

Preaching services each Sunday nt 10:30 and 7:30.

No preaching service next Sunday evening, October 25, on account of the anti-saloon meeting to be held in the M. E. church.

Young people's meeting each Sunday evening at 6:30 except next Sunday will be at 6:00.

Prayer services each Wednesday evening at 7:30.

A two week'a revival service will begin November 22 to be held by Rev. J. C. Thomson of Alma, Michigan. A young man of considerable evangellstic ability. Come and hear him.

A cordial invitation to the general public to attend all our services.

Wm. Eldridge, pastor.

Electric light bulbs that give service at Charlevoix Hardware Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

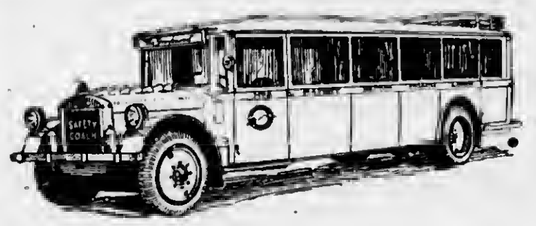
BAPTIST CHURCH
Rev. Herman Burns, Pastor

10:30 a. m. Preaching services.
12:00 m. Sunday School.
Preaching services at Burgess school house at 3 o'clock.
6:30 B. Y. P. U.
There will be no evening service at the church on account of union meeting at Methodist church.
The B. Y. P. U. will have a business meeting at the Bert Ingall's home Friday evening. Each member is requested to be present and bring a friend.
The Indies Aid will meet with Mrs. O'Brien Wednesday 28th. Bring in the money you have received from your dimes to this meeting. Potluck lunch.

In Memoriam

In loving remembrance of my beloved father, Russell Crapsey, who passed away 11 years ago today, October 22:
A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is stilled;
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.
His loving daugbter, Ila Crapsey Broek.—Adv. 42t1 pd.

For all the news, read the Courier.



Have You Seen the New Greyhound Time Table?

GET YOURS AT HOTEL CHARLEVOIX

GREYHOUNDS OF THE HIGHWAY — SAFETY MOTOR COACH LINES

RIDE THE GREYHOUNDS

Let The COURIER Sell IT for YOU

Ellsworth Section

FAIRVIEW-BANKS

Eeverything comes to him that waits.

A flock of wild geese went south last week.

Charles Kass sold two cows to Mr. TerAvest of Cooperville last week.

Hyler H. Whitney of Maple Hill, was in this territory Tuesday afternoon.

John TerWee of Miles District, called on H. J. Timmer Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Margie Timmer visited with Mr. and Mrs. John Timmer of Ellsworth, Friday.

Dick Oosterbaan and Jay Kuiper, are hauling red beets to Central Lake this week.

The young people were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Oosterbaan, Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Anthony Kuiper visited her mother, Mrs. Gerrit Oosterbaan, who is in poor health Friday afternoon.

George and Mettus Rubingh, attended the McGuire sale at Norwood Wednesday and each bought a cow.

Mr. and Mrs. Evert Kladder of Hitcock, Kearney township, were in this neighborhood Sunday forenoon.

Mr. and Mrs. John DeGroot and family of Central Lake, visited with Mr. and Mrs. H. DeGroot Sunday.

Walter Moore and brother of East Jordan, are hauling poles for the Electric Power Co. in this locality this week.

Henry Wagner of Charlevoix, was in this neighborhood Tuesday, in the interest of the Holland-St. Louis Sugar Co.

Mr. Roxum and Mr. Anderson of Ellsworth, were in this neighborhood Wednesday securing right of way for the Electric Power Co.

A Willard Battery for $16.50. Fits Ford, Chevrolet, Overland, Maxwell, Star and others. Benj. Brown Battery Shop.—Adv. 39-tf.

MILES DISTRICT

Miss Laura DeForde left for Detroit, Saturday.

Mrs. Della Holben and daughters, Irene nnd Geneva, left for Detroit Saturday.

Mrs. Holland and sons of Charlevoix, called at the Fred Bancroft home Sunday.

James Holben was a Sunday dinner guest of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Skow in Ellsworth.

Mr. and Mrs. John TerWee and Mrs. Mary Clark, are visiting in Grand Rapids this week.

Farmers being busy with fall work, not a very large crowd attended the TerWee sale.

Mr. and Mrs. Art Farmer and little daughters of East Jordan, called Sunday afternoon at the A. Miles home.

Mrs. Anna LaLonde of East Jordan, spent Friday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Supley LaLonde.

Chester Donaldson, who was working near Detroit, was called home Saturday by the illness of his wife.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Lindenau of Boyne City, spent Sunday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dett Evans.

Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Evans and children of Muskegon, motored up for a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dett Evans.

If your battery is run down or needs repairs, bring it to our battery shop. Work guaranteed. Brown Battery Shop.—Adv. 39-tf.

ANTRIM CITY

Jack Smith has his beets all harvested.

We are having quite a wind storm here now.

Mr. Stott worked for Jack Smith some this week.

George Parson threshed beans in this neighborhood Friday.

Mr. Stott had a big threshing of beans. He got nine bushels.

Clifford Sutton of Ellsworth, was a visitor at the Mason home Sunday.

Mr. Baumback and Russel Spear, made a business trip to Cadillac Saturday.

Some of the people of this neighborhood attended the McGuire sale Wednesday.

You will find high quality merchandise at reasonable prices at the Charlevoix Hdw. Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

ATWOOD.

October 20th and snowing.

Next month is turkey time.

Potatoes $1.30 per bushel.

Gerret Essenberg has purchased another Ford car.

Chas. Lord goes to Ann Arbor this week for treatment of his feet.

Rev. Mosier of Bellaire, gave to us an excellent sermon last Sunday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Minor Heeres leave this week for a two week's visit near Grand Rapids.

Ralph Vanderlleide goes to Grand Rapids this week for a two weeks visit with friends and relntives.

The Atwood Threshing Company threshed 1680 bushels of beans last week. They have several jobs to thresh yet.

John VonHouten has purchased a a radio and has it installed. Go to his home and see how he and the family enjoy it.

There will be no services at the M. E. church next Sunday. All the churches in the Ellsworth circuit are invited to worship at the Ellsworth church. Sermon at 11 a. m. and 2:30 p. m. Dinner in the church parlors. Bring your baskets (not empty ones). Every person welcome.

You will find high quality merchandise at reasonable prices at the Charlevoix Hdw. Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

B. J. BEUKER
Physician and Surgeon
Office over Blue Store
Ellsworth, Michigan
Office Hours: 2-4 p. m., Phone 38

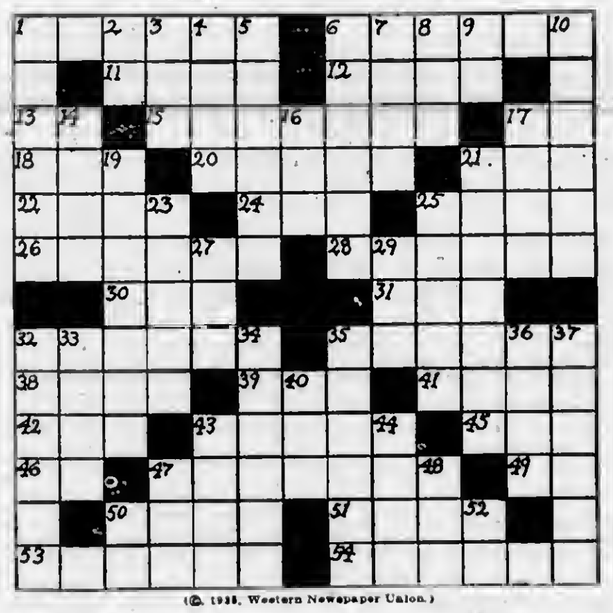
HOW'S THIS?

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE will do what we claim for it—rid your system of Catarrh or Deafness caused by Catarrh.

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE consists of an Ointment which Quickly Relieves the catarrhal inflammation, and the Internal Medicine, a Tonic, which acts through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces, thus assisting to restore normal conditions.

Sold by druggists for over 40 Years.
F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.

Crosa-Word Puzzle No. 78



(©, 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

Horizontal.

1—Gentleman warrior of Middle Ages
6—Scarcity
11—Fly high
12—River in Germany
13—Prepositioo
15—Rough, prickly shrub
17—Addition to a letter (abbr.)
18—Large wooden tub
20—Jeweled headdress
21—Domestic animal
22—To give off
24—Prefix meaning three
25—Nobleman
26—Rolls of tobacco for smoking
28—Illodu widow who cremates herself on funeral pile of her husband
30—Long, narrow inlet
31—Definite article
33—Fusee ore to refine the metal
35—Scoffed
38—To go by
39—Girl's name
41—To bring up
42—Land measures
43—Gastropod with spiral shell
45—Arid
48—Right (abbr.)
47—Violinist
49—North America (abbr.)
50—Girl's name
51—Enough (abbr.)
52—Violent gust of wind and rain
54—Running contestants

Vertical.

1—Cutting instruments
2—Part of "to be"
3—Sailor
4—Male deer
5—Characteristics
8—Ruins, rubbish
7—Girl's name
8—Lincoln's nickname
9—Regarding
10—To hurry
14—Cognomen
16—To deface
17—To skin
19—Female tiger
21—Provided food for
23—Eod pieces
25—Ancestral
27—Rodent
29—Member of Shoshonean Indian tribe
32—Saves
33—Market place
34—Open work shoe
35—Turnkey
36—To be deserving of
37—Wood nymphs
40—Father
43—Window ledge
44—Girl's name
47—Florida (abbr.)
48—Bird of fable
50—Europe (abbr.)
53—You and I

Solution will appear in next issue.

INTERESTING BITS OF INFORMATION CLIPPED FROM OUR EXCHANGES

The name Smith, says a Kalamazoo item, originally meant "one who strikes with a hammer," but in the course of time it has now come to mean, in some instances, "one who blows with his own horn."

A Grand Rapids motorist relates that his car stalled on a railroad track right in front of an onrushing express train. They say a man really can relate these episodes sometimes, if he has a good spiritualist medium.

An orchard of banana apple trees is in full bloom at Waterford. It is regarded as a sign that the old-timers are going to have hard work telling what the heavy husks on the corn are a sign of.

It is related that a Lagrange pioneer was captured by the Indians when a boy and later bought from them for 30 quarts of whisky; but at that time, of course, pioneers were so scarce that you could ask almost any price for them.

When a poet visiting Harbor Springs was asked to write his name on the hotel register, he wrote a page full of poetry instead. If he is going to sign his check that way, the management had better get wise and bring him an order of book reviews when he calls for dinner.

Subscribe for the Courier.

Cross-Word Puzzle No. 77

WESTERN TRIP A GREAT DRIVE

(Continued from page one)

Dobe house with only two windows inhabited by queerly costumed Mexicans were something new to us. We arrived at Thoreau at 6:15 and put up for the night.

Left Thoreau the following morning at 7:00 a. m. and drove to Galop for breakfast. Left Galop at 9:00 a. m. and crossed the New Mexico-Arizona line at 9:30. We stopped at Death Canyon and saw some very interesting sights. From here we drove through to Flagstaff, where we put up for the night.

Left Flagstaff the next morning at 7:00 and drove to Main, where we left the main line road and went up to the Grand Canyon. It was a beautiful sight and anyone going this way should stop and see it. We spent the day there, arriving back at Williams, on the main line, at 6:00 p. m., for the night.

Left Williams the following morning at 7:30, October 1, and had considerable mountain driving through the day. But the roads were fair and we arrived at Needles at 5:00 p. m., where we spent the night. We left the following morning for Los Angeles, arriving there at 7:30 p. m. This was the only day on the entire trip that we drove after dark.

Words cannot describe the scenic beauties of the trip—it was just wonderful. Good weather every day and no car trouble. In all the trip took us just 13 days, loosing one day at the Grand Canyon, making 12 days of driving.

Sincerely yours,
Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Hammond.

BOARD ENDS A BUSY SESSION

(Continued from page one)

of five years was another action of the bonrd, as was another petition to the state highway department asking their co-operation and consideration relative to the matter of extending trunk line M-32 from Elmira to Charlevoix by the way of East Jordan, taking in the lower road from Ironton to the Taft farm, and the construction of a gravel road over the route.

HUDSON-ESSEX

World's Largest Selling "Sixes"

Quality Gave Volume and Volume these Amazing Prices

Years of brilliant advancement in quality have given Hudson-Essex a leadership everyone knows and acknowledges.

It has given them the world's largest volume of 6-cylinder cars.

And to buyers, amazing price advantages, passed on from unequaled volume economies.

Yet it is not price, but popularity of the finest quality ever produced by Hudson-Essex, of famous Super-Six performance, reliability and fine appearance that motordom recognizes as the World's Greatest Values.

To all who know the facts it is the supreme type among "Sixes." In Essex, it brings the quality, performance and reliability of finest "Sixes" within reach of all.

World's Greatest Value

ESSEX COACH $795 HUDSON COACH $1195
Hudson Brougham $1495 Hudson 7-Pass. Sedan $1695
All prices freight and tax extra

H. R. FOWLER, Charlevoix, Mich.

AUCTION SALE

The undersigned will sell at Public Auction on what is known as the Pete Peterson farm, 3 1-2 miles south of Charlevoix, at the north end of Adams' Lake, one-half miles south and east of the Loeb school house, on

Tuesday, Oct. 27

Commencing at 1:00 p. m. sharp, the following described property:

Team Black Horses, wt., 2400
Team Roan Horses, wt. 2000
Pure Bred Holstein, 3 yrs. old, due to freshen Mar 15
Grade Holstein, 9 yrs. old, due to freshen Mar. 26
Black Cow, 5 yrs. old, due to freshen Feb. 18
Grade Holstein, 3 yrs. old, due to freshen April 13
Guernsey Heifer, due to freshen Feb. 1
2 Calves 8 months old
2 Pigs, 5 months old
70 year old Hens
25 purebred White Wyandotte Chickens
50 purebred Barred Rock Chickens
200 Purebred White Leghorn Chickens
4 one year old Turkeys
9 Spring Turkeys
Pair large Geese 4 Ducks
250 egg Ineubator, new, never used
2-500 Chick Brooders

Cream Separator 2 Cream Cans
3 Milk Pails
4-riding 2-Horse Cultivators
2 Walking Cultivators
Hand Cultivator Plow
Lever Spring-tooth Harrow
Spring-tooth Harrow
Spike-tooth Harrow
Fanning Mill
2 Sets double Work Harness
3-18 inch Collars
Set Double Driving Harness
2 good flat bottom Row Boats
2 Set Oars and Locks
5 Acres Corn in Shock
2 1-2 Acres Oats in Straw
12 Acres Oat Straw
8 tons loose Hay
About 2 ton second cutting of Alfalfa
10 rods Heavy Chicken Fence
Road Cart
Other artieles not mentioned

TERMS OF SALE

All sums of $10.00 or under, cash; all sums over $10.00, one year's time on good, approved, endorsed, bankable paper bearing interest at 7 per cent, payable at the Charlevoix County Bank. Five per cent off for cash on all sums over $10.00. No property to be removed until terms of sale are complied with and all settlements must be made on day of sale.

Edgar Smith, Prop.

H. J. TIMMER, Clerk
ROBERT BRIDGE, Note Clerk
W. E. BYERS, Auctioneer.

PILGRIM HOLINESS CHURCH
Phelps and Ellsworth

Phelps

Sunday school, 10:00 a. m.
Preaching, 11:00 a. m.
Prayer meeting, Wednesday evening at 8:00 p. m.

Ellsworth

Sunday school, 1:15 p. m.
Preaching, 2:30 and 7:30 p. m.
Prayer meeting Thursday evening at 8:00 p. m.

B. E. Manker, Pastor.

A single track mind is all right providing it never gets on a siding.

W. E. Byers, Auctioneer

Twenty years experience in handling Auction Sales, both on farm and household goods.

Let Me Cry Your Sales

Phone me at Charlevoix or call the Charlevoix Courier, where all dates are made.

Cups for Lunch Furnished if Requested

RUB-NO-MORE

CUTS THE GREASE

Ustikon Soles

Apply them yourself
The Greatest Wearing Sole on the Market

If you wish to order a pair by mail, for either men or women shoes simply inelose a peneil outline of the sole of your shoe, mail it to us with 85e and we send you a pair post paid.

Reeommended for leather soles that are just starting to wear through.

CAMPBELL BOOT SHOP

THE LURE OF THE LOLLIPOP

CANDY, in moderation, never did any ehild any harm. But a big glass of our delicious, pure milk will do more good than all the lollipops in the world! Ask any doctor.

MARION CENTER DAIRY
Pure Aerated Milk and Cream
CHARLEVOIX, MICH.

EN-AR-CO MOTOR OIL
Before showing it one always loses his temper.
Use En-ar-co Motor Oil Prevents friction saving temper of car and driver
WHITE ROSE GASOLINE
COPYRIGHT 1917 THE NATIONAL REFINING CO. CLEVELAND, OHIO

THE AUTO SHOP

Phone 93 204 Mason St.

HIGH WIND HINDERS BRIDGE OPERATION

Citizens Stand in Cold Waiting for Reinforcements

Citizens hurrying to their labors on Monday morning of this week were greeted at the channel by an opened swing bridge. The chill nor'wester added little to their comfort, as Charlevoix and northern Michigan got their first touch of the winter that is on its way.

The sand sucker, General Meade, which has been dredging out tha saad bar at the entrance of the piers, worka a day and night ahift and Sunday night put out for work in face of the fact that the barometer was down to the danger point and a storm arising. They accomplished very little and were forced to lny inside the piers and finally withdraw altogether. By this time the wind had risen to hurricane proportions. After opening the bridge for the vessel, Bridge Tender Johnson was unable to close it against the high wind. This was about four in the morning and with the help of some late night travelers another attempt was made to close the bridge. To add the already serious difficulties the power line leading to the bridge motor was blown down and the draw remained open until seven in the morning.

By this time quite a number were congregated on both sides of the channel and after the power line had been repaired and with the combined force of six men on the bar, the bridge motor and ropes, the bridge was brought into position and locked. Mr. Johnson showed very good reasoning by not attempting to close the bridge until sufficient help arrived to handle the situntion safely.

The Baptist Ladies Aid will serve a chicken pie supper in the church parlors on Friday, October 30th, 5:30 until all are served. Price, 50c.—Adv. 42-t2.

Christian Science Society

Sunday service, 10:45 a. m., subject, "Probation After Death."

Sunday school, 12:00.

Wednesday evening service, 7:45 p. m.

Reading room open Tuesday and Saturday, 3:00 to 5:00 p. m.

The public is cordially invited to use our reading room and attend the services.

The ladies of the Church of God are expecting to hold a sale of home baked goods at the Charlevoix Hardware Co., next Saturday, October 24. Adv. 42-t1 pd.

Subscribe for the Courier.

IS YOUR WORK HARD?

Many Charlevoix Folks Have Found How to Make Work Easier.

What is so hard as a day's work with an aching back?

Or sharp stabs of pain at every sudden twist or turn?

There is no peace from that dull ache.

No rest from the soreness, lameness and weakness.

Many folks have found relief through Doan's Pills. They are a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys.

Charlevoix people recommend Doan's

Mrs. Danial Potter, 401 May Street, Charlevoix, says: "I began to have severe pains through the small of my back, which were the first sign of kidney trouble. When I bent over to da my work, sharp twinges caught me across my kidneys. I felt weak and tired and my kidneys acted irregularly.. I used Doan's Pills, which I bought at Metcalf's Drug Store, and they soon cured me.

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Pills —the same that Mrs. Potter had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

CHARLEVOIX FOLKS MEET IN DETROIT

Hold Pot Luck Dinner at Home of Floyd Bettes

Charles residents are at all times pleased to hear from former neighbors living in some distant point. Even though they do not live nmong us, we believe many still cling to the "home town" and in many instances hope to some day or other be back among us. The following letter relates to a pot lock dinner held recently in Detroit.

"A host of Charlevoites met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Floyde S. Bettes, Walnut street, Wyandotte, Michigan, for n pot luck dinner, Tuesday evening, October 13th. Those present were: Mrs. Clifford Papineau, Grace Papinenu, Mark Chaplin, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. N. Papineau, and son Charles, Mrs. Mollie Dixon and son, Morris, Miss Alice Shores, Mrs. Margaret George from Wolverine, Mrs. Charles Fusee from Onaway, Mr. nnd Mrs. Archie Carey and Betty, Mr. and Mrs. Harker Kirby and sons, Ty and Winfield. The four last mentioned are on their return trip from Gloucester, Mass.

Some of these old pals had not seen each other since leaving Charlevoix twenty years ago. Everyone had a rousing time and wished the Kirby's a safe and sane journey and a quick return to the soil of Michigan in the not distant future.

Box social at Hilton School, Friday, October 30. Everybody welcome. Girls be sure to bring a box. —Adv. 42-t1 pd.

MACKINAC FERRIES PAY STATE $25,000

Good Profit Is Shown by Ships During Tourist Season

The state will make more than $25,000 net profit through operation of the car ferries St. Ignace and Mackinaw City across the straits of Mackinac, it was estimated Monday following the report of Capt. A. T. May on operating revenue from April 26 to Sept. 30.

The state ferries charge approximntely half of the railroad ferry rate for trnnsportating automobiles.

Total revenue for the period covered is $148,383. The steamer Mackinaw City, which has operated through the entire season, paid a total revenue of $80,442 and the St. Ignace paid $67,941. Both steamers carried a totnl of 50,249 automobiles, trucks, trailers and motorcycles nnd 12,533 passengers exclusive of the drivers and occupants of the cars.

Rates charged by the state ferries are: Light passenger cars, $2.50; heavy cars $3.50, trucks $5 to $15, according to weight; motorcycles and trailers, $1 to $1.50, passengers, 25 cents.

The ladies of the Church of God are expecting to hold a sale of home baked goods nt the Charlevoix Hardware Co., next Saturday, October 24. —Adv. 42-t1 pd.

AT THE MOVIES

Doug MacLean Star in George M. Cohan Comedy

Douglas MacLean comes face to face with more pistols, revolvers and other mennring hardware in a shorter space of time in "Seven Keys to Baldpate," the George M. Cohan comedy in which MacLean comes to the Palace Theatre next Saturday and Sunday, October 24-25, than any other lone individual has faced since the Armistice.

With the exception of Edith Roberts, almost every other member of the large cast takes a turn at poking a gun into the ribs of the comedy star. Betty Francisco, Ned Sparks, Wade Boteler, Edwin Sturgis and Fred Kelsey are the chief exponents to the holdup tactics in this uproarlously funny story of a novelist who seeks solitude to write a novel in twenty-four hours and finds himself in the midst of a gang of crooks all determined to acquire the plunder for themselves nt any cost. Fred Newmeyer, the man who handled the megaphone on such comedy successes as "Grandma's Boy," "A Sailor Made Man" and "Snfety Last," directed this Paramount picture.

If "Adventure," the latest Paramount cinematic thriller, which comes to the Palace Theatre Tuesday and Wednesday, October 27-28, has a thousand points of interest, it is because Victor Fleming, the producer, has put into this picture all those basic movie elements so dear to the heart of the average film fan.

To begin with, there is a crackerjack story with a South Sea locale written by the late Jack London whose fertile brain has hatched out many a stirring action plot, of which "Adventure" is a typical example. Imagine a lone white man on one of the cannibal Solomon Islands waging a desperate single-handed battle against the rebellioua native blacks, while his body is racked with black water fever. Imngine him collapsing and being saved from a fate worse than death by the timely arrival of n brave, courageous girl—this opens the way for adventure, doesn't it?

And the dramatic developments that follow, the dnngers they face, and the risks they run furnish the nth degree of excitement and thrills. There is swift, unlimited action, much color and picturesque atmosphere, some hearty laughs and plenty of love and romance.

"Adventure" is a photoplay you are sure to enjoy because it is a picture that lives up to its promising title!

Batteries recharged and repaired. Electricnl work of nll kinds. Bring your car troubles to us. Brown Battery Shop.—Adv. 39-tf.

AMERICAN LEGION ELECT OFFICERS

Social and Business Meeting Held at R. L. Lewis Home

At a meeting of the Leslie T. Shapton Post, American Legion, held recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Lewis on Park avenue, officers were elected and a social meeting enjoyed.

Officers chosen for the ensuing year were as follows:

Commander, R. L. Lewis.
Vice Commander, Frank Poole.
Adjutant, Dr. L. V. Simmons.
Historian, Dr. F. H. Wilkinson.

Meetings of the Legion have been held at the home of members in the absence of a regular meeting place, and have resulted not only in a business meeting, but an enjoyable social gathering as well. This program will be followed out until their hall is ready for occupancy next spring.

The Baptist Ladies Aid will serve a chicken pie supper in the church parlors on Friday, October 30th, 5:30 until all are served. Price, 50c.—Adv. 42-t2.

SECOND STORY ADDED TO BANK BUILDING

Knights of Pythias Have Five-year Lease for Lodge Purposes

Plans on the new building under construction by the Charlevoix County Bank have been changed and now include a second story. The floor has already been laid and wall work built up to include the addition.

Negotiations have been completed with the local lodge Knights of Pythias No. 122, who have leased the second story for a period of five years, the plans being designed especially to accommodate n lodge. Floor plans include a large lodge room, property room, kitchen, ladies' and gentlemen's club rooms. The building will be completed and the Knights of Pythias in their new home before winter sets in.

Erection of a two story building on Bridge street will add greatly to the appearance of our business district, besides showing the owner's confidence in the business future of the town, also filling a long felt need of the K. P. lodge.

O. P. NELSON FOUND DEAD IN HIS HOME

Had Been Resident of Central Lake for 30 Years

O. P. Nelson, a resident of Central Lake township for better than thirty years, was found dead at his farm home, two miles south of Central Lake Tuesday morning of last week.

As Mr. Nelson had not been seen for ten days, neighbors were aroused and notified Deputy Sheriff John Muckle, who upon investigation found him dead on the floor of his home.

Dr. Don H. Duffie of Central Lake, was summoned and he pronounced the cause of death unknown. Evidence also showed that no violence had been committed.

Mr. Nelson who had lived alone since his wife died years ago, leaves a daughter, Mrs. Hiram Pearl, of Charlevoix, two sons: Ed. of East Jordan and Elmer of Detroit.

INTERESTING BITS OF INFORMATION CLIPPED FROM OUR EXCHANGES

The Owosso man who was almost struck by an airplane is the first one to advocate a new rule that pedestrians should walk on the under side of the road.

A Grand Rapids motorist is said to have caused a crash when he stopped suddenly to allow two women to cross the street. He will be charged with reckless politeness.

The Kansas City gentleman who was shipped to Isle Royale in a refrigerator car has recovered from his illness and gone home. And high time, too. If he waited a little longer, he might want to be shipped home in a furnace.

Charlevoix Hdw. Co.

Our Windows

Display Three Seasonable Articles

There are Hunting Things.

There's a Splendid Circulating Heater.

There's a Wonderful Radiola.

These last two speak loud of the long comfy evenings now at hand.

COME IN

Charlevoix Hardware Company

302 Bridge St Phone 1.

Willard STORAGE BATTERIES

We are selling genuine 13-plate rubber case Willard Batteries as low as $16.50

Fits Ford, Chevrolet, Overland, Maxwell, Star and others. Battery repair work is our specialty
We guarantee every piece of work turned out.

Benj. Brown Auto Sales

Phone 60
Time to think about Winter Storage for your Battery

TWENTY years ago when
A MAN drove into CHARLEVOIX
IN AN automobile just
ABOUT everybody rushed
OUT to see the strange
SIGHT and some of us
SHOOK our heads and
SAID the blamed things
WOULD never be practical
BECAUSE we'd never be ABLE to get the horses
USED to 'em; and now
AN airplane can buzz
ALONG overhead and the GENERAL public will HARDLY take the trouble
TO look up,—and right in LINE with the progress
OF THE times we want
TO mention our very COMPLETE line of RADIO receiving sets
AT prices ranging
FROM $15.00 and up.
MAY we demonstrate
AT your convenience?—

Forest & Clarence

WOOD BROTHERS

Hardware & Electrical Supplies

CHARLEVOIX COURIER

VOLUME 32. NUMBER 43. TEN PAGES COURIER, CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 28, 1925 PRICE $2.00 PER YEAR

COOLIDGE EXPLAINS RED CROSS WORK

SAYS ORGANIZATION IN U. S. MUST BE KEPT UP

From Armistice Day to Thankgiving An Invitation is Extended All to Join

The following message from President Calvin Coolidge presents the Red Cross to the public in its true form:

"The American Red Cross has rightfully won nn enviable place in the minds and hearts of the American people. It is their recognized agency for extending to suffering humanity everywhere, the practicnl helping hand of mercy. Under authority granted to it by Congress it is the spokesman for the organized effort of the people in dealing with distress, whether it be in our own or in foreign lands.

We have had frequent occasions in recent months to witnesa the readiness of the American Red Cross for instant and effective response at the call to duty. We know that it is ever ready for service in time of disaster. We know too, that it is always busy in our behalf in less spectacular but equally important task of guarding public health, spreading knowledge of safe living nnd in extending a tender and loving cure to the thousands of ex-service men and their fnmilies who are still suffering from the wounds of war.

It is characteristic of the American people that they have chosen as their instrument for the alleviation of suffering an institution as democratic as the Government and the people which it serves. The American Red Cross in its service program knows neither race, nor creed, nor color, it draws its support from no single class, but from all our people.

Each year, from Armistice day to Thanksgiving, the American Red Cross extends to everyone, the invitation to enlist in its ranks. It derives financial support through your membership dues. As President of the United States, and as President of the American Red Cross, I urge your continued membership, in this great humanitarian organization.

We have tested the Red Cross in war and in peace. It has never fooled us. It never will so long as it holds your generous support.

(Signed) Calvin Coolidge."

Loses Eye lo Accident

Thomas St. Charles of East Jordan, was the victim of a serious accident recently whieh resulted the loss of his left eye.

He was working at Strehl's garage in that city, when a rusty scale of steel flew into and embedded itself in the eye-ball. He went to Traverae City for treatment but it was found to be impossible to save either the sight of the eye or the eye-ball.

W. E. Parmelee builds storm windowa.—Adv. 37-tf.

BROTHER, YOUR SOCK IS THE ONLY SAFE PLACE

Sneak-theivea are again busy in the city. Every city has their share and it seems that Charlevoix has not been left out. It is not even safe to leave a bottle of milk out on the porch if you expect to find it in the morning.

Some time between five and six-thirty a. m. Tuesday morning about one hundred dollars was taken from the safe in the office of the Charlevoix Lumber Company. It has been tba eustom of thia eoneern for many yeara to have a watchman on the job around the premises during tha night. Archie McNeil is the present night-watch and he left his post for home Tuesday morning at five o'clock. The culprit was evidentally waiting in hiding and when Mr. McNell left entered tha offica and secured the money. The combination of the safe was turned and the outer door opened, access to the small cash drawer compartment on the inside being gained by prying the steel door off with some heavy instrument.

No clue to the identity of the robber bas been gained to date, but from the looks of tho job and the circumatanees surrounding the theft, it appears like the work of local talent, who no doubt will soon be apprehended.

THREE MEMBERS OF FAMILY WOUNDED

Shotgun Accidently Discharges Through Kitchen Door

The nccidental discharge of a 10-guage shotgun resulted in the wounding of three persons at the Henry McClanathan home last Sunday morning. The accident was of a very peculiar nature and caused much grief to Ed. McClanathan, from whose hands the weapon misfired.

It seems that Ed. was hunting in the woods in back of his father's farm and had dropped in for a few minutes visit with the family. Before entering the house he had unloaded the gun and left it standing in the woodshed. After a short stay he went out the back door, picked up the gun and was loading it. The family in the house decided to ask him to stay for dinner and started for the door to ask Ed. to return. Just as they reached the door and before they had opened it, Ed. closed the breach of the gun with the result that it misfired, the charge going through the pnnel of the door and striking his father, brother and sister, who were about to enter the woodshed.

Henry McClanathan was shot in the leg and left hand and after receiving treatment at the hospital was ready to go home Monday. The girl, Kate, received one bullet in the leg and was not seriously hurt. James, the son, received injuries of a more serious nature and will be confined to the hospital for some time.

C. H. S. BATTLES HARBOR TO TIE

OUTCOME OF STRUGGLE IN DOUBT TO FINISH

Two Schools Very Evenly Matched-- Straight Football Features Play Of Both Teams

A 6-6 tie wns the score resulting from one of the most interesting games thus far this season in a fight for the Northern Michigan championship when Charlevoix met Harbor Springs on Harbor's home field.

The game from start to finish was a battle between two evenly matched teams and the outcome of the game was in doubt until the final whistle Both teams resorted to straight foot-ball as their main offense although Charlevoix displayed some aerial talent and uncorked several passes resulting in long gains.

The first half ended with neither side scoring. Charlevoix opened the second half with a 30-yd. gain resulting from a pass, Brown to Davenport: Charlevoix then battered Harbor's line and sent Captain McCann across for the first touchdown. Charlevoix failed to score the extra point.

Charlevoix'a scoring acted as a tonic to the Harbor players and a series of runs and line smashes brought the ball across Charlevoix's goal line and evened the score. Although both teams fought hard to score again, neither were successful and the game ended 6-6.

Charlevoix diaplayed an improved game on the offeasive. This haa been their weak point all season and if it is overcome they will be a hard team to beat. Brown for Charlevoix played a good game on defense, as did Copper on offense.

Next Saturday Charlevoix will meet Petoskey on the South Side field. Petoskey was beaten by Boyne City last week and is coming to Charlevoix bent on redeeming themselves at Charlevoix's expense. The home team will need support so let us team up and help them.

BAPTIST CHURCH

Services of Sunday, November 1at, will begin at 10:30 a. m. The pastor will preach on the theme: "Elisha at Dothan." At 12:00 m. the Bible School will atudy with the rest of the Christian world, the fight againat strong drink.

Tho union service at the Methodist church last Sunday evening was a good start in this atudy.

The B. Y. P. U. will meet at 6:30 and at 7:30 the pastor will preach on "One from Above."

We believe any one and every one who attends these services will be profited thereby. So, come!

The pastor had an enoyable and profitahle week at the State convention at Lansing last week.

FIRST NUMBER LECTURE COURSE

AT PALACE THEATRE, MONDAY NOVEMBER 2ND

Nellie Verne Walker, Noted Sculptor and Lecturer, Comes Highly Recommended

Nellie Verne Walker, noted sculptor and lecturer, who will present her lecture-demonstration, "A Sculptor's Studio," on the Lyceum course here Monday evening, November 2nd, stands in the front ranks of American women sculptors. She has earned this enviable position through an artistic vision which is splendidly interpreted in all her work.

Born in Iowa, Miss Walker came to Chicago, and, after studying at the Art Institute of Chicago, became an instructor of modeling in the same institution. She is a member of numerous national art organizations, including the National Sculpture Society also a member of the Illinois state board of art advisers, a member of the Art Extension Committee of Illinois, sponsored by the state university, and was for two years president of the Cordon Club, a Chicago organization composed of women who are professionally engaged in the arts.

Miss Walker is represented in the Chicago Art Institute by a sculptural group which is called "Her Son." It consists of a mother and child apprehended in a beautiful moment of spiritual understnding. "Courage," designed for St. Luke's hospital, Chicago, as a memorial to deceased hospital internes is among Miss Walker's finest pieces. Her statue of the Indian chief Keokuk, overlooking the Mississippi river at Keokuk, Iowa, is heroic in size and finely and compactly modeled.

Much of Miss Walker's work has found expression in private memorials which are to be found throughout the United States.

The programs sponsored by the lecture course committee during the winter months have great educational value as well as being a diversion in entertainment for local people. It is hoped that Charlevoix citizens as well as school students will be liberal in their support of the series. Reserved seats may be scured for next Monday night by calling at the ticket office at the theatre between four and six p. m., or by calling Supt. George Coverdale at the high school building.

LITTLE DAMAGE CAUSED BY FIRES

On Wednesday Evening and Saturday Afternooo of Last Week

Tbe fire department wos called out twice last week by small blazes, neither of whicb caused any considerable damage.

Tha first alarm was turned in at about 9:30 last Wednesday evening, when a roof fire was discovered at the Charlea Wile home, formerly the Zeitler residence. The department responded promptly and little damage resulted from the blaze.

The second alarm was at about 4:30 Saturday afternoon. Shorted electric light wires was the cause of the blaze at the old Cal Price residence, now occupied by W. H. Guild. The blaze was put out before the department arrived and very little damage caused.

W. E. Parmelee builds storm windows.—Adv. 37-tf.

AMERICAN EDUCATION WEEK SOON

BEGINS ON MONDAY, NOVEMBER THE 16TH

Subjects of Vital Interest are Included in Programs Selected for Schools

American Education Week, which has become a permanent institution in this country, will begin on Monday, November 16, that day to be known and dedicated as "Constitution Day." It will be given over in the schools and throughout American circles generally to an exposition of that organic law of the republic, "the bulwark of democracy and opportunity."

Tuesday of this week will he "Patriotism Day," when the significance of the flag nnd American traditions will be emphasized. Wednesday will be "School nnd Teacher Day" and then the admonition of President Coolidge will be remembered, when he said, "It is not too much to say that the need of civilization is the need of teachers."

Thursday will be "Conservation nnd Thrift Day," dedicated to preservation of the forests and the wild life of the nation. Friday will be "Know your School Day," and will emphasize the fact that "Progressive civilization depends upon progressive education." Saturday will be "Community and Henlth Day," pointing out that "Physical education menns health and strength." Sunday will be utilized as it should, for "God and Country," calling attention to the fact thnt "Religion, morality, aod education are necessary for good government."

This program for Education Week is well chosen. It is the only time in the year when the entire nation is called upon to dedicate itself anew to the great task of universal education for democratic living. The schools themselves have a remarkable opportunity to teach every boy and girl his responsibility as a citizen to help maintain and educational system which will perpetuate the best in the ideals of the republic. The schools of the country will have suggested programs for every day of this week, and they will be available for the entire community in every school district.

ALL DEER MUST BE SHIPPED BY RAIL

Baird Plans to Eoforce Law Giving Him Rigbt to Decide Method.

The state department of conservation intends to enforce provisions of the game law making it compulsory to ship deer out of the state by express or freight.

The law is so worded as to prohibit shipment except by rail. It is contended that to allow hunters to cross the state line by automobile with game would be to invite violations of the buck law.

Director John Baird said recently he would place 50 game wardens along the Michigan-Wisconsin state line and that automobile parties with game would be turned back. Many southern Michigan hunters enter the upper peninsula by way of Chicago and Wisconsin because of uncertainty of conditions at the lower straits late in the year. They have been in the habit of returning to this state by the same route, bringing the game with them in automobiles.

For all tba news, read tba Courier.

In the Danger Zone

SMALL CROPS PAY LARGER DIVIDENDS

Spud Raisers Get Larger Returns for Produce This Year

A golden harvest is jingling into the pockets of Michigan farmers, who followed the advice of agricultural seers this spring and planted potatoes. Unfortunately many furmers cut the acreage or abandoned the crop almost entirely because of bumper yield and low prices in 1924. This fact cut the yield 12,000,000 bushels below last year but it made possible plutocratic dividends for the agriculturists who devoted their fields to this famous Michigan product.

According to estimates Saturday by Verne H. Church, federal agricultural statistician for Michigan, potatoes are apt to return the largest profit per acre of any crop. The yield per acre, in bushels, is considerably smaller than in 1924 but the price is hovering around and above the dollar mark as compared with 35 cents December 1 last year.

The average production per acre will run in excess of 100 bushels as compared with 131 last year, according to present estimates, and the total yield for the state will be 26,384,000 bushels, as compared with 38,252,000 in 1924. The total value of the huge crop last year, however, was $13,388,000 and this year a consevative forecast places it at $19,788,000. The average value per acre in 1924 was $45.84, as compared with a promised value this year of around $85 or $90.

RING-NECK PROVES A TOUGH TARGET

LOCAL HUNTERS BAG FEW ON OPENING DAY

Conditions Adverse and Better Weather May Bring Wary Birds Out of Cover

The chill northwest wind intermingled with flurries of snow and rain failed to dishearten the hundreds of anxious hunters who have been oiling guns, training dogs and waiting for weeks for that grand and glorious day, the opening of the hunting season on rabbits, partridge and pheasants. The break of dawn was greeted with the rattle of Fords and the gentle purr of its more aristocratic brothers as hunters started on their trip to the woods.

It is safe to estimate that over fifty parties from Charlevoix took advantage of the opening day of the season. But it is also safe to say that the hunter who went out to make a day of pheasant shooting as he would make a day of partridge shooting, will return home with quite as much respect for the ring-neck as anyone could have for the grouse. Many doubtlessly know by this time that hitting a pheasant and bringing him down is a bit more difficult than banging away at a barn door. Pheasants have been killed with brush guns and number tens. But they are tough birds. A mature male will carry off enough lead to anchor a mallard decoy. The best medicine is the choke bored duck gun and a vest full of number sixes.

Hunting parties from Charlevoix were quite successful, as various reports indicate. Nearly every bunch got a good day's bag of rabbits, but so far very few partridge or pheasants have been reported. Many have been seen, but few killed, and everyono has the same yarn—"they are hard to bring down." Better weather will likely bring the birds out of cover and better bags may be brought in before the closing of the season next Monday.

Young Couple Married

Francis C. Cross and Miss Jennie R. Hnnselman were married at 8:30 on Monday evening of this week at the Methodist Episcopal parsonage. Rev. C. E. Pollock officiated, using the ring service. Both bride and groom are residents of Petoskey and will make their home in that city where Mr. Cross is employed as a mechanic.

Public Notice

The Congregational Ladies Aid Society will serve a puhlic supper at the church, Friday, November 6th.—Adv. 43-t1 pd.

The Lady Maccabees will hold a baked goods sale at the H. B. Jacob's grocery on Saturday of this week.—Adv. 43-t1.

RUM RUNNERS HIT A SNAG

FLYING LEAP FOR BRUSH IS OF NO AVAIL

Sheriff Makes Capture After A Long Chase—Two Held Over to Circuit Court

Three well known Charlevoix men tangled with the sheriff late last Friday night and as a result aro charged with violation of the liquor law, one having paid a fine and costs for driving a car while intoxicated, and the other two being bound over to the circuit court for trial.

It seems that late at night the three, driving a Dodge car hired from the O'Neill Bus and Taxi line, were on their way to Charlevoix from East Jordan and collided with a car belonging to a woman on the corner near Bird's farm. An altercation arose over the damages and the owner of the damaged car notified the sheriff. Charley got there just after the Dodge car started for Charlevoix. The sheriff gave chase, following the speeding Dodge to Charlevoix via East Jordan road, up Stover road to State street, down State street—on which the fugitives threw out two different batches of liquor—through town and out north past the Waller farm and into the brush, where the sheriff succeeded in making the arrest. It hasn't been figured out just how many offenses the three have committed, but there were enough to hold them for a time at least.

We are advised that two of the men, after standing pat for several hours under the code of procedure of their type of citizens, finally caved in and told where they purchased the liquor, which proved to be a place in an adjoining county.

If we are not mistaken, two of these men are the ones who, in the recent past, have been the loudest in their denunciation of the fellow who squealed on a bootlegger. It all goes to indicate that it is easy enough for some fellows to accuse others of having a monopoly on all the golden rod in the country.

HOSPITAL NOTES

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Homer Brady, Sunday morning, October 25th, a boy, weight nine pounds.

Mrs. Cora Tommerassen was admitted to the hospital Tuesday morning, quite ill with pneumonia.

Wm. Dennison of Central Lake, had an infected toe removed the first of the week.

Albert Cook was operated on last week for empyema. He is doing nicely.

Supt. Monthly Report for September

No. patients admitted	18
No. patients discharged	18
No. days care of patients	216
Average No. per day	7
No. medical cases	14
No. surgical cases	12
No. accident cases	1
Highest No. any day	14
Lowest No. any day	4
No. patients in hospital Sept 1	14
No. patients in hospital Oct. 1	9
No. meals served	1365

BARGAINS AWAIT THE THRIFTY BUYER SATURDAY

A careful study of the numerous advertisements in this week's issue of the Courier will convince any skeptic person that Charlevoix merchants didn't "mean maybe" when they said bargains for Saturday, October 31st, Vegetable and Grain show day. Every one of the ten pages in the paper are loaded with honest-to-goodness, money-saving bargnins for those thrifty enough to take advantage of them.

To look outside, we'll admit, would be enough to discourage most any one—but not Charlevoix, merchants. They nre going ahead with their plans for a big show and everything will bo in rendiness when you unload your exhibits on Friday afternoon or Saturday morning of this week. A apecial request has been sent to "Old King Sol" to have the snow removed before that time, and we have every hope that oar wish will be granted.

So, Mr. Farmer, get your exhibits ready and arrange your plans so as to spend Saturday, Oetober 31st, in Charlevoix, and we will beat the weather man at his own game.

The Baby's Cold

Continual "dosing" with internal medicine upsets delicate little stomachs. Treat colds externally with Vicks. You just rub it on.

VICKS VAPORUB

CORRESPONDENCE

CLARION

Miss Ida Huff has been ill for the past week.

There are several cases of mumps at Walloon Lake.

Mrs. J. A. Dodgson and little daughter, were in town Thursday.

The church here has been closed for two weeks while being repaired and redecorated.

Mrs. Cora Hinkley returned last Monday from Detroit, where she visited her duaghter, Mrs. Jessie Planck.

Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Griswold returned last week from a trip to Indiana and southern Michigan.

held all naxt week.

On Sunday, November 1st, District superintendent Randall, will hold services here at 10:30 a. m. The Boyne Falls choir will fiurnish the music. Special services will be

The Ladies' Aid met at the home of Mrs. Colden on Thursday. Officers for the coming year were elected. Mrs. Margaret Kent, Pres., Mrs. Al. Jubenville, Vice-president; Mrs. Lelia Griswold, Secretary, Mrs. Cora Hinkley, Treasurer.

NORWOOD

Mrs. Slick of Manton, Michigan, is visiting at the home of her sister, Mrs. Harris Pierce.

Mr. William Seymour and son, Versel, of Charlevoix, visited at the Plenny Jennett home Sunday.

Sam Routley and family, spent Sunday with his nephew, Albert Routley and family of near Charlevoix.

The Ladies' Aid Society will meet with Mrs. Frank Brown this week to complete their plans for the social for Friday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Fox of Kewadin, visited Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Stafford and also Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Stafford last week

Miss Drucilla Richardson of Charlevoix, visited over the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Richardson.

The members of the Laides Aid Society will have a social with good eats at the town hall in Norwood, Friday evening of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Ashdon and family of Charlevoix, and also Mr. Ashdon's mother from Muncelona visited Mr. and Mrs. I. L. Dice Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Tehoe and family from the Payton farm near East Jordan, have purehased the Jennett farm and moved to their new location Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Donaldson and family of Charlevoix, who left for Southern Pines, N. C., Tuesday for the winter, visited Mr. and Mrs. I. L. Dice last Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Light and son, George, have gone to Charlevoix to to stay with Mrs. Light's mother, Mrs. Wagner, while Mr. Wagner is away on business.

Bill and Junior Supernaw and the Ikins brothers and also Herbert Campbell all of Charlevoix, spant last week school vacation at the Supernaw farm where the boys had a jolly good time.

Electric light bulbs that give service at Charlevoix Hardwara Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

PHELPS

Dick O'Neill is busy moving to Charlevoix this week.

Charles Stevens was a business caller in Charlevoix, Saturday.

Charles Stevens and Fred Falting drove to East Jordan and Pleasant Valley, Sunday.

Ralph Klooster and family drove to Ironton, Sunday, to call on old neighbors and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Klooster and children were dinner guests at the Ed. Klooster home, Sunday.

Charles Robinson has rented a farm near East Jordan and expects to move there within a week or so.

Lloyd Himbauch, of Detroit, is here visiting for a few days at the home of his father, Harmon Himbauch, and brother, Wilber.

George Drost, who makes his home in Elkhart, Ind., drove here arriving Saturday evening to visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chris Drost, for about a week.

This entire community extend their sympathy to the L. O. Isman family of Ellsworth, in their recent hereavement in the loss of their young daughter.

Mrs. Henry Dixon and son, Colon, of Detroit were visiting for a few days at the home of Albert Balch. The Dixons are old residents of this community, and have many friends here who are always glad to see them.

DEER LAKE

(Too late for last week.)

Nearly all the farmers have their potato crop harvested.

Mr. and Mrs. Terry S. Barber spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Sid Barber at Clare.

Deer Lake grange will hold their annual hunt supper, October 30th. W. McGeorge and H. C. Barber are the captains this year.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Hardy and Mr. and Mrs. George Hardy of Boyne City, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Matt Hardy.

Electric light bulbs that give service at Charlevoix Hardware Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

AT THE MOVIES

"Lightnin' " will strike this town next Saturday! This is not merely a prediction; it is a certainty. However, it will not be serious. On the contrary, it will be highly entertaining because "Lightnin' " will hit here as one of the season's most promising photoplay, being hooked as the attraction at the Palace Theatre, opening next Saturday. Jay Hunt will be seen in the role of Lighnin' Bill Jones, a character made famous by the late Frank Bacon on the stage. Supporting Mr. Hunt will be Madge Bellamy, Ethel Clayton, Edythe Chapman, Otis Harlan, J. Farrell MacDonald, James Marcus, Wallace McDonald, Brandon Hurst and Richard Travers.

CHURCH OF GOD

Prenching services each Sunday at 10:30 and 7:30.

No preaching service next Sunday evening, October 25, on account of the anti-saloon meeting to be held in the M. E. church.

Young people's meeting each Sunday evening at 6:30 except next Sunday will be at 6:00.

Prayer services each Wednesday avening at 7:30.

A two week's revival service will begin November 22 to be hold by Rev. J. C. Thomson of Alma, Michigan. A young man of considerable evangelistic ability. Come and hear him.

A cordial invitation to the general public to attend all our services.

Wm. Eldridge, pastor.

W. E. Parmelee builds storm windows.—Adv. 37-tf.

RED CROSS YEAR A RELIEF RECORD

Huge Relief Work After Midwest Tornado the Greatest in American Annals.

DISASTERS DROP IN 1925

Ranged From Fire to Earthquake and Covered Wide Area at Home and Abroad.

Virtual completion of the largest peace-time project of post-disaster rehabilitation ever known has been accomplished by the American Red Cross in less than a year, as a part of its relief work in the more than 90 disasters in which it served in the past year.

This great program was undertaken following the tornado which struck five mid-western States last spring, killing 796 people, injuring 3,239 more, and causing inestimable property loss. It left a huge area of devastation in its wake, presenting a real problem. The Red Cross, however, went to work on the heels of the storm, caring for the injured, sheltering and feeding whole communities, and helping every individual sufferer from the destruction back to normal.

The magnitude of the problem is indicated by comparison of its huge casualty list with that of the entire preceding year, whose combined losses were 796 dead and not quite 2,000 injured, as a result of the record number of 191 catastrophies.

The story of the Red Cross service in the past year, recounted by the report, ranges from fires heading the list of destructive forces with 29 disasters, to mine explosions, tornadoes, typhoons, floods and earthquakes.

The Santa Barbara earthquake was among the outstanding events recorded in the report. The Red Cross had completed its relief organization on the scene within a few hours of the disaster, and in addition had launched a program designed to permanently restore every person affected by it, to his former status once more.

The Red Cross service in the period following the wreck of the Navy airship "Shenandoah" was typical of its promptness and effectiveness. Service in this instance was afforded by Red Cross chapters in the vicinity of the wreck, and by representatives of the national organization. It demonstrates graphically the value of each of the more than 3,000 chapters of the society which are at work in virtually every part of the country, in the facility they afford the national organization in emergencies.

There were 61 domestic disaster operations reported in which the Red Cross rendered service either through chapter or national staff personnel during the year. In 34 of these the national organization appropriated a total of $3,047,256.49, the greater portion of which was received as direct contributions for the relief of specified disasters. The relief operations following the northern Ohio tornado of June, 1924, were brought to a close in May, 1925, after an arrangement had been made with the Lorain chapter to provide expert services to the families of any tornado sufferers who required such assistance in the next two years. In this single disaster the relief work, as finally accounted, reached a total of $1,019,751.23.

The mid-western tornado of this year, covering a strip of territory 400 miles long involved an expenditure up to June 30 of $774,000, while the total amount turned in to the fund through the agency of the Red Cross was $2,645,000. In addition to this sum specifically collected for the purpose, the Red Cross had expended from its regular reserves $124,000.

In all these disasters, Red Cross workers have been impressed by the spirit of determination and hopefulness shown by the people. Once they recovered from their grief and bewilderment, they began at once to rebuild, materially and otherwise, and always on a better scale where possible. Another significant feature of these occurrences, as noted in the report of the Red Cross, was the promptness with which the local chapters organized emergency relief before help could be received from outside sources. A direct effect of their example has been to stimulate disaster relief preparedness among chapters all over the country.

BARGAINS

Brand New Purchase! First Time Shown!

Folks! Here's Big News—news of interest to every housewife within shopping distance of our doors. Every item shown here a "Stay Bargain"—a Surprise Purchase—new merchandise, bright as a new pin, bought right and priced right specially for this sale. Don't fail to take advantage of the daily leaders on our bills. Come early if possible. You'll save and profit.

Sale Starts Saturday, October 31 and continues all following week

A BIGGER SALE THAN WE HAVE EVER HELD BEFORE

Aluminamware, handy sizes, choice of 2 quart, sance pan, 2 quart mixing bowls, 2 quart pudding pan, each..... 19c

Black Enameled Lunch Kit, sanitary interior, thoroughly ventilated, equipped and with positive fasteners. Davica for holding Vacnum Bottle, only..... 59c

Filled Scholars' Campanion, handsoma imitation leather case yon'll be proud of. Contents include collapsible aluminum drinking cup, 3 pencils, pen holder, pen and ruler, all for..... 25c

Canister Sets, 4 pieces, choice of white frosted silver or frosted gold, Japannad finish with lettering in gold, blue and silver. Complete..... 89c

1 ½ quart Rice Boiler, 99 per cent pure aluminum, whatever you do, get one of these double boilers now. Price.... 79c

Men's Mercerized Hose, black and french tan, wear, comfort and appearance. This hose has all thrae. Specially priced at only..... 23c

Stamped Scarfs, 18x48, tan art crash, stamped in several neat designs. Surely you want at least one at..... 25c

Stamped Apron Goods, good quality linen, size 34x48 inches. Choice of rose, blue gold, russet, peach and lavender. Limited quantity, be here early..... 39c

Fashion Marked Lustrous Hose, latest colors, a well constructed artificial silk hose that deserves special attention. We suggest that you purchase several pairs at this time. Price..... 49c

Fine Extension Curtain Rods, handsome, brassed, smooth velvet finish curtain rods that extend 22 to 40 inches. Complete with double brackets and nails. You can't beat this value..... 19c

Aluminum Roasters, money saving special for opening day. Has tight fitting, self-basting cover. Popular size. Sure starts this sale off with a bang Be here..... 99c

Stockings for the little Miss, black and cordovan, a finer guage medium weight stocking that gives a full measure of satisfaction Size from 5 to 9 1-2, pair 23c

Silk Hosiery—latest colors for your selection. Fine, pure lustrous silk twisted with artificial silk for greater strength. Regular sizes..... 99c

Powder Compacts—a little beauty. Hand-painted thin model cases with mirror and hinged cover. Best grade of powder compact, also powder puff, Special.... 39c

Heavy Celluloid Dressing Combs, full size and has both coarse and fine teeth. Your choice of black, white and colors..... 19c

FREE—Shopping Bags. Ask for one as you enter the store.

SURPRISE BARGAINS

There are scores of other wonderful values waiting you here. Look for the SPECIAL RED SIGNS showing additional bargain surprises when you are in the store. SCORES OF SAVINGS not listed in this advertisement await thrift buyers at this sale.

SMITH'S VARIETY STORE

Brown Block—Charlevoix, Mich.

Compare ... these Better BUICK Sedans with "Coaches"

These finer closed cars are built on the famous Buick chassis with the 21-year-proved, 60 and 75 horsepower Buick Valve-in-Head engines. Extra power!

And they have the famous "Sealed Chassis" and the new "Triple Sealed Engine." No other car, regardless of price, furnishes this completeness of protection for driving parts.

And these Buicks have the characteristic Buick charm of body profile. They are finished in Duco. They seat five full-grown people in roomy comfort. They have the Fisher VV one-piece, ventilating windshield, automatic windshield wiper, and a host of light necessities. Buick's exacting closed car standards prevail in their Fisher-built bodies.

Come in and see how much superior these Better Buick Sedans are to "Coaches" before you spend your money.

BUICK MOTOR CO., FLINT, MICH.
Division of General Motors Corporation

0-18-14

The Better BUICK

HEATON & HOOPER
Boyne City, Michigan

WHEN BETTER AUTOMOBILES ARE BUILT, BUICK WILL BUILD THEM

The services of the American Red Cross are performed invariably in the name of the American people. On the effectiveness of this representation during the past year, it will launch the ninth annual roll call this year on November 11, to continue until Thanksgiving, November 26, during which support through membership will be invited for 1926.

Red Cross First Aid Popular in America As Accidents Gain

The rapidly mounting toll from traffic accidents has brought home to the public the necessity of being prepared to render prompt assistance while awaiting the doctor. During the past year 356 chapters of the American Red Cross were instructing classes in First Aid, and in the same period certificates were issued to 20,601 persons qualified by Red Cross experts.

Many cities throughout the United States are showing interest in securing first aid instruction for their police and fire department personnel, and through the work of local chapters, practical results have been obtained in such cities as Washington, D. C.; Toledo, O.; Boston, Mass.; South Bend and Indianapolis, Ind.; Port Arthur, Texas, and other communities. In co-operation with the State authorities, intensive training in first aid and rescue methods has been given to State police and constabulary members at four State training schools.

Instruction in these subjects in public and private schools, colleges and universities has increased during the year. Attention has been given to training teachers at institutes and summer schools.

The Red Cross first aid railroad car has been in continuous operation throughout the year. It covered 10,340 miles, visiting 137 cities, where 1,200 meetings were conducted by the surgeons, with a total of 146,327 people.

Industries particularly have availed themselves of the instruction afforded by the Red Cross. The Western Electric Company, for example, reports a reduction of the accident rate per 1,000 employees.

Bring in Your BEANS

We will pay you the highest market price for them.

Phelps Marketing Assn.
Phone 7004F24

OCTOBER 31 SPECIALS

Vegetable and Grain Show Day

If low prices mean anything to you grab some of these low priced garments.

$16.00 OREGON CITY MILLS— Pure Wool Mackinaws, sale..... $10.00

$12.00 SOO or ALPENA— Pure Wool Mackinaws, sale..... $8.75

$8.00 MACKINAWS— sale price..... $5.00

These Mackinaws for Men and Boys

Children's Underwear

HEAVY FLEECED 2-PIECE GARMENTS— sale price..... 35c

UNION SUITS— from ..... 75c to 90c

Closing out Suits and Overcoats at prices you cannot afford to miss. Ask to see them.

Emrey Clothing House

CIRCUIT COURT NOVEMBER 2ND.

JURY TO REPORT OPENING DAY OF COURT

Sixteen Criminal, Seven Law and Fifteen Chancery Cases Appear on the Calendar.

The postponed term of Circuit court for Charlevoix county will convene at the court house on Monday, November 2nd, with Judge Parm C. Gilbert presiding. A glance at the calendar shows sixteen criminal, seven issues of foct and law, fifteen chancery eases, and one application for citizenship papers.

The calendar follows:

Application of Citizenship

Application for Citzenship of Anthony Mathews Faszewski, petition.

Criminal Cases

The People vs. Alexander Hosler, neglect of wife.

The People vs. Horry Smart, nssault.

The People vs. Joe Oliver, nonsupport.

The People vs. Bernard Newson, for sentence.

The People vs. John Allors, for sentence.

The People vs. Frank Simmons, non-support.

The People vs. Lafayette Eoton, for suspended sentence.

The People vs. Hilton Marshall, violation of liquor law.

The People vs. Joseph Siloge, assault.

The People vs. Dolphus Newman, for sentence.

The People vs. Jonas McSaubic, desertion.

The People vs. Claire Steimer, larceny.

The People vs. Carlos M. Parzonas and Mario C. Parzonas, embezzlement.

The People vs. Wasyl Skop, violntion of liquor low, for sentence

The People vs. Jackson Anes, wife desertion.

The People vs. Roy Pnnt, non-support.

Issues of Fact and Law

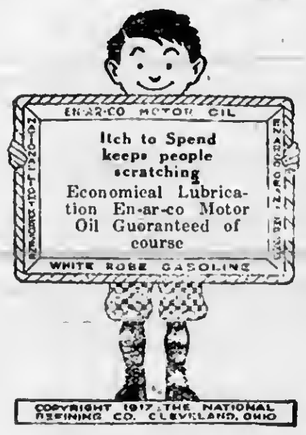
Fort Wayne Engineering Co. vs. E. J. Schultz, assumpsit.

J. B. Colt Company vs. Mont Withers, assumpsit.

Est. of Dan J. Martin, deceased vs. E. J. Lnway, petition.

Anna Gatliff vs. Fred Scndenberg, et nl., trespass.

Frank O. Burden, Sr., vs. A. Heller Sawdust Company, n corporntion, et al. assumpsit.



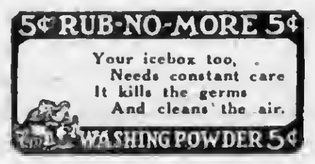
EN-AR-CO MOTOR OIL
Itch to Spend keeps people scratching
Economical Lubrication En-ar-co Motor Oil Guoranteed of course
WHITE ROSE GASOLINE
COPYRIGHT 1917 THE NATIONAL REFINING CO. CLEVELAND, OHIO

THE AUTO SHOP

Phone 93 204 Mason St.

SAMSON told Deliah that his strength lay in his long hair. Young Samson goes to the barber regularly. But we deliver at least a quart of milk a day for him, and therein lies his strength

MARION CENTER DAIRY
Pure Aerated Milk and Cream
CHARLEVOIX, MICH



Peiter Auto Company a Michigan Corporation vs. E. John Olson, Garnishment.

The People of the State of Michigan, by Oramel B. Fuller, et al. vs. Robert Bridge, Executor Estato of Windsor F. Aldrich, et al., assumpsit.

Chancery Cases

Clara J. Halmes vs. Earl Dodd, et al., accounting.

Martha Freiberg vs. Fred Pillsbury, et al., bill to quiet title.

Frank C. Burnett vs. Asahel G. Tillotson, accounting.

Albert Bridge vs. Robert Struthers, nccounting.

Charles F. Neitzel vs. John Veal and George H. Whitley, accounting.

The People' State Saving Bank a corporation vs. Archie W. Myers, et. al.

RED CROSS FINANCES SHOW WIDE SERVICES

Past Year Cost $10,321,679.80; Duty to Ex-Service Men Paramount.

Washiagtoa.—The aatioaal snd International services of the Americaa Red Cross are portrayed graphically .n a statement of the Red Cross finances for the past fiscal year ended June 30, 1925. Expeaditures by the Red Cross (including both the National Orgaalzation aad the Chapters) during this period aggregated $10,321,679.80

The obligation of the American Red Cross to the ex-service and service men is represented in this sum by a total expenditure of $4,225,292.61. In the interests of disabled veterans, the Red Cross expended $3,577,916.42, of which $1,677,916.42 came from the National Organization, and $1,900,000 from the more than 3,000 Chaptere and local branches of the society. Red Cross services to the men of the Regular Army and Navy the past year called for $647,376.19, of which the National Organization furnished $310,376.19, ond the Chapters, $337,000.

Sharing in importance with this responsibility was the Red Cross work of disaster relief duriag the year. In these operntions there wns absorbed a total of $1,922,782.90 up to June 30, this year. This represented $1,622,782.90 of National Organization funds and $300,000 from the Chapters. Relief in foreiga disasters amounted to $285,579.35. This sum was appropriated altogether hy the National Organization.

Insular and foreign operations of the American Red Cross during the year included relief in foreign disasters, the League of Red Cross Societies, Junioa Red Cross Foreign Projects, assistance to insular Chapters and similar functioas. Besides its disaster relief, the Natioaal Orgnnizotion finaaced these other hranches of foreign work also, including $110,238.72 for assistance to insuinr chapters, $177,450 for the League of Red Cross Societies, $84,384.43 for Junior projects abroad, and $80,057.62 for other insular and foreign operations.

Ia addition to its paramouat duty to assist vaterans and other aervice mea and their families, and its disaster relief, the Red Cross expeaded at nome through its national aad chapter funds, a tatal of $1,029,616.05 for its Public Healtb Nursing Service; $154,135.09 for autrition instruction; $314,422.76 for First Aid and Life Saving; $445,707.34 for Janior Red Cross; $132,759.88 for instruction in Home Hygiene and Care of ths Sick; and carried on simtlarly important home dutles. Incladed in the lattar were such valuable servicea as the Enrolled Nurses' Reserve, for which the National Organization expended $45,562.64; while other national operations at home amounted to $302,957.64. The chapters, in addition to the large part they played in all Red Cross activity, apent $678,000 of their own funds on general chapter services.

The broad hamanity of the Americna Red Cross can never be measured hy the moaey it costs, hut even in hare terms of dollars and cents, tha scope of its work is indicated. A study of these facts also ahows the necessity for the largest poselble enrollmsnt. siace Red Cross aervice is maintained nimost entirely hy its membership. The annual invitntion to particlpate in this work through membership in the American Red Cross, is extended from Armistice Day, Novemher 11, to Thaaksgiving, November 26.

What Becomas of Red Cross Sweaters

What hecomes of the sweaters which the American Red Cross has asked for? In tha first place, they are neaded for the 30,000 disahled veterans still in hospitals this winter, the garmeats heing in great demaad. Tha aurplus laft from the war has been exhausted siace the Armistice, hsace tha naw call for tha sweater-knitters to resuma their needles, a call already being met.

The Americaa Red Cross servos in your aame;. yoa can make it more effectiva hy addiag yaur aame ta its membership duriag tha Roll Call, Nov. 11-26.

GOOD ROADS

LOWER CALIFORNIA IMPROVING ROADS

Southern California durlag the first six months of 1924 contracted for more than $5,000,000 of rood work, one-third of which has been state funds, and the remnlaing two-thirds provided hy the counties. This money will be oppited on the construction and improvement of more than 350 niles of highway There were 46 different projects undertaken.

In addition to this road work there were 13 bridges placed under coastructioa, totaling nenrly 1,200 feet in length and involving expenditures of more thon $124,000.

These figures nre estimated from records of the engineering department of the Automobile Club of Southern Californio, which organization has always been a strong proponent of good roods, and which keeps tnb of the highway constructioa throughout that seclion.

California now has more thaa 15,000 niles of surfaced roads. This state is called upon aut oaly to provide adequnte highways for its 1,200,000 motor vehicles, but it must also be prepared to take cnre of an ever-increosing ninmber of visiting motorists. During the present year it is estimated that some 300,000 cars entered the state and made use of the roads for touring purposes, nnd were under no further expense for use of the highways than the 2 cents n gallon gasoline tax, which is levied upon nll automotive vehicles.

Farmer Is Booster for Hard-Surfaced Highway

Once upon a time it was difficult for the farmer to raise vegetnbles profitnbly because of the difficulty in getting them to market promptly and economically. The same held true in the selling of butter and eggs from the farm.

Paved highways, however, have changed all this. With his automobile or light truck he may carry the produce of the farm into the city and put them on the market quickly. This is especially important in the case of green vegetables and fruits, which are likely to spoil unless they are marketed quickly.

With good roads available, there is still another avenue of transportation open to the farmer. It is the parcel post rural deliveries. In sections where the country districts are traversed by paved roads of the better types, city post office departments are offering this service, and many farmers take advantage of it to market their produce profitably.

Consequently, the farmer is a booster for paved highways. The figures for one type of highway pavement—concrete—are significant. At the first of this year, the country had the equivalent of 25,627 miles of 18-foot concrete highway pavement. Of this, 5,194 miles were laid in 1923.

New Highway Opened for Travel Through Wyoming

Tho thousands of tourists who drive west every year on the Lincoln highway will he interested to learn that access to the Yellowstone National park through central Wyoming, leoving the Lincoln highway ot Cheyenne, has been made much more easy and ettractivo hy the construction of o new highway through Wind River canyon which does uway with the old trail kaowa ae Bird's Eye pass ecross the Owl Creek ronge.

The new rood which is a part of the Yellowstoae highway between Casper and Thermopolis is 13 milee in length aad is hewa almost entirely out of solid granite, three tuanels being required with an aggregate leagth of over 800 feet.

This cutoff, which is a federal aid project, cost $750,000 to construct.

Prosperity Will Follow Improved Road System

Prosperity follows e really good road. This is invariably found to be the case. A good system of highways impresses home-seekers aad investors. They look upon the state that is improvlag its highways ae n progressive state in which there will he found opportunities that other states would oot offer. This has been fonad to he the cese in North Caroline, and it haa been aleo found there that the paving of streets even in the smaller cities paye good dividends aad that the good effect is not long in being noticed. Paved streets and hard-surfaced roadwaye nre closely linked and work together for the mbuildiag of towne and communities.—Annison (Ga.) Star.

LOCAL OFFICERS USE FINGERPRINT EXPERTS

Sheriffs and other local officials are using the services of the etate's fingerpriat experts from the Department of Public Snfety at Lansing more aad more. In June there were 25 requests for mea to he eeat oul to assist criminal investigationa.

An unusual case was one where burglars had entered a clergyman's residance, stolen tha communice wine and drank it in the yard. Their finger prints were found on the bot tles.

An average of more than 300 iden tificotioas a month is made by the Ideatificatioa burenu at Lonsing. Under a new law all local officials mak ing requests are required to seac fiagerprints to the state bureau. It often develops that persons arrested in one county are wanted for crime lu enother

PRESIDENT GIVES PRAISE

President Coolidge has expressed his commendation of the work of the Maryland State Police who have formed his escort on several occas ions while traversing that state. It will he recolled that Presiden Roosevelt was also an active fri of the State Police idea.

EAT QUAKER OATS FOR COOL AUTUMN DAYS

Now comes the cooler day of autumn, with winter just nround the corner—days of blustering winds bearing sometimes rain and other times snow—days of wet feet, heavier clothing and changing temperature, bringing colds and lagrippe and sometimes pneumonia lurks in the background.

Now is the time for vigorous food, for things to eat which build vitality, vim and resistonce to ills and ailments common to the changing seoson.

Ask your doctor, "What to eat?". Almost the first food he will name, for children, for women and for men alike, will be rolled oats.

With all the vitality-building elements in them, just as nature grew them out of the sunshine, the rich earth and soft showers of summer, rolled oats not alone contain the elements which build vigor, but these elements come, in this food, unchanged, vital, quickly assimilated.

Get down the Quaker Oats package for breakfast which does not overload digestive systems, but which brings to them a quickly digested, readily assimilated flood of the food elements which grow muscle, which give the blood richness for repoiring tissues worn by the morning's play or work.

Or, serve Quaker Oats for a luncheon which will give no feeling of stuffiness during the afternoon, yet which will contain efficient vitality-building substance to keep the mind and body fresh and vibrant all afternoon.

At the first cold day, the first rainy day, the first day when winds blow gusty and chill, bring out the familiar round cardboard box with the old Quaker on it—not to "heat up the blood," as the old saying has it, for food doesn't do that; but to supply the family with vigor-building, easily digested food with a tastiness which says "more."

Save time, too; no use getting uncomfortable and disheveled over a hot stove. Daylight comes too late, these days, that breakfast time is upon you before you realize it. Use Quick Quaker—less than five minutes and breakfast is ready. No half-hour at luncheon; the same Quick Quaker cuts it to five minutes.

Meet the rigor of the weather with the vigor of Quaker Oats.

At Least, Hubby Hopes So.

If a woman has a new hat she has something hid aside for a rainy day.

He's Worse Than a Nuisance.

As vinegar to the teeth and as smoke to the eyes, so is the sluggard to them that send him.—Solomon.

Our Specials for Farm Product Exhibit Day

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 31ST

ARMSTRONG LINOLEUM

6 ft. wide E. grade, regular value $1.20 per yard, sale price.....90c

12 ft. wide E. grade, regular value $1.25 per yard, sale price.....$1.00

6 ft. wide D. grade, regular value $1.25 per yard, sale price.....95c

12 ft. wide D. grade, regular value $1.40 per yard, sale price.....$1.10

ARMSTRONG LINOLEUM RUGS

6x9 size regular $10.00 value sale price.....$8.50

7½x9 size, regular $13.00 value sale price.....$10.95

9x10½ size, regular $17.50 value sale price.....$15.00

9x12 size, regular $20.00 value sale price.....$17.00

ARMSTRONG FELT BASE AND CONGOLEUM RUGS

6x9 size, regular value $9.00 sale price.....$7.75

7½x9 size, regular value $11.25 sale price.....$9.95

9x10½ size, regular value $15.75 sale price.....$13.40

9x12 size, regular value $18.50 sale price.....$15.75

In addition to the above special bargains, we will make liberal concessions in prices on our entire line.

You will make money by taking advantage of these special bargains. compare the priees on our rugs with those of mail order houses and see merchandise before you pay a eent.

Yours for big bargains

S. M. SEE & SONS

The Reliable Home Furnishers

THE SIMPLEST LIGHT & POWER PLANT IN THE WORLD

IT TRANSFORMS THE FARM HOME INTO A FAIRY LAND OF LIGHT AND HAPPINESS

HOW many lives do you expect to live? If only one like the most of us, then enjoy that elemental and essential comfort—electric lights.

But the Marco Light and Power Plant pays for itself in a hundred other ways. The engine can be removed from its base and used to pump water, to run the wood saw, feed grinder, potato digger, binder, etc.

No other light plant has an engine that can be utilized in this manner.

The Marco engine has 80% to 100% more power than other plant engines and runs at 800 instead of 1,200 R. P. M., which means long life.

Benjamin Brown Auto Sales
CHARLEVOIX, MICH.

The SUPER-POWERED MARCO

Well I just can't afford to go to Florida

"Sorry Mister, but you can have a Florida climate in your home, if you heat your home with Argo Quality Coal."

Call us, we are ready to respond.

ARGO MILLING COMPANY

W. E. Byers, Auctioneer

Twenty years experience in handling Auction Sales, both on farm and household goods.

Let Me Cry Your Sales

Phone me at Charlevoix or call the Charlevoix Courier, where all dates are made.

Cups for Luneh Furnished if Requested

"He Was a Slick Talker"

"For he talked me out of my savings, and he talked me into his worthless promotion. I had his guarantee that the company would buy back the stock at any time."

That is the experience of thousands of people—victims of the glib stock salesman.

Had they only known the facts—known that the promised big profits on a sure-thing promotion were only a dream, that dependable investment houses never "guarantee" to buy back their stock, they would never have lost their savings. But they didn't and they lost.

To those about to invest, the experience of others should serve as a warning.

Know the facts—know for a certainty whether or not an investment is safe and the income assured.

Consult your banker. He will assist you in making your investment.

Charlevoix State Savings Bank

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

W. S. Richardson, President.
A. D. Crimmins, Vice President.
Archie Livingston, Cashier.
G. W. Richardson, Asst. Cashier.

The CHARLEVOIX COURIER
Issued every Wednesday at
CHARLEVOIX - MICHIGAN

DuBois & Usher, Publishers
A. J. Usher, Editor and Business Mgr.
Courier Building Van Pelt Place

Entered at the Post Office in Charlevoix, Micb., aa second class matter.

Member Michigan Press Asa'n.

Advertising Rates.

For advertising rates apply for schedule.

Notices of church or lodge socials and entertainments, where admission is charged, regular rates.

Obituary poetry, regular rates.

Card of Thanks, 25 cents.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

One copy, one year.....$2.00
One copy, six months.....$1.00
One copy, three months..... .60

OUR RAILROADS

We are just beginning the second century of railroad transportation. The world's first railroad, in England was opened September 27, 1825, and railway operation in this country began a short time later. It is particularly fitting that the centennial of the railroads should remind us of the important benefits which our country has derived from railway transportation.

Our political unity is one beneficial result of railway transportation. One hundred years ago our country was made up of isolated towns and villages with transportation limited to rivera which were difficult and dangerous to navigate and to roads which were frequently impassable. Our development as a politically united people, united in speech and ideals, has followed closely the growth of the railroads, which have linked together the communities that comprise our nation and have provided channels of easy communication among them.

Our economic unity is another beneficial result of the railway transportation. No longer is the commerce of a community restricted to commodities produced in its immediate vicinity. Cheap, adequate, widely available transportation has enlarged the areas of distributon and developed the system of specialization that characterizes American industry, agriculture and commerce. Each section of the country is enabled to produce the commodities for which it is best adapted and receive in return for its surplus the products of other regions. As such specialization has taken place, industrial agricultural efficiency has increased and progress in eivilization has been made.

The improved social life of our people is still another result of railway transportation . Standards of living have improved. What were the luxuries of our forefathers are nowadays often regarded as necessities. Travel, instead of an ordeal to be avoided, has become a means of recreation and employment, and the cultural background travel provides is within the reach of all. The rapid conveyance of mail by the railroads facilitates business and social relatonships.

The service now provided by the railroads is the best that has ever been known. The efficiency and adequacy of railroad service must be maintained and increased if our nation is to continue to prosper and devlop.

Ours is a country of great distances, with large areas accessible only by land; so above all other nations the United States is dependent for its present prosperity, indeed for its continued existence, upon railway transportation. Railwny transportation is woven into the very fabric of our national life. Recognition of the vital position which it occupies in the lives of our people ought to insure the maintenance of a constructive public attitude toward the railroads.

EXTRA SPECIAL SALE

Womens and Misses 4 Buckle Arctics

Due to a misunderstanding with one of our largest rubber mills, we have just received by mistake an extra shipment of 84 pairs of women's and Misses' 4-buckle Artics. Rather than to send them back we are offering to the women and Misses of Charlevoix, for a short time only, at special prices of all sizes and for all heels. The regular price of these Artics is $3.65 and $3.35, so you can see the money we are offering to save you if you act at once. The stock is fresh from the mills. A half dollar is worth saving, surely.

$3.19 and $2.95

CAMPBELL BOOT SHOP

THE PAIL TEST FOR AN INVESTMENT

The experienced farmer can pick a good milch cow by sight and touch. By "sight" and "feel" he can separate, almost invariably, the scrub from the pedigreed herd. In addition, there's the pail test that determines n good milker. It is simply a question of knowing the principles that apply. But neither by sight nor touch can the inveatment amateur pick the scrubs in securities. Worthless securitles, which are backed by nothing more substantial than fanciful promises, are often just as beautifully engraved on just as good paper as are the honest securitles which will "stand up" under the hazards that every business faces.

Behind money-making securities is something more important in judging investment values than the things which you can see and feel—the steel rails, great generating plants, machinery, massive terminals, the various commodities and other assets. Without earning power, which is determined by the honesty and ability of the men in the business, great factories would be lifeless and worthless. It is this ability to make money year after year that the banker or the experienced investor looks for when buying investment securities. The pail test of a good investment and a good cow is the fact that each has proved its ability to give down, milk or money. When the investor looks for earning power and honesty in securities, he will pick, almost invariably, investments of pedigreed stock, and he will go a long way toward keeping the "boarders" out of his investment list.

Pure Honey, 10c per pound. Alfred VanDusen, Rt. 4, box 33.—Adv. 43-t2 pd.

BOYNE CITY YOUTH KILLED, MAN HURT

Elmer Peterooo Struck By Flying Saw Fragment

Elmer Peterson, about 20 years old, of Boyne City was killed instantly and William White, about 60, of the same city, was probably fatally injured Monday mornng of this week when a tractor-propelled buzz saw was shattered in the Michigan Iron and Chemical Co. yards.

According to Ernest Slaughter, who was sawing the wood on a time contract and who had employed the two men, Peterson evidentaly was struck on the head by a piece of the saw as it was shattered by a piece of wood rolling into it and his head was opened. Another fragment cut deeply into the head of White, inflicting a wound above the right ear which left the jaw hanging loose. His condition is critical and he is not expected to live.

Peterson is survived by his mother, one brother in Boyne City, and two brothers at Muskegon. Mr. White is an old resident of the village, having come there about 40 years ago. He has a family.

The Sunshine Circle of the Congregational church will hold a rummage sale on Friday and Saturday of this week in the building formerly occupied by C. J. Garn, south end of Bridge street.—Adv. 43t1.

PETOSKEY CHOSEN FOR 1926 MEETING

G. C. Loomis, Former Principal Here, to Be in Charge

A telegram from Superintendent H. C. Spitler late Friday afternoon to Miss Afton Holm, secretary of the Petoskey Chamber of Commerce, brought the news that Petoskey had been selected as the city for the 1926 convention of the fifth district of the Michigan State Teachers' Association.

The convention will be held late in October, next year, with Principal Loomis, of Big Rapids, as the chairman in charge. The election of Principal Loomis to head the seventh district and the decision to have the convention in Petoskey came at Friday's session of the teachers meeting.

Petoskey invited the teachers to that city last year but Big Rapids also asked for the meeting and Petoskey gave way to the down state city, with understanding that the south part of the district would support Petoskey's invitation for the 1926 meet.

Miss Nellie Beebe, of Petoskey, was the 1925 chairman for the fifth district and had charge of the convention which closed Friday afternoon last.

Primary Classes Hold Party

The primary department of the Methodist Sunday school met for a play party and supper at the church last Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Simmons, primary superintendent, was in charge and she was assisted by the teachers in her department. Several of the mothers of the children were also present and the occasion was greatly enjoyed by all.

Christian Science Society

Sunday service, 10:45 a. m., subject, "Everlasting Punishment."

Sunday school, 12:00.

Wednesday evening service, 7:45 p. m.

Reading room open Tuesday and Saturday, 3:00 to 5:00 p. m.

The public is cordially invited to use our reading room and attend tha serviees.

Mariners Take Notice

Lake Michigan: Garden Island Shoal Gas Bell Buoy G1 reported not burning October 20. E. V. Iverson, Lieutenant, U. S. Navy, officer in charge.

Everyone believes debts should be paid promptly, especially if they are coming their way.

Specials for Sat., October 31

A number of Ladies' Winter Coats which have been carried over from last season will be offered for this day only, at

Some of these Coats have been as high as $50.00

$10.00 A COAT

Other bargains in Sweaters and Waists and Dresses at the same reductions.

M. A. Levinson & Co.

SUITS and OVERCOATS

Latest Styles and Patterns

$20 to $40

We are closing out our stock of Ladies Slickers

Prices reduced from $8.50 to $5.00

SPECIAL FOR SATURDAY

20 per discount on all Slickers, Mackinaws and Leather Vests

Cleaning and Pressing

F. E. CARTIER, Tailor and Cleaner

PHONE 248

Come to Us

For Good Shoe repairing

We use the best grade sole leather

Compbell Boot Shop

BOYNE CITY MAN NARROWLY ESCAPES

Death From Suffocation After Entering Gasoline Tank Car

E. B. Helms, employed by the General Oil Co., of Boyne City, had a very narrow escape from death by asphyxiation on Friday of last week. The young man entered one of the large gasoline tank cars to make some adjustment of a draining valve, not realizing the danger. He immediately swooned and was unconscious when pulled from the tank by Harmon Knopp, 17, assisted by two section men.

Young Knopp, who is considered to have shown great courage for crawling into the tank after Helms, also was groggy when he reached the open air. Helms was rushed to a drug store where he was resuscitated after several minutes.

Poultry Notes

Keap grain before all tha atock.

• • •

Select best pullets aad give good care.

• • •

Keep young chicks moving on to new ground. It prevents coccidiosis.

• • •

Pullets that are small for their age and apparently lacking in vigor are seldom profitable.

• • •

It pays to watch the development of the pullats and if they seem to be maturing too rapidly you can take away the mash and feed only scratch grain.

• • •

It pays to cull the pullets. Many flocks are reduced in vigor because every pullet that is pure bred is held over.

• • •

Crowding in the houses overheats the birds at night. When they come out on the cool ground in the morning there is a danger of taking cold.

Subscribe for the Courier.

Specials for Saturday

Vegetable and Grain Show Day

Nasty rainy weather and muddy ground results in lot of extra floor cleaning for the women folks. To make the job of keeping clean a little easier, we offer special cut prices on the material you need. The prices are good on Saturday of this week.

10 bars yellow Rub-No-More Soap.....48c
10 bars white Rub-No-More Soap.....38c
Rub-No-More Soap Chips, large package....18c
Rub-No-More Powder, large package.....20c

SPECIAL IN OUR MEAT DEPARTMENT

Hamburger Steak, lb.....10c
Frankfurters, lb. 15c
2 1-2 lbs. Chase and Sanborns's Coffee.....95c

MARTIN BLOCK

Opposite Post Office
Phone 12 or 142

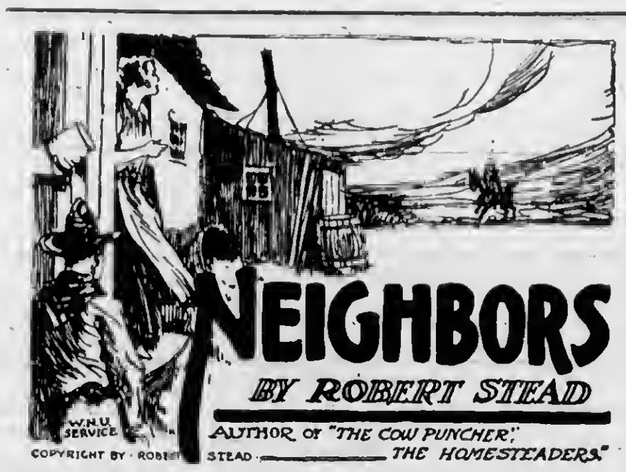
Central Drug Store

B. A. HERMAN, Prop.

$25.00 Talking Machine and 10 Records.....$19.00
All 75c Books for.....59c
$1.00 Gillette Razor, 35c tube Klenzo Shaving Cream, both for.....39c
$1.00 Gem or Ever Ready Razor, $1.00 Shaving Brush, Both for.....99c
One large, 2 cell Ever Ready Flash with Battery and Bulb for.....99c
50c Klenzo Tooth Paste.....29c
100 Blaud's Iron Pills for.....29c
1 lb. Cascade Linen Paper for.....29c
2 packages Cascade Linen Envelopes, 19c value for....10c
3 Five cent School Tablets for.....10c
$1.00 guaranteed Electric Curling Iron.....69c
$1.00 bottle Wistaria Toilet Water 69c
$1.00 bottle Harmony Lilac Toilet Water.....59c

—CANDY—

1 lb. Chocolate Covered Cherries.....39c
Horehound Candy, a pound.....22c



CHAPTER VIII—Continued.

"Oh, yes. Spoof has been keeping a neighborly eye on them. I meant to call on you, of course, but when Spoof told me you were away I stayed with him. He assured me that everyone is fit at Fourteen and Twenty-two."

This was good news and a weight off our minds. Besides, it was evidence that in the twinges of my jealousy toward Brook I fell somewhat short of doing him justice. Brook was a decent fellow, and was playing the game.

"Just a suggestion," said the policeman, after a moment. "This is your first autumn on the prairies, and you can't be too careful about fire. These warm days and frosty nights are the most dangerous time of the year. I found Spoof had no fire guards, so I showed him how to make them, and I took the liberty of hinting that he go over to Fourteen and Twenty-two and see that the buildings are properly protected."

We thanked Brook, and he saluted and rode away, his red tunic slowly fading out of view in the cloud of dust which his horse kicked up from the bone-dry trail.

"Very decent chap, Brook," said Jack, after a while, and I said, "Yes."

It was with a strange pounding of the heart that we at last discerned the outlines of the shacks of our little settlement. Mrs. Alton's came first into view, then Spoof's, then, together, the buildings on Fourteen and Twenty-two. A gust of homesickness swept up and took sudden possession of me, and I realized for the first time how much I had become attached to the little square on the thousand-mile fabric of the prairies which I had already learned to think of as home. Gaunt and bare they may be, but the prairies have a way of winding themselves about the heart with bands that are stronger than steel.

If we had been anxious, we were eager, too; eager with the news of our successful season's work; with anticipation of the bright faces which would greet the roll of crisp new bank bills that Jack carried in an inside vest pocket; eager to display the load of provisions and supplies which had been bought with part of our earnings.

We must have been fully a mile from the houses when we discerned the first evidences of life. A little figure darted out of the shack on Twenty-two to the edge of the gully; then for a few minutes sank from sight; then reappeared on our side of the stream and rushed into the shack on Fourteen. Almost instantly two figures appeared at the door; paused for a moment, then swooped like wild things down the trail toward us. And we stood up on the top of the wagon and waved our hats and yelled like mad, until even Spoof down on section Two must have heard us. And old Buck and Bright, their phlegmatic souls at last awakened by that strange power that lies at the root of all creation and which is friendship and love and all the shadings of affection which lie between—or perhaps it was by the smell of the haystack at their own stables—joined in the spirit of the occasion and broke forth in a most surprising gallop, their hoofs click-clacking and their trace-chains lashing the whiffletrees as they ran.

Soon we came up, and there were the girls, wonderful, lithe, sunburned, radiant, breathless, golden hair streaming in the golden light at the end of day, arms extended, white teeth gleaming, measureless, ineffable, in the beauty and wonder of their young womanhood! We sprang from the wagon and—I don't know how it happened—Jean ran straight into my arms. Not Marjorie—I didn't see what became of her—I didn't stop to look;—Jean ran straight into my arms! I held her there, held her with the strength of ten weeks' harvesting in my muscles and of all my young hot boyhood in my veins; held her and kissed her and would not let her go. . . . For the first time since we had been little children together, playing by the dam where the waterwheel across the river tossed its dancing diamonds in the air, I held her and kissed her and would not let her go.

I Held Her and Kissed Her and Would Not Let Her Go.

Across the fields of crisp and brittle grass we trudged together, disregarding the trail and the measureless swoon of that sunset world as we swept homeward on the flood-tide of our happiness. Her firm little arm pressed tight against mine and our limbs swung together in the rhythm of our stride. And when I looked down in her face I saw a light that was not altogether the glint of the setting sun.

But in that most poetic moment of her life Jean forgot to be poetic. Once more she slipped her arm about me.

"Gee, it's good to have you home again," she said.

And in what should have been my supreme hour I found myself wondering whether Jean's passion was love or just plain loneliness.

CHAPTER IX

That was a busy night on Fourteen. The girls confessed that they had been on the lookout for us since the first of the month. They had even borrowed Spoof's field glass so that they could sweep the horizon to the eastward far beyond Mrs. Alton's.

"He's the strangest sort of chap, is Spoof," said Jean. "Will you believe me, he hasn't been inside this house since you left? Used to walk over from time to time, and see that the pigs and the cows were living in harmony, and that the fuel had not given out, but was always in a rush home again. Never saw such a man for work; quite different from what he used to be."

Jack looked his sister over with an eye that did not reserve all its approval for Marjorie. "We thought you would have been an accomplished hanjoist by now," he said.

"Not a lesson—not a single lesson in all this time," Jean grumbled. "And now I suppose he'll be over tomorrow to indulge us with the pent-up leisure of two months!"

Jean's naivetta was little greater than mine. We had been brought up with a sound training in the rudiments of behavior, but with little knowledge of its social complexities. My feeling in the matter was a mixed sense of surprise that our neighbor, usually so friendly, had held aloof at a time when he was particularly needed, and of annoyance that Jean should be so obviously put out about it.

The girls had a strange treat in reserve for us. It was Jean who told us of it, although, as it seemed to me, her manner suggested a certain lack of frankness very unlike Jean. It seemed that a few days before our return a jack rabbit had loped up within easy distance of the shanty door, where he perked himself on his hind legs, taking observations. Marjorie took the gun down from the wall, aimed it with great deliberation, and fired.

Jean declared that the rabbit was not hit, but that he died of fright. He that as it may, he furnished the filling for a very deep and tempting rabbit pie.

"And only to think," said Jean, her bright eyes dancing, "it would scarcely have kept any longer. We were managing to freeze it a little at nights, but it would thaw out during the day."

"I don't know but it is a little overkept as it is," Marjorie admitted, "but we're going to eat it tonight." And so we sat about our little table, with the great rabbit pie in the middle, and great helpings of white potatoes and onions on our plates, and flaky white bread and yellow homemade butter within reach, and the light beating down from an oil lamp on the wall, and would not have changed places with anyone on earth.

The next day revealed changes in the neighborhood which we had not had time to notice or discuss in the evening. A number of settlers had come in. The girls had not seen any of them, but could give almost as accurate descriptions as though they had. It seems Spoof had come over to Fourteen every Sunday afternoon during our absence, and, for all the shyness against which Jean had protested, he had managed to regale the girls with the gossip of the community, for our two little shacks were really becoming the center of a neighborhood. From Spoof they learned that the Browns had landed from England with three children and hardly anything else, and had built a shack on the southwest quarter of Four. Mr. Brown had been a gamekeeper in England. His wife was a wistful little body who seemed likely to have plenty to wist over before her children were raised on the living that a gamekeeper would wring from the soil. On the northwest of Eighteen, just four miles west of us, a Scottish shipbuilder named Smith had located. He appeared to be unmarried. Three miles north of us, on Thirty-four, a Swede named Hansen had built a shanty twelve feet square, in which he was housed with his wife and six children, and on Thirty-six a Russian had dug himself a sort of cave in the bank of the gully. He, too, had a wife and numerous offspring, but the exact number had not yet been ascertained.

"Ay tank thar bane plenty," Ole Hansen had said, when discussing the subject with Spoof. And as Ole regarded his own six hopefuls as "yust a nice commence," the imagination was rather stirred by the possibilities of what the cave on Thirty-six might disclose to the census taker.

"How do you say his name?" Spoof had inquired.

"Yah don' say it. Yah sneeze it," Ole explained.

"Sneezit—that'll do," said Spoof. And so, quite without his knowledge or consent, our Russian neighbor was supplied with an English name; a name which may some day—who knows?—be borne with pride by one of our best families.

Then there was Burke, an American from Iowa, a man with a lust for labor and for doing things on a big scale. He and his wife had landed on section Twenty about the middle of August, and, ignoring the tradition that it is useless to break prairie sod in the fall, had already turned over a broad strip from end to end of their quarter section. Burke it was who introduced mules into the settlement. From what the girls were able to gather from Spoof mules called for an even more extended vocabulary than did oxen.

"And you want us to believe that Spoof told you all these things without ever coming into the house?" I challenged.

"Never a foot over the doorstep," said Jean. "That is, hardly ever. It's a big country; why be so particular for a foot or two?"

"Oh, I'm not; not at all. I'm merely checking up what you said last night."

"In my intoxication over your return! How could you, Frank?" And with that I had to be satisfied.

"But the best is yet!" Marjorie exclaimed. "Guess who's married?"

"Jake!" we answered together.

"Oh, somebody told. Yes, Jake. He and his wife are settled on Sixteen. They've a little shack up, and Jake is farming the community, as he calls it. 'Acquaintances,' he says, 'are about all I'll be able to cultivate this year.' He spends most of his time at Spoof's, but I don't notice that Spoof's work goes along any quicker on that account. They called on us a couple of times—Jake and his wife, I mean; they have the advantage over the other settlers of having a light wagon and a team of ponies, which make it easy for them to get about. Mrs. Jake impresses one as being angular and competent, with perhaps more heart in her than her appearance would suggest. They say it was an agency match."

At that point we took up the story with Jake's account of his courtship and wedding, censored, of course, to suit the audience.

"That's mostly lies," said Marjorie, in her matter-of-fact way. "He advertised for her all right, but he went to Minneapolis to meet her, and it was only when he promised to go on a homestead that she consented to come. She told me that much; said she'd had enough of the town, and wanted to get away from everything and everybody. She has a touch of humor, too; said, 'I guess that's what I did, all right, when I came out on the bald-headed with Jake.'"

"But the telegram? He had her telegram."

"He must have faked that. He knew he would meet you boys before he went back, and he had a story made up to show himself in the best light possible."

"How about Mrs. Alton?" I asked.

"She doesn't come out. We've gone

(Continued on page 3.)

AFTER EVERY MEAL
WRIGLEY'S
makes your food do you more good.
Note how it relieves that stuffy feeling after hearty eating.
Sweetens the breath, removes food particles from the teeth, gives new vigor to tired nerves.
Comes to you fresh, clean and full-flavored.
WRIGLEY'S JUICY FRUIT CHEWING GUM
SEALED TIGHT KEPT RIGHT
P 123

DODGE BROTHERS, INC.
ANNOUNCE

A new and attractive Credit-Purchase Plan, now in operation throughout the United States.

This plan, devised and approved by Dodge Brothers, Inc., enables a purchaser of a Dodge Brothers Motor Car to extend his payments over a period of twelve months at a minimum credit charge.

So favorable to the purchaser is this arrangement, that practically anyone can now own a Dodge Brothers car without financial inconvenience.

Ask us, without obligation, for full particulars.

BENJ. BROWN
Charlevoix, Michigan

AUCTION SALE

I will sell at public auction at my farm, 3 miles northwest of Central Lake and 3 miles east of Eastport, on

Friday, Oct. 30th

Beginning at 10:00 a. m. standard time, the following property to wit:

Bay mare, 8 yrs. old, with foal, wt. 1400
Black mare, 5 yrs. old, with foal, wt. 1500
1 Burro
P. B. Jersey cow, 6 yrs. old, freshen Nov. 16
P. B. Jersey cow, 4 yrs. old, freshen Dec. 20
P. B. Jersey heifer, 2 yrs. old, freshen Jan 30
P. B. Jersey yearling heifer
Grade Jersey heifer, 2 yrs. old, freshen Feb. 7
P. B. Jersey bull, 2 yrs. old
P. B. Jersey bull calf
McCormick mowing machine, 6 ft. cut, nearly new
New Idea Spreader, nearly new
Low-Lift I. H. C. manure spreader
Plow, Spring tooth drag, steel frame
Two horse cultivator . Wagon 4 in. tire
Hay rack Potato rack Harness
Sleighs Seed potato dipping tank
McCormick Deering potato digger, nearly new Fertilizer drill Grain drill
Planet Jr. garden drill, McCormick Mower
Two row, Hoover potato planter
Yellow Jacket, 16 nozzle sprayer
No. 17 DoLavel cream separator, nearly new
Syrup pan with 90 buckets and spirals
5 1-2 foot cross cut saw, new
2 steel drums 5-Shovel Cultivator
Hay slings and pulley
Acre sweet corn fodder
5 acres field corn fodder
Quantity alfalfa hay
Quantity radish straw
Hoes, shovels, forks and other small articles too numerous to mention

FREE LUNCH AT NOON

TERMS OF SALE

All sums of $10 and under cash; over $10, 1 years time on good approved endorsed, bankable notes bearing 7 per cent interest, payable at the Central Lake, First State Bank. 5 per cent discount for cash on sums over $10. No property to be removed until terms of sale are complied with, and all settlements to be made on day of sale.

Mrs. Ernest Loehne, Prop.

H. J. TIMMER, Clerk
GUY E. WHITE, Note Clerk.
W. E. BYERS, Auctioneer.

Neighbors

By
ROBERT STEAD

Author of
"The Cow Puncher," "The Homesteaders"

WNU Service
Copyright by Robert Stead

(Continued from page five.)

over a couple of times, and she received us with great friendliness, but when we ask her to return our visit she always makes out that she can't leave the boy. Of course she could bring him with her, so that is only an excuse. For some reason she wants to stick close to her homestead."

"We must get Spoof after her," said Jack, "He'll drag her out. Now that we have real society in our community a beautiful young widow must not be allowed to 'waste her sweetness on the desert air.'"

We spent a whole day conjecturing about the new arrivals, and marveling over the strange assortment of humanity out of which it was the business of fate and our lucky stars—no one else seemed to trouble about the matter—to lay in these prairies the foundations of an enduring civilization. Then we settled down to what little work remained to be done. We found our oat crops harvested, and for that we had to thank Spoof and Jake, who had taken that bit of neighborly service into their own hands. We made the stable snug, banked up the shacks with earth, and lined them inside with brown paper which we had brought from town for that purpose. We cut firewood in our little park by the pond, being careful to destroy nothing but trees which were already dead or were too crowded for growth.

Before we had completed these jobs Spoof paid us another visit. We saw his tall figure looming up across the brown grass one afternoon early in November. He shook hands with a warm, firm grip. He was brown and rugged, and the prairie winds were leaving their mark on his fine English complexion. In the warmth of his grip, in the sparkle of his eye, in the leisurely confidence of his conversation, there was something about the fellow that was decidedly likable.

"Thought I'd just drop in on you, strangers," he commented. "Have a good autumn's work? I hope you did. I ventured to inquire a few times while you were away, just in case the young ladies might need some help—a man around the place, don't you know? I found them most disconcertingly competent. About the only service I was able to do was to shoot a rabbit for them; one of those big white fellows. Jolly good eating, I should say—"

"How long ago was that?" Jack interrupted, sharply.

"Oh, not so long; in fact, they spoke of saving him for your homecoming."

"Aha! And again, Aha! Come along, you conspirator!"

We seized Spoof by the arms and marched him into the house. Marjorie and Jean were there; although we had two houses the girls were nearly always together in the one on Fourteen. Jean declared that Marjorie was much the better housekeeper of the two, and she came there for lessons.

We thrust the somewhat bewildered Spoof into their presence.

"We have discovered your duplicity," said Jack, sternly, addressing the girls. "We now know the secret of Marjorie's marksmanship."

"Oh, by Jove!" Spoof exclaimed. "I seem to have messed things up. I'm afraid you will think me an awful rotter, Miss Hall. Really"—turning to Jack—"really, it wasn't I that shot the bally hare at all—"

"You're only getting in deeper," said Jack. "'Fess up, and stay for supper."

Spoof did both, and a jolly night we had, playing euchre after the supper dishes were cleared away. But before he left he recalled that an errand of mercy lay at the bottom of his visit.

"I dropped into Brown's the other day," he said. "Mrs. Brown is a bit fed up. Staring out of the window, and all that kind of thing. Poor old Brown is quite useless; worse than I am, if that is possible, but his wife has quality in her that will count, if she doesn't go under first. She needs you two girls over there now and again, just to put a bit of sunshine in her soul. Now just hitch up the oxen tomorrow and slip over to section Four and jolly her out of the dumps."

"Well, suppose we do," Jack agreed. "But how about you keeping up your end of the social service? Why wish it all on to us?"

"I don't follow you. I have already been to the Browns'—"

"But not to Mrs. Alton's, so far as we can learn. Mrs. Brown may have no monopoly of loneliness."

Perhaps it was only imagination, but it seemed to me that Spoof's face, usually so frank and open, suddenly became a mask. But he came back quickly and easily.

"I could hardly do that, don't you know? It would not be quite the thing."

"Why not?" said Jean, as ingenuous as ever.

"Why, it would hardly be the thing—it's not in accord—"

"You mean it isn't done," I supplied.

"Exactly. But of course I know I'm a greenhorn yet, even though I am beginning to ripen in spots. That reminds me, I've had another letter from the governor. He wants me to shoot him a young chinook."

"A chinook!"

"Yes. When I wrote him a recent treatise entitled 'An Incident in a Hay Field, or, How About a Check for a Hundred Pounds'—you will remember the time—I covered the ragged edge of my purpose with a dissertation upon the prairie climate. I told him that it consisted of a melange of everything from Naples at its best to Norway at its worst—from sleepy kittens purring in the sun to wild she-tigers raging through the jungle. From climate I moved to grass by easy stages, and from grass to hay, and from that to the matter of one hundred pounds. On the way I explained that this part of the country is not really in the chinook belt, although occasionally one came down this far. So now I am commissioned to shoot for the governor a young chinook. He thinks the skin would look a bit of all right on the library floor, don't you know?"

"And, of course, you will shoot one?"

"A request from one's immediate paternal ancestor, accompanied by a draft for a hundred pounds, is not to be lightly disregarded."

"Let me think," said Jack, and for a few moments we remained silent to give his mind elbow room.

"I have it!" he suddenly exclaimed. "Has your governor ever seen a badger?"

"Not likely except possibly at the zoo."

"We must take that chance. You must shoot a badger, Spoof, which we will formally christen a chinook, and send it to your governor in time for Christmas."

"I think it is wicked to do that," said Jean, whose sympathies were always with the underdog. "No doubt Mr.—Mr. Spoof, senior, is a delightful old gentleman, and it isn't fair. Fancy someone from America visiting him and Mr. Spoof goes showing off the chinook which his son shot on the banks of the Saskatchewan. 'Chinook nothing!' says the visitor. 'That's a badger, as common as rabbits, almost, and I would describe your son as another prairie animal, smaller than a badger, with two stripes down its back.'"

"Oh, listen to Miss Prim!" Marjorie interrupted. "Who would think she had a letter from her mother asking if she was canning any buffalo beans?"

It was not until Spoof's tall form had dissolved out of view in the starlight that it occurred to me how skillfully he had changed the conversation from the subject of Mrs. Alton. It was something to think about.

* * * * * * *

We did as Spoof suggested. Early the next afternoon we hitched Buck and Bright to the wagon and wended our slow way southwestward, Jack and I taking turns in the exclamatory exercises by means of which the oxen were kept in motion. The prairie now was very brown and bare, and only the more hardy gophers remained about to whistle saucily at our carry-all lumbering by. The dazzling sunshine seemed to have lost its force, and there was a presage of coming winter in the air. We dropped into silence save for the noises of our locomotion.

"The world seems to have died," said Jean after a long period of thoughtfulness.

The expression was an appropriate one. The world was, actually, dead. Every blade of grass was a stark little corpse, swaying ghostily to the stir of the cold air. Soon the shroud of winter would be woven about them, flake by flake, muntling them all in its cold, white tomb.

"But in the spring it will live again," Jean continued, after a pause. "That is the life eternal."

Jean was a strange girl. Her thoughts went on and on, reaching out, and out. She seemed to live always on the verge of the infinite. . . . .

At length we were at Brown's. The rickety shack, smaller than either of ours, presented a sad and forlorn appearance. Three little faces were crowded in a single window that covered our approach. Brown himself was busy building a stable of sods, and succeeding very badly in his work. He could scarcely be distinguished from his building material, but when he saw us he shook himself, as a dog shakes off water, and came up, touching his cap.

"We are your neighbors from Fourteen" we announced ourselves. "May we go in?"

"You may, and welcome," he said. "The wife will be a bit fuddled, I'm not the most presentable myself."

Then Jean did a great thing; one of those wonderful things that no one but Jean seemed to think of. She clambered to the side of the wagon and held our her arms.

"I'm all dirt Miss," Brown protested. "I'm all earth and sand." But he came slowly forward to her outstretched arms, and when his hands reached hers he took her and gently helped her down.

"Thank you, Mr. Brown," she said.

But Brown was looking at her and at us with eyes that had suddenly gone misty with a mist not of the sods or of the sands. Two little pools of water gathered and streaked a slow, dusty course across his grimy face.

Inside we found Mrs. Brown 'a bit fuddled,' as her husband had predicted. At first she merely stood wringing her hands, but when Jean and Marjorie kissed her, and then kissed the little Browns, the veil suddenly lifted and she was all kindness and hospitality. What a day it was, after we began to get acquainted! Marjorie and Jean had brought some homemade candy, and in a few minutes the little Browns were smeared and happy and slipping gently about looking into the faces of our girls as though they verily believed them angels.

It was dark and starry when we hitched the oxen to the wagon, and shook hands all round, and kissed the children all round, and the girls kissed Mrs. Brown and Mr. Brown forgot himself and kissed the girls and Jack and I almost kissed Mrs. Brown and we drew slowly away waving our hands and watching the five figures framed in the doorway against the yellow light of the oil lamp on the opposite wall.

Our experience with the Browns encouraged us to cultivate the acquaintance of our other neighbors and as the short, bright days of November wore by the low-hanging sun often saw our ox-wagon wending slowly across the prairies, and the north star and the great dipper were the silent witnesses of its return to Fourteen. Sometimes, too, the great magician of the North would light his jungle candles, and we would creak homeward in the weird light of their flickering battalions minueting on the stage of the universe. Smith, the Scotsman, and Burke, the American, received us with undivided hospitality and that strange sense of common interest which is the most priceless thing about pioneer life; one of the rich qualities of human nature which seems inevitably to dry up in the more complex civilizations. Ole Hansen entertained us for a full hour in the stable before his buxom Olga consented to admit us into the house. When at last we were granted that privilage there was evidence of hurried scrubbing of floors and faces.

"My wife bane all the time yust on the yump," Ole explained apologetically. "Some time Ay tank by d—n we have too many kids, eh?" It appeared that Ole was beginning to harbor some modern ideas about the size of families. His opinion that six was "yust a nice commence" was being shaken. The housing problem was coming home to him and bearing its inevitable fruit.

No such radicalism had yet filtered into the mind of the Russian, who, for the sake of convenience, we continued to call Sneezit. He met us stolidly where the trail wound down the bank of the gully near to his dugout. He wore a long sheepskin coat, with the wool still on it, high boots drawn well up on the thigh, and a bushy, black beard. He regarded us in silence, and at length Jack spoke.

"We are your neighbors. We have come to call on you. We hope you are well."

The lips under the black mustache parted slowly, showing a set of strong, regular teeth.

"No much Angleesh," he remarked.

We clambored down and shook hands. This seemed to assure him of our friendly intentions, and when we managed to make it clear that we wanted to visit his house he led us to it without hesitation.

(Continued next week)

You will find high quality merchandise at reasonable prices at the Charlevoix Hdw. Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

FROM OFFICE BOY TO GENERAL MGR.

Salary Increase Comes With Promotion

Chicago, Sept. 29—After a careful survey of the entire labor situation extending from office boy to president, indications are that positions showing increases in salaries require experienced help.

Consulting the president of one of our largest industries, the writer inquired regarding the rapid success of a certain young man who had become general manger and who a few years ago was but office boy; his answer was, Brown started as office boy, the lowest salaried position in our office, he was ambitious and managed to purchase a typewriter on small monthly payments and after three weeks of practice at home he was promoted to bill clerk, which position gave him knowledge of the selling price of all merchandise. His next advance was that of typist, which taught him the numerous forms of letter-writing and enabled him to hold a stenographic position, giving him complete knowledge of letter-writing. He was then made secretary, bringing him into contact with all business details and qualified him for the general manager's office at ten thousand per year.

The same opportunity awaits every young man and woman. Education or age have nothing to do with operating so simple a machine as the typewriter. We are informed that a great piece of benevolent work is being carried on by a large Chicago mail order house in furnishing typewriters to people worthy of credit, by selling on small monthly installments, so low as to average about eight cents per day and actually teaching their customers how to use and operate any typewriter in about three week's time. You can get other information by writing the International Typewriter Exchange, 184 W. Lake Street, Chicago, Illinois.

Fessenden's Specials For Gala Day

Saturday, October 31st.

Below are a few of the many Bargains that we have arranged for this special day.

TOILET GOODS—

25c LaGloire Talc.....15c
25c Corylopsis Talc.....15c
50c Special assortment Face Powders, Creams and Lotions.....25c
$1.00 Compacts, Special Assortment..50c

All Red Seal Hair Nets and Powder Puffs at Half Price

STATIONERY—

1 Box Kraftan Linen.....25c
3 Packages Envelopes to match.....20c
Fess-Special School Tablets 10c, 3 for.....25c
Fess. Special School Tablets 5c, 6 for.....25c
Stafford's Fountain Pen Ink, regular price 15c. Special price.....10c

GARDEN COURT SPECIALS—

With any 50c purchase of a Garden Court Toilet Preparation we will give you FREE your choice of the following 50c items:

Mag-Lac Tooth Paste, Mag-Lac Tooth Brush, Colonial Club Shaving Cream, Colonial Club Shaving Lotion. $1.00 worth for.....50c

FOR THE MEN—

$1.25 Shaving Set containing Colonial Club Shaving Cream, Shaving Lotion and Talcum, all for.....75c
35c A.-D.-S. Shaving Cream.....15c
25c Saftee Shaving Cream.....10c

BOOKS—

All Popular Copyrights.....25c

SOAP—

Olopalm, Transparent, Glycerine, Lemon, 7 cakes for.....25c

FREE—

A glass Measuring Cup with every bottle Flavilla Vanilla Flavoring Extract Price for an honest 2 ounce bottle 35c

CANDY—

Any $1.50 Box of Candy.....$1.00
5c Sno-Ball Candy Bars, 2 for.....5c
5c Oh, Boy! Bars, 2 for.....5c
1 lb. Royal Marshmallows.....35c
½ lb. Royal Marshmallows.....18c

TOILET PAPER—

25c Druggist's Tissue.....15c

REMEDIES—

50c Penslar Pine Balsam with Menthol for.....25c
$1.00 White Pine and Red Spruce Cough Syrup.....50c
50c White Pine and Red Spruce Cough Syrup.....25c
25c White Pine and Red Spruce Cough Syrup.....15c
25c Chamberlains Stomach and Liver Pills.....15c
50c Bottle Essence Peppermint.....35c

Don't forget the date Saturday, October 31.

FESSENDEN THE DRUGIST

AUCTION SALE

---OF---

Household Goods

The undersigned will sell at Public Auction at the big house, corner State and Hurlbut Avenue, at top of hill, on

Saturday, Nov. 7th

Commencing at 1:00 p. m., the following described property:

Beds, Springs, Dressers, Tables, Stoves, Side Boards, Carpets, Rugs, Dishes, Cooking Utensils.

Hundreds of articles not mentioned

TERMS OF SALE

All sums of $10.00 or under, cash, all sums over $10,00, six months time on good; approved, endorsed, bankable paper paper bearing interest at 7 per cent, payable at the Charlevoix County Bank. All settlements must be made at time of sale.

MARTHA AYERS, Prop.

H. J. TIMMER, Clerk
ROBERT BRIDGE, Note Clerk

W. E. BYERS,
Auctioneer.

Courier Want Advs. Bring Results

THE OLDEST BANK IN CHARLEVOIX COUNTY
FORTY-FIRST YEAR IN BUSINESS

1884 1925

To Save Money, "Just For a Change"

is a step in the right direction. It is most apt to result in the valuable habit of saving from "choice." That's the way a good many savers made their start at this strong, friendly institution.

Why not step into the bank the next time you pass and open a Savings Account of your own?

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY BANK

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN
Nicholls, Buttars & Bridge, Bankers
THE BANK ON THE CORNER

LOCAL NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

Get the Habit—Read the Courier

Wright Carr of East Jordan, was a Charlevoix caller on Sunday last.

W. J. Gallagher of St. James, was a caller in Charlevoix last Saturday.

Alonzo Powers was a business caller in Petoskey on Friday of last week.

Mrs. S. A. Correll and Miss Nettie Correll returned last Friday from Muskegon.

Sheriff Charles Novak made a business trip to Boyne Falls on Tuesday of this week.

Earl Young left on Tuesday of this week on a business trip to Chicago and St. Louis, Mo.

Walter Scattergood of Petoskey, was a business caller in the city on Tuesday of this week.

Next Sunday will be observed as Temperance Sunday in all Sunday schools the world over.

A. J. Usher and H. W. Usher made a trip to Kalkaska, Sunday, returning Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Lou Briggs arrived from St. James, Tuesday, on her way to Iron Mountain, Mich., for a visit.

Capt. Allers arrived in the city Tuesday from Grand Haven, on bis way to his home in St. James.

Harry Larsen of Petoskey, was in the city Tuesday morning on his way to Ellsworth on a hunting trip.

Emmett Denny and H. C. Richmond were in the vicinity of Ellsworth Sunday on a hunting trip.

Mrs. Sarah Emrey, accompanied by her sister, Mrs. J. R. McMullen, returned last week from Detroit.

Harry Mohrmann, bank inspector from Lansing, Mich., was in the city Tuesday of this week on business.

Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Shafer of Petoskey, was in the city Monday and Tuesday of this week on business.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jones of Frankfort, Michigan, a son, name Richard Franklin, on Tuesday, October 13th.

Roy Ranger is in Grove City, Pennsylvania, on a business trip. He is expected home some time this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Burns left the fore part of the week for Matanee, Florida, where they will spend the winter months.

Floyd Alldread returned Monday night from Grand Rapids, where he spent a couple days over the week end on business.

A storm shed has been erected covering the entire front of the Palace theater. Lou must be figureing on a hard winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Ashdon of this city, accompanied Mr. Ashdon's mother, were visiting friends in Norwood last Sunday.

L. E. Benton, Sam Hamilton, P. R. Ross and Chas. Novak left last Sunday morning on a business trip to Spring Lake, Michigan.

Capt. John Roen with his barge, Marquis Roen and convoy, Interlocken, entered the harbor Monday evening for a short stay.

Harry Elzinga, who is employed by Heise & Yettaw, is laid up this week at his home suffering from a cracked rib received in a fall.

Mrs. Sarah Heath left last week for Merrill, Michigan, where she will spend the winter at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Benj. Sweeney.

Mrs. Rudolph Krulik and daughter, Doris, returned Tuesday from Grand Rapids, where they have been spending the past couple weeks.

Auditor J. E. Probasco of Chicago and W. G. Parker of the local branch made a trip to St. James, Monday, in the interest of Booth Fisheries.

Jim Golden of Petoskey, was in the city Tuesday morning on his way to High Island, where he will spend a week or more on a hunting expedition.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Donaldson and family left on Tuesday of this week for Southern Pines, North Carolina, where they will spend the winter months.

Mrs. A. H. Reinhart and Mrs. B. Saltonstall were at Alba last Wednesday and Thursday, attending the lower eleventh district W. C. T. U. meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Harrington returned last week from an extended vacation spent at the home of their daughter, Mrs. V. Y. Tuttle, at St. Louis, Mo.

Mrs. Ray Faulkner, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Faulkner, Sr., returned last week from Detroit, where they had been visiting for two weeks past.

The November meeting of the Congregational Ladies' Aid Society will be held next Wednesday afternoon, with Mrs. Ed. O'Neill, 405 Dixon avenue.

Most of the teachers in the Charlevoix public schools attended the seventh district teachers' institute at Big Rapids, on Thursday and Friday of last week.

The Missionary Society of the Baptist church will meet next Wednesday, November 4th, at the home of Mrs. A. J. Usher. Potluck luneh will be served.

Mrs. Anna O'Brien spent Monday evening at the home of W. E. Driggett in this city. She arrived from Escanaba on her way to her home in St. James.

H. W. Usher of Grand Rapids, arrived in the city Saturday of last week and will spend the next week at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Usher.

Fox hunting on Beaver Island promises good sport this fall. Two or three big red rascals already have been trapped by schoolboys in St. James village.

Miss Viola Smith of the local telephone exchange, left Tuesday for Cadillac, where she will attend a convention of Michigan Bell Telephone company employes.

Miss Adeline Holley returned last week from Detroit, where she spent two weeks visiting friends and relatives and buying her Christmas stock of toys and notions.

Miss Druscilla Richardson, operator in the local telephone exchange, spent Sunday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Richardson, of Norwood.

About thirty Knights Templar from the Ivanhoe commandery, Petoskey, attended the hospitaler services at the local Congregational church on Sunday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy King and two sons, Norman and Willard, spent Sunday in the city at the home of their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Usher.

James Pollock, son of Rev. and Mrs. C. Pollock of this city, has been chosen a member on the debating team of the Alpha Nu literary society at the University of Michigan.

Mrs. Wm. Poole's Sunday school class of the M. E. church enjoyed a Hallowe'en party and supper at the church Monday evening. It is a fine class of boys and their teacher understands them.

Eight W. R. C. ladies from Charlevoix attended a district meeting of the W. R. C. at Cheboygan last Wednesday and Thursday. The annual meeting will be held at Charlevoix next year.

Word was received from Chas. Sterritt, who is in Rochester, Minn., taking treatments at Mayo Brother's hospital. Charley says that he is getting along fine and expects to be home soon.

The junior class of C. H. S. will hold a Hallowe'en dancing party at the Oldham Club on Saturday evening this week and invite the public to come and dance with the ghosts and goblins.

Earl Young and A. F. Young made an auto trip to Gaylord last Thursday evening, where the latter took the train for his home in Detroit, after spending a few days in the city on business.

Arrivals from St. James Monday included Gus Meilke, Herman Pishner, George Stephens, Mrs. May Gallagher and Mr. and Mrs. Dave Wilson, who are in the city for a short time on business.

Wm. Scroggie, Sr., and wife returned last Monday from Detroit and other southern Michigan points, where they have been visiting their sons, William, Jr. and Lee, and other relatives and friends.

Fred Myers and wife returned last week from an extended auto trip to Minnapolis, Minn., where they visited at the home of the latter's parents, making the return trip around the lake by way of Chicago.

Word received from St. Petersburg, Florida, fiads Mrs. Rosa Nettleton and Mrs. George Cook safe in the land of sunshine and flowers, at the home of Mrs. Cook's son, George, where they expect to spend the winter months.

John Woods, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Woods of this city, has joined the navy and is now located at the Great Lakes training camp near Chicago, where he will receive preliminary training before shipping on a battle ship.

The small son of Claude Greenway, a plumber employed by the Sanitary Engineering company of this city, had a narrow escape from drowning last Friday when he fell off the dock into the lake at the foot of Clinton street. Two unknown women who were fishing on the dock at the time, rescued the small lad.

Child Dies from Burns

Ruth Bradley, 2-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Bradley of Horton Bay, died at the Charlevoix hospital Tuesday, from burns received when the child upset a kettle of apple juice upon herself Monday night. Funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon of this week at Horton Bay, interment at Boyne City.

Hallowe'en Party

Witches, ghosts, goblins all,
You will see at Marion Grange Hall.
Thursday nite all fall in line,
Come and have a real good time.
Ladies bring a box and your shadow too,
For this is what we are going to do.
Each lady will stand behind a sheet,
And we'll sell her shadow, even her feet.
The gent who buys the shadow then,
Will dine with her about half-past ten.—Adv. 43t1.

Look out for the Rummage Sale on Bridge street Saturday, October 31st.—42t2.

SUMMER COTTAGE AT BOULDER PARK

Artistic Bungalow Now Under Construction

Boulder Park is no longer a fancy. Take a look for yourself and you will see, amid the groups of cedars, the stone work of the first of numerous cottages which are to be built before the coming resort season. Work was commenced recently under the supervision of E. A. Young.

The structure above mentioned will be somewhat of a novelty in the line of summer homes. Walls are being built of quarry stone with a dark shade of mortar for the crevices, to offset the drab color of the walls. Dimensions of the house are 24x36 feet, not including the concrete porch, and it will house two bedrooms on the east end, a large and comfortable living room with a stone fireplace, kitchenette and breakfast alcove.

This excellent example of comfortable, informal, and at the same time artistic, architecture will have a low roof, with wide eaves braced with ornamental wood brackets which will be painted a shade of cream, the same color scheme to be carried out on the window sashes and shutters The shingles on the roof will be variegated in color, three shades of brown making up the combination.

These features, along with other fancy creations, do credit to the artistic conception of the designer, Earl A. Young.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH
Rev. B. G. Mattson, Pastor

10:30 morning worship with sermon by the pastor, Dr. B. G. Mattson on the question: "How Tall are You?" A study of measurements in spiritual stature.

12:00 Sunday School.

2:30 service at the Ironton church.

6:00 Young People's meeting.

7:00 Evening service. The subect of the pastors address is "Christianity in the Midst of the Economic Currents of Modern Life."

GE WIRING SYSTEM
—for lifetime service
WOOD BROTHERS
—Adv. 43tf.

COURIER BARGAIN COLUMN.

Courier Want Advs. are One Cent per word per insertion. Minimum charge is 20 cents per insertion, for anything under 20 words. All Want Advs. are strictly cash in advance except to those who have ledger accounts. Please remember this when sending in your copy.

FOR SALE—MISCELLANEOUS

FOR SALE—An overcoat, medium size; a very good coat at a reasonable price. Inquire at 208 Bridge street.—43-t1.

FOR SALE—Four-roll Deering corn husker on trucks. In good running order. Geo. S. Parsons, Charlevoix, R. F. D. 4.—43-t2.

FOR SALE—About ten cords of dry maple block wood. Drop card to Floyd Hopper, Charlevoix, Rt. 3. —43-t1 pd.

FOR SALE — Building material. Save 50 per cent in building. Phone W. S. Shaw Co., No. 75, Boyne City, for prices on lumber (boards and scantling,) steel beams, brick, pipe, pipe fittings and roofing.—40t10.

FOR SALE—CITY PROPERTY

FOR SALE—Twenty-room house, modernly equipped with hot and cold water in rooms, baths, etc. This is a splendid business opportunity for anyone desiring to get into the board and room business in the best resort town in northern Michigan. House is beautifully located on a series of natural terraces overlooking Charlevoix harbor and has had a high-class patronage of resort people. Owner has other interests to look after. This is a first-class, money-making proposition and worth looking into. Address all inquires to this paper.—42-t4.

WANTED—MISCELLANEOUS

CASH for Dental Gold, Platinum, Silver, Diamonds, magneto points, false teeth, jewelry, and valuables. Mail today. Cash by return mail. Hoke S. & R., Otsego, Mich.—12-tf.

MISCELLANEOUS

FOR INFORMATION regarding Florida land and investments, write Ernest E. Galloway, 845 N. W. 2nd St., Miami, Florida, Licensed Broker.—36-tf.

HELP WANTED.

WANTED—Competent girl for general housework. Permanent position. Inquire at McCann's Bakery. 34-tf.

WANTED—Two or three more good men. Apply at old Co-operative association building or phone 25-J. Charlevoix Pickle & Produce Co. —42-t1.

Blankets

Cotton Blankets, 64x76, tan and gray, for.....$2.75
Cotton Blankets, double 72x80 inches, tan only for $3.25
Cotton Blankets, double 72x80 inches, in tan and gray, for $3.50
Plaid Blankets, double 66x80, colors—buff, pink, blue and tan—an extra heavy nap, for.....$4.50
Wool and Cotton Plaid Blankets, assorted colors—size, 68x80 inches, for $6.75
All Wool Plaid Blankets, 66x80 inches. Colors—blue and white, black and red, white and blue, for $10.00
Woodbrook All Wool Plaid Blankets—assorted plaid patterns in pink, blue, tan and gold—size 70x80, for $12.00
Teddy Bear Doll Blankets, blue and pink, for.....10c
Baby Teddy Bear Blankets, size 30x50 inches, color blue, for $1.00
Crib Blankets, white with pink or blue border—double 30x40, for $1.25
Crib Blankets—all pink, bound with ribbon—size, 36x50 inches, for $2.00
Wool Blankets—pink and white, bound with pink ribbon—size, 36x54 inches, for $3.75

A. E. MASON

SATURDAY SPECIALS

Bargains for Vegetable and Grain Show Day, Saturday, October 31, will be greater than we have offered in many years. Cold weather is here and you need heavy winter clothing. Offerings for this day will give those in need of winter garments a chance to buy what they need at prices unheard of in Charlevoix.

THESE ARE REAL BARGAINS

Assortment of Boy's Knee Pants, regular price $1.50, $1.75, $2.00, $2.25 and $2.75, Saturday's Sale One pair at regular price and second pair for....25c

Assortment of Men's Kersey Pants, Saturday we will sell the first pair at today's price and the second pair for 50c

Men's and Boy's Cotton Shirts, regular price $1.00 and $1.25, Saturday we will sell you the first shirt for $1.00 and a second one for.....50c

Big assortment of Men's Leather Vests, priced from $10.00 to $18.00. Saturday we will give a disrount of $3.00 on each garment.

Saturday we will throw off $5.00 on each Overcoat and $3.00 on each Sheep-lined Coat in stock.

Closing out our stock of the best Poultry Powder, two packages for the price of one.

Closing out our stock of Sal-Vet for horses, cattle and sheep, two packages for the price of one.

If you are in a buying mood, your dollar will buy more here than at any place in town.

Benj. Brown Auto Sales

Phone 60

Saturday Specials

Two live-wire specials that mean a substantial saving to those who take advantage of the offerings for Vegetable and Grain Show Day:

20c pkg. SOAP CHIPS for

10c

25c. pkg. Star-Naptha Washing Powder for....

20c

Lay in a good supply at these prices.

Milton Block

NEW PALACE THEATRE

ATTRACTIONS FOR THE COMING WEEK

Friday, October 30th

Wm. Fox presents "DAUGHTERS OF THE NIGHT" a throbbing tale of midnight marauders, full of action and thrills. The exciting experience of a telephone girl woven into a drama of throbs and thrills. Also a Fox News Reel.

Saturday and Sunday, October 31 and November 1

Wm. Fox presents the play that broke the world's record, "LIGHTNIN." John Golden's triumph play by Frank Bacon and Winchell Smith. Which run in the Gayety Theatre, New York for 1,281 consecutive performances nearly doubled previous record which stood for 25 years. The stage play faithfully reproduced on the screen. Staged from the personal supervision of John Golden. And under the direction of John Ford, who produced the Iron Horse. Heralded as a masterpiece by the New York press and public. A delightful romance of and for the young and old. Starring Jay Hunt as Lightnin Bill Jones. With an all-star support and an Al. St. Johns comedy "Love Mania." Don't miss this great picutre. No advance in price, adults 30c, children 15c.

Tuesday, November 3

Wm. Fox presents "THE LAST MAN ON EARTH." A fantastic novelty with one thousand beautiful girls assembled from all parts of the world. And a two reel Lloyd Hamilton comedy "Hooked."

Wednesday, November 4

We are bringing back for one day only "CHARLEY'S AUNT." With Syd Chaplin. The greatest comedy picture in forty years. Also a Fox News reel. Special prices of 10c and 25c.

UNCLE GEORGE ENJOYS VISIT

SAYS CONCRETE RIM AROUND PINE LAKE NEEDED

Visits Grand Rapids and Detroit on Way South, Commenting on Trip

Troy, N. Y., October 20, 1925
To my dear Charlevoix County Friends:

As you already know I left Charlevoix with its water washed air, pure drinking water, health giving climate and delightful weather on the first day of this month. My first stop was at Grand Rapids where I met several of my newly made friends as well as a good many of my old time friends. While there I met many members of the West Michigan Resort and Tourist Association. They were getting ready to attend a meeting of the Association which was to be held in Muskegon the day following. In conversation with them I realized the fact, more than ever, that this Association was composed of their largest and best business men not only of Grand Rapids but also of the best business men along the entire west shore from the southwest corner of the state to the Straits of Mackinac with the exception of here and there a town our own Charlevoix, the beautiful, being one of them.

Judge J. M. Harris of Boyne City, was there representing our county and expected to meet several others from his own home town including some from East Jordan. I have had no means of knowing what they done at this meeting but I believe that nothing but good can come from it.

My next stop was at Detroit, which I sometimes think is one of the greatest cities in the United States. At all events I never strike Detroit without finding something going on in which I am particularly interested. This time it was the dedication of the Dixie highway. President Allison and Judge Beekman of Chattanooga, Tenn., and several vice-presidents of other states. When I look back and see what has been accomplished during the last ten years and the hundreds of miles of good reinforced concrete roads which have been built in that time, I cannot refrain from blaming myself for any disatisfaction that I may have expressed because more has not been done than I expected.

In 1914 when the government donated the first $75,000,000 for federal aid to good roads and that the government would pay 50 per cent the state 35 per cent and the county 15 per cent that was a logical and

(Continued on page 9.)

Happy Moments for Mother

You are all the world to her—and she is growing old. Step to the telephone, now and then, and give Mother a few happy moments from your busy life.

A Long Distance Call is Personal

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE CO.

BACK BAD TODAY?

Then Find the Cause and Correct It As Other Charlevoix Folks Have.

There's little rest or peace for the backache sufferer.
Days are tired and weary—
Night brings no respite.
Urinary troubles, headaches, dizziness and nervousness, all tend to prevent rest or sleep.
Why continue to be so miserable?
Why not use a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys?
Use Doan's Pills
Your neighbors recommend Doan's.
Read this Charlevoix case.

Robert Mitchell, 809 State St., says: "I had a dragging ache thru the small of my back and when I bent over, sharp, knife-like pains darted across my kidneys. Morninge my back was lame and sore and as time passed, I felt all out of sorts. My kidneys were weak and I often had to get up several times during the night to pass the secretions. After using Doan's Pills, from the Central Drug Store, I was cured."

60c, at all dealers. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

WATER SPORTS SAFER FOR RED CROSS WORK

Expert Life-Savers and Many Thousand Swimmers Reduce Annual Water Toll.

Water sports in the United States have never been so safe as they are today, a survey of the work done by Life-Saving experts of the American Red Cross in the past year indicates. Thousands of adults and young people were taught to swim proficiently by these experts during this period. In addition, 5,681 men, 4,187 women, and 13,024 juniors successfully passed the rigid tests of the Life Saving Service of the Red Cross. The total thus trained during the year—22,892—is 5,041 more than last year's results. The total membership of the Life Saving Corps of the Red Cross on June 30 was 72,810 persons.

Meeting the demand for qualified instructors and councillors in these camps, are the college men and women of the country, many devoting whole or part of their annual vacation periods to this field. Meeting the need of standardized instruction in Life-Saving, First-Aid, and kindred subjects, the American Red Cross conducted nine First-Aid and Life-Saving Camp Institutes this year with a total attendance of more than 600, in Maine, Massachusetts, New York, North Carolina, Indiana, Wisconsin, Oregon, and California. Representatives of Red Cross Chapters, summer camps, life guards at municipal pools and beaches, directors of physical education in schools, and others of this calibre made up the student body.

A number of city or regional institutions were conducted also during the winter at indoor pools to develop local experts. The aquatic school conducted by the New York Chapter was especially successful, it is stated. Inspired by this system, many camps, pools, bathing beaches, etc., have adopted in whole or in part, the Red Cross Life Saving and water-safety program. In the New England states alone, more than 180 camps employ councillors trained in these methods. A partial survey indicates more than 80 cities using the Red Cross senior test as a minimum requirement for their municipal life guards. Educational institutions have turned to it with enthusiasm.

The widespread instruction besides creating unprecedented numbers of expert life-savers, is developing a vast body of Americans who are at home in the water. All contributes to safety the year-round, for swimming is a recognized all-year sport today, records show.

The danger from water accidents is ever-present however where proper safeguards are not taken and to broaden this valuable Red Cross Service is one of the reasons why increased membership in the Red Cross is urged. The Annual Roll Call, during which the opportunity to assist all Red Cross work in many lines of endeavor is extended, will be held from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving, November 11-26.

Large Volunteer Work of Red Cross

Volunteers under the Red Cross all over the United States are doing constantly for others, among their products being more than 90 per cent of the Braille reading matter for the blind, and a vast production of clothing and surgical dressings.

RED CROSS AID TO VETS MOUNTING

Heavier Demands for War Service Laid to New Legislation Granting Wide Benefits.

ACTIVE FORCES AIDED ALSO

Duty to Ex-Service and Service Men First Responsibility of the Red Cross.

A marked increase in the service given by the American Red Cross to ex-service men, through Chapters, hospitals, Government and Red Cross offices during the past year, and which volume is expected to be maintained during most of the fiscal year ending June 30, 1926, is shown in the reports of the war service activities of the organization, just completed.

Service to the disabled and to men now in active service continued to be one of the primary obligations of the Red Cross. The increased activities in this regard were attributed largely to the legislation giving new benefits to ex-service men.

The keystone of the Red Cross service lies in the Home Service work of the chapters to veterans and men still in service. At the close of the fiscal year June 30, 1925, 2,591 Chapters were active in this work and had expended approximately $2,237,000.

Included in their work was assistance to ex-service men in making out adjusted compensation papers, in the handling of claims reopened, or made possible under liberalized terms of the World War Veterans' Act of 1924; and in many other ways.

An unusual amount of legislation passed by Congress and State bodies has necessitated the issue of much new material in the past year. Legislation was passed during the year liberalizing conditions applying to hospitalization, compensation and other benefits under the Veterans' Bureau; this in turn has entailed reopening of many claims formerly disallowed, filing of many new ones, and many applications for hospitalization. The Claims Service at National Headquarters this year handled 17,506 in comparison with 12,010 cases the previous year.

Increased service to men in hospitals was noted, as well in the number of hospitals in which service was maintained by the organization. Due to new legislation an increase of over 6,000 patients were admitted for hospitalization, a new peak approximating that of March 1922. Since a large number of this group includes patients not eligible for compensation, the solution of their personal and family problems has involved careful study by the National Organization.

There are 30,000 disabled ex-service men in Government hospitals every day of the year, and their need has directly led to a revival of the best-known and perhaps most popular activity the Red Cross sponsored in war—a new campaign for knitted "Red Cross sweaters." These articles are among the few not furnished by the Government.

For the men still on active duty in the Army, Navy and Marines, the Red Cross during the year maintained Field Directors at all important stations, camps, and hospitals of these armed forces of the country.

A monthly average of 96,931 service and ex-service men were aided by the Red Cross during the year.

The man in service, and the man who has served his country are among the primary responsibilities for which the American Red Cross is chartered by Congress. Nevertheless it has many other obligations and it is on this basis that an appeal will be made for a larger enrollment than ever during the Annual Roll Call, Armistice Day, November 11, to November 26.

JUNIOR RED CROSS AIDS PEACE BY BIG GROWTH

Gains 142,000 Members in Year in Schools Throughout United States.

A new high level in peace time membership of the American Junior Red Cross is recorded for 1925—its ranks numbering 5,788,648 school girls and boys—a gain of 142,000.

This unique and powerful children's organization started as a war measure, but today is one of the greatest influences for peace ever known. An increasing participation in local programs of service has featured their year's growth. It is indicated that to a greater degree than ever pupils in the schools are performing individual and collective acts of service in a true Red Cross spirit.

The success of the Junior swimming program, launched last year through co-operation of the Life-Saving Service of the Red Cross, has led to a determination to make it a regular feature of both these branches.

An outstanding feature of the Juniors' work this year was the participation for the first time of a Junior Red Cross worker in the disaster relief operations following the tornado in Missouri, Illinois, and Indiana. Schools in many more fortunate localities displayed a keen interest in sending toys and books for the use of the children in the disaster area.

The Junior Red Cross program has flourished not alone in settled communities, but has been extended to schools where many Eskimo children undertook Junior work. In addition, the international correspondence between schools is proving more and more popular. American schools are now corresponding with those in thirty-four countries.

Strong Membership Appeal In Red Cross Disaster Relief

Asking themselves "What if disaster should visit our city?" the leading citizens of many communities of the United States have adopted the Scout motto to "Be Prepared."

Impressed by the frequency and the wide range of peace time calamities in their country, they have organized their communities with the thoroughness which normal conditions permit, against the possibility of a time when there will be no chance for thought or plan. Red Cross Chapters in many localities are similarly prepared.

R. B. ARMSTRONG
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Special Attention to Diseases of Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat
Priest Bldg. Phone 255

DR. F. F. McMILLAN
Physician and Surgeon
Office above Postoffice
Phone 17
Charlevoix :: Michigan

A. L. FITCH
ATTORNEY AT LAW
Office in Court House
Phone 48
Charlevoix :: Michigan

D. T. McHUGH
General Contractor
Phone 214
CHARLEVOIX MICHIGAN

WM. J. BOGART
CONTRACTOR and BUILDER
No Job Too Large
No Job Too Small.
Phone 139 Charlevoix, Mich.

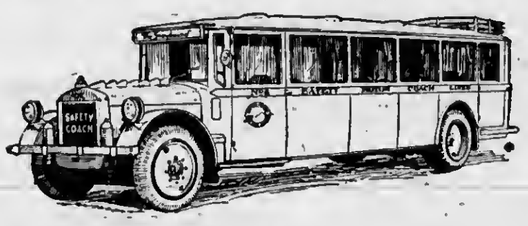
VIRGINIA RYALL BROWN, D. C.
PALMER CHIROPRACTOR
PHONES:
Office 347 Residence 89
Postoffice Building

JACOB'S
SATURDAY SPECIAL
OCT. 31, 1925

For Cash or Farm Produce I will give Twenty cents off on every dollars worth of goods purchased on this day. This will be a good time to put in your winters supply.

H. B. JACOBS

RIDE THE GREYHOUNDS



From Ludington now to any point south along Lake Michigan

MUSKEGON
GRAND HAVEN
HOLLAND
SOUTH HAVEN
BENTON HARBOR
ST. JOSEPH
then on to
CHICAGO

Greyhounds of the Highway — Safety Motor Coach Lines

Complete information on all divisions in the new Time Table
STATION: Charlevoix Hotel

Auction Sales

If you are going to have a sale your biggest problem will be how to get the bidders, for bidders are what make a successful sale. If you do not have proper publicity it may mean

Hundreds of Dollars Lost

Your neighbors and friends are not the ones that make your sale a success, neither are they the ones you want to reach with your advertising for they know about your sale. It is the outside bidder who comes from 5, 10 or 20 miles and comes to bid, that you want. It is not at all unusual for one good bidder to raise the proceeds of a sale $50 to $100.

The solution to the problem is to use a paper which covers the field, a recognized auction sale medium with a county-wide circulation, which has published thousands of successful sales.

Use the

CHARLEVOIX COURIER

Charlevoix's Auction Sale Paper

Ellsworth Section

Joe Delemonte returned home from Muskegon, last week.

D. C. Edson spent Sunday with his daughter at Central Lake.

Rev. Henry Hiles of East Jordan, was in town Tuesday on business.

The Board of Trade had a game supper in the Blue hall, Tuesday evening.

B. Sage and S. Wilson of Central Lake, were in town on business, Monday.

Marvin Elzinga spent potato digging vacation in the southern part of the state.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Springstead spent Sunday with their son, Ira Springstead.

Mrs. Nellie Lingle spent the past week with her daughter, Mrs. George Liberty.

Supt. and Mrs. Palmer of Clerion, attended the meeting at M. E. church Sunday afternoon and evening.

Miss Jackson of Portland Michigaa is spending a week with her uacle, Mr. Jim Elzinga.

Miss Mary Elmer returned to her home near Grand Grpids, Monday, after having helped in revival meetings as pianist and young people's worker.

William Stafford, F. H. Harvey, B. O. Stevens, M. R. Mordian, Geo. D. Dudden and M. E. Gleason of Detroit are here hunting, and are stopping at Little Inn.

Several families from Barnard and Atwood attended church services at the M. E. shurch, Sunday. They had a basket dinner at the parsonage. Many came from Central Lake in the evening.

MILES DISTRICT

Carl Moblo came home from Muskegon, Sunday.

The woods are full of bunters taking advantage of the short hunting season.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Raymond are visiting her sister Mrs. Elmer Reed in East Jordan.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Lindeneau of Boyne City spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bancroft.

Mrs. Anna LaLonde and daughter, Esther of East Jordan called on Mr. and Mrs. Supley LaLonde, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Miles spent Sunday in East Jordan at the home of their daughter, Mrs. C. L. Strong.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Miles and James Holben called on Mr. and Mrs. Supley LaLonde Saturday afternoon.

James Holben spent the week end in East Jordan at the home of his grand-daughter Mrs. C. L. Strong.

Mrs. Fred Bancroft and Mrs. Ben VanOrman has been helping to care for Mrs. Donaldson who has been ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Huston of Detruit, motored up Sunday for a visit with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Dett Evans.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Evans of Rancy District, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Addis and son, James, spent Sunday evening at the A. Miles home.

FAIRVIEW BANKS

Autumn winds.

Everybody is hunting this week.

Mrs. John Goeman left for Grand Rapids, Friday, to visit her mother, who is sick.

Albert Byers of Central Lake, was in this locality Friday afternoon.

We have hed quite a winter the past week and farm work is delayed somewbat.

Frank DeJonge left for the southern part of the state Friday afternoon on business.

Farmers have started harvesting and hauling sugar beets, which are a small crop this year,

Mr. and Mrs. Chris Woldyke of Grand Rapids, are visiting friends and relatives here this week.

Quite a number from here attended the sale of Mr. Schroeder, at Atwood, Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawerance Boss of Barnard were in this neighborhood Wednesday, visiting relatives.

Nickolas Veldkamp and son, John, are spending a couple of weeks in Grand Rapids, visiting relatives.

ANTRIM CITY

Jack Smith and family were visitors at the Dennis home Sunday.

Jack Smith broke his hay press one day last week when he was bailing hay for Mr. Stoel.

Jake Essenberg, Will Petters and Arthur Stoel were visitors at the school house, Thursday.

Mr. Stoel and Mr. Dennis are going to have a sale next Thursday, the 29th. It is going to be at the Dennis home.

The bird season opened the twenty fifth. We do not know how much game they got, but there was a lot of shooting going on.

ROCK ELM

A card from Mrs. Metz announces the safe arrival of their party in Florida.

Pretty stiff squaw winter we have been having. Hope it will be followed by at least as long and well defined Indian summer.

Mrs. Wm. Tait returned home Wednesday from Detroit where she enjoyed a visit with her sister Mrs. Jensen and other relatives.

Frank Lawton, who left for Grand Rapids the 12th writes that he made the drive without any mishaps of any kind and less than nine hours on the road. He is working for a building contractor.

You will find high quality merchandise at reasonable prices at the Charlevoix Hdw. Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

PILGRIM HOLINESS CHURCH
Phelps and Ellsworth

Phelps
Sunday school, 10:00 a. m.
Preaching, 11:00 a. m.
Prayer meeting, Wednesday evening at 8:00 p. m.

Ellsworth
Snnday school, 1:15 p. m.
Preacbing, 2:30 and 7:30 p. m.
Prayer meeting Tharsday evening at 8:00 p. m.

B. E. Manker, Pastor.

No appeal is so international as that to the humanity of every people. The sum of $1.50 from a Japanese boy in Tokio to the Santa Barbara relief fund bespeaks a world of friendship, engendered by the American Red Cross.

When the mariners on the high seas enroll 100 per cent. in the American Red Cross, should you lag behind?

Join the American Red Cross whose work is your expression of your human impulses.

UNCLE GEORGE ENJOYS VISIT

(Continued from page 8.)

just proportion for each. I then immediately began writing letters to newspapers in every town on the 6000 miles of the Dixie highway. I also wrote to every town and city between Pittsburgh, Pa., and Omaha, Neb., on the Dixie highway asking all these papers on these two great national highways to use their influence and urge building of good reinforced concrete roads as a medium for economic traffic and for saving a great amount of road tax money. My reason for doing so was this, I had nothing to gain financially from any kind of roads that might be built. One thousand miles of any kind of soft stuff roads, such as so-called asphalt, macadam or any other dame with a mac would mean identically the same to me as a good reinforced concrete road would. This I had learned several years ago while I was a member of the Good Roads Commitee of the Chicago Association of Commerce of which I have been a member for the past 25 years, that no road could be built that would be as durable and as easy to ride on, or that would carry larger loads or as far with the same amount of gas, as a good concrete road would. Various agricultural colleges throughout the United States by scientific tests have proven that this statement is true.

I cannot close my story of Detroit with making reference to Mr. Ed. Hines, the champion long life-chairman of Wayne county commissioners. In my opinion he has no superior, if he has an equal in building good reinforced concrete roads. I say it without fear of contradiction that he has built more miles of such road than any other man in the United States. He has always been ahead of the game both in building wider roads and stronger roads. He is the father of Woodward avenue line from Detroit to Pontiac a distance of 25 miles which is 204 feet in width. It has two strips of concrete 40 feet wide on either side which will be extended in the near future to Flint and Lansing.

This last summer was the loveliest and best summer I have put in since my home was broken up by the death of my dear wife in 1913. I had no occasion to say a cross word to any one and no one said a cross word to me. I do not mean by this that everyone loves me or that I really loved everyone with whom I came in contact but one does not have to marry, or sleep or converse with everyone they meet. There is not a man in the world to whom I would not confer a favor. However, there are some folks that I would not ask or even allow them to do a favor for me, I just simply leave them alone.

I cannot refrain from saying that I am very proud to be Uncle George to so many people all the way from Nova Scotia to New Orleans, from southern Florida to northern Michigan and Winnepeg, as well as bewtix and between, but no such greetings toach the spot as those that come from the people in Charlevoix county, Michigan. If Charlevoix county does not succeed in getting the seven miles of good reinforced concreta road due us on the Dixia highway, it will not be because tha taxpayers have not been sufficiently informed and urged to go to it and get it. It is due as and we have raised a sufficient amount of money to build it. Do not forget to remember that the 13 miles of good reinforced concrete road that we have already in is an asset and really the only asset that we have in the road line. At $25,000 per mile, it is actually worth three bandred and tweny-five thoasand dollars which is within twenty-fiva thousand dollars of the amount we bonded for. And this is sufficient proof to me that we ought never again to build a mile of any other kind of road. It is also a common sense business proposition that we should build a good reinforced concreto road aroand Piao lake. This old plan of ours of building and rebuilding tha kind of roads that they bave been building is sufficient to make the fathers of our present taxpayers turn over in their coffins and cry out aloud "For God's Sake Don't Build Any More of Them."

Yours truly,
Uncle George H. VanPelt.

HOW'S THIS?

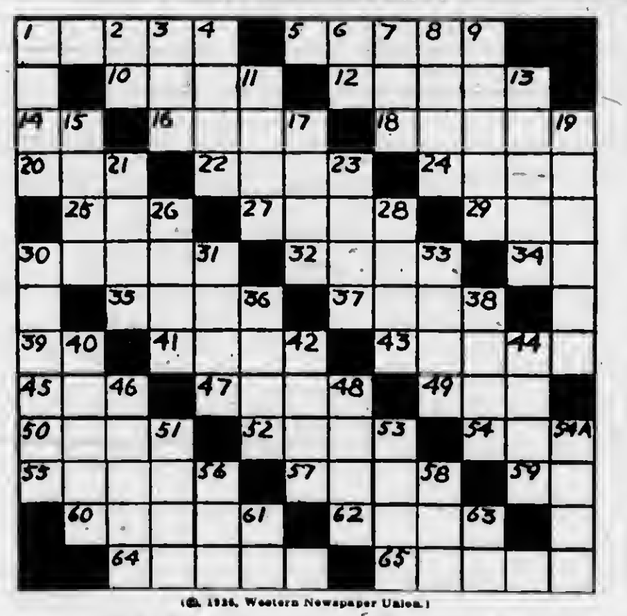
HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE will do what we claim for it—rid your system of Catarrh or Deafness cnused by Catarrh.

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE consists of an Ointment which Quickly Relieves the catarrhal inflammation, and the Internal Medicine, a Tonic, which acts through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces, thus assisting to restore normal conditions.

Sold by druggists for over 40 Years.
F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.

B. J. BEUKER
Physician and Surgeon
Office over Blue Store
Ellsworth, Michigan
Office Hours: 2-4 p. m., Phone 38

Cross-Word Puzzle No. 79



(©, 1926, Western Newspaper Union.)

Horizontal.

1—Soldier's pace
5—Spring month
10—Exiest
13—Lubricated
16—Preposition
18—Small boat
19—Bright, dazzling light
20—Spike of corn
22—Two of a kind
24—A saurel
26—Mound of earth
27—Fifty-two weeks
28—Thai man
29—Covering for shoulders
31—Crackle
34—Greek letter
35—Mountain top
37—To realize
39—Jumbled type
41—Circlet
43—Stinginess
44—Prefix meaning before
47—Source
49—Sailor
50—Earthy matter of clay and sand
51—Undressed
52—Tear
53—Follow
57—Impediment in speech
58—Negative
60—Shrieks
61—Boy's name
64—Citrus fruit
65—Aunt's husband

Vertical.

1—Silent
2—Shout
3—Sun god
4—Pile
6—Italian river
7—Two wheeled vehicle
8—Sickness
9—Percolate a liquid through ashes
11—Preposition
12—To draw off the liquid from 15—Pledge
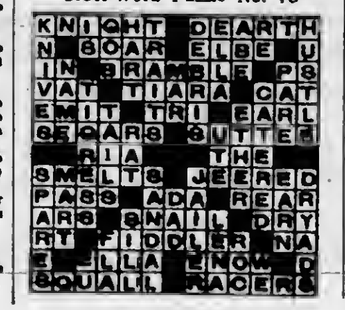
17—Recline
18—Boy's name
21—Harvest
23—Grade
25—Wide-mouthed pitcher
26—Pealed
30—Flexible
31—Den
33—Kind of wine
36—Handle
38—Don
40—Light sarcasm
42—Place where a race is going to end
44—Ireland (poetic)
45—Artist's standard
46—Journey
51—Kind of slipper
53—Biblical character who sold his birthright
54A—Long stick
56—Kind of tree
58—Play on words
61—Thus
62—Lower case (printers' abbr.)

Solution will appear in next issue.

Cross-Word Puzzle No. 78



Why Quaker Oats "stands by" you through the morning

ending premature fatigue

DO you feel tired, nervous, hungry, hours before lunch?

Don't jump to the conclusion of poor health. Almost 90% of the time you'll find it's premature fatigue, brought on largely by an ill-balanced breakfast ration. Thousands have "draggy" mornings for that reason.

To feel right, you must have well-balanced, complete food. You can't deceive nature into accepting breakfasts that lack even a single element toward correct food balance.

That is why Quaker Oats is so widely urged today. It is almost a perfectly balanced dish.

Contains 16% protein, food's great tissue builder; 58% carbohydrate, the great energy element; is rich in minerals, and in vitamines. Supplies the "bulk" your diet needs to make laxatives seldom necessary.

Few foods have its remarkable "balance." That is why it stands by you through the morning.

2 Kinds — The Quaker Oats you have always known and Quick Quaker Oats—Cooks in 3 to 5 minutes.

ESSEX is a "SIX"

Built Under the Exclusive Super-Six Patents

$795 for the Coach

Freight and Tax Extra

Everyone knows the superiority of 6 cylinders.

Those who know are not content with less than Super-Six performance. It increases power smoothness, flexibility and car life without adding to weight or motor size. Its principle is patented and exclusive to Hudson and Essex. And Hudson-Essex are the world's largest selling sixes.

That volume makes possible the lowest prices in history.

In Essex there is a big saving in cost, a greater economy in operation, and a finer satisfaction from the ease and comfort of riding and driving.

Everywhere it is regarded with Hudson as the World's Greatest Value

Hudson Coach, $1195 Hudson Brougham, $1495 Hudson 7-Pass. Sedan, $1695
All Prices Freight and Tax Extra

H. R. FOWLER, Charlevoix, Mich.

POMONA GRANGE ELECT OFFICERS

IN JOINT MEETING AT PENINSULA GRANGE

Business of Importence Treosected and Meny Resolutioos Adopted By Meetiog

Charlevoix Pomona Grange No. 40 met with Peninsula Grange at their hall, last Saturday, October 24. A fine supper was served by the entertaining Grange and much important business, including the election of officers was transacted. The following officers were elected for tha ensuing year:

Master, E. E. Stroud.
Overseer, T. S. Barber.
Lecturer, Sidney Lumley.
Steward, Platt Webster.
Chaplin, Mrs. T. S. Barber.
Treasurer, Jerry Saunders.
Gate Keeper, W. McGeorge.
Secretary, Olive Webster.
Ceres, Mrs. Jerry Saunders.
Pomona, Mrs. John Heller.
Flora, Ann Stroud.
L. A. Steward, Alice Smatts.

The officers were installed by Past Master A. B. Chew.

South Arm Grange was declared banner grange for the next quarter. It was voted to buy new sashes for nll Pomona oficers, so every grange member turn out at the next Pomona at South Arm Grange, November 14. The auditing committee reported $180.55 on hand, and Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Saunders were elected to go as Pomona delegates.

The following resolutions were adopted at the meeting and the grange will go on record as being in favor of such: Resolved that this grange is fn favor of a graduate income tax, nlso declaring themselves in favor of stricter censorship of moving pictures. Another resolution was in favor of dropping the weight tax and adoption of a three-cent tnx on gasoline.

WOLVERINE
1000 MILE SHOE
Improved Cordovan Horsehide
And they alwaya stay soft, the secret's in the leather.

FARMERS—

For a Fall plow shoe you can't beat this new Cordovan Horse Hide 10 inch Shoe

$3.75

Its absolutely beyond a question of a doubt. It pays to buy good shoes.

CAMPBELL BOOT SHOP

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY 13TH AT C. M. N. S.

Eighteen Students Enrolled for Winter Term

Charlevoix county ranks 13th In student representation at Central Michigan Normal School. There are 18 students from this county attending the Mt. Pleasant Normal.

As usual, Isabella county ranks first, with 214 students. Gratiot county is second with 80 students. Montcalm and Saginaw nre tied for third place with 45 students from each county. Tuscola ranks fourth with 32 students. Osccola is fifth with 30 students, and Midland is sixth with 26 students.

The names of those from this county are: Bay Shore, Alice Worth; Boyne City, Laurence Cross, Helen Harris, Caroline House, Vonda Lefler, Katie Rothenberger, Edith Sneathen, Mrs. Cora Willis, Mary Willis, Agnes Peters; East Jordan, Carlton Bowen, Frances Cook, Leatha Cox, Josie Hammond, Emil Hegerberg, Marie MacDonald, Virginia Pray, Jasper Stallard.

The Catholic ladies will hold a baked goods sale at the Charlevoix Cafe, on Saturday, October 31st.—Adv. 43-tl.

In Honor of a Great Event

Birthdays are always important occasions, especially if one is very young or very old. Before long The Youth's Companion will be a hundred years old, and the event is going to be made a memorable one for The Compnnion's many friends. So, although the date is not until April 16, 1927, preparations will begin with 1926.

In honor of its hirthday The Compnnion will come to you next year at the new low price $2. It will be dressed in its party clothes, with new cover designs, enlarged illustrations, new brilliantly clear type, and over 200 pages more thnn last year. It will contain 9 book-length serial stories, fascinating mystery stories, tales of adventure on land and sea, the new "Make-It and Do It" Pages, radio, games, books, and puzzles, interesting specinl articles, and the ever-delightful Children's Page. Don't miss this great year of The Youth's Companion; subscribe now and receive:

1. The Youth's Companion—52 issues in 1926, and
2. The remaining issues of 1925. All for only $2.
3. Or include McCall's Magazine, the monthly authority on fnshions. Both publication, only $2.50.

THE YOUTH'S COMPANION
S N Dept., Boston, Mass.
Subscriptions Received at this Office.

A. VanAllsburg & Son

The Home of Good Sausage

Beef Pot Roast, per lb.	12½c
Rib Stew, per lb.	10c
Hamburg, 2 lbs. for	25c
Head Cheese, per lb.	12½c
Liver Sausage, per lb.	12½c
Lard, per lb.	20c
Bacon, in chunk, per lb.	35c

1 Barrel for $9.50 to any Customer

On Vegetable and Grain Show Day

WE WILL GIVE ONE BARREL OF FLOUR TO ANY CUSTOMER FOR

$9.50

Charlevoix-Co-Operative Assn.

The DAIRY

IT IS POSSIBLE TO REDUCE FEED BILLS

The high price of commercial feeds indicates that farmers can well afford to give more attention to more and better home-grown feeds.

This statement comes from the New York State College of Agriculture with the suggestion that the dairy farmer might well turn toward the production of those roughages which will reduce feed costs.

Protein in the form of high protein feeds, they say, is extremely expensive. The amount of gluten feed cottonseed meal, and linseed oil meal ordinarily purchased can be reduced by the production of roughage rich in protein, such as alfalfa and clover Heavy grain feeding is also expensive, and the quantity of grain fed can be lowered by growing roughages of high feeding value.

Alfalfa and clover will produce more protein and more total digestible nutrients to the acre—that is, more milk or meat to the acre, for example—than will timothy.

Experiments show that lack of mineral matter may frequently be the limiting factor in growing young stock, and in milk production. This applies especially to lime and phosphorus which are essential elements of both bone and milk. Phosphorus can be obtained in large quantities from wheat feeds, cottonseed meal and linseed oil meal. Lime, however must be obtained from roughages, and here again roughages rich in lime enable live stock to make more efficient use of all the grain fed. Timothy has 2.5 pounds of lime in 1,000 pounds red clover has 16 pounds, and alfalfa has 19.5 pounds.

The production of legumes means an increase in the feeding value of home-grown feeds, and where heed is given to the greater content of digestible nutrients in rations, reduction in feed costs results.

Lime in fairly large amounts is usually required to produce legumes successfully, but the cost and trouble of applying lime is more than counter-balanced by the increased fertility the legumes add to the soil.

Alfalfa Valuable Feed in Production of Milk

The value of alfalfa hay in dairy feeding has had a striking illustration in Cortland county, according to a report from the state college of agriculture at Ithaca, N. Y.

The college says that if more dairy men realized how the feeding of legumes decreases the cost of milk production, there would be an ever more noticeable increase in the acreage of alfalfa. As it is, the growth of alfalfa increased in this state from 35,313 acres in 1909 to 119,783 in 1919.

The Cortland county test to which the college refers was made unwittingly by a dairyman. During the early part of the winter, his cows were being fed good alfalfa hay and a 20 per cent protein grain mixture. He had no silo.

The middle of January, the alfalfa in the mow from which he was feeding gave out and he started feeding timothy. Immediately milk production per cow began to decline at the rate of three pounds a day. Then the dairyman began feeding more grain, but even this did not check the decline. Not until the alfalfa was again reached in the mow did he succeed in getting his herd back to normal production.

Teach Young Bull Calf

Teach the bull calf to lead at an early age. Place a halter on the calf when it is a few days old and occasionally lead it around before it becomes very strong. This is better than having a tug of war at a later date when the bull will be apt to find itself stronger than the owner. Bulls often break out and this places a strain on the friendship of the neighbors who own pure bred cattle of another breed.

DAIRY HINTS

Use extra precautions in caring for dairy products.

• • •

There is no more effective way to advertise a herd of cows than through the cow testing association.

• • •

A cow that has contracted the habit of holding up her milk is very hard to cure and it may be best to sell her.

• • •

Home-grown protein helps to make a prosperous dairyman. Legume hay and soy beans grown in silage corn supply it cheaply.

• • •

Do you want a monthly farm income? Money is ready for all of the cream you can produce.

• • •

Do not stint the dairy cow. Give her all she will eat of the right kind of feeds, properly balanced, if you expect her to produce liberally.

• • •

Butter prices have taken a drop. Now is the time the cow-testing work shows up. Only efficient cows can produce at a profit when we reach the flush season of production which always forces a decline in prices.

Subscribe for the Courier.

Charlevoix Hdw. Co.

Offers

PRACTICAL THINGS for the FARM and FIRESIDE

in great Variety and at greatly Reduced Prices

Saturday, October 31st.

Our Windows tell only a small part of the story
Come in and see the Remarkable Bargains all over the store.

Lookers and Buyers All Welcome

Use our rest rooms and make this store your home during the show.

Charlevoix Hardware Company

302 Bridge St Phone I.

CHARLES HEISE AND MISS THORSEN WED

At German Lutheran Church, Traverse City, Last Tuesday.

Friends were quite surprised last week to hear of the marriage of Charles Heise, junior member of the firm of Heise & Yettaw of this city, and Miss Clara Thorsen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Christine Thorsen of East Jordan. The ceremony was performed at the German Lutheran church at Traverse City, last Tuesday, October 20th, at 10:00 a. m.

They were attended by the bride's sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence LaLonde of Traverse City. Following the ceremony they left on a wedding trip to Grand Rapids, St. Joe and other places, and will be at home to their many friends at 817 State street after November 1st.

The bride is well known to Charlevoix people, having taught in the Charlevoix city schools for two years, besides two years at the Loeb school and a number nf years in rural schools of the county. Mr. Heise has been in the coal and ice business in this city for a number nf years and is one of the younger generation of successful business men.

The Courier along with their many friends, wishes them a long and successful married life..

METHODIST CHURCH

"Skylines"—sermon subject 10:30 next Sunday. This is the first nf the November morning series.

Something different, a continued dramatic story sermon, beginning next Sunday evening. The series is based on the startling book written by Charles M. Sheldon, entitled, "Robert Hardy's Seven Days." The subject for next Sunday evening is, "The Dream of a Money Maker." This sermon introduces the plot of the series. Be sure to get this first message and become interested in the story. Bring the whole family.

Sunday School meets at 11:45 a. m.

Epworth League meets for "A happy hour" at 6:00 p. m.

Study James, the ethical, each Thursday evening during November under the direction of the pastor at the midweek service. He will present a critical translation and interpretation nf this great product nf inspiration for twenty minutes at each midweek hour. Bring your bibles and take this bible course.

THIS morning we had an opportunity
TO HIRE out on a farm and our
FARMER friend said he wouldn't ask
US TO work more than about sixteen
HOURS a day and the rest of the
TIME we could shoot pheasants,
AND he promised to pay us what
We WERE worth and right there the NEGOTIATIONS ended beeause we won't
WORK for that, and besides when
We WORK on a farm we always break
A LOT of fork handles, not to mention
THE awful damage we do to the ham
AND eggs and the pumpkin pie, so
ALL in all, we guess we'd better
STICK right here to the hardware
AND electric business. Next
SATURDAY while you are down at the GRAIN and fruit show we are going
TO OFFER you some good $1.50 and $1.35
LARGE fount lanterns for a dollar
BILL, We have, as many farmers are LEARNING, lots of good quality
MERCHANDISE at a reasonable price.
STOP in and look around.

Forest & Clarence

WOOD BROTHERS
Hardware & Electrical Supplies

Buckwheat Griddle Cakes, are now in Season

Charlevoix Pure Buckwheat Flour
Order from your Grocer

Its Pure---Its Tasty
Its Guaranteed

Argo Milling Co.
FLOUR--FEED--FUEL

CHARLEVOIX COURIER

VOLUME 32. NUMBER 44. EIGHT PAGES COURIER, CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 4, 1925 PRICE $2.00 PER YEAR

MANY EXHIBITS WERE DISPLAYED

VEGETABLE AND GRAIN SHOW WAS A SUCCESS

Much Interest Shown by Farmers of Vicinity—Auction Sale Brings Good High Prices

Charlevoix's vegetable and grain show wns a decided success, not only from the standpoint of exhibits displayed, but the interest shown by farmers and town people alike. The displays numbered 51 and were of excellent quality, coming from territory adjacent to Charlevoix. Don B. Jewell, farm agent from Antrim county was the presiding judge and handled the show to the satisfaction of all.

Following is a list of first and second prize winners in their respective classes:

Apples and Pears

Northern Spy—1st, William Johnson; 2nd, Phil Howe.

Wagner—1st, Henry Hilton; 2nd, Wm. Shaw.

Snow—1st, Wm. Withers.

Wealthy—1st, Phil Howe; 2nd, Albin Durance.

King—1st, Henry Hilton; 2nd, Chas. Harrington.

Greenings—1st, W. J. Stevenson; 2nd, Earl Shapton.

Baldwins—1st, Edward Klooster; 2nd, Wm. Withers.

Winter Banana—1st, Geo. Meggison.

Shiawassee Beauty—1st, William Withers.

Talman Sweet—1st, Wm. Withers.

Wolf River—1st, N. A. Harper; 2nd, Wm. Johnson.

Pears—1st, William Knight.

Potatoes

Golden Russet—1st, Ed. Boss; 2nd, E. N. Coulter.

Irish Cobbler—1st, Geo. Meggison.

Vegetables

Beets (sugar)—1st, Ed. Boss; 2nd, Wm. Ager.

Beets (table)—R. S. Shapton, 1st and 2nd.

Mangels—1st, LaVern McGhan; 2nd, W. O. Spidel.

Rutabagas—1st, Earl Shapton; 2nd, R. S. Shapton.

Carrots—1st, George Meggison; 2nd, Ed. Swanson.

Onions (red)—1st, Will Knight; 2nd, Lewis Boyer.

Squash (green)—1st, Wm. Johnston; 2nd, Will Mayne.

Pumpkin (pie)—R. S. Shapton, 1st and 2nd.

Cabbage—W. F. Johnson, 1st and 2nd.

Banana Squash—1st, Ernest Sandel; 2nd, R. S. Shapton.

Pumpkin (field)—R. S. Shapton, 1st and 2nd.

Squash (yellow)—R. S. Shapton, 1st and 2nd.

Oniona (yellow) — 1st, Will Knight; 2nd, Lewis Boyer.

Grains

Corn (white)—1st, Walter Clark.

Corn (red)—1st, E. N. Coulter; 2nd, Earl Shapton.

Corn (yellow)—1st, R. S. Shapton; 2nd, Ernest Sandel.

Corn (flint)—1st, W. J. Stevenson.

Wheat (red)—1st, W. O. Spidel.

Wheat (white)—1st, Wm. Withers.

Oats (best peck)—1st, Wm. Withers; 2nd, Earl Shapton.

Rye (rosen)—1st, Wm. Withers.

Buckwheat—1st, Walter Clark; 2nd, W. O. Spidel.

Beans (white) — 1st, Walter Clark; 2nd, Wm. Ager.

Beans (large white)—1st, Jacob Boss.

Beans (kidney)—1st, W. O. Spidel; 2nd, Walter Clark.

Sweet Corn—1st, Lewis Boyer.

Farm Products

Butter (2 lbs.)—1st, Christ Hansen; 2nd, Will Knight.

Eggs (white)—1st, Will Mayne; 2nd, Geo. Meggison.

Eggs (brown)—1st, Henry Hilton; 2nd, James Willis.

Best and most complete display of canned fruit and vegetables—1st, H. C. Newman; 2nd, W. O. Spidel.

Bread Baking Contest

Bread (Occident Flour)—J. N. Clark.

Bread (King Midas Flour)—N. A. Harper.

Buns (King Midas Flour)—N. A. Harper.

Merchants Bread Prizes

Best loaf on Perfection Oil Stove—Mrs. Wm. Cowan.

Best loaf on New Process Oil Stove—Mrs. Walter Black.

At the close of the judging an auction sale of the products on dis-

(Continued on page 8)

SHOULD EXAMINE REPORT CARDS

SUPT. COVERDALE MAKES THIS REQUEST

Urges Parents Who Are Not Satisfied with Marks to Confer With School Authorities

An earnest effort is being made this year by Superintendent Coverdale and the high school faculty to raise the standard of scholarship of the high school students. Reports of the scholarship record of each high school student will be sent to parents within the next few days with the request that the parents examine the report carefully and co-operate with the teachers in increasing the student's efficiency.

"A grade of E is unsatisfactory," so says the report card, "and a grade F means a failure and calls for immediate atention. Either of these grades on the report card should drive the parents to the school to find out the reason why."

Students having low grades will be given a personal interview by the school authorities in order to ascertain just the reason why the student should fail. If the failure is due to some fault of the achool administration of classes and study perlods, some adjustment will be made with the individual student to remedy the condition. Students will also bo given advice as to the best methods of study and helped to arrange a schedule that will give them sufficient time to prepare their lessons.

"If parents would see to it that students spend some time in studying at home," says Mr. Coverdale, "especially when the report card indicates failure or near failure, it would help tremendously to solve our problem of low grades. The parents can usually tell as well as the teacher if the student is just "getting by in school or if he is making an honest effort to get the most out of the work.' Very few students can do as good work ns their ability warrants if they do not apend at least an hour each day on the average in home study."

It is the desire of the school administration to do all in its power to give the students the opportunity to do good work. The program bas been so arranged to permit many of school activitiea to be held in the day time, thas eliminating evening meetings The number of aocial events will be limited to a stated number, although each group in the high school will be given ample opportunity for social functions.

To quote again from the report card: "The achool wishes to bo of the greatest service to the school children and their parents. We will be glad to receive suggestions from parents in making our work moro effective and, in many cases, we can help parents by pointing out ways of making the work of the children more satisfactory."

Public Supper

The Congregational Ladies Aid will serve supper at the church on Friday at 6 p. m. Tickets, 50c.—Adv. 44-t1 pd.

NOW MEMBER OF N. S. B. CLUB

M. ROY BRADY JOINS NEW ORGANIZATION

Will Enter "Miss Charlevoix" in M. V. P. B. A. Races Next Season —Now in Dry Dock

M. Roy Brady has just heen elected to membership in the new National Speed Boat Club, whose membership is limited to the drivers and mechanicians of boats used exclusively for racing. Owners and drivors of displacement boats used for pleasare and only occasionally for racing are not eligible for membership In the new organization. Mr. Brady's entering Miss Charlevoix for the Mississippi Valley Power Boat Association regatta for next year brought him the invitation to join this club. Election of officers is now under way and then meeting places will be decided upon.

Miss Charlevoix is in the shop now ready for a lot of work upon her, preparatory to her racing next year. She will have a cardle built to fit exactly and mounted upon a car chassis which will be used to take her to the M. V. P. B. A. races and also will be her resting place at all times when not in the water for racing, being pulled out immediately after each run. This will help to make the bont much lighter as there is no chance of the boat becoming water soaked. This should also increase her speed, both because of the lightness and becnuse the bottom can have the care that is needed to keep the pot lead, with which the bottom is finished, in shining condition. This is customary with this type of boat and all of the racing craft are kept out of water except just for the runs and trials.

Charlevoix should be proud of the fact that we have a boat here to carry the name of "Charlevoix the Beautiful" out into the world of real racing boats and this may be the means of bringing, some day, one of the big race meets to Charlevoix, where we have every facility for handling such a meet. Our hotel accommodations are of the very best and Pine lake furnishes the perfect racing water, plenty of room and shelter at the same time. Several of the towns nt which these races have been held are located on rivers, and this is a big disadvantage, so that the people of Charlevoix should look forward to, and help boost the motor bont racing in Charlevoix, until we can get an active organization here to promote such sports and eventually swing one of the big races.

It was clearly shown last summer that racing brings out the crowds and creates a lot of interest by the large number of people that witnessed the races we had here. It is undoubtedly true that we are not taking advantage of, or making the most of, our wonderful water location that nature has given us.

Card of Thaoks

On our departure for Florida, where we expect to spend the winter, we desire to express our sincere appreciation for the many kindly words, expressions of regret, and gifts of flowers from Charlevoix friends during the recent illness of Mr. Priest. Especially do we thank the various fraternal orders and church societies for the attention they gave us. Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Priest.—Adv. 44-t1 pd.

Choice fine cured Dill Pickles at very low prices while supply lasts. See Ad in this paper.—Adv. 44-t1.

LEWIS A. MOON PASSES TUESDAY

WAS VICTIM OF DOUBLE PLEURO-PNEUMONIA

Had Been in Theatre Business Here Since 1919—Funeral at Petoskey

Lewis A. Moon, owner and manager of the Palace and Majestic theaters in this city, died at the Charlevoix hospital, Tuesday morning, November 3rd, from the effects of double pleuro-pneamonia, with which he was stricken a week ago.

Mr. Moon entered business in Charlevoix in 1919. At that time he took over the property where the Palace theatre now stands. Stoddnrd & Wallace had started construction on a theatre building on the property in 1918 but never finished the enterprise, selling out to Mr. Moon, who went ahead and built what is now the Palace theatre. In 1920 he purchased the Majestic theatre from Adolph Young and merged the two under the same management, the Majestic theatre being open only through the busy resort season when one picture house could not handle the business.

About n month ago, Mr. Moon parchased the property adjoining the Majestic theatre from Adolph Young and the Ainslee estate also the H. E. McHugh property adjoining on the south. Plans had been made and work started on a new $50,000 motion picture hoase to be completed by the coming summer. We understand that all business has been transferred to Mrs. Moon, who will go ahead with the management. There will be no interraption in present plans and the new theatre project will be carried through. Walker Miles will assist Mrs. Moon in the management of the Palace theatre.

Deceased is survived hy his widow and one son, Lou M. Moon of Sturgis, Michigan, who was present and accompanied the body to Petoskey Tuesday, where the funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon at the Presbyterian church, Rev. Allburt officiating. Mr. Moon was a member of the K. of P. and Elk lodges, members of the latter order acting as casket bearers. Interment in Greenwood cemetery, Petoskey.

Out of town relatives attending the funeral are a sister, Mrs. Hubb Bowman of Pinckney, Mich., a brother, Roy S. Moon of Detroit, a son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Lou M. Moon of Sturgis, Mich., and Mrs. Edna McKee of Kalkaska.

"Lou," as he was affectionately known by Charlevoix people and summer visitors, will be greatly missed by all who knew him. He was an enterprising business man, a community booster and an all around good fellow.

FRANK W. BALCH BADIY INJURED

Former Charlevoix Resident Now in Serious Condition.

Word comes from Royal Oak of serious injuries to F. W. Balch, former resident of Marion township, which occurred on August 21. The letter did not state Mr. Balch's occupation at the time of the accident, but inquiry leads us to believe he

(Continued on Pago 8)

The Literary and Sewing Club of the M. E. Church will hold a baked gooda sale at the Charlevoix Hdw. Co.'s store, Saturday, November 7.—Adv. 44t1.

Can't Fool Him This Year

FOLKS GREATLY ENJOY EARLY COASTING

Weather Man Must Be Confused in His Dates

On Thursday night of last week Bridge street presented a sight that will linger long in the memory of Charlevoix residents. Two months from now there would not have been anything strange about this happening, but the fact that people were coasting down Bridge street hill on the 29th day of October cannot help bat call for apecial comment.

Yes, sliding down hill and nearly the whole length of the street too. It just goes to prove the statement that "we are not surpirsed at anything nowadays." Snow this early in the fall, enough to provide sleighing, has not been seen for many years. Old timers say that about fifty-five years ago last week snow fell to the depth of about eight inches and remained for the balance of the winter. Bat that was fifty-five years ago—and with the rapid disappearance of the "anwelcome" Saturday and Sunday, we do not look for a re-occurence for years to come.

We enjoy the snow but prefer to have the opportunity of coasting down Bridge street hill at least two months later in the future.

FISHING SEASON STARTED TUESDAY

ANNUAL HARVEST HAS ALREADY BEGUN

Some Fifty Craft Are Operating Out of Charlevoix and Adjacent Territory

November 2rd, marked the official opening of the 1925 commercial fishing season in local waters. Test nets were set on Monday, November 2nd, and on the 3rd were lifted nnd, a satisfactory percentage of spawn heing obtained, fishing started in earnest. The order covered only the outer shoals, with a probability that unrestricted fishing in any waters will begin either Wednesday or Thursday. This open season is the regular fall harvest for the fishermen of this district, which comprises the coastal grounds from Manistique on the north to Frankfort on the south, taking in the important fishing centers of Beaver Island, Harbor Springs, Leland and Northport.

Last year's fishing was handicapped by stormy weather, most of the season being so rough that small operators were unable to get out to their nets. High seas destroyed much equipment for fishermen, the loss running into thousands of dollars, and the season's catch was some 200,000 pounds short of the previous year. During the spawning season the fishing is done on the rocky shoals where the trout come to spawn, and it can be readily seen what a storm will do to their nets. All the fish caught at this time are trout, the whitefish season not open-

(Continued on Page 5)

PUBLIC IS INVITED TO DEMONSTRATION

New Victor Product on Display at S. M. See & Sons

While in the store of S. M. See & Sons the other day the Courier representative had an opportunity to hear the much talked-of orthophonic talking machine introduced by the Victor Talking Machine company of which S. M. See & Sons are the local agents.

It truly is a wonderful machine and is due all the credit given it. Human voices in chorus selections are reproduced with startling vividness, and when the same records were played on one of the best machines of the older type, one could not help but notice the difference in the reproduction of the two. Notes from various musical instruments were brought out with a clearness that was unbelieveable.

A public demonstration free to all will be held at the store on Friday evening, November 6, to which the public is invited to attend and hear a musical program to be played on the new machine.

The Odd Fellows will give an old fashioned dancing party at the I. O. O. F. Temple, Friday evening, November 6, for Odd Fellows and Rebekahs. Invitations will be issued to non-members.—Adv. 44t1.

Get your dill pickles now. See Ad in this paper.—Adv. 44-t1.

MAKING HEADWAY ON NEW COURSE

WET WEATHER DELAYING WORK TO SOME EXTENT

Eighteen Holes Cover a Distance of 3,601 Yards—New Club House Has Commanding View

Work on the new south side golf coarse, sponsored and financed by the Belvedere Golf Realty company is progressing rapidly. Ahoat 50 men, 15 teams and a coaple of Fordson tractors are busily engaged in breaking ap the ground and getting it into shape for seeding. Inclemnt weather of late has handicapped the work to some extent and necessitated the transfer of operations to the second nine holes before the first nine was completed.

The first nine holes will lie on the west side of what is known as the county road, between here and Ellsworth, and take in the former Wakefield farm, and some other adjoining property. The second nine will be on the east side of the road and takes in the former Blackwood and Hooker properties. Work is under the supervision of the Lavern Miller Landscape Service of Sterling, Ind., following out plans nnd specifications prepared by William Watson, golf course designer, and Mr. Miller, the latter being in active supervision of the construction.

The entire distance over the course is 3,601 yards, the shortest hole being 136 yards nnd the longest about 500. No duplicate holes will be encountered by players and many natural and artificial hazards will be encountered to test the mettle of the golfer. Four of the first nine holes cross Wakefield creek and the layout is up hill nnd down making an interesting diversity of typography over the entire eighteen holes. Wood patches have been left uncut and the players will walk through pretty groves of trees on their way from one tee to another.

The pamping station will have a capacity of 300,000 gallons in sixteen hours and will feed a sprinkling system that is designed to cover the entire course, greens, fairways, tees and all.

The club house will he situated on the highest point of the association's land, which is on the extreme south side, west of the main road. This location commands a beautiful view of Pine Lake and Lake Michigan, as well as the surrounding farm country and a view of the city of Charlevoix. The building will be a beautiful modern structure, embodying everything that will tend to add to the comfort and convenience of the players. Logan Thompson, a director of the Golf Realty company, in company with an architect from the firm handling the plans of the new club house, will be here in the near future and work will then be rushed to completion on the structure. The care-taker's quarters will be in the old Wakefield house.

On both sides of the country road a strip has been reserved and plotted out into lots which will be sold for building sites. Although neither of the nine holes are very near completion, plans call for the use of the first by July 1, 1926, and the second one month later. Owing to the wetness of the weather and the low lying round on the first nine holes, the work has been shifted to the second nine nnd, with a few weeks more of good weather this fall there is no question but what the course will be ready for use by the alloted time.

1925 GREATEST MOTOR YEAR IN STATE HISTORY

The state of Michigan this year, it is estimated, will receive more than $21,000,000 from motorists whose licenses cost $14,000,000 and who added $7,000,000 to the state treasury funds through imposition of the 2 cent gasoline tax. This has been the greatest year for motorists in the state's history, records of the department of state showing 980,000 licensed motor vehicles which means close to one car every four persons. It is estimated 100,000 more persons are driving cars this year than last.

The estimate of $21,000,000 is for the whole year and the funds received thus far indicate they will be attained. Up to September 1, motorists had paid $5,121,488 as a result of the gasoline tax. To date 980,000 licenses have been issued and it is doubtful if the 980,000 made this year will be sufficient with two months remaining.

Last year a total of 868,587 automobiles were registered, including 83, 809 commercial vehicles.

MADE 49,004 CARS WEEK OCTOBER 17-23

Ford Production Moves Up to Higher Peak

The Ford Motor Company's production record moved up to a higher peak than ever daring the last week. Figuers given out by the company Saturday afternoon, showed that for the week of October 17-23 the domestic production totnled 49,004 cnrs and tracks, a record for any six-day period.

The higgest day for the week, which reached a new record, was last Tuesday when 8,466 cars and trucks were produced.

If troubled with headache or in the need of glasses, consult Dr. J. Leahy, the Optometrist, at the Hotel Charlevoix, next Monday, November 9th. He will remain until Tuesday noon. Fitting glasses for children a specialty.—Adv. 44t1.

CORRESPONDENCE

NORWOOD

Cecil Richardson went to Grand Rapids, last week.

Mrs. Hull is visiting relatives in Charlevoix this week.

Miss Hipp, teacher of the Norwood school spent the week in East Jordan.

Mr. and Mrs. Serrill of East Port visited Mr. and Mrs. Morris Henry, Sunday.

Dick Kirby of Norwood is building a new house in Charlevoix, for Steven Geer.

Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Benrd of Petoskey, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. I. L. Dice.

Hugh Mayne, who has been at Block's market in Charlevoix, during the summer is home.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bugbee of Charlevoix, visited Mr. and Mrs. Plenny Genett Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Colon McKenzie and family of Charlevoix spent Sunday at the Muril Richardson home.

Mr. and Mrs. Empy of Norwood visited their son and family, Percy Empy of Central Lake, Sunday and Monday.

The little folks around Norwood were certainly missed at the social last Friday night, on account of chicken pox.

5¢ RUB-NO-MORE 5¢
A pinch or two
Is just enough,
To keep your hands
From getting rough
WASHING POWDER 5¢

THE AUTO SHOP
Phone 93 204 Mason St.

Bring in Your
BEANS
We will pay you the highest market price for them.
Phelps
Marketing Assn.
Phone 7004F24

JUST ARRIVED CAR OF PURINA COW CHOW
24 per cent Dairy Feed
Price $3.00 per hundred or $58.00 in ton lots.
Charlevoix-Co-Operative Assn.

Fine for catarrh when melted in a spoon or snuffed up the nose and vapors inhaled.

Head and Chest Colds Relieved In a New Way

A Salve which Releases Medicated Vapors when Applied Over Throat and Chest.

Inhaled as a vapor and, at the same time absorbed through the skin like a liniment, Vicks VapoRub reaches immediately inflamed, congested air passages.

This is the modern direct treatment for all cold troubles that is proving so popular in Canada and the States where over 17 million jars are now used yearly.

Splendid for sore throat, tonsilitis, bronchitis, croup, head and chest-colds, catarrh, asthma or hay fever.

Just rub Vicks over throat and chest and inhale the medicated vapors. It quickly loosens up a cold.

VICKS VAPORUB
OVER 21 MILLION JARS USED YEARLY

Mrs. Vern Boyer of Charlevoix spent the week end at the Hull home. Mrs. Boyer will be remembered as Dorothy Hull.

Charles Lord is home from Ann Arbor for three months, after which he will return to the Ann Arbor hospital for treatment.

Mrs. Wm. Gennett and daughter, Enod are home with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Charles Greely, while Mr. Genett is employed at the new golf links in Charlevoix.

Sam Alward received word that his brother-n-law, Albert Parsons, who recently moved to Grand Rapids, met with an accident while during carpenter work, which resulted in an operation, but is getting along well, but will be some time before he can be home from the hospital.

It is time to make arrangements for storage of your car battery for the winter. Call phone 60 and we will do the rest. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 44-tf.

PHELPS

Mr. Albert Balch is serving as a juror this week.

Miss Lula Mason of Petoskey is spending a week at the Mason home.

Mr. Gustafuson of Cadillac, was a caller in our burg Monday afternoon.

Miss Margaret Watson went to Central Lake, Friday afternoon returning Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Greenman of Flint arrived here Sunday morning for a weeks visit with relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Howell expect to leave this week for Detroit to spend the winter months. Mr. Howell has been employed as barber in the Lake View barber shop during the summer months.

The passing of Mr. Philo Mascho early Sunday Morning throws a shadow over the community. Mr. Mascho has lived here for a number of years and will be missed by friends and neighbors, and the sympathy of the community go to the bereaved wife and children, who are left to mourn him.

Mr. Harman Himbauch and daughter, Mrs. Earl Balch, entertained a party of friends, Thursday evening of last week in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Himbauch and Mr. and Mrs. Bowers, whose home is in Detroit, and who spent a week at the Himebauch home, visiting friends and hunting on the side. Those present to enjoy the evening were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Balch and son Kenneth, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stevens and children, Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Kloosster, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Balch, Miss Emily Himebauch, Mr. Harman Himebauch, Mrs. Henry Dixon and son Colon, of Detroit and the honor guests Mr. and Mrs. Bowers and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Himebauch.

Winter battery storage cost is small with us. We are equipped to take care of them. Bring your batteries to us for winter storage. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 44-tf.

BARNARD

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh King of Ironton, visited at William Burns on Sunday.

Everybody busy finishing up their fall work that was delayed by the snow storm.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cork visited at the Charles Pierce home in East Marion Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Townsend of St. Johns, were calling on old friends here a few days last week.

We are very sorry to learn of the serious illness of Edmund Shapton in Flint and hope to hear of his recovery soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Reed Gennett of Bellaire, visited at A. B. Clark's on Sunday and also attending church services in Barnard.

Miss Verna Block entertained her friends with a Hallowe'en party on Saturday evening. It goes without saying that the young folks had an enjoyable time.

Lloyd Fairbanks and Elliott Moore returned to their home in Lansing, Saturday, after spending two weeks at the home of their uncle, Howard Gornell.

Give that car battery the attention it should have. It will soon be time for winter storage. Call 60 and we will take care of it. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 44-tf.

EVELINE

Mrs. Kemp and Mrs. Orvis have returned from Detroit.

John Nasson and family have moved in their new house.

James Zitka expects to go to Detroit to work for the winter.

Martin Pedersen nad wife with six children drove from Rnwson, North Dakota to Charlevoix, and he is now working at the Loeb farm.

The snow came a little too early this yenr. A lot of potntoes are in the ground yet and lots nf apples on the trees. We hope for some nice wenther to get the work done.

Some of the neighbors together with Mr. and Mrs. Louis Petersŏn, Martin Pedersen and family from Dakotn, spent the Halloween evening nt the Valdemar Petersen home.

Mrs. Phoebe Schaffer enjoyed a visit from her grandson and daughter nnd little grent grand son, Floyd, when Mr. and Mrs. Lester Horwood and wife of Northville, drove through in their car and visited the Schaffer home one day last week.

CLARION

Mrs. J. W. Colden was in Topinabee on Saturday.

Mrs. Sarah Ecker returned last week from Charlevoix.

The girls Sunday school class met nt the home of Marion Wheeler on Wednesday evening.

Rev. Dr. Randsll, District Superintendent conducted church services here on Sunday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Moreau and children, who have been spending the summer in Clarion, left Saturday for Topinabee.

Mrs. Palmer, Mrs. Everts, Mrs. Milne, Mrs. Embury and Mrs. Padgett, were guests Tuesday afternoon at a luncheon given by Mrs. Colden in honor of Mrs. Joan Moreau.

CHURCH OF GOD

Preaching services each Sunday at 10:30 and 7:30.

Sunday school, 11:45.

Young people's meeting each Sunday at 6:30.

Prayer service, Wednesday evening at 7:30.

A revival meeting will begin November 22 at the chapel and continue until December 6. This meeting will be held by the Rev. J. C. Thomson of Alma, Michigan.

W. E. Parmelee builds storm windows.—Adv. 37-tf.

NERVES ALL UNSTRONG?

Charlevoix Folks Should Find the Cause and Correct It.

Are you nll worn out? Feel tired, nervous, half-sick? Do you have a constnnt backache; shnrp twinges nf pain, too with dizzy spells and annoying urinary disorder? Then there's cause for worry and more cause to give your weakened kidneys prompt help. Use Doan's Pills—n stimulant diruretic to the kidneys.

Charlevoix folks recommend Doan's for just such troubles.

Mrs. Mable Bassett, 110 Wood Street., Charlevoix, says: "I had bearing down pains in the small of my bnck and when I stooped to do my housework, knife-like twinges caught me across my kidneys. I felt worn out nnd gradually became nervous and all out of sorts. My kidneys didn't act regularly, either, but after using Doan's Pills, from Fessenden's Drug Store, I was cured."

Price 60c, at all dealers Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Pills—the same that Mrs. Bassett had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

You Needn't Add Bran to Quaker Oats

It already contains the "roughage" that makes laxatives seldom needed

YOU needn't add bran to Quick Quaker or Quaker Oats . . . the "bulk" that you need is already there. It ranks as a bulk food because Quaker milling leaves a large percentage of oats' gentle "roughage" stay.

Some people, we are told, don't know this important point about Quick Quaker and Quaker Oats. Start today. Note how well you will feel, how seldom laxatives will be needed.

All the richness of oats and milk . . . the protein, carbohydrates, minerals and vitamines . . . plus the "bulk" so necessary to your diet, are contained in this supreme breakfast dish . . . an almost perfectly balanced food.

Cooks fast now . . . as easy to prepare as plain toast. Get either kind at your grocer's.

2 Kinds { The Quaker Oats you have always known and Quick Quaker—cooks in 3 to 5 minutes

AT THE MOVIES

Triple Climax Features Zane Grey Photoplay

William K. Howard, whose epic production "The Thundering Herd" is still fresh in the minds of moviegoers, recently completed another Paramount western based on Zane Grey's powerful frontier story, "The Light of Western Stars," which makes its local debut at the Palnce Theatre next Saturday and Sunday.

Advance reports hail it as the film drama of perfect suspense, and those who have been privileged to preview the picture agree that the plot builds to what amounts to a triple climax in a way that is totally unexpected and extremely exciting.

The principal characters in this mighty production, which depicts in graphic and stirring fashion the last, desperate stand of banded outlawry on the remaining vestige of frontier America, include a notorious bandit chief, a daring, romantic cowboy and a beautiful Eastern girl, portrayed respectively by Noah Beery, Jack Holt and Billie Dove.

A Popular Cast in "Paths to Paradise"

Betty Compson and Raymond Griffith, the funny fellow with the silk hat, are co-featured in the principal roles of the Paramount picture, "Paths to Paradise," which comes to the Palace Theatre for a one day run Friday, November 6.

"Paths to Paradise," a riotiously funny crook comedy, was adapted for the screen by Keene Thompson from Paul Armstrong's play, "The Heart of a Thief." Clarence Badger, director of "New Lives for Old" and "Eve's Secret" and who was also associated over a period of years with Mack Sennett as a producer of laugh films, directed the production.

Christian Science Society

Sunday service, 10:45 a. m., subject. Adam and Fallen Man.

Sunday school, 12:00.

Wednesday evening service, 7:45 p. m.

Reading room open Tuesday and Saturday, 3:00 to 5:00 p. m.

The public is cordially invited to use our reading room and attend the

Courier Want Ads pay.

ANNOUNCEMENT

I have purchased the storage business and battery equipment of Pearl Brothers, and added it to my already well equipped battery service station, and will specialize in—

WINTER BATTERY STORAGE

Batteries and their proper upkeep is one of the most important duties of an automobile driver. They should not be neglected nor allowed to run down. You cannot expect your car to run with a poor or worn out battery.

Bring Your Batteries to Us

Not only for recharging, but for repairs and winter storage. We are equipped to give them the attention they require during the winter months. If they need overhauling, we will make them as good as new at a nominal expense. Call 60 when you are ready to store your battery.

Benj. Brown Auto Sales
Phone 60

Let The COURIER Sell IT for YOU

Something New for Charlevoix

SOLITE

(REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.)

A Perfect Gasoline

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) offers to the motorists of this city, something new — SOLITE, a light, fast, volatile gasoline that makes no sacrifice of power.

Solite must not be confused with so-called "high-test" gasoline. It is much better!

Solite does everything that the best so-called "high-test" gasoline will do — but in addition, it drives the piston the full length of the stroke under power.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has never been satisfied to bring out a light gasoline until it could overcome the loss of power feature so common to "high-test" gasolines.

It has overcome this factor by the famous Burton Cracking Process.

Solite is a cracked gasoline. There is no guesswork in its manufacture. It is made to meet exact specifications. It is dependable. We guarantee its uniformity.

Solite will give you a new thrill in motoring. Your motor will start on the instant — it will get away smoothly — it will accelerate rapidly and eagerly — and develop an amazing speed, for Solite is a "fast gas".

Solite has been manufactured for the man who demands a little quicker action and is willing to pay a little more to get it.

Solite sells for 3c per gallon more than the price of Red Crown — our famous economy fuel which produces the maximum of power at a minimum of cost.

SOLITE A PERFECT GASOLINE REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

Try SOLITE Today

At Any Standard Oil Service Station
Or at Any Garage or Filling Station
Displaying the Solite Sign

STANDARD OIL COMPANY

Charlevoix (Indiana) Michigan

4126B

"He Was a Slick Talker"

"For he talked me out of my savings, and he talked me into his worthless promotion. I had his guarantee that the company would buy back the stock at any time."

That is the experience of thousands of people—victims of the glib stock salesman.

Had they only known the facts—known that the promised big profits on a sure-thing promotion were only a dream, that dependable investment houses never "guarantee" to buy back their stock, they would never have lost their savings. But they didn't and they lost.

To those about to invest, the experience of others should serve as a warning.

Know the facts—know for a certainty whether or not an investment is safe and the income assured.

Consult your banker. He will assist you in making your investment.

Charlevoix State Savings Bank

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

W. S. Richardson, President.
A. D. Crimmins, Vice President.
Archie Livingston, Cashier.
G. W. Richardson, Asst. Cashier.

The CHARLEVOIX COURIER
Issued every Wednesday at
CHARLEVOIX - MICHIGAN

DuBois & Usher, Publishers
A. J. Usher, Editor and Business Mgr.
Courier Building Van Pelt Place

Entered at the Post Office in Charlevoix, Mich., as second class matter.

Member Michigan Press Ass'n.

Advertising Rates.

For advertising rates apply for schedule.

Notices of church or lodge socials and entertainments, where admission is charged, regular rates.

Obituary poetry, regular rates.

Card of Thanks, 25 cents.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

One copy, one year.....$2.00
One copy, six months.....$1.00
One copy, three months..... .60

BRINGING BACK THE DOLLAR'S BUYING POWER

The average income in the United States, according to the National Bureau of Economic Research, grew from $791 in 1909 to $1,537 in 1920. In real wages, however, this increase is far less apparent. When the purhasing power of the dollar is taken into consideration, the real average income increased only from $823 to $887 in that period. The purchasing power of the dollar of today is a little better than sixty cents as compared with its purchasing power of 100 cents in 1913.

In plain, simple language, the purchasing power of the dollar depends almost solely upon each individual's management of the money that comes into his possession. When money is spent extravagantly or wasted, commodity prices rise as the demand for commodities exceeds the supply. Again, extravagance has a tendency to inflate the currency by increasing the volume of money in circulation. Notes of the government, like the notes of a corporation, decrease in value as their volume is increased. If, on the other hand, people save a part of their income and turn this money back into the production of wealth, they automatically adjust the money situation and supply industry with the funds necessary for increased and more efficient production. Every dollar that is saved and invested in honest, well-managed enterprise is working doubly to bring the purchasing power of the dollar back to its old level.

It is time to make arrangements for storage of your car battery for the winter. Call phone 60 and we will do the rest. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 44-tf.

LEGION SPONSORS PATRIOTIC MEETING

Appropriate Exercises and Musical Program to Be Given

The demonstration of Nellie Verne Walker at the Palace Theatre last Monday evening was greatly enjoyed. It was one of the most entertaining as well as instructive numbers that Charlevoix has had the opportunity to witness.

Her lecture-demonstration was based on "A Sculptors' Studio," where she explained and illustrated the importance of sculptoring. She discussed the sculptor's art and methods of work, and with the aid of an assistant, reproduced a sculptor's studio upon the platform, exemplifying actual processes of modeling and chiseling. Her beautiful work and her pleasing manner of describing it made an intense appeal to those who heard her. Her lecture-demonstration will be long and pleasantly remembered.

Don't allow your battery to freeze. Call us for winter storage and save the expense of a new battery. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 44-tf.

Charlevoix Pickle Company selling fine Dill Pickles cheap. Get your winters supply. See Ad in this paper.—Adv. 44-t1.

VICTORY FLOUR

A brand new spring wheat flour which will be sold one week for

$1.25 per sack

$9.75 per bbl.

Satisfaction guaranteed or your money back. Can you ask for more.

MARTIN BLOCK

Opposite Post Office
Phone 12 or 142

HAD BEEN ILL FOR OVER EIGHT MONTHS

Funeral of Philo Mascho Held Tuesday Forenoon

Philo Mascho died Sunday morning at 3:00 a. m. at the home of his daughter, Mrs. H. L. Francisco, in south Marion, following an illness of over eight months, the immediate cause of his death being pernicious anemia.

Deceased was born in Eaton county, Michigan, February 17, 1852. His boyhood days were spent at the place of his birth. In 1880 he was united in marriage with Clara Hannah and to this union were born eight children. He leaves to survive him his wife and six children, Roy and Charles of Phelps, John of Westwood, California; Mrs. Alfred Smith of Charlevoix, Mrs. H. L. Francisco of Phelps and Mrs. Jack Jardine of Charlevoix, also two sisters, Mrs. H. A. King of Jackson and Mrs. Effie Higbee of Manton, Michigan.

Mr. Mascho was at all times a patient sufferer, always portraying the bright side of life to those around him until his death.

Funeral services were held from the Francisco home Tuesday forenoon at 10:30, conducted by Rev. Manley of Ellsworth. Interment at Central Lake.

Monday, November 9th, is the date when Dr. J. Leahy, the Optometrist, will be at the Hotel Charlevoix. He will remain until Tuesday noon.—Adv. 44t1.

W. E. Parmelee builds storm windows.—Adv. 37-tf.

LECTURE COURSE GREATLY ENJOYED

Nellie Vernon Walker Entertains Large Audience

A patriotic Armistice Day meeting under the auspices of the American Legion will be held at the Palace theatre next Wednesday morning, November 11, at ten o'clock.

Superintendent of Boyne City schools, W. L. Fuehrer, will be the principle speaker on the program. Mr. Fuehrer is a speaker of exceptional ability and is widely known throughout the state. His message will be of interest to all. A musical program with exercises appropriate to the occasion will be rendered and n general patriotic meeting will be enjoyed.

Mayor Bergeon has requested all business places to close on this date, so that all may be in attendance. The public is cordially invited and it is hoped that all will be present to celebrate this memorable occasion in the history of the country.

Don't allow your battery to freeze. Call us for winter storage and save the expense of n new battery. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 44-tf.

Put in your supply of Dill Pickles. See Ad.—Adv. 44-t1.

METHODIST CHURCH

"The Suburbs of the Spiritual Life." Sermon 10:30 a. m. next Sunday.

"The Sixth Law"—story sermon, 7:00 p. m. next Sunday. A fine interest is evident in the serial story sermon. "Robert Hardy's Seven Day." Last Sunday evening's sermon was introductory. The real purpose of the series will begin to develop next Sunday evening. What will a man do who knows he will live only seven days? Hear what one man did. The events of the first day will interest you next Sunday evening. You will get the back-ground of the story in a few words at the opening of the sermon. A welcome is extended to all to be found in the fine evening congregations at the church.

"Spiritual Sagacity" is the mid-week topic Thursday evening, November 12, at 7:30. Fifty at church is the attendance aim.

The ladies' aid will meet at the church parlors Tuesday, November 10th.

The pastor and people are becoming happily acquainted. All phases of church work are rallying loyally. A welcome is extended the public to attend all the services of the church and become familiar with the plans and purposes of the church.

A large company of splendid young people met at the church last Friday evening for a Hallowe'en frolic. Rev. and Mrs. Pollock and the Epworth League cabinet met with them and all enjoyed a wonderful evening. Games, refreshments and good fellowship made the evening a success. The parsonage family is very pleased to find so many excellent young people interested in the church and its ideals of life. Charlevoix may justly be proud of her youth.

The church reception extended by the members of the First Methodist Episcopal church to its new District Superintendent, Rev. J. O. Randall, D. D., of Traverse City, was very well attended in spite of the terrible storm that swept the city that evening. The new district superintendent held the first quarterly conference of the year, after which he gave a very interesting address in response to the words of welcome spoken in behalf of the church by Oluf Nordrum. Good fellowship and refreshments were features of the pleasant evening. Rev. Dr. Randall made a very favorable impression upon the local church. He succeeds Rev. F. L. Blewfield, who is now superintending the Grand Rapids district.

Give that car battery the attention it should have. It will soon be time for winter storage. Call 60 and we will take care of it. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 44-tf.

Ruta bagas for sale. Grown on new ground. See Shapton Brothers, Lou or Earl, or phone 7013-f-13.—44-t2.

Pure Honey, 10c per pound. Alfred VanDusen, Rt. 4, box 33.—Adv. 43-t2 pd.

W. E. Parmelee builds storm windows.—Adv. 37-tf.

Carter's Underwear

For Ladies

Warmth without weight. Comfortable, trim and close fitting.

Your next buy should be Carter's

$1.00 and up.

M. A. Levinson & Co.

SUITS and OVERCOATS

Latest Styles and Patterns

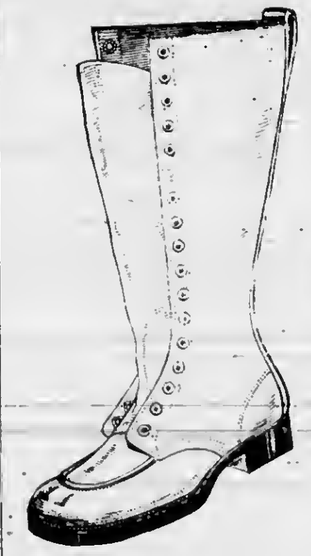
$20 to $40

We are closing out our stock of Ladies Slickers
Prices reduced from $8.50 to $5.00

Cleaning and Pressing

F. E. CARTIER, Tailor and Cleaner

PHONE 248



Don't send out for your men's and Boys' High Tops, when you can get just as good for the same money at

Campbell Boot Shop

No guess work about the size. We fit your feet, and you see the leather before you buy.

Our Studio Will be Open All Winter

The Priest Studio will be open all winter during the usual hours for the accommodation of people of Charlevoix and vicinity.

Get Your Sittings for Picture Gifts Early

Don't wait until just before Christmas, because there is a chance of being disappointed. J. P. Foley of Petoskey, will be here to assist in the work. We guarantee you the very best of work. Call or phone for appointments.

PRIEST'S STUDIO

Phone 135

During this seasonable spell of weather--let us fill our basement with quality Coal.

Remember we have coal for every porpose.

Range Coal—as clean as wood.
Furnace Coal—best quality.
Heater Coal—that heats.

Argo Milling Co.

FLOUR--FEED--FUEL

THE OLDEST BANK IN CHARLEVOIX COUNTY
FORTY-FIRST YEAR IN BUSINESS

1884 1925

Postage Stamps Are Cheaper--- than shoe leather or gasoline—and infinitely cheaper than time, when you use them in mailing your checks in paying bills.

To "pay by cheek" is not only safe, simple and convenient—but your caneelled cheeks are valid receipts for every bill they pay.

If you haven't a Cheeking Account at this strong, friendly bank now, we invite you to come in and open one today.

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY BANK
CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN
Nicholls, Buttars & Bridge, Bankers
THE BANK ON THE CORNER

LOCAL NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

Get the Habit—Read the Courier

A. J. Stelter made a business trip to Petoskey on Tuesday of this week.

Nels Lafreniere came over from St. James, Monday, on a business trip.

Henry Jacobs is having an outside chimney built at his home on Clinton street.

Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Beard of Petoskey, were callers in the city last Sunday.

Pete LaLonde and family of East Jordan, were callers in this city last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bugbee of this city were Norwood visitors on Sunday last.

E. S. Stacks of Boyne Falls, wns in the city on Monday of this week on business.

Robert Krulik of Grand Rapids, visited at his home here over last week end.

Ed. Bogart ond family of East Jordan, were Charlevoix visitors on Sunday last.

Will Bogart left on Thursday of last week for Cincinnati, Ohio, on a business trip.

W. G. Parker was a businces caller in Petoskey on Tuesday afternoon of this week.

Fred Sendenberg and son from St. James, were visitors in the city on Monday last.

Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Jeffrey and son, Theo, were callers in Petoskey on Sundny last.

Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Moran left on Tuesday of this week for Detroit on a business trip.

Charles Brabant of East Jordnn, wns a Charlevoix visitor Tuesday morning of this week.

Ed. Boyle of Chicago, was in the city Tuesday morning on his way to his home nt St. James.

John Quinlin and wife of St. James, were business visitors in the city the first of the week.

Guy Eccleston and family from Harbor Springs, were in the city last Sunday, visiting friends.

Mrs. Lee Smith returned Tuesday of this week from a two week's visit among friends in Ann Arbor.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Kowalke at the Charlevoix hospital, Monday, November 2nd, a boy.

Lloyd Auld, first mate on the government supply ship Sumac, was visiting friends in the city on Sunday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Heise returned to this city lost week from their trip in the southern part of the state.

Mrs. Mable Nicholls, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Wood, have gone to Fort Myers, Florida, for the winter.

Peter Green of Chicago, was in the city Tuesday morning on his way to St. James to visit his mother and brothers.

Mrs. G. W. Fox of Benton Harbor, is here visiting her daughter, Mrs. William O'Neill. She expects to stay for the winter.

The government supply ship, Sumac, is making this harbor its headquarters while picking up light buoys in this vicinity.

D. J. Eckinger left Monday morning for Beaver Island, where he will have charge of the fishing interests of Robbins, Inc.

Mrs. Vern Boyer, formerly Miss Ruby Hull, is visiting friends and relatives in Charlevoix and Norwood for a short time.

Hugh Mayne, who has been employed at Martin Block's market the past summer, has returned to his home near Norwood.

Lou M. Moon of Sturgis, Michigan, was in the city on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, called here by the death of his father.

Oluf Nordrum and Carl Barnhart of Booth Fisheries company of this city, made a business trip to Cheboygan Tuesday morning.

William Wallace and wife, left Tuesdny morning, for Sebewaing, Michigan, where they will visit friends for a short time.

Mrs. Josephine Madill returned to her home last week from the Charlevoix hospital, where she had been receiving medical treatment.

Ironton Gleaners will meet at their hall on the evening of November 5th for the election of officers. A pot-luck supper will be served.

Don't forget the Armistice Day program at the Palace theatre next Wednesday morning, November 11, at 10:00 o'clock. Be there!

Miss Bertha Larsen, superintendent of the Charlevoix hospital, visited with her parents in East Jordan on Wednesday of this week.

E. N. Clink, member of the firm of Clink and Williams, East Jordan attorneys, was in the city Monday on business at the court house.

Albon Smith of the Sentinel printing force, left Tuesday for St. James, where he will spend a week's vacation among relatives and friends.

Lawrence Ditlefsen, a member of the crew on the government supply ship, Sumac, spent Sunday visiting at the Oluf Nordrum home in this city.

Germain Atebison, small daugbter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Atebison of this city, spent last week end at the home of Frank Metcalf and family in Central Lake.

The lake trout fishing season on the outer reefs opened Tuesdny afternoon of this week and unrestricted fishing will probably begin Wednesday or Thursday.

News was received here this morning of the death of Mrs. W. J. Welkel at her home on south Bridge St. A detailed report will be contained in next week's issue.

H. W. Usher left for East Jordan, Saturday night, on his way home to Grand Rapids, after spending the past week at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Usher.

Mrs. Charles Jefferies returned last Saturday from Chardon, Ohio, where she has been spending the past three weeks at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Roy France.

N. R. Washburn returned Saturday afternoon from Chicago, having accompanied his mother that far on her trip to Anheim, California, where she will spend the winter months.

Mr. and Mrs. George Weaver returned Sunday from n week's vocation spent in Farmington and Grand Rapids, where they visited at the homes of their son and daughters.

All members of the Rebekah Lodge are requested to be present at the next regular meeting, Tuesday evening, November 10. Nominations of officers followed by a pot luck supper.

Mrs. Mary Berdan and Mrs. Martha Cnmpbell left last Friday for Detroit, where they will spend the winter months at the home of their daughter and sister, Mrs. Arthur Zipp.

Roy Ranger returned last Friday from Grove City, Pennsylvania, and Bay City, Michigan, where he inspected the engines and construction work for Logan Thomson's new yacht.

Lee Smith, Harley Ochs and H. A. Crnig of this city, attended the Michigan-Navy football game at Ann Arbor last Saturday. They reported a game well worth going the distance to see.

Mrs. Ed. Shapton and Mrs. George Sands were called to Flint on Monday of this week by the serious illness of their husband and father, Ed. Shapton, who is very low with pneumonia.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Priest left on Tuesday of this week for Detroit, where they will visit for a short time at the home of their son, Dnre Burke, before going on to St. Petersburg, Florida, for the winter.

Word has been received here to the effect that Floyd Jeffrey, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Jeffrey of this city, has joined the U. S. Navy and is now stationed at the Great Lakes naval station near Chicago.

The Literary and Sewing Club of the Methodist church will meet at the home of Mrs. Arthur Edwards on Thursday afternoon, November 5. Those wishing to ride meet at Brown's Garage at 2:15 p. m.

The November term of circuit court opened on Monday of this week. Very few cases hnve been tried to date and a detailed report of court happenings will be published in next week's issue of the Courier.

The boys senior class of the Congregational Sundny school, also Dr. Mnttson, were entertained with a six o'clock dinner at the home of their teacher, Mrs. Cora Kelderhouse, last Wednesday evening. All reported a fine time.

A party consisting of Mr. George Holmes, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Horn, Frank Horn and Harvey Christensen are enjoying n two weeks hunting trip nt the home of Mrs. James Adams and her daughter, Edith. They are also visiting other relatives at the homes of Robert Gregory at Barnard and Edgar Smith of this city.

Mr. nnd Mrs. Emery Gimble returned Saturdny from a three week's visit at Big Rapids, Chicago, Detroit and Lansing. They also visited Mr. Gimble's brother, who is seriously ill, at Goshen, Ind. They were accompanied home by their son, Vern, who hos been spending a week at Big Rapids and Mra. Gimble's sister, Mrs. Arntsen, who will spend about three weeks here.

E. L. Baxter and a Mr. Haynes from Traverse City, are here this week, installing the new oil heating system in the Lewis block. The oil system is controlled automntically according to the variation in the heat, and the outcome of the venture is being watched with great interest by many local concerns. If the system is successful another year may see many of them in operation in the city.

The Literary and Sewing Club of the M. E. Church will hold a baked goods sale at the Charlevoix Hdw. Co.'s store, Saturday, November 7. —Adv. 44t1.

Saturday Specials

Last week's Saturday specials attracted many customers who desired to make a small saving. This week's specials are equally as good and will be snapped up by eager purchasers. We have plenty for all.

KETCHUP, 8 1-2 ounce bottle, Saturday for.....
10c

SOAP CHIPS, 20c pkg. Saturday for.....
10c

Milton Block

WIRING SYSTEM
—for lifetime service
WOOD BROTHERS
—Adv. 43tf.

FISHING SEASON STARTED TUESDAY

(Continued from Page One)

ing until the 20th of this month and lasting until the 15th of December. Nets of five inch mesh are used and the whitefish slip through them easily.

About eight boats will operate out of Charlevoix this fall for Booth Fisheries company, not counting boats from Beaver Island and other fishing centers which will bring the total to nbout thirty craft. Their local fleet include George Abbot of Northport, J. W. and G. H. Cornell from Wisconsin, John Nordrum, Joe Smith and Clarence Bartlett, O'Neill and Bissell. Chas. Cross and Pat Holland, Heise nnd Duba, and Fred Bedwin, all of Charlevoix.

Perry Smith, local manager of Robbins, Inc., reports the following boats fishing for them out of Charlevoix, with a number of other craft from Beaver Island: Chas. Henrickson, Sr., Chas. Henderickson, Jr., John Cross, Herold G. McCann, Frank Schapler and C. E. Batchelor of Big Rock Point, with a probability that other boats will be added to the fleet of both companys.

A better than average season is looked forward to by local fishermen and packing houses. The total catch of a normal fall amounts to around 600,000 pounds and, with nnother stiff blow to drive the spawning trout up onto the reefs nnd quiet weather so the boats cnn get out, a bumper year is anticipated.

The Literary and Sewing Club of the M. E. church will hold their annual Christmas bazaar, Saturday, December 5. Watch for further announcements.—44-t2.

COURIER BARGAIN COLUMN.

Courier Want Advs. are One Cent per word per insertion. Minimum charge is 20 cants per insertion, for anything under 20 words. All Want Advs. are strictly cash in advance except to those who hava ledger accounts. Please remember thie when sending in your copy.

FOR SALE—MISCELLANEOUS

FOR SALE — Domestic kitchen rnnge. Cheap if token at once. Inquire at 108 W. Upright Ave.—44-t1 pd.

FOR SALE—Ruta bagas, grown on new ground. See Shapton Brothers, Lou and Earl, or phone 7013-f-1-3.—44t2.

FOR SALE—Four-roll Deering corn husker on trucks. In good running order. Geo. S. Parsons, Charlevoix, R. F. D. 4.—43-t2.

FOR SALE — Building material. Save 50 per cent in building. Phone W. S. Shaw Co., No. 75, Boyne City, for prices on lumber (boards and scantling,) steel beams, brick, pipe, pipe fittings nnd roofing.—40t10.

FOR SALE—LIVE STOCK

FOR SALE—Matured, registered Guernsey bull. Have pedigree. Herman DeYounge, Ellsworth, Michigan. 44-t2pd

FOR SALE—purebred Holstein bull, 2 years old, weight 1400, price $60. Phone 7012-f22, William Skye, Ironton, Mich.—44-t4-pd.

FOR SALE—CITY PROPERTY

FOR SALE—seven-room house, electric lights and furnace, located on Grant and Lincoln streets. Includes two lots 50x100. Inquire of Martin Staley at White Star restaurant.—44-t1 pd.

FOR SALE—Twenty-room house, modernly equipped with hot and cold water in rooms, baths, etc. This is a splendid business opportunity for anyone desiring to get into the board and room business in the best resort town in northern Michigan. House is beautifully located on a series of natural terraces overlooking Charlevoix harbor and has had a high-class patronage of resort people. Owner has other interests to look nfter. This is a first-class, money-making proposition and worth looking into. Address all inquires to this paper.—42-t4.

WANTED—MISCELLANEOUS

CASH for Dental Gold, Platinum, Silver, Diamonds, magneto points, false teetb, jewelry, and valuables. Mail today. Cash by return mail. Hoke S. & R., Otsego, Mich.—12-tf.

MISCELLANEOUS

FOR INFORMATION regarding Florida land and investments, write Ernest E. Galloway, 845 N. W. 2nd St., Miami, Florida, Licensed Broker.—36-tf.

WANTED — Information regarding one Charles M. Campbell, who deserted his wife on or about the 10th of September. Campbell was a former resident on the Elmira road, between East Jordan and Elmira. Has light complexion, light blue eyes, is slightly deaf, has cut on lip under light gray mustache, lump on forehead about the size of a walnut. Information concerning him will be gladly received by Mrs. Chas. M. Campbell, R. R. 3 Blenheim, Ontario, Canada.—44t1 pd.

Friday and Saturday Specials
NOVEMBER 6th and 7th

Ladies' Cotton Fleeced Union Suits, high neck, long sleeves, ankle length, sizes 42 and 44, $1.50 to $2.50 values, Friday and Saturday special.....$1.00
Ladies' Ribbed Vests, long sleeves, high neck, sizes 36 to 48, $1.00 to $1.35 values.....85c
Ladies' Ribbed Pants, ankle length, sizes 38 to 46, $1.00 to $1.35 values.....85c
Ladies' Light Weight Ribbed Pants, assorted sizes, 75c values, special.....49c
Ladies' Light Weight Vests, ribbed, assorted sizes, 75e values, speeial.....49c

10 Days Sale on Groceries

Good 4-sewed Brooms for.....39c
Fancy bulk 45c Coffee, 3 lbs. for.....$1.25
Fancy Rio Coffee, bulk 35e lb., 3 lbs. for.....$1.00
3 lbs. good Jap Tea for.....$1.35
5 cans of 25c Pineapple for.....$1.00
3 large eans of Pineapple for.....$1.00
24 1-2 lbs. Producer Flour, $1.25; by the barrel....$9.75
24 1-2 lbs. Sweet Loaf Flour $1.30; barrel.....$10.00
Seal of Minnesota Flour, barrel.....$9.35

9 bars of P. & G. Soap.....
2 bars Guests Ivory Soap .....
1 bar Medium Ivory Soap .....
1 pkg. Ivory Soap Flakes.....
1 pkg. Chipso.....
1 large Galvanized Pail.....
98c

GROCERIES IN QUANTITY AT LOW PRICES

A. E. MASON

NEW PALACE THEATRE
ATTRACTIONS FOR THE COMING WEEK

Friday, November 6th

Betty Compson and Raymond Griffith, the funny fellow in the silk hat are co-featured in the prineipal roles of "Paths to Paradise." There is hair-trigger excitement and big laughs galore. Cleverness takes the place of hokum in this pieture of two "erooks" who work in and out of clever situations. Here's high hat Griffith stepping on the laughing gas! It's a mad joy ride a thousand smiles long. We will also entertain you with a good comedy.

Saturday and Sunday, November 7th and 8th

Another of Paramount's big Zane Grey production, and easily the best of the series, "Light of the Western Stars." A tale of hair-raising adventure and hairbreadth escapes; of border clashes, broncho busting, straight shooting—and a dash of love. Also two reels of the fastest kind of fun. Lige Conley in "Fast and Furious," a side-splitting Mermaid comedy.

Tuesday and Wednesday, November 10th and 11th

Percy Marmount in "The Streets of Forgotten Men." Where is it, who lives on it, and have you ever walked The Streets of Forgotten Men? The story is a romance of the underworld—the strange story of a bowery Cinderella and a beggar who lost himself for love. Come see what the street of forgotten men really is. Also an interesting News reel.

GET YOUR SUPPLY OF DILL PICKLES NOW

We are now offering a limited supply of choice cured Dill Pickles at very tempting prices. These are held out of our regular assortments due to being slightly curved, but they are 100 per cent good, and are mostly small sizes, from 3 inches up.

While the Supply Last

$1.75 per five gallons

Call at our assorting room in the Co-Op. association's building on Ferry Avenue, or Telephone 25-J. (We do not deliver or handle charge-accounts at this low priee). We also have good earthenware, air-tight containers. Ask us about them.

You'll be pleased to have 5 gallons of these fine dills in your cellar. Get them now so you'll have them for Thanksgiving, for the Holidays and through the winter.

Charlevoix Pickle and Produce Co.

NEIGHBORS

BY ROBERT STEAD

AUTHOR OF "THE COW PUNCHER," "THE HOMESTEADERS."

WNU SERVICE

COPYRIGHT BY ROBERT STEAD

CHAPTER IX—Continued

It was merely a cave dug out of the side of the gully. The front was roughly built up with stones and sods, and a crude door, made of pieces of packing boxes, afforded admittance. The only light was from an opening in the door, which could be closed when the weather was too severe.

Sneezit went first and addressed some words in Russian into the gloom. We followed, encountering in the door the fumes of the place's bad ventilation. It was some time before our eyes became accustomed to the darkness, but presently we discerned a woman stooping, indicating a long bench which had been set for us. Across the cave was a drove of children, their eyes peering and shining like those of wild animals. Indeed it seemed that eyes were the most noticeable thing in that very humble little home. Presumably there were mouths as well; no doubt Sneezit and his wife had reason to know that there were mouths as well as eyes.

As soon after our return from harvesting as our duties permitted it we paid another visit to Mrs. Alton. Sandy saw us afar off and swept down upon us like a tornado. Apparently he recognized us at the first sight, or the first sniff, whichever was his source of information, for there was no question this time about our welcome. ... barking and tail-wagging greeted us all the reminder of the way to the little box that Mrs. Alton called home.

Sandy Saw Us Afar Off and Swept Down Upon Us Like a Tornado.

The widow had had time to dress since we have in view—that is one of the advantages of prairie life not set out in the immigration booklets—and it was a dainty and spick-and-span Mrs. Alton that greeted us when our wagon lumbered up to her door.

"I said, 'It's our friends from Fourteen and Twenty-two'—you see how I am picking up your prairie way of numbering your farms instead of naming them—I said, 'It's our friends from Fourteen and Twenty-two' as soon as I heard Sandy's first bark. That was before you were in sight, so far as my poor eyes could see. But Jerry, who was up in the wagon playing teamster, cried, 'I see dem. Mulder; oxes and Mith Lane.' He's crazy about Miss Lane."

"Jerry is a young man of discrimination," I said, scoring for once. But my wit was lost in the wild and panting hug which Jean was bestowing upon my rival.

WRIGLEY'S

AFTER EVERY MEAL

affords benefit as well as pleasure.

Healthful exercise for the teeth and a spur to digestion. A long-lasting refreshment, soothing to nerves and stomach.

The Great American Sweetmeat, untouched by hands, full of flavor.

SEALED TIGHT KEPT RIGHT

"So he's Jerry now," said Jean, releasing her embrace enough for speech. "That sounds like getting down to earth. Ever so much more chummy than Gerald."

"Do you think so?" Mrs. Alton queried. "And I vowed that, whatever came, I never would call him Jerry. Too reminiscent of Jeremiah, and lamentations, and all that sort of thing that I wanted to get away from." Mrs. Alton stopped short as though she had said more than she intended then brightly took up the thread again. "I vowed I would leave my lamentations behind" she continued. "I take it that this is a country where there is room for everything but regrets."

It was evident that Mrs. Alton's bereavement was filling a good part of her mind, so Jean deftly switched the conversation back to the boy, and presently was conducting a foot-race to the chicken shed with herself, Jerry and Sandy as the competitors. Sandy won.

We had tea, of course, and after Jerry had gone to bed and Sandy had lain down with his chops on the door between his paws and his tail thumping the boards occasionally in appreciation Jack got out our much-worn deck of cards and we initiated Mrs. Alton into the mysteries of pedro. With a beginner's luck she and Jack were much too successful for Jean and me, and when it was time for us to go we insisted that she must visit Fourteen some night soon and give us a chance to return the drubbing.

"I should so like to, but I can't leave Jerry," Mrs. Alton explained.

"But Jerry must come, too," we countered. "Jerry and Sandy, and, if necessary, the cow and the chickens. Now you simply must, or some night we will come over and kidnap you by force." But Mrs. Alton would give us no definite answer.

There was no such hesitation at Jake's. Jake met us in the yard, hatless, coatless, vestless, although the temperature was flirting with the freezing point.

"Welcome!" he exclaimed. "I suppose you've come to condole with me in my affliction?"

"What affliction?" we inquired, half misled by Jake's manner, for he was an expert in simulation.

"She's inside an' in possession.

It Gave Me a Little Orthodox Shiver to Think What My Strict Presbyterian Parents Would Have Said to Jean Picking So Perverted an Instrument as a Banjo on Sunday Afternoon.

It's fort'nate fer me this country runs so much to outside, fer that's all I've any claim on."

But by this time Jake's wife appeared in the door. "Come on in, girls," she cried, "and never mind that blatherskite. He goes around half-dressed, keeping himself warm thinking up nonsense. I tell him some day he'll freeze his hair, and that's his finish, for I won't stay married to a bald man, whatever happens."

"Tut tut," returned her spouse. "Where Bella Donna is put, she stays. That's her strong point."

It was an afternoon of much badinage we spent at Jake's, but under the surface there were evidences that our former land guide regarded his wife with a sort of awe which he tried to obscure from public view by a smoke screen of raillery. Bella, it was apparent, was a woman of character, and although Jake could scarcely be described as plastic in her hands, his resisting was only the harder on him on that account. He was in the mills of the gods, and they proposed to make a job of it.

"I don't know whether she'll make me a good wife or not," he confided in me, "but I reckon she's set on makin' me a good husband."

But Bella's house was clean, and Bella's table was well set, as pioneer tables go, and Bella was a living concentration of energy such as Jake needed to spur him into purposeful activity. It was Jake's weakness that he would drop a job any day to perpetrate a joke.

"He thinks he's a joker," said Bella, acidly, anent this characteristic of her husband, "whereas he's only a joke. There's a big difference."

We left that night with assurances from Jake and Bella that they would visit us twice a week all winter—a promise which they almost kept.

But not all our visiting was with our new neighbors. Most of it, as you may suppose, was back and forth between Fourteen and Twenty-two. Spoof we counted on to make a fifth spoke in our circle every Sunday, and the banjo lessons, neglected during our absence, were now taken up in earnest. It gave me a little orthodox shiver to think what my strict Presbyterian parents would have said to Jean picking so perverted an instrument as a banjo on a Sunday afternoon, and blending her voice with Spoof's in "The Road to Mandalay." But I was little happier when they abandoned the secular for such old airs as "Abide With Me" and "Blest Be the Tie That Binds."

Toward the end of the month we had our first snowfall. Old Sol that morning had a mimic sun on either side, and there was a frosty glitter in the air in which our neighbors' shanties gradually faded out of sight as though hidden behind a veil of crystal tapestry. By noon a gray pall shrouded the sky and the snow began to shake down as gently as feathers fluttering from the bosom of some mammoth bird which had taken the world to be her nest and in spring would hatch again the ancient miracle of life. Marjorie and I stood in our door and watched the big flakes descending, slowly, silently, resistlessly, settling on wagon and hay rack and every blade of grass. Across the gully, as through a slowly falling curtain of ivory lace, we saw the vague forms of Jack and Jean watching them, too. By mid-afternoon the ground was white.

Next morning we looked upon a new world. The snow had ceased falling, the sky was clear and bright, and the stars were still visible at our rising hour. Then up came the sun, splashing the heavens amber and orange and blood red, and suddenly setting a million tons of diamonds ablaze with his brilliance.

After the snow came we seemed to cling to each other's company even more than before. It's a solemn thing to be alone in a world of snow. Perhaps its coldness, its stark whiteness, its vast silence suggests that which makes the heart reach out for some warm pulse of friendship. Perhaps its peace and beauty stir something in our nature that insists on being shared.

CHAPTER X

Days were by; sometimes days of unbroken sunshine; sometimes days of gently sifted whiteness fluttering out of a gray sky. In a week all the prairie was blanketed deep with snow. Then came the great night.

At this time of the year, in this latitude, it is dark by five in the afternoon, particularly if the sky happen to be overcast. On the day in question Jack and I had done up our few chores about the stable, carried in a supply of water and firewood, and returned to our shacks for supper. Marjorie, brisk, efficient housewife that she was, had the table set when I came in. Our meals were perforce simple, and when we had finished and the few dishes were cleared away I looked at my watch. It was barely six o'clock.

"This is going to be another of our long, long evenings," Marjorie remarked, with what seemed like a suggestion of complaining. "Suppose you ask Jack and Jean to come over; I don't feel like going out in the snow."

"Jean may not feel like going out, either," I retorted. "I guess she's as much like sugar as you are," I added, having in my mind some reference to an adage about sugar melting.

"I fancy you think she's a good deal more like sugar than I am, brother o' mine," Marjorie returned. "Well, run along and find out."

Later, when I recalled that remark, I was struck by its significance, but at the moment I had no suspicion that Jack and Marjorie were working a scheme on me. I have always held that Jean was innocent of any part in it.

So urged, I pulled on my pea-jacket and overshoes and fur cap and started out on the hundred-yard jaunt from our shack to the one across the gully.

I made the trip without difficulty and entered without knocking as was our custom in our numerous visits back and forth. Jean looked up from the table where she sat reading.

"Alone, Frank?" she said, when I had closed the door behind me.

"Yes; where's Jack? I came to see—"

"Jack left for Fourteen some time ago. He was going to ask you and Marjorie to come over. You must have passed him."

"That's rather funny. That's what I came for, if you reverse it. Strange I didn't see him on the way."

"He may have looked in at the stable again, to make sure that the stock are all right," Jean suggested. "He said it looked like rough weather."

(Continued next week)

ESSEX "6"

Built Under Famous Super-Six Patents

The Coach

New Low Price

$765

Freight and Tax Extra

And for those who desire, the Essex Coach may be purchased for a low first payment. The remaining payments conveniently arranged.

H. R. FOWLER, Charlevoix

POME OF PASHUN

A girl I like
Is Mildred Gain
Her favorite song is
"Kiss Me Again."

Going over Niagara Falls in a barrel is old stuff. What we wanna see is some folks walk across the Atlantic ocean on stilts.

LEGAL NOTICES

Order for Publication

State of Michigan, the Probate Court for the county of Charlevoix.

At a session of said court, held at the probate office in the city of Charlevoix, in said county, on the 28th day of October, A. D. 1925.

Present: Hon. Servetus A. Correll, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Herbert Hulme, deceased.

Charles Arnold, having filed in said court his final administration account, and his petition praying for the allowance thereof and for the assignment and distribution of the residue of said estate.

It is ordered, that the 25th day of November, A. D. 1925, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, be and is hereby appointed for examining and allowing said account and hearing said petition;

It is further ordered, that public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix Courier a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Servetus A. Correll,
Judge of Probate.

A true copy. Adv. 44-t3pd.

Order for Publication

State of Michigan, the Probate Court for the county of Charlevoix.

At a session of said court, held at the probate office in the city of Charlevoix, in said county, on the 3rd day of November, A. D. 1925.

Present: Hon. Servetus A. Correll, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Leslie E. Maves and Helen C. Maves, minors.

The Michigan Trust Company, having filed in said court its final account as to the estate of Leslie E. Maves, as guardian of said estate, and its petition praying for the allowance thereof, and for the allowance of the several annual accounts filed herein,

It is ordered, that the 25th day of November, A. D. 1925, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said Probate office, be and is hereby appointed for examining and allowing said account;

It is further ordered, that public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix Courier, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Servetus A. Correll,
Judge of Probate.

A true copy. Adv. 44-t3.

WM. J. BOGART
CONTRACTOR and BUILDER
No Job Too Large
No Job Too Small.
Phone 139 Charlevoix, Mich.

FROM OFFICE BOY TO GENERAL MGR.

Salary Increase Comes With Promotion

Chicago, Sept. 29—After a careful survey of the entire labor situation extending from office boy to president, indications are that positions showing increases in salaries require experienced help.

Consulting the president of one of our largest industries, the writer inquired regarding the rapid success of a certain young man who had become general manger and who a few years ago was but office boy; his answer was, Brown started as office boy, the lowest salaried position in our office, he was ambitious and managed to purchase a typewriter on small monthly payments and after three weeks of practice at home he was promoted to bill clerk, which position gave him knowledge of the selling price of all merchandise. His next advance was that of typist, which taught him the numerous forms of letter-writing and enabled him to hold a stenographic position, giving him complete knowledge of letter-writing. He was then made secretary, bringing him into contact with all business details and qualified him for the general manager's office at ten thousand per year.

The same opportunity awaits every young man and woman. Education or age have nothing to do with operating so simple a machine as the typewriter. We are informed that a great piece of benevolent work is being carried on by a large Chicago mail order house in furnishing typewriters to people worthy of credit, by selling on small monthly installments, so low as to average about eight cents per day and actually teaching their customers how to use and operate any typewriter in about three week's time. You can get other information by writing the International Typewritar Exchange, 184 W. Lake Street, Chicago, Illinois.

$ BIG OPPORTUNITY $
For Extra Xmas Money

CASH PRIZE LETTER CONTEST

Look for the Grade-mark on end of every board or piece. Three suitable grades for structural use.

For the 30 Best Letters on the value of Northern Hemlock in building construction and the many advantages from using lumber of known quality, plainly identified by the Grade-mark of the expert grader at the mill, we are offering a total of

30 CASH PRIZES

The awards to be paid include—
1st Prize (Senior) . $100 Cash
1st Prize (Junior) . $100 Cash
2nd Prize (Senior) . $ 50 Cash
2nd Prize (Junior) . $ 50 Cash and there are 26 others

Every Man, Woman, Boy or Girl over 14 years is invited to enter this big educational competition. Read our ads for prize winning suggestions and facts of practical value.

GET POSTED TODAY!

(Contest closes December 1st, 1925)

For full particulars, write

Grade-marked HEMLOCK is more than "just lumber"

Native Hemlock has long been favorably known for immunity to dry-rot, an important factor in the life of your building. Free of resin, it takes and holds paints and stains perfectly. Add to this the extra strength factor in Extra Standard Size Hemlock Joists and Studding and you'll appreciate the many advantages and investment value in Northern Hemlock buildings.

YES, IT PAYS TO USE GOOD LUMBER OF KNOWN QUALITY. SAVE MONEY! USE THE GRADE THAT FITS THE JOB. BUY BY THE GRADE-MARK.

ASK YOUR LUMBER DEALER.

THE NORTHERN HEMLOCK MANUFACTURERS
of Michigan and Wisconsin
327 F. R. A. BUILDING, OSHKOSH, WISCONSIN

Use Northern Hemlock for Strength & Stability

R. B. ARMSTRONG
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Special Attention to Diseases of Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat
Priest Bldg. Phone 255

DR. F. F. McMILLAN
Physician and Surgeon
Office above Postoffice
Phone 17
Charlevoix :: Michigan

A. L. FITCH
ATTORNEY AT LAW
Office in Court House
Phone 48
Charlevoix :: Michigan

D. T. McHUGH
General Contractor
Phone 214
CHARLEVOIX MICHIGAN

VIRGINIA RYALL BROWN, D. C.
PALMER CHIROPRACTOR
PHONES:
Office 347 Residence 39
Postoffice Building

Ellsworth Section

Mrs. Joe Delmonte was called suddnly to Muskegon last Thursday.

A goodly number of the farm boys and girls are helping dig potatoes this week.

Mr. and Mrs. I. Springstead and family spent Sunday with a sister, Mrs. Floyd Boice.

Rev. E. Joppa will start revival meetings at the Phelps Holiness church next Sundsy.

Miss Cora Vanderlleide, who is going to school here, attended the funersl of her aunt, Mrs. VanHattan, at Atwood, Tuesday.

A large crowd attended the Holiness church last Sunday night to hesr Mrs. E. Brown, matron of Rest Cottage at Grnnd Rapids, spesk.

The Senior high school were entertained at a Hallowe'en party at the Conklin home Saturday evening. All the guests came dressed for a hard times psrty. The costumes ranged from "please help the blind," to the Dutch pensant. Fortunes were told and gsmes played, after which refreshments were served. The party ended by singing various songs.

The Junior high school was entertained at a Hsllowe'en party at the Sinclsir residence Saturday evening. The house was decorated with Hallowe'en decorations, including skeletons, witches and ghosts. Contests were first on the progrsm. Prizes were given for tbe best eostumes, etc. Games were next in order, after which a bountiful lunch was served at 11 o'clock.

Dr. J. Leahy, the Optometrist, will be at Charlevoix, Monday, November 9th, and at Central Lake at the We-Go-Ta Hotel, Tuesday afternoon, wbere he will remain until Wednesday afternoon.—Adv. 44t1.

MILES DISTRICT

Tbis must be Indian summer.

Mrs. Nary Clark visited at the A. Miles home, Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Huston returned to their home in Detroit, Sunday.

Mrs. Will Walker of East Jordan, called on Mrs. A. Miles, Friday afternoon.

Herbert Evans is home after making a trip on a boat to Erie, Pennsylvinan.

Willett Simmerman of Muskegon called Sunday at the Dett Evans and Fred Bancroft homes.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Medema and children motored to Muskegon, Saturday for a visit with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Will LaLonde of Traverse City were Sunday visitors at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Supley LaLonde.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Strong of East Jordan and Mr. and Mrs. A. Miles were Sunday dinner guests of Mrs. Mary Tillotson, west of Ellsworth.

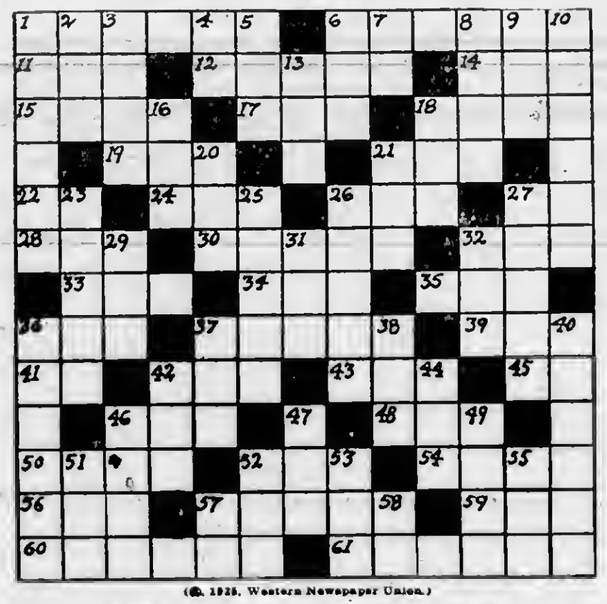
Mr. and Mrs. Alfred C. Raymond, accompanied by his brother Ernest, left Monday for St. Petersburg, Florida. They expect to stop over at Traverse City one night, also at Muskegon.

Lynn Evans motored up from Muskegon and was nn over Sundsy guest of his sister, Mrs. Fred Bancroft. Ile returned Monday sccompnnied by his wife snd children who have been visiting the past two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Mullen of Traverse City, motored up and spent the week end at the home of her sister Mrs. Frank Addis. Mr. and Mrs. L. Addis csme over from Walloon and all had dinner. In the nfternoon all motored to Walloon Lake snd on the way bsck stopped at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Zoulek in Chsddock district and had supper.

B. J. BEUKER
Physician and Surgeon
Office over Blue Store
Ellsworth, Michigan
Office Hours: 2-4 p. m., Phone 38

Cross-Word Puzzle No. 80



(©, 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

Horizontal.

1—To gulp
4—American monetary unit
11—Atmosphere
13—A second time
14—Single
15—To spill over
17—Alcoholic drink
18—To cut with a scissors
20—Crooked
21—Note of scale
23—Printing measure
24—Kind of wood
26—To put on garments
27—Note of scale
28—Heavy weight
29—Mythical king cursed with gold touch
30—Skill
33—Close to the ground
34—Plot of ground
35—Period of time
36—Vehicle
37—Fur-bearing animal
38—Young goat
41—Possesses
42—Title of respect
45—Behold!
46—Conjunction
48—Obtained
49—A Serbian
50—Measure of cloth
54—Straighten the hair
56—Same as 35 horizontal
57—A criminal
58—Negative
59—Pertaining to the teeth
60—Trunks

Vertical.

1—Packing for a joint
2—Enemy of friction
3—Forehead
4—Note of scale
5—Hen fruit
6—Noise
7—Preposition
8—To droop
9—Blackbird of cuckoo family
10—To do over again
12—To be affected with pain
16—Prefix meaning in behalf of 19—Prefix meaning against
20—Sweet potato
21—Distress signal
22—A tooth
25—Part of Scotch highlander's costume
26—Engagements (coll.)
27—Slender
29—Conjunction
31—Period
32—Historic houseboat
35—Pursued
37—Cereal
38—Two-wheeled vehicle
40—Casts suspicion on
42—Center of a wheel
44—Bird of fable
45—Broken coat of a seed of grain
47—Everything
49—Heavy weights
51—Before (poetic)
52—Snakelike fish
53—Piece of ground
55—Ululation of a cow
57—Note of musical scale
58—Negative answer

Solution will appear in next issue.

Get your Auction Bills now!

Hall's Catarrh Medicine

Those who are in a "run down" condition will notice that Catarrh bothers them much more than when they are in good health. This fact proves that while Catarrh is a local disease, it is greatly influenced by constitutional conditions.

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE consists of an Ointment which Quickly Relieves by local application, and the Internal Medicine, a Tonic, which assists in improving the General Health.

Sold by druggists for over 40 Years.
F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio.

GAME SUPPER WAS MUCH ENJOYED

Plates Set for One Hundred and Fifty Guests

The annual game supper of Ellsworth business men and town people was held in the Blue Hall on Tuesday evening of last week.

At seven o'clock all sat down to a bountiful supper, the kind Ellsworth ladies are noted for serving. The tables were laid for 150. Among out of town guests were Wm. Stafford, F. H. Hsrvey, B. O. Stevens, M. R. Mardisn, George Dudden and M. E. Gleason, all of Detroit, besides T. W. Jackson and Dick Lawles of Portland.

After the supper a delightful program was rendered, consisting of readings, music and short talks. A short tnlk wns given by Wm. Stafford and n song by Geo. Dudden, two of the out of town guests.

Mr. Patterson's side was the winner in the contest and his opponent, H. L. Dawson, was n good loser.

Electric light bulbs that give service at Charlevoix Hardware Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

ANTRIM CITY

Jack Smith is bailing hay sgain.

Mrs. Brooks hns been on the sick list for the past week.

Mr. Stoel helped Will Dennis shingle his barn, Ssturdsy.

Mr. Bnumback is bsiling hay around Central Lake now.

The Stoel and Dennis sale was well attended last Thursdsy.

Mr. Stoel and family were visitors at the Stott home, Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Ison of Eastport, were visitors at the Stoel home, Sunday.

The dance, which wss at the Mason home Friday evening was well attended.

Winter battery storage cost is small with us. We are equipped to take care of them. Bring your batteries to us for winter storage. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 44-tf.

A PARTIAL-PAYMENT TEST

Purchases made on the installment plan have grown enormously in the last few years. The indebtedness of the American people contracted for merchandise bought on this plan is estimated to total approximately $3,000,000,000. The ease with which homes, furniture, automobiles, jewelry, clothing and thousands of other things may be purchased on a promise to pay in the future has been beneficial, doubtless, in so far as it has contributed to the high standards of living in this country. Without easy credit home-buying and the purchase of commoditles of an essential nature would be impossible on a large scale. On the other hand, however, the ease of payment on the installment plan may lead many people to live beyond their means and to extravaganee in the purchase of non-essentials.

The practice of buying securities on the partial-payment plan is also becoming widespread. When good securities nre bought from reputable dealers this method is entirely worthy. Bonds are permanent and income-producing property. The money that is paid in periodically for their purchase under this plan is actually money saved. There is one danger, however, for the inexperienced investor in the purchase of securities on the installment plan. Fakers and their ilk have adopted this method of selling securities as they have adopted every other worthy method. Before buying securities in this manner the investor should make, therefore, n special effort to select a reputable investment house. But only from a firm or person to whom you know it would be safe to lend money.

PILGRIM HOLINESS CHURCH
Phelps and Ellsworth

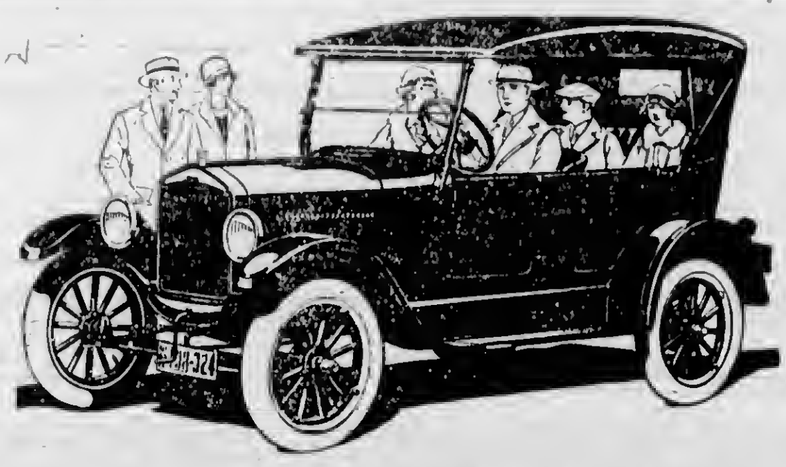
Phelps
Sunday school, 10:00 a. m.
Preaching, 11:00 a. m.
Prayer meeting, Wednesday evening at 8:00 p. m.

Ellsworth
Sunday school, 1:15 p. m.
Preaching, 2:30 and 7:30 p. m.
Prayer meeting Thursday evening at 8:00 p. m.

B. E. Manker, Pastor.

You will find high quality merchandise at reasonable prices at the Charlevoix Hdw. Co.—Adv, 35-tf.

Crass-Word Puzzle No. 79



Touring
$290

Runabout	$260
Coupe	520
Tudor Sedan	580
Fordor Sedan	660

Closed cars in color. Demountable rims and starter extra on open cars.
All prices f. o. b. Detroit

All-steel body; heavy crown fenders; fuel tank filled from outside; low, graceful body lines; nickeled head lamp rims; comfortable, low seats; large steering wheel; powerful, positive brakes. Standard equipment includes four cord tires, rear-view mirror, extra tire carrier and windshield wiper. Balloon tires $25 extra.

Greater Demand for the Improved Ford Cars

The recent improvements in Ford cars have created a demand that is establishing new sales records.

Back of this growing demand is the knowledge that Ford cars have gained their universal recognition through dependability and economy of operation. The recent improvements enhance value that has been definitely established.

See today's greater Ford value at your nearest Authorized Ford Dealer's. Place your order now to insure early delivery.

Ford Motor Company
Detroit, Mich.

Ford

Trade Among Friends

No matter what some folks say to the contrary, there certainly is a lot of sentiment in business. Friendship, for instanee, makes more satisfaetory sales than all the eleverness and argument in the world.

You like to trade at a certain store—not beeause its counters are arranged in a scientifie way, but beeause the folks who serve you are always friendly and helpful. Just that very thing—FRIENDLY SERVICE—is the power that draws people together into communities like this, where everybody ean enjoy the many benefits of neighborly cooperation.

And FRIENDLY SERVICE is the sentimental reason why you find it very much to your advantage to trade with our advertisers—to buy where you feel at home, where your friends will see that you are well satisfied.

Read the Ads. in this paper
and save yourself money by trading at home

The Magic Carpet

Onco upon a time in the mystie land of Persia, there was found among the treasures of the king a wonderful carpet. One had only to sit on it, wish to bo somewhere, and away the carpet would fly till ths wished-for place was reached. For hundreds of years it carried kings and prinees upon the most amazing adventures. No one knows what finally beeame of it, but it may be that its last threads went into the make-up of the first Youth's Companion. For, like the magic carpet, The Youth Companion for 1926 carries you to the land of your heart's desire—up into the Maine woods with the lumbermen; out on the western plains where the warlike Navaho Indians live; far up into the gold regions of Alaska; and away on the Southern Seas in search of treasures and lost islands. All you need for such extraodinary adventures is a young heart and a Youth's Companion. Don't lose time in getting started; subscribe now and receive:

1. The Youth's Companion— 52 issues in 1926, and
2. The remaining issues of 1925. All for only $2.
3. Or inelude McCall's Magazine, the monthly authority on fashions. Both publieations, only $2.50.

THE YOUTH'S COMPANION
S N Dept., Boston, Mass.
Subscriptions Received at this Office.

For all the news, read the Courier.

PETOSKEY WINS SATURDAY'S TILT

WET FIELD AND PENALTIES MAR GAME

Locals Show Splendid Defense and Never-die Spirit in Face of Defeat

On a snow-covered and slippery field, Charlevoix high school eleven lost to the hard fighting Petoskey team last Saturday morning, the final score being 13 to 0. The northerners scored their first touchdown during the first five minutes of play, the counter coming after a costly fumble by the local team. Their second counter came in the last few minutes of the final quarter.

Petoskey kicked off on the opening play, Charlevoix fumbling on the third down losing the ball. A series of line smashes and end runs brought the ball to Charlevoix's 8 yard line, Menzel of Petoskey carrying the oval across on a run around left end. They failed to kick goal.

The second quarter ended without further scoring, although the opponents made three first downs and had the ball on the local's 10 yard line, seriously threatening to score when the whistle blew. The third quarter was a repetition of the second, Charlevoix playing a splendid game on defense and holding the visitors scoreless, in spite of the fact they were fighting a losing game with the ball in their own territory most of the time.

The final period was marked by desperate football by both teams, Petoskey losing precious territory from illegal holding and bad language to the referee from the side lines. The visiting team lost sixty yards during the fourth quurter from penalties. Gains by Menzel, Beer and Brown, Petoskey's leading ground gainers, brought the ball in position for the final score which was put over just as the whistle blew. They kicked goal, making the count 13 to 0 in Petoskey's favor.

Many fumbles, costing penalties and a slow, wet field marred the work of both teams, straight football being the main offense used.

Following is the lineup:

Chalevoix		Petoskey
March	LE	Davenport
Tripp	LT	Kelderhouse
Faunce	LG	Swanson
Guleserian	C	Higman
Leroy	RG	Beaudoin
Dunning	RT	Struthers
North	RE	Cooper
Johns	QB	Marshall
Woodruff	RH	McCann
Parrish	LH	McMulkin
Menzel	FB	Harrington

Officials: Burkett, of Grayling; Fitch, of Traverse City; Duncanson, East Jordan.

CUT FLOWERS

For all occasions

At all times.

HILLCREST GARDENS

A. Edwards

Phone 18.

IT'S NEVER TOO LATE TO MEND

IF you're not healthy now you soon will be if you put your faith in milk —more milk — and still more milk! Let our milkman be your doctor.

MARION CENTER DAIRY
Pure Aerated Milk and Cream
CHARLEVOIX, MICH

COUNTY AGENT MARRIED AT BOYNE

Ceremony Takes Place at Home of the Bride

County Agent Burton C. Mellencamp was united in marriage to Miss Gladys Bennett, at the home of the bride in Boyne City the evening of October 21. The ceremony was performed in the presence of relatives and n few very close friends of the family, hy Rev. P. E. Linnel of the Preshyterian church.

Mr. Mellencamp is a young man of sterling character and is very popular among the grangers and those engaged in farming being County Agricultural Agent, a member of the Rotary Club and has made a host of warm friends in Boyne City and Charlevoix.

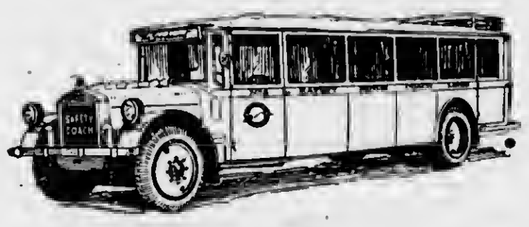
Mrs. Mellencamp possesses a very charming personality and also has a host of friends in Boyn City. She has been reared in Boyne City, receiving her education here and then holding a responsible position as stenographer with the Michigan Tanning nnd Extract company.

The newly weds expect to spend some time with the groom's father and mother and other relntives of Grass Lake. They will be at home to their many friends after November. Boyne Citizen.

No flanky leather used here. We use the best for you.

Charlevoix's oldest and best Cobbler does your work in a good old fashioned way.

Campbell Boot Shop



STATION: Charlevoix Hotel

GREYHOUNDS of THE HIGHWAY — MICHIGAN MOTOR COACH LINES

Clean, warm comfortable transportation

3 Times Daily to Traverse City

RIDE THE GREYHOUNDS

A Great Sales Ally

For covering territory completely and economically and getting into the hundreds of out-of-the-way places—where there is much undeveloped trade — there is no greater sales ally than the Long Distance call.

Long Distance is an Economical Result-Getter

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE CO.

J. W. MURPHY A CIVIL WAR VETERAN

Passes Away at His Home in Echo Township, October 24

John William Murphy passed away at his home in Echo township, Antrim county, last Saturday morning, October 24, at the age of 77 yeurs, one month 26 days.

Mr. Murphy was born in Johnston, Canada, in 1848. At the age of 14 years (in 1862) he enlisted in Company G, 14th New York Heavy Artillery and served his adopted country for three years during the Civil War strife. He was active in 17 batcles and suffered captivity by the rebels at Petersburg, Virginia. At the close of the war he was honorably discharged, and returned to his home in New York.

In 1869 he came to Michigan and homesteaded 80 acres in Echo township, Antrim county.

On September 25, 1877, he was united ia marriage to Margaret Ann Hosler. He is survived by the bereaved wife and the following sons and daughters: Mary Ann Spence of Rigetown, Canada; Ralph Roy Murphy of East Jordan; William Murphy at the parentnl home; Hattie Towsley of Charlevoix; May Kidder of Echo township; Mrs. Albert Staley of Eveline township; Charlotte Saddler of Alanson; Erwin Murphy of East Jordan, Belle Sweet and Raymond Murphy at the parental home. He is also survived by twenty grand-children and one great grandson.

Funeral services were held from his late home, October 26th, conducted by Rev. Henry Hiles, pastor of the East Jordan M. E. church. Interment at the Moorehouse cemetery.

The Literary and Sewing Club of the M. E. church will hold their annual Christmas bazaar, Saturday, December 5. Watch for further announcements.—44-t2.

BAPTIST CHURCH

The usual services will be conducted by the pastor morning and evening.

Bible school at the noon hnur and B. Y. P. U. at 6:30 p. m.

The aid society will meet on Wednesday with Mrs. Sam Hamilton on Belvedere avenue. Pot luck lunch.

All church uctivities are leading up to the Pease and Nyburg evangelistic meetings that begin on the 15th inst. The community are invited to participate. These are to be gospel meetings—not Baptist meetings—and we hope and pray that every church in town will receive a large blessing. Prepare to attend..

Bids Wanted

The Board of Education are open for bids on the house situated at 213 Mason street, for wreckage or removal. Bids to be in secretary's hands by November 16th. H. A. Craig, Secretary.—Adv. 44t1.

SUCCUMBS TO DREAD PNEUMONIA

Mrs. Cora Thomerassen Passes at Charlevoix Hospital

Mrs. Cora Thomerassen, a resident of Charlevoix for a number of years past, died at the Charlevoix hospital last Saturday, October 31, death being caused by pneumonia. Her passing came as a shock to many of her friends, few realizing the seriousness of her condition until after the end came.

Deceased was 38 years of age at the time of her death. She was born in Chicago in 1887, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William V. Foster. She came to this city some seven or eight years ago with her husband, George Thomerassen, who is in the government bureau of fisheries service.

Mrs. Thomerassen is survived by her husband, father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. V. Foster; and a sister, Mrs. VanEtta, all of Northville, Michigan, besides a host of friends she had made since her residence in this city.

Funeral services were held Monday morning at 10:30 a. m. from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Faulkner on the north side. Rev. B. G. Mattson of the Congregational church was the officiating minister, the services being under the direction of the Eastern Star lodge in which deceased held the office of associate matron. The body wns taken to Northville in the afternoon of the same day, from which place burial will be made.

The profusion of beautiful floral offerings and the great numher of people who crowded the Faulkner home to show last respects to their departed friend, attested the esteem in which she was held by all who knew her.

A progressive pedro party will be given at St. Mary's school house on Tuesduy evening of next week. All are cordially invited.—Adv. 44-t1.

FRANK W. BALCH BADLY INJURED

(Continued from page one)

was doing carpenter work and feel from a building or scaffold.

In the fall he received a broken jaw, nearly all of his teeth heing knocked out, a double compound fracture of his left leg, knee cap broken in three places, a break in his right leg below the knee, a deep cut above his right eye and the cheek bone broken below his left eye and n broken thumb.

He was unable to eat other than liquid food, taken through a tube on the left side of his face where his teeth were gone, for a six weeks period. His knee-cap was so badly broken that the physician in charge wired it together. He had been in the hospital 10 weeks October 31, the duy the letter was written to Charlevoix friends. On November second he underwent another operation, which could not be done at the time of the accident on account of his condition. He will probably be in the hospital for at least two months longer.

Electric light bulbs that give service at Charlevoix Hardware Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

P. M. PASSENGER TRAIN WRECKED

Goes in Ditch Friday, at Point Near Rapid City

The Pere Marquette passenger train, due in Charlevoix at 3:53 Friday afternoon was piled up in the swamp between Rapid City and Barker's Creek. The wreck, which was due to a heavy fog, delayed traffic more than 24 hours. None of the crew or passengers were injured.

The company's big wreck clearing outfit, sent north from Grand Rapids to clear the line, had its own difficulty and piled up near Thompsonville, late in the evening, Friday.

The wrecker was back on the rails at 10 a. m. Saturday and went on north to do its best to clear the right-of-way during Saturday.

Friday afternoon's southbound truin made the run to the scene of the wreck, picked up passengers and mail pouches, and backed to the northern terminal at Petoskey. The wreck was cleared late Saturday and regular train schedules resumed Monday morning.

MANY EXHIBITS WERE DISPLAYED

(Continued from page one)

play was held. The sale was attended by a large and interested crowd and everything sold at a high figure, attesting the fine quality of goods shown. Much credit is due the different committees in charge of the exhibit, who gave freely of their time and attention, making the show the success it proved to be. It is rumored thnt a dollar day with many bargains and entertainment features is planned for in the near future.

Charlevoix Hdw. Co.

Have You Seen It?

The "Philco"---Socket Power

Eliminates all Radio Batteries. Attach to your electric light, have it adjusted once and you are all set and done with Battery Worry.

This is the weather to put up your Antenna, outside wiring and get your Radio in shape.

Radiolas and Day-Fans in Stock

WHEN YOU BUY RADIOS HERE, YOU GET SERVICE AS WELL.

REMEMBER THAT

Charlevoix Hardware Company

302 Bridge St Phone 1.

"WHY do you run those crazy
STORIES in your ads," asks
THE PILL dispenser next door
AND we put it this way—if
WE walked down the street
THIS morning and spoke to
YOU in the usual manner, ten
TO one you wouldn't remember
THE incident five minutes,
BUT if we came down the street
IN a car and turned over an OIL truck you probably would REMEMBER it for some time and
SO—we are just trying to SALUTE you in a little different
WAY than usual with these ads,
SO you always will remember
THAT our store is the place
TO buy hardware and electrical GOODS.

Forest & Clarence

WOOD BROTHERS

Hardware & Electrical Supplies

To The Public

On account of a delayed shipment of the new

Orthophonic Victrola

we were unable to hold the public demonstration of this wonderful machine on Monday, the second. However, we now have one of them and will hold the public demonstration on

Friday Evening, November 6

8:00 to 10:00 o'clock

We invite the public to this demonstration and promise you an entertainment which will equal any you may pay from one to five dollars to hear.

If you cannot come at eight, come any time during the demonstration. There will be comfortable seats for all. Remember the date.

S. M. SEE and SONS

Home of Victor Products

CHARLEVOIX COURIER

NUMBER 32. VOLUME 45. EIGHT PAGES — COURIER, CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 11, 1925 — PRICE $2.00 PER YEAR

"BACK TO THE BIBLE" KEYNOTE

TWO-WEEK REVIVAL OPENS AT BAPTIST CHURCH

Rev. J. J. Pease and Richard Nyburg Will Conduct Services—Choir to Be a Feature

Rev. J. J. Pease of Battle Creek, and Richard Nyburg of Belmont will assist Herman Burns in a two-week evangelistic campaign in the Baptist church, beginning Sunday, November 15, 10:30 a. m.

Evangelist Pease conducts a "Back to the Bible Campaign" that is unique. Hundreds of copies of the Gospel of Matthew are distributed to the congregation and at each service they join the evanglist in reading the scripture lesson aloud.

At the first service the first chapter of the Gospel is read, at the second service the second chapter and so on to the end of the Gospel to the close of the campaign. The Gospel of Mutthew is used because of its life story of Jesus.

The sermon for the evening centers upon one of the leading thoughts of the evenings's scripture lesson. For example: the first evening's lesson covers the first chapter of Matthew and the sermon is on "The Person nnd Work of Jesus." On the third night the third chapter is read and the sermon is on "John the Baptist and His Message of Repentance." The fourth night's message is on "The Devil and Temptation." During the first week the sermon on the Mount is reached and thus during the campaign Matthew's Gospel of Jesus is covered.

Many interesting feutures are introduced into the meetings from night to night which add greatly to their interest.

Mr. Pease comes to Charlevoix with excellent credentinls. Though still a young man he has hud several yenrs of successful experience. His winsome personality and his clear and forceful preaching will endear him to his audiences.

Mr. Nyburg, the singing evangelist, is a grnduate of the music department of the Moody Bible institute. He is a tenor soloist and choir leader of nbility. Upon his arrival he will immediately organize two choirs; an ndult choir for the nightly meetings, and a Booster Choir of boys and girls under fifteen for special occasions.

There will be services every evening, beginning promptly at 7:30 with a spirited song service under Mr. Nyburg's direction.

The Charlevoix Baptist church extends a cordial invitation to all to attend every meeting of this short campaign and to carry away as much of their helpfulness as possible.

My annual Fall Money Saving ends November 19th. Buy $25.00 worth of groceries, sugar exempt, and you will be entitled to 100 pounds of granulated sugar for $5.65. Louis S. Orlowski.—Adv. 45t1.

Charlevoix Pickle Company is selling dill pickles cheap. Get your supply or phone 25J.—Adv. 45t1.

Why buy doped gasoline when you can buy high test at 24c? Brown and Wallace. Adv. 45tf.

EATING PLACES ARE ORDERED TO CLEAN HOUSE

In n drive to clean all eating places in Michigan, the bureau of foods and standards has placed fifteen additional apecial Inspectors on tho road to visit every city in the stata. A state inspector will soon be here and inspect every restaurant, hotel, lunch room and eandy store, especially where soft drinks, ice cream and lunchea are sold. Special objects of inspection are refrigerators, dish washing equipment, meat blocks and floors under tables and stoves.

Instructions read: "Tell them to move out everything that is movable and dig out the corners using plenty of boiling water in order that sterlization may be complete."

Especial attention is paid to cooking dishes, chipped and cracked dishes and poor dishwashing. Tha bureau insists on hot water for dish washing and not warm water.

Tho inspector upon discovering evidence of uncleanliness serves an "insanitary" notice on the proprietor of the place inspected. This is followed a week or so latter by a check up and if the orders are not complied with prosecution follows.

ENTERTAIN DETROIT FRIENDS AT PARTY

About Thirty Present at Home of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Adams

Mr. and Mrs. Jay Adams entertained about thirty of their friends last Friday evening, November 6, at a party held at their home in Marion Center in honor of a number of Detroit relatives and friends who have been spending the past two weeks here on a hunting trip and visiting friends and relatives. The affair was also a surprise on Mr. and Mrs. Fred Horn, the newly-weds of the party.

The evening was pleasantly spent in music and games and a general family get-together and visit. Refreshments were served and the party broke up at a late hour, all having thoroughly enjoyed the occasion.

The party from Detroit, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. George Holmes, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Horn, Frank Horn and Harvey Christensen, left for their home last Sunday after enjoying a successful two weeks hunting trip here.

CHANGES IN LICENSE RECORDS

NEW LAW NECESSITATES ALL NEW BLANKS

Owners Need to Be Informed About Regulatioo Before Seeking Licenses

County Clerk Chas. H. Emrey who wns in Cheboygan Tuesday attending a school of instruction called by the secretary of state, says there will be considerable change in the license records required for next year—so much so that there will be no recognition whntever in 1926 of any blanks that had been used in 1925.

It will be remembered that the weight-tax bill was not passed until well along in the session of the legislature and that the old license tax was held in abeyance for many weeks, waiting for the legislature to act. It was not even certain as to just what the solons would do when they did act. This made it necessary to hurriedly prepare blanks, which the experience of the past year has shown were not just what they should be. Consequently new blanks have been prepared for next year. None but the new blanks will be recognized in any business that concerns automobile licenses, or drivers' licenses, for 1926.

All county clerks in this district were present at the school of instruction of the Secretary of State's department to instruct county deputies as to the proper use of the new blanks, and also for instructions as to the sale of the new license plates.

Another regulation which will obtain for next year will be that adjoining counties will not use the same colored ink in the making out of licenses or other blanks for automobiles. A special ink will be used, which will be furnished by the Secretary of State, for this purpose, the idea being that in this manner it will be less easy for counterfeit licenses to be made, and will also make it easy for officers to detect any frauds that may be attempted.

It is expected that a number of automobile licenses granted from the state of Michigan next year will pass the million mark by a considerable. Some changes have been made in the regulations for collecting the weight tax so that people who are interested in the use of their automobiles or trucks for next year, had better get wiss as to what will be required of them at an early date.

TWO SURPRISES ALL IN ONE

Ladies Enjoys a Social Time at Eckinger Home

Last Friday evening a dozen lady friends called to spend the evening with Mrs. D. J. Eckinger, not intending, however, to stay late.

Several interesting games of cards were played and at 10:00 p. m. when the ladies were about to depart, the great surprise came. Mrs. Eckinger served a dainty lunch one of the real tasty kind.

It goes without saying that every one enjoyed the time from 10 to 11, then all departed for their raspectiva homes declaring Mrs. Eckinger a real hostess.

W. E. Parmelee builds storm windows.—Adv.. 37-tf.

MUST HAVE PERMIT TO CARRY RIFLE

MAY BE SECURED FROM LOCAL GAME WARDEN

Write Ed. Deuel at Boyne City. Couoty Closed to Deer Huoting for Five Years

It seems that there has been considerable misundorstanding on the part of many hunters as to the exact meaning of the law covering the carrying of a rifle during the closed deer season and a shotgun during the closed season on small game. For the benefit of those in doabt we are publishing the law as written in the statute books of the state which explains itself in detail and should leave no doubt in the minds of any.

"Section 1.—It shall be unlawful for any person to carry a rifle into any area frequented by deer during the closed season thereon, or to carry a shotgun into any area frequented by large or small game when there is no open season on such game under the existing laws, except as hercinafter provided.

Section 2.—The conservation department or any conservation officer or any person deputized by the conservation department, shall be authorized to issue free of cost, to any legal resident of the United States over the age of sixteen, a permit, to carry firearms into the territory of the state, but the violation of the laws protecting wild animals or birds during the closed season thereon, when such person is the holder of such permit shall subject the offender to the confiscation of firearms in possession and to a fine of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than two hundred fifty dollars and in default of same, to confinement in the county jail for not less than thirty days nor more than ninety days."

Charlevoix is a closed county on deer hunting, a special law by the state conservation department to that effect having heen mude recently, nnd the order is now being published in the county newspapers. It can readily be seen then, that it is unlawful to carry a rifle of any kind in the county unless a permit has been obtnined to do so. Those sharp-shooters who do their hunting with a 22 caliber rifle may continue to do so only hy getting a permit from the local game warden.

SOMEONE WILL BE HAULED INTO COURT

Golf Authorities in the Air Over Property Destruction

Someone in or around Charlevoix stands a good chance of being hauled into court and fined a stiff amount if they continue the practice of driving on the grounds of the Charlevoix Golf Club.

Manager James Gaskin reports that this seems to be a daily amusement with some people. Auto tracks to the depth of nearly a foot are to be found running in all directions on ths new greens, and the damage to the property will run into quite a sum.

Tha golf association has spent a

(Continued on Page 8)

Use high test gasoline, only cost 24c per gallon for cold weather driving. Brown and Wallace. Adv. 45tf.

You'll like GOOD dills, as packed and cured by the Charlevoix Pickle Co. Phone 25J.—Adv. 45t1.

JURY HAD BUT LITTLE WORK

GATLIFF VS. SENDENBERG CASE ONLY ONE TRIED

Circuit Court Adjouroed to Wedoesday of This Week After Busy Four Day Sessioo

Circuit court adjourned last Friday noon to convene again on Wednesday of this week. The four days were busy ones and numerous cases were disposed of. Only one jury case was tried and the jury was allowed to return to their homes Wednesday evening.

Other cases on the calendarscheduled to be tried during this court term will be taken up at the opening of the adjourned session.

Following are the cases disposed of during last week's court session:

In the case of the People vs. Wasyl Skop for violation of the liquor law, defendent having plead guilty, was sentenced to a fine of $500.00. In default of payment Skop will serve from six months to a year nt hard labor in the state prison at Jackson, with a court recommendation of seven months.

The case of the People vs. Roy Pant, based on the charge of desertion of wife and children, was heard by the court, Pant pleading guilty to the charge. He wns placed under $300.00 hond as guarantee of payment for maintenunce of children.

In the case of Anna Gatlif vs. Fred Sendenberg and Leroy Sendenberg, trespass, on trial at this term of court, the jury returned a verdict for $800.00 in favor of the plaintiff.

Dan T. Gallagher of St. James, plead guilty to the charge of violation of the liquor law and was released on bond until the February term of court when he will appear for sentence.

Bernard Newson having plead guilty to his appeal from justice court on the charge of driving a car while intoxicated, wns given a fine of $50.00 and costs of $25.00, and his drivers' license taken away from him. Upon defnult of payment he will serve 90 days in the county jail.

In the case of Wm. J. Allerdyce and Hulda Allerdyce vs. Henry Hamel, et al, to quiet title, decree wns granted by the court.

James Bracken and John Baker plead guilty to the charge of violation of the liquor law, and were ordered to appear nt the February term of court for sentence.

In the case of the Peiter Auto Company vs. E. John Olson, nssumpsit, the court allowed the former's claim for $692.92, together with costs and charges.

Gave Ioterestiog Talk

The Congregational church had as a spenker on Friday evening, Rev. Paul Neilson, a missionary of many year's experience and teacher in charge of St. Paul's College at Yarshish, Turkey, who gave a very enlightening address on conditons in the Near East. The missionary of today is a "world citizen" and can throw light on many international questions which are becoming more and more subjects for thought and conversation.

Yes, we have more of those fine dill pickles. Air-tight jug or keg containers too—or bring your own jars. Charlevoix Pickle Co. Phone 25J.—Adv. 45t1.

High test gasoline for cold weather driving sold at 24c. Brown and Wallace. Adv. 45tf

Armistice Day

OPERATION FATAL TO MRS. ETTA NEWBERRY

Died in Saginaw Hospital Last Sunday Afternooo

Mrs. Etta Newberry, a resident of this city for the past twenty-five years, died in a Saginaw hospital last Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, from the effects of an operation performed the previous Friday.

Etta Hodges was 59 years old at the time of her death. She was married in this city in 1882 to Ed. Newberry, who passed away eighteen years ago. To this union one son was born, Henry Newberry of Michigan City, Ind., who with her three sisters, Mrs. Etta Nicholls of Iron Mountain, Mrs. Polly Lawrence of Saginaw, and Mrs. Adeline Bellinger of Charlevoix, survive. Deceased was a member of the Woman's Relief Corps, Rebekahs and the Methodist church of this elty.

Funeral services were held Wednesday morning at 10:00 o'clock from the Methodist church, Rev. C. E. Pollock officiating. Interment at Brookside.

MRS. CHAS. E. SEE PASSES FRIDAY

STRICKEN WITH APOPLEXY AT CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

Had Been a Resident of Charlevoix for 37 Years. Was Member of Local O. E. S.

Friends of Mrs. Chas. E. See were shocked and grieved to learn of her sudden death which occurred last Friday night at the home, 414 Dixon avenue. Mrs. See, in company with her husband, was attending a supper nt the Congregational church when she was stricken with a stroke of apoplexy from which she never rallied after being taken to her home.

Jennie Harris was born in Marquette, Michigan, September 16, 1868, and wns 57 yeurs old at the time of her death. When about twelve years of age she moved with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Harris, to Elk Rapids, Michigan, where she resided for nbout eight years. She was married at Elk Rapids in 1888 to Charles E. See, and the couple moved to Charlevoix where they have since made their home. To this union were born five children, four of whom survive to mourn the loss of a loving mother, Mrs. J. E. Mayer, the youngest daughter having died June 22, 1924.

Besides her husband Mrs. See leaves one daughter, Mrs. S. B. Smith of Grnnd Rapids, Mich., three sons, Lou E., of Warmsprings, Orcgon, Glenn S., and Chester F., of Charlevoix; one sister, Mrs. R. M. Bogenrief, of Downers Grove, Ill., and one brother, George M. Harris, of Fond-duLac, Wisconsin, all of whom were present at the funeral except the latter, who is on an auto trip in California and unable to be present. Others present from out of town were J. E. Mayer of Mt. Clemens, Michigan, und Mrs. C. M. Hall of Detroit.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon, November 11, from the family home, 414 Dixon avenue, Rev. B. G. Mattson of the Congregational church, officiating. Interment at Brookside cemetery.

Deceased wns a member of the First Congregational church of this city and of the Charlevoix chapter No. 72, O. E. S. in which order she had held many important offices Since her residence here Mrs. See was an activo worker in fraternal and church affairs of the community, and had ncquired a countless number of friends who will greatly regret her departure.

BAPTIST CHURCH

The Pease and Nyburg meetings will begin Sunday morning. The singers will meet Mr. Nyburg at 10:00 a. m. for a brief rehearsal and then for two weeks the "right of way" will be given to the Evangelistic meeting.

The new singing books—"Special Songs" have been received, and will be used throughout the meetings.

A large delegation will attend one evening from Petoskey and another from Traverse City. They will be welcomed.

Don't allow your battery to freeze. Call us for winter storage and save the expense of a new battery. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 44-tf.

HOW TO SECURE BETTER SERVICE

WHEN MAILS ARE FLOODED WITH XMAS PACKAGES

Postmaster George Weaver Points Out How to Insure Quicker Delivery

—Postmaster George Weaver has prepared tho following information in regard to parcel post packages.

The season of the year is approaching when the mails will be flooded with parcels. The number of improperly packed and insufficiently addressed parcels that we are receiving especially from the rural routes, suggests to us that a few remarks along this line will result in better postal service.

The address should be placed on the lower right hand corner of the largest face of the parcel.

The address should be printed in ink.

The address should be on the parcel, not on a tag. Parcels addressed hy a tag only will not be accepted. Stickers or gummed labels are acceptable but it is better to put the address on the wrnpper than to put it on other paper and then try to stick it to the parcel with flour and water.

The address should also be inclosed inside of the parcel. An invoice of the contents may also be inclosed.

The address should be on one side of the parcel only. This prevents insured, C. O. D. or special delivery parcels from being delivered as ordinary mail.

Your return address should be in the upper left hand corner of the address side of the parcel. Parcels without a return address are not mailable.

Old labels and stamps should be removed before returning or remailing a parcel. Patrons in returning parcels frequently try to make over an old address label so that the old address will become the return address and and old return address the new address. Such parcels are not mailable and will not be accepted.

A letter of instructions, etc., with a two cent stamp affixed can be fastened to the outside of a parcel but any message inclosed inside of a parcel subjects the whole parcel to tho first class rate of postage and the mailer to a $50 fine.

Packuges should be packed so that the contents will not rattle or slide around inside of the container.

Packages containing perishable or fragile articles should he marked to show the nature of the contents.

Shoe hoxes or other light pasteboard boxes are not good containers and will not be accepted unless they are wrapped with henvy paper.

Postmasters are allowed to require at least three thicknesses of paper on every package.

Heavy cord should be used in trying packages. Some people have

(Continusd on page 8)

We sell pure high test gasoline at 24c. Try it. Brown and Wallace. —Adv. 45tf

W. E. Parmelee builds storm windows.—Adv. 37-tf.

"VISIT YOUR SCHOOLS TODAY" IS SLOGAN

"Visit your schools today," will be the keynote of American Education week, to be observed during the week of November 16-22 and endorsed in a proclamation by President Coolidge.

Although plans for observance are being left to local education bodies and organizations, the Bureau of Education, which with the the National Education association and the American Legion is sponsoring tha week, has issued a program of suggestions for each of the seven days. The program stresses thoughts for development in school exhibits and demonstrations to bring the public and educational institution into closer contact.

Governors of many states have assured the bureau of their intention to advocate observance of the week in proclamations and the bureau has asked school authorities and civic bodies to join in the program.

The bureau has suggested observance of the days of the week as Conaervation and Thrift day; Know Your School day; Community and Health day; For God and Country day; Constitution day; Patriotism day and School and Teacher day.

For Sore Throat

Rub throat and chest with Vicks; cover with warm flannel. Its double direct action (inhaled and absorbed) brings welcome relief.

VICKS VAPORUB

CORRESPONDENCE

PHELPS

Ralph Watkins has a crew of men loading a couple of cars of lumber this week.

Miss Margaret Watson spent Friday night and Saturday at her home in Central Lake.

R. E. Watson, express auditor of Traverse City, was a caller in our berg, Friday last.

Mrs. Koo Klooster and Mrs. R. Rienertson were callers at the F. R. Klooster home Thursday afternoon of last week.

Koo Klooster of Ellsworth and R Rienertson of Flint, helped Fred Mason two days last week to install some equiptment in his stables.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Shaw left Monday morning for Hermanville, U. P., where Mr. Shaw expects to kill a deer, and Mrs. Shaw will visit for a few days at the home of her sister, Mrs. Tumath. They are making the trip by auto.

Chris Drost accompanied his son George as far as Traverse City, Thursday last, where he visited for a day with old friends and relatives, returning home Monday. George is on his way to Elkhart after a two weeks visit with his parents.

Rev. Joppa, Jr., of Owosso, Michigan, is holding special meetings in the Holiness church here this week. Rev. and Mrs. Manker and Mrs. Charles Maschio, are helping with the special music and singing. Eevery one is invited to come.

It is time to make arrangements for storage of your car battery for the winter. Call phone 60 and we will do the rest. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 44-tf.

IRONTON

Marion Jackson and family spent Friday and Saturday in Bellaire visiting his parents.

Mr. and Mrs. George McMulkin, left for Hermanville, Michigan, Monday, to visit Mr. and Mrs. Jim Tumath.

The lady Maccabees of Ironton, met with Mrs. Ogden in Charlevoix, Tuesday with a dinner.

Friday night there was a community party at the Grange hall given by Albert Carlson, Gale Allen and Mildred Howe. All had a fine time.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Reber and daughter of Boyne City and Mr. Ogden of Ironton spent Sunday with Mrs. Ogden on 216 Clinton street, Charlevoix.

Thursday night the Gleaners held their annual election of officers. They will be installed November 19. There will be an open meeting and pot luck supper.

Tuesday evening November 3rd, the Grange installed officers. E. E. Stroud did the Installing. Mr. and Mrs. Stroud and Mr. and Mrs. Saunders were delegates to the state Grange. Officers installed are:

Master, Sam Woodworth.
Overseer, Albert Carlson.
Lecturer, Laura Bridenstine.
Stewart, Thomas Neilson.
Assistant stewart, Mark Saunders.
Chaplain, Edith Neilson.
Treasurer, Henry Birdenstine.
Secretary, Gale Allen.
Gate Keeper, Oakley Saunders.
Lady assistant stewsrt, Elsie Saunders.

Give that car battery the attention it should have. It will soon be time for winter storage. Call 60 and we will take care of it. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 44-tf.

BARNARD

This week is starting out quite well in regards to weather but we can't be sure of its lasting.

Barnard Grange will install the officers on Friday evening of this week. All members are requested to be present.

Among the new acqulsitions in our community are a fine piano at Howard Gornell's and radios at Louis Shapton's and Richard Paddock's.

A surprise party was given for Idn Cork on Friday evening last, the occasion being her birthday. About eighteen of her friends were present and all had a good time.

Mr. and Mrs. George Holmes and son Harvey also Mr. and Mrs. Fred Horn and brother Frank all of Detroit, returned on Monday after a few days visit at the Robert Gregory home, also with relatives in East Marion and Charlevoix.

Why use "so-so," when you can buy high test gasoline at 24c. Try it. Brown and Wallace. Adv. 45tf

EAST CHANDLER

Frank Atken was a Vanderbilt caller Saturday.

The Raliegh man was on Chandler hill Monday.

Mrs. Orpha Snyder is on the sick list at this writing.

Noah Howard and Carl Clark were business callers at Petoskey Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Smithingill and family, left for Flint Wednesday where they intend making their home.

Miss Atta Allen, who, teaches in the Mackey district, spent the past week at her home in Traverse City on account of sickness.

Johnnie Howard, who is attending high school at Boyne, spent the week end at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Noah Howard.

Mrs. Mary Howard of West Chandler, left for southern Michigan Friday, and expects to sail to Cuba some time in December to visit her daughter.

Miss Hazel Kurtz gave a Halloween program and box social at the East Chandler school house, October 31st. A nice program and a good time was enjoyed by all.

5¢ RUB-NO-MORE 5¢

It gives your windows A faultless shine, Helps you clean house In half the time.

WASHING POWDER 5¢

Bring in Your

BEANS

We will pay you the highest market price for them.

Phelps Marketing Assn.

Phone 7004F24

TURKEY DAY

—Monday, November 16—

We will buy on this day only

Monday, November 16, will be Turkey Day at the Charlevoix Co-Ops. We will buy turkeys on this day only. Bring in your turkeys and get highest market price. Hens must be 8 pounds or over; toms 11 pounds or over. Remember, we buy on this day only.

Charlevoix-Co-Operative Assn.

ADOPT A NEW BILLING SYSTEM

PLANS SHOULD WORK OUT WELL IN DISTRICT

Charlevoix Exchoege Subscribers to Receive Their Statemeots Monthly on 11th

The Michigan Bell Telephone Company will put into effect November 11, a new "rotation billing" plan for the rendering of statements to subscribers, under which dates of sending out many of the bills will be changed, making it possible to bring all accounts up to the date of billing.

"The term rotation billing may not be familiar, but the general plan is well known to most penple, for it has been used for some years by gas companies and power and light companies", Manager Johnstore states. "It simply means that the work of sending out a huge number of bills is divided into parts whicb are completed at different dates, thus levelling out a load which is particulary heavy when the entire job must be completed at one time.

"As applied to the Michigan Bell Telephone Company, it means that our monthly bills will be issued in six equal groups, dated the 1st, 6st, 11th, 16th, 21st, and 26th, and will be mailed as soon as completed after those dates. All subscribers of the Charlevoix exchange will have the same billing date each month—the 11th.

"The new plan will aid in keeping expences and administration problems at a reasonable point. Our subscribers will benefit from the fact that under rotation billing, bills will carry all charges and credits up to the date they bear and will reach them very shortly after that date, so enabling easier understanding and checking of the statements. In the past, charges for toll messages have been billed at the first of each month though the 20th of the preceding month, but under rotation billing these charges will be for the month ending at the date of the bill. As the accounts will be closer up to date, they will be clearer to the subscribers. Our business office also benefits because under rotation billing, it is more efficient to mail the bills from our accounting office at Grand Rapids rather than have the mailing done by our local office people, as was formerly the practice.

"The change from our present billing plan to the new plan presents an undesirable, although unavoidable feature by requiring that our subscribers be rendered a special bill for an uneven period to bring the billing up to the new billing date", continued Manager Johnston. "The special bill will be mailed November 17th and will carry any charges for Long Distance calls incurred since the last bill, up to November 11th. The last bill, issued October 1, included the toll charges through September 20; the exchange service charges included on that bill, for one month in advance as usual, covered the calendar month of October. The special bill, dated November 11th covers exchange service charges from November 1 through December 10th, a period of 40 days, which takes the billing up to the date of the next bill to be rendered. While these special bills will be for unusual amounts because of the uneven period covered, it should be understood that there is no change in rntes involved. The bill following, dated Dcember 11th, will be rendered on the regular rotation basis and will cover toll charges in arrears for the month ending at the date of the bill, and exchange service charges in advance for the month beginning with the date of the bill."

"When the change has been completed, we believe our subscribers will appreciate the new plan, as it will enable us to render more satisfactory bills and provide a better bussiness office service." said Manager Johnston. "It is through such changes as this that we are continually endeavoring to improve our service at less, or at any rate no greater expense than ebfore, whenever possible.

CHURCH OF GOD

Preaching services each Sunday at 10:30 and 7:30.

Sunday school, 11:45.

Young peoplo'a meeting each Sunday at 6:30.

Prayer service, Wednesday evening at 7:30.

A revival meeting will begin November 22 at the chapel and continue until December 6. This meeting will be held by the Rev. J. C. Thomson of Alma, Michigan.

Courier Want Ads pay.

You must say "QUICK QUAKER"

To get true Scotch flavor—famous Quaker Oats flavor—in quick cooking oats

THE difference in breakfast oats is flavor. Oats, originally a Scotch dish, must have Scotch flavor.

Quick Quaker has the toasty Scotch flavor that's so wonderful . . . famous Quaker Oats flavor.

No other brand has it. None successfully imitates it. It's due to exclusive Quaker milling of the finest, plumpest oats. Milling methods which took some 50 years to perfect.

Makes all the difference in the world. Quaker Oats spoils folks for ordinary brands of oats. Cooks in 3 to 5 minutes. No kitchen muss busy mornings.

Due to Quaker milling methods, it supplies, too, the "roughage" you need to make laxatives seldom necessary.

Look for the picture of a Quaker on the oats you get.

2 Kinds { The Quaker Oats you have always known and Quick Quaker—cooks in 3 to 5 minutes

METHODIST CHURCH

"The Might of the Spiritual Life," —sermon theme, 10:30 a. m. next Sunday.

"Unexpected Events" — dramatic sermon story theme, 7:00 p. m. next Sunday. You will quickly get the run of this serial sermon, based on "Robert Hardy's Seven Days." A special invitation is extended all young people to bring their parents and friends.

"Multi-millionaires" is the prayer meeting lesson from the book of James, November 19th at 7:30. Read the first chapter of the book and come to this service.

The Epworth League is a growing institution. It is growing in usefulness and interest, and the attendance is very gratifying at 6:00 p. m. each Sunday. Be one of the big room full of young people next Sunday evening.

Christmas is already in the air among the busy people at the growing Sunday school at 11:45 each Sunday. A class for every comer next Sunday. Study the Lord's book on the Lord's day nnd be comforted and instructed.

NORWOOD

Chas. Ferguson of Chicago, was a Norwood caller Sunday.

Mr. James of Phelps visited Sam Routley and family Monday.

A new furnace is being installed in the Norwood school house.

Clifford Jenette visited Sam Alward Saturday night and Sunday.

Mrs. Amos Richardson of Norwood who is in her 84th year, is in failing health.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Henry spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Bearss of Ellsworth.

Mrs. Nelson Empy visited her sister, Mrs. Wm. Cohen and Mrs. Henry Wagner of Charlevoix, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Merril Richardson accompanied by George Lord spent Sunday with Mr. Dunn of Petoskey.

Mr. and Mrs. Holecheck and Fred Hull attended the funeral of their uncle Charley Hull of Charlevoix, Monday p. m.

Norwood friends of the See family were shocked to learn of the death of Mr. See and extend sympahty to the berenved family.

Mr. and Mrs. Plenny Jenette with other guests visited Mrs. Jenette's father Albert Supernaw, last Sunday, which was his birthday.

Mrs. Wm. Alward gave a surprise party last Friday evening in honor of her husband's birthday. The evening was spent in visiting and playing cards after which the hostess served a delicious three course supper, which included a beautiful pink and white birthday cake. A good time was enjoyed by all present who wisbed Mr. Alward many more happy birthdays.

Winter battery storage cost is small with us. We are equipped to take care of them. Bring your batteries to us for winter storage. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 44-tf.

CLARION

J. W. Colden was in Charlevoix on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Griswold and family spent Sunday at Traverse City.

A. E. Greenhoe returned last week from a business trip to Stanton.

The ladies aid met at the home of Mrs. Banks on Thursday afternoon.

The Standard Bearerc met at the home of Mrs. Palmer on Thursday evening.

The girls Sanday school class held their regular social meeting at the homa of the Misses Nellie and Jennie Kent on Friday eveniag.

THE SIMPLEST LIGHT & POWER PLANT IN THE WORLD

"FIVE YEARS OF MARCO SATISFACTION"

"IN REPLY to your letter laquiriag what satisfaction my Marco plant bought in 1919 hss given me, I am pleasecl to say that it has given good satisfaction, aad it is more than equal to tha Delco in my estimation. The Prest-O-Lita batteries ara doing good work and have acver beea repalrsd.

I have twenty-five lights and we asa them a lot. I charge oace a week, pump all tha water for twaaty cows and run the milking machlaa, aad tha "New-Way" Engine will charge the batteries just tha sama under this load.

I have no trouble maklag adjustments when necessary, as tha Marco is easy to take cara of"

Yours truly,
LEWIS M. ROSS,
Centerville, Pennsylvania.

Benjamin Brown Auto Sales
CHARLEVOIX, MICH.

The SUPER-POWERED MARCO

for Economical Transportation

Real Winter Comfort at Low Cost

To drive in comfort this winter you should have complete protection against rain, sleet, snow and wind. Only the finest closed car construction can give you that.

The Chevrolet Coach body is Fisher-built—the same construction used on the world's finest cars.

Doors and windows fit and stay tight to keep out wind and water. Rain or snow cannot penetrate the Fisher V-V one-piece windshield which gives you perfect vision and ventilation. Long semi-elliptic springs and balloon tires take the jars out of frozen roads.

Yet you get all this in the world's lowest-priced Fisher Body Coach.

Let us show you the quality features of this fine closed car and explain how easy it is for you to own one this winter.

The Coach $695 f.o.b. Flint, Mich.

Touring	$525
Roadster	525
Coupe	675
Sedan	775
Commercial Chassis	475
Express Truck Chassis	550

ALL PRICES F. O. B. FLINT, MICH.

HENRY BLOCK

QUALITY AT LOW COST

NEIGHBORS

BY ROBERT STEAD

AUTHOR OF "THE COW PUNCHER," "THE HOMESTEADERS."

W.N.U. SERVICE

COPYRIGHT BY ROBERT STEAD

CHAPTER X—Continued

I stood for a moment, undecided whether I should go back for Jack and Marjorie, or ask Jean to go with me. It was she who settled the question.

"Take off your things, Frank," she invited. "Jack will be there by this time, and will keep Marjorie company. It is not a good night for a girl to go walking."

So I stayed, although a little self-consciously. Jean and I had known each other's company since childhood, but, at least since coming to the West, we had hardly seen each other alone. Always Jack or Marjorie, or both, were somewhere about. There had been, of course, that sudden, impetuous, unspoken revelation when we returned from our harvest absence in the settlements, but there had been no talk of love between Jean and me. I had treasured that moment as a bit of wonderful memory, as a glimpse of wonderful promise, but I had not presumed upon it; I had concluded that two months' loneliness had been too much for Jean's reserve, and that she had done something it hardly would be fair to talk about. . . . Doubtless Jack, when he found I had missed him, would be back shortly.

I took my wraps off and sat down beside the stove. The warmth was very pleasant after the buffeting of the snow, and Jean looked very lovely and tempting in the soft glow of the lamp on the table. I felt a strange embarrassment growing upon me as the moments were ticked off by the little alarm clock on the shelf. The embarrassment grew until I felt that I must break it by speech of some kind.

"What are you reading?" I ventured at last.

"Nothing."

"Nothing! You have a book—"

"I know, but I'm not reading it."

"Then what are you doing?"

"Just waiting".

"Waiting? For what?"

Then she looked up at me, and there was a light in her eyes that was strange and good to see, but it sent my brain reeling. For a moment she looked at me thus and started my heart thump-thumping like a steam pump. Then her eyes drooped.

"Don't you know, Frank?" she murmured.

Her face was ruddy in the glow of the lamp, and the pink skin shone a color that was not all reflected. Amazing as was her revelation I could no longer fail to understand it. I rose and walked to the table; I took her hands in mine and lifted her to her feet.

"You are waiting for me to—kiss you, Jean," I whispered.

She was trembling, but she spoke with outward composure. "There is something else, first."

"Something else—first? I don't understand."

"You should."

I could not follow her thought. "I kissed you once before," I ventured.

"Many times before."

"No, only once. The other times were when we were children. They don't count."

"Do things that happened when we were children not count—with you?"

"Do they—with you?"

"Ask me, and see."

It had come; the moment of which I had told myself in dreams and visions; the moment to which I had looked forward with a strange fear and a great hope. "Jean," I whispered. "I love you. Will you be my wife?"

As I write the words they seem very bare and matter-of-fact. But they were all that Jean required. She made no spoken answer, but she turned her face to mine, and I drew her up in my strong arms and kissed her in the breathless passion of our young love. . . .

After a time, with one box serving us both, we talked of our future. I hinted that circumstances made our immediate marriage somewhat dependent upon the course that Jack and Marjorie might elect to follow. I took it for granted that Jack and Marjorie would marry, but I was very vague in my idea as to when this would happen.

"I don't think we shall have to wait on Jack and Marjorie," Jean remarked, knowingly. "I rather think they have been waiting on us."

"Then they need wait no longer," I said, boldly. "I am ready at once; now."

"We might make it by Christmas," Jean remarked, more thoughtfully. "We can't afford any special wedding clothes but we can at least afford a few weeks' anticipation."

"Then Christmas be it!" I exclaimed. "Oh, Merry Christmas!"

I was so stirred with a strange new joy that all the future looked rosy and inviting. But, suddenly I felt Jean's arm tighten on my neck and I looked up in her face just in time to catch the splash of a warm tear on my cheek. I was immediately filled with wonder and misgiving. What could make Jean cry in a moment of such happiness? I pressed the question.

"I'm not sorry," she said at length, "but I'm a little—frightened. Not for you; for myself. Oh, my dear Frank, my dear boy—will you always—will we always—love each other as we do tonight?"

Manlike, I assured her that of course we would. She rested her head against mine, and for awhile she seemed to nestle at peace in the soft luxury of our love. But presently a shiver ran through her frame, and drawing back a little, she looked me fairly in the eyes.

"You know, Frank," she murmured, "it seems strange to say it, but I am so glad to get this settled."

"Not gladder than I, little one," said I, shaping my lips to endearments with the awkwardness of my racial reticence. "You couldn't be gladder than I am."

"I have waited so long," she continued, almost disregarding my interruption, "to get it settled—to be sure of myself—to know just what is going to happen."

"To be sure of yourself? How sure of yourself?"

She dropped into a moment's silence, as though studying her words before attempting an answer. "You won't misunderstand, I think, Frank," she said at length, "if I tell you that I have been somewhat like a traveler on the prairie who comes upon two roads, and is not quite sure which he should take. Let us say a storm is sweeping down from the north, and his very life depends on the right decision. But the longer he stands there, looking at them, the harder it is to make the choice. It's a comfort to choose, and be on one's way."

"But suppose he chooses the wrong way?" I blundered out, only half following her meaning.

"Oh, Frank!" she cried, seizing my shoulders in her strong, supple hands. "It mustn't, mustn't, mustn't be the wrong way! I won't have it the wrong way—I won't think of that as possible! See, here we are. And we have known, always, since we were little children, that we were for each other, haven't we, Frank? It has always been settled, in heaven, don't you think, and we have just confirmed it? Oh, I know it has—I know it has!"

"I have never doubted it," I said. And even as I uttered the words the first little poisoned arrow of doubt in some way dodged through my armor and stung me in the heart. Perhaps it was the reaction to Jean's vehemence; perhaps it was that I saw her striving over-hard to convince herself. And from being over-sure I now craved to be assured.

"You are quite sure?" I ventured, after another silence in which I felt that subtle poison slowly chilling through my veins. "You are quite sure you should not have taken the road to section Two?"

"Oh, Frank!" For a moment she buried her face in my shoulder, then she lifted her head proudly, like one who goes forth resolutely to try his spirit in some great issue. "Yes, I'm sure! Spoof is to me only a neighbor, an acquaintance, always. I am quite sure."

"And there was no third trail, no little-beaten third path that might have been the one to be chosen?" I persisted, anxious to stifle my demon of doubt at its birth.

"You are thinking of Brook," she caught me up instantly. "Let that give you no uneasiness. Brook was only an incident—a rather pleasant incident," she added, and for the first time I realized how exquisitely tantalizing Jean could be. "Just an incident, after all. Let's not talk about it, or think about it, any more, at all. Everything is settled."

So, by force of will, we turned our minds into happy, unquestioning channels, and talked of the future, our future—and built fairy dream castles that were most wonderful things to dream about. From time to time Jean stood on the fire but she needed no coaxing to return. Some strange phenomenon had already occurred between us, and Jean, with all her gentleness and beauty and delicacy, no longer walled herself about with quite the same barrier of shyness as had been her custom. But her soul, I knew, was as pure as the snow sifting across the white prairies outside.

At last we had to come back to earth. "It's growing colder," said Jean, as she again replenished the fire. Then, glancing at the little clock on the shelf, "Why, it's after midnight! Jack is late."

"Are you uneasy for him?"

"No—why should I? Jack is all right. And I have you. But I thought he would have been back before this. . . . Listen!"

We strained our ears, and presently became aware that what had seemed to be the silence of the night was really full of noises. The wind whined with an eerie note about the eaves of the little shack, and the tremor of its pressure ran through the board walls and wrung mournful creakings from the slender framework of the building. Above all came a sound of rushing, as though the night itself swept by, drumming on the tin chimneypiece as it went. The incessant lash of snow against the black panes of the windows gave further notice of the rising storm.

"Perhaps I had better go home," I said at length. "Jack is doubtless waiting there until I turn up."

"You have the same privilege to wait here until he turns up," Jean commented. "Still, I suppose it's the right thing to do."

So, reluctantly enough, I got into my pea-jacket, cap, and overshoes, and with Jean's goodnight kiss on my lips, and a promise to come again very soon, I opened the door. The moment I did so the suction of the storm put out the light, and the next instant a hail of icy snow particles lashed through the room. I pressed the door shut again while Jean found matches.

"Such a night!" she exclaimed. "Is it quite safe to try it?"

"Of course! It's not a hundred yards, and I could make it with my eyes shut."

So, with another farewell (for good measure) I started again, Jean shading the lamp while I rushed through the door and closed it behind me. My first sensation was of having been clutched by the neck; of being strangled in a grip which I could not throw off. In a few moments the worst of that sensation passed, and my lungs began pumping violently, working against the partial vacuum created by the storm. It was not very cold, but the snow stung the face where it struck; it clung in the eyebrows, melted, and ran into the eyes, blurring such poor vision as there was in the gaunt grayness that buffeted from every side.

I looked for the light of the shack on Fourteen, but it was nowhere to be seen; evidently its faint rays could not bent their way through the hundred yards of swirling tempest that intervened. So, taking careful note of my directions, I started out, my head bowed to save my face from the lashing of the storm; my legs wallowing uncertainly through the varying depths of drifts.

At length I knew I had come to the edge of the gully; although I could see nothing I was aware that I was going sharply down a steep slope. Here at points the snow was already piled in great drifts and I plunged through it waist deep, only to come suddenly upon a bare, icy spot where I lost my balance and fell. I was now at the bottom of the coulee, and the ascent proved even more difficult than coming down. I had to plow through deep drifts and scramble up icy ledges, and I could only suppose that I had reached the top by the greater violence of the storm. Nothing was to be seen but a gray mist; my eyes were almost completely closed with snow and ice. I was not cold; indeed, I was warm, but I began to realize that my exertions and the strangling sensation I felt in breathing were quickly exhausting me. However, there could not be much further to go, and I pressed on.

It is wonderful how little sense of distance the average man has when deprived of the service of his eyes. He may walk a road every day in the year and yet have but a faint idea of the number of paces it represents. He probably could not tell you how many steps there are in the stairs of his house. As to direction he is even more hopelessly at sea, and when, in addition to these difficulties, he is plunging waist deep through snow drifts and buffeted by a fifty-mile gale he is in imminent danger of becoming hopelessly lost. Just how near to that state I had come I began to realize, and it was with more relief than I would have cared to admit that I at length discerned a faint glow of yellow light battling against the storm and throwing fantastic specters into the night. I was soon at the shack, and, groping my way along the wall, I reached the door and burst in.

Jean was sitting by the stove, her wonderful hair down about her back and neck, her face resting in her hands, her feet on the rail of the stove and her dainty ankles peeping out from under her woolen skirt. But for the moment my appreciation of her charms was buried in amazement.

"Jean! what are you doing here?"

"Frank! You've come back! What is the matter?"

I threw off my mitts and rubbed the snow from my eyes while Jean took my cap and shook it and then stood by, eagerness and apprehension in her face. Then, when I was quite sure I was not in a dream or a mirage, "I guess I'm back on Twenty-two, am I?" I said, as one who, suddenly awakened from sleep, finds it impossible to recall his surroundings.

"You're on Twenty-two all right, but why did you come back? Not that I'm not glad to see you—you know I am, Frank, dear, always—but, why did you come back?"

"I guess it's because my time hasn't come," I answered, soberly. "I've heard of getting turned around in a storm, but I didn't know it could happen so easily. I suppose it was when I fell at the bottom of the gully."

(Continued on Page 6)

WRIGLEY'S

makes your food do you more good.

Note how it relieves that stuffy feeling after hearty eating.

Sweetens the breath, removes food particles from the teeth, gives new vigor to tired nerves.

Comes to you fresh, clean and full-flavored.

HUDSON-ESSEX WORLD'S LARGEST SELLING "SIXES"

New Low Prices

HUDSON

Quality Gave This Volume
Volume Gave These Prices

The COACH

$1165

The Brougham $1450
The 7-Pass. Sedan $1650

Freight and Tax Extra

And for those who desire, these cars may be purchased for a low first payment. The remaining payments conveniently arranged.

H. R. FOWLER, Charlevoix

AUCTION SALE

The undersigned will sell at public Auction on his farm, located about a half mile west of the Marion Center Grange hall, near the Wm. Withers dairy farm, on

Monday, Nov. 16

Beginning at 12:30 standard time, the following described property:

Part Jersey Cow, 6 yrs. old, fresh in Sep.
Guernsey Cow, 4 yrs. old, fresh in May Jersey Cow, 5 yrs. old, fresh in Dec.
Jersey cow, 3 yrs. old, fresh in Feb.
Red Cow, 8 yrs. old, fresh in April
Red Cow, 7 yrs. old, fresh in March
Red Cow, 8 yrs. old, fresh in Feb.
Black Cow, 4 yrs. old, fresh in March
Red Cow, 9 yrs. old, fresh in Feb.
Guernsey Cow, 5 yrs. old, fresh in March
Red Cow, 5 yrs. old, fresh in March
Red Cow, 6 yrs. old, fresh in March
Jersey Bull, 3 yrs. old
Jersey Heifer, 2 yrs. old, fresh in Feb.
Guernsey Heifer, 2 yrs. old, fresh in Feb.
Jersey Heifer, 8 months old
Red Heifer 7 months old
Black Horse, 9 yrs. old, wt. 1400
Bay Mare, 9 yrs. old, wt. 1200
5 Pigs, 8 months old
160 rods of Woven Wire, 50 inches high
20 rods of Chicken Wire

Some Beet Tops
2 Spring-tooth Harrows
Spike-tooth Harrow
Empire Grain Drill
Superior Beet Drill
2 Spike-tooth Cultivators
Deering Mowing Machine, 5 ft. cut
2 Lumber Wagons
DeLaval Separator, No 15, new
Beet Box
Land Roller Disc
2 Pair Sleighs
Set of Heavy Harness Hay Rake
About 6 tons mixed Hay
About 6 tons Oat Straw
About 4 loads Buckwheat, not threshed
Hay Fork, complete outfit
18x24 ft. Barn Frame
Over 100 feet Lumber
Hoes, Shovels, Forks and other small articles too numerous to mention

TERMS OF SALE

All sums of $10.00 or under, cash; all sums over $10.00, seven months time will be given on good, approved, endorsed bankable paper bearing interest at 7 per cent, payable at the Charlevoix County Bank. Five per cent off for cash on all sums over $10.00. No goods to be removed until terms of sale are complied with and all settlements to be made on day of sale.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Nekvasil, Props.

H. J. TIMMER, Clerk
ROBERT BRIDGE, Note Clerk

W. E. BYERS, Auctioneer.

W. E. Byers, Auctioneer

Twenty years experience in handling Auction Sales, both on farm and household goods.

Let Me Cry Your Sales

Phone me at Charlevoix or call the Charlevoix Courier, where all dates are made.

Cups for Lunch Furnished if Requested

The Turning Point

IN each life there comes a turning point where money is absolutely necessary. Nothing takes its place. It has no substitute. When that turning point comes in your life—as it does to every one in the world—will you have money in Bank here to meet it?

Charlevoix State Savings Bank

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

W. S. Richardson, President.
A. D. Crimmins, Vice President.
Archie Livingston, Cashier.
G. W. Richardson, Asst. Cashier.

The CHARLEVOIX COURIER
Issued every Wednesday at
CHARLEVOIX - MICHIGAN

DuBois & Usher, Publishers
A. J. Usher, Editor and Business Mgr.
Courier Building Van Pelt Place

Entered at the Post Office in Charlevoix, Mich., as second class matter.

Member Michigan Press Ass'n.

Advertising Rates.

For advertising rates apply for schedule.

Notices of church or lodge socials and entertainments, where admission is charged, regular rates.

Obituary poetry, regular rates.

Card of Thanks, 25 cents.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

One copy, one year.....$2.00
One copy, six months.....$1.00
One copy, three months..... .60

NATIONAL INCOME GROWS AT RATE OF $1,500,000,000 YEARLY

Statistics gathered over a number of years show that production in the United States has been growing at the rate of about 4 per cent annually. After taking into consideration n 2 per cent annual incrense in population, it is estimated that the per capitn income in this country ls increasing approximately 2 per cent every year. In terms of dollnrs this means that the nationnl income is mounting by nearly $1,500,000,000 nnnually. Casting aside old ideas, scrapping old machinery for more effieient equipment and mnking every employed dollar do its full share—those things havo meant greater production in American industry and a high standard of living for the American people.

The individual income, like the national income, mounts ns the productivity of the saved dollars of that income is increased. The best way to get the most in earning power from surplus funds is to employ them in honest, ably-managed enterprise. To employ his dollars profitably, however, the individual must cast aside the old erroneous idea that money can be depended on to yield huge returns. He must avoid sheer waste by keeping his money out of the get-rich-quick schemes that are paraded by crooks, and that add nothing to his income or the wealth of the country. And he must keep down over-head expense of investing by trusting his money to such seasoned businesses as show by their ability to make money year after year that they are employing money efficiently, rather than to the untried and highly speculative enterprises in which his money is very apt to lie idle for long periods or be lost entirely.

MeCools's Velvet Ice Cream now on sale at the Creamery Building, 105 Clinton street.—Adv. 45tf.

ANOTHER OPPORTUNITY TO GET-RCH-QUICK

Every now and then there comes to the office of this paper a highly-colored circular unfolding a golden opportunity to get-rich-quick. Sometimes these opportunities are brought in by well-menning friends; less frequently by someone seekIng advice. Usually, however, they come through the mails. Whether mining stocks, oil stocks, fur farms or something else is offered, the opportunity is always the same, a chance to get something for almost nothing. Here in a few words is an analysis of a recent, typicnl prospectus:

Enthusiasm, generalities, dream stuff, and high-sounding promises—98 per cent.

Entertaining fiction a la "best sellers"—1 per cent.

Definite actual facts—1 per cent.

This circular offers mining stock. In illusive and most-convincing diction, the mines are deserlbed as the wonders of the age. Very fancy comparisons are made between them and the famous bonanzas of the world. New strikes are being mnde every day. The stock, according to the prospectus will soon be out of reach; in fact, announcement is made of an advance in price in the near future. The advice is to get in at once.

This circular, like so many of the others, mnkes very few clear-cut, definite statements. Everything is very cleverly qualified. Undoubtedly, there is gold in the mine. How much is uncertain. The run may go on for years, or it may play out in a few weeks. The prospectus gives no hint of the hazards of the speculation. It tells nothing of the character or ability of the men at the head of the enterprise. It does not say that about 35 per cent of all mining ventures are utter failures. It holds out nothing better than glib promises which may or may not be realized, and whlch, at best, like the promised rlse in the stock price, mean little or nothing to the person who is asked to take a chance with his money.

Give that car battery the attention it should have. It will soon be time for winter storage. Call 60 and we will take care of it. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 44-tf.

POPULAR YOUNG LADY MARRIES

Miss Kathryn Gaskio Becomes Bride of F. Russell Blakeslee

A wedding which eame somewhat as a surprise to Charlevoix friends of the contracting parties was solemnized last Tuesday, November 3, when Miss Kathryn E. Gaskin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Gaskin of this city beeame the bride of F. Russell Blakeslee, son, of Mr. and Mrs. B. N. Blakeslee of Ypsilanti.

The young couple were unattended at the ceremony which took place at the Chaneellery of St. Aloysius church in Detroit, Michigan, Rev. Fr. Gettler pronouneing the marriage vows.

Mrs. Blakeslee is a graduate of the Charlevoix high school and a former student at Northwestern University at Chicago. She was a very populnr member of the younger socinl set of the city and is well nnd favornbly known. Mr. Blakeslee is a graduate of the Unlversity of Michigan and a former principal of the Charlevoix high school. He is now teaching at the Cass Technical high school, Detroit, where the young couple will make their home.

The Courier, with their many friends, wish them a long and prosperous married life.

SAVE YOUR CIDER APPLES. We have new oak 45 gallon barrels, 10 gallon or 5 gallon kegs nnd prices right. Good dill pickles too. Phone 25J. Charlevoix Pickle Co.—Adv. 45tf.

DEATH CALLS OLD PIONEER RESIDENT

Had Been Ill Over Two Years—A Life-Long Resident

Chas. Hull, a resident of Charlevoix for the past 58 years died at his home on State street last Saturday morning, November 7, after an illness of two month's duration. He had been in poor health for the past two yenrs.

Deceased was born in Charlevoix in 1867, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Hull. They then resided on a farm in Marion township, moving to this city when he a young man. Besides his wife, Mr. Hull is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Hazel Hayes of Elston, Saskatchewan, Canadn; one sister, Mrs. Thomas Tnylor of Charlevoix, and two brothers, Ferd and Will, both of this city. He was a member of the Odd Fellows, Encampment, Carpenters' Union and the Rebekahs.

Funeral servlees were held at the home, 1202 State stret, Monday, Rev. Herman Burns of the Baptist church, officiating. Interment at Brookside eemetery .

HOSPITAL NOTES

Mrs. Homer Brady and infant son returned to their home last week from the hospital.

Mrs. Sherman Connelly of East Jordan, was operated on Sunday for the removal of gall stones. She is doing nicely.

Supt's. Report for October

No patients admitted	16
No patients discharged	16
No days eare of patients	186
Average No. per day	6
Medical cases	3
Surgical eases	8
Aceident cases	3
Obstetrical eases	2
Births	1
Deaths	3
Highest No. any day	11
Lowest No. any day	4
No. meals served	1323
No. patients in hospital Oct. 1	9
No. patients in hospital Nov. 1	9

24c per gallon buys the best high test gasoline at Brown and Wallace. —Adv. 45tf

Carter's Underwear

For Ladies

Warmth without weight. Comfortable, trim and close fitting.

Your next buy should be Carter's

$1.00 and up.

M. A. Levinson & Co.

SUITS and OVERCOATS

Latest Styles and Patterns

$20 to $40

We are closing out our stock of Ladies Slickers

Prices reduced from $8.50 to $5.00

Cleaning and Pressing

F. E. CARTIER, Tailor and Cleaner

PHONE 248

REPRESENTATIVES URGED TO ATTEND

Betterment of M-11 to Be Topic of Discussion

The following communication was received Monday by F. E. Cartier, president of the local Chamber of Commerce from B. C. Beukema, secretnry manager of the Greater Muskegon Chamber of Commerce, cnlling a meeting of the committee appointed at the Manistee meeting recently held, to meet at Traverse City on November 13th to discuss matters pertaining to the further improvement of M-11. The letter follows in part and explains itself.

"To facilitate action toward presenting Michigan's claims for further improvement of M-11 from Benzonia north, I am calling a confernce of the committee appointed at the Manistee meeting recently on this matter to be held nt the Pnrk Hotel, Traverse City, Friday noon, November 13th, 1925, central standard time.

I would suggest that representatives of all the counties from Benzonin north bring with them to this meeting data as to the total of paved and unpnved highway on M-11 in their respective counties and any other information that may be pertinent to this discussion.

Yours very truly,
J. C. Beukema."

It is time to make arrangements for storage of your car battery for the winter. Call phone 60 and we will do the rest. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 44-tf.

Ruta bagas for sale. Grown on new ground. See Shapton Brothers, Lou or Earl, or phone 7013-f-13.—44-t2.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

Rev. B. G. Mattsoo, Pastor

Morning service at 10:30 with sermon by the pastor dealing with the notable gathering of the national Congregational council recently held in Washington.

12:00 Sunday school.

6:00 Y. P. S. C. E. meeting led by LaRue Higman.

7:00 Evening service with closing sermon in the series on America's share Promoting World Peace.

Ironton service at 2:30 Sunday.

WIRING SYSTEM
—for lifetime service
WOOD BROTHERS
—Adv. 43tf.

Canned Foods Week

November 9th. to 21st.

Stock Your Pantry Now

Save by Buying in Dozen Lots

It will be a pleasure for us to serve you during this Special Sale, and we extend to you a cordial invitation to visit our store and inspect the most complete stock of high grade foods and canned goods in this city.

MARTIN BLOCK

Opposite Post Office

Phone 12 or 142

Ride the Greyhounds to any Place on the Map

PARLOR AND OBSERVATION COACHES

—clean
—safe
—dependable
—warm

Complete information on all divisions in the Greyhound Time Table. Get yours at Hotel Charlevoix.

The Southland

THE SCENIC ROUTE to Florida

Daily train through the Picturesque Cumberland and Blue Ridge Mountains by Daylight.

Through sleepers Grand Rapids to St. Petersburg, serving Tarpon Springs, Clearwater, Belleair.

Observation-Club Car, sleeping cars, dining car and coaches.

Lv. Grand Rapids 6:45 p. m. daily
Lv. Ft. Wayne 11:50 p. m. daily

Passengers for Tampa may transfer enroute into Tampa sleepers on same train. Excellent service to Jacksonville and all Central Lake Region and West Coast Resorts.

Via Cincinnati and the L. & N. R. R.

For Tickets Apply to Local Agents, or Address A. E. Bolle, Div. Pass. Agent Pennsylvania Bldg., Grand Rapids

Pennsylvania Railroad

THE OLDEST BANK IN CHARLEVOIX COUNTY
FORTY-FIRST YEAR IN BUSINESS

1884 1925

"One Hundred Dollars"

placed in a Savings Account is just another way of spelling "opportunity." If you have not managed to save that first "hundred" why not step into the bank today—with one dollar or more—and make the start.

We will do all that a good bank should do to help.

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY BANK

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN
Nicholls, Buttars & Bridge, Bankers
THE BANK ON THE CORNER

LOCAL NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

Get the Habit—Read the Courier

It Might Be Worse

When snow begins to fly around and show some signs of stickin',
A portion of our populace rares up
and starts to kickin',
Forgettin' that Old Winter, 'spite of ice and sleet and chill,
Ain't got a corner on the things that make us human ill.
Last August, when the days was hot,
with nights a dern sight hotter,
With flies so thick your fingers almost grew fast to the swatter,
Mosquitos run you ragged and you felt as though you'd burn—
Recall the times you heaved a sigh and wish't the weather'd turn?
Well, folks, it turned, and here it be
—Jack Frost all hale and hoary,
And now we got to rastle stoves and shovel snow like glory!
So when your feet get chilblains and your ears get nipped, don't curse—
It can't be always cold—or hot—and it always might be worse!

William Hlgman has gone to Florida for the winter.

J. W. Colden of Clarion, was a Charlevoix visitor last week.

Arthur VonDolcke of Detroit, is in the city this week on buisness.

Ed. Boyle of St. James, was in the city Monday on his way to Chicago.

Arthur Wexstaff and family left last week to spend the winter months in Florida.

E. N. Clink of East Jordan, was in the city Wednesday, on business at the court house.

John Curtis and fnmily left last week for Florida, where they will spend the winter months.

Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Moran returned Saturday evening of last week from a business trip to Detroit.

Henry Newberry of Michigan City, Ind., attended the funeral of his mother here on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Dell Hale of St. James, spent Sunday last at the W. E. Driggett home in this city.

Clayton McFarlane left Tuesday for Hollywood, California, where he will spend the winter months.

E. A. Ruegsegger of Boyne City, was in the city Wednesday morning on busness at the court house.

The W. C. T. U. will meet this week Friday at the home of Mrs. Oluf Nordrum, 105 Park avenue.

Henry Partridge, bookeeper at the Argo Milling Co., is in Grand Rapids, where he was called as juror.

Charles Ferguson of Chicago, spent the week end here at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Larry Chase.

Ed. Deuel, game warden for this district, was in town Tuesday morning on business nt the court house.

All business places in the city were closed from 10:30 on Wednesday, in observance of Armistice day.

Will Proctor was in the city Monday, on his way home to Cheboygan, after n visit made at Beaver Island.

Mrs. C. M. Hnll of Detroit, wns in the city on Wednesday of this week, attending the funeral of Mrs. Chas. See.

Cnpt. Peter Green came over from Beaver Island, Monday, accompanied by his mother, on their way to Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. S. O. Sorensen of this city are enjoying a two week's vacation trip, to points outside the state.

Mrs. E. Dutton of Saginaw, was in the city on Wednesday of this week, attending the funeral of Mrs. Etta Newberry.

R. F. Sloan returned Sunday from Chattanooga, Tennessee, where he was called on account of the illness of his mother.

Parm C. Gilbert nrrived from Traverse City Wednesday morning to preside over the adjourned session of circuit court.

Harold Taylor expects to leave on Wednesdny of this week for Southern Pines, North Carolina, where he will spend the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Andy McCall, Jr. and daughter, Kathleen, spent the week end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Shafer in Petoskey.

Lou E. See arrived in the city Wedneday morning from Warm Springs, Oregon, called here by the denth of his mother.

"Fish" Halverson left last Snturday for Northport, Michigan, where he will gather spawn for the government fish hatchery here.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Davey of Chicago, are in the city this week, visiting at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Davey.

Mr. and Mrs. Jud Markham have gone to Lebanon, Pennsylvania, where they will visit at the home of their daughter for a month.

Bert Ackert and family of Frankfort, Mich., spent the week end in the city visiting his sister, Mrs. John Loskot and other relatives.

Millard Olney leavea on Thursday of this week for the Snow Islands, where he will spend the next two weeks on a deer hunting trip.

Mrs. Schuler and daughter, Claribel, of Muskegon, are in the city this week, called here by the death af their aunt, Mrs. Etta Newberry.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sterritt arrived from Rochester, Minn., where Mr. Sterritt has been receiving medical attention at Mayo Brother's hospital.

Walter Scattergood and Charles Henneka of Petoskey, were in the city on Wednesday of this week trying their luck at perch fishing.

Hugh Nelson returned from Detroit last Saturday, driving back a new Graham truck for the Benj. Brown Auto Sales of this city.

John Hallett is home from French Lick Springs, Ind., where he spent a short time vsiting at the home of his brother, Irving and family.

Miss Irene Bogart left last Saturday for Grand Rapids, where she will spend some time taking medical treatments for mastoid trouble.

The Literary and Sewing Club of the M. E. church will meet at the home of Mrs. Grant Crandall on Thursday afternoon, November 12.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Price left last Saturday for Flint and Detroit, where they will visit their daughters and friends, before going to Florida for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Allard and Mrs. Prescott Adams are in the city this week, called here by the death of Mrs. Etta Newberry.

W. C. Feuhrer of Boyne City, was in town on Wednesday, being the principal speaker at the American Legion Armistice day program at the Palace theatre.

Percy Wooley, Elmer Engalls, Bert Elliott, and Oakley Hammond leave on Thursday morning of this week for the upper peninsula on a deer hunting trip.

A very large crowd enjoyed the old-time dancing party at the Odd Fellow hall last Friday evening. Other parties of similar nature will be held in the near future.

Mrs. H. C. Plum left on Tuesday of this week for Kalamazoo, where she will visit her sister for a short time before going to Detroit to spend the winter with her daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. David Denny of Ellsworth, also their son, Fred Denny of Owosso, spent last Thursday at the home of their son and brother, E. L. Denny and family of this city.

George Brown returned last Saturday from Detroit driving back a new Willis-Knight sedan purchased by W. L. Fuenrer of Boyne City, for the Benj. Brown Auto Sales.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Usher and daughters, Lucille and Alice, also Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Usher and daughter, Ardis, visited friends and relatives in East Jordan last Sunday.

Rev. Herman Burns of the Baptist church, spent last Friday evening in Petoskey, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. R. Brown. Mrs. Brown was formerly Miss Ruby Hull of this city.

R. Duskin of Grand Rapids, was in the city Wednesdny morning on business. He is accompanied by his wife and they will leave here for the upper peninsula on a deer hunting trip.

Mrs. A. Cameron will leave Charlevoix on Friday of this week for Chicago, where she will visit until after the holidays. She will then go to Floridn to spend the winter months.

Miss Mildred Parker, who is spending the winter in Grand Rapids and nttending Ottawa Hills high school, spent the week end as guest of Miss Phyllis Auld at the latter's home near Big Rapids.

Mrs. Thomas Powell, accompanied by her twa children, Ruby and Charles, leave on Wednesday of this week for Columbia, N. C., where they will spend the winter with their husband nnd father.

Theodore Erickson arrived in the city Monday morning from Holland, Michigan, and will leave Wednesday or Thursday of this week in company with Joe Cooper on their annual deer huntiug trip.

Archie Belding, Frank F. Bird, Oral Lewis, Esrl Shapton and W. C. Feuhrer, superintendent of Boyne City schools, leave on Thursday of this week for the eastern part of the state on a deer hunting trip.

Olive Nowland entertained Mrs. Nielson, Mrs. Ruder and two daughters, Mr. Thompson and Mr. and Mrs. Ben Nowland at dinner Monday. Covers were laid for eleven: The occasion was a very enjoyable one.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Nowland left on Wednesday of this week for Lansing, where they will spend a week visiting, and go from there to Detroit and Cleveland, Ohio, and eventually locate for the winter months.

Joel Johnston, who recently moved onto the Godbold farm north of town, will leave Thursday for points in Canada, New York atate and West Virginia and from there to Florida, where he will spend the winter months.

Robert Bridge, Robert Madill, H. D. Marshall, Chas. Marshall and Sam Hamilton left Sunday, returning on Tuesday, to the southern part of the atate inspecting water pump attachments for the fire truck at Newaygo and Kalamazoo.

Harold Meggison leaves on Saturday of this week for a five day's visit in Grand Rapids. He will leave from there for Petoskey where he will meet his father, Thomas Meggison, and the two will continue to the north woods on a deer hunting trip.

Ulysses McCann's new boat, the Sea Hawk, made the trip across from the island last Thursday night during the heavy blow with a load of fish for Booth Fisheries. McCann made the trip across to the lee of Fox island and then rode in with the wind.

Dr. W. W. Mitchell; R. L. Lewis, M. A. Levinson, K. C. Hammet, A. J. Usher, Lee Smith, N. R. Washburn, Grant Crandell, J. R. Cooper and W. E. Byers attend a perch supper and evening entertainment given at the Elks Temple in Petoskey last Thursday evening.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Walter Sinkback at Hackley hospital, Muskegon, Wednesday, November 4, a fine son. Mother and child doing well. Mrs. Sinkback will be remembered as Miss Laura Howard, daughter of Charles Howard, former Charlevoix residents.

The voice of Loren A. Hart, well known local young man, will be broadcasted from station WQJ, Wrigley building, Chicago, on Thursday and Sunday evening next, from 8:00 to 10:00 p. m. Tune in and show your appreciation by wiring him that you enjoyed his program.

Fred Hull of this city, was painfully injured on Tuesday of this week was a timber on which he was working on Mont Withers' restaurant broke, letting him fall to the floor below. He sustained a couple broken ribs and other minor bruises which will lay him up for some time.

Chas. H. Emrey went to Cheboygan, Tuesday morning, where he will attending a meeting of county clerks from counties in northern Michigan. Matters pertaining to the issuance of 1926 auto licenses will be discussed, the meeting having been called by the secretary of state for this purpose.

Notice

The dance advertised for Friday, the 13th at the Oldham Club, under the auspices of the Woman's Relief Corps, has been postponed indefinitely.—Adv. 45-t1.

Don't allow your battery to freeze. Call us for winter storage and save the expense of a new battery. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 44-tf.

Saturday Specials

For the people who did not take advantage of our Ketchup Special last Saturday, we are going to repeat the offer for this week end. Many who bought last week will buy more this week. Our Washing powder is a good one and a money-saver. Get all you need while we have the stock on hand,

KETCHUP, 8 1-2 ounce bottle, Saturday for.....

10c

STAR-NAPTHA WASHING POWDER Saturday for.....

20c

Milton Block

COURIER BARGAIN COLUMN.

Courier Want Advs. are One Cent per word per insertion. Minimum charge is 20 cents per insertion, for anything under 20 words. All Want Advs. are strictly cash in advance except to those who have ledger accounts. Please remember this when sending in your copy.

LOST

LOST—Small gray purse. Finder please leave at this office.—45-t1.

FOR SALE—MISCELLANEOUS

FOR SALE—Ruta bagas, grown on new ground. See Shapton Brothers, Lou and Earl, or phone 7013-f-1-3.—44t2.

FOR SALE—Four-roll Deering corn husker on trucks. In good running order. Geo. S. Parsons, Charlevoix, R. F. D. 4.—43-t2.

FOR SALE — Building material. Save 50 per cent in building. Phone W. S. Shaw Co., No. 75, Boyne City, for prices on lumber (boards and scantling,) steel beams, brick, pipe, pipe fittings and roofing.—40t10.

FOR RENT—HOUSE

FOR RENT—5 room bungalow at inside toilet. Call phone 18.—45tf.

FOR SALE—LIVE STOCK

FOR SALE—Matured, registered Guernsey bull. Have pedigree. Herman DeYounge, Ellsworth, Michigan. 44-t2pd

FOR SALE—purebred Holstein bull, 2 years old, weight 1400, price $60. Phone 7012-f22, William Skye, Ironton, Mich.—44-t4-pd.

FOR SALE—CITY PROPERTY

FOR SALE—Twenty-room house, modernly equipped with hot and cold water in rooms, baths, etc. This is a splendid business opportunity for anyone desiring to get into the board and room business in the best resort town in northern Michigan. House is beautifully located on a series of natural terraces overlooking Charlevoix harbor and has had a high-class patronage of resort people. Owner has other intereats to look after. This is a first-class, money-making proposition and worth looking into. Address all inquires to this paper.—42-t4.

WANTED—MISCELLANEOUS

CASH for Dental Gald, Platinum, Silver, Diamonds, magneto points, false teeth, jewelry, and valuables. Mail today. Cash by return mail. Hoke S. & R., Otsego, Mich.—12-tf.

MISCELLANEOUS

FOR INFORMATION regarding Florida land and investments, write Ernest E. Galloway, 845 N. W. 2nd St., Miami, Florida, Licensed Broker.—36-tf.

Friday and Saturday Specials
NOVEMBER 13th and 14th

Ladies' Cotton Fleeced Union Suits, high neck, long sleeves, ankle length, sizes 42 and 44, $1.50 to $2.50 values, Friday and Saturday special.....$1.00
Ladies' Ribbed Vests, long sleeves, high neck, sizes 36 to 48, $1.00 to $1.35 values.....85c
Ladies' Ribbed Pants, ankle length, sizes 38 to 46, $1.00 to $1.35 values.....85c
Ladies' Light Weight Ribbed Pants, assorted sizes, 75c values, special.....49c
Ladies' Light Weight Vests, ribbed, assorted sizes, 75c values, special.....49c

10 Days Sale on Groceries

Good 4-sewed Brooms for.....39c
Fancy bulk 45c Coffee, 3 lbs. for.....$1.25
Fancy Rio Coffee, bulk 35c lb., 3 lbs. for.....$1.00
3 lbs. good Jap Tea for.....$1.35
5 cans of 25c Pineapple for.....$1.00
3 large cans of Pineapple for.....$1.00
24 1-2 lbs. Producer Flour, $1.25; by the barrel....$9.75
24 1-2 lbs. Sweet Loaf Flour $1.30; barrel.....$10.00
Seal of Minnesota Flour, barrel.....$9.35

9 bars of P. & G. Soap.....
2 bars Guests Ivory Soap.....
1 bar Medium Ivory Soap.....
1 pkg. Ivory Soap Flakes.....
1 pkg. Chipso.....
1 large Galvanized Pail.....

98c

GROCERIES IN QUANTITY AT LOW PRICES

A. E. MASON

NEW PALACE THEATRE

ATTRACTIONS FOR THE COMING WEEK

Saturday and Sunday, November 14th and 15th

George O'Brien and Madge Bellamy in "HAVOC" "Havoc" is a tremendous drama of society woven into a realistic background of the war. It is a play potent with drama and the spectacular. It will thrill and entertain you all the way thru. The great scenes of London night life are more elaborate than a Parisian fashion revue. Also a rip-roaring comedy, "Desert Blues."

Wednesday, November 17th

Madge Bellamy in "WINGS OF YOUTH," Love, gladness, laughter soar high on the "Wings of Youth"—Are you sad? Fly off to happiness on the Wings of Youth to the Palace Theatre where you can enjoy your evening by seeing this real picture. You will also be there to see this funny comedy, "Motor Mad."

Tuesday, November 18th

"Private Affairs," the saying goes — Tell one and you tell the world—Your Private Affairs. At that the world may know more than you know yourself about your "Private Affairs." This play is rich indeed in comedy and human interest. Travel the world in the News Reels. We offer News Reel No. 4. What will we see this time?

Our Studio Will be Open All Winter

The Priest Studio will be open all winter during the usual hours for the accommodation of people of Charlevoix and vicinity.

Get Your Sittings for Picture Gifts Early

Don't wait until just before Christmas, because there is a chance of being disappointed. J. P. Foley of Petoskey, will be here to assist in the work. We guarantee you the very best of work. Call or phone for appointments.

PRIEST'S STUDIO

Phone 135

Neighbors

By
ROBERT STEAD

Author of "The Cow Puncher," "The Homesteader"

WNU Service
Copyright by Robert Stead

(Continued from page five.)

"Well, you're here, nad we're not going to take any more chnaes," said Jaan, slipping her arms nbout my neck when I had told her. "We're going to hnve a little supper, and if Juck doesn't come you will stay until he does."

Jean hustled uhout aad my eyes followed every grnceful movemeut ua sha prepsred hot tea nnd mnde tosst nt the fire, aad found a jar of preserves thst she had cached nwsy for some special occasion. Aad when we had finished our hetrothsl banquet sha gnve me a lamp and sent ms into Jack'a room. And aftsr s littls bar limpid volca called to me a last goodnight, and through the open doorway of my partition—we could not afford unnecessary doors in those days—I saw her slender hand tossing me a caress. And then her light went out, and I lay under Jack's warm blankets listening to the roar of the storm and hoping Jack was quite all right, and marvelling at the amount of happiness one human heart can hold. My doubts were gone; my faith was again the faith of a little child. And my mind wandered back into the past and picked up again those tender days of childhood when Jean and I played together beside the dam, and the sober millwheel across the stream flung its myriads of diamonds in the sir. And Jean had saved me in those days, and I was to be hers—hers nnd she mine, forever!

* * * * * * * *

I uwnkened with a consciousness that the shack was very, very cold. Under the blankets I was warm enough, but the breath with which I filled my lungs was the breath of the Arctic. The cabin was in inky darkness. Outside, the whine of the gale had risen to a roar, and the frail timbers of the little shanty creaked and trembled under its fury. I thought of Jack, nnd wondered. The telephone—best of nll God's gifts through the invsative mind of man to those who live in the isolation of vast distnnces—was us yet not in geaeral use on the prairies. As I look tonight at the telephone on my desk by means of which I can speak instantly to Juck's house or any other house in the neighborhood I um reminded thut these mlrucles of todny ure accepted as mucb as a mattier of course thut we ure in daager of forgetting what the world wss before they came. But thut night there was no telephone on my wall, or Juck's; no lire-shod messengers from house to house could beur through the storm ths cheerful news that all was well.

So I thought of Jack and wondered. Jean lnd accepted his absence with composure; she afterwards said that Brook, the monnted policeman, lud told her that the man who was prairie wise, when caught away from lome by a storm, stayed where he was safe, even if his doing so occasioned sone unensiness to his friends.

"It is better that your friends should hs uneasy while the storm is on than that they should follow you with flowers when the weather clears," Brook had declared, and Jean, after accepting the philosophy, had passed it on to Jnck. She had no doubt that he was as safe on Fourteen as was I on Twenty-two.

But I had none of this philosophy to steady me, and I was decidedly uneasy nbout Jack. My brief wrestle with the storm lnd shown me how easy it was to become hopelessly lost even among the most familiar surroundings nnd how soon exhaustion would overpower one. A little irresistible shiver of nervousness run up my spine as I realized how fortunate I had been in coming back to my starting point. I might have missed it und gone on into the night.

As the frost settled down about me I at length, by a great effort, sprang out of bed and went groping for my clothes. I was not yet pioneer enough to know thnt it is fine business in very cold weather to sleep with your clothing, or at least your underwear and socks, under your pillow; it dessens the ordeal of that first bresk from the warm blankets into the wintry atmosphere. At length I found my clothes aad scrambled into them, chatterlng snd blowing prodigiously in the operation. No msa—atill less womnn—knows what baste he can develop in his dressing operstions nntil he has hnd a below-zero temperature as a pacemaker.

Fiadlag matches I lighted my lamp sad sniiled forth into the main room. Tha boards beneath me creaked dismally ua my weight came upon them; a drift of snow several feet in length and the shapa of a great fish had formed acroas the roou as a reault of a crack in tho door; the stove was ice cold; the water palls were frozen over; the little clock on the shelf had stopped. My watch was of better mettia sad revealed the fact that it was seven-thirty. We had slept well.

I made shavlaga from a poplar stick in the wood box aad soon had a fiaa fire roaring. When once it waa atarted tha great draft of tha storm drew it impetuously up the sheet-iron pipea, and I was obliged to apply ths damper. No more unhappy irony can befall ths bomestaadar thsa to burn down his shack in his attempts to warm it.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE CO

Use Long Distance to Maintain the Home Influence

Boys and girls away at school or out in the world making their own way, surely will appreciate an occasional telephone call from Mother or Dad, telling all the home news. And of course Mother and Dad will appreciate hearing the voices of the absent loved ones.

News From Home

Search Your Attic For Old Stamps

Fortunes Have Been Found on Old Envelopes

Many old stamps, both U. S. and Confederate, are worth from $50 to $5,000. The hobby of stamp collecting is of far greater importance nowadays than in times past when it was generally considered as a pastime for schoolboys only. Today collectors eagerly seek out and pay huge prices for those stamps which are scarce to the point of being worth hundreds or, even thousands of dollars. Last year in Paris at a stamp sale one stamp of British Guiana was sold for $32,500—this being the highest price ever paid for a single stamp. People who make a bonfire of "grandfather's letters" do not realize they may be burning rare stamps, which if sold might make them rich.

Make a thorough search through attics and storerooms for old letters mailed from 1845 to 1870. Keep the letters if you wish, but send the envelopes (or folded letters) to Mr. Harold C. Brooks, Box 322, Marshall, Michigan. Mr. Brooks, who is mayor of his city, is a private collector and is said to pay better prices than a dealer. During the past twelve years he has paid thousands of dollars for envelopes bearing old stamps. He specializes in United States and Confederate stamps, but also collects Canadian and other foreign issues, provided they are on the original envelopes and mailed not later than 1870. Loose stamps he does not buy except very old issues unused or mounted collections formed before 1890. Revenue stamps such as found on old photographic mortgages, deeds, etc., are not wanted. Other things like old coins, Confederate money, old relics, may have value, but he is not interested in these.

Shown below are illustrations of a few rare stamps and the amounts Mr. Brooks agrees to pay to anyone who may find them. Beside these are many others of equal value.

Alexandria, Va., 1845 $3000.00 — Millbury, Mass., 1847 $1200.00

St. Louis, Mo., 1845 $1000.00 — Athens, Ga., 1861 (Red) $400.00

Beside the rarities, Mr. Brooks buys many of the commoner stamps, so nothing should be thrown away even though many stamps appear to be exact duplicates. Stamps should not be cut off as any stamp on the original envelope is worth more, collectors being interested in the postmark as well as the stamp. Nothing should be written on the face of the envelope. When making up a bunch of envelopes, be sure they are well wrapped and protected with cardboard to prevent their becoming wrinkled in transit. If you have reason to believe your envelopes are of special value send them by registered or insured mail. The advertising manager of this paper has known Mr. Brooks for many years, and you may place fullest confidence in his integrity. On receipt of envelopes he will examine them and report promptly their value. If they are not purchased, he guarantees to return them in good order.

If you have no old letters written during or before the Civil War, show this notice to your friends—especially those whose families have lived in the same house for several generations. Many old families, old banks and law firms still have stored away hundreds of letters, writing either to be burned or sold for large sums. Before destroying such envelopes or folded letters investigate their value. Mr. Brooks' address in as follows:

HAROLD C. BROOKS,
Box 322, Marshall, Mich.

* * * * * * * * * * *
* INTERESTING BITS OF INFORMATION CLIPPED FROM OUR EXCHANGES FRESHENING BREEZES *
* * * * * * * * * * *

Thieves nt Knlamazoo pried open a refrigerator car and took 64 dozen strictly fresh eggs and escaped without leaving a trace. Some people get all the breaks.

"The only way to cut down accidents is to drive und walk by the signals," declared a traffic expert at Saginaw. That isn't what the cop says when you drive hy one.

No need to sympathize with the Benton Harbor fellow who was caught peeping into the window of the jail snd was confined in a cell. It is now his own look-out.

The license, motor number nnd serial number nre given of a truck which wns loaded with onions when stolen at Kalamazoo. Three numbers snd one smell should be enough to identify sny car.

Three thousand one hundred and fifty-five sheep are now grszing on land that formerly belonged to Camp Custer. They shall beat their swords into plowshsres and their army shoe soles into lsmb chops.

"Large flocks of geese seen going southwsrd," snys an Owosso headline. They have probably decided they had better have a look at those Florida lots they bought some time ngo.

An Adrain man has been arrested because he threatened to shoot himself—and is even said to have reported the threat himself. Some people are alwnys looking for something to eomplain about.

The statement by a Battle Creek physieian that liquor and automobile gasce are to blama for the prevalent disease of the throat will lend muny, it is believed, to nvoid drinking nny large quantities of automobiles gases.

An automobilist driving near Petoskey, according to n news item, "broke his windshield when he struck a fine male ring-neck peasant." "We'd have you know," writes n farmer from that region, "that we wash us often and as far down as you do, by heck!"

A Grund Rapids man has refused to pay for a cow which he bought from n farmer beenuse, he says, the animal's tail is broken. And as every city boy knows, you ean hardly pump milk at all, with the handle in thut condition.

Onions, turnips and squash were the most plentiful of all products in the Pontine market last week. But the outlook for eaters might have been even worse. To these products there might have been udded a large supply of carrots and spinach.

"It is only in Western Michigan snd California," says a Grand Rapids writer, "that the glory of Helios and Neptune are correlated in a golden exaltation which dwarfs the mortnl artist's palette." It is reassuring, too, to have the doctors tell us the thing isn't likely to spread.

A battery, sent hurtling into a mnnhole at Lansing by an automobile when it collided with a barricnde, struck on the head a man who was at the bottom of the hole. We hnve found, however, that by clapping on the lid the instant we leap into a man hole, a car can usually be completely bnffled.

Electric light bulbs that give service at Charlevoix Hardware Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

"You're on Twenty-Two, All Right, but Why Did You Come Back?"

GET AT THE CAUSE!

Many Charlevoix Folks Are Showing How to Avoid Needless Suffering

There's nothing more annoying than kidney weakness or inability to properly control the kidney secretions. Night and day alike, the sufferer is tormented and what with the burning and scalding, the attendant backache, headache and dizziness, life is indeed a burden. Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys—have brought peace and comfort to many Charlevoix people. Profit by this Charlevoix resident's experience:

Mrs. H. H. Fales, 110 Robinson Street, says: "I had a dull ache through the small of my back and when I tried to do anything around the house that required stooping, cutting pains darted across my kidneys. Then as time passed, my eyes were blurred with little, flickering specks. At first my kidneys were weak and then they became sluggish and failed to act often enough. Two boxes of Doan's Pills were all I needed to rid me of the trouble."

60c at all dealers. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

FROM OFFICE BOY TO GENERAL MGR.

Salary Increase Comes With Promotion

Chicago, Sept. 29—After a careful survey of the entire labor situation extending from office boy to president, indications are that positions showing increases in salaries require experienced help.

Consulting the president of one of our largest industries, the writer inquired regarding the rapid success of a certain young man who had become general manger and who a few years ago was but office boy; his answer was, Brown started as office boy, the lowest salaried position in our office, he was ambitious and managed to purchase a typewriter on small monthly payments and after three weeks of practice at home he was promoted to bill clerk, which position gave him knowledge of the selling price of all merchandise. His next advance was that of typist, which taught him the numerous forms of letter-writing and enabled him to hold n stenographic position, giving him complete knowledge of letter-writing. He was then made secretnry, bringing him into contact with all business details and qualified him for the general manager's office at ten thousand per yesr.

The same opportunity awaits every young man and womnn. Education or age have nothing to do with operating so simple a machine as the typewriter. We are informed thnt a great piece of benevolent work is being carried on by a large Chicago mail order house in furnishing typewriters to paople worthy of credit, by selling on small monthly installments, so low as to average about eight cents per day and actually teaching their customers how to uae and operate any typewriter in about three week's time. You csn get other information by writing the International Typewriter Exchange, 184 W. Lake Street, Chicago, Illinois.

* * * * * * * * * * *
* LEGAL NOTICES *
* * * * * * * * * * *

Order for Publication

State of Michigan, The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the city of Charlevoix in said County, on the 10th day of Novemher A. D. 1925.

Present: Hon. Servetus A. Correll, Judge of Probate.

In the Matter of the Estate of William H. Collins, Deceased.

Hannah M. Collins having filed in said court her petition praying that the administration of said estate be granted to petitioner or to some other suitable person,

It is ordered, That the 3rd day of December A. D. 1925, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, be and is hereby appointed for hearing said petition;

It is Further Ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order, one each week for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix Courier a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Servetua A. Correll,
Judge of Probnte.

A true copy. 45t3

Order for Publication

State of Michigan, the Probate Court for the county of Charlevoix.

At a session of said court, held at the probate office in the city of Charlevoix, in said county, on the 28th day of October, A. D. 1925.

Present: Hon. Servetus A. Correll, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Herbert Hulma, deceassd.

Charles Arnold, having filed in said court his final administration account, and his petition praying for the allownnce thereof and for the assignment nnd distribution of the residue of said estnte.

It is ordered, that the 25th day of November, A. D. 1925, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, be and is hereby appointed for examining and allowing said account and hearing said petition;

It is further ordered, that public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix Courier a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Servetus A. Correll,
Judge of Probate.

A true copy. Adv. 44-t3pd.

Order for Publication

State of Michigan, the Probate Court for the county of Charlevoix.

At a session of said court, held at the probate office in the city of Charlevoix, in said county, on the 3rd day of November, A. D. 1925.

Present: Hon. Servetus A. Correll, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Leslie E. Maves and Helen C. Maves, minors.

The Michigan Trust Company, having filed in said court its final account as to the estate of Leslie E. Maves, as guardian of said estate, and its petition praying for the allowance thereof, and for the allowance of the several annual accounts filed herein,

It is ordered, that the 25th day of November, A. D. 1925, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said Probate office, be and is hereby appointed for examining and allowing said account;

It is further ordered, that public notice thereof he given by publication of a copy of this order, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix Courier, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Servetus A. Correll,
Judge of Probate.

A true copy. Adv. 44-t3.

added Roominess

Come in and try the seating space in the Better Buick. There is more of it—added head room—added leg room—added width in seats for both driver and passengers.

Buick engineers have discovered new ways to increase interior space.

They have made the Better Buick more roomy than other cars of even longer wheel base.

It is a full-sized, man sized car, for grown-up people to ride in, without being squeezed in.

Come in and try it!

BUICK MOTOR COMPANY, FLINT, MICHIGAN
Division of General Motors Corporation

HEATON & HOOPER, Boyne City, Mich.

ANNOUNCEMENT

I have purchased the storage business and battery equipment of Pearl Brothers, and added it to my already well equipped battery service station, and will specialize in—

WINTER BATTERY STORAGE

Batteries and their proper upkeep is one of the most important duties of an automobile driver. They should not be neglected nor allowed to run down. You cannot expect your car to run with a poor or worn out battery.

Bring Your Batteries to Us

Not only for recharging, but for repairs and winter storage. We are equipped to give them the attention they require during the winter months. If they need overhauling, we will make them as good as new at a nominal expense. Call 60 when you are ready to store your battery.

Benj. Brown Auto Sales

Phone 60

WM. J. BOGART
CONTRACTOR and BUILDER
No Job Too Large
No Job Too Small.
Phone 139 Charlevoix, Mich.

R. B. ARMSTRONG
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Special Attention to Diseases of Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat
Priest Bldg. Phone 255

DR. F. F. McMILLAN
Physician and Surgeon
Office above Postoffice
Phone 17
Charlevoix :: Michigan

A. L. FITCH
ATTORNEY AT LAW
Office in Court House
Phone 48
Charlevoix :: Michigan

D. T. McHUGH
General Contractor
Phone 214
CHARLEVOIX MICHIGAN

VIRGINIA RYALL-BROWN, D. C.
PALMER CHIROPRACTOR
PHONES:
Office 347 Residence 89
Postoffice Building

Ellsworth Section

Billy Cooling, who has diphtherin, is well on the road to recovery. Also is Mae Miller.

Supt. and Mrs. H. T. Burt spent the week end at Ortonville. His sister and husband returned with them for a visit.

Mr. and Mrs. I. Springstead, Charles Edson and family and Ted Edson and family attended a party on George Heims at Central Lake, Saturday evening.

The revival meetings in the Phelps P. H. church began Sunday night with an excellent crowd and a good spiritual atmosphere. The young evangelist, Rev. Alton Joppie, of Vermontville, Michigan, is surely at his best, and for 45 minutes he poured forth God's truth and helped an earnest congregation to see the vast differenee in the christian and the sinner. Services each night at 7:30 with speeial musie and singing. Come and hear this marvelous preacher of the word who is yet under 20 years of age. Bring your friends with you.

Winter battery storage eost is small with us. We are equipped to take care of them. Bring your batteries to us for winter storage. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 44-tf.

MILES DISTRICT

Mrs. Mary Clerk is visiting Mrs. Dan Swanson in Rock Elm.

Merrit Shaw of East Jordan spent the week end with Carl Moblo.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Addis and son Jamie, visited Miss Jessie Metz in Rock Elm, Sundny.

The Lew brothers ray bailer from Peninsular, is in our neighbor bailing for Lawernee and Frank Addis.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawernce Addis of Walloon Lake, were supper guests of his parents, Mr. a nd Mrs. Frank Addis, Sunday evening.

Mrs. Mary Tillotson and sons, Edward and Will of west of Ellsworth, and Mr. and Mrs. A. Miles, spent Sunday in East Jordan at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Strong.

You will find high quality merchandise at reasonable prices at the Charlevoix Hdw. Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

ATWOOD

We are getting ready for that deer meat.

Andrew Visser from Grand Rapids is here on a visit.

Rose and Conny Klooster went to Holland last Saturday for a couple of day's recreation.

Herman Paul talks of going to a warmer climate to live. Like some others—he will be glad to get back.

Rev. C. M. Conklin and Ethan Joliffee attended the distriet conference of the M. E. church at Traverse City last Tuesday.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Henry Burns, on Thursday, November 5th, a baby boy. Congratulations to all. Where are the "treats," Hank?

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Harwood and son, Floyd, who live near Detroit, have been visiting their father the past two weeks. They returned home this week.

We made an error in last week's items, when we stated that Morris Henry would have an auction sale and move to Central Lake or Ellsworth. He had the sale all right, but will continue to reside In their own home where they now live. Good enough.

ROCK ELM

Lawrence Jensen is building a fine new cement hog pen this fall.

Joseph Whitfield purchased two fine cows of Norman Jensen last week.

E. Branch of Grand Rapids, made a business call in our neighborhood this week.

Earl Danforth is having trouble harvesting his fine crop of potatoes these frosty days. Good luck, Earl!

The Rock Elm grangers held their annual Hunt supper Saturday night, October 31st. All reported a good time.

Robinson has rented the Payton farm and moved on, the past week. Mr. Robinson is a brother-in-law of Mr. Teboe.

Oscar Teboe, who has been renting the Payton farm, purchased a fine farm for himself near Atwood. We hope he won't soon become discouraged.

Mrs. Amanda Lawton left our neighborhood for Grand Rapids, where she expects to make her future home. The best wishes of her friends accompany her.

Put pep in your car during the cold weather driving by using high test, bought of Brown and Wallace. Adv. 45tf

ANTRIM CITY

Bernice and Viola Stott were visitors at the Mason home Sunday.

Mr. Brooks attended the sale at the Morse Henry home last Friday.

Nelson Baker of Eastport, was a visitor at the Baker home Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mason of Eastport, were visitors at the Mason home Sunday.

Mr. Stoel and family and Mr. Dennis and family, left Wednesday, the Dennis family going to Detroit and the Stoels to Holland.

You will find high quality merchandise at reasonable prices at the Charlevoix Hdw. Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

Hall's Catarrh Medicine

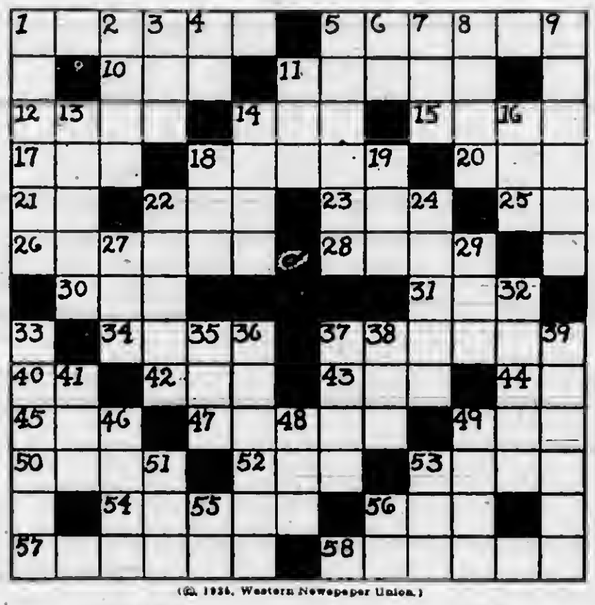
Those who are In a "run down" condition will notice thet Catarrh bothers them much more than when they are in good health. This fact proves that while Catarrh is a local disease, it is greatly influenced by constitutional conditions.

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE consists of an Ointment which Quickly Relieves by local application, and the Internal Medicine, a Tonic, which assists in improving the General Health.

Sold by druggists for over 40 Years.
F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio.

B. J. BEUKER
Physicioo ond Surgeon
Office over Blue Store
Ellsworth, Miehigan
Office Hours: 2-4 p. m., Pbone 38

Crossword Puzzle No. 81.



(©, 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

Horizontal.

1—Finish 5—Finale
10—Period of time
11—Criminal firing of a building
12—A notation
13—African antelope
15—Small two-winged fly
17—A diety 18—Hnater'a home
19—To take a chair
21—Preposition
23—Two thousand pounds
25—Past time 26—Thie person
28—To expand 29—A baron
30—Young bear
31—Chewing confection
32—Happy 37—Slopes
40—Sun god 42—Before (poetic)
43—Small electrified particle
44—Coetioent of western hemisphere (abbr.)
45—Section of a circle
47—To cut to wood, stone, etc.
49—Ponch 50—Tidy
52—Confederate general
53—Part of a window
54—To freeze or congeal into hoarfrost 55—Hawaiian food
57—To win the affection of 58—Corps of dancers

Vertical.

1—Cold 5—Require
2—Provide with weapons
3—Note of scale
4—Economical in using resources
6—Exists 7—Wooden peg
8—Hotels
9—Man who sells headwear
11—Conjunction 12—Medicine
14—Departed 16—Point at 18—Parcel of ground 19—Self
20—Piece of furniture
24—Musical instrument
27—To pull laboriously
28—Unexploded shell
32—Tablelands
33—European country
35—Part of a circle
36—Distributor 37—To donate
38—Fish eggs 39—A secret bag
41—Part of "to be"
46—Piece of pasteboard
48—Color 49—To embark
51—To bind 53—To run
55—Female parent
56—Coal mining state (abbr.)

AT THE MOVIES

Homespun Drama Rings True

After a deluge of sex and problem plays "Private Affairs" which is showing at the Palace Theatre next Tuesday evening, is as refreshing as walking from a room with incense into a bracing April day. Truly here is a picture that we can unqualifiedly recommend for the whole family—and add that dad will not grow restive.

Madge Bellamy Plays Lead in "Wings of Youth"

A cast of more than the usual excellence was selected for "Wings of Youth," the William Fox screen drama, scheduled to start a one day run at the Palace Theatre on Wednesday evening of next week.

Madge Bellamy, whose work in "The Iron Horse" and "The Daneers" earned for her a long term contract, is featured with Ethel Clayton. Miss Bellamy's youthful, buoyant personality fits ideally the requirements demanded by her role in "Wings of Youth."

"Havoc" Here Saturday and Sunday

Sixteen honor regiments of England, Canada and Scotland were represented in the three hundred war veterans who took part in the battle sequences of "Havoc," the William Fox screen version of the celebrated stage play, directed by Rowland V. Lee, which opens at the Palace Theatre next Saturday and Sunday.

Replete in accurate details, these battle scenes are declared by a corps of war experts who supervised them to be the most authentic of the kind that have ever been put on the screen.

Colonel Everett Ford, 91st Division, Artillery, U. S. A., acted as technical director on the picture and Major Harold Harcourt of Princess Pat's own Canadian regiment, supervised the building of trenches and the equipment of the British troops. Two ex-German army officers saw that the Teuton troops were properly outfitted.

W. E. Parmelee builds storm windows.—Adv. 37-tf.

SANTA APPROVES A CHRISTMAS GIFT

Santa Claus has been down a great many chimneys since he started business, and he is intimately acquainted with a large number of people. He knows that the best kinds of gifts are those which please the whole family, and which brings the excitement and enjoyment of Christmas every week. That is why he looks so jolly when receives hundreds of subscriptions to The Youth's Companion with which to fill his pack. And, being wise from long experience, he knows that people are likely to overdo things around Christmas, so he chuckles when he sticks a Companion into the top of a stocking. "Be as greedy as you like," he thinks," the more, the better for you."

The 52 issues of The Youth's Companion for 1926 will be crowded with serial stories, short stories, editorials, poetry, facts nnd fun. Just send your order to the address below and Santa will take care of delivering the paper to your home or to the home of a friend. Subscribers will receive:

1. The Youth's Compnnion—52 issues in 1926, and
2. The remaining issues of 1925. All for only $2.
3. Or include McCall's Mngazine, the monthly authority on fashions. Both publications, only $2.50

THE YOUTH'S COMPANION
SN Dept., Boston, Mass
Subscriptions Received at this Office.

PILGRIM HOLINESS CHURCH
Phelps and Ellsworth

Phelps

Sunday school, 10:00 a. m.
Preaching, 11:00 a. m.
Prayer meeting, Wednesday evening at 8:00 p. m.

Ellsworth

Sunday school, 1:15 p. m.
Preaching, 2:30 and 7:30 p. m.
Prayer meeting Thursday evening at 8:00 p. m.

B. E. Manker, Pastor.

We are now selling high test gasoline at 24c. Brown and Wallace. Adv. 45tf

Christian Science Society

Sunday service, 10:45 a. m., subject, "Mortals and Immortals."
Sunday school, 12:00.
Wednesday evening service, 7:45 p. m.
Reading room open Tuesday and Saturday, 3:00 to 5:00 p. m.
The public is cordially invited to use our reading room and attend the Solution Puzzle No. 80.

DODGE BROTHERS
SPECIAL
TYPE-A SEDAN

If Dodge Brothers had deliberately built the Special Type-A Sedan for women, they could not more perfectly have met feminine requirements.

That women recognize this fact is plentifully evidenced on every hand. The car's striking beauty, its ease of handling and world-famous dependability are features which every motorist values—but which women value the most.

Ask us about Dodge Brothers New Credit-Purchase Plan

BENJ. BROWN
Charlevoix, Michigan

Trade Among Friends

No matter what some folks say to the contrary, there certainly is a lot of sentiment in business. Friendship, for instance, makes more satisfactory sales than all the cleverness and argument in the world.

You like to trade at a certain store—not because its counters are arranged in a scientific way, but because the folks who serve you are always friendly and helpful. Just that very thing—FRIENDLY SERVICE—is the power that draws people together into communities like this, where everybody can enjoy the many benefits of neighborly cooperation.

And FRIENDLY SERVICE is the sentimental reason why you find it very much to your advantage to trade with our advertisers—to buy where you feel at home, where your friends will see that you are well satisfied.

Read the Ads. in this paper
and save yourself money by trading at home

POMONA MEETS WITH SOUTH ARM

GRANGERS TO DISCUSS PROBLEMS OF THE FARM

Interesting and Instructive Program to Be Rendered—All Grangers Should Attend

Charlevoix Pamona grange will meet with Sauth Arm grange, Saturday, November 14, with an afternoon and evening session. The program as outlined below should prove a drawing card to every granger in the county:

Afternoon Program

Song.

Roll Call. Suggestions for Thanksgiving dinners.

Discussion. Economic value of co-operation in:

1. Raising Farm Products, T. S. Barber.

2. In Buying Farm Products. Ben Smatts.

3. In Selling Farm Products. Mr. Ramsey.

Music.

Contest. The Grange as a Promotor af Education; The Grange as a promoter of Goodfellowship.

Song.

Evening Session

Singing.

Roll call. A favorite vegetable.

Discussion. "How is Anybody's Health Everybady's Business?"

Milk.

1. Man's part in producing it. Mr. Nice.

2. Woman's part in using it. Mrs. Hattie Murphy.

Discussion: "Hss the yaung man of today as good a chance of becoming a farm owner as the man af fifty years ago? Chas. Murphy.

Sang.

The Literary and Sewing Club of the M. E. church will hold their annual Christmas bszaar, Saturday, December 5. Watch for further annauncements.—44-t2.

HOW TO SECURE BETTER SERVICE

(Cantinued fram page ane)

tried to use thread ar darning floss, We either re-tie these packagea ar return them.

Do not seal a parcel. Some concerns who have a specially prepared label are allowed to seal parcels but unless you have these printed labels you will he charged the first class rate of postage on yaur sealed parcel.

Many times the rural carriers repnck your parcels in order to make them mailable rather than return them to you and cause a delay. A little extra care and a good strong string makes most of the difference between a quick delivery and a lost parcel.

You'll never buy rightly-cured dill pickles cheaper. Five full gallons $1.75. Smnller quantities 40c gallon. Phone 25J. Charlevoix Pickle Co.—Adv. 45t1.

MRS. W. J. WEIKEL PASSES TUESDAY

Had Been a Resident of Charlevoix for 28 Years

Mrs. W. J. Weikel, a resident of this city for the past 28 years, passed away at her home on Bridge street, last Tuesday night at eight o'clock, after a prolonged illness.

Deceased was 59 years of age at the time of her death, being born in the state of Wisconsin in the year 1866. She spent her childhood there with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Chase, moving with them to Central Lake some time later. She was married to Wm. J. Wiekel at Central Lake in 1896. They made their home in East Jordan for a short time after their marriage, moving from there to this city, where she resided up to the time of death

Funeral services were held from the home here on Thursday afternoon, Rev. Mattson of the Congregational church officiating, the body being taken to East Jordan for interment. Deceased was a member of the local Eastern Star lodge, W. C. T. U. and Congregational church.

My annual Fall Money Saving Sale ends November 19th. Buy $25.00 worth of groceries, sugar exempt, and you will be entitled to 100 pounds of granulated sugar for $5.65. Louis S. Orlowski.—Adv. 45t1.

KEROSENE IS REPLACED BY ELECTRICITY

Harbor Point Light Now Operated in a Modern Way

For the first time in forty-one years the Harbor Point light is operated by electricity. The wires were installed this week and a very noticeable difference can be seen in the brilliancy of the light and the distance it penetrates. Heretofore kerosene lamps were used.

A 300 watt hulb is used inside the lense. The lense is three feet high and two feet wide. It is known tecnically as a Fourth Order Lense.

Our light house is one of the attractions of the region and is visited by thousands of people every summer. Mr. A. C. Erickson, the keeper reports as many as 97 people in one day and 500 in a week. Many and varied are the questions asked. Many of the visitors are seeing a lighthouse for the first time.

There are over 5000 employees in the light house service. Our light is inspected about three times a year. This light is ranked the highest possible on condition of station, equipment, grounds, etc. and Mr. Erickson has been awarded what is known as a Commissioner's Star every one of the 12 years he has had this light. Before coming here Mr. Erickson was stationed at South Chicago.—Harbor Springs Republican.

Electric light bulbs that give service at Charlevoix Hardware Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

HOLD SUPPER AND SOCIAL EVENING

Congregational Young People Gather in Church Parlors

A good number of the Congregational young people gnthered at the church, last Monday evening, far a supper and sacial evening. At the same time plans were presented by the pastor and others for re-organizing the Y. P. S. C. E.

A membership campaign was inaugurated to continue until December 1st, when another business and social meeting will be held, officers elected and committees appointed.

The High school graup and older young peaple are eligible to membership and fram the interest manifested at the meeting the praspect is good far a worthwhile pragram in the saciety this year.

The topic far the devatianal meeting next Sunday at 6 p. m. is "Law Observance." The leader, Miss LaRue Higman, plans to intraduce some new features. Visitors are welcome.

SOMEONE WILL BE HAULED INTO COURT

(Continued from page one).

lot of hard cash this fall improving their links, and to have them damaged to the extent reported is enough to get a raise out of anyone.

Why auto drivers will persist in running over private property is mare than we can imagine. They have absolutely na business on the property, and apparently disregard the rights of others entirely.

Manager Gaskin wants the practice stopped—and stapped immedlately. If the vialations cantinue, someone will be prosecuted, and it will cast them a tidy sum. Passibly it would teach them a lessan and in the future they would be a little mare careful where they drive their car.

McCaols's Velvet Ice Cream now on sale at the Creamery Building, 105 Clintan street.—Adv. 45tf.

ODD FELLOWS ENJOY GAME SUPPER

Cards and Dancing Feature Entertainment for Evening

The Odd Fellow game supper held on Monday evening of this week was a decided success, the hunters bagging plenty of game for the feed and those in attendance having an enjoyable evening together.

Fred Bergman's sharp-shooters carried off the hanors in the hunt, emerging victorious over the side captained by Jud Hardy. Thirty-six rabbits were taken by both teams, the lasing hunters cooking and serving the supper as is the usual lat of the defeated. The hall was crawded by members of the order who did justice to the bountiful spreud provided for them and, being unable to clean the board, an auction sale was held and some $20.00 taken in by the sale of what remained.

Cards and dancing featured the entertainment for the balance af the evening and everyone went home declaring the occasion the best ever.

NATION'S HIGHWAYS SUPERIOR TO FRENCH

"The whole world has looked upoa France us having the most perfect highway system," says Charles Sanders, an Indianapolis automobile dealer. "Yet few people realize that the United States, in less than the eight years since 1916, has constructed a federal aid highway system that nat only has a greater actual mileage than that of France but is greater in proportion to the total mileage of roads within the two countries.

"Our great network of federal aid highways extends from coast to coast and from Canada to the Gulf. When completed, it will be possible for one to travel from any town in the United States of 5,000 population or more to any other town of like size in the country without leaving an improved road.

"Much of this great advancement in our highway system is made possible by the automobile, and at the same time is made necessary by the growing use of the automobile.

"The federal excise taxes collected on automobiles and parts from 1917 to 1923 amounted to more than $589,000,000. In addition to this are the huge sums collected by individual states in the form of registration, licenses, gasoline tax, etc., which has helped to build roads.

"More than 25,000 miles of federal aid highways have been completed since 1916—enough to circle the globe with an improved road, built to stand all its anticipated traffic.

"In addition to the federal aid highway system, thousands of miles of state and county roads not within the federal system have been improved. Each year travel becomes more delightful, and automobile tourists more numerous. When we have been building roads as long as France has, I venture to say we will have something of a system."

Better Roads Increase Use of Motor Vehicles

Improved roads throughout the country have been largely responsible for the great increase in the use of motor vehicles in recent years, because they have made traveling easier and mare rapid and have greatly reduced the cost of operation of motor vehicles.

The average motorist is bound to realize that a good paved road reduces the cost of driving an automobile, by savings effected on gasoline, tires and repairs. This much is apparent when he contrasts the results of his driving over a rough dirt road and that over a good, even surface, such as concrete pavement. But he probably will not keep an accurate check on the savings effected.

Figures compiled by George A. Pond, cost accountnat at the University farm, St. Paul, Minn., show that better roads were perhaps the greatest single factor in reducing the automobile expenses for Minnesota county agents during 1923. The cost of operating cars of county agents in Minnesota in 1921 was less than 57 per cent af that in 1920, Mr. Pand says in a bulletin.

Last year, fifty-six county agents reported that they raa their automobiles an average of 8,924 miles each at a total mile cost of 6.49 cents, while in 1920 fifty-one county agents covered an average of 6,447 miles each at a tatal mile cost of 11.51 cents. All but two or three of the machines were light, four cylinder cars.

While other factors entered into the reduction in operating costs, Mr. Pond edits improved highways with the ater part of the savlag.

Card of Thanks

I wish to express my sincere appreciation to my neighbors and friends far their kindly assistance and words of comfort during the illness and death of my beloved wife. Alsa to the O. E. S. for their kindly administrations, and ta thase who presented flaral afferings.

W. J. Weikel and Family

Adv. 45t1 pd.

Card of Thanks

The family of Mrs. Gearga Tomeraasen extend thanks to their friends and saciaties who so kindly offered words of comfort and flaral tokens during her late illness and at her death. Gearga Tomeraasen, Mr. and Mrs. William V. Foster, Mrs. Fred VanAtta.—Adv. 45-t1 pd.

Far all the news, read the Courier.

EN-AR-CO MOTOR OIL
En-ar-co puts the fine in refining.
En-ar-co Motor Oil. Buy it by the drum and save money.
WHITE ROSE GASOLINE
COPYRIGHT 1917 THE NATIONAL REFINING CO. CLEVELAND, OHIO

THE AUTO SHOP

Phone 93 204 Mason St.

A SHINING EXAMPLE

WISE mothers give their children the best of all possible diets—delicious, pure, fresh milk and lots of it!—delivered daily to your doorstep. Such a diet breeds young Samsons.

MARION CENTER DAIRY
Pure Aerated Milk and Cream
CHARLEVOIX, MICH.

CUT FLOWERS

For all occasions

At all times.

HILLCREST GARDENS

A. Edwards

Phone 18.

AUCTION SALE

I will sell at the Wielenga farm, located 3 1-2 miles south of Ellsworth, 4 miles north of Central Lake, on

Friday, November 20th

Beginning at 12:30 oclock the following described property towit:

Team of Geldings, 5 and 6 year old, 9 Cows, 4 fresh now, 4 Shoats, 3 1-2 month old, 11 tons Hay, 100 Bundles Corn Fodder, 100 Shocks Sweet Corn Fodder, 75 Bushels Corn, Farm Implements, Household Goods, Wagon, Sleighs, Lots of Small Tools, Cream Separator, and other Small Tools too numerous to mention

TERMS OF SALE—$10 and under Cash, over $10 one year's time

FRANK DEJONG, Prop.

H. J. Timmer, Clerk
M. J. Anderson, Note Clerk

W. E. Byers, Auctioneer

During this seasonable spell of weather--let us fill our basement with quality Coal.

Remember we have coal for every porpose.

Range Coal—as clean as wood.
Furnace Coal—best quality.
Heater Coal—that heats.

Argo Milling Co.

FLOUR--FEED--FUEL

Charlevoix Hdw. Co.

Have You Seen It?

The "Philco"---Socket Power

Eliminates all Radio Batteries. Attach to your electric light, have it adjusted once and you are all set and done with Battery Worry.

This is the weather to put up your Antenna, outside wiring and get your Radio in shape.

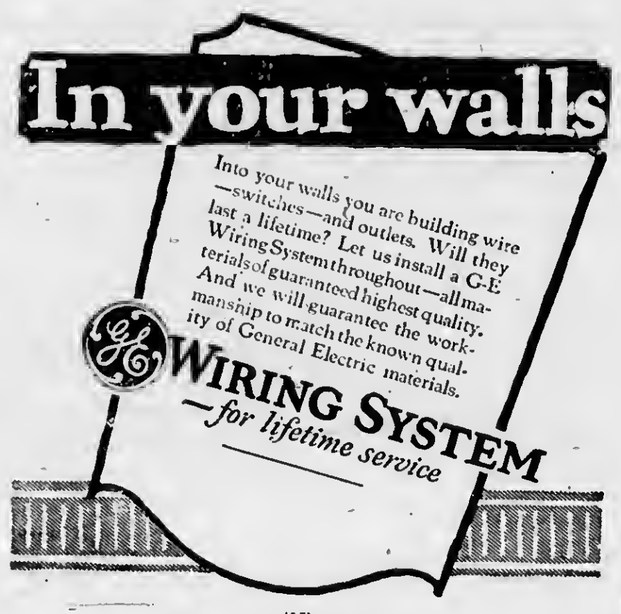
Radiolas and Day-Fans in Stock

WHEN YOU BUY RADIOS HERE, YOU GET SERVICE AS WELL.

REMEMBER THAT

Charlevoix Hardware Company

302 Bridge St Phone 1.



In your walls
Into your walls you are building wire—switches—and outlets. Will they last a lifetime? Let us install a G-E Wiring System throughout—all materials of guaranteed highest quality. And we will guarantee the workmanship to match the known quality of General Electric materials.
WIRING SYSTEM
—for lifetime service

46-71

Forest & Clarence

WOOD BROTHERS

Hardware & Electrical Supplies

FOR SALE

GOLDMAN HOUSE

(formerly owned by Frank Lamphear)

on Michigan avenue will be sold to the highest bidder, either to be torn down or moved.

—SEE—

ROBERT BRIDGE at County Bank

No flanky leather used here. We use the best for you.

Charlevoix's oldest and best Cobbler does your work in a good old fashioned way.

Campbell Boot Shop

Let The COURIER Sell IT for YOU

Ellsworth Section

The Swift company loaded out a carload of turkeys Monday.

Mrs. Mabel Carlisle of East Jordan, was here on business Saturday.

Mildred Haan of Atwood, is staying in town now and going to school.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Glazier spent Sunday with her mother, Mrs. Carpenter.

The High School Basketball teams are to play with Bellaire Friday night.

H. T. Burt and family are entertaining his parents and two brothers of Ortanville.

Marguerite Schepers, who is attending the Normal at Charlevoix, is remaining a few days at home, on account of the illness of her mother.

PHELPS

Fred Mason drove to Central Lake Sunday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Elzinga of Essex, were callers here Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Klooster were business callers in Charlevoix Monday.

Job Jackson of Bellaire, is helping ihs son-in-law, Ralph Klooster, to harvest sugar beets.

Bert Elliott, is among the deer hunters, who have journeyed to the woods on the U. P.

H. Himebauch, has a carpenter at work doing some finishing work on bis new house.

Jake Klooster of Muskegon and Allen Ardema of Chicago, were callers in Phelps Thursday of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Klooster and daughters, were Sunday dinner guests at the F. R. Klooster home.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stevens and children, drove to Boyne City Sunday, where they visited at the Joe Ecber home.

Chas. Mascho and several other farmers of this vicinity drove to Ellsworth Monday with loads of turkeys.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Smith of Charlevoix, accompanied by Mrs. Clara Mascho and Mrs. H. L. Francisco drove to Central Lake Sunday.

John Brock of Essex, was calling here Monday. Mr. Brock has rented the C. Vandenberg farm and expects to take possession as soon as vacated.

Mrs. Marion Jackson and children of Breezy Point Farm, spent a few days visiting her mother, Mrs. Albert Balch. Mr. Balch and Mr. Jackson, both have joined the deer hunter's excursion, and are making the trip into the woods.

Sunday evening, the Holiness church was filled with people, who came to hear the preaching of the Rev. Alton Joppie, who has been holding revival meetings here for the past week and is continuing all through this week. Come and hear him.

Put pep in your car during the cold weather driving by using high test, bought of Brown and Wallace. Adv. 45tf

ROCK ELM

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Addis called at the home of Lawrence Jensen Sunday.

Fred Foot of Cincinati, Ohio, visited his brother, Frank Foot over the week end.

Mrs. Melvin Tebo, who has been ill, is able to be out again. We are pleased to see the good effects of our fine country air.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Gunther of Johannesburg, visited at the home of Mrs. Guntber's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Guelick Jensen over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Stroud installed the officers at Rock Elm grange, Saturday night. Mr. Keefer, the deputy State Master, was also present and entertained us with a very interesting discussion of the business of the grange. The evening ended very pleasantly with a tempting lunch and all went home with smiling fsces.

Mrs. Lawrence Jensen received a letter from her mother, Mrs. Levi Metz of Melborne, Florida, in which the letter reports temperature ranging from 85 degrees to 96 degrees. Also hundreds of travelers, who left good jobs in the north for the Sunny South, leaving to return home wiser, but poorer men. Michigan is good enough for us.

You will find high quality merchandise at reasonable prices at the Charlevoix Hdw. Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

ANTRIM CITY

Mrs. Brooks was a visitor at the Stott home, Wednesday.

Harry Mason is putting out his net again, which was blown ashore by the storm.

Frank Mason and family and Harry Smith, celebrated Mrs. Stott's birthday Friday evening.

Mr. Stott received a letter from the Stoel family saying, that they arrived to Holland alright.

You will find higb quality merchandise at reasonable prices at the Charlevoix Hdw. Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

Hall's Catarrh Medicine

Those wbo are in a "run down" condition will notice that Catarrh bothers them much more than when they are in good health. This fact proves that while Catarrh is a local disease, it is greatly influenced by constitutional conditions.

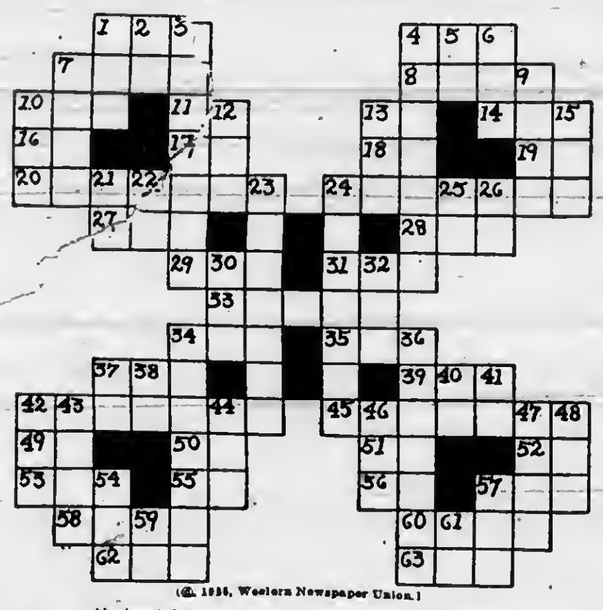
HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE consists of an Ointment which Quickly Relieves by local application, and the Internal Medicine, a Tonic, which assists in improving the General Health.

Sold by druggists for over 40 Years.

F. J. Cbeney & Co., Toledo, Obio.

B. J. B[illegible]UKER
Physician and Surgeon
Office over Bl[illegible]e Store
Ellsworth, Mi[illegible]bigan
Office Hours: 2-4 p. m., Pbone 38

Crossword Puzzle No. 82.



(©, 1926, Western Newspaper Union.)

Horizontal.

1—Possessesse
4—To drink sparingly
7—Skating surface
8—To become vapid
10—Head piece
11—That thing
12—East Indian (abbr.)
14—Personal pronoun
15—Part of "to be"
17—River in Italy
18—Man's title of address
19—Right (abbr.)
20—Confidence man
24—Self-destruction
27—To fasten with a knot
28—Twenty hundredweight
29—Torn cloth
31—Donkey
33—One of a series of ornaments in the shape of a fructum of a cone
34—Note of scale
35—Shoshonean Indian
37—Part of verb "to be"
39—Small (Scotch)
42—Conference with African natives
45—Storehouse of ammunition
47—Preposition
48—Printing measure
51—That is (abbr.)
52—Note of scale
53—Fish eggs
55—Highway (abbr.)
56—Indefinite article
57—Devour
60—Mother
62—To arrest
63—Sesame
63—English (abbr.)

Vertical.

1—Strike
2—Indefinite article
3—Master of a fishing vessel
4—Ghosts
5—Middlewestern state (abbr.)
6—To work at a trade
7—Overhasty in action
9—A baron
10—Belonging to that man
13—Part of the foot
13—Australian bird
15—Member of American Indian tribe
21—Preposition
22—Smallest state in union (abbr.)
23—Symmetrical
24—Flexible knife for spreading drugs, etc.
25—Company (abbr.)
26—Preposition
30—Past time
32—Took a seat
34—Two or more
36—Perfume
37—Boy's name
38—Sun god
40—Personal pronoun
41—Indefinite article
43—Equal
43—Small particle
44—Finish
46—Long, narrow inlet
47—Native of Arabia
48—Permit
54—To consume
57—Unit of work
58—Note of scale
61—Prefix meaning nat

Solution will appear in next issue.

We are now selling high test gasoline at 24c. Brown and Wallace. Adv. 45tf

Solution Puzzle No. 81.

BENTLEY HILL

H. Reamsma is out again threshing buckwheat and sweet clover.

Miss Jennie Hoogewerf left for Muskegon to stay this winter.

Mr. D. E. Carpenter got hurt by falling off a chair and is under the doctor's care.

Mrs. H. Heeres has a very severe finger, having a felon on it. Dr. Beuker is tending it.

Bert DeGroot sold five hogs to an outside buyer, who will load them Monday at Ellsworth.

Joe Gaunt has rented a farm near Ironton and will leave us in the near future. Sorry to see Joe go.

Bentley Hill district raised nearly five thousand bushels of certified seed potatoes this year, which will bring them a nice income.

D. H. Brat has his potatoes dug, the cnighbors helping bim one day to finish them up. He has nearly fifteen hundred bushels of them, all certified seed.

PILGRIM HOLINESS CHURCH
Phelps and Ellsworth

Phelps

Sunday scbool, 10:00 a. m.
Preaching, 11:00 a. m.
Prayer meeting, Wednesday evening at 8:00 p. m.

Ellsworth

Sunday scbool, 1:15 p. m.
Preacbing, 2:30 and 7:30 p. m.
Prayer meeting Tbursday evening at 8:00 p. m.

B. E. Manker, Pastor.

W. E. Parmelee builds storm windows.—Adv. 37-tf.

WEATHER CAUSES A GREAT LOSS

(Continued from Page 6)

ly. The average yield for the state is 40 bushels per acre, or a total of 67,440,000 bushels, the largest on record for the state. The quality is rated at 83 per cent as compared with 42 per cent last year and 77 per cent, the ten-year average. Silage corn was unusually heavy this year. The disposition of crop is estimated cent; for silage, 31 per cent; and for forage and hogging down, 9 per cent.

The estimated production for the entire country is 3,013,390,000 bushels, a gain of more than one-half billion bushels over last year, nad slightly less than the 1923 crop.

Buckwheat: Growers report the average yield of buckwheat at 14.5 bushels per acre. If all of the acreage were harvested, the total crop would be 928,000 bushels as compared with 964,000 bushels last year. However, rains have interfered with harvesting and some has spoiled so that the actual production is not yet known. The quality is rated at 82 per cent as compared with 90 percent last year and 89, the ten-year average.

Potatoes: Minimun temperatures of from 10 to 24 degrees were recorded on four different dates during the month of October. There were several inches of snow on the ground over the northern half of the state at the time, and a lesser covering over the southern half. About 30 per cent of the crop was still undug at the end of the month, and progress in digging has been delayed since that time by unfavorable weather. Only a small per cent of the potatoes in some fields seem to be frozen, but in others where the tubers lay near the surfacc and the snow covering was light the percentage of loss was quite heavy. While it is too early to say definitely, the loss is expected to approximate ten per cent of the total crop of 26, 300,000 bushels. The quality is estimated to be 90 per cent.

The total crop of the United States is placed at 346,503,000 bushels, a slight gain over one month ago, but 108 millions less than last lear and between 35 and 40 millions under the normal requirements.

Beans: Very little harvesting could be done during October and many fields will be a total loss. Some are being harvested during November with varying perecntagesof quality. About 30 per cent of the crop was still in the fields on November 1, the percentage beipg largest in some of the heaviest producing counties. The losses are heaviest in Macomb and St. Clair counties but are severe in nearly all other bean growing districts. From present indications, the loss of acreage may reach 20 per cent. A special inquiry resulted in an estimated pick of 10.5 per cent and an average yield of 12 bushels per acre from tho acreage whicb has been and will be harvested. Weather conditions during the next few days will have an important bearing on the situation.

Apples: The total apple crop amounted to 11,050,000 bushels against a production last year 7,333,000 bushels. The estimate of commercial production is 1,916,000 barrels. The crop was of fine quality except for undersize in some of the northern counties where dry weather prevailed during much of the summer, and local damage from a late brood of codling moth that attacked many orchards after spraying had ceased. The quality is rated at 80 per cent as compared with 67 per cent last year and a ten-year nverage of 78 per cent. A considerable quantity of the winter fruit was still unharvested when the severe freezing weather occurred and this portion, which is expected to approximate ten per cent of the total crop, is a total loss except possibly for cider purposes. In some localities, especially the apple counties of the northern half of the lower peninsula, the loss ranges from 25 to 50 per cent of the winter varities.

The report of United States' production is for a total crop of 171,264,000 bushels, about eigbt millions less than last year. The commercial portions amounts to 31,312,000 barrels or about two and one-half millions more than the 1924 crop. Tho average quality is given as 76.6 per cent.

Sugar Beets: Only a small percentage was harvested before November 1, due to exceptionally unfavorable weather and the wet condition of the fields. Tbe condition is reported at 91 per cent, the prospective acreage yield being around nine tons per acre, or a total production of 986,000 tons.

ESSEX

A Six—Built by Hudson Under Famous Super-Six Patents

$765 Freight and Tax Extra

for the COACH

And for those who desire an Essex Coach may be purchased for a low first payment and convenient terms on balance

For any closed car you will pay almost as much as the Essex Coach costs. So why accept any performance short of a "Six"? In Essex you get qualities of the "Six" not found in any "Four." And equally important, you get the famous Super-Six advantages exclusive to Hudson-Essex.

Quality made Essex, with Hudson the largest selling "Six" in the world. That volume permits economies, which are passed on to buyers in a price way below any rival.

World's Greatest Values

Everyone Says It—Sales Prove It

H. R. FOWLER, Charlevoix

Trade Among Friends

No matter what some folks say to the contrary, there certainly is a lot of sentiment in business. Friendship, for instance, makes more satisfactory sales than all the cleverness and argument in the world.

You like to trade at a certain store—not because its counters are arranged in a scientific way, but because the folks who serve you are always friendly and helpful. Just that very thing—FRIENDLY SERVICE—is the power that draws people together into communities like this, where everybody can enjoy the many benefits of neighborly cooperation.

And FRIENDLY SERVICE is the sentimental reason why you find it very much to your advantage to trade with our advertisers—to buy where you feel at home, where your friends will see that you are well satisfied.

Read the Ads. in this paper

and save yourself money by trading at home

HERE'S A CHANCE FOR RADIO GENIUS

FIFTY DOLLAR PRIZE FOR BEST HOME-MADE SET

Stewart-Warner Speedometer Corp. Offers Prize at Chicago Rodio Show

Has Charlevoix county a boy radio genius? Well, here is a chance to find out. If there is a juvenile radio builder in this county, he has now an opportunity to vie with the other youthful students of radio in winning fame and money through a competition conducted in connection with the Chicago Radio Show to be in the Coliseum November 17 to 22.

With the idea of getting the best ideas in radio and to encourage the youth of the nation to use their ingenuity and technical knowledge to produce something new, the Stewart Warner Speedometer Corporation, one of the country's largest manufacturers of rodio sets, annaunced recently that a prize of fifty dollars would be awarded to the boy who is the constructor of the best "home made." radio set submitted. The products of the minds of the boy radio builders should be sent to the Chicago Radio Show, coliseum, Chicago, where a committee of experts will examine the sets of the young radio wizards and select the winner of the contest.

Some of the best ideas which have helped build this infant industry have come from the students of technical high schools. At the various radio shows of the country the school boy has exhibited radio sets which have received the commendation of the experts at these expositions, and it is with the hope of finding a boy radio genius, whose work might otherwise never receive the attention of the world, that prompted this manufacturing concern to offer this prize at the Chicago show.

EVERYBODY'S EATING DILLS. They're good—and good for you too. 5 full gallons for $1.75. Phone 25J. Charlevoix Pickle Co.—Adv. 46-t1.

CLICK! CLICK! CLICK!

THE stenographer keeps fit and healthy because she's a firm believer in milk. Three glasses a day is her average, and she tells her mother to order the milk from Wither's because she know's what's good.

MARION CENTER DAIRY
Pure Aerated Milk and Cream.
CHARLEVOIX, MICH

EXODUS OF HUNTERS IS ABOUT CONCLUDED

Many on Trail of "White Tail" This Year

Charlevoix and vicinity was more than well represented in the deer hunting territory when the season opened on Sunday, Novemher 15th. Local hunters turned out in force this year and, in spite of the shortened season and the fact that it had been set back five days later than in previous years, the automobile proved to be the prevailing mode of travel. It goes to show then that the state department of conservation was wrong in their belief that the lateness of the season would discourage the hunter from using the automobile in fear of being snowed under in the woods.

Somewhere In the neighborhood of 50 hunters have left Charlevoix in the past week on their annual hunting trip. This number was divided into about nine parties, all but two of which sought the upper peninsula as their hunting grounds. Quite a number are planning to go and have not left yet, and it is safe to say that Charlevoix will have her full quota in the woods before the exodus in concluded.

With winter-like conditions prevailing, it is probable that the hunter will have tracking snow at least part of the season. Game wardens who are constantly patrolling the deer country, report a goodly number of bucks for the hunters to try their luck on, and those unlucky ones who return with the old story of no snow and no deer will have to hunt up another alibi to tell this year.

Party Given By Woman's Relief Corps

In spite of the fact that a notice was in last week's Courier saying that, "The Dance given by the Woman's Relief Corps was indefinitely postponed," a very pleasant evening was enjoyed by those who attend, though the crowd was small, two-thirds being from Petoskey. It was with regret that I read the notice; for the party was given in good faith and for a fine cause. The Woman's Relief Corps and for what it stands.

Grace Trautman, Chairman.

NOTICE

TELEPHONE BILLING CHANGE

Telephone accounts in Charlevoix will hereafter be billed on the 11th of each month beginning with bills date November 11, now being rendered.

Please read carefully the full explanation of the new plan, enclosed with your November 11 bill.

Michigan Bell Telephone Co.

During this seasonable spell of weather--let us fill our basement with quality Coal.

Remember we have coal for every porpose.

Range Coal—as clean as wood.
Furnace Coal—best quality.
Heater Coal—that heats.

Argo Milling Co.

FLOUR--FEED--FUEL

CHARLEVOIX GIRL MARRIED MONDAY

Miss Elizabeth Jones is Now Mrs. Quinton Duhn

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at three o'clock last Monday afternoon, November 16th, when Miss Elizabeth Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Jones of this city, was united in marrage to Mr. Quinton Duhn, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Duhn of Leland, Michigan.

The young couple were attended at the wedding by Miss Ada Duhn, sister of the groom, who acted as bridesmaid, and Harold Jones, brother of the bride, as best man. The ceremony was performed at the bride's home in this city, Rev. Herman Burns, of the Baptist church, pronounced the marriage vows.

Mrs. Duhn is a graduate of the Charlevoix high school and is well and favorably known to a large circle of friends. Mr. Dunn has been in the coast guard service at the Charlevoix station for the last two or three years, and the young couple will continue to make their home in this city. The Courier and their many friends extend them their best best wishes for n long and happy married life.

John Foley of Petoskey, will be at Priest's Studio, Tuesday the 24th. Call 135 for appointments.—Adv. 46-t1

PEOPLE OBSERVE ARMISTICE DAY

Meeting at Palace Theater Was Well Attended

Many Charlevoix people and school students attended the patriotic meeting held at the Palace theater last Wednesday, forenoon under the auspices of the local American Legion post.

The program was opened by the singing of "America." Superintendent Feuhrer of the Boyne City public schools gave a very interesting address which was highly appreciated by all who had the fortune to hear him. Selections were sung by the Girl's Glee Club of the Charlevoix high school, under the direction of Miss Vanderhagen, and were very much enjoyed by the audience, as was the solo sung by Charles Hamlin.

The Charlevoix city band rendered several pleasing selections and accompanied the audience in the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner," which was the closing number of the program.

E. V. Smith, Piano-tuner in Charlevoix this week. Leave orders at Will Bellingers or Holly Gift Shoppe.—Adv. 46t1 pd.

BROTHERS FAIL TO PAY INCOME TAX

Gerrit and Jacob Visser Are Sentenced to Serve Four Months

As a lesson to taxpayers throughout western Michigan Distriet Judgo C. W. Sessions Friday morning sentenced Gerrit nnd Jacob Visser, brothers, of 1001 Myrtle street, to serve four months each in the Detroit House of Correction for nonpayment of their federal income taxes. The sentences were the first of the kind meted out in this district since the first income tax law was passed 12 years ago.

Sixteen other persons, two of them women, were sentenced for confessed violation of the federal law. Three were sent to Leavenworth penitentiary, 10 ordered to the Detroit House of Correction, two were fined and one drew a jail term.

Officials of the Internal Revenue Bureau in Grand Rapids asserted the Visser case was an uausually aggravated one. They stated every effort wns made to impress the brother with the necessity of paying before the more drastic action was taken. Although the Vissers speak English an interpreter was sent to their home to explain the situatlon in the Holland language in order that there might be no misunderstanding. Deputy Marshal Coney Johnson was obliged to call a police officer to his aid when he placed the brothers under arrest before he could get them into his automobile, he stated.—Grand Rapids Press.

Auction Sale

of Stock, Farm Implements, Furniture, 1-ton Ford truck. McLeod & Sneller, one mile south of Atwood, one-half mile east, Tuesday, November 24. W. E. Byers, auctioneer, John Boss, Clerk.—Adv. 46-t1 pd.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain real estate mortgage whereby the Power of Sale therein contained has become operative, which mortgage was given by John Pesek and Josephine Pesek, husband and wife, to Mnrgaret M. Harsha, which mortgage was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Charlevoix, Michigan, July 5th, 1922 in liber sixty-four of Mortgages on page forty-one; and whereas the amount claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice is the sum of fourteen hundred eighty and 11-100 Dollars, together with an attorney fee of twenty-five dollars as provided for in said mortgage, and no suit or proceedings at law have been instituted to recover the money secured by snid mortgage or any part thereof; and whereas the tax required by Statute to be paid on said mortgage was duly paid prior to the recording thereof,

Now therefore, notice is given that by virtue of the Power of Sale contained in said mortgage and the Statutes in such ense made nnd provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the premises therein described or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy the amount then due thereon of principal and interest together with the attorney fee, costs nnd expenses of the foreclosure, at public auction to the highest bidder therefor at the front door of the Court House in the City of Charlevoix, County of Charlevoix (that being the place where the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix is held) on the 20th day of February 1926 nt ten o'clock in the forenoon on that day. The premises described in said mortgage being herein described as follows; to-wit:

All the north fractional half of the Southwest fractional quarter of Section Seven (7) in Township thirty-three (33) North of Range eight (8) West, containing eighty-two acres and 84-100 acres of land more or less according to the U. S. Survey thereof.

Dated November 16th, 1925.

Margaret M. Harsha, Mortgagee.

Rollie L. Lewis,
Attorney for Mortgagee,
Charlevoix, Michigan. 46-t13

PIPE SMOKER NO LONGER HAS ALIBI

Briar Users Will Be Especially Warned Hereafter

The good old briar has come under a cloud out in the great open spaces.

The forest service of the department of agriculture after several experiments announced that pipes are responsible for just as many forest fires as the effeminate tailor made cigarettes. They have found that pipe dottle is more inflammable than cigar or cigarette butts and is only second in inflammability to the lighted match.

This discovery adds impetus to the campaign by foresters to use care in smoking and pipe smokers will be especially warned hereafter.

For this Thanksgiving season—Nothing better than a jar of those DELICIOUS DILL PICKLES. Charlevoix Pickle Co. Phone 25J.—Adv. 46-t1.

STRAW STACKS MAY BE USED AS FERTILIZER

Specialist Visits Famous Station in England to Ivestigate

Use of Michigan's straw stacks as valuable sources of fertilizer is promised ns a result of work being done by the soils men nt the Michigan State College.

During a visit to the famous Rothamsted experiment station in England last summer, Dr. M. M. McCool, head of the college soils division, learned the mehods of procedure followed in Europe and saw the materials which were being produced. That the results there were very satisftory was shown by doubled yields of potatoes and other crops where the artificial "straw stack" manure was used.

That these old world practices may find a place in Michigan agriculture is indicated by the work being done at East Lansing.

"The soils sections of the college is making use of straw stacks by adding water, fertilizer, and lime and permitting the stnck of materinl to form valuable fertilizer" says Dr. McCool, in discussing the practice. "When ammonium sulphate, phosphates, and carbonate of lime are added to the straw and the mass moistened, fermentation takes place rapidly.

"If the work is done properly the resulting mass is brownish, black and finely divided, and is ready to use within three or four months. It appears to be very promising for use by vegetable growers, florists, and a substitute for other top dressing materials on golf courses."

The Odd Fellows will give a dancing party at the I. O. O. F. Temple, Friday evening, November 20, for Odd Fellows nnd Rebeknhs. Invitations will be issued to non-members. —Adv. 46t1.

* * * * * * * * * * *
* CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH *
* Rev. B. G. Mattson, Pastor *
* * * * * * * * * * *

Thanksgiving Vesper service at 4:30 p. m. will take the place of the usual evening service, and the morning service is announced elsewhere in the columns of this paper.

Young people's meeting at 6:00 p. m. led by Mr. Alexander.

The regular service will be held at the Ironton church at 2:30 p. m. Visitors always welcome.

Winter battery storage cost is small with us. We are equipped to take care of them. Bring your batteries to us for winter storage. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 44-tf.

Charlevoix Hdw. Co.

Radio reception has been bum for a time past, but don't be discouraged. This storm period must soon clear up and the WONDERFUL PROGRAMS will pour into RADIO HOMES.

"Until now, the families went forth separately, seeking pleasures. Now the most important of all tasks has been accomplished, thanks to the Radio—THE FAMILY IS UNITED, and the ideal of civilization is the UNITED FAMILY.

When father, mother, grand parents and children can all be happy TOGETHER, then indeed the IDEAL HOME is established."

HAVE YOUR RADIOLA READY, THOSE PROGRAMS ARE COMING

Call and look them over.

Yours with Service.

Charlevoix Hardware Company

302 Bridge St Phone 1.

In your walls

Into your walls you are building wire—switches—and outlets. Will they last a lifetime? Let us install a G-E Wiring System throughout—all materials of guaranteed highest quality. And we will guarantee the workmanship to match the known quality of General Electric materials.

GE WIRING SYSTEM —for lifetime service

46-71

Forest & Clarence

WOOD BROTHERS
Hardware & Electrical Supplies

FOR SALE

GOLDMAN HOUSE

(formerly owned by Frank Lamphear) on Michigan avenue will be sold to the highest bidder, either to be torn down or moved.

—SEE—

ROBERT BRIDGE at County Bank

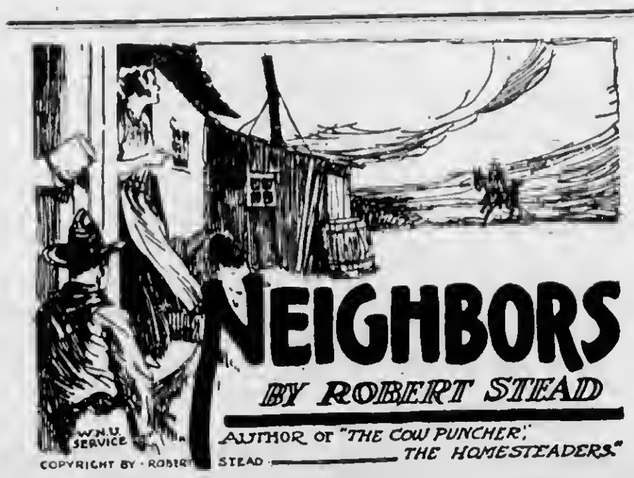
W. E. Byers, Auctioneer

Twenty years experience in handling Auction Sales, both on farm and household goods.

Let Me Cry Your Sales

Phone me at Charlevoix or call the Charlevoix Courier, where all dates are made.

Cups for Lunch Furnished if Requested



NEIGHBORS

BY ROBERT STEAD

AUTHOR OF "THE COW PUNCHER," "THE HOMESTEADERS."

W.N.U. SERVICE

COPYRIGHT BY ROBERT STEAD

CHAPTER X—Continued

"Good morning, Frank!" said a voice which set the pumps of my heart going to jig music. I think Jean's voice was really her most wonderful quality; she was enough of the artist to appreciate and cultivate the fine manners of the voice. It had the lilt of singing birds, the limpidity of purling water, the softness of roseleaves in the twilight, the tinkling of silver bells at dawn, and if I can think of any other figure it had that, too, for me in those old love-hallowed days of mine.

"Good morning, Frank. No word of Jack?"

"No word, Jean."

"He is all right. He is over at Fourteen, and not up yet, I'll wager. Now suppose you go into the men's apartments and face the wall—that fire looks most inviting!"

I did as I was bidden, in part at least, while Jean dressed by the fire. After a little she gave me the "All clear!" and I swept out and seized her in my arms. . . . It was a very wonderful way to begin the day.

"There now," she expostulated at length, "let me get the porridge on. That's more to the purpose."

"Porridge is poor business when there's loving to be done," I argued.

"You won't always think so," she replied as though with some strange glimpse of prophecy, and set busily about preparing breakfast. In these operations she discovered that everything that could freeze had frozen; we melted the butter until it ran over the stove and then we gathered it up and spread it on the toast. We could not afford to be fastidious.

We ate and drank, and laughed and were happy and cared not a tuppence for all the storms that ever blew!

About midafternoon came a sudden smash at the door, and Jack precipitated himself into our presence. He was masked in snow, but his first glance was at me, and I knew by the sudden drawing of his lips the relief it was to see me safe and well.

"I was afraid for you, Frank," he said; "afraid you'd try it."

"I did try it." And then I told him the story of my attempt.

"We have a great deal to be thankful for," Jack said, soberly, when I had finished. "A very great deal, indeed."

"Yes, more than you know," I returned, joyously, eager to spread the good news. "Jean has consented to be my wife."

Jack refused to be excited. "Congratulations, old boy," he said, pressing my hand. "But, really, that is hardly a news item. Jean has been—well, on the point of consent for a long, long while."

"Oh, Jack, that isn't fair!"

"Sorry, sister, perhaps it isn't quite. But you two have been so beastly slow over this business you've tied up the whole progress of events, and now you want me to be surprised about something that's long overdue."

"Well, it's settled now, anyway," said I, "and as soon as you and Marjorie can make up your minds we will fix a date."

"As soon as Marjorie and I can make up our minds!" Jack exclaimed. "Son, our minds were made up months ago. We've been waiting, waiting. At last we concluded that we really must speed things up a little, so it was arranged that Marjorie would send you over here last night, and I would accidentally miss you in the gully and go over to Marjorie's. Of course, we didn't know there was a storm coming. It rather overdid things from a conventional point of view, but fortunately Mrs. Grundy hasn't moved out here yet."

"Why, I never thought of such a thing!" cried Jean, indignantly. "How can you—?"

"Of course you didn't, you old dear," said Jack, drawing her within his arm. "and, I'll bet a wedding present, neither did Frank. And listen, little woman, you're getting one of the best little chums and one of the whitest men beyond the Red river and the Rockies—and beyond. And as for you, you old son-of-a-gun," punching me in the ribs, "if there are two angels in the world today one of them is Jean Lane."

Although the storm still raged daylight now struggled through the wind-swept screen of snow, and there was no great danger in making the short trip from Twenty-two to Fourteen. Jack confessed that Marjorie was uneasy for me so I went home very soon after his arrival.

Marjorie flew into my arms as I opened the door. "I was so frightened, Frank, so frightened!" she whispered, in half sobs. "I didn't know it was going to be such a storm. I was almost sure you'd come back and when you didn't I couldn't help wondering, and every little while through the night I would waken and see you fighting in the snow; fighting, and stumbling, and falling." She wrapped her arms about me and pressed her cheek against my face. "Oh Frank, Frank, it's good to have you here!" she murmured.

I had never known Marjorie to be so demonstrative. She came of solid old Eastern stock that carries its heart a long, long way in. I was not psychologist enough to realize that if ever there was to be a time when Marjorie would be very human she was now entering it.

"There, there," I said, comforting her as best I could. "It's all over now. And listen—I have great news. Jean and I are to be—"

"At last!" she interrupted. "Well, that shows what a little planning will do. You dear old silly, did you suppose—"

"I know all about it—now, Jack confessed. But your little joke nearly cost me my life," and I went on to tell of my battle with the storm, taking care that it should lose nothing in the telling. In this I hope I measured up to the established standard of the typical Westerner.

Marjorie was penitent. "I am so sorry," she said, "I had no idea that might happen. Oh, Frank, wouldn't it have been dreadful?"

"It would, but it isn't. On the contrary, it is worth it."

Spoof drove over one Sunday early in December after an absence of three weeks. We saw his oxen breaking trail for an hour or more before they came up to our door. Jack and Jean had also seen them coming, and rushed over to Fourteen to share in extending welcome. It is only among the pioneers that real welcomes occur. Jack swept Spoof into the house, and I turned our own oxen out and put his in the stable.

We were soon to learn the cause of Spoof's absence from our threshold for a full three weeks. It seemed that to protect his extensive supply of personal effects Spoof had bought a padlock for his shack, and one frosty morning this padlock fell to the ground. Spoof picked it up, and, wishing to use his hands for some other purpose, thrust the iron link of the lock in his mouth, thinking to hold it there a moment. He had no trouble holding it, but suddenly found to his dismay that he couldn't give it up! The frost in the iron had, with an effect very much like fire, seared his tongue and hung on so tenaciously that when at last he wrenched it out it carried some of the flesh of that tender organ with it.

"I couldn't speak," Spoof explained, in telling of his misfortune, "and there were so many things I needed to say just then."

His predicament had been bad enough. For several days he had been unable to eat. "So I've come over here to make up for it," he added.

After the first outburst over Spoof's arrival had subsided an embarrassing silence yawned across the path of our conversation. There were great things to be said and no one to say them. The girls glanced shyly at each other, and at us, and Jack, by pantomime behind Spoof's back, sought to convey the information that I was elected spokesman. So for lack of preparation I plunged in bodily as one may take a cold dip when he lacks the will power to do it slowly.

"Jack and I have also had a misfortune, of a sort," I said. "We, too, have lost the use of our organs of speech, permanently."

Spoof narrowed his eyebrows quizzically. "Then my ears make up for it," he said. "I hear you as usual."

"It isn't in effect yet," I explained. "We are to be married at Christmas. Behold the parties of the first part," and I waved a hand at Jean and Marjorie while I turned a phrase of Jake's to good account.

Spoof sprang to his feet. "Oh, by Jove, how wonderful! What lucky dogs! Your pardon, ladies, that my first word was to them; I fear my envy outweighed my good manners—if I have any left. A bachelor's shack is not exactly a school of polite behavior. It is my visits at Fourteen which have saved me from becoming quite a savage. I—I feel that I should make a speech."

He was as good as his word. Mounting a chair he gave us a lantering dissertation on the joys and perils of married life, to which we listened with much seriousness. But underneath, and running through his words, was something which all his banter did not hide. Spoof was playing the game, but I wondered how many little yellow devils were skewering his heart.

The practical part of it was Spoof's ready offer of his help in arranging details. The problems of securing the services of a minister and buying the marriage licenses demanded attention. Even so ethereal a thing as marriage cannot entirely escape the humdrum of the material, but it was a time when we felt strangely incapacitated for the commonplace. We were flying too high for earthworms; larks or eagles were our prey.

Jack suggested that we had thought of driving to the nearest railway station, some thirty miles distant, for the ceremony. We understood that a minister was located there and that the young man who ran the poolroom was intrusted with the duty of issuing marriage licenses. He carried a small stock of tobacco as an auxiliary to his pool business and a small stock of jewelry as an auxiliary to his tobacco business and a small stock of wedding licenses as an auxiliary to his jewelry business.

"It would take you two days to make that trip with old Buck and Bright," Spoof protested. "Perhaps more; they're soft with being stall-fed and may quit altogether on the road, and you may not find a convenient armful of hay with which to fix them. Fancy having to send word, 'Wedding postponed on account of the indisposition of Buck and Bright!' No, you must leave all these things to me. You boys are too busy with—much more important business—to be worried about details."

Spoof made his plans joyously. If he was not happy at heart over the fact that Jean was to marry me no one could have read it in his face. He would have a minister, he would have licenses, he would have wedding rings—leave it all to him.

A week later he came pulling across the crusted prairie, in broad-sided Canadian felts.

"Admire my scows," he commanded, as he hove them into view. "Twin schooners of the deep—"

"Traveling in ballast," Jack interrupted.

"Nay, laden with good tidings. Ah, there she breaks out a line of signals," and Spoof started to wig-wig a message which none of us could decipher.

"'I fear thee, Ancient Mariner,'" said Jean, "but what are you driving at?"

"Just this, that the contract is let to one John Locke, minister, the lowest and, in fact, the only bidder. He will be aided and abetted by an individual called Reddy, for reasons which will be obvious when you see him. Reddy, like Jake, appears to harbor no surname, although no doubt for official purposes he signs something to the marriage license. They will be out by midafternoon Christmas day, and the ceremony will take place in the main drawing room of my country residence on section Two. Carriages at four-thirty. You see, I lost no time in going to town—"

"You to town, with those 'bullocks' of yours!" Jack exclaimed. "And you libeled Buck and Bright by suggesting—"

"I went to town, but not behind my bullocks. There are some things I will not do, even for so great a friendship as I bear for thee. I had a driver and a spanking team of mules."

"Mules? Whose?"

"Our American friend, Burke, lent his team and himself for the occasion. The fact is he had misgivings about lending the team without himself, so he came along. He was afraid I would not treat the mules diplomatically. Nothing, I assure you, was, or is, further from my intention. But, my word, such language! Driving bullocks is only a beginner's course compared with the demands made upon a muleteer. . . . Burke rose very greatly in my estimation."

So we left the details in Spoof's hands, glad enough to be rid of responsibility for them. There was much to do, and Jack and I found ourselves banished to Twenty-two while the girls made use of the shanty on Fourteen for operations concerning which we were permitted to have nothing but curiosity. Their wedding splendor must, we knew, be designed with such skill as Marjorie and Jean possessed from the best of the clothing they had brought with them from the East. Love may laugh at locksmiths, but it has to bow to dollars and cents—when the trousseau is under consideration. Money, as Marjorie once remarked, may be had for the heart, but it's good for the appearance. But there was no money to be had for this occasion, and Marjorie and Jean cut their cloth accordingly, literally as well as figuratively.

Also, the news had to be broken to those at home. Each of us wrote a letter, although, to save postage, we enclosed them all in one envelope. There had been little correspondence since we came to the homesteads, mainly because we were as yet thirty miles from a post office, and letters might lie for a month without a chance of delivery. But this was something to be written about.

I recall that there was moonlight just then, and night on the prairie was a base of ivory cupped with an intangible bowl of blue. Always there was the nip of frost in the air, but it

in Your

JEANS

We will pay you the highest market price for them.

Phelps Marketing Assn.

Phone 7004F24

Ford

TOURING CAR $290

Touring	$290
Runabout	260
Coupe	520
Tudor Sedan	580
Fordor Sedan	660

Closed cars in color. Demountable rims and starter extra on open cars.

All prices f. o. b. Detroit

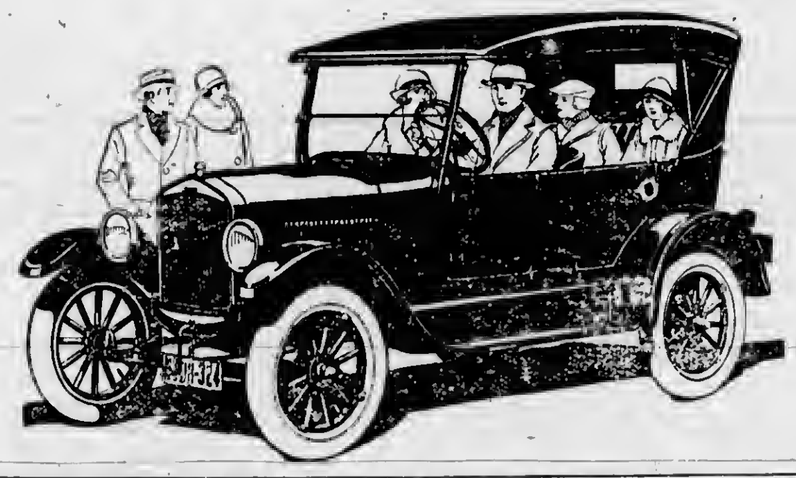
Every ounce of material used in building Ford cars must measure up to Ford standards of quality—reinforced by Ford standards of workmanship and inspection.

That is why Ford cars give such long and satisfactory service.

The Touring Car with added beauty and finer riding comforts, is representative of the unusual value available in Ford cars.

Ask the nearest Authorized Ford Dealer to show you this car.

Ford Motor Company
Detroit, Mich.



That Wonderful Quaker Flavor

Is true Scotch flavor—only QUAKER OATS has it

THE one thing to remember in buying oats is that Quaker Oats has the flavor you want. The difference is great.

Oats, originally a Scotch dish, must have a certain Scotch flavor.

There's real Scotch tang to that Quaker flavor.

No other brand has it. None successfully imitates it. It's due to exclusive Quaker milling of the finest, plumpest oats. Milling methods which took some 50 years to perfect.

Makes all the difference in the world. Quaker flavor spoils folks for ordinary brands.

Quick Quaker cooks in 3 to 5 minutes. No kitchen muss busy mornings. Faster than plain toast.

Due to Quaker milling methods, it supplies, too, the "roughage" you need to make laxatives seldom necessary.

2 Kinds { The Quaker Oats you have always known and Quick Quaker—cooks in 3 to 5 minutes

AT THE MOVIES

Mong Was Author Actor-Producer

The cast of "Off The Highway," Hunt Stromberg's all-star special, which comes to the Palace Theatre for a two days run next Tuesday and Wednesday, boasts one of the screen's most gifted and renowned player, to wit: William V. Mong.

Mr. Mong, whose characterizations have embraced just about every nationality and type under the sun, gained an invaluable store of experience during his sixteen years on the legitimate stage. For a long period of time he occupied the curious position of playwright, producer and star, all combined. "The Clay Baker," which was produced under that arrangement had a five-year run. Other well-known plays which he wrote, produced and played in are "The Divorce Question," "The House Next Door" and "The Light in the Window." It is interesting to note that "The Clay Baker" was the second stage play ever adapted to the screen; and they squeezed the whole business in one reel.

The film industry—always on the alert for talent—drew Mr. Mong into its fold with almost its first gesture; and his association with the screen has, from the first, been marked with brilliance.

Give that car battery the attention it should have. It will soon be time for winter storage. Call 60 and we will take care of it. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 44-tf.

Our Studio Will Be Open All Winter

The Priest Studio will be open all winter during the usual hours for the accommodation of people of Charlevoix and vicinity.

Get Your Settings for Picture Gifts Early

Don't wait until just before Christmas, because there is a chance of being disappointed. J. P. Foley of Petoskey, will be here to assist in the work. We guarantee you the very best of work. Call or phone for appointments.

PRIEST'S STUDIO

Phone 135

W. E. Byers, Auctioneer

Twenty years experience in handling Auction Sales, both on farm and household goods.

Let Me Cry Your Sales

Phone me at Charlevoix or call the Charlevoix Courier, where all dates are made.

Cups for Lunch Furnished if Requested

Let The COURIER Sell IT for YOU

Gold Bearing Rocks

THE hardest rocks are often gold-bearing, but they must be crushed to let the sunshine out.

The poorest man can build up a bank account, but he must work HARD to do it NOTHING that is worth while in this world comes easy. If it comes easy, it goes easy, and is not worth while.

Charlevoix State Savings Bank

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

W. S. Richardson, President.
A. D. Crimmins, Vice President.
Archie Livingston, Cashier.
G. W. Richardson, Asst. Cashier.

The CHARLEVOIX COURIER
Issued every Wednesday at
CHARLEVOIX - MICHIGAN

DuBois & Usher, Publishers
A. J. Usher, Editor and Business Mgr.
Courier Building Van Pelt Place

Entered at the Post Office in Charlevoix, Mich., as second class matter.

Member Michigan Press Ass'n.

Advertising Rates.

For advertising rates apply for schedule.

Notices of church or lodge socials and entertainments, where admission is charged, regular rates.

Obituary poetry, regular rates.

Card of Thanks, 25 cents.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

One copy, one year.....$2.00
One copy, six months.....$1.00
One copy, three months..... .60

EXTENDING THE NATIONAL DEBT

If the time allowed for retirement of the American public debt were extended to 50 years, as some urge, it would be possible to cut federal taxes $500,000,000 to $600,000,000 a year instead of about half that much.

It is a tempting thought. Tnxpayers could use the saved money. It sounds fair too, to argue that American war debtors (and that is what all of us are) should have as much time for payment as our foreign war debtors. Why should we have to pay in a few years when foreigners have 62 years for it?

Yet there are considerations on the other side. We have the money to pay, and can do so far better than our foreign debtors. By paying as soon as we can, thereby following good business methods, we shall save a lot of interest. Also we shall avoid saddling upon the next generation the burden of a war for which this generstion was responsible.

THE MARCH TO FLORIDA

Why all this wild rush to Florida? Why is every highway of the Southland congested with automobiles, filled with people who dream new dreams of wealth and ease as they head for Florida sands and swamps?

Florida is the same state that it was ten or twenty years ago. No gold has been found there and there are no diamond mines in the state. There must be some reason for all this wild scramble to the state where immense wealth has been made and where cities have almost literally become mad-houses. A writer in the Chicago Tribune, who was sent to Florida to get the first-hnnd facts on the lstest migration of Amercians, summarizes the reason for the almost unbelievable invasion in the following fashion:

1. The Gulf Stream does the business. It makes it a land of sunshine and ease. Add to thls the fast growing desire of people to change winter into summer and you have one reason for the Florida rush. Florida is summer in the winter and that starts one crowd coming.

2. The automobile, which has changed our whole aspect of living, makes it possible for even the most humble, in their dilapidated flivver, to change their location over night. A nation, once almost immovable, can move anywhere it wishes, with ease that would be unthinkable to our grandfathers. When Florida calls, everyone with an automobile is a potential resident of the dream state.

3. The growing desire to get more "fun" out of life, added to the nutomobile's transportation aid, makes it easy to want to see a new land of adventure where life won't be so strenuous.

4. People are better off financially than they ever were. In spite of billions wrapped up in automobiles, the average American family is in better condition as to material wealth than ever before in our history. Wealth is more evenly distributed than it was even a few years ago. If people take a notion to want to see this land of oranges, grapefruit and million dollar hotels every few blocks, they can get together part of their money and go and see Florida. More folks than ever before in our history can afford a sojourn in a winter playground. Personally we can't afford to take time off for a trip there in the winter time but we do cherish the hope thnt some day we may take the trip to Florida for a short visit.

5. And finally, to account for the great lure of Florida—and not tbe least reason to all—put it down that thousands upon thousands have gone South hoping to get rich overnight. This urge to find wealth (after one has failed all through the years to make a "strike") is one of the biggest reasons for the migration of almost untold thousands to Florida. Of course most of these people will be bitterly disappointed but it cannot be denied that this great desire to "get rich quick" accounts for a good part of the Florida rush. Tales of the making of wealth overnight have had their effect in luring the multitude. The disillusiohmeint of the mob in another story.—R. T. Baldwin in the Albion Recorder.

McCools's Velvet Ice Cream now on sale at the Creamery Building, 105 Clinton street.—Adv. 45tf.

Electric light bulbs that give service at Charlevoix Hardware Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

(EN-AR-CO) MOTOR OIL
It's our business to run part of yours with En-ar-co Motor Oil
Prevents friction and preserves the bearings
WHITE ROSE GASOLINE
COPYRIGHT 1917 THE NATIONAL REFINING CO CLEVELAND, OHIO

THE AUTO SHOP

Phone 93 204 Mason St.

HEART TROUBLE CAUSE OF DEATH

HENRY E. ALDRICH PASSED LAST FRIDAY

Early Years Spent on Great Lakes—Was Prominent Member of Elk Lodge

Henry E. Aldrich, a resident of this city for many years in the early part of his life, died at the home of bis sister, Miss Elizabeth Aldrich, 929 State street, last Friday afternoon at about 5 o'clock. Ile was stricken with heart trouble while in the basement of the house and died shortly after being found.

Deceased was 66 years old at the time of his death, being born in Charlevoix in May 19, 1859, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alanson Aldrich. A large portion of his early years were spent on the Great Lakes. He sailed for a number of years as first mate on the steamer, T. S. Faxton, later becoming captain of the same vessel. He was an ardent sportsman and was identified with the early fishing on the Jordan river. Mr. Aldrich resided here until the time of his marriage, when he moved to Cadillac and Traverse City, where he entered the clothing business. He returned to this city two years ago and made his home with his sister up until the time of his death last week.

Surviving members of the family are a son, H. E. Aldrich, Jr., of Saginaw; two brothers, W. A. Aldrich and Ernest G. Aldrich, both of Chicago, and two sisters, Ella E. Ball of Chicago, and Miss Elizabeth Aldrich of this city, all of whom were present at the funeral services which were held at the home, 929 State street, Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, Rev. B. G. Mattson of the Congregational church officiating. Interment at Brookside cemetery.

Mr. Aldrich was a prominent member of the Elk lodge, at one time holding the important office of Deputy Grsnd Exalted Ruler of the State of Michigan. He was a charter member of Cadillac lodge No. 680. During his residence here, Mr. Aldrich acquired a large number of friends who will greatly miss his departure.

ILLNESS HOLDS UP SCHOOL SITE

Place for Fifth College Decided When Jeffers Is Able to Act.

Although all necessary data has been assembled for the selection of a site for the proposed fifth normal school, illness of Fred A. Jeffers, member of the Board of Eduention, which is charged with locating the school, is holding up the selection, it was announced recently.

"Jeffers is suffering from blood poisoning and is confined at his home," Thomas E. Johnson, superintendent of public instructions, said. It is necessary to have all four members of the bonrd of education present when the site is voted upon, according to Johnson.

Governor Alex J. Grosbeck will sit on this board when the site is selected, as final approval rests with him under the appropriation bill making money available for the construction and maintenance of the school. The meeting will be held as soon as Jeffers recovers, it was stated.

Use high test gasoline, only cost 24c per gallon for cold weather driving. Brown and Wallace. Adv. 45tf.

HART FARMER TURNS LIABILITY TO PROFIT

Charley Johnson, a farmer near Hart, now has more faith in the once lowly spud, since the recent freeze sent prices skyward. He had reluctantly cleared up four and a half acres of poor pasturage and planted potatoes at the suggestion of the Chicago landlord. Most of the crop sold at moderate prices, but $2 a bushel was rejected for the remainder. On the basis of price received and that rejected, the yield was $225 an acre from the 4 1-2 acres which had been considered a liability.

Why buy doped gasoline when you can buy high test at 24c? Brown and Wallace. Adv. 45tf.

GE WIRING SYSTEM
—for lifetime service
WOOD BROTHERS
—Adv. 43tf.

Don't allow your battery to freeze. Call us for winter storage and save the expense of a new battery. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 44-tf.

Carter's Underwear

For Ladies

Warmth without weight. Comfortable, trim and close fitting.

Your next buy should be Carter's

$1.00 and up.

M. A. Levinson & Co.

SUITS and OVERCOATS

Latest Styles and Patterns

$20 to $40

We are closing out our stock of Ladies Slickers
Prices reduced from $8.50 to $5.00

Cleaning and Pressing

F. E. CARTIER, Tailor and Cleaner

PHONE 248

THE GAS TAX AS A SOURCE OF REVENUE

Already there are those in Michigan who are casting longing eyes in the direction of the present gasoline tnx as a means of raising more money for public purposes. During the epidemic, with the result it has been written into the statute hooks of nearly all of the states. At first the exponents of this form of taxation past few years the gas tax idea spread all over the country like an are satisfied with a nominal tax, but no sooner do they witness this new stream of gold flowing into the states coffers, than they have a vision of the hidden millions that can be garnered by simply raising the tax. What we want in Michigan, and what our citizens should insist upon, is not additional means for raising revenues but a prompt and decided reduction in state and local expenditures. The automobile owners of Michigan, and the tourists who annually visit this great natural playground are now paying as much as they should be asked to pay for the support of the government. We should oppose any tinkering with the present tax. As it now stands the tax does not inflict any serious hardship upon the average automobile owners, but to increase this tax simply for the purpose of providing more money for reckless expenditures in poor business to say the least, and the idea should be immediately discouraged.

Favor Grade Elimination

Active co-operation of electric railway compsnies in Ohio, in the movement to elimiaate as far as possible grade crossing accidents, is wholeheartedly assured.

Traction executives of the state have pledged themselves to lend all possible aid to a campaign which purposes not only to reduce accidents at grade crossings, but automobile collisions on Ohio highways, as well. This is a result of the safety conference called by the governor.

McCools's Velvet Ice Cream now on sale at the Creamery Building, 105 Clinton street.—Adv. 45tf.

Requires Cash.

Often a man fails to embrace an opportunity because he is "shy."—Boston Transcript.

24c per gallon buys the best high test gasoline at Brown and Wallace. —Adv. 45tf

Man comes into this world naked and with nothing on him, but in a short time everybody has something on him.

Ride the Greyhounds to any Place on the Map

75 Greyhound Coaches, cozy and Warm, cover over 8000 Miles daily. Study the route.

Finest Transportation in West Michigan's History. Time Table at Hotel Charlevoix.

The Southland

THE SCENIC ROUTE to Florida

Daily train through the Picturesque Cumberland and Blue Ridge Mountains by Daylight.

Through sleepers Grand Rapids to St. Petersburg, serving Tarpon Springs, Clearwater, Belleair.

Observation-Club Car, sleeping cars, dining car and coaches.

Lv. Grand Rapids 6:45 p. m. daily
Lv. Ft. Wayne 11:50 p. m. daily

Passengers for Tampa may transfer enroute into Tampa sleepers on same train. Excellent service to Jacksonville and all Central Lake Region and West Coast Resorts.

Via Cincinnati and the L. & N. R. R.

For Tickets Apply to Local Agents, or Address A. M. Butts, Div. Pass. Agent Pennsylvania Bldg., Grand Rapids

Pennsylvania Railroad

THE OLDEST BANK IN CHARLEVOIX COUNTY
FORTY-FIRST YEAR IN BUSINESS

1884 1925

The Best Possible Letter Of Recommendation

A steady growing Savings Account—and a reputation for being able to save regularly have often been worth more than a score of letters of recommendation.

Have you ever tried it?

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY BANK

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN
Nicholls, Buttars & Bridge, Bankers
THE BANK ON THE CORNER

LOCAL NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

Get the Habit—Read the Courier

THE COUNTRY NEWSPAPER....

I am the Country newspaper.

I am the friend of the family, the bringer of tidings from other friends; I speak to the home in the evening on summer's vineclad porch or in the glow of winter's lamp.

I help to make this evening hour; I record the great and the small, the varied acts of the days and weeks that go to make up life.

I am for and of the home, I follow those who leave humble beginnings, whether they go to greatness or to the gutter, I take to them the thrill of old days with wholesome messages.

I speak the language of the common man; my words are fitted to his understanding. My congregation is larger than that of any church in my town; my readers are more than the school. Young and old alike find in me stimulation, instruction, entertainment, inspiration, solace, comfort. I am the chronicler of births and love and death—the three great facts of man's existence.

I bring together buyer and seller for the benefit of both; I am part of the market place of the world. Into the home I carry word of the goods which minister to comfort, health, and happiness.

I am the work of the week, the history of the year, the record of my community in the archive of state and nation.

I am the exponent of the lives of my readers.

I am the country newspaper.

Bristow Adams in Canton Sentinel.

Word comes from Flint to the affect that Ed. Shapton is still very ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Smith of this city, were Sunday visitors in Bellaire.

We have a large and satisfied number of patrons using

Monarch Brand

Bring Canned Goods

Are You One of Them?

Milton Block

—Wm. Wallace was a business caller in East Jordan on Monday of this week.

George Mylor of Detroit, is in the city this week visiting relatives and friends.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Hull, Sunday, November 15th, a daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bridge were Traverse City visitors on Friday of last week.

Guy Olney of Big Rapids, was a business caller in the city a few days last week.

Aubrey Block in home from Flint for a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Block.

The Maccabee Circle will meet with Mrs. Ella Korth, Friday afternoon, November 20.

Rev. and Mrs. J. B. Peatling of Boyne City, spent Tuesday afternoon with Rev. and Mrs. C. E. Pollock.

Ivnn Holmes left the first of the week for Port Orange, Florida, where he will spend the winter months.

W. G. Parker of the Booth Fisheries office left Tuesday for Sault Ste. Marie on company business.

Millard Olney left on Tuesday of this week for Pontiac Michigan, where he will work for the winter.

D. J. Eckinger returned Tuesday afternoon from Beaver Island, where he has been on business for Robbins, Inc.

Henry Partridge returned last Saturday from Grand Rapids, where he had been serving on the grand jury.

Aubrey Block, Herbert Wakefield, and their friend, James Chapman, drove up from Flint and spent four days hunting and fishing here last week.

Alonzo Powers returned last Saturday from Grand Rapids, where he had been called to serve on the grand jury.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Woods leave the last of the week for Detroit, where they expect to spend the winter months.

Mrs. Roy Ranger left last Thursday for White Cloud, Michigan, where she will visit relatives for a short time.

Internal Revenue Collector Darling of Harbor Springs, was a business visitor in the city on Thursday of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Verle Crandall and son, Loren, are in Beuna Vista, Floria, where they expect to spend the winter months.

Mrs. George Sands returned last Saturday from Flint, where she had been called by the serious illness of her father, Ed. Shapton.

James Bogart and daughter, Irene, returned last Saturday from Grand Rapids, where the latter has been taking medical treatment.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Aldrich left Tuesday for their home in Chicago, being called here by the death of the former's brother, Henry E. Aldrich.

The Christian Science society will hold a Thanksgiving meeting at their hall at 10:30 o'clock Thursday morning, November 26. All are welcome.

Pleasant callers at the Pollock home last Saturday afternoon were Rev. and Mrs. Clark Wheeler, Methodist pastor and wife from Petoskey.

Mrs. Bert Alcox entertained a number of her lady friends at a quilting party and six o'clock dinner at her home on Antrim street, last Tuesday afternoon. All reported a fine time and Mrs. Alcox an A-1 hostess.

The Congregational Womnn's Missionary Society will meet Friday afternoon, November 20th, with Mrs. Horace Fowler on Antrim street.

Forrest Fowler, Percy Durance and Kenneth Betts left last Thursday night for north of Newberry in the upper peninsula on a deer hunting trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Holmes left on Tuesday of this week, accompanied by Miss Elizabeth Aldrich, for Port Orange, Florida, where they will spend the winter.

Word comes from the Buick Motor company at Flint that Mr and Mrs. L. E. Hamlin of this city visited the Buick factory there on Thursday of last week.

We have received word that Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Gibbie are now located at Hartville, Ohio, and they send their best regards to their Charlevoix friends.

Miss Viola Smith, operator in the local telephone exchange, left on Monday of this week for her home in Bellaire, where she will visit her parents for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Amos O'Neil, accompanied by Theodore Gravelin, left on Monday morning of this week for the upper peninsular on a deer hunting expedition.

Rev. and Mrs. C. E. Pollock and daughter, Cecile Louise, attended the District Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church last Wednesday afternoon at Traverse City.

George Tomerson of Northville, Michigan, who is connected with the government bureau of fisheries, arrived in the city last week and will be stationed here for the winter.

Miss Gladys Boyer of Detroit, accompanied by some friends, spent the week end at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Boyer, returning to their homes, Sunday.

Mrs. F. W. Mayne left last week for Grand Rapids and Detroit, where she will visit relatives for a short time before going on to Arizona and California to spend the winter months.

Word has been received here that Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Donaldson are now located in Southern Pine, N. C., for the winter months and are enjoying the warm weather of the sunny south.

Mr. and Mrs. George Trimble left on Tuesday of this week for Clearwater, Florida, where they will visit at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Harold Hamlin, and eventually spend the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Brady and Hugh Brady returned Tuesday afternoon of this week from the Cecil Bay territory with a couple of fine bucks. They were gone just three days, having left last Saturday.

The Literary and Sewing Club of the Methodist Episcopal church will meet on Thursday, November 19, at the home of Mrs. M. B. Hooker. Role call to be answered by a quotation from Browning. A supper will be served.

A party consisting of Ed. O'Neill, Louis O'Neill, Clair Webster, Nick Shores and a couple of their friends from Detroit left last Friday for the upper peninsular, where they will locate north of Newberry during the deer hunting season.

Monday evening, November 16th, about twelve friends of Herbert Wakefield dropped in on him and a very pleasant evening was spent in card playing. Refreshments were served at the close of the evening and all enjoyed the occasion.

A party consisting of Henry Block, Glenn See and A. J. Usher left on Saturday morning of last week for Riverview, where they will spend the next week on a deer hunting trip. They will be met by a party from Grand Rapids, who will go into camp with them.

LOCAL WOMEN PURCHASE RESTAURANT

Regular Meals and Home-Made Baked Goods to Be Sold

A deal was consumated last Saturday whereby Mrs. Minnie Gregory and Mrs. Eva Scott purchased the restaurant owned and operated by Ray Faulkner for the past two years, they taking possession on the same day.

The new owners are both well known here and have been in Mr. Faulkner's employ for some time past, and had considerable experience in the restaurant game. Mr. Faulkner formerly served only short orders and lunches, but from now on regular meals will be served and home-made baked gaods will be on sale.

SAVE YOUR CIDER APPLES. We have new barrels and kegs and prices are low. Good Dill Pickles too. Phone 25J. Charlevoix Pickle Co.—Adv. 46-tf.

You'll never buy good dill pickles cheaper. We have air-tight stone jars—just the thing for your supply. Charlevoix Pickle Co.—Adv. 46-tf.

CHEBOYGAN EDITOR SAYS A MOUTHFUL

He Espresses Our Sentiment to the Word

The first deer hunting accident of the season and occurring about two weeks before the season legally opens, occurred north of Manistique on Sunday of last week, when Harry Holstrom of Manistique was shot through both legs just below the hip by a companion, being mistaken for a deer. There were three men in the party. Holstrom will live and not suffer the loss of either leg. Another prominent Manistique politician was arrested last week for having a young fawn he had shot in his possession. It cost him $75 to square himself. This latter man gave evidence of what kind of a cheap sport he is by trying to intimidate his home town paper, threatening to take some business away from the paper if the story of the illegal deer killing was printed. The man's name is J. W. Gilligan, and he is a political leader in his bailiwick, but it is that type of cheap sports that do more harm than all the other kind combined. The poor devil that goes out and slays a deer to feed his family is not in the same class with the cheap sport that goes out and kills game in violation of the law, not only establishing a most objectionable example of good sportsmanship but beating his fellows to their legitimate rights. When the average sportsman begins to realize that every fellow that goes out and shoots game or catches fish before the legal time to do so is robbing them of their rights and privileges and lessening their chances in the field and on the stream they will then realize the cheap sportsman is no friend of theirs.

STRAY HOUNDS KILL PARK DEER

Two Tame Specimens In Petoskey Zoo Found Torn To Peices.

The two red Michigan deer that have so long interested townspeople and resorters at the city park in Petoskey are now no more.

A couple of stray hounds worked their way under the fence surrounding the deer enclosure and chased the animals around their yard until the deer fell exhausted, last Friday night.

The partly devoured bodies were discovered by keeper Stevenson, lying in the little ravine that runs through the park, on Saturday morning of last week.

Don't allow your battery to freeze. Call us for winter storage and save the expense of a new battery. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 44-tf.

We sell pure high test gasoline at 24c. Try it. Brown and Wallace. —Adv. 45tf

COURIER BARGAIN COLUMN.

Courier Want Advs. are One Cent per word per insertion. Minimum charge is 20 cents per insertion, for anything under 20 words. All Want Advs. are strictly cash in advance except to those who have ledger accounts. Please remember this when sending in your copy.

LOST

LOST—Pair shell-rimmed glasses. Finder please return to Courier office.—46t1.

FOR SALE—MISCELLANEOUS

FOR SALE — Building material. Save 50 per cent in building. Phone W. S. Shaw Co., No. 75, Boyne City, for prices on lumber (bonrds and scantling,) steel beams, brick, pipe, pipe fittings and roofing.—40t10.

FOR RENT—HOUSE

WANTED TO RENT—Two furnished hented rooms for light house keeping on ground floor. Or one room with board for two people. Call 316.—46-t1.

FOR RENT—5 room bungniow at inside toilet. Call phone 18.—45tf.

FOR SALE—LIVE STOCK

FOR SALE—purebred Holstein bull, 2 years old, weight 1400, price $60. Phone 7012-f22, William Skye, Ironton, Mich.—44-t4-pd.

WANTED—MISCELLANEOUS

CASH for Dental Gold, Platinum, Silver, Diamonds, magneto points, false teeth, jewelry, and valuables. Mail today. Cash by return mail. Hoke S. & R., Otsego, Mich.—12-tf.

WANTED—Old false teeth. We pay as high as $10 for full sets. Don't matter if broken. We buy crowns, bridges. Western Metal Company, Blomington, Ill.—46t2pd.

MISCELLANEOUS

FOR INFORMATION regarding Florida land and investments, write Ernest E. Galloway, 845 N. W. 2nd St., Miami, Florida, Licensed Broker.—36-tf.

Friday and Saturday Specials
NOVEMBER 20th and 21st

Outing Flannel, dark and light colors, 27 inches wide..22c
Ladies' Fleeced Lined Union Suits, sizes 42 and 44 $2.00 values for....$1.00
Ladies' Fleeced Lined Vests and Pants, $1.00 values for....85c
Ladies' Cotton Fleeced Union Suits, high neck, long sleeves, ankle length, sizes 42 and 44, $1.50 to $2.50 values, Special....$1.00
Ladies' Ribbed Vests, long sleeves, high neck, sizes 36 to 48, $1.00 to $1.35 values....85c
Ladies' Ribbed Pants, ankle length, sizes 38 to 46, $1.00 to $1.35 values....85c
Ladies' Light Weight Ribbed Pants, assorted sizes, 75c values, special....49c
Ladies' Light Weight Vests, ribbed, assorted sizes, 75c values, special....49c

10 Days Sale on Groceries

Good 4-sewed Brooms for....39c
Fancy bulk 45c Coffee, 3 lbs. for....$1.25
Fancy Rio Coffee, bulk 35c lb., 3 lbs. for....$1.00
3 lbs. good Jap Tea for....$1.35
5 cans of 25c Pineapple for....$1.00
3 large cans of Pineapple for....$1.00
24 1-2 lbs. Producer Flour, $1.25; by the barrel....$9.75
24 1-2 lbs. Sweet Loaf Flour $1.30; barrel....$10.00
Seal of Minnesota Flour, barrel....$9.35
9 bars of P. & G. Soap
2 bars Guests Ivory Soap
1 bar Medium Ivory Soap
1 pkg. Ivory Soap Flakes
1 pkg. Chipso
1 large Galvanized Pail
98c

GROCERIES IN QUANTITY AT LOW PRICES

A. E. MASON

NEW PALACE THEATRE

ATTRACTIONS FOR THE COMING WEEK

Saturday and Sunday, November 21 and 22

Buster Keaton in "GO WEST." What does a title like that suggest to you? Does it bring to your mind Romance? The Great Open Spaces? Bucking Broncho? Straight Shooting? You are all wrong and you can't prove that your right until you see "Go West" for yourself. It's a peach. Laughs for all.

"All Aboard" is a comedy that takes the prize.

Tuesday and Wednesday, November 24 and 25

"OFF THE HIGHWAY" starring Wm. V. Mong and Marguerite DeLaMotte. A love story that is as wholesome and refreshing as an old-fashioned bouquet. It is laid in that ever-fascinating and intriguing realm—the artist's colony.

We will also have a News Reel. Travel the world with the News Reels.

THANKSGIVING SPECIALS

Here are a number of special items which will help the housewife in preparing her Thanksgiving dinner. which we are offering at a considerable saving. Lay in your supply of canned vegetables now while the price is right. Order them by the dozen cans and thereby take advantage of the reduction in price.

Bell Hart Peas, per can....25c
Per dozen cans....$2.50
Telephone Peas, per can....20c
Per dozen cans....$2.15
Marcillus Peas, per can....15c
Per dozen cans....$1.75
Golden Bantam Corn, per can....25c
Per dozen cans....$2.75
Little Dot Corn, per can....20c
Per dozen cans....$2.25
Marcillus Corn, per can....15c
Per dozen cans....$1.75

ORDER YOUR CHICKENS AND TURKEYS EARLY

MARTIN BLOCK
Opposite Post Office
Phone 12 or 142

DOLLAR WISE

There is a man in our own
And he is wondrous wise.
He doesn't fall for every scheme.
That hot-air crooks devise.
When he invests his money,
He shuns all tips and guesses,
And looks for constant earning power
And records for successes.

High test gasoline for cold weather driving sold at 24c. Brown and Wallace. Adv. 45tf

Get Your CUT FLOWERS
Early For THANKSGIVING
HILLCREST GARDENS
A. Edwards
Phone 18.

Neighbors

By
ROBERT STEAD

Author of "The Cow Puncher," "The Homesteaders"

WNU Service
Copyright by Robert Stead

(Continued from Page 3)

was a nip that was not unpleasant, and by no means did it succeed in confining us within doors. During these bright nights Jean and I took long, never-to-be-forgotten walks across the snow-piled, moon-swept plains. I could feel her fine little figure swaying with mine in our strong stride across the wind-packed snow, while our shadows—our shadow, I should say—fell in grotesque caricature by our side. There were moments when we were very, very close to the infinity which bounded us on every hand, and the wonder of that great, white, silent ocean would surge into our hearts and mingle with the wonder of our love. A quarter of a mile from the shanties and we were as isolated from all living things as if we had been let down in the midst of the Polar sea, or drawn by some mighty spirit into the farthest void of space. Even the boisterous wind paid attention enough to blur our footprints out behind us and so complete that sense of infinity or isolation. We were so tremendously alone that it seemed the world was full of ourselves and God.

But a gaunt phantom of doubt and uncertainty stalked us even on those moonlit walks.

CHAPTER XI

That gaunt phantom of doubt gradually closed in upon me. I resolved to fight it, but its very intangibility baffled my efforts to throw it off. When I struck, it was not there. When I gripped it, my fingers closed on space. When I challenged Jean's whole-heartedness she burst into tears and asked what proof she could give that she had not given. And it was because she burst into tears that the phantom stalked me all the closer. Had she laughed and called me a silly boy I would have believed her.

Nothing came of it, however, and the days wore on until one forenoon we saw Spoof's tall figure looming up across the snow-waste that lay between Fourteen and Two.

We made him welcome, but he would not sit down. "Sorry, but I can't stay," he explained. "Jake is in a bit of a mess. Just came over to Two to tell me about it. It seems the coglation nut on his base burner—you know the big coal stove Jake puts on so many airs about—bless me if I know what a coglation nut is; rummy old name, don't you think?—but at any rate it has come loose so Jake posted over to borrow a left-hand monkey wrench with which to tighten it. It seems he can't get at it with an ordinary monkey wrench; must have a left-hand one. I hadn't such a thing about the place, and of course I told him so.

"'Danged unfortunate,' says Jake—excuse the adjective, ladies—and he stuck out his chin and mussaged it in a way that showed he was worried more than he admitted.

"'It will be all right, won't it?' said I, trying to buck him up, and really knowing nothing about it.

"'Well, it may be,' and it may not be,' said he. 'If we're lucky nothing will come of it.'

"'And in case you're unlucky?' I queried.

"'Then the bottom will fall out of the stove and the shack will burn down—maybe before I get back. We can't leave it without a fire in this weather, you know.'

"So seeing that old Jake was in a bit of a mess I volunteered to come over and borrow the necessary tools from you. It took quite a weight off his mind, I assure you."

Jack and Jean, as usual, were with us at the time and from a corner where he was out of the range of Spoof's vision Jack was semaphoring me an improvised hush signal.

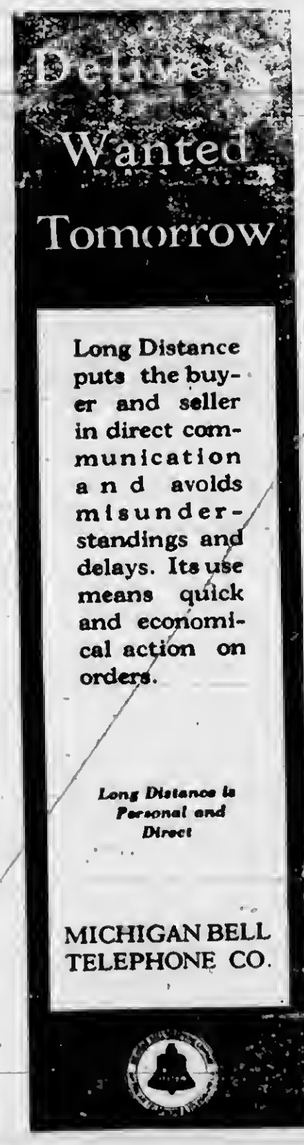
"Too bad the day is so dull," Jack said, looking out of our window in the direction of Jake's homestead. "Can't see a thing. His shack may be burned by this time. Perhaps Jake and Bella Donna are already on their way here for shelter."

"Oh, surely not!" exclaimed Jean. "Surely that would not happen!"

"Quite possible," her brother insisted, with the dreariness of one who is prepared for the worst. "When the coglation nut works loose you never know what may happen. And the worst of it is we haven't a left-hand wrench on the place."

(TO BE CONTINUED)

Electric light bulbs that give service at Charlevoix Hardware Co.—Adv. 35-tf.



Long Distance puts the buyer and seller in direct communication and avoids misunderstandings and delays. Its use means quick and economical action on orders.

Long Distance is Personal and Direct

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE CO.

That Gaunt Phantom of Doubt Closed In Upon Me.

WEATHER CAUSES A GREAT LOSS

OCTOBER BAD MONTH FOR THE FARMERS

Frequent Rains, Heavy Snow and Sovere Cold Weather Hinder Harveating Crops.

Probably the weather of no single month in history caused as great a loss to Michignn farmers as resulted during October of this year. The prospect for all late crops was excellent up to October 1 which, with generally good prices prevailing, caused a more optimistic feeling among agriculturists than had prevailed in several years. But frequent rains, heavy snow and several days of severe cold weather has changed the situation very materially, according to the November 1 report issued by L. Whitney Watkins, Commissioner of Agriculture and Verne H. Church, Agricultural Statistician, U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics. A consideroble portion of the acreage of beans, potatoes, apples, buckwheat, clover seed, and sugar beets remained to be harvested during October, to which odverse weather conditions caused heavy losses. As these are not all harvested yet, the extent of the losses cannot be fully determined at this time. Weather conditions during November will govern the amount that can be harvested and to some extent will influence the quality.

Corn: The crop matured well and the yield is good in all sections except some counties in the northern part of the state which were severely affected by drought during the summer. Wet weather has delayed cutting and husking, and it is making it difficult to dry the grain proper-

(Continued on Page 7)

BAPTIST CHURCH

The Pease-Nyburg Evangellstic campnign which began this week in the First Baptist church is getting off with a good start.

The pastor, Rev. Herman Burns, reports the Sunday and Monday services as very satisfactory. He recommends these Evangelists to the people of Charlevoix as true and sincere servants of God. As gentlemen, they are sane and safe in their methods, and their service is of a high order. No cheap, clap trap methods used here.

Prof. Richard Nyburg of Grand Rapids, has charge of the music and children's work. He is a sweet tenor singer rendering specinl solos each night. He seems to possess o special faculty of making everyone in his congregation sing. He is obly assisted in this by a large Chorus choir that fills the platform.

A special feature of Mr. Nyburg's work is that of his meetings for the boys and girls, held in the church right after school. The attendance at these meetings is well over the hundred mark. Many of these children come into the evening service assisted in this by a large chorus numbers up to fifty.

The meetings each night starts at 7:30 with o rousing service of song followed by the evening's sermon given by Evangelist J. J. Pease of Battle Creek. He preaches the old time gospel in a way that makes it new to his hearers. His messages are entertoining and yet heortsearching, they are forceful and direct. Both the Thursday and Friday night messages of this week will be taken from, "The World's Greatest Sermon. That Sermon on The Mount."

No Saturday night service will be held, but a special program will feature the Sunday services of 10:30 and 7:30.

Other specinl features will be introduced from night to night to make these meetings interesting to everyone. The church and pastor extend a hearty welcome to you.

METHODIST CHURCH

"Thanksgiving Philanthropy," sermon 10:30 a. m. next Sunday, a unique service.

"Just Standing Room", 7:00 p. m. sermon. This is the closing sermon in the story sermon serial. How will a person live who knows that he has but a week in which to live? This has been the theme of this sermon series. Did Robert Hardy die? How did he die? What happened in the last two days of his life? Hear about these things next Sunday evening.

An inspiring Epworth League service is scheduled for six o'clock next Sunday. Hear about it from the young people.

"How to have a good conscience," the Sunday school topic for next Sunday at 11:45.

INTERESTING BITS OF INFORMATION CLIPPED FROM OUR EXCHANGES

A Marshall girl eloped as far as Coldwater, and then stopped to phone her parents. If you let dad delay the pursuit too long, an elopment may be totally ruined.

Marble topped tables are coming back into vogue, according to designers at Grand Rapids. Good. That will give us something suitable to throw at the designers if they try to bring back horse-hair sofas.

Deer shiners working in the woods near the Soo have recently shot a horse and several cows. It is expected that this early and comparatively easy success will make it unnecessary for them to hunt in the barnyards.

Motorist at Grand Haven says he went into a drug store, leaving a stranger outside in his car, and when he returned the car was gone. Perhaps the stranger thought he wouldn't need it, believing he had gone into the drug store to buy another

WHY SUFFER SO?

Get Back Your Health as Other Charlevoix Folks Have Done.

Too many people suffer lame, aching backs, distressing kidney disorder and rheumatic aches and pains. Often this is due to faulty kidney action and there's danger of hardened arteries, dropsy, gravel or Bright's disease. Don't let weak kidneys wear you out. Use Doan's Pills before it is too late! Doan's are a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. Doan's have helped thousands. They should help you. Here is one of many Charlevoix cases:

John Stephens, 209 W. Upright Ave., says: "My kidneys were weak and acted too frequently, often causing me to get up several times during the night to pass the secretions. The passages of the secretions burned a great deal. Doan's Pills relieved the trouble and made me feel better in every way."

Prices 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Pills—the same that Mr. Stephens had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Two newspaper men were injured in hunting accidents in the upper peninsular on the opening day of the rabbit season. This is a disgrace to the profession. No live newspaper man should ever permit himself to be mistaken for anything less than a bear.

When a safe was stolen from a Muskegon home during the night a young man said, "he was awakened, but after smoking a cigaret he decided the noise only imagined." It shows the wisdom of keeping a few cigarets on hand for emergencies of this kind.

FROM OFFICE BOY TO GENERAL MGR.

Salary Increase Comes With Promotion

Chicago, Sept. 29—After a careful survey of the entire labor situation extending from office boy to president, indications are that positions showing increases in salaries require experienced help.

Consulting the president of one of our largest industries, the writer inquired regarding the rapid success of a certain young man who had become general manager and who a few years ago was but office boy; his answer was, Brown started as office boy, the lowest salaried position in our office, he was ambitious and managed to purchase a typewriter on small monthly payments and after three weeks of practice at home he was promoted to bill clerk, which position gave him knowledge of the selling price of all merchandise. His next advance was that of typist, which taught him the numerous forms of letter-writing and enabled him to hold a stenographic position, giving him complete knowledge of letter-writing. He was then made secretary, bringing him into contact with all business details and qualified him for the general manager's office at ten thousand per year.

The same opportunity awaits every young man and woman. Education or age have nothing to do with operating so simple a machine as the typewriter. We are informed that a great piece of benevolent work is being carried on by a large Chicago mail order house in furnishing typewriters to people worthy of credit, by selling on small monthly installments, so low as to average about eight cents per day and actually teaching their customers how to use and operate any typewriter in about three week's time. You can get other information by writing the International Typewriter Exchange, 184 W. Lake Street, Chicago, Illinois.

LEGAL NOTICES

Order for Publication

State of Michigan, The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the city of Charlevoix in said County, on the 10th day of November A. D. 1925.

Present: Hon. Servetus A. Correll, Judge of Probate.

In the Matter of the Estate of William H. Collins, Deceased.

Hannah M. Collins having filed in said court her petition praying that the administration of said estate be granted to petitioner or to some other suitable person,

It is ordered, That the 3rd day of December A. D. 1925, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, be and is hereby appointed for hearing said petition;

It is Further Ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order, one each week for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix Courier a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Servetus A. Correll,
Judge of Probate.

A true copy. 45t3

Order for Publication

State of Michigan, the Probate Court for the county of Charlevoix.

At a session of said court, held at the probate office in the city of Charlevoix, in said county, on the 28th day of October, A. D. 1925.

Present: Hon. Servetus A. Correll, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Herbert Hulme, deceased.

Charles Arnold, having filed in said court his final administration account, and his petition praying for the allowance thereof and for the assignment and distribution of the residue of said estate,

It is ordered, that the 25th day of November, A. D. 1925, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, be and is hereby appointed for examining and allowing said account and hearing said petition;

It is further ordered, that public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix Courier a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Servetus A. Correll,
Judge of Probate.

A true copy. Adv. 44-t3pd.

Order for Publication

State of Michigan, the Probate Court for the county of Charlevoix.

At a session of said court, held at the probate office in the city of Charlevoix, in said county, on the 3rd day of November, A. D. 1925.

Present: Hon. Servetus A. Correll, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Leslie E. Maves and Helen C. Maves, minors.

The Michigan Trust Company, having filed in said court its final account as to the estate of Leslie E. Maves, as guardian of said estate, and its petition praying for the allowance thereof, and for the allowance of the several annual accounts filed herein,

It is ordered, that the 25th day of November, A. D. 1925, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said Probate office, be and is hereby appointed for examining and allowing said account;

It is further ordered, that public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix Courier, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Servetus A. Correll,
Judge of Probate.

A true copy. Adv. 44-t3.

ANNOUNCEMENT

I have purchased the storage business and battery equipment of Pearl Brothers, and added it to my already well equipped battery service station, and will specialize in—

WINTER BATTERY STORAGE

Batteries and their proper upkeep is one of the most important duties of an automobile driver. They should not be neglected nor allowed to run down. You cannot expect your car to run with a poor or worn out battery.

Bring Your Batteries to Us

Not only for recharging, but for repairs and winter storage. We are equipped to give them the attention they require during the winter months. If they need overhauling, we will make them as good as new at a nominal expense. Call 60 when you are ready to store your battery.

Benj. Brown Auto Sales

Phone 60

Write a letter

TRY FOR $100 YOUR CHANCE

for extra Xmas money

(or for any other purpose you desire to use it)

Look for the Grade-mark on end of every board or piece. Three suitable Northern Hemlock grades for structural uses.

Every Man, Woman, Boy or Girl over 14 years is invited to enter this big educational

Cash Prize Letter Contest

For the Thirty Best Letters received on the value of Northern Hemlock in building construction and the many advantages from using lumber of known quality, plainly identified by the grade-mark of the expert grader at the mill, we are offering a total of

30 Cash Prizes

SENIOR PRIZES		JUNIOR PRIZES
1st prize	$100 cash	1st prize	$100 cash
2nd prize	50 "	2nd prize	50 "
3rd prize	25 "	3rd prize	25 "
4th prize	15 "	4th prize	15 "
5th prize	10 "	5th prize	10 "
10 Honorable Mention Prizes of $5.00 each.		10 Honorable Mention Prizes of $5.00 each.

Read our ads. They contain many prize winning suggestions and facts of practical value.

Contest Closes December 1, 1925

Get Posted Today! Write for full particulars to

THE NORTHERN HEMLOCK MANUFACTURERS
of Michigan and Wisconsin
327 F.R.A. Building, Oshkosh, Wisconsin

Grade-marked
HEMLOCK
Is more than "just lumber"

"The Grade-mark on Northern Hemlock guarantees superior manufacture, rigid uniform grading and full standard size. Saves you money and takes all guesswork from lumber utilization.

"Native Hemlock has long been favorably known for immunity to dry-rot, an important factor in the life of your building.

"Add to this the extra strength factor in Extra Standard Size Hemlock Joists and Studding, guaranteed by the grade-mark, and you'll appreciate the investment value in Northern Hemlock buildings.

"Yes, it pays to use good lumber of known quality and full standard size. Buy by the Grade-mark."

Ask Your Lumber Dealer

Build of Northern Hemlock for Strength & Stability!!

WM. J. BOGART
CONTRACTOR and BUILDER
No Job Too Large
No Job Too Small.
Phone 139 Charlevoix, Mich.

R. B. ARMSTRONG
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Special Attention to Diseases of Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat
Priest Bldg. Phone 255

VIRGINIA RYALL BROWN, D. C.
PALMER CHIROPRACTOR
PHONES:
Office 347 Residence 39
Postoffice Building

DR. F. F. McMILLAN
Physician and Surgeon
Office above Postoffice
Phone 17
Charlevoix :: Michigan

D. T. McHUGH
General Contractor
Phone 214
CHARLEVOIX MICHIGAN

A. L. FITCH
ATTORNEY AT LAW
Office in Court House
Phone 48
Charlevoix :: Michigan

CHARLEVOIX COURIER

NUMBER 32. VOLUME 46. EIGHT PAGES COURIER, CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY NOVEMBER 18, 1925 PRICE $2 00 PER YEAR

ONE CONTINUOUS EDUCATION WEEK

IS AIM IN CHARLEVOIX PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Supt. Coverdale States That the Principle Below Meotioned is Carried Out at All Times

Below we reproduce a copy of President Coolidge's proclamation for the observance of Educational Week throughout the United States, which is well worth reading and carries an appeal to churches, organizations and the citizens themselves to do all in their power to further the cause of education in the country.

In an interview with Superintendent Coverdale of the public schools, he stated that the work of the local institution was carried out with the principles set forth in the Educaeational week program in mind at all times, and therefore no special program has been arranged. Parents are welcome to visit schools at any time and are urged to do so. The proclamation follows:

"Education is becoming well-nigh universal in America. The rapidity of its expansion within the past half centry has no precedent. Our system of public instruction, administered by State and local officers, is peculiarly suited to our habits of life and to our plan of goverument, and it has brought forth abundant fruit.

In some favored localities only one, two or three persons in a thousand between the ages of 16 and 20 are classed as illiterate. High schools and academies easily accessible are offering to the youth of America a greater measure of education than that which the founder of the Nation received from Harvard, William and Mary, Yale, and Princeton; and so widely diffused has advanced study become that the bachelor's degree is no longer n symbol of unusual learning.

All this is reason for gratification; but in the contemplation of worthy achievement we must still be mindful that full provision has not yet been made throughout the country for education of either elementary, secondary, or higher grade. Large numbers have not been reached by the blessings of education. The efficiency of the schools in rural communities is, in general, relatively low; too often their equipment is meagre, their teachers poorly prepnred, and their terms short. High schools, nothwithstanding their extraordinary growth, have not kept pace with the demand for instruction; even in great cties many students are restricted to half-time attendance, and in outlaying district saeh schools are frequently insufficient in number or inadequate in quality. In higher education the possibilties of exlsting institutions have been reached and it is essential that their facilities be extended or that junior colleges in considerable numbers be estahlished.

These deficiences leave no room for complacency. The utmost endeavor must be exerted to provide for every child in the land the full measure of education which his need and his capacity demand and none must be permitted to live in igorance. Marked benefit has come in reeent years from nation-wide campaigns for strengthening public sentiment for universal education, for upholding the hands of constituted school authorities, and for promoting meritorious legislation in behalf of the schools. Suen revivals are wholesome and should continue.

Now, therefore, I, Cnlvin Coolidge, President of the United States, do proclaim the week begining November sixteenth as American Education Week and I urge that it be observed throughout the United States. I recommend that the governors of the several states issue proclamations setting forth the necessity for education to a free people and requesting that American Education Week be appropriately celebrated in their respective States. I urge further that local officers, civic, social, and religious organiations, and citizens of every occupation, contribute with all their strength to the advance of education, and that they make of American Education Week a special season of mutual encourgament in promoting that enlightenment upon which welfare of the Nation depends.

Calvin Coolidge."

THANKSGIVING DAY PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR

In neeordanee with federal and atate statutes, and in keeping with the nntional custom, and because every person has some reason for joining in a proper observance of the day, I hereby desiguate Thursday, November 26, 1925, as a day of PUBLIC THANKSGIVING.

Given under my hand and the Great Seal of the State this fourteenth day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and twenty-five, and of the commonwealth the eigthy-ninth.

Alex J. Groesbeek, Governor.

By the Governor:
Charles J. DeLand,
Seeretary of State.

Has Hand Badly Crushed

George Ball, prominent farmer of Emmet county, crushed his right hand so hadly in a corn shredder at his farm just west of Levering, Tuesday that amputation just below the wrist was necessary. He was rushed to Petoskey hospital in the Ball automobile accompanied by Mrs. Ball and one of his sons, Calvin Ball, who remained at the hospital until after Mr. Ball came out from under the anesthetic. He is doing as well as can be expected.

"ALL ABOARD" IS BAILEY'S SUBJECT

WILL APPEAR AT PALACE THEATRE NOV. 26

Next Number of Lyceum Course, Thanksgiviog Evening, Comes Highly Recommended

"All Aboard" is the subject of the lecture which will he delivered here next Thursday evening, November 26, on the Lyceum course by Elwood T. Bailey.

This lecture deals with the problems of America today, problems that confront each and all of us in our civic nnd national life.

Elwood T. Bailey comes here with a reputation as an eloquent, dynamic lecturer. He has just recently completed a tour of one of the big Redpath Chautauqua circuits, and everywhere his address was hailed as one of the most important features of the entire Chautauqua.

Not only is Mr. Bailey eloquent nnd dyamic, but all of his lectures are full of the human things that people want to hear. His personnlity is such that when he has finished his lecture his listeners are conscious that they have been with human conditions as portrayed by an intensely human speaker.

Following are three typical press comments on Mr. Bailey and his work:

Omaha, Neb., Bee: "The lecture by Elwood Tewksbury Bailey was a most heart-thrilling address interspersed with humor and given with such deep feeling and earnestness that hundreds were held in a spell for an hour and a half."

Fostoria, O., Times: "A wonderful lecture, driven home with forcefulness by a man with magnetism and power, was that given by Elwood T. Bailey."

"Mr. Bailey is a clear, forceful, rapid speaker. He is terribly in earnest. He has a message," says the Bloomington, Ill., Pantagraph.

REBEKAH CIRCLE HOLDS MEETING

Plaos for Winter Entertainmeots Are Made

The ladies of the Rebekah Cirele held a very enjoyable business and social meeting last Friday afternoon, November 13, at the home of Mrs. May Bugbee on Hurlbut avenue.

Plans were laid for a series of entertainments and money-making schemes whereby the order might raise monay to defray the expenses of finlshing the new Odd Fellow hall, and officers were elected as follows:

Pres.—May Bugbee.
Vice-Pres.—Nell Shearer.
Secy.—Alice Gebeau.
Treas.—Bertha Wagner.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mra. Harry Gebeau, November 27th. All members are argently requested to be present, as business of importance is to be transacted.

It is time to make arrangements for storage of your car battery for the winter. Call phono 60 and we will do the rest. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 44-tf.

CHARLEVOIX WAS WELL REPRESENTED

AT MEETING IN TRAVERSE CITY LAST FRIDAY

Further Improvemeot of M-11 Was Discussed By Represeoatives Along Route

Charlevoix was well represented at the meeting called last Friday at the Park Hotel in Traverse City for the purpose of facilitating action toward presenting Michigan's claims for further improvement of M-11 from Benzonia north. The meeting was called by J. C. Beukema, secretary-manager of the Greater Muskegon Chamber of Commerce, and summoned represenatives from all cities on M-11.

Charlevoix representatives to the meeting presented a very unselfish and cooperative view in connection with the further paving of M-11, their plans calling for moving the headquarters of the committee to Traverse City and going ahend with the construction of the highway from the point left off last fall, which has been completed as far north as Benzonia. When the concrete has reached the stretch south of Traverse City and linked the two together, then the organization headquarters be moved to Charlevoix and all cities on the route boost for the completion of the work to the end of the concrete south of Charlevoix and so on until the road is completed to Mackinaw City.

To this end a committee composed of J. B. Milliken of Traverse City, chairman, W. H. Hobbs, secretary, Willnrd Bryant and Senator Case of Benzonia, were appointed, their duty being to handle the publicity on the project and handle other business of the organization. Other meeting will be called in the near future to discuss meeting further action and Robert Bridge was appointed delegate from Charlevoix to a meeting to be held in Lansing at a later date.

With a strong organization in the central part of Michigan boosting claims of M-13 for first consideration on the paving program of the state highwny department, it is well that western Michigan is not "asleep at the switch." M-11 is the logical route to be completed first, and our demands should never slacken until the entire route has been paved.

Frank Hnmilton, a member of the state highway department, was present at the meeting and, after hearing Charlevoix's plans in connection with the program for completion of the pavement, congratulated them on their spirit of unselfishness and cooperation in furtherance of the project.

Webster-Trimble

Word comes to us at a late date of the marriage of Vivian L. Webster and Clayton Trimble, both of Charlevoix, who were united in marriage by the Rev. Harry Allburt of Petoskey, June 27, 1925. They were attended by the bride's sister, Ruby M. Webster and Harold F. Stueck of East Jordan. Mrs. Trimble left on November 10th, to join her husband at Clearwater, Florida, where they will spend the winter months.

Give that car battery the attention it should have. It will soon be time for winter storage. Call 60 and we will take care of it. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 44-tf.

SPECIAL PROGRAM FOR NEXT SUNDAY

MUSICAL TREAT AWAITS YOU AT CONG. CHURCH

Thanksgiving Vesper Service Will Take Place of Eveoiog Service

A special musical program has been arranged for Sunday, November 22nd, at the Congregational church and all musie lovers will miss a treat if they do not attend. Three special numbers have been arranged for the morning service at 10:30, besides an address by the pastor on the suhject, "The Abundance of the Heart." Following is the program:

Largo, Op. 7, from Beethoven, by C. Menzel, piano and organ—Mesdames Swinton and Stelter.

"Oh, Be Joyful in the Lord," W. H. Pease—choir.

The Last Hope, L. Gottschalk—Mesdames Swinton, Stelter.

Dr. Mattson will preach on "The Abundance of the Heart."

Following is the program for the afternoon at 4:30, which will be a special Thanksgiving vesper service and take the place of the evening worship hour.:

Prelude, "Calvary," Paul Rodney—Messrs. Bellinger, Winick, Wagner, Bridge, Mrs. Stelter.

Processional Hymn, "Onward Christian Soldiers," Sullivan.

Doxology.

Invocation, Gloria.

Responsive Scripture.

Jubilate in E flat, Arthur Foote—chorus and solo, Mr. Gale.

Duet, Selected—Mrs. Livingston, Dr. Wilkinson.

"And God Shall Wipe Away All Tears," C. W. Coombs, Solo—Mrs. Adams, Violin Obligato; Mr. Bridge and chorus.

"Abide With Me," M. Bartlett—Messrs. Dimmick, Davenport, Saltonstall, Dutcher.

Offertory, "The Evening Star," (Tannehauser), Wagner—Orchestra.

"No Evil Shall Befall Thee," M. Costa—Women's chorus.

Address, "Blessed America," Dr. Mattson.

"Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem, J. H. Munder, Solo—Mrs. Coulter and chorus.

Recessional Hymn, "America."

Postlude, From Lohengrin, Wagner.

TORN TO PIECES IN ROCK SCREEN

Sol Snider Visited By Death in Fearful Form Saturday

Sol Snider, 33, an oiler employed by the Petoskey Portland Cement company, was found dead in the screen room of the cruhing plant at 4 p. m., Saturday, by George Brown, another employee of the plant.

Snider had been missed by his foreman for twenty minutes and was finally discovered on the upper floor with the back of his head caved in, his left arm torn off at the elbow and his right arm badly ground up. He was alone at the time the accident happened, engaged in his duty of oiling the crushing machinery, but it is thoaght he became caught, in some way, in the revolving stone screen.

Card of Thanks

The husband and family of Mrs. Chas. E. See extend their thanks to their friends and societies who so kindly offered words of eomfort and floral tokens at the time of her death. Chas. E. See and Family. —46t1.

The Wrong Kind of Bait

COWS AND FARM PRODUCE LOST IN FIRE

Barn and Contents a Total Loss at A. Evers' Farm

Fire of undetermined origin destroyed the harn and contents at the farm home of Amandus Evers, whieh is located about six miles north of Charlevoix on the concrete road to Petoskey.

Mr. and Mrs. Evers were awakened from their sleep at about 5 o'clock last Friday morning by the noise of the fire. Mr. Evers rushed out to the horse stable and succeeded in getting the horses out of the barn. Mrs. Evers went to the cow stahle but was unable to reach the imprisoned animals, flames having developed that part of the structure so that one could not go near it.

Besides three valuahle cows, 17 tons of hay, 100 bushels of beans, 400 bushels of oats and about 1700 feet of lumber were lost, along with some farm implements and small tools. Fortunately the wind was blowing away from the house and the out huildings and they were untouched by the flames, although the barn was a total loss.

Insurance to the amount of $500 was carried on the barn and $250 on the contents.

FISHING SEASON FALLS WAY SHORT

BOOTH AND ROBBINS, INC. FIGURES SHOW LOSS

Unusual Weather This Season and Delayed Opening Date Robs Fishermen

According to figures obtained from the two local fish companies, Booth Fisheries Company and Robbins, Inc., it is very evident that the commercial fishing season for lake trout was far from heing up to the average of former years, and even less than last year, which was not up to normal.

The total number of fish froze last year for both companies combined amounted to 331,000 pounds, which was considerably short of former years. This season's freeze amounted to 263,000 pounds, or 69,000 pounds short of last year. Taken at the prevailing price being paid for the trout this means that fishermen lost in the neighhorhood of $7,280. This is a severe loss to the fishermen.

The spawning senson at this time of the year is the annual harvest for those following the commercial fishing game. The loss is more keenly felt by the small operators who haven't the boat or number of net to insure them of large catches, nnd many of them will have to seek work in the cities this winter to offset their losses.

Here are some of the contributory causes for this condition. First we will state that the law governing the open season on trout reads that fishermen are not allowed to set nets for trout on the spawning grounds before the 4th of November unless permission in given by the game warden in charge, whose duty is to set test nets and determine when the season is officially open. He has the power to set the date at any time previous to November 4th if conditions warrant its opening. Last year the first fish were brought in on October 31st, and this year the season didn't open until November 4th. The first lifts made were big ones and it was found that the trout were spawning freely. The condition shows that the opening date should have been at least a week sooner nnd the season would have been a suceessful one. The trout were nearly through spawning beforo the opening date, a condition whieh is unealled for.

We are of the opinion that the law should be changed or else more attention paid to the matter by those in charge of the opening of the season.

Attention, Radio Fans

The thousands of Michigan supporters, who were disappointed in securing tickets for the Ohio-Michigan game on November 14th, and for the Minnesota-Michigan game on November 21, will "listen in" on the football game via radio. The Detroit News, The Chicago Tribune and the Jewett Phonograph and Radio stations will also broadcast these games.

MAN OF SMALL INCOME SAVES

TAX REDUCTION WILL BE PASSED DOWN TO ALL

Millions Earning Less Than $5,000 Will Pay Nothing Directly

Taxpayers with incomes less than $5,000 will make a tremendous saving under the reduced schedule of payments adopted unanimously by the ways and means committee.

This class of taxpayers paid a total of more than $81,000,000 into the treasury in the calendar year 1923, the last for which figures are available. It is estimated the reduction from 2 per cent to 1½ per cent in the rates of these payments, together with the increased exemptions of single men from $1,000 to $1,500 and of married men from $2,500 to $3,500, will save these individuals approximately $50,000,000.

Persons with incomes under $5,000 comprise the bulk of income taxpayers in the country. Of the 7,698,000 individuals who made income tax returns in 1923 slightly more than 7,000,000 showed incomes of less than $5,000. That this class of taxpayers is the bulwark of the nation is indicated hy the fact of the $25,000,000,000 in income shown by individuals in 1923, $18,000,000,000 was made up of incomes of less than $5,000.

Married persons, under the proposed law as well as the old law are allowed an exemption of $400 for each child less than 18 years of age.

The exemptions for children are not taken into account in the tables that follow, but the individual easily can calculate the difference.

Under the new law all incomes of less than $5,000 are taken as earned incomes. Calculating the proposed increased exemption of 25 per cent for earned incomes the taxes to be paid by persons of less than $5,000 income under the new law follows:

Gross Income.	Tax Single Person.	Tax Married Person.
$1,200	None	None
1,400	None	None
1,600	$ 1.13	None
1,800	3.38	None
2,000	5.63	None
2,200	7.88	None
2,400	10.13	None
2,600	12.38	None
2,800	14.63	None
3,000	16.88	None.
3,200	19.13	None.
3,400	21.38	None.
3,600	23.63	$ 1.13
3,800	25.88	3.38
4,000	28.13	5.63
4,200	30.38	7.88
4,400	32.63	10.13
4,600	34.88	12.38
4,800	37.13	14.63

SEVEN THOUSAND HUNTERS CROSS

Ferries Jammed With Countless Nimrods Bound North

Two state ferries carried six hundred automobiles with fifteen hundred hunters across the Straits of Mackinac last Thursday. The ferry made its last trip after midnight with about seventy-five autos lined up on the dock in a drizzling rain, waiting for the morning boat.

The ferries were crowded all day Friday and the Michigan Central-Pennsylvania trains brought heavy loads of hunters Friday morning. Seven thousand hunters have crossed the straits since Sunday and are still coming strong.

MANY SMALLER CITIES HAVE NOT STARTED LEGION FUND DRIVE

There are many towns and cities in Michigan that have not raised their quota for the American Legion Endowment Fund, and because of this fact the State Executive Committee of the Department of Michigan, American Legion, has decided to continue the drive in Michigan until the state quota of $110,000 is raised. Detroit has raised its quota of $175,000, nnd an intensive campaign will he started in Michigan to complete the state quota.

A number of Michigan cities have already raised their quota, many of them have raised in excess of their quotn, and in other cities campaigns are now in progress, nnd it is expected these cities will get their quotas before their campaign is finished. Has Charlevoix raised her quota?

Mothers Treat Colds The New "Direct" Way

No Longer Necessary to "Dose" Children With Internal Medicines to Break Colds.

Children's digestions are easily upset by too much "dosing." Vicks VapoRub being externally applied, does not upset little stomachs.

At the first sign of croup, sore throat, or any other cold trouble, apply Vicks freely. There is nothing to swallow—you just "rub it on."

VICKS VAPORUB

Over 21 Million Jars Used Yearly

CORRESPONDENCE

BARNARD

Still another winter.

The Ladies Aid met with Rev. and Mrs. Conklin in Ellsworth on Friday last.

The latest report from Flint, concerning Mr. Ed. Shapton is that he is slowly improving. His daughter, Mrs. Sands, returned home Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Beattie and children, also Mrs. Annie Bowdish, drove to Traverse City on Sunday to visit Mrs. Beattie's sister and brother, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Shaw, Mrs. Bowdish remained to visit for a few weeks.

The Grange will hold a rabbit supper on Friday evening of this week. If the local sportmen are not any more successful than some the writer knows, we think that it will end up as a chicken pie supper. However all are invited to what it may be.

The Grange installation meeting Friday night, was well attended by local and other grangers of the county. Mr. Keefer, State Deputy, gave a very interesting talk, also Pomona Master E. E. Stroud, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Saunders were the installing officers. Refreshments were served and all of the evening was much enjoyed by all.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Cummings and Mrs. Robert Gregory motored to Petoskey on Sunday to see Glenn's uncle, George Ball, who is in the Petoskey hospital as the result of an accident with the corn shredding machine. His right hand was almost completely cut off by the machine, but he is recovering as well as can be expected and expects to return home some time this week.

It is time to make arrangements for storage of your car battery for the winter. Call phone 60 and we will do the rest. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 44-tf.

IRONTON

Mrs. Jackson spent Saturday and Sunday with her mother, at Phelps.

Alfred Williams and wife, drove to Hermansville, to visit his sister, Mrs. Lottie Tumath.

Sam Woodworth, his motber and Mr. and Mrs. Ssm Moore went to Springvale, Sunday.

Sam Alexander went to Gaylord to get Mrs. Alexander's sister, Mrs. Lennox, of Port Huron.

Ross Alexander, Sam Woodworth and Clarence Coblentz, went deer hunting Tuesday morning.

On Wednesday, the 11th, eight men worked in the basement of the church. It is already now for the cement.

Happy Si (Warner Alexander) was a caller at Breezy Point Farm. One of the men hasn't the nails out of his hat and cost yet.

Friday Lewis Peterson, Lewis Brown and Marion Jackson joined by others from East Jordan, went deer hunting on the east side of the state.

Mr. and Mrs. McMulkin and Mr. and Mrs. Sam Straw, drove to Hermansville and Manistique, atarting Monday, the 9th, and eame back Wednesday.

Thursday evening there was a farewell party at Mrs. Kris Neilson's. Mrs. Neilson and daughter, Elsie, and son, Elzie Thompson, will go to Columbus, Ohio.

About twenty young ladies of the Methodist church of Boyne City drove over Monday, November 9th to the home of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Hansen. The object was to get better acquainted. All enjoyed a weenie roast around the fire place, after which a social time was spent and marshmallows roasted. The ride home in the crisp air completed a very nice evening,

5¢ RUB-NO-MORE 5¢

For milk bottles, Cans and dairy urns Use Rub-No-More, It routs the germs.

WASHING POWDER 5¢

FOR THOSE WHO CARE WHAT THEIR MONEY BUYS

Dodge Brothers, Inc. have always built a good, sound, long-lived product.

They have never built "yearly models" and never will.

They do not make frequent expensive changes simply to catch the whim of the hour.

On the contrary, they devote themselves steadfastly to the improvement of a car that has been good from the very beginning.

This process of improvement has now been going on for 11 years.

Its influence on the car's appearance and performance has been nothing short of remarkable.

Always eminently dependable, it is now also an exceptionally easy riding car.

Always up-to-date, it is now strikingly attractive.

Style and smartness stand out in every line.

Sheer logic never made the choice more obvious—

Dodge Brothers Motor Car for those who really care what their money buys.

BENJ. BROWN

CHARLEVOIX, MICH.

NORWOOD

J. McPherson of East Jordan is visiting at the Hull home, this week.

Mrs. Hull of Norwood, visited her brother, Henry Black, of Ellsworth, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Isa Alward of Ellsworth visited Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Alward last Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Harris Pierce of Norwood, attended the funeral of Henry Aldrich of Charlevoix, last Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Beard of Petoskey, spent Saturday and Sunday at the fsrm home of Mr. and Mrs. I. L. Dice.

Sam Alward, accompanied by Jacob and Harry Ypma of Grand Rapids, left last Saturday morning for a deer hunt.

Mrs. Haskins of Norwood, who has been visiting relatives in Grand Rapids for the past month, returned to her home last Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Holecheck of Norwood, visited at the Gregory home, near Charlevoix, where Mr. Gregory is in poor health.

Mr. and Mrs. Slick, accompanied by his mother of Manton, Michigan, visited at the Pierce home Saturday nigbt and on Sunday visited Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brown.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Publow of Lansing, arrived at Mrs. Publow's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Richardson, Saturday night and left for Lansing Sunday morning. Mr. Richardson went to Lansing with them for a few day's visit.

Mrs. Geo. Light and son, George, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Henry Wagner, and also Mrs. Wm. Cowan, all of Charlevoix, visited the Ladies' Aid Society meeting held at the home of Mrs. Frank Brown last Wednesday afternoon, and enjoyed the regular meeting along with the Armistice program and social hour, together.

Mrs. Jacob Ypma of Grand Rapids, is visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Greeley, while her husband is on a deer hunt. Mrs. Ypma brought with her a radio which is being thoroughly enjoyed by all the family and their friends, who spend their evenings at the Greeley home.

Winter battery storage cost is small with us. We are equipped to take eare of them. Bring your batteries to us for winter storage. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 44-tf.

Courier Want Ads pay.

Christian Science Society

Sunday services 11:45 a. m., subjeet, "Soul and Body."

Sunday achool, 12:00.

Wednesday evening service, 7:45 p. m.

Readlng room open Tueaday and Saturday, 3:00 to 5:00 p. m.

Tbe publie is cordially invited to use our reading room and attend the

Why use "so-so," when you can buy high teat gasoline at 24c. Try it. Brown and Wallace. Adv. 45tf

CHURCH OF GOD

We will begin a revival meeting next Sunday which will continue two weeks. These services will be conducted by Evangelist J. C. Thomson of Alma, Mich., a young man who is having considerable success in the capacity of evangelism. Come and hear him.

Through ministerial courtesy and agreement it was decided to hold Thanksgiving services only in the two places where protracted meetings were going on giving the public the choice of either place on Thanksgiving evening.

Other services held as usually announced.

Coal Prices Advancing Rapidly

due to car shortage.

Better get your coal as our supply is limited.

Charlevoix-Co-Operative Assn.

CHARLEVOIX COURIER

PRICE $2.00 PER YEAR

NUMBER 32. VOLUME 47 EIGHT PAGES COURIER, CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 25, 1925

LOCALS BOYS ON WESTERN TRIP

STATE THEY ENJOYED EVERY MILE OF LONG JOURNEY

Luther McCann and Donald Faunce Write of Experience on the Road to Land of Flowers

"All fed up on this tourist business" is the expression used by Luthern McCann and Donnld Faunce, who left Charlevoix September 14, on a 4,385 mile trip to Los Angeles, California, where they will spend the winter months. The trip must have been a thrilling one and the boys enjoyed every mile of it. Their eyes missed few things enroute, and they visited many points of interest. The letter follows:

Dear Editor—Just a few lines about our trip from Charlevoix to Los Angeles:

We left Charlevoix September 14 at 6:00 a. m., driving to Holland that night. Left Holland the following morning at 7:00 n. m., arriving in Chicngo nt 1:30 p. m. Here we took in a few of the sights. The next day we bought our camping outfit consisting of tent, chnirs, blankets, stove, cooking utensils, n gns, oil and water carrier that fits on the running board and is used for emergency cases, and were ready for the long trip.

Left Chicago Thursday morning at 9:00 a. m., driving that day to Dubuque, Iowa, arriving there at 6:00 p. m. The ronds were all paved with the exception of about 50 miles of good grnvel. Left Dubuque Friday, September 18, driving to Charles City, Iowa, n short dny's drive of less than 200 miles. Left Charles City for Sioux City, S. D., driving 265 miles that day. That night it was quite cold, but we had plenty of bedding nnd did not mind is much.

September 20 we left Sioux Falls, driving three miles of bnrren plains, going through Chnmberlnin, S. D., where they were celebrating the opening of n bridge which would make six like the one in Chnrlevoix. One of the features of the celebration was a rodeo nnd a sham battle depicting "Custer's Last Stand." There were 7000 Indians taking part in the affair and besides over 250 of Custer's men. The Indians came from their reservations for miles around to take part in this play. We had never before snw so many Indians nnd we greatly enjoyed the affair. The little town was filled with spectators and they had a great time.

After an hour or two at Chamberlin, we were on our way to Prescbo, S. D., which is only a jumping off place, where we managed to put in a very comfortable night in n farmer's hny stack.

Left Prescho September 21, driving to Rapid City, which is the gateway to the famous Black Hills in thnt region. Here we encountered about 15 miles of real "gumbo" mud, and it was sure some mud. From Rapid City we drove through the black hills, which were very beautiful, to a little village in the hills at which place is located the richest gold mine in the world. We arrived nt Gillette, Wyoming, that day. Gillette is a berg about the size of Bayshore, but not of the razor blade fame. That day we saw what is known as the "Devil's Tower," 1250 feet above the ground, and right straight up, too.

Left Gillette September 23, driving over the Custer Battlefield Highway and taking in the Custer National Cemetery. The highway was well mnrked (where the battle took plnee) telling us who fell here and who fell there, where one side retreated, where the other side retreated, thus giving the traveler all information nbout the famous battle. We drove 280 miles this day, arriving at Billings, Montana, at 10 p. m. Left here the following morning over the terrible dirt roads, arriving at Bozemnn, Montana, nbout 4:00 p. m. Here we hnd a set nf new brake linings put on the car and took in the county fair. Saw plenty of cow boys nnd Indians "doing their stuff" and the fire works that evening must have cost thousands of dollars.

Left Bozemnn the next day about noon, driving through the Mission mountains nnd nrriving nt Butte, Montana, that evening at 5:00 p. m. Butte is right in the heart of the Rockies and the city looks it all right. Its hilly any direction you look. Roads are bad through Montana, no mud but loose, rough dirt.

Left Butte September 26, driving through Bitteroot and Rockie mountains, taking in the best part of Montana. The scenery wns wonderful nnd climbing these hills, especially one known as the Camel's Hump, 3,725 feet high, was no small work on the part of the driver.

(Continued on Page 7)

CHARLES MOSSINGTON IS SUMMONED

HAD BEEN IN POOR HEALTH FOR THREE YEARS

Was a Resident of Charlevoix for a Period of Forty-Six Years

Charlevoix lost another from its rapidly depleting rank of pioncers by the death of Charles Mossington, who died at his home in this city on Tuesday evening, November 24th, at 8:30 o'clock.

Deceased wns eighty years old at the time of his death, having been born in Sincoe county, Cannda, on April 7, 1845. His boyhood dnys were spent nt the place of his birth, where he lived for some 34 years. He was married in Canadn to Miss Anna Clark in 1879, the couple mnking their home there for about nine years before mnving to Charlevoix, where they hnve made their home for the past 46 yenrs. Mr. Mossington's chief occupation through life had been thnt of gnrdener nnd he made his home for n long period just outside the Chicngo club grounds where he was cnretaker of the S. M. Moore estate. He continued his ladors up until nbout three years ago when ill health forced his retirement.

Mr. Mossington wns the father of two children, one daughter, Mrs. Harry Widdifield, of the city, surviving besides the widow. A son, Joseph Wellington Mossington, pnssed nway about eight years ago while a resident of this city. There are also five grandchildren, three sons of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Widifield, nnd the two children of the late Joseph Wellington Mossington.

Deceased was an ardent lisherman and sporstman nnd had a lnrge following of faithful friends, especially among the older residents of the city, who will greatly miss their old comrade of many fishing trips. "Charlie," as he was known to all, could be found on the lakes either winter or summer, whenever he had an opportunity to be there. He was a member of the Loyal Order of Moose.

Funeral services will be held from the home, 101 East Upright nvenue, Friday nfternoon at 2:00 o'clock, Rev. B. G. Mattson of the Congregational chureh, officiating. Interment at Brookside cemetery.

BUILD NEW THEATRE EARLY NEXT YEAR

Work Will Be Started as Soon as Weather Permits

Building operations on the proposed new $50.000 moving picture house will start ns early next spring ns the wenther will permit, is the statement given out by Mrs. L. A. Moon through her local representntive, Walker Miles.

The original plans will be fully carried out, aceording to Mr. Miles, nnd Chnrlevoix's new show house will be opened to the public by July first if nothing prevents.

The Mary Brewster Circle will hold a Christmas snle, Snturdny, December 12. Plnce to be announced later.—Adv. 47-t1.

Today is the time to order those Christmas Cnrds. Exclusive sample line at this offiee.—Adv. 47t4.

HUNTERS MUST KEEP OFF LAND THAT IS POSTED

Hunters who disregard posting of farm lands commit a misdemeanor by trespassing and can be prosecuted under criminnl statutes, the attorney general declared in an opinion given the State Farm Bureau recently.

This ruling reverses the holding of Clyde Cortright, Calhoun county prosecutor, who dismissed proceedings brought by Glenn Peck agninst George Burrows.

Peck claimed thnt Burrows hunted on the former's fnrm which was posted with "No Hunting" signs. The prosecutor dismissed the case, contending that there was no provision for criminal action.

TOURISTS USE STATE CAMPS

OVER 2,000,000 VISIT STATE DURING YEAR 1925

Great Volume of Dollars Spent Among Residents of Western Lake Michigan Shore

Tourist figures announced recently by the Michigan Tourist and Resort Association show that in the 1925 season, April to Octoher, inclusive, more thnn 2,000,000 persons utilized the Michigan state camps in their motor journeys among the scenic delights of the state. The figures were compiled hy the state Conservation Commission and are the first nuthentic statements of the year giving nny estimate of the great volume of tourist dollars that have accrued to the citizens of Weat Michignn.

These figurcs ure for state camps only and do not include community owned camps of which no estimates of the year's business are yet nvailable. In the 1924 season, the patrons of state camps were 670,000. Tourist cnrs transported across the Straits of Mackinac by state ferries, when the year has been finished, will have exceeded 60,000, the totals up to September 1 being 41,000, which does not include, of course, the labor day traffic or thnt of the hunting season.

The rule of the state camps is that a stay of only two weeks is permitted and if the usual minimum estimate of $7 per person per day expended by each tourist is used as a basis, it can be readily seen that Michigan has been made richer by millions of dollars from state camp patrons only, without consideration of community camp figures or those of resorts, cottagea and hotels. The Michignn Tourist and Resort Associatinn's nnnunl independent survey nmong persons who answered advertisements in newspnpers showed that but 15.7 per cent of those who came to West Michignn actunlly used camps. If the total camping business were but 4,000,000 persons, including both state and community camps, and the fact that only 1 out of 6 parties used the camps were considered, the size of Michigan's summer business would be beyond the estimnte of the most optimistic boosters.

"The fact is," said Secretary-Mannger Hugh J. Grey nf the Associntion in commenting upon the state figures, "that none of us have the slightest iden of the enormity of the volume of money that is rolling into West Michignn every summer in the shape of outside tourists, resorts and hotel patrons, yet whenever we get n glimpse at authentic, actual figures they are absolutely stnggering. The predictions of the most optimistic of us seem like pessimism in the face of the cold facts. Is it any wonder, in view of this extraordinary pntronage that outside money syndicates are viewing with jealous envy the vnst future possibilities of a territory in which the residents themselves do not totally get the glorious picture? Slowly, however, these things are dawning upon our lending citizens and that repays staunch supporters of the movement to bring in this summer money in larger quantities."

The ladies of the W. R. C. nre giving a stocking social on Tuesday, Deeember 1, at the home of Mrs. Frank Coatta, on South Terrace. All ladies are invited.—Adv. 47t1.

PRELIMINARY OPERATION STARTED

GROUND HAS BEEN BROKEN FOR NEW BOAT HOUSE

South Shore of Round Lake Will Be Beautified By the New Building

After considerable delay necessitated by the transfer of deeds and titles to the several parcels of land involved, preliminary work has begun on the boat house for Logan Thomson's new yacht, the Sylvia. Two teams with scrapers are now engaged in digging out the slip, and a dredge will be employed to complete the job.

In the changes made Mr. Thomson becomes owner of one hundred and fifty-three feet of lnke frontnge situuted immediately west of his present holdings and he now owns all lake frontage from the Belvedere bayou west to the east linc of the former Windsor Aldrich property with a stretch of 76 feet fronting on Belevedere avenue. The boat houses now located on the newly acquired property are being torn down and will be removed and rebuilt on Lot 9 and west ½ of Lot 10, Block 20, Newman's additinn, the proposed structure to be 40x60 feet containing six slips for small boats, this procedure being being part of the agreement between Mr. Thomson and Karl Keifer, the latter representing the interests of the parties formerly occupying the boat houses to be removed. Roe Brothers are now dredging out the slip nnd driving sheet piling and the new atructure will be rushed to completion in time to house the boats for this winter.

The building for housing the Sylvia will be 45x150 feet, containing a slip 25x142 feet. The structure will run north nnd south, necessitating dredging into the bank for a distance of some 90 feet and to the deptlr of approximately nine feet. The building will be low and used only for laying the boat up for the winter, when the mast will he removed before entering. From the north end of the boat house extend-

(Continued on Page 8)

SUN ROOM FURNITURE MUCH APPRECIATED

Woman's Auxiliary Present Useful Gift to Hospital

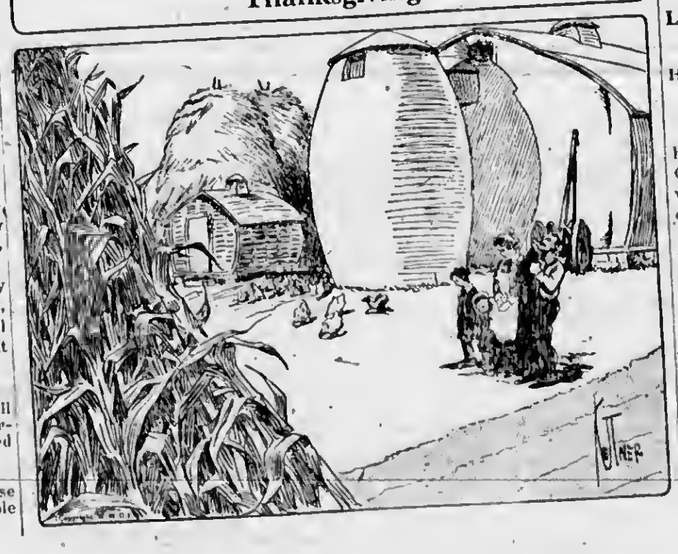
The Charlevoix Hospital was the recipient of a beautiful and very useful gift on Thursday afternoon of last week when they received the new wicker parlor set, a gift of the Woman's Auxilinry of the hospitnl.

The set consisted of a large davenport, rocking chair, one arm chnir and one straight chair, table, writing desk, lamp and fernery. The different pieces are colored a dark mahogany shade and nre deeply cushioned with upholstery. The suite will be used in the sun parlor, for the comfort of convaleseing patients, and a more useful and appreciated gift could not have been selected.

The hospital board and Miss Larsen, superintendent, wish to express through these columns their nppreciation for the fine gift and the spirit in which it was given, a spirit which has made the institution what it is in the community today.

John Foley of Petoskey, will be at Priest's Studio on Tuesday, December 1st. Make appointments early. —Adv. 47-t1.

Thanksgiving



NEW BOAT HOUSE IS UNDER CONSTRUCTION

Will House Three Boats Owned By Arthur Joseph

Work is well under way on the new boat house being constructed for Arthur Joseph of Cincinnatl, Ohlo, the job having been started about a week ago under the supervision of William Bogart.

Plans call for a structure approximately 30x40 fcet in dimenslons, including two boat slips 9x35 feet and nnnther 6x35 feet. These slips will house Mr. Joseph's three boats, the Elaine, Nancy nnd the Marlin, a boat purchased last year from Irving Kline. The boat house is being built on the lake frontage of the Paddock property which was purchased by Mr. Joseph and will be rendy for occupancy before winter sets in and the lake freezes over.

Roe Brothers of Harbor Springs, did the pile driving work and also drove piles for a twenty foot addition to the boat house owned by E. J. Block and Sidney Lowenstein, the work of which will be furnished in the near future.

THIRD NUMBER LECTURE COURSE

GREENFIELD ORCHESTRAL QUARTET HERE DEC. 3

Charlevoix Citizens Will Enjoy a Musical Treat at the Palace Theatre

"Prnctical every child has genuine musical talent," says Mnx Greenfield, violinist, saxaphonist nnd manager of the Greenfield Orchestral Quartet which will be heard here on the local Lyceum course Thursday evening, December 3. "It is just a question of having someone who knows music and understands the child, working, pntiently with him until he finds the instrument he is best fitted to play."

This is not nlways a simple task. Mr. Greenfield relntes an illustration from his own family circle. His small son proved n particularly obstinnte pupil. For yenrs Mr. Greenfield faithfully and patiently endeavored through his tenching to awaken a response in the child, changing the instrument four times. Then, nlmost nccidentally, the child discovered the proper instrument, and the spark was struck. He hnd found his naturnl medium of musical expression. From that time on there was no further difficulty with the boy's progress.

Mr. Greenfield brings with him eloquent proof of his theory in the persons of his two young daughters, who appear with him in the quartet with him. These young girls—Edith Greenfield, violinist, and Mnllie Greenfield, pianist, guided by their noted father were early ablo to choose the musical instruments litted to their talents, nnd nlmost ever since their bnbyhood they prncticed six and eight hours n dny. They have studled with the greatest tenchers in America, and find themselves in the unique position of being recognized concert artists while not yet out of their teens.

The Greenfield Orchestral Quartet is n distinguished orchestral organization. With Mr. Greenfield, in nddition to his two daughters, is a hrother, 1. Greenfield, clarinetist, saxaphonist and string bass nrtist.

With first-rank nrtistry the Quartet presents elassical aid semi-clnssical ensemble selections, varying with popular numbers. This is an artist compnny which will be welcomed everywhere.

LARGE AUDIENCE ATTEND VESPER SERVICE

Held at Congregational Church Last Sunday

The Thanksgiving vesper service held last Sunday nfternoon nt the Congregational church in this city, wns attended by a lnrge and appreciative audience.

The musical program outlined last week wns carried out by a choir of over twenty voices nnd a four-piece orcrestra with Mrs. Stetler at the orgnn. The pastor, Mr. Mattson, voiced his own appreciation and that of the congregation for the services rendered by the church choir with the nssistance of other musicians.

The pastor also give a timely nddress on "Blessed America."

W. E. Parmelee builds storm windows.—Adv. 37-tf.

RURAL SCHOOL TRAFFIC SAFETY

CAMPAIGN STARTED TO TEACH SCHOOL CHILDREN

Teachers Urged to Co-Operate With Movement of Department of Public Safety

Rural tenchers throughout Michigan nre heartily cooperating with the State Department of Public Safety in its educational campaign in those schools, intended to train the chlldren to use every care to avoid traffic accidents on the highways of tho state. Thls campaign is also strongly endorsed by the stnte Department of Public Instruction and the Michlgan State Teachers' Association.

Forty uniformed motor cycle officers of the state nre conducting this educational work in behalf of the lives nnd limbs of the children for the purpose of reducing to a possible minimum such accidents on the state trunk line roads. The work reaches every rural school on a trunk line, and consists of short talks to the pupils by the state police officers.

One of the principal duties of the state police is the patrolling of the rural sections of Michignn for the safety and accommodations of the public. During the summer months the motor cycle officers are busy patrolling the state highways. During the winter time the work is lessened by reason of reduced traffic and bad weather. So the time of these men is being utilized this fall and winter to assist the teachers in an important educational phase of the day.

These state police officers go either singly or in pairs into every rural school on a trunk line. They are assigned so mnny counties, working from their respective police posts, of which there are 14 in the state. They must make prompt reports of their work at each school to the department, and when the winters' cnmpaign is over mnterial will he nssembled of great value in the teaching of the same things in future years in the schools and to the public generally.

Every year, points nut the public safety department, hundreds of children are killed or mnimed by motor vehicles. The instructions given by the motor cycle officers impress on the children how to play snfely on the school grounds and to walk along the highways in safety to and from school. Briefly, the things stressed are as follow:

1. Always walk on the left side of the road, so as to face the oncoming trnffic.

2. Never get on the highwny while at play. In playing ball, tng, and other games, children often run out on the highwny. Never linger in front of an oncoming car.

3. Before crossing a road look both to the right and to the left. Let all ears near the crossing pass hy before going across. Older children should nlways assist the younger ones.

4. Never plnce obstructions on the highway. Do not throw snowballs or other objects at passing automobiles, for that is dangerous for the autoists.

5. Never catch rides on horse drawn wagons or other slow-going vehicles. Should children fnll from such vehicles there is danger of being run down by npproaching or passing automobiles.

6. Never const with sleds on the highwny, or coast from any inellne that might runa sled onto the highway. Coast or skate on grounds safe from the road.

7. Parents are ndvised to have lights on wagons and buggies at all times nfter dnrk. Neglect of this cnuses many serious accidents.

Sealed Bids Wanted

Sealed bids wanted for the purchase nnd removal of building on recently ncquired property on South Bridge street, consisting of old Carpenter building nnd small buildings adjoining. Bids to be opened and accepted or rejected Monday evening, November 30, at 8:00 p. m.

Dated November 24, 1925.

Charles H. Lamphear,
City Clerk

47t1.

Ironton Ferry Closes

The ferry at Ironton, crossing the South Arm of Pine Lake, will be closed the lntter part of this week, (definite date not known) and will remain closed for the period of time taken up in driving piles and dock work, preparntory to installing the new ferry. S. M: Rose, member Ironton Ferry Committee.—Adv. 47-t1.

For all the news, read the Courier.

Children's Colds

Are best treated externally. Check them overnight without "dosing" by rubbing Vicks over throat and chest at bedtime.

VICKS VAPORUB

CORRESPONDENCE

NORWOOD

Walter Jordan, who spent the aummer in Illinois, returned to his home last Frlday evening.

Ted Sheldon, who has been staying at the Genett home left for Cadillac last Tuesday for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Plenny Genett called at the Gregory home last Sunday and found Mr. Gregory improving in health.

William Richardson of Norwood, who has been visiting his daughter and husband at Lansing, returned last Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Colen McKenzie and family of Charlevoix, visited at the Merril Richardson home last Thursday evening.

Mrs. Chas. Resignol and daughter, Mrs. Dunn of Petoskey, visited Mr. and Mrs. Merril Richardson last Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Parsons and family, who reeently returned from Grand Rapids visited relatives in Norwood last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Henry of Norwood, and Mrs. Ferral and daughter of Eastport, went to Grand Rapids last week for a few days.

Rev. Pollock, pastor of the M. E. church of Charlevoix, accompanied hy Orsen Everts, called on Mr. and Mrs. I. L. Dice last Thursday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. John Turman and their six week's old baby from Ind., moved on their farm last week, which they purchased from the Sprick estate a few months ago.

Overcoats, Mackinaws, sheeplined coats, heavy pants, swenters, leather vests and caps at cost priee to close out the line. Benj. Brown—Adv. 47tf.

PHELPS

Charlie Stevens, drove to Bellevaire Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Marion Jackson, of Ironton were Sunday visitors at the W. H. Henley home.

Job Jackson who has been helping his son-in-law, Rnlph Klooster, spent Sunday with home folks in Bellaire.

Rev. and Mrs. Manker, and Rev. Joppin were guests at supper at the F. R. Klooster home, Wednesday of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Klooster and two daughters, Rose and Alice of Atwood were visitors at the F. R. Klooster home, Wednesday evening of last week.

Ralph Klooster moved Monday and Tuesday to his new location, nbout seven miles north of Charlevoix, on the Boyne City road.

A church full of people attended both morning and evening services at the Holiness church here, Sunday. Rev. Joppie is continuing his services there this week.

John Fink of Ludington, who is visiting in East Jordan, called on his old friend, Frank Klooster Thursday of last week. Mr. Fink and Mr. Klooster had not seen each other in about twenty-four years.

BARNARD

The O'Brien hay bailing outfit has been bailing hay for Clarence Beattie.

George Cork is home from Pontiac to spend Thanksgiving with his parents.

Lloyd Fairbanks and Elliott Moore, of Lansing, are spending this week at the home of their uncle, Howard Gornell.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Burns spent Saturday and Sunday at Cheboygan visiting, Mrs. Burns' brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. George Trimble

John Clark was called home on account of the severe illness of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Clark. We are hoping that they will soon recover.

On Tuesday evening the quarterly conference of this circuit was held with the new district superintendent in charge. He also preached at this meeting.

The Grange rabbit and chicken pie supper on Friday evening was well patronized and baout $27.00 was realized to swell the treasury and will he used to improve the grange property.

IRONTON

The lady Maccabees of Ironton met with Mrs. Jean Lewis Tuesday with a pot luck dinner.

Mrs. Jardine went to Grand Rapids, Friday, to spend the winter with her mother, Mrs. McDonald.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sherman and Mr. Ogden were Sunday guests at the home of Mrs. Ogden and children in Charlevoix.

A TALK WITH A CHARLEVOIX MAN

Mr. Mitchell Tell Something of Interest to Charlevoix Folks.

There's nothing more convinceing than the statement of someone you know and have confidence in. That's why this talk with Mr. Mitchell of State street, should be mighty helpful here in Charlevoix.

Robert Mitchell, 809 State street., Charlevoix, says: "I had a dragging ache through my back and when I bent over, sharp, knife-like pains darted across my kidneys. Mornings my back was lame and sore and as time passed, I got to feeling all out of sorts. My kidneys were weak and I often had to pass the secretions during the night. After using Doan's Pills, I was cured."

Price 60e, at nll dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Pills.—the same that Mr. Mitchell had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

5¢ RUB-NO-MORE 5¢

Your tranished silver Shines as before If dipped in hot water With Rub-No-More.

WASHING POWDER 5¢

Say "No"

if asked to "try" a substitute for Quaker. That is, if you want real Quaker flavor . . . that famous Scotch flavor . . . in breakfast oats

THERE is only ONE way to get the true Scotch flavor in oats which distinguishes Quaker flavor . . . and that is by getting the Quaker brand.

Oats was originally a Scotch dish. It must have true Scotch flavor to be at its best.

Remember this, for your own sake, when tempted to "try" some ordinary brand.

That flavor is milled in. Nobody as yet has successfully imitated it. Grown-ups and children who ordinarily don't take to oats, respond to this unique flavor. And flavor, as you know, is the all-important point in food.

Milled under exclusive Quaker methods applied to the finest, plumpest grains. Quick Quaker is the world's fastest cooked breakfast dish.

Takes 3 to 5 minutes. That's faster than plain toast.

Due to Quaker milling methods, it supplies, too, the "roughage" you need to make laxatives seldom necessary.

Look for the picture of the Quaker on the label. See that it is there before you buy breakfast oats.

2 Kinds { The Quaker Oats you have always known and Quick Quaker—Cooks in 3 to 5 minutes

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

By B. C. Mellencamp

Two Day Poultry Feeding School

Plans having heen made sometime ago for a two day feeding school, we are glad to announce that it will be held on Wednesday nnd Thursday, December 2nd and 3rd, in the Basement of the Boyne City Library, beginning at 9:30 slow time each day and lasting until 3:00 o'clock in the afternooon. At this time Mr. J. A. Hannah, Poultry Specialist of M. S. C. will discuss all problems relating to the feeding of poultry and possibly other poultry problems of time permits.

We believe it will be a wonderful opportunity for poultry raisers to learn all the details concerning, probably the most important of all—how to feed economically and profitably and realizing that one day would not be sufficient to cover the subject fully, we were fortunate in making it a 2 day meeting.

Our only desire is to have all those present, promise to spend the two days, as hereafter, if they do not at this date take advantage of the two days, in the future, only one day will be devoted to this subject.

Plan to vail yourself of this instruction in feeding poultry and be at the Boyne City Library promptly at 9:30 a. m. slow time, Wednesday December 2nd, and bring your lunch with you, if hunger is your big feeding problem.

Club Leader Visits Charlevoix County

Several new Boy's and Girl's Club are added to this county as a result of Miss Wixon's visit on November 10th and 11th. These clubs were called winter clubs, as the work is of such a nature that it is carried on during the winter and completed before school ends in the spring. For the girls, Sewing Clubs were discussed and for the boys, Handicraft Clubs and several teachers are organizing tho two clubs in tho same school, thereby giving both the boys and girls club work.

In all the schools visited, interest was very evident and we are sure of hnving somewhere near 10 new clubs as a result. Tho enrollment blanks have not all been returned to the office, so it is impossible to give the memberships as yot.

The teachers of the rural schools are doing this club work in addition to their regular school duties and should be commended for their interest. Theso teachers all realize that they can be of great benefit to their particular communities by doing this work, as it is very instructive and educational and will be of great benefit, in that tbese boys and girls will be working on things of a constructive natur eoutside of school.

In the Sewing Clubs, the girls learn to sew, to select the proper materials, to use tha various kinds of stitcbes and to make at least tbree articles of clothing. In tho Handicraft Club, the boys learn all abou: the tools used by carpenters, the various kinds of lumber, and make several articles, such as, Bench Hooks, Neektie Racks, Book Racks, Mail Boxes, Bird Houses, Baskets, Crates, etc.

Miss Wixon, accompanied by the County Agent, visited the following teachers:

Miss Thelma Crandall, Boyne Falls.

Mr. W. C. Palmer, Clarion.

Miss Helen Germond, Bay Shore.

Miss Mamie Peebles, Bay Shore.

Mr. Galo Chew, Maple Grove School, Bay Shore.

Mr. Olive Poquette, Karcher School, Boyne City.

Miss Margaret Watson, Phelps.

Miss Florence Holland, Norwood School.

Miss Mildred Wangeman, Three Bells District, East Jordan.

Miss Francis Gould, Star District, Boyne City.

Are You Interested in a Calf Club

You all know what a success the 1925 Boys' and Girls' Calf Club proved to he and that as n result of their fine work, three boys were given free trips to the Detroit State Fair.

I am anxious to start another club this fall along the same lines.

However, this year I wish to form the clubs in smaller groups, so that it will be posible to get the members together more often to discuss with them, their problems.

The bankers of the county have promised their support and will be glad to lend a helping hand financially to all worthy boys and girls wishing to be proud owners of a calf. This club will open to all boys and girls over 10 years of age. For my part, I will aid them in securing calves from high production stock. Didn't it look great to see those 16 proud boys and girls at the County Fair with their calves? How would you like to win the blue ribbon?

If you are interested talk it over with your boy or girl and then drop a line to your County Agent at Boyne City, he will be glad to explain the objects, benefits and advantages of being a member of a Calf Club.

Wear wool garments and keep warm this winter. We are selling them below cost to close out the line. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 47tf.

Hard Surfaced Roads Urged

Tourists in steadily increasing thousands are broadcasting the scenic wonders and marvelous natural resources of our country. Let us give them something else to talk about, suggests the Concrete Highway Magazine. Motorists know roads. They know that in economy, safety and all around satisfaction no other road performs like concrete. The concrete highway has repair built out nad the maintenance built in. It saves gasoline and repair bills. It lengthens the life of the car

You can afford to wear heavy wool winter garments at the price we are selling them to close out the line. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 47tf.

It will Pay YOU to

LOOK FOR THIS GRADE-MARK TRADE-MARK

The initials N and H of the Grade-mark signify that the piece is Northern Hemlock—your native building lumber. The numeral within the diamond is the grade of the piece, stamped on by the expert grader at the mill.

ON YOUR NORTHERN HEMLOCK

It is the Mark of Integrity and Your Guarantee of:

Responsible manufacture—every piece of the quality represented.

Rigid, uniform grading by the expert grader at the mill—all the doubt left out.

Extra standard size studding, rafters and joists—more wood and strength to the piece—assuring greater strength and rigidity to your building.

It means more economical lumber utilization—the right grade for each purpose—all the guesswork left out.

ANY WAY YOU WANT TO FIGURE IT, IT WILL PAY YOU TO BUY BY THE GRADE-MARK.

Your Lumber Dealer will assist you in selecting the right grades for your purpose.

LAST CALL! CASH PRIZE Letter Contest Closes Dec. 1, 1925

Write for full particulars to address below

THE NORTHERN HEMLOCK MANUFACTURERS of Michigan and Wisconsin

327 F. R. A. BUILDING, OSHKOSH, WISCONSIN

Use Northern Hemlock for Strength & Stability

For Economical Transportation

CHEVROLET

National Sales Contest Week

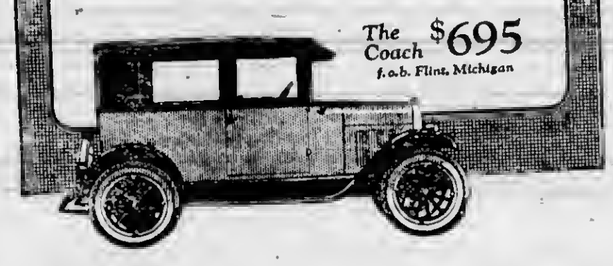
This week marks the close of the greatest sales contest ever conducted by any automobile manufacturer. Our salesmen, as well as thousands of other Chevrolet salesmen, are striving to win!

One of our men has probably explained to you why over 2,000,000 buyers have chosen Chevrolets, and has shown you Chevrolet feature after feature found only on the finest quality cars. Give him your order this week and help him win a valued prize.

Chevrolet gives you fine performance, beautiful appearance and long life. Here is a quality car at a price you can well afford. Let us show you how easy it is to become the owner of a new Chevrolet.

Touring	$525	Coupe	$675	Commercial Chassis	$425
Roadster	525	Sedan	775	Express Truck Chassis	550

ALL PRICES F. O. B. FLINT, MICHIGAN



The Coach $695 f. o. b. Flint, Michigan

HENRY BLOCK

QUALITY AT LOW COST

During this seasonable spell of weather--let us fill our basement with quality Coal.

Remember we have coal for every porpose.

Range Coal—as clean as wood.
Furnace Coal—best quality.
Heater Coal—that heats.

Argo Milling Co.

FLOUR--FEED--FUEL

Are You a Courier subscriber? If not, Why not

NEIGHBORS

BY ROBERT STEAD

AUTHOR OF "THE COW PUNCHER," "THE HOMESTEADERS."

COPYRIGHT BY ROBERT STEAD

CHAPTER X—Continued

"You haven't!" said Spoof, plainly concerned, "I say, that's rather rotten."

"Isn't it? Your best chance is Burke. Burke has quite a layout of tools, and, besides, he's an ingenious beggar. No doubt he will be able to fix you up."

Marjorie had already drawn a cup of hot tea, and Spoof drank it while he stood.

"Ah, that's better," said he, as she took the empty cup from his hand. "Wonderful how a cup of tea bucks a fellow up, isn't it? Now I must get along. Fancy old Jake on his back under the stove holding that nut in place with his fingers!"

"Or with Belle Donna's curling tongs," Jack suggested. "Burke will fix you all right," and we waved him away.

It was one of those gray winter days, and he faded out of sight in a few moments. I noticed that Jean's eyes followed Spoof until the mist had engulfed him. Then she turned quickly to Jack and me.

"If there is any danger, don't you think you should go to Jake's at once?" she said.

"Not a chance," her brother assured her. "But I'd give a dollar to be at Burke's."

"At Burke's? Why?"

"Because, little Miss Innocence, of two facts. First, there is no such thing as a cogitation nut, and second, there is no such thing as a left-hand monkey wrench."

"But Jake came for it—he told Spoof—"

"Exactly. That's why he told him."

For a moment Jean's face was a puzzle as her mind unraveled the mixed threads of Jake's little comedy. But suddenly her eyes blazed with a light such as I had seen in them only once before, and then, as now, it was for Spoof that light had burned.

"So you sent him out on a day like this," she said, speaking slowly and through teeth that were almost closed—"you sent him out on a day like this, across the untracked snow, hunting for something that doesn't exist. He may find something he wasn't sent for."

"Oh, come now, sister, don't take it too seriously. It is just a joke."

"It will be no joke if Spoof is lost on the prairie," she returned; "no joke for any of us. For example, there will be no marriage in this house, so far as I am concerned, if anything happens to Spoof."

"Isn't that rather mixing the issue?" I said, perhaps a little testily. "Spoof has nothing to do with our marriage."

"No, but I have," she answered, with a pointedness that could not be escaped.

"You mountain out of a molehill," Jack told her, sharply. "One would think it was Spoof you were in love with, instead of Frank."

"If I discuss that at all I will discuss it with Frank, alone," she retorted, with some heat. The color which had fled her face for a moment had come back in a flood, filling her cheeks and forehead, overflowing down her neck and into her hair. If Jean the placid, Jean the mild-mannered, Jean the amiable was lovely, Jean the aroused, Jean the defiant, was adorable. I made that appraisal even while in her eyes I read something akin to my death warrant.

"I was quite serious in what I said, Frank," she continued, after a moment. "If it makes any difference to you perhaps you will follow Spoof. He hasn't the prairie sense that you have; he may be lost by this time. Fortunately there is no ground drift, and his tracks will show."

"Of course, if you think there is any danger, I'll go," I agreed, eager for a way out of an awkward position, and lacerated at heart by a sense of the breach that had occurred between us. So Jack and I set out to follow Spoof's tracks. We traced him without difficulty to Burke's.

"Has Spoof been here?" we asked our American neighbor when he came to the door.

"Spoof? I should say he has. By this time he's half way to Andy Smith's. Unfortunately I didn't have a left-hand monkey wrench," said Burke, with a chuckle, "but I reckoned likely Andy Smith would have one, having been a ship builder. Spoof wouldn't stay to eat, but he drank a cup of tea and steamed away."

"Has Spoof Been Here?" We Asked Our American Neighbor When He Came to the Door.

We explained that we were tracking Spoof in case he became lost, but avoided any reference to the ultimatum that had sent us after him. Declining the invitation of Burke and his wife to stay and eat, we pushed on.

About half way to Andy Smith's we met Spoof coming back. Andy had not seen the joke when it was first presented, and in his analysis of it had revealed it to Spoof as soon as he recognized it himself. This was fortunate for Spoof, as otherwise he would doubtless have been sent to Ole Hansen's in continuation of his quest. As Spoof came up to us his face twisted in a broad grin.

"Did you get a left-hand wrench?" we asked.

"No, but I found out what a cogitation nut is. This is it," and he tapped his head with his knuckles, "only it doesn't cogitate very well."

The three of us linked arms, Spoof in the middle, and trudged back toward Burke's.

"Mighty decent of you to come after me," said Spoof at length.

"Yes, wasn't it?" we agreed.

Lucy Burke would take no refusal this time, so Spoof and Jack and I stayed for dinner. I had a feeling that this was had generalship, and that we should be hurrying home, where Jean was doubtless wailing with growing concern. I managed to mention my forebodings to Jack.

"Don't you believe it," he whispered back. "When a woman reads you the riot act go out and have a riot. Nothing makes her so unhappy as to suspect that her husband is having a good time when she thinks he should be doing penance."

After dinner Burke, with the loneliness of a homesteader to whom the visit of a neighbor is something of an event, detained us as long as possible, on one pretext or another, and finally, when we insisted upon going, hitched up the mules and drove us back to Fourteen.

It was dark by this time and the lamps were lighted. I noticed that lamps were set so that their yellow wedges of light thrust out into the darkness from each of our windows. Jean was at the door with the sound of our sleigh bells, and as I passed close by her I scrutinized her face for some hopeful sign. It was a blank wall.

We made Spoof and Burke stay for supper, and no one had more fun over the day's events than had Spoof. Jean kept her indignation well bridled, and we were a happy party, outwardly, at any rate. Spoof and Burke made it up that they would drive to Jake's late that night, when he would be sure to be in bed, and stuff his stovepipe with a sack as a slight exchange of compliments. During the evening Jean's eyes avoided mine but I had an uncomfortable feeling that three of us were on a precipice which afforded room for only two, and that I was the third.

As the evening wore on Spoof insisted that Jean get out the banjo. I could see that she was in no mood for music, but she played her part well, and as their voices joined in "Old Black Joe" and "Silver Threads Among the Gold" I could not help wondering if she were as unhappy as I was.

After they had sung for a while Spoof took the banjo from Jean and swept his lean, long hand with quick, delicate master strokes across its strings. Under his spell our little homestead shack faded out in the blur of Spoof's tobacco smoke, and presently I saw a little boy and girl sitting on the bank of a river, digging their toes in the warm sand and watching the spray of misty diamonds from the waterwheel across the stream. . . .

"Spooky old machine, a banjo, isn't it?" I heard Spoof say at length, and of a sudden I was back on Fourteen, and in the midst of a world which had its share of troubles. "Has an uncanny way of ripping up the past; tombstones, skeletons, everything." Then, to an improvised accompaniment, he began reciting Kipling's poem to the banjo.

"It was this poem," he explained, in the midst of his recital, "that caused me to bring a banjo to Canada. Otherwise I should probably have shipped a piano, to the confinement of the transportation people and my own further financial undoing. I must drop R. K. a line of appreciation."

"Still, the piano case would have come handy," Jack suggested. "You might have put your house in it in bad weather."

"Almost," said Spoof. But he was back to his theme again, and the wooden wall against which I leaned trembled in sympathy with his strings.

. . . I have told the naked stars the Grief of Man.
Let the trumpet snare the foeman to . . the proof—
I have known defeat and mocked it . . as we ran.
My bray ye may not alter or mistake
When I stand to jeer the fatted Soul of Things,
But the song of Lost Endeavor that I make
Is it hidden in the twangings of the strings?

Before long Spoof and Burke left on their errand of reprisal. Jean elected to go home soon afterward, and I accompanied her to Twenty-two. She stood a moment with the door latch in her hand, as though debating with herself whether she should send me home.

"You had better come in," she said at length. "There are some things we should talk about."

I closed the door behind me and Jean lighted a lamp and removed her wraps. "Come and sit down," she said, making room for me beside her on a bench.

I sat down beside her, and would have kissed her, but she drew gently away. "Please don't, Frank," she said, and when her eyes met mine I saw a look in them as of some wild thing wounded to the death.

"Jean!" I exclaimed. "Have I hurt you so?"

"No, Frank, not you. But I am hurt—hurt," and she pressed her hands about her bosom as though in physical pain. "It is so hard to know—to be sure—what is right!"

"How what is right?"

"In books—you will understand, Frank—it is always so clear. One is a hero; the other is a villain; it is so easy to know. But in life—I don't suppose there are so many villains, after all. That doesn't make it any easier to decide."

"I'm afraid I don't quite follow you, Jean."

"I suppose you don't, and I shrink from making it more clear to you. . . . I have tried, and failed."

"Jean!"

"I thought our promise—my promise—would bind me. . . . It didn't. It won't. It can't," She withdrew her arm, then quickly seized both my hands in hers.

"Oh, my boy, my friend, my chum!" she exclaimed, and little crystal wells gathered between her eyelids as she spoke. "How can I hurt you so! But nothing else would be honest. I have tried, and failed. I lost my temper with you today over Spoof. You were playing jokes on him—making him the butt of your humor—your idea of humor—"

"I promise you nothing of that kind will ever happen again, dear; I promise it; I swear it!"

"But that doesn't help any. Don't you see, it's not that I care—so much—about the joke—on anybody—but because I love Spoof."

I hope I took the blow like a gentleman. I had the advantage of being somewhat prepared for it.

"I suspected that," I said at length "I don't want to stand in the way of your happiness"

Then I fell from the heroic with a thud. "Oh, Jean, Jean," I pleaded.

(Continued on Page 6)

FROM OFFICE BOY TO GENERAL MGR.

Salary Increase Comes With Promotion

Chicago, Sept. 29—After a careful survey of the entire labor situation extending from office boy to president, indications are that positions showing increases in salaries require experienced help.

Consulting the president of one of our largest industries, the writer inquired regarding the rapid success of a certain young man who had become general manger and who a few years ago was but office boy; his answer was, Brown started as office boy, the lowest salaried position in our office, he was ambitious and managed to purchase a typewriter on small monthly payments and after three weeks of practice at home he was promoted to bill clerk, which position gave him knowledge of the selling price of all merchandise. His next advance was that of typist, which taught him the numerous forms of letter-writing and enabled him to hold a stenographic position, giving him complete knowledge of letter-writing. He was then made secretary, bringing him into contact with all business details and qualified him for the general manager's office at ten thousand per year.

The same opportunity awaits every young man and woman. Education or age have nothing to do with operating so simple a machine as the typewriter. We are informed that a great piece of benevolent work is being carried on by a large Chicago mail order house in furnishing typewriters to people worthy of credit, by selling on small monthly installments, so low as to average about eight cents per day and actually teaching their customers how to use and operate any typewriter in about three week's time. You can get other information by writing the International Typewriter Exchange, 184 W. Lake Street, Chicago, Illinois.

DODGE BROTHERS COACH

Smart and staunch, chummy yet roomy—a refreshing example of advanced coach design.

Full balloon tires—quality whipcord upholstery—deep blue lacquer finish—cartouche yellow body-striping—exceptional vision areas—low-swung body lines—long resilient underslung springs.

Now so attractively priced that with Dodge Brothers New Credit-Purchase Plan, ownership is made possible for practically everyone.

BENJ. BROWN

Charlevoix, Michigan

AUCTION SALE

I will sell at my farm located 1-2 mile east of Ellsworth on

Saturday, November 28th

Beginning at 10 o'clock (fast time) the following personal property towit:

Bay Horse wt. 1200	2 Stands — Writing Desk
Gray Horse, wt. 1400	2 Rockers — 10 Dining Chairs
Pure Bred Jersey Cow, 8 yrs. old	Feather Bed — Pillows
Pure Bred Jersey Cow, 2 yrs. old, fresh in July	Buggy Pole
Grade Guernsey Cow, 8 yrs. old, fresh in July	Iron Kettle — Potato Sprayer
Grade Guernsey Cow, 3 yrs. old, fresh in April	Dump Boards — Potato Crates
Grade Guernsey Cow, 2 yrs. old, fresh in April	DeLaval Cream Separator
Pure Bred Jersey Heifer, 4 months old	Clothes Hamper — Cot
Red Cow, fresh in December	Some Carpets — Rugs
Black Cow, 3 yrs old, fresh in May	Wagon, 4 inch tire
Spotted Cow, 6 yrs. old, fresh in Feb.	Set of Sleighs — Wagon Box
Spotted Heifer, 2 yrs. old	Riding Cultivator — Set Work Harness
60 Barred Rock Hens — Cutting Box	Single Harness — Grain Drill
5 Ton Alfalfa Hay — Some Corn in Shock	Peerless Plow — Drag
2 Iron Beds — 2 Mattresses	Spike-tooth Drag — Hay Rake
2 Springs — 2 Dressers	Hay Rack — Cultivators
2 Commodes — Couch	Garden Drill — Corn Sheller
2 Dining Tables — 2 Cupboards	8-Gallon Churn — Clocks
	Lamps — Fruit Jars — Dishes
	Lots of small tools and articles too numerous to mention

FREE LUNCH AT NOON

TERMS OF SALE

All sums of $10 and under cash; over $10, 12 month's time on good, approved, endorsed, bankable notes bearing 7 per cent interest payable at the Citizen's Bank of Ellsworth; 5 per cent discount for cash on all sums over $10. No property to be removed before terms of sale are complied with and all settlements to be made on day of Sale.

Joseph DuFore, Prop.

H. J. TIMMER, Clerk
M. J. ANDERSON, Note Clerk.

W. E. BYERS, Auctioneer.

Gold Bearing Rocks

THE hardest rocks are often gold-bearing, but they must be crushed to let the sunshine out.

The poorest man can build up a bank account, but he must work HARD to do it NOTHING that is worth while in this world comes easy. If it comes easy, it goes easy, and is not worth while.

Charlevoix State Savings Bank

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

W. S. Richardson, President.
A. D. Crimmins, Vice President.
Archie Livingston, Cashier.
G. W. Richardson, Asst. Cashier.

The CHARLEVOIX COURIER
Issued every Wednesday at
CHARLEVOIX - MICHIGAN

DuBois & Usher, Publishers
A. J. Usher, Editor and Business Mgr.
Courier Building Van Pelt Place

Entered at the Post Office in Charlevoix, Mich., as second class matter.

Member Michigan Press Ass'n.

Advertising Rates.

For advertising rates apply for schedule.

Notices of church or lodge socials and entertainments, where admission is charged, regular rates.

Obituary poetry, regular rates.

Card of Thanks, 25 cents.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

One copy, one year.....$2.00
One copy, six months.....$1.00
One copy, three months..... .60

MAKING A SAVINGS ACCOUNT PAY

The most practical thing that almost any person can do to get ahead is to start a savings account and then feed it regularly. But to make saving really attractive and profitable the savings account should be made to pay. One of the best incentives for saving lies in the fact that money accumulated in the savings account can be turned into investments, farm or town mortgages, home ownership, bonds or stocks of steady, profitable, established businesses. If an individual deposits $50 a month in a savings bank for a period of thirty years and redeposits the interest earned, he will have at the end of that time $29,113.52. In the savings account his money at three per cent will have earned $11,113.52. If, however, he combines systematic saving with careful investing and reinvesting at 6 per cent, that $50 a month will grow in thirty years to nearly $50,000. A savings account will enable any person to take advantage of the miraculous accumulating power of money, the one force that has made more people financially independent than any other.

INVESTING $14,000,000 A DAY

During the first half of 1925, the amount of new securities purchased by investors in this country exceeded $3,175,000,000, surpassing the investment of the corresponding period of 1924 by more than $300,000,000. Of this total over $500,000,000 went into stocks of corporations. In other words, in the first six months of 1925 the American people invested more than five times as much in bonds as in stocks.

One of the best tests of national prosperity is the investing power of the people. The investing of more than $14,000,000 a day in home and foreign securities not only reflects prosperity, but also an increasing adherence to the principles of thrift taught by the Liberty Loan campaigns. Further, such an enormous investment shows the confidence of experienced investors in the strength and continued stability of industry.

Some one has said that when all the people are working the country is prosperous. A country is really prosperous only when its citizens save a part of their individual profits and make their savings grow by investing in dependable, fair-yielding securities. When saved dollars are working in safe employment, teaming up their earning power with individual earning power, the prosperity of the nation and its citizens is doubly assured.

OLD KING COLE, DOLLAR WISE

Old King Cole was a thrifty old soul;
He saved quite consistently;
Each month from his pay
In a right kingly way
A small sum he'd invest, would he.

And so when the day of the uprising came
Which sadly disrupted the land,
The Wise King retired
Just before he got fired
And he lived on his income grand.

AT THE MOVIES

Carey Revealed As Real Westerner

In Hollywood, a "Western" star who doesn't wear Fifth avenue clothes while not making pictures is something of a sensational rarity.

Harry Carey, the star in "The Bad Lands," the Hunt Stromberg supervised production at the Palace Theatre, Tuesday and Wednesday is just such a novelty. Furthermore, it isn't a pose.

Carey, as a matter of fact, doesn't even live in Hollywood, but owns a huge ranch at the base of the San Fernando mountains, where from morning till night he may be found on some one of his thousand or more acres, in the saddle, attired in the same costume by which film fans know him.

Gloria Swanson in "The Coast of Folly."

Joyce Gathway, high-spirited daughter of Nadine, is the pet and leader of the younger set.

At Palm Beach, "The Coast of Folly," she becomes involved in a situation with Larry Fay, young wealthy husband of Constance Fay. Their friendship starts innocently enough and not until the whip of scandal descends with its searing lash do they realize they are really in love.

Larry's wife cleverly arranges so that the case is blazoned to the world in newspapers. Larry pleads for a divorce and is refused despite the fact that she is involved in a secret affair of her own.

Joyce's mother learns of her daughter's predicament and hastens to her assistance. Determining to save her daughter's name she contrives to place Mrs. Fay in a compromising situation.

The climax comes with startling swiftness and with a development totally unexpected. At the Palace Theatre, Saturday and Sunday, November 28-29.

Picked Flowers From Gardeo

The Courier acknowledges receipt of a nice boquet of flowers presented by Mrs. J. M. Clark. The flowers were picked from her garden on November 18, and showed no signs of the cold or snow. Occurrences of this kind are unusual, but simply demonstrates the delightful weather conditions in and around "Charlevoix the Beautiful."

W. E. Parmelee builds storm windows.—Adv. 37-tf.

LIVE STOCK NEWS

CAREFUL SELECTION OF BOAR IMPORTANT

The growing of a young boar to maturity is one of the most difficult tasks for the breeder. So difficult is this task that there is not more than one boar in a hundred that ever lives up to the expectations of the breeder. For this reason it is best to cull the male pigs very carefully and keep only those which show exceptional promise, suggests Prof. L. V. Starkey, chief of the animal husbandry division at Clemson college, who adds that it should be kept in mind that the boar is half the herd.

Breeders usually lose money on the boars which they grow out. Therefore, it is better to dispose of them at four to six months of age. Boar pigs usually start to grow off very nicely. When they get to be from four to six months of age they frequently go off feed, go down in back and pasterns, and in a short time do not look like the same individuals.

The best way to grow out a young boar is to put him by himself in a field. The larger the field the better, because he needs exercise, shade, fresh water and shelter. If there are no other hogs in the same field, he usually has a quiet disposition. If other hogs are in the same lot or in an adjoining field he usually develops a nervous temperament and does not do well.

If boars are to make the best growth and develop, says Professor Starkey, they should not be used until they are a year old. However, if needed in the herd, they may be used for light service when seven or eight months of age.

The best breeding boars should be retained in the herd as long as they are able to reproduce. It will, of course, be necessary to have two boars to avoid inbreeding. Those who have only a few sows cannot afford to keep two boars—either they must dispose of the sow pigs or secure a new boar, and the latter is usually done.

Vaccinate Little Pigs for Proper Protection

In immunizing against hog cholera it has been assumed that suckling pigs were generally immune and that the time to vaccinate was immediately after weaning. That suckling pigs do possess a considerable degree of immunity no one will deny, but occasionally the losses are so heavy that the question of treating sucklings has been receiving serious consideration. The simultaneous treatment of suckling pigs is attended with considerable loss and does not provide a lasting immunity in all cases. To overcome these difficulties Dr. R. R. Birch recommends serum alone to protect the pigs until they are twelve weeks old, at which time they may be weaned and given the double treatment. This method will provide for the smallest possible loss and at the same time will insure the highest degree of lasting immunity.—Geo. H. Glover, Veterinary Department, Colorado Agricultural College.

Oats Best for Cattle

Oats may usually be more profitably fed to cattle than to hogs. They should not be worth more than half the price of corn if they are to be fed to hogs at a profit. Whether they can be fed to hogs at the present time when they are worth 50 cents per bushel is a question which we will not dare to answer because we do not know what prices are going to be when the time to sell arrives. Oats should not make up more than a third of a ration in which corn or barley is used.

Ground Grain for Pigs

Ground barley and oats are quite an improvement over the whole dry grains. Possibly the pigs will eat the ground grains a little better if soaked, but usually it is not necessary to soak in addition to grinding. Pure bred pigs raised for breeding purposes should weigh 140 to 160 pounds if they have been fed well, but not pushed for show. Pigs that are to be shown can weigh close to 200 pounds when five months of age.

Hogs Require Exercise

During the summer hogs out on pasture get plenty of exercise. However, in the winter when hogs are likely to confine themselves too closely to their quarters, this may be sadly neglected. Some success has been obtained by arranging sleeping quarters some distance from feeding quarters. This method may not always be practical because where centralized houses are used the two may be closer together, or even in the same building.

Rape Cause of Blister

White hogs, and sometimes black and red ones, blister when running in rape. There is nothing peculiar about this crop which causes blistering; the trouble results simply from the combination of moisture, transferred from the rape to the hog, and a hot sun. By keeping pigs out of the rape patch until the dew or rain has evaporated from the leaves of the plants, blistering can be prevented. Even a small patch in a feed lot will save grain in raising pigs.

Get your Auction Bills now!

Carter's Underwear

For Ladies

Warmth without weight. Comfortable, trim and close fitting.

Your next buy should be Carter's

$1.00 and up.

M. A. Levinson & Co.

Inviting You to Compare

Step into our store—it only takes a few minutes! See these Wonderful Overcoat Values, examine them critically—thoroughly, see your yourself that the values we offer at our low prices are all wool, newest models at many dollars less than quality cost elsewhere.

Comparison cost you nothing

$20--22.50 $25--27.50 $30

F. E. CARTIER, Tailor and Cleaner

PHONE 248

BOYS TO PURCHASE FLAG FOR CHURCH

Congregational Sunday School Classes Are Busy Lads

The Junior Boys Brotherhood of the Congregational church held another of their meetings recently, electing officers and having a general good time as is their usual custom.

The boys are very busy raising funds for the purpose of purchasing a large American flag for the church. At the recent meeting many of the members turned into the "flag fund" different amounts and told how they earned the money. One boy has earned one dollar, the largest amount turned in to date. One of the aims of the club is regular attendance at Sunday school, and very few of them have missed a Sunday.

The Honor class elected the following officers:

Pres.—Bruce Reinhart.
Vice-Pres.—Ronald Swanson.
Treas.—Franklin Ross.

Officers of the Winners class are:

Pres.—Ted Bergman.
Vice-Pres.—Edwin McCann.
Secy.—Dudley Mattson.

METHODIST CHURCH

"Abundance"—Sunday, 10:30 a. m.

"Chums"—Sunday, 7:00 p. m.

The above are the sermon themes for next Sunday at the hours of worship.

Study the "Heavenly vision" in Sunday School at 11:45 next Sunday morning. The Sunday School is showing a steady growth.

The Epworth League devotional hour is 6:00 p. m. This is a wonderful hour of worship and exchange of religious and ethical views. All young people are welcome.

There will be no midweek service in the church this week, because of the special meetings in the other churches, and because of the lecture which is sponsored by the public school. Next week, however the regular midweek service of prayer, praise, and bible study will be held. The bible study during the month of December will continue in the book of James.

Home-Coming

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Carey, 808 Bridge street, will be the scene of a delightful home-coming on Thanksgiving Day, November 26, when Mr. and Mrs. Carey will be host and hostess to their sons and daughters and their families for dinner on that day. Those who will be present are Mr. and Mrs. George Papineau and children, Mr. and Mrs. Archie Carey and family and Bert Carey of Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. Leff Carey and family of Grand Rapids, and Mr. and Mrs. Ned Durance of Flint.

The Mary Brewster Circle will hold a Christmas sale, Saturday, December 12. Place to be announced later.—Adv. 47-tf.

Here's a Chance To Save

We are going to close out our entire line of heavy winter

Overcoats
Mackinaws
Sheep-lined coats
Heavy pants
Sweaters
Caps and
Leather Vests

We want to discontinue the line of heavy winter garments and to sell what we have in stock we will make you prices that will startle you. Price will be no consideration with us—we want to and will sell the full line.

The stock is not shelf-worn nor old, but the very line we bought for the fall and winter trade. Call and see the line yourself—then you will fully realize the slash we have made in prices and buy.

Benj. Brown Auto Sales

Phone 60

Order your
CUT FLOWERS
Early For
All Occasions
HILLCREST GARDENS
A. Edwards
Phone 18.

THE OLDEST BANK IN CHARLEVOIX COUNTY
FORTY-FIRST YEAR IN BUSINESS

1884 1925

To Our Customers and Friends

This strong, friendly institution extends to the people of this commuity its heartiest wishes for—

A JOYOUS

THANKSGIVING

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY BANK

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN
Nicholls, Bultars & Bridge, Bankers
THE BANK ON THE CORNER

LOCAL NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

Get the Habit—Read the Courier

Special meeting of the R. A. M. Chapter, No. 141, Monday evening, November 30, to confer the M. M. M. degree.

Special communication of Charlevoix Lodge, 282, F. & A. M. Tuesday evening, December 1st. Work in M. M. degree.

Ralph Martin of St. James, was a visitor in the city Monday.

Steve O'Neill of Petoskey, was a visitor in the city on Sunday last.

William Burns was a business caller in Cheboygan Saturday and Sunday.

Ruth Wyers left last Saturday for Holland, Michigan, for an indefinite visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Denny Boyle of St. James, were in the city Monday on business.

W. J. Gallagher of St. James, was a business caller in the city over the week end.

Hugh Boyle of St. James, was a business visitor in the city on Monday of this week.

Hugh Brady and wife of this city, spent last Sunday visiting relatives and friends in Bellaire.

Louis Wallace left last Thursday morning for Detroit, where he will spend the winter months.

Allan Shapton left last Monday afternoon for Detroit, where he will spend the winter months.

James Wyers of Detroit, spent from Thursday until Sunday of last week in the city on business.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Jensen left last Monday for a faw week's visit with their son at Fitchburg, Mass.

John Slezak and Ralph Bacot left last week for Beaver Island, where they will hunt fox for about ten days.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray W. Faulkner are spending an indefinite vacation with relatives and friends in Chicago.

Wm. E. Driggett and James Bogart, were business visitors to St. James the latter part of last week.

Mrs. Harry Powers and son, returned Sunday evening from a visit with Mrs. Lou Davis of Boyne City.

C. E. Scott left last Friday for Pontiac, Michigan, where he expects to have employment for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Sloan are in Grand Rapids this week, where Mrs. Sloan is receiving medical treatment.

The Mary Brewster Circle will meet Friday afternoon, November 27, with Mrs. Russell, 210 Dixon avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wangeman of Boyne City, were in the city last Friday, attending the funeral of Miss Harriett Beers.

Harry Gobeau, former battery service man with H. R. Fowler, has taken Allan Shapton's place at Smith's cigar store.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sloan, Jr., Monday afternoon at their home in Grand Haven, a baby girl named Mary Kathryn.

John McCann and family of Beaver Island, have rented the L. J. McCann residence on Huribut avenue for the winter months.

Earl A. Young returned last week from Chicago and St. Louis, Mo., where he had been spending the past two weeks in business.

Mrs. L. J. McCann left on Saturday of last week for Chicago, where she will spend the winter months at the home of her sister.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Martin and their son, Wm. Martin and wife, of Cheboygan, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Block.

Mr. and Mrs. James Wyers, Sr., of 316 Antrim street, announce the marriage of their daughter, Ruth, to Albert Myers of Holland, Michigan.

W. Claire Cartier will arrive Thursday morning from Grand Rapids to spend Thanksgiving with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Cartier.

Charles Ulrich expects to leave this week for Wyandotte, Michigan, where he will spend the winter at the home of his sister, Mrs. Floyd Bettes.

Don McHugh left on Tuesday of this week for Seney, in the upper peninsula, where he will spend the remainder of the deer hunting season.

Mrs. Wm. Carns of Chicago, was in the city last Friday on her way to St. James, to visit her father and mather, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sendenberg.

Mrs. Blanche Greenman returned on Tuesday of this week from Detroit, and will visit her son, and mother, Mrs. Flora Lewis on Antrim street.

Mrs. Roy Ranger returned Saturday afternoon from White Cloud, where she had been spending the past week visiting relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Blakeslee will be at home to their friends at 630 Charlotte avenue, Rosshire Apts., Detroit Michigan, after December 1st.

Garrett Cale af Beaver Island, came over to Charlevoix last Friday and returned Tuesday morning with a load of gasoline from the Sinclair Oil station.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Stephens and son from Grand Rapids, motored up last Tuesday and spent the week with Mrs. Stephens' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Poole.

Mr. and Mrs. A. R. DeWitt and daughters, Erma and Magdeline, of Harbor Springs, were in the city last week, called here by the death of Miss Harriett Beers.

"Fish" Halverson returned last Thursday afternoon from Northport, where he has been gathering spawn for the government hatchery here for the past two weeks.

Joe Hallett is making a number of alterations on Hallett's Hotel in anticipation of the coming season of winter sports, details of which will be covered next week.

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Methodist church will meet at the home of Mrs. Albert Edwards, Sr., 1002 May street, next Wednesday afternoon, December 2nd.

Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Rose left Wednesday afternoon for Chicago, where they will spend a couple of weeks visiting before going to Sarasota, Florida, for the winter months.

Chas. E. See, accompanied by his son, Chester, and E. L. Denny, left Wednesday afternoon for Riverview, west of Grayling where they will hunt deer for a couple of days.

Harold Bedford of Grand Rapids, and Theodore Erickson of Holland, Michigan, were in town on Monday morning of this week enroute to their homes from the north woods.

Harold Taylor writes that he arrived in Southern Pines, N. C., safely and that he is very much pleased with the place. He states that the weather was fine—88 in the shade.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Usher and daughter Alice, leave Thursday afternoon for Grand Rapids, where they will spend a few days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Usher.

Mrs. Dalton Gay and children and Mrs. John Valance and daughter, Jean, all of East Jordan, spent Saturday afternoon at the home of their sister, Mrs. Kenneth Usher, in this city.

Mr. and Mrs. James Burden, accompanied by their daughter, Doris, and grandson, Cobby, all of Traverse City, spent Sunday in this city at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Campbell-Shaw.

George A. Metcalf arrived in the city Tuesday evening from Muskegon, for a few days visit among friends and relatives. He visited at the home of his brother, Frank, at Central Lake enroute to Charlevoix.

The Congregational Ladies' Aid Society will meet on Wednesday, December 2nd, with Mrs. Walter Rodger, R. F. D. No. 1. A potluck luncheon at one o'clock will be followed by the election of officers and reports of the year's work.

Word comes from Mancelona that Art Stnley has rented the Erwin building in that village and will open a meat market sometime this week. According to our information, he will not move his family there until next spring, owing to the fact of being unable to rent a suitable home.

McCools's Velvet Ice Cream now on sale at the Creamery Building, 105 Clinton street.—Adv. 45tf.

"500" Party

Mrs. Ray Hamilton entertained eighteen of her lady friends at a party last Friday, November 20th, given at her home, 231 Belvedere avenue. A deliciousi chop suey supper was served at eight o'clock and the remainder of the evening was pleasantly spent at "500." The party broke up at a late hour, all declaring Mrs. Hamilton an A-1 hostess.

W. E. Parmelee builds storm windows.—Adv. 37-tf.

MEXICANS WOUND RAILROAD OFFICER

Some peculiar features attended a shooting case in Wayne county recently in which J. W. Walker, a railroad detective, was seriously wounded. He and another detective were watching for freight car thieves when they were fired upon from a section gang bunk car in which Mexican section hands were living.

State Police were notified and Sergeant R. W. Eaton of the Waye detachment first took Walker to a hospital and then arrested twa Mexicans, one of whom confessed to tha shooting.

It remains to be proved in court whether the Mexicans, being unfamiliar with American conditions, mistook the two detectives for prowlers or whether there is a connection between the thefts and the shooting.

Highway on Old Roadbed

One of the most remarkable motor highways in America from a scenic and engineering viewpoint is in Colorado over the Rocky mountains. A particularly interesting feature of this new western thoroughfare is that it is constructed for its length of 221 miles over the old roadbed of the Colorado Midland railroad, which ran from Colorado Springs to Glenwood Springs.

For all the news, read the Courier.

FRIENDS ENTERTAIN MRS. C. NIELSON

Happy Gathering at Farm Home in Eveline Township

A party of about forty-five friends and neighbors gathered at the farm home of Mrs. C. Neilsen of Evelino township the evening of November 12, the occasion being a farewell party to Mrs. Neilsen, who leaves shortly for Columbus, Ohio, where she intends to make her future home.

The evening was spent in games and conversation. At midnight a bounteous lunch was served, to which all did smple justice.

Mrs. Nielsen has lived in this section for a number of years and during her residence has made many close friends who will greatly miss her. She will be accompanied by her son, Elzie Thomson and daughter, Elsie Ruder.

GE WIRING SYSTEM
—for lifetime service
WOOD BROTHERS
—Adv. 43tf.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH
Rev. B. G. Mattson, Pastor

Regular service at 10:30 a. m. with sermon by the pastor, Dr. B. G. Mattson on "Responsiveness, a Spiritual Function."

Sunday School at twelve.

Young people's service at 6:00 led by Georgia Kelderhouse.

Evening service at 7:00. Evening service with a cluster of thumnail word pictures of "The World's Burden Bearer."

Ironton service at 2:30.

McCools's Velvet Ice Cream now on sale at the Creamery Building, 105 Clinton street.—Adv. 45tf.

Christian Science Society

Sunday services 11:45 a. m., subject, Ancient and Modern Necromancy, alias Mesmerism and Hypnotism, Denounced.

Sundny school, 12:00.

Wednesday evening service, 7:45 p. m.

Reading room open Tuesday and Saturday, 3:00 to 5:00 p. m.

The public is cordially invited to use our reading room and attend the

Electric light bulbs that give service at Charlevoix Hardware Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

COURIER BARGAIN COLUMN.

Courier Want Advs. are One Cent per word per insertion. Minimum charge is 20 cents per insertion, for anything under 20 words. All Want Advs. are strictly cash in advance except to those who have ledger accounts. Please remember this when sending in your copy.

LOST

LOST—A brown Beaver neck fur. Finder please return to Mrs. R. S. Shapton, phone 1070-f13. —Reward.—47-t2 pd.

FOUND

FOUND—A pair of glasses, now being held at Klooster & Co. store at Atwood. Same may be had by making proper indentification and paying for this ad.—47t1.

FOR SALE—MISCELLANEOUS

FOR SALE—Nice dry block wood. Call Will Mayne, phone 7003-f21. —47-t3.

FOR SALE — Building material. Save 50 per cent in building. Phone W. S. Shaw Co., No. 75, Boyne City, for prices on lumber (boards and scantling,) steel beams, brick, pipe, pipe fittings and roofing.—40t10.

FOR RENT—HOUSE

WANTED TO RENT—Two furnished heated rooms for light house keeping on ground floor. Or ane room with board for two people. Call 316.—46-t1.

FOR RENT—5 room bungalow at inside toilat. Call phone 18.—45tf.

FOR SALE—LIVE STOCK

FOR SALE—purebred Holstein bull, 2 years old, weight 1400, price $60. Phone 7012-f22, William Skye, Ironton, Mich.—44-t4-pd.

WANTED—MISCELLANEOUS

CASH for Dental Gold, Platinum, Silver, Diamonds, magneto points, false teeth, jewelry, and valuables. Mail today. Cash by return mail. Hoke S. & R., Otsego, Mich.—12-tf.

WANTED—Old false teeth. We pay as high as $10 for full sets. Don't matter if broken. We buy crowns, bridges. Western Metal Company, Blomington, Ill.—46 t2pd.

MISCELLANEOUS

FOR INFORMATION regarding Florida land and investments, write Ernest E. Galloway, 845 N. W. 2nd St., Miami, Florida, Licensed Broker.—36-tf.

For That Thanksgiving Dinner

We have Chickens
Turkeys
Ducks
Geese
Oysters

Fruits and Vegetables of all kinds.

Milton Block

Friday and Saturday Specials
NOVEMBER 27th and 28th

Outing Flannel, dark and light colors, 27 inches wide..22c
Ladies' Fleeced Lined Union Suits, sizes 42 and 44 $2.00 values for.....$1.00
Ladies' Fleeced Lined Vests and Pants, $1.00 values for 85c
Ladies' Cotton Fleeced Union Suits, high neck, long sleeves, ankle length, sizes 42 and 44, $1.50 to $2.50 values, Special $1.00
Ladies' Ribbed Vests, long sleeves, high neck, sizes 36 to 48, $1.00 to $1.35 values.....85c
Ladies' Ribbed Pants, ankle length, sizes 38 to 46, $1.00 to $1.35 values.....85c
Ladies' Light Weight Ribbed Pants, assorted sizes, 75c values, special.....49c
Ladies' Light Weight Vests, ribbed, assorted sizes, 75c values, special.....49c

A. E. MASON

NEW PALACE THEATRE

ATTRACTIONS FOR THE COMING WEEK

Saturday and Sunday, November 28th and 29th

Gloria Swanson in "THE COAST OF FOLLY." This play of society and the joys and scandals effecting modern ways in it, is one that fits Gloria Swanson perfectly. Her acting is of the best and you will enjoy this picture.

Also an Educational Comedy, "Stupid But Brave."

Tuesday and Wednesday, December 1st and 2nd

Harry Carey in "THE BAD LANDS." A red-blooded tale of Frontier Days—a gripping drama of men fighting a painted menace—a love theme of tenderness and beauty. Never before was there a Harry Carey picture with such action—such speed—such thrills—such melodrama.

We will also have another News Reel. Travel the world in the News Reels.

The Survival of the Fittest

CHASE & SANBORN'S HIGH GRADE PACKAGE OF TEAS AND COFFEES
"Supreme Satisfaction their greatest Attraction."

4 lbs. Seedless Raisins for .....
50c
1 lb. Royal Baking Powder .....
50c
1 lb. Calumet Baking Powder .....
30c
3 lbs. Wheat Grits for .....
25c

MARTIN BLOCK
Opposite Post Office
Phone 12 or 142

Coal Prices Advancing Rapidly

due to car shortage.

Better get your coal as our supply is limited.

Charlevoix Co-Operative Assn.

Neighbors

By
ROBERT STEAD

Author of "The Cow Puncher," "The Homesteaders"

WNU Service
Copyright by Robert Stead

(Continued from Page 3)

"why do you turn to Spoof, whom you hardly know, and away from me? Have I fallen so far short—am I so little to be desired—that you should love a stranger in preference?"

She pressed her hand against my lips. "Don't please. . . . . I can't explain. Ask me why the wind blows—why the flowers turn to the sunlight—I can't explain. I would ever so much rather it had been you."

"Then make it me! It is in your hands—"

"No, it is not. I can't change it. I have tried—and failed. Of course, I could marry you still, but you would not want me with a reservation in my heart. You would despise me if I married you like that."

Beneath the numbing shock of the fact that Jean was slipping—had slipped—out of my life, I was conscious that her words were true. I should not have wanted her—with a reservation. And so we sat in silence and in suffering, with no sound about us except the ticking of the clock and the thumping of our own hearts, until at length Jean arose to rebuild the fire. I took it as my cue to leave.

"Well, what is to be done about it?" I said, trying to speak in a matter-of-fact way, although I could not keep the tremble out of my voice. "We must clear up the situation some way."

"Yes. We will explain, so far as it can be explained, to Jack and Marjorie. We must not interfere with their marriage or their happiness. And Spoof must not know."

"Spoof not know! How shall we prevent—"

"I mean he must not know why—why our marriage is post—is off. Don't you see, Frank; Spoof must not know—I love him." She whispered the last words and turned her head away, as though ashamed of her confession.

"Not know you love him! Do you mean that Spoof doesn't know you love him?"

"No, he doesn't, Frank."

"And he has not made love to you?"

"Not a word."

I stood pondering that fact. If Spoof, without trying, could win Jean in competition with me, who had been trying my hardest, and who had the advantage of all the intimacies of childhood, what would happen when he set himself to the business of wooing? That he would do so as soon as he knew the coast was clear I did not doubt for a moment.

"I think I understand, Jean," I said, as I turned toward the door. "This happiness is not for me—it was too much to be expected. I had dreams—dreams that are not going to be realized, ever. I had pictures, but they must be torn out of my life. . . . I hope you will be happy. Goodby."

"Oh, Frank, don't go like that!" she cried, her arms outstretched toward me. But I had no heart to prolong my torture in her presence. I closed the door behind me and went stumbling through the drifts toward Fourteen.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Electric light bulbs that give service at Charlevoix Hardware Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

Council Chamber, Nov. 23, 1925.

The common council of the city of Charlevoix met on the above date with Mayor Bergeon presiding. Aldermen present: Bridge, Livingston, Madill, Partridge Parmelee. Minutes of the meeting held October 26, 1925. Application from Arthur Joseph to construct a dock on the north side of Round Lake on lot 12 of D. C. Nettleton unrecorded plat No. 2 of City of Charlevoix as per plans of R. F. Slonn, C. E. submitted.

Moved by Ald. Livingston, seconded by Ald. Bridge that permission be granted to Arthur Joseph to construct dock on north side of Round Lake on lot 12 of D. C. Nettleton unrecorded plat No. 2 of City of Charlevoix upon the securing of a permit from the War Department. Motion carried. Enter Ald. Eckinger.

Resolved, That the return of the City Treasurer, for the July, 1925 tax roll of the City of Charlevoix as verified by the City Clerk, and reported by the City Clerk to the council for action at this meeting, be, and the same is hereby approved, and the correctness of said return, and report of the City Clerk has been made to appear as correct to the satisfaction of this council;

Resolved further, that the City Clerk be and hereby is directed to certify the delinquent taxes and assessments appearing in said return of the City Treasurer, and report of the City Clerk, referred to, to the City Assessor to be re-assessed, by him and spread upon the December tax roll.

Adopted at a regular meeting of the common council of the City of Charlevoix, held on the above date, by aye and nay vote as follows:

Ayes: Aldermen, Bridge, Livingston, Madill, Partridge, Parmelee. Nays none.

Arthur Bergeon, Mayor.
D. S. Payton, Dept. City Clerk.

Ald. Livingston presented the following resolution and moved its adoption seconded by Ald. Bridge.

The Fire committee made a verbal report relative to the purchase of a pump for motor fire apparatus and requested further time to make a more thorough investigation, and a final report, which was granted.

Moved by Parmelee seconded by Madill that the Clerk be instructed to advertise for sealed bids for the buildings on Carpenter's and Wood's lots on Bridge street, said bids to be received at the city Clerk's office up to 5 o'clock p. m. of Monday, November 30th, 1925, council reserves the right to reject any and all bids. Motion carried.

Moved by Ald. Bridge, seconded by Ald. Parmelee the adoption of dock lines on south side of Round Lake as per plans drawn, and on file, in office of City Clerk, by City Engineer T. B. Dimmick. Motion carried.

Moved by Bridge seconded by Livingston that the Charlevoix Courier be designated as the official paper of the City of Charlevoix from November 23, 1925 to March 1, 1927. Motion carried.

The finance committee submitted the following report, having examined the following bills aggregating $7,860.19 find them correct, and recommend they be allowed:

November 9, 1925

To the Honorable:

The Mayor and Common Council of the City of Charlevoix:

Gentlemen:

Your finance committee having examined the following bills report the some correct, and recommend they be allowed and the clerk authorized to issue orders for the same.

Contingent Fund

Arthur Bergeon, salary	$ 31.25
Elma H. Cook, salary	27.50
John Cook, salary	25.00
D. S. Payton, salary	70.83
Alfred Smith, cleaning offices	2.00
Gregory, Mayer & Thom Co., supplies	5.16
Chas. H. Emrey, first payment on land contract	2000.00
City Treasurer, postage	1.00
	$2162.74

Highway Fund

Art Alcock, salary	57.50
Lou Sandle, labor	42.00
Geo. Olney, labor	7.00
M. B. Hooker & Son, team	30.00
Bert Sharrow, labor	41.00
Robt. Mitchell, sand	13.50
Bert Sharrow, assigned to Bergeon labor	4.00
H. D. Marshall, labor	108.65
Char. Hdw. Co., supplies	.42
	$304.07

Cemetery Fund

Chas. Hyers, salary	50.00
Jake Marshall, labor	13.00
Nowland, labor	22.75
Henry Block, auto truck	200.00
Benj. Brown, supplies	2.00
Moy Cook, trees	50.00
	$337.75

Police Fund

W. J. Weikel, salary	45.00
Wm. O'Neill, services	4.00
H. L. Brady, services	4.00
H. D. Marshall, services	4.00
	$57.00

Health Fund

J. C. Luce, labor	10.00

Fire Fund

Chas. Marshall, salary	42.50
Park Fund
H. L. Brady, labor	16.00
Amos O'Neill, labor	55.75
	$71.75

Bridge Fund

Elmer Johnson, salary	70.83
Harve O'Brien, salary	50.00
Char. Lbr. Co., lumber	5.16
Char. Hdw. Co., supplies	2.40
	$128.39

Sewer Fund

H. D. Marshall, labor	38.45

Electric Fund

C. N. Bridge, salary	104.17
Floyd Rice, salary	50.00
Percy Marsa, salary	50.00
Ernest Olney, salary	45.00
Murley Plum, salary	50.00
James Divis, salary	45.00
Wm. Spayd, labor	9.50
Ray Dell, assigned to Bridge labor	7.00
Sam Brown, labor	5.50
Dan Soule, salary	60.00
Robt. Allspaugh, salary	45.00
Garret Callahan Co., supplies	38.50
Lee Atchison, oil	25.50
Char. Hdw. Co., supplies	1.50
Char. Lbr. Co., lumber	18.43
Dan Soule, express	2.31
The Hannah & Lay Mert. Co. rubber belt	4.25
H. Channon Co., supplies	84.77
Benj. Brown, supplies	50.55
Western Union Tel. Co., services	.83
W. H. Guild, supplies	5.00
Northern Auto Co., supplies	1.50
J. W. Hostrup, services	5.00
H. O. Johnston, supplies	1.76
C. N. Bridge, exp. on line	2.15
Morris Ackert, exp. on line	1.50
Northern Coal Co., coal	96.35
Geo. Holm, unloading coal	22.50
P. M. Ry. Co., freight on coal	154.98
Char. State Savings Bank, exhange on electric bonds	4.00
Charlevoix State Savings Bank, Int. on electric light works bonds	300.00
	$1292.54

Water Fund

Morris Ackert, salary	60.00
James B. Clow & Sons, lead wool	8.88
H. O. Johaston, supplies	7.65
Sanitary Eng. Co., supplies	.70
John McCann, lunch	.75
Char. Hdw. Co., supplies	4.78
Traverse City Iron Works gate valves	49.78
Mueller Co., supplies	25.36
	$157.96

November 23, 1925.

To the Honorable:

The Mayor and Common Council of the City of Charlevoix:

Gentlemen:

Your finance committee having examined the following bills report the same correct, and recommend they be allowed and the clerk authorized to issue orders for the same.

Contingent Fund

Arthur Bergeon, salary	$ 31.25
Elma H. Cook, salary	27.50
John Cook, salary	25.00
D. S. Payton, salary	70.83
Mary E. Hamilton, services	7.00
Gregory, Mayer & Thom Co. supplies	3.85
Sentinel Printing Co., print'g	53.60
Wood Bros., lamps	3.24
Fidelity & Deposit Co., bond for Treasurer	40.00
W. E. Byers, freight	1.10
	$263.37

Police Fund

W. J. Weikel, salary	45.00
Sentinel Printing Co., print'g	1.80
Mich. Bell Tel. Co., toll	.20
	$47.00

Highway Fund

Art Alcock, salary	57.50
Lou Sandle, labor	42.00
M. B. Hooker & Son, labor	30.00
John Martin, gravel	207.75
John Martin, gravel	399.00
	$736.25

Cemetery Fund

City Treasurer, postage	1.09
Jake Marshall, labor	5.00
Will Chatfield, labor	5.00
Chas. Hyers, salary	12.00
Wood Bros. Bros., supplies	3.95
	$27.04

Park Fund

W. E. Byers, drayage	.75

Sewer Fund

H. D. Marshall, labor	18.33

Bridge Fund

Elmer Johnson, salary	70.83
Harve O'Brien, salary	50.00
Charlevoix Abstract & Eng. Co., premium on bond	15.00
	$135.83

Health Fund

J. C. Luce, labor	10.00

Fire Fund

Chas. Marshall, salary	42.50
Chas. Marshall, paid for labor	7.00
Char. Fire Dept., Guild fire	12.00
City Treasurer, express	1.40
	$62.90

Water Fund

Morris Ackert, salary	60.00
Standard Oil Co., gasoline	38.20
Brown & Wullnce, gasoline	49.83
Alva Alexander, labor for Wyers	6.50
H. Joha, labor for Wyers	7.60
Leon Vought, labor for Wyers	19.00
Carl Swanson, labor for Wyers	10.50
W. E. Byers, freight	7.49
Gen. Electric Co., clock	4.68
Wood Bros., supplies	.79
Sentinel Printing Co., print'g	17.00
Robt. Dickie, unloading pipe	12.50
H. W. Clark Co., Services boxes	11.28
Geo. Wyers, to apply on contract	100.00
City Treasurer, Int. on Waterworks bonds No. 11-25 and exchange	356.65
Geo. H. Wyers to apply on contract	50.00
H. O. Johnston, supplies	19.35
H. D. Marshall, labor	133.55
	$904.90

Electric Fund

C. N. Bridge, salary	104.17
Floyd Rice, salary	50.00
Percy Marsa, salary	50.00
Ernest Olney, salary	50.00
Murley Plum, salary	50.00
Jas. Divis, salary	45.00
Sam Brown, salary	12.00
Chas. Hyers, salary	38.00
Dan Soule, salary	60.00
Robt. Allspaugh, salary	45.00
W. E. Byers, freight	9.99
Standard Oil Co., gasoline	36.65
Mich. Bell Tel. Co., toll	.40
Wood Bros., supplies	14.72
Northern Services Co., supplies	41.71
Scully Steel & Iron Co., one angle	.90
Sentinel Printing Co., print'g	82.50
C. N. Bridge, paid demurrage on coal	18.00
City Treasurer, express	2.17
Char. Ice and Coal Co., coal	337.50
H. O. Johnson, wrench	3.00
	$1050.70

Moved by Bridge, seconded by Eckinger that the bills be allowed and the clerk authorized to issue orders for the same. Motion carried by the following aye and nay vote.

Ayes, Aldermen, Bridge, Eckinger, Livingston, Madill, Partridge, Parmeless. Nays none.

A delegation of business men visited the council and matters of vital importance along the line of the future welfare of the city were discussed, and suggestions made that will result in the correction of conditions that need immediate attention.

On motion of Ald. Madill the council adjourned.

D. S. Payton,
Deputy City Clerk.

Cut prices on all heavy winter garments to close out the line. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 47tf.

VALIANT EFFORT FAILS IN RESCUE

UPPER PENINSULA LAD FREEZES WHILE TROOPERS SEARCH FOR HIM

A valiant effort of the State Police of the Negaunee post to save life failed because the first snow storm of the season had broken down the telephone wires and delayed the receipt by the officers of information. As a result the combing of the woods near Diorite in search of a lost boy was delayed until too late to make rescue possible.

Aino Johnson and Waino Makl were two of a party of five boys who left Diorite for a day in the woods just prior to the coming on of the storm. Threatening weather caused the boys to decide to return home but they became separated in the snow. Three boys reached home late in the afternoon but the other two did not appear.

When the two lads had not come home the next morning, it was certain that they were lost. The telephone wires were down, however, and information of the affair did not reach the State Police until a day later.

Search Party Organized

Lieutenant Fred L. Bedard at once set out with a sergeant and three troopers. He also recruited a posse of sportsmen and lumber men who knew the woods and a thorough search was organized. Game wardens also joined in the hunt.

That afternoon it was learned that Aino Johnson had wandered to a farmhouse in a frozen condition. From the farmhouse the boy's footprints were backtracked into the woods. These led to a brush shelter which the boys had constructed and in which they spent the night, with wolves howling in the forest about them. In the morning they became separated.

Waino Makl's body was found by searchers in the snow. He had been dead only a comparatively short time and it is a pitiable fact that, had there been facilities for notifying the authorities sooner and getting the search started, he might have been discovered before the cold overcame him.

The State Police met the searchers who had found the body and other members of the posse were called in by the firing of rifle shots as a notification that the search was over.

Roadside Market Developed

The extension of hard-surfaced roads has benefited thousands of farmers through the comparatively new development of the "roadside market." By this means the farmer is enabled to dispose of considerable quantities of fruits, vegetables, etc., at his own doorstep thereby saving the time and expense involved in hauling such produce to market. Frequently this roadside market is handled by the younger members of the family, leaving the men free to engage in other profitable work about the farm.

Cut prices on all heavy winter garments to close out the line. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 47tf.

LEGAL NOTICES

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain real estate mortgage whereby the Power of Sale therein contained has become operative, which mortgage was given by John Pesek and Josephine Pesek, husband and wife, to Margaret M. Harsha, which mortgage was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Charlevoix, Michigan, July 5th, 1922 in liber sixty-four of Mortgages on page forty-one; and whereas the amount claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice is the sum of fourteen hundred eighty and 11-100 Dollars, together with an attorney fee of twenty-five dollars as provided for in said mortgage, and no suit or proceedings at law have been instituted to recover the money secured by said mortgage or any part thereof; and whereas the tax required by Statute to be paid on said mortgage was duly paid prior to the recording thereof.

Now therefore, notice is given that by virtue of the Power of Sale contained in said mortgage and the Statutes in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the premises therein described or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy the amount then due thereon of principal and interest together with the attorney fee, costs and expenses of the foreclosure, at public auction to the highest bidder therefor at the front door of the Court House in the City of Charlevoix, County of Charlevoix (that being the place where the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix is held) on the 20th day of February 1926 at ten o'clock in the forenoon on that day. The premises described in said mortgage being herein described as follows; to-wit:

All the north fractional half of the Southwest fractional quarter of Section Seven (7) in Township thirty-three (33) North of Range eight (8) West, containing eighty-two acres and 84-100 acres of land more or less according to the U. S. Survey thereof.

Dated November 16th, 1925.

Margaret M. Harsha,
Mortgagee.

Rollie L. Lewis,
Attorney for Mortgagee,
Charlevoix, Michigan. 46-t13

Order for Publication

State of Michigan, The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the city of Charlevoix in said County, on the 10th day of November A. D. 1925.

Present: Hon. Servetus A. Correll, Judge of Probate.

In the Matter of the Estate of William H. Collins, Deceased.

Hannah M. Collins having filed in said court her petition praying that the administration of said estate be granted to petitioner or to some other suitable person.

It is ordered, That the 3rd day of December A. D. 1925, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, be and is hereby appointed for hearing said petition;

It is Further Ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order, one each week for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix Courier a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Servetus A. Correll,
Judge of Probate.

A true copy. 45t3

added Economy

Only Buick has the sealed chassis and triple sealed engine

G-10-1-

Better Buick operating costs are very low. This car is thrifty—both in purchase price and in ownership.

Buick design protects all operating parts from dust and wear—barricades them with iron or steel housings in the famous Buick "Sealed Chassis" and "Triple Sealed Engine".

The Buick Valve-in-Head engine develops more power from a given quantity of gasoline.

And now, the Buick oil filter makes it necessary to change crankcase oil only at rare intervals.

Even smaller, less powerful cars do not match the Better Buick in low cost of operation and maintenance. You add to your power to economize when you buy a Better Buick!

BUICK MOTOR COMPANY, FLINT, MICHIGAN
Division of General Motors Corporation

Heaton & Hooper, Boyne City, Mich.

THE SIMPLEST LIGHT & POWER PLANT IN THE WORLD

IF YOU WOULD NOT HAVE LIGHT AND POWER—THEN TURN BACK THE PAGE OF CIVILIZATION

You might just as well bitch your family to the plow as to deny them the right to electric lights and all the comforts and burden lifting facilities of electricity.

It would be just as foolish to buy a small capacity light and power plant as to buy an under powered automobile. You need 1,500 watts capacity to operate the electrical appliances desired.

The Marco is powered by the simplified 5 H. P. "New-Way" Air-Cooled Engine, which is usable for other power purposes. It has 222 Ampere Hour long-life batteries.

Be sure that your plant has a 5 H. P. Engine and large batteries, which are necessary to do all the work required.

Benjamin Brown Auto Sales
CHARLEVOIX, MICH.

SUPER-POWERED MARCO

You're Going Home?

The holidays are approaching and perhaps you are thinking of spending them with loved ones about the old home fireside. Call them, by Long Distance, and tell the folks you are coming.

A Long Distance Call is so Personal

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE CO.

D. T. McHUGH
General Contractor
Phone 214
CHARLEVOIX MICHIGAN

WM. J. BOGART
CONTRACTOR and BUILDER
No Job Too Large
No Job Too Small.
Phone 139 Charlevoix, Mich.

R. B. ARMSTRONG
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Special Attention to Diseases of Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat
Priest Bldg. Phone 255

DR. F. F. McMILLAN
Physician and Surgeon
Office above Postoffice
Phone 17
Charlevoix :: Michigan

A. L. FITCH
ATTORNEY AT LAW
Office in Court House
Phone 48
Charlevoix :: Michigan

VIRGINIA RYALL BROWN, D. C.
PALMER CHIROPRACTOR
PHONES:
Office 347 Residence 39
Postoffice Building

Ellsworth Section

MILES DISTRICT

Jerry Moblo purchased a cow at Boyne City one day last week.

Miss Reva Williams of East Jordan, visited our school last Tuesday.

Miss Cora Stenke left for Grand Rapids, Monday for a two weeks vacation,

Henry Steenhagen drawed wood to East Jordan, Monday for John Terwee.

Herbert Evans and Bill Rhinhart, helped Fred Bancroft to cut wood, Saturday afternoon.

C. C. Mellencamp, County agricultural agent was a caller at the Frank Addis home Monday.

Highway commissioner Roscoe Smith had a force of men repairing the road north of Miles school house.

Mrs. A. Miles received word that her sister, Mrs. Jessie Erbacher was in a hospital in Little Rock, Ark. But did not hear any particulars.

Dett Evans returned from Ludington, Sunday evening. He was accnnied home by Frank Lindenau, who will spend a few days hunting.

(Too late for last week)

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Addis called on Mr. and Mrs. Earl Dansforth in Rock Elm, Sunday.

Rev. Fr. Drinan of East Jordan, called on Mr. and Mrs. Supley LaLonde, last Friday afternoon.

Albert Medema has men from East Jordan, cutting flash-wood and he is drawing it to Ellsworth.

The Lew hay-bailers are on the job again this week. They went home last week to thresh beans and buckwheat.

Mr. and Mrs. Will LaLonde of Traverse City, spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Supley LaLonde.

Mrs. Bert Elliot and grand-sons, Albert and Arthur, of Phelps were Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bancroft.

You will find high quality merchandise at reasonable prices at the Charlevoix Hdw. Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

BENTLEY HILL

Wedding bells.

John Koster and son, Minor, made a recent business trip to Central Lake.

W. Louselle and George Libberty of Ellsworth, have plastered the new part of Mr. Heeres' house.

A. Johnston has been helping H. Reamsma with the threshing machine.

H. DeYoung visited John DeGroot at Central Lake Friday night.

Mrs. Henry Gall of Salt Lake City, Utah, called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Heeres recently.

Several from here attended the sale of Mr. Elzinga Thursday.

Ed. Cromp is driving a new Willys-Knight car.

Our Highway commsisioner, Mr. Essenberg, went over the gravel road with the grader, Saturday, which puts the roads in good shape.

You will find high quality merchandise at reasonable prices at the Charlevoix Hdw. Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

ATWOOD

Thanksgiving Thursday.

A. M. Routley has rented the John H. Smith farm.

John DeYoung has rented the Herman Paul farm.

Mrs. Lillian Blow, who has been in the Charlevoix Hospital for the past eight weeks, is getting better.

We understand that Herman Paul and family will go to Grand Rapids soon for a change of climate and a needed rest.

Guy McLeod and family left for their home near Grand Rapids, Wednesday. Mr. McLeod will enter the mercantile business.

Ethan Joliffe is out among the farmers contracting for the growing of radish and garden peas for the Leonard Seed Co. of Chicago.

John Treman, wife and baby from Ponto, Ind., are here getting settled in their new home commonly known as the Joe Sprik farm. Success to our new neighbors.

Overcoats, Mackinaws, sheeplined coats, heavy pants, sweaters, leather vests and caps at cost price to close out the line. Benj. Brown—Adv. 47tf.

ROCK ELM

Walter Cooper apd Bert King, left for Melborn, Florida, last week.

Mrs. Mary Clark has been visting at the home of Dan Swanson the past few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Smatts and Mr. and Mrs. John Cooper called at the home of Ed. Kowalske Sunday of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Whitfield, Mr. and Mrs. Victor LaCroix, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Donaldson, were Sunday callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Jensen this week.

Charlevoix Pomona Grange was held with South Arm grange Saturday. A fine crowd was present and plenty of good eats were served. Some fine selections were rendered by the band muster, Mr. TerWee and Superintendent Duncansen favored us with a splendid talk on education.

Wear wool garments and keep warm this winter. We are selling them below cost to close out the line. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 47tf.

FAIRVIEW BANKS

Winter again at present.

John Veldhamp left for Grand Rapids, last week for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Art Wiltse visited with Mr. and Mrs. Jay Kuiper, Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Timmer visited with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Drenth, Friday evening.

William Timmer is in Bay Shore this week weighing sugar beets for the Holland-St. Louis Sugar Co.

The auction sale at Frank DeJong last Friday, was well attended and everything sold well, cows selling as high as $80.

The sad news of the death of Reynold, the oldest son of Rev. H. R. Buete, of Grant, Michigan, reached here Sunday. Rev. Buete was the former pastor of the Christian Reform church here. We sympathize with the bereaved family.

ANTRIM CITY

Mr. Brooks did some carpenter work for Bert Kirby of Norwood, this week.

Mr. Brooks bought a Ford car engine from the Corner garage of Ellsworth this week. He is going to use it to buzz wood.

Mrs. Baumbach was a visitor at the Brooks' home Monday.

Clyde Baker had his beans threshed down to Eastport this week.

You can afford to wear heavy wool winter garments at the price we are selling them to close out the line. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 47tf.

PILGRIM HOLINESS CHURCH
Phelps and Ellsworth

Phelps

Sunday school, 10:00 a. m.
Preaching, 11:00 a. m.
Prayer meeting, Wednesday evening at 8:00 p. m.

Ellsworth

Sunday school, 1:15 p. m.
Preaching, 2:30 and 7:30 p. m.
Prayer meeting Thursday evening at 8:00 p. m.

B. F. Manker, Pastor.

LOCAL BOYS ON WESTERN TRIP

(Continued from page one)

We stayed that night in a small town named Saltese, where we took in a mining camp "jaboric," a dance so-called. It was the yearly event of the little berg and every inhabitant was present. It reminded me some of the firemen's ball back home. They served flap jacks and coffee in the early morning and everyone went home "braced up."

Left Saltese September 27, driving through the wonderful Couer D'Alene mountains, taking in the city itself, which is locnted on the Yellowstone river. Next day we drove to Spokane, staying there that night. It was cold when we arrived there, but the weather changed during the night.

Left Spokane September 28, after cleuning the carbon out of the Lizzie and making a few repairs. At noon we left for Colfax, Washington, where we had lunch, driving that afternoon down a 11 mile grade that is one the greatest hair-pin curves in the world, into Lewistown, Idaho, to Clarkston, Washington, arriving that night at Walla Walla, Washington. You notice that on this day we were in Washington in the morning, Idaho in the afternoon, and back in Washington in the evening. This was due to our taking the wrong road, after leaving, driving 52 miles out of our way. Clarkston and Lewiston are separated by a river and were founded when early expeditions led that way.

Left Walla Walla, Washington, September 29, going through Pendelton, Oregon, where one of the greatest rodeos is pulled off, the other being at Cheyenne, Wyoming.

From here we drove down the Columbia River Highway to Portland, Oregon. This highway runs through beautiful and scenic hills and mountains, sometime right along the river, and is a fine paved road all the way. Portland is a fine city built up in a hilly country. Here we had the opportunity of visiting the big battleship Oregon.

Left Portland September 30 and stopped that night in a small town 200 miles down the line called Roseburg. Left Roseburg October 1, driving over the coast range of the Cascade moutains and crossing the Oregon-California line at Eureka, going on to Shasta that night. Left Mt. Shasta City, October 2, driving through miles and miles of grape vineyards, arriving in the heart of the grape country, Sacramento, October 3. Here we crossed Oakland Bay on a ferry and got off at San Francisco, where we took in the city for a little while and drove on to Satinas, where we stayed that night.

Left Satinas October 4. About noon we hit the ocean front and drove along side of it into Santa Barbara, the earthquake city. It is sure in a bad mess, but is being built up as afast as possible. Most of the damage was done in the business district. We stayed here all night in a nifty little tourist cabin of three rooms with hot and cold water and a fine big bed.

Left Santa Barbara October 5, driving the Coast highway into Los Angeles, arriving there at 12:30, making only a hundred mile drive that day.

This ended our trip which took 19 driving days and just three weeks from the time we left Charlevoix. On the road we had six punctures and two blow-outs, and drove 4,385 miles. We enjoyed the trip very much, but would not care to repeat it right away, as we are all fed up on this touring business. Our letter to you is a trifle late, as we have been here six weeks, but the old saying is "better late than never," and we wanted you to know of our experiences en route. California is a wonderful state—sunshine and flowers all the time.

Sincere yours,
L. L. McCann.
D. Faunce.

B. J. BEUKER
Physician and Surgeon
Office over Blue Store
Ellsworth, Michigan
Office Hours: 2-4 p. m., Phone 38

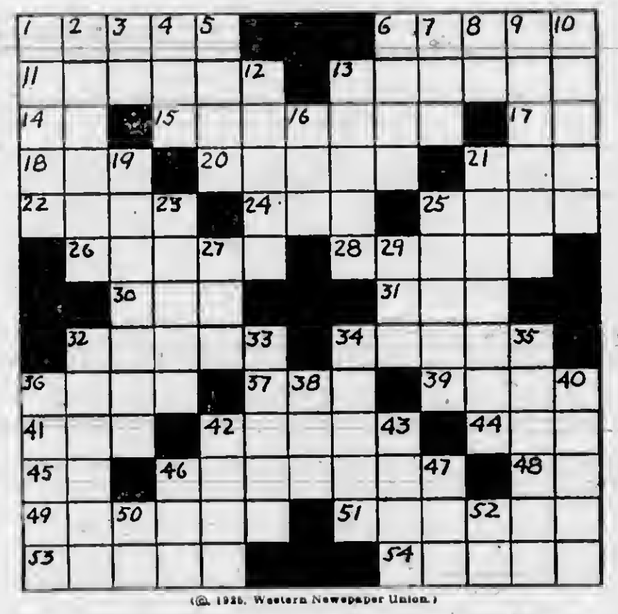
Hall's Catarrh Medicine

Those who are in a "run down" condition will notice that Catarrh bothers them much more than when they are in good health. This fact proves that while Catarrh is a local disease, it is greatly influenced by constitutional conditions.

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE consists of an Ointment which Quickly Relieves by local application, and the Internal Medicine, a Tonic, which assists in improving the General Health.

Sold by druggists for over 40 Years.
F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio.

Crossword Puzzle No. 83.



(©, 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

Horizontal.

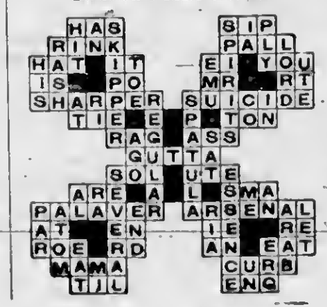
1—To mix, as tobacco, coffee, etc.
6—To resolve a sentence into its grammatical elements
11—Section
13—Fines for an offence
14—Article
15—To pacify 17—Like
18—International language
20—Gives forth
21—Watering place
22—Slight depression, as from a blow 24—And so forth
25—In a fit manner
26—Brings up
28—Distance between a vessel's bow and her anchor
30—Nickname for Isaac
31—Nickname for Nathaniel
32—Proficient 34—Whirling
35—Parsian poet
37—Relating (abbr.)
38—An authoritative sanction
41—Aeriform liquid
43—Overhanging part of roof
44—American humorist, first name Petroleum Bill
46—The same (abbr.)
48—Lovable
49—Printing measure
52—Stringed instrument
51—Consumers
53—Nerrow ridge of glacial deposit
54—Same as 6 horizontal

Vertical.

1—To weave
2—Person who makes borrowing possible
3—For example (abbr.)
4—To arrest
5—A distribution, especially of gifts of charity 6—Places
7—Beer 8—Red Cross (abbr.)
9—Loop of iron wire with pointed ends
10—Short written composition
12—Appellations
13—Stick dipped with sulphur
16—Citizen (abbr.)
19—Tribe of American Indians
21—To bear up under
23—One who takes
25—Person of abnormally small stature 27—Ribbed material
28—Some
33—Hero of a cycle of romances of chivalry 33—String of care
34—Piece of land assigned to a clergyman
35—Several thicknesses laid over each other
36—A pointed arch
38—Girl's name 40—Rigid
42—Arabian chieftain
43—A smart blow
46—Bear 47—Greek letter
50—Correct (abbr.)
52—Exclamation of hesitation

Solution will appear in next issue.

Solution Puzzle No. 82.



Hudson-Essex World's Largest Selling "Sixes"

Quality Gave This Volume and Volume This Price

Quality has made Hudson-Essex for years the world's largest selling 6-cylinder cars. Without such volume, these prices would be impossible. And without increasing quality such volume would never be reached. That is why owners think of Hudson not in terms of the low price paid, but in the costly car qualities, performance and reliability which it continues to give long after price is forgotten.

$1165
HUDSON COACH

Hudson Brougham
$1450

Hudson. 7-Pass. Sedan
$1650

All Prices Freight and Tax Extra

For those who desire these cars may be purchased for a low First Payment and convenient terms on balance.

World's Greatest Buy

Everyone Says It—Sales Prove It

H. R. FOWLER, Charlevoix

ORDER YOUR

Christmas Cards

From an Exclusive Lot of Samples

We have a manufacturer's entire line of samples from which you can select one to suit your taste. Eight different styles of engraved sentiments are shown with most samples and we are sure to be able to match your name plate, engraving of sentiments on cards being done after order is placed. Bring in your plate and let us show you these exclusive samples and idea.

We sell only one order from each sample

The Charlevoix Courier

"The Home of Good Printing"

PIONEER RESIDENT VICTIM OF DROPSY

Miss Harriett Beers Died Last Wednesday in 80th Year

Charlevoix lost another pioneer last Wednesday, November 18th, in the death of Harriett Agusta Beers, who died nt the home of her sister, Mrs. B. Campbell, 108 Park avenue, after an illness of about a yenr and a half duration.

In earlier years Miss Beers was a familiar figure in this city, being the daughter of Philo J. Beers, pioneer merchant nnd postmaster of Charlevoix, "Aunt Hattie" as she was familiarly called, was a woman of sterling chnracter nbd beloved by all who knew her. She was 80 years old nt the time of her death, being born in Grand Rapids in 1845.

She is survived by one brother, Orman J. Beers, residing near Boyne City, and one sister, Mrs. B. Campbell of this clty. Several nephews and nieces also mourn her departure.

Funeral services were held from the family bome, 108 Park avenue, Friday afternoon, November 20, Rev. C. E. Pollock of the M. E. church, officiating. Interment at Brookside.

Those from out of town who nttended the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Wentz of Alpena, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. DeWitt and daughters, Erma and Magdnlene, of Harbor Springs, and Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Beers and Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Wangeman of Boyne City.

Christmas greeting cards, exclusive line to select from, no duplicates. Engraved or plain. Call at the Courier office and look the line over. —Adv. 47-t4.

PRELIMINARY OPERATION STARTED

(Continued from page one)

ing enst a dock is to be built, along which the boat will tie up during the summer. Between the dock nnd the shore linc there will be a large swimming pool and place to tie launches, rowboats and canoes, which will be shultered from the north by the dock, a bridge high enough for small craft to go under connecting the dock nnd shore. The grounds from the shore line to Belevedere avenuc will be landscuped and made into gardens, and nfter all is completed it will surely be a credit to the owner and n grent asset to the city of Charlevoix.

The new yncht Sylvin is the last word in pleasurc boats. She will be 133 feet long, 21 1-2 feet in breadth, with 8 foot draught. Motive power consists of two 600 h. p. Deisel engines burning crude oil driving twin screw propellers. The cruft will be able to cross the ocean carrying a fuel supply of 6,000 gallons, nnd is piped for both fresh and salt water. The craft is of all-steel construction and is now being built by the DeFoe Company of Bay City, Michigan. Plans cnll for her completion by May 1926.

Roy Ranger has been the chief directing spirit of all the above mentioned improvements nlong the lake front and has supervision over the construction work. Thousands of dollars are to be spent and work furnished for many men for some time to come. Improvements of this nuture with their subsequent cost, show the confidence our summer people have in the city's future as a resort and we congratulate ourselves on the fact that their interests are centered here.

No Thanksgiving dinner nor extra dinners will be served until further notice at the Hotel Charlevoix. Manager.—Adv. 47t1.

HENRY JOHNSTON HAS A MODEL WORK SHOP

New Equipment Recently Added Is Up-to-the-Minute

On a visit paid to Henry Johnston's blacksmith nnd wood-working shop on Antrim street this week, a number of important and interesting improvements in the line of machinery were noticed, of which the owner is rightly proud.

The furnace has been equipped with a hot nir pipe line which reaches all parts of the shop, an electric motor-driven fan being the power behind the circulating system. The idea was conceived by Mr. Johnston and is giving successful results. Among other pieces of machinery and equipment which has been added recently include a hot chisel cutting machine used in cutting hot iron; a hollow augur spoke machine used in boring holes in wheels for spokes, a 2-ton-pressure screw mnchine for pressing iron tires from wheels nnd an iron circle machine for pressing tires onto wheels. The floor in the blacksmith shop has also recently been laid with cement.

Mr. Johnston started n few yenrs back with only the minimum of equipment necessary to carry on his business. He now has a modern and up-to-date equipped shop and is in a position to quickly and efficiently handle all work in his line.

Last minute orders for Christmas Greeting Cards are hard to fill. Order enrly from our exclusive line, plain or engraved. The Courier has just the cnrd you want.—Adv. 47t4.

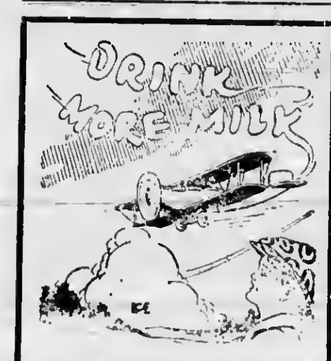
FAREWELL PARTY AT LEWIS HOME

Dickens Club Entertains in Honor of Mrs. Dimmick

Onc of the pleasant social events of the past week wns a party given by the members of the Dicken's Club lnst Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. R. L. Lewis, in honor of Mrs. T. B. Dimmick, who is soon to leave for her new home in Lnnsing.

The afternoon wns psent in visiting and in playing bridge, followed by refreshments which were both attractive nnd appetizing. An embroidered towel was presented to the guest of honor ns a memento of the occasion.

Mrs. Dimmick has been a valuable member of the Dicken's Club and has by her womanly grace nnd her nccomplishments endeared herself tn all who have known her. It is a matter of genuine regret that Mr. Dimmick's business promotion makes it necessary for this fnmily to leave Charlevoix. They will be grently missed in our community.



SPRING IS IN THE AIR

YOUNG SAMSON smiles wisely at the message of the soaring bird-man! His own rugged strength is built on many a bottle of our delicious milk.

MARION CENTER DAIRY
Pure Aerated Milk and Cream
CHARLEVOIX, MICH.

Ride the Greyhounds to any Place on the Map

CHICAGO

ROUND TRIP $10

From Muskegon

From Muskegon daily at 6, 6:45, 8, 8:45, 10, 12 and 12:45 Central Standard Time

BUILDS STATE'S SECRET SERVICE BUREAU LARGER

COMMISSIONER STRAIGHT OF DEPT. OF PUBLIC SAFETY TRAINS NEW MEN

State Detectives Assist Local Officers In Solving Crimes.

Many cnlls have recently been madè upon the Secret Service Division of the Michigan Department of Public Safety by local officers for assistance in solving crimes occurring in their communities. Success has quite generally attended these cases.

Alan G. Straight, head of the Department of Public Safety, was formerly a member of the federal secret service and he has therefore taken particular interest in building up this branch of the State Police. His experience in this kind of work has been very valuable.

E. G. Ramsay, a veteran of the State Police, is the new head of the division, succeeding John S. Palmer, who, resigned to enter private business. He has a record of success in many crime cases in the state.

Some functions formerly performed by the state detective bureau have been transferred to other divisions of the Department of Public Safety, these including transfer of prisoners, liquor lavestigations and civil lavestigations. As now constituted, the division deals only with criminal investigation.

Uses Latest Methods

The great advantage of such a division is that its members have full opportunity to employ the latest methods of criminal investigation. Full co operation is afforded by the state identification bureau, also a part of the Department of Public Safety. The state detectives also have the opportunity for chemical analysis when required in poisoning and arson cases and others of like nature.

Fred Armstrong, who is assistant chief of the division, was formerly in the state marshal's office as investigator and has a splendid record in investigation of arson cases. He has also the solution nf several difficult murder cases to his credit.

Others in the division who have distinguished themselves are George Waterman, Charles Burnham and Edgar T. Adams, all of whom have unraveled extremely difficult cases since joining the state service.

Promote Best Troopers.

Troopers of the State Police who show a particular aptitude for criminal investigation will be promoted by appointment to the Secret Service Division Their service in different counties nf the state and knowledge of criminals nnd cbimlnal methods secured while troopers will make them especially useful in detective work wherever they may be sent.

Two men who have recently been transferred to the investigation work, on probation, are N. R. Black and Herman Kays, both of whom did excellent work as troopers.

A new scale of pay for men in the state secret service has been adopted. While this is not as high as the salaries paid to detectives in the larger cities, it is higher than the scale for men in the uniformed division.

NEWSPAPER STORY CLUE TO CRIMINAL

Patience nnd observatlon nre two valuable trnits in a police officer and this was proved in the nrrest and confession of men engnged in burglaries at Little Lnke, Mich., recently. Trooper A. B. Scribner of the State Police, worked on the hurglary case with local officers and secured good fingerprints left by the men who did the breaking and enterlag.

There was nn one uader suspicion at the time but Scribaer kept the prints and watched and waited.

When Leo Marlowe and Raymond Diagman were arrested at Marquette on another charge, Trooper Scribner secured their fingerprints. Upon comparison with those taken at Little Lake, he was sure that he had the men.

Marlowe, confrnnted with this evidence, confessed to participation in some of the robberies. The men will be prosecuted in Marquette first and the other charge kept in reserve for the time being.

TROOPER GETS HIS MAN

Trooper Stanley Smith, Troop B., Penasylvaala State Police, was recently cited for bravery. He was sent out with a warraat and was shot in the body, the bullet coming through a door. First arresting the man whn had shot him, he then went on and arrested the person for whom he held the warrant.

MURDER CASE SOLVED

Confession of Bert Brady that he killed his friend, Richard Williams, in a lonely shack in the forest near Newberry, Mich., has closed a case which seemed mysterious at first. Hunters found Williams' body. State Police arrested Brady and he confessed.

For all the news, read the Courier.

MICHIGAN APPLES FINEST ON MARKET

Texas Man Wants Some Sent to That State

Here is a boost for Michigan grown fruit which testifies as to the excellence of the Red Mackintosh apples grown in "Skunk Gulch" on the farm owned and operated by Robert Morse. Bob sold 1,000 in all parts of the country this fall, mostly mail order shipments.

The following letter was received recently by R. A. Emrey, local agent for the American Express Company, from G. P. Bradbury of Columbia, Brazoria county, Texas:

"R. A. Emrey,
Charlevoix, Mich.

On November 3rd you shipped one basket of apples. Shipper shown, Robert Morse. These were mighty nice apples and I would like to get a bushel for my own use. Will you please advise if I can do so, and what the price will be. The only apples on the market in this country are from California and Oregon, which are apples with very little acid and juice. Will appreciate your information.

"P. S.—As I write this I am in my shirt sleeves and sweating. I'll bet you are not."

It all goes to show that "it is not all gold that glitters," and although the apples from California and Oregon may be very pleasant and appetizing to look at, you've a long ways to go before you can beat Michigan flavor.

INTERESTING BITS OF INFORMATION CLIPPED FROM OUR EXCHANGES

"Automobiles in state jump 100,000," says a Lansing headline. That's nothing to the number that don't jump at all, but hit right in the middle.

"Baycitian bonsts of full rose bush in his back ynrd," snys headline in that city. Well, if the gates are locked, that's a relatively safe pince to boast of it.

A weather observer at Cassapolis reports that only six dnys of October were clenr, and for all most observers could see, even those days must of been nights.

Evidently the first team to win a decisive victory nt this aquatic type of foot ball will be the one that springs n surprise and puts an outboard motor on the ball.

How rude! While a party of city motorist were "borrowing" a basket of apples from his orchard, an Oceana County farmer "stole" the tools from their car.

Before starting to Florida, a Midlnnd resident went into a bank, wrote out a check for $500 and dropped it on the floor. Can't he be patient a day or two till he gets to Florida?

The ambulance was hastily called nt Grand Rapids when a man leaving an office building fell and broke his wooden leg. After a consultation, the carpenters decided to operate at once.

"Be safe, not sorry, in shooting at your quarry," is a motto issued to hunters from Western Michignn. And the hunters mutter threteningly in reply, "Get better not worse, in writing such verse."

While walking in the woods last week a Caledonia mnn "observed numerous frogs and grasshoppers, a bee tree and several small snakes." The odd thing is that his nurse should let him walk in the woods.

Bandits attempod to hold up a liquor scow on the St. Clair river by attacking the crew with ammonia guns, but no success. On most liquor scows, a heavy fire by nmmonia guns only serves to purify the atmosphere.

Whut we are waiting for now, as an intercsted follower of the lntest fashions, is for some motor company to get out pictures of those piles of junk you see running around at Ann Arbor, and enll them "college cut" automobiles.

The Chippewn County Sportsman's Association will hand to each hunter who crosses the Straits a pledge card reading, "I will not shoot untill I KNOW what I am aiming at." You can shoot immediatly after that, if it hnsn't already shot you.

A Litchfield schoolhouse where there are only nine pupils burned to the ground enrly last Sunday morning. Alwnys the select few get all the advnntages. All over the lnnd there are school houses with hundreds of pupils, but of course the fire had to come to this little one.

People who purchase Nortbern Michigan land from a certain lnnd company claim that they were swlndled, as they were shown the property when it was covered with snow. It is supposed that as they did not look very close, they thought the ground wns covered with ice cream.

HOSPITAL NOTES

Wm. Dennison of Centrnl Lnke, had a leg amputated on Friday morning of last week.

Floyd Black of this city, wns operated on for removal of nppendix on Thursday nfternoon of last week.

Mrs. Clnrence Hyde of Onwny submitted to nn operation nt the hospital on Monday of this week.

Mrs. Jamea Zitkn of Enst Jordnn, is recciving medical trentments nt the hospital this week.

Albert Cook, who has been confined to the hospitnl for some time is improving nicely and is now up nnd nbout.

Charlevoix Hdw. Co.

Heating with our present fuel is Dangerous with Wornout Equipment

Are you sure yours is Perfeetly Safe for the winter?

If in any Doubt, better eome in and see our FULL LINE of

Heaters and Circulators

Charlevoix Hardware Company

302 Bridge St Phone I.

WELL, we suppose that EVERYBODY at your house—ESPECIALLY the lady in CHARGE—is busy getting READY for Thanksgiving THIS Thursday, and we CAN'T help thinking what A JOY it would be to SOME of those famished CITIZENS across the big POND if they could just HAVE a little share in SOME of these big THANKSGIVING dinners THAT will be served IN THIS section of the COUNTRY—and doesn't it JUST make you feel mighty GLAD, when you think of IT, that you are living HERE in Charlevoix County IN THE Best state in THE UNION, and that you HAVE three "squares" a DAY and a good place to SLEEP, and protection AND freedom and EVERYTHING that goes WITH it—Thankful? WE'LL say we are!

Forest & Clarence

WOOD BROTHERS

Hardware & Electrical Supplies

W. E. Byers, Auctioneer

Twenty years experience in handling Auction Sales, both on farm and household goods.

Let Me Cry Your Sales

Phone me at Charlevoix or call the Charlevoix Courier, where all dates are made.

Cups for Lunch Furnished if Requested

THE AUTO SHOP

Phone 93 204 Mason St.

CHARLEVOIX COURIER

VOLUME 32. NUMBER 48 EIGHT PAGES COURIER, CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 2, 1925 PRICE $2.00 PER YEAR

WANTS COUNTY CONTROL WORK

GOVERNOR SAYS TOWNSHIPS WASTE ROAD MONEY

Groesbeck Presents Opinion on State Affairs at Meeting Held in Grand Rapids

Very seldom since Alexander Groesbeck became governor has he made speeches of any kind and still less seldom has he defended himself or his policies. Whether we agree with the governor or not in all things, we are forced to concede that no governor in the whole history of the state has done as much for the roads of Michigan as has he.

Last week the governor was the guest of honor at the Grand Rapids Rotary Club and on that occasion he announced a new policy which will probably be one of his objectives in the future. He states that $8,000,000 had been squandered by the townships of Michigan and advocates making the county the smallest unit in highway work. That his proposal will meet with the strongest sort of opposition and make the governor more enemies he expects, but indicates his intention to drive ahead just the same. Here is what he said:

"I have no formula for the completion of our highway work and problems but this: Cover Michigan's roads with wide, thick and long pavements. First in great centers of population that the people may go and enjoy the great outdoors by trunk line routes, then country roads and finally township roads. We have been going forward regardless of opposition and the results justify the labor.

"The money for highway expenses comes from the weight and gasoline tax. We are making Michigan master of the situation so far as trunk lines are concerned with more than six thousand miles of such roads. We will collect twenty-one million dollars from this tax this year but the state highway department is not spending that amount because we are paying back six millions to the counties; four million to care for state obligations on highway bonds and other exigencies that leaves us only two millions for maintenance work.

"The township last year imposed a tax of twelve million dollars on themselves for highway purposes. Think of it, farmers and rural communities imposing on themselves an obligation from one-third of the taxable property. They are spending twice the amount the state has spent this year or will be allowed to spend next year.

"I will make a few warm enemies by this statement, but it's the truth: Eight millions of this money raised by the townships is wasted. Let any engineer try and deny it. I call your attention to this and advocate that the county be made the unit in highway work instead of the township and county. By doing this you will spend county money in an efficient manner.

"The day of the control of policies of the state by vested interests, contractors, cement dealers and others has come to an end. There is nothing left of our highway problem to bother about. The state had to be the boss, and it is. That is the version if it is to be of any benefit to the public. Take off the shackles of favorism and drop them by the wayside. Drop all selfishness, greed and graft of those that would make profit of those state agencies in control of ordering state work."

Turning to the prison situation he explained the state's policy in remodeling and making habitable the penal institutions, adopting the honor system for prisoners in road work that they might help care for their dependents.

"Humane and enlightening will be our prison policy. Ninety-five per cent of the honor prisoners have made good," the governor said.

Answering his critics on the parole question he said: "No politician, no lawyer, no judge in Michigan dare say that any parole has been granted without all the facts in the case being laid before the parole board. I defy denial of that statement."

Dealing with taxes, Governor Groesbeck said:

"The total appropriation of the state for all its work is thirty millions. We are not looking in the right direction. The national government takes three hundred million dollars annually from the state of Michigan which makes us look like 'pikers.' We have been meeting our bonded indebtedness by our sinking fund. On March 4 next year, sixteen millions will be set aside to take care of those obligations, despite knocks of our enemies.

"Let us go forward, look all our problems in the face and, considering all things, let us do our duty for the fair name and progress of one of the best states in this glorious republic."—Gratiot County Herarld.

URGE GOVERNOR TO "CLOSE GAP"

PETITION TO FINISH M-11 PAVING NOW UNDER WAY

Concrete Scenic Highway Along Lake Michigan Will Bring Thousands of Tourists

Governor Alex. J. Groesbeck, State Highway Commissioner, Frank Rogers, and members of the state administrative board are to receive an organized request from western Michigan with a short time, to complete the paving of M-11 and "close the gap."

Mayor James T. Milliken of Traverse City, is chairman of a committee of business men from along M-11 from Muskgon north to Petoskey, which will visit Lansing on behalf of this highway. Other members include John Beukma of Muskegon, P. P. Schnorbach of Manistee, Joseph Hofstetter of Frankfort, C. O. Carver of Elk Rapids, Robert Bridge of Charlevoix, Norman Wells of Petoskey and M. D. Bryant, and Leo P. Kalahar of Traverse City.

M-11, it is generally known, is now a concrete ribbon from the Indiana-Michigan state line to Benzonia. The purpose of this committee will be to present arguments to the state administrative board why this ribbon should be further unwound to reach Mackinaw City. This highway, it is agreed, is the chief feeder for resort and tourist business into Michigan, leading as it does, from the dozen states in the corn belt. Over it the great tide of summer travel flows into the summer play ground of the middle-west. The objects of paving M-11 have increased many fold since the project was first started.

This committee will also present to the state administrative board, the advantages of completing a job already started, believing the best policy is to take one job and finish it befor starting another. A few miles here and another few miles there, scattered throughout the state, will not serve to attract the tourists who help pay the state gasoline tax, where one long dustless trip lures them. The paving of M-11 will also treble the business of the state-owned ferries across the Straits of Mackinac.

Another feature, which will be presented, is the fact that a concrete highway along the scenic shores of Lake Michigan, will bring thousands of people into Michigan, who have started up the Wisconsin shore. Every year tourists start into Wisconsin and Michigan, come to the end of the pavement and turn back. The completion of M-11 would give a loop around Lake Michigan, which tourists would be unable to resist.

There are a few of the sound arguments which the committee will offer when it has an early audience with Governor Groesbeck and the state board.

For all the news, read the Courier.

SEE MICHIGAN TRAFFIC RULES AS BASIS FOR NATION

Organized automobile drivers are making headway against the greatest motoring evil by steps for uniform statewide traffic regulation, Thomas P. Henry, president of the American Automobile Association, said recently.

The steps taken in Michigan to eliminate the diversity of regulations which makes a legal practice in one county illegal in the next will be extended over the entire nation, and finally the laws will be uniform between states, Henry predicted.

The state of Washington is taking steps toward adoption of a similar uniform traffic law, Henry said, and sectional differences are being eliminated.

Safety is the principal object of the drive, Henry said.

"This new plan of safety through abolition of confusion is merely the process of building by starting with the foundations," he added.

PUBLIC INVITED TO HIGH SCHOOL

AN EVENING OF HALARITY AWAITS YOU THERE

Adequate Police Force Will Be Provided to Maintain Law and Order.

Of more than passing interest is the coming of the "Carnival Hilarious," an affair of fun, frolic, and merriment, of music, horrors, and hilarity, with an appeal to young and old alike that bids fair to bring more joy and pleasure to our peaceful village than would the coming of "One-minute" Barum himself.

The "Carnival Hilarious" boasts the greatest variety of real entertainment obtainable. Thorough search of nooks and corners has brought to light much talent of no mean calibre, and with the added spice of the old and time-tried, an unusually complete program has been arranged. For the followers of Terpsichore, Muse of the Dance, music will be furnished by those masters of melody, Paul Whitman, Abe Lyman, Bennie Kruger, and others. There will be fishing, landlubber style, that old, moss-covered stunt of the paleolithic age. The Sibyl of Ancient Greece has been recalled especially for this occasion, to reach forth into our futures and grasp the Goddess of Uncertainty by the forelock. Fatima, the dancing girl; famous because of the difference just a few cents make, will be one of the main hilarities. A startling discovery gave the innovation of the "Room of Horrors." Here will be found the dreadful wonders of the Lost World, tempered by the jest of the Delusive Chimera. The Battle of the Century will be re-enacted by Mutt and Jeff incarnate. A polished exhibition of the manly art of self-defense, in five rounds. The bout, going in Michigan, will be a no-decision match. There will be singing by that incomparable trio, Saltonstall, Dutcher, and Davenport; a shooting gallery will add to the fun; a gypsy stew will be served to everyone; other things too numerous to mention will complete the "Carnival Hilarious."

An adequate police force has been procured to insure order, and judgment will be meted to those who disturb the peace. You are invited to bring the entire family Friday night to the High School building and help us to make this occasion one Hilarious round of fun.

C. C. N.

JOSEPH BUYS OLD TEASDALE PROPERTY

Cincinnati Resorter Adds to His Present Holdings

A real estate deal was completed last week through the Earl A. Young Real Estate Agency of this city whereby Arthur Joseph, well known Cincinnati summer resorter and property owner here, has added to his present holdings by the acquisition of the Tensdale property on Michigan avenue. The lot joins Mr. Joseph's present summer home on the north.

What will be done with the property by its new owner is not definitely known at the present time. Mr. Young has been instructed to place the buildings on sale and have them removed as soon as possible.

Mr. Joseph may build a garage on the lot or even a new summer home, but it is likely that the grounds will be landscaped and reverted into a beautiful garden.

OLD RIVER IS BEING DREDGED

ONE OF CITY'S BEAUTY SPOTS WILL BE REVIVED

A Channel Four Foot Deep and Twenty-five Feet Wide Are Plans of Chicago Club.

As a part of their $100,000 program of improvements to the association grounds and golf links the Chicago Club is also dredging out Old River to make it navigable for small boats. The work is now nicely under way and has advanced about two hundred yards from the mouth of the river.

Thomas Johnson of Grand Haven, Michigan, has the contract for the job and is using a regular steam ditch digging dredge to remove the dirt. The machine has a long steel arm with a shovel on the end and the way it throws out dirt is not slow. The outfit is mounted on a truck and travels down the channel on planks laid before it. Work was commenced inside of the channel entrance and the openings at the mouth of the river will be opened after a rest of the channel has been dug. Mr. Gaskin, who has supervision of the work, states that the channel will be dug to a depth of four feet, twenty-five feet wide and the openings at each end of the river will be forty feet wide.

The boat houses along Old River were never low enough to allow a boat to enter them and are equipped with rollers on which boats are drawn up on and placed in winter storage. Old timers will recall when steam tugs were able to navigate from Round lake into Pine lake through Old River, which at one time was the only stream between the two lakes. But the gradual lowering of the water in the lakes finally resulted in the closing up of both entrances to the river and for the past two or three years there has been no flow of water through the old passage.

When the improvement now started has been completed one of the beauty spots of Charlevoix will again be revived. There was not a prettier spot on Round lake than Old River in former days. It will also increase the value of the grounds of the Chicago Club and again bring into use the string of boat houses which have been laying idle for a number of years and represent an investment of thousands of dollars. It is expected that two week's work will complete the job.

BIRTHDAY PARTY AT McKENZIE HOME

Given in Honor of George Lord's 72 Birthday Anniversary

A number of friends and relatives gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Colon McKenzie of this city last Sunday, November 29, where a party was given in honor of Mrs. McKenzie's father, George Lord of Norwood, the occasion being his 72nd birthday anniversary.

The guests sat down to a sumptuous birthday dinner with all trimmings appropriate to an occasion they expressed their wishes of celebrating for many years to come, and the afternoon was pleasantly spent in visiting. Those present at the affair were Mr. Lord's daughters' accompanied by their husbands and families and included Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Richardson and family of Norwood, Mr. and Mrs. Resignol and family of Petoskey and Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Novak and family of this city.

Back on the Job

WILL TAKE CASE TO SUPREME COURT

Subject Is of Great Interest to Local Sportsmen

The Izaak Walton League, the Congress of Michigan Game Associations and the West Michigan Game and Fish Protective association are taking measures to carry the Collins-Gerlnrdt trespass case, which has gained state-wide attention and involves the outdoor rights of the public of Michigan, to the state supreme court in an effort to change the decision made recently by Judge Lamb.

The decision made by Judge Lamb gave property owners in the state a right to bar fishing on streams and rivers running through their land. The same trouble is also confronted with gun clubs holding thousands of acres of land and forbidding hunting on their premises. Unless things are changed the time will come when big interests will own all game and fish cover and the man of small means will have to do his hunting or fishing in his own back yard or go without.

A constitutional amendment is now being framed for submission to the next legislature in an effort to protect the rights of the public in woods and streams and the developments will be watched with interest by local sportsmen.

The Ironton Grange will give a "Hard Time" party at the Ironton Grange hall on Friday evening, December 11. Everybody come.—Adv. 18-tf.

WHAT IS TO BE DONE ABOUT IT

CHANNEL HAS APPROXIMATELY 14 FEET OF WATER

Steamer Griffin Drawing Fifteen Feet Stuck in Channel Since Saturday

Happening of the past week should arouse much interest and speculation in the minds of Charlevoix residents and those of the cities of East Jordan and Boyne City as well, on the serious condition of the channel leading from Lake Michigan into Round lake. A report of the soundings made by the local coast guards should be enough to goad each city into action to remedy the matter.

On Saturday, November 28th at 8:00 a. m., the steamer Griffin, loaded with iron ore and headed for the East Jordan iron work went aground before even getting inside of the piers at the entrance of the channel. A northwest wind was blowing and the current was running out, so Capt. Gallagher, after much effort in releasing his ship from the bar he had run onto, backed out and went to Harbor Springs to wait until the current changed, returning the same day at 9:00 p. m. He got inside the piers this time and has been there ever since, and as we go to press he is still there.

It seems that officials of the company owning the best boat had telephoned the Charlevoix const guard station at an earlier date inquiring about the possibilities of a boat 100 feet longer and with 9 feet more beam, but drawing around fourteen feet of water entering the harbor, and they were told that it was not possible on account of the curve in the channel. The company also inquired at East Jordan relative to the depth of water in the channel and were informed that there was fifteen feet. This was the amount the Gen. Mead reported to the engineering department upon completion of her dredging operations here. The captain of the Griffin went according to this report and the rest needs no explanation. The local coast guards have made soundings in the channel since that time and find that the deepest spot is 15 feet 2 inches and the shallowest 14 feet 6 inches. So it is very apparent that our $8,000 appropriation for dredging the channel "went up in smoke."

Various schemes have been tried to release the boat. The steamer Sumac tied a line to the Griffin and tried to tow her out, but without success. The steel barge, Jane, was brought here from Boyne City and around sixty tons of ore was loaded onto her in an effort to lighten the grounded boat, and that failed. The lateat report were that the Griffin was going to unload some of her cargo onto the piers to lighten the ship and she will probably in that manner become released. It seems to us that the general lowering of the lakes

(Continued on page 8)

BASKETBALL MATERIAL LOOKS GOOD

SEVEN 1924 MEN BACK FOR PRACTICE

Only Two Home Games Scheduled So Far—Hall for Games is Big Problem

Looking over the list of available basketball material for this year's squad, one is of the opinion that Charlevoix will have a team of championship caliber for the coming winter. Practice will commence as soon as a floor can be procured and the boys are "on their toes" ready to start the season.

Charlevoix lost four of their first string men by graduation last spring, but even with this loss there is abundant material left for an A-1 squad. Brown, at center, was a last year's letter man and in spite of being new at the game gave a very good account of himself, and, with a year's experience on his shoulders will make things interesting for the opposing teams. Earl Harrington showed up in excellent form last winter and will be at the job again this season. Those fans who saw him in action on the 1924 squad will vouch for his performance this year. Other material from last year's squad include Lyle Beaudin, Harold McMullin, John Kolderhouse, Ardgen Davenport and Hubert McCann, besides a number of new recruits who look promising.

The main problem confronting the athletic committee seems to be that of finding a suitable place for practicing and holding games. In fact that has been a thorn in the side of athletics in Charlevoix for many years past. Last winter the games were held in Hooker's garage and it apparently filled the need from the viewpoint of those witnessing the games. To one from the sidelines can realize the handicap the players have to overcome in playing on a floor that is under regulation size and having rafters over the court. You can't expect the boys to do their practicing and become acquainted with a small floor to go out on a new and strange one and do their best at the game. The condition should be remedied and before any other public improvement contemplated is carried out. The athletic committee have three places under consideration. The Inn garage, the old swimming pool and Hooker's garage. Of all three the old swimming pool seems to be the best adapted for basketball play. Although it is far from town, the ceiling is high and not obstructed with rafters and is large enough to lay out a regulation size court. The Inn garage is also plenty large enough but has rafters and presents a problem when it comes to heating. Nothing definite has been reached on a decision as yet but as soon as a place is available practice will start.

As can be seen by the folluwing schedule it is apparent that few home games have been secured. The reason for this is the fact that teams from out of town refuse to come here and play on a small floor with rafters interferring, and decline on having their men come into a place where their physical wellbeing is endangered by insufficient heat, no dressing room and crowded sidelines. They are perfectly justified in their action and it is certainly a shame that such a

(Continued on Page 8)

OCTOBER GAS TAX TOTALS $826,931 AUTO PLATES OUT

The gasoline tax netted the state $826,931.4 in October, according to a report completed Monday by Charles J. Deland, secretary of state. The yield in September was $56,457 greater, or $883,388

The October returns brought the total net revenue from the 2-cent levy, for the nine months reported, of $8,0000,000 or more, as November sures a yield for the year in excess of $8,0000,0000 or more, as November and December easily should average $600,000.

New license plates for 1926 will go on sale throughout the state Tuesday and after that the weight tax revenues that may be credited to this year presumably will stop. Branches all over the state are supplied with the new tags and, according to Mr. DeLand, it will be up to the local officers to determine whether owners may use the plates immediately. The state will not forbid their use, although the law states they shall be displayed January 1st.

Treat Colds Externally

For sore throat, bronchitis or deep chest colds, rub Vicks VapoRub briskly over throat and chest and cover with warm flannel.

Vicks acts in two ways—both direct: absorbed like a liniment and inhaled as a vapor. A quick relief for the cold troubles of all the family.

VICKS VAPORUB

OVER 21 MILLION JARS USED YEARLY

CORRESPONDENCE

EAST CHANDLER

Mrs. Noah Howard visited friends at Boyne City Friday.

Miss Atta Allen spent Thanksgiving at her home in Traverse City.

Archie Belding of Charlevoix, was in our neighborhood one day recently.

Miss Hazel Kurtz entertained her sister from Detroit, Thanksgiving week.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Hughes and son, Orill, expect to leave for southern Michigan soon, and plan on spending the winter in Jackson or Detroit.

Quite a number of the people on the hill attended the Thanksgiving entertainment and box social given by Miss Adams at the West Chandler school house, Wednesday evening. A good program and a pleasant time were enjoyed by all.

Wear wool garments and keep warm this winter. We are selling them below cost to close out the line. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 47tf.

IRONTON

Oakley Saunders and Glen Allen drove to East Jordan, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Brown and children spent Sunday in East Jordan at the home of Louis Peterson.

Mrs. Lennox from Port Huron, returned to her home Friday, after a two weeks visit with her sister, Mrs. Alexander.

Mr. Hanson returned to Muskegon, Saturday, with the Caywoods. Mrs. Hanson and Paul will join them later.

The Ladies Aid Society met with Mrs. Bird, Wednesday. They will meet with Miss Eva Adams in Charlevoix, December 3, with a potluck dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Saunders, Mrs. Lena Brown and daughter of Charlevoix, and Mrs. King and son spent Thanksgiving day at the Jerry Saunders home.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Caywood of Muskegon, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Hanson for the past week. Mr. Caywood and Mr. Hanson spent some time across the Straits trying to get a deer, but were unsuccessful.

You can afford to wear heavy wool winter garments at the price we are selling them to close out the line. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 47tf.

BARNARD

Is this real winter?

The Grange men met on Monday to help Ed. Gregory, who has been laid up with rheumatism for several weeks.

The Barnard young people will meet for a social gathering at the parsonage in Ellsworth on Friday evening.

Rev. G. DeYounge of Zeeland, Michigan, will preach at the South Barnard Reformed church, Sundny, December 6th.

Miss Jennie Zylstra and Luke Reamsma, were married at Ellsworth last Wednesday, November 25th. Their many friends unite in wishing them many happy years of wedded bliss.

The Ladies' Aid will motor to Boyne City next Wednesday to hold their regulnr meeting with Mrs. Jerome Cole. Of course if the roads get impassable other plans will be made later.

Among Thanksgiving guests we notice Mr. and Mrs. Joe Gornell at Howard Gornell's, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Beattie and Mrs. Bowdish at Clarence Beattie's also Mr. and Mrs. Richnrd Paddock entertained several friends from Charlevoix. Mr. and Mrs. Earl Shnpton and children, spent the dny in Charlevoix.

NORWOOD

Mr. Thorn of Pontiac, visited Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Kirby one day last week.

Mrs. Eva Penrl of Charlevoix, called on several of her Norwood friends Thanksgiving day.

Mr. and Mrs. Vern Whitley motored from Flint, and are visiting at the Holecheck home in Norwood for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Richardson, spent Thnnksgiving with Mr. and Mrs. John McCall and family 'ut Traverse City.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Wagner and family visited Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wagner and Mrs. A. Stafford and family in Charlevoix, lnst week.

Herbert Cnmpbell, Bill nnd Junior Supernaw of Charlevoix, spent last week's school vacation at the Wm. Supernaw farm, where the boys enjoyed a good time.

Mr. and Mrs. Irving Lord entertained about twenty of their friends and relatives last Saturday evening, in honor of Mrs. Lord's brother and family, Robert Santos of Flint, who is visiting here for a few days.

family Thanksgiving dinner served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Stafford. Those present were: Mrs. A. Stafford, mother of the Stafford family, and her daughter, Jessie; Mr. and Mrs. Ted Pearl nnd family and Mrs. Eva Pearl all of Charlevoix, and Mr. and Mrs. Ethan Jolliffe nnd three sons, Eber, William and Wesley, and Miss Burges of Atwood.

Mr. and Mrs. Merril Richnrdson and family, were guests 'at their father's birthday party, George Lord, who was 72 years old, which was celebrated at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Colon McKenzie of Charlevoix, last Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. John Resignof and family of Petoskey, nnd also Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Novak of Charlevoix, were present. A delicious potluck dinner was served which included a beautiful birthday cake, and a good time was enjoyed by all.

Guests can not say too much of a

Overcoats, Mnckinnws, sheeplined coats, heavy pants, sweaters, leather vests and caps at cost price to close out the line. Benj. Brown—Adv. 47tf.

CHURCH OF GOD

Wm. Ehlridge, Pastor

Our revival meeting which begins November 22, is well under way and so far is very profitable, being well nttended, with good interest and the best of nttention. The young evangelist which we have secured has proved himself capable of the task of brining the Bible message each Sunday and evening, in an earnest and forceful manner which is so necessary in this day and age in which we are living to convince men of sin, righteousness and judgment. The services have so far proved so enjoyable and beneficial that it has been decided to continue one week longer than first announced, making the date for closing December 13.

Services at 7:30 each evening during the Revival session, with Sunday as usual.

BAPTIST CHURCH

The Evangelistic meetings under the leadership of Pease and Nyburg closed last Sunday evening with splendid results. They are certainty workmen that need not be ashnmed. Mr. Pease's preaching and Mr. Nyburg's work with the children will remain with us for many a day. The meetings were continued nnder the leadership of the pastor Tuesday, Wednesday Thursday evenings.

The pastor will preach Sunday morning nnd evening and the ordinance of Baptism will be administered in the evening service.

The Ladies' Aid will meet with Mrs. Hamlin on Petoskey avenue, Decemher 8th.

A hearty welcome to all who choose to worship with us.

LIBRARY NOTES

New books recently placed in circuation:

Encyclopaedia of Religion and Ethics, 12 Vol. by James Hastings.

Studies in Scripture, 6 Vol. by Internatinoal Bible Students Association. Presented by Mrs. C. D. Swinton.

Man Nobody Knew, by Bruce Barton.

Best Sermons of 1925, edited by Joseph Fort Newton.

Ariel, Life of Shelly, by Andres Maurois.

Collector's Luck, by Alice Carrick. Gift from Mrs. E. L. Dawson.

Next to Nothing House, Alice Carrick, gift from Mrs. Dawson.

1700 Miles in Open Bonts, by Cecil Foster, Captain of the British steamship Trevessa wrecked in June, 1923, in the Indinn ocean tells the story of the voyage of her bonts to safety.

Grass, by Merian C. Cooper. In this book Mr. Cooper presents the migration of the Bnktyari tribe across terrible mountains and rivers of Persia.

Professor's House, by Willa Cather.

The Divine Lady, by E. Barrington.

Glorious Apollo, by E. Barrintgon.

Wild Geese, by Martha Ostenso. This novel chosen from 1,389 manucripts won for its author the $13,500 prize.

Housing Live Stock

Three classes of live stock which need to be housed with special care in the Northwest states are the young pigs, young calves and the milk cow. A good stock barn should be dry, reasonably warm with a uniform temperature, well lighted, well ventilated, and sanitary.

Importance of Boar

It is important to keep in mind the fact that the boar is just as important as the sow, for the brood sow can only farrow a certain number of pigs during a year or life, while the boar will probably sire hundreds. Especially is this true in a large herd, and the condition in which the boar is kept, especially during the breeding season, will have a very important bearing on any breeder's success in the production of pork or breeding swine.

Last minute orders for Christmas Greeting Cards are hard to fill. Order early from our exclusive line, plain or engraved. The Courier has just the card you want.—Adv. 47t4.

Christian Science Society

Sunday services 11:45 a. m., subject, God the Only Cause and Creator.

Sunday school, 12:00.

Wednesday evening service, 7:45 p. m.

Reading room open Tuesday and Saturday, 3:00 to 5:00 p. m.

The public is cordially invited to use our reading room and attend the

ALL OUT OF SORTS?

So Was This Charlevoix Women Who Tells Her Experience.

All too often women accept their pains and aches as natural to their sex. They fail to realize that wenk kidneys are often to hlame for that backache, those headaches, dizzy spells and thnt tired feeling. Thousands have found new health nnd strength by helping the weakened kidneys with Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic. This Charlevoix case is one of many:

Mrs. H. H. Fales, 110 Robinson street, says: "I had a dull nche through the small of my back and when I tried to do anything that required stooping, cutting pnins darted across my kidneys. Then as time passed, my eyes were blurred with little specks. At first my kidneys were weak nnd then they became sluggish. Two boxes of Donn's Pills were all I needed to rid me of the trouble."

60c, at nll dealers. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

For all the news, read the Courier.

INTERESTING BITS OF INFORMATION CLIPPED FROM OUR EXCHANGES

A fine of $154 has been imposed on a man for defrauding a Michignn country hotel. What did the rascal do? Leave his room without carrying away the wash bowl and pitcher?

For captain of the All-American burglar's team for 1926, we nominate the one who took the street clothes of a football coach while the latter was training a squad at Kalamazoo.

"If there were no automobiles, the young people would walk to church," declares an old lady at Grand Rapids. Ah, yes, but something makes us think that there are automobiles!

California gave Michigan its first rainbow trout; back in 1898, and now wants some of them returned. The western state can't bear to think that only Michigan sportsmen can reach the end of the rainbow.

That delicious odor emanating from the oven comes from the beef roast that was ordered by the woman whose husband snid, "never mind about ordering a beef roast, Old Jack Robinson has promised to send me a haunch of vension."

A Jackson womnn relates that her husband got out of bed one night in his sleep, got his unloaded gun, and hunted deer all over the house with it. It is added that he didn't exceed his quotn, any more than if he hnd been in the woods.

After a court case at Graad Rapids had been adjourned 11 times, the two men concerned effected a reconciliation and the case was dismissed. It is these unforeseen accidents that mnke a lawyer's work so irregular and his income so uncertain.

Painters working on the insido of a large tank nt Midland beeame intoxicated on the benzine fumes arising from the paint they used. The problem is getting too complex. How is a fellow going to step up to the bar and order nnother round of large tanks to paint?

When a young mnn at Escanaba who had "picked up" two girls for a ride stopped at a store to buy them some pop, and returned to find they had stolen his car, he had them arrested. Will giris never heed the wnrning to be careful whom they permit to pick them up?

McCools's Velvet Ice Crenm now on sale at the Creamery Building, 105 Clinton Street.—Adv. 45tf.

Look Out!

Look for the picture of the Quaker on every package of oats you get. That's the only way to get the "Quaker flavor" —the old Scotch flavor—that you want

WHAT you want in oats is flavor. Everything else takes second place. Oats originally a Scotch dish must have true Scotch flavor to be at its best—real "Quaker" flavor.

Nobody has yet succeeded in imitating Quaker flavor. That enticing and toasty Scotch tang of the Quaker brand.

People who ordinarily don't take to oats, find delight in that unique flavor. Once you taste it, you are spoiled for ordinary oats. So when asked to "try" a substitute, say "NO."

That flavor is not the result of guesswork but of certain Quaker milling processes applied to the finest, plumpest oats that grow. Some 50 years were spent in perfecting it.

Quick Quaker cooks in 3 to 5 minutes. It makes the finest, the most savory and quickest of hot breakfasts.

Due to Quaker milling methods, it supplies, too, the "roughage" you need to make laxatives seldom necessary.

2 Kinds The Quaker Oats you have always known and Quick Quaker—Cooks in 3 to 5 minutes.

The Southland

THE SCENIC ROUTE to Florida

Daily train through the Picturesque Cumberland and Blue Ridge Mountains by Daylight.

Through sleepers Grand Rapids to St. Petersburg, serving Tarpon Springs, Clearwater, Belleair.

Observation-Club Car, sleeping cars, dining car and coaches.

Lv. Grand Rapids 6:45 p. m. daily
Lv. Ft. Wayne 11:50 p. m. daily

Passengers for Tampa may transfer enroute into Tampa sleepers on same train. Excellent service to Jacksonville and all Central Lake Region and West Coast Resorts.

Via Cincinnati and the L. & N. R. R.

For Tickets Apply to Local Agents, or Address A. E. Butin, Div. Pass. Agent Pennsylvania Bldg., Grand Rapids

(C)

Pennsylvania Railroad

Coal Prices

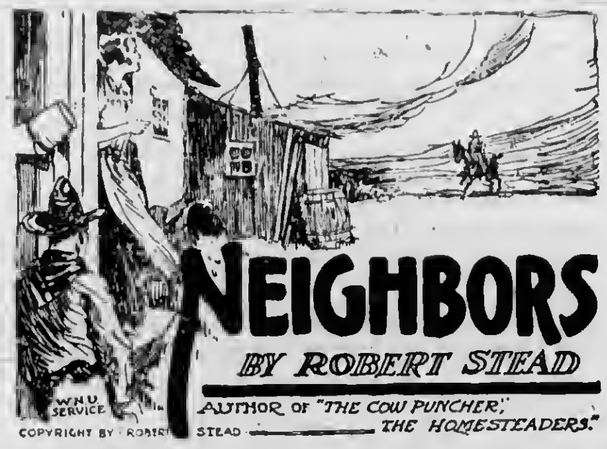
Advancing Rapidly

due to car shortage.

Better get your coal as our supply is limited.

Charlevoix-Co-Operative Assn.

Are You a Courier subscriber? If not, Why not



CHAPTER X—Continued

CHAPTER XII

Breaking the news to Jack and Marjorie was no easy task, but we got through it some way. Jack and his sister had an unhappy hour over it, but Jean was adamant in her decision. There was to be no marriage, so far as she was concerned. It was out of the question.

"You are passing up as decent a chap as ever lived," Jack told her, "on a chance of Spoof, and you don't know that he even cares for you. Perhaps Spoof's affections are already fixed. Have you thought of that?"

"Thought of it! I've lain awake nights, with burning eyes, and thought of it. But what can I do? I can't ask him."

"You could marry Frank, like a sensible girl."

"I only wish I could. But it is out of the question."

And with that the matter had to stand. Jean doubled her energies in helping Marjorie prepare for the great event, and while she tried always to greet me with a smile I more than once surprised a tear stealing unbidden down her cheek. I reflected that if I was suffering, Jean was suffering, too, but there was no comfort in that. I didn't want Jean to suffer. And why she should wring her heart over me, and yet refuse to marry me, was a twist in her nature beyond my power of comprehension.

Spoof took the news with genuine or well-feigned surprise. We merely explained that the wedding was not to be a double one after all; that Jean and I had reconsidered matters, but Jack and Marjorie would be married as arranged.

"I say, I'm sorry to hear that—I mean about you and Jean. I presume it is only a postponement?" But we gave him no answer to that question, and Spoof, of course, did not press it.

Christmas day dawned bright and cold, with a whip of northwest wind and a skiff of loose snow sifting across the frozen prairies. I found myself lying awake in the morning, thinking of Jean, and of all I had hoped that day would mean to me. This was the dream that was gone; the picture I had had to tear out of my heart, only it would not stay gone; it plagued me in my sleep, it haunted me in every silent moment of the day. That Jean should be so strong, so set, so immovable, and, as it seemed to me, so unreasonable, in spite of all her delicate wistfulness and strange uncommunicativeness of spirit—that was a side of Jean's character which all the years of our childhood and youth had not revealed to me. . . . I had not reopened my suit. I had accepted her decision. But the old picture would come back, and this Christmas morning as it swam before my eyes it stirred within me an immeasurable poignancy of spirit.

"Merry Christmas!" shouted Marjorie, poking her head into my room. Marjorie was going through a time of strangely mixed emotions. Her heart was light on her own account and heavy on mine, and in these days she found the bridge between laughter and tears an extremely narrow one. Perhaps it was for that reason that her shout of "Merry Christmas!" ended in something like a sob, and, with a little rush, she plunged onto my bed and threw her arms about me; she wrapped them around my neck and shoulders and drew my face to hers. And as her cheek lay against mine a little warm trickle of moisture wended its way down, upon, and across my lips, and I felt her frame tremble as it rested near me.

"Not crying, Marjorie; not crying on this of all mornings!" I exclaimed, although my own throat was full. "Not crying, dear—on my account?"

To that question she snuggled closer, and after a little I heard her whispering in my ear. "It will come all right in time, brother mine," she said; "all right in time. I can't think—I can't believe—anything else. Don't you feel—don't you know—that it will?" And so to soothe her, and that her greatest day might not be spoiled, I said I knew it would come all right in time, but there was a stone between my lungs and a band of iron about my chest.

Marjorie kissed me on the lips, then raised her face and dried her eyes. Suddenly she sprang to her feet, and I could not but admit how very good she was to look upon. Her dark hair hung loose about her shoulders; she allowed herself no curl-paper nonsense, and indeed no device could have added to the beauty of her waving locks. She was still in her nightdress, although she had drawn on something warm about her feet, and, like the good wife she was always to be, she had started the fire—a duty which I admitted properly fell to the man of the house. Perhaps it is because a man should start the fire that he so greatly enjoys having his wife do it. I could hear the poplar sticks crackling as I lay watching her through moist and dreamy eyes. She was good to look upon; so different from Jean, but still so good!

"Hustle up, Frank," she cried, with a sudden return to her normal manner. "We have a lot to do today."

It was not until after our midday meal that I went over to Twenty-two. Jean was in her room, but I mustered the spirit to chaff Jack with such a mingling of good wishes and humorous sallies as my brain could command, and we finished the whole with an impromptu sparring match in the middle of the kitchen floor.

"Watch your beak!" I commanded, "or I'll send you to the minister with a busted mug," and I swung on him with enthusiasm. But Jack was handy with his fists, and something thumped in my eye like a piledriver.

"Aha!" said he. "The first of the wedding decorations. Let's make it a pair."

But at that moment Jean came out, looking so radiantly sorrowful, if one can look that way, that the glory of Marjorie seemed as the glory of one of the lesser planets against the sun. She came to me with an outstretched hand.

"Merry Christmas, Frank," she said, looking me squarely in the face. "Why, what has happened to your eye?"

"I was just practicing," said Jack, "and I want to exhibit this specimen of my handiwork to Marjorie before we are married. It is as well that she should understand—"

But Jean was gone in quest of butter, with which she rubbed my swelling eye, and the caress of her fingers was worth the punch it had cost.

It was now time to hitch the oxen to the rough sleigh or jumper which Jack and I had built. Into this the four of us could with some difficulty be packed, and as we reckoned, it would take at least an hour for Buck and Bright to break trail to Spoof's, we loaded up and started on our journey at a little before two. Spoof had insisted that the ceremony should take place at his house, if for no other reason that there might be a honeymoon trip as far as from Two to Fourteen, and the minister was expected at three.

As the snow-clad prairie crept by to the leisurely plodding of Buck and Bright the mound which marked Spoof's house and stable gradually defined itself against the bright gray background of the December afternoon. Spoof had been on the lookout, and while our oxen were still pulling and blowing at a considerable distance from the shack we saw him coming over the drifts with his great, rapid, English stride. He was beside us in a few minutes, his wind-tanned face wreathed in smiles, his white teeth gleaming under a short, sandy mustache to which of late he had been giving some encouragement.

"Merry Christmas!" he cried. "The merriest ever, ever!" He held out both arms, and we all shook hands at once, and I suspect that the bride-elect pressed a chaste kiss upon his cheek. But Jack, as lawful owner, could afford to be generous. Jean took no such liberty. That would have been different.

The inside of Spoof's shack was always an example of orderly overcrowding. It was full of useless furniture, inappropriate clothing, firearms, saddles and bridles, cartridge belts, smoker's equipment, tobacco tins, photographs, magazines, and an endless assortment of miscellaneous knickknacks, all carefully placed and tended. Even when Spoof crumpled it alone it was something of a mystery where he found space for himself in the midst of his possessions. But now Jean and Marjorie and Jack and I were crowded in as well, only to find a number of others already there.

Our eyes had not yet become accustomed to the semi-twilight of the interior when a familiar voice saluted us. "Merry Christmas, ev'rybody," it said. "Didn't I warn you'se what 'ud happen?"

It was Jake. He was sitting perched like a bird on the wood-box where he could expectorate with convenience into the ashpan of the stove. We dragged him into the center of the floor, and in the melee that followed Jake lost his footing and at least three of us were precipitated with him.

"Oh, save my husband, save my husband!" cried Bella Donna, in mock alarm, while Spoof gravely remarked that perhaps the cogitation nut had come loose.

"I am the minister," said a straight, clean-looking young man, when the uproar over Jake had subsided. "My name is Locke. This is our good friend Reddy; pardon me, by the way, Reddy, what—what is your real name? I should know it for introduction purposes."

"I left it down East," said the individual addressed as Reddy, a slight, boyish-looking figure with a shock of curroty hair.

"Well, Reddy it is, then," said the minister, and we shook hands all around. "Reddy is an important personage in our town," Mr. Locke continued, "in a sense he is my chief competitor. He runs the village pool room, and I am afraid, draws bigger crowds than I do Wednesday nights, and perhaps on Sundays, too—behind the blinds."

"Not guilty," pleaded Reddy. "There are no blinds on the shop."

"I believe," said the minister, generously, "that Reddy's competition is of a very honorable kind, and his presence here today is proof of his bigness of heart. As it was not convenient for his customers to come to him, he has come to his customers. He brings with him, I believe, a small tray of plain gold bands and a blank marriage license or two. I prevailed upon him to bring two or three extra licenses; it is always well to be prepared for emergencies." . . .

I looked at Spoof and found him looking at me, and then I looked at Jean and found her looking at the floor, and a faint flush of color slowly spread about her face. The flat reception of the minister's pleasantry was relieved by Jake, who declared in favor of a total embargo on the marriage license business.

"At least it should take as long to get married as to prove up on a homestead," Jake remarked, "an' most fellows have a lucid interval once in three years."

When the formalities about the license were completed the minister had Jack and Marjorie stand together in the center of the shack, and spoke the few simple words that made them man and wife under the law. We paid them the usual huckneyed compliments, and then stood around looking rather sheepish and wondering what to do next, until Reddy produced a box of chocolates and presented it to the bride. It was a simple thing, but in some way it loosed our tongues, and presently we were all laughing and wishing each other Merry Christmas.

By this time the sun had set on the short December day, and night was drawing her gray curtains across the plains. I paid for the license on Jack's behalf and gave the change to the minister, and we were about to thank Spoof and say good-by to the little company when they announced in concert that they were coming over to Fourteen. In vain we protested that the roads were bad, that the night was settling down, that the sky looked like a storm. All these perfectly good reasons why they should stay at home were converted into arguments why they should come. Spoof, as host, yoked up the oxen and insisted that he would drive the bridal party; our jumper would carry five as well as four. "It was built for two," he argued, "so one more will make no difference."

Finding that there was nothing else for it we accepted the inevitable and crowded in. When we were well under way our attention was suddenly arrested by a commotion in the rear. It was Jake with the "flying ants," and with Bella Donna and the minister and Reddy in his cutter. He was standing up, waving the loose ends of the reins about his head, and imprecating his horses into a gallop. In a moment he was upon us.

"Out o' the way, you old married people," he shouted. "I don't blame you fer goin' slow, but don' hold up the percession."

But Spoof had no intention that the bride and groom should surrender the place of honor. With many strange

(Continued on Page 6)

FROM OFFICE BOY TO GENERAL MGR.

Salary Increase Comes With Promotion

Chicago, Sept. 29—After a careful survey of the entire labor situation extending from office boy to president, indications are that positions showing increases in salaries require experienced help.

Consulting the president of one of our largest industries, the writer inquired regarding the rapid success of a certain young man who had become general manager and who a few years ago was but office boy; his answer was, Brown started as office boy, the lowest salaried position in our office, he was ambitious and managed to purchase a typewriter on small monthly payments and after three weeks of practice at home he was promoted to bill clerk, which position gave him knowledge of the selling price of all merchandise. His next advance was that of typist, which taught him the numerous forms of letter-writing and enabled him to hold a stenographic position, giving him complete knowledge of letter-writing. He was then made secretary, bringing him into contact with all business details and qualified him for the general manager's office at ten thousand per year.

The same opportunity awaits every young man and women. Education or age have nothing to do with operating so simple a machine as the typewriter. We are informed that a great piece of benevolent work is being carried on by a large Chicago mail order house in furnishing typewriters to people worthy of credit, by selling on small monthly installments, so low as to average about eight cents per day and actually teaching their customers how to use and operate any typewriter in about three week's time. You can get other information by writing the International Typewriter Exchange, 184 W. Lake Street, Chicago, Illinois.

ORDER YOUR
Christmas Cards
From an Exclusive Lot of Samples

We have a manufacturer's entire line of samples from which you can select one to suit your taste. Eight different styles of engraved sentiments are shown with most samples and we are sure to be able to match your name plate, engraving of sentiments on cards being done after order is placed. Bring in your plate and let us show you these exclusive samples and idea.

We sell only one order from each sample

The Charlevoix Courier
"The Home of Good Printing"

AUCTION SALE

The undersigned will sell at public auction at his farm, located 7 miles from Charlevoix and 4 miles from Horton Bay on the Boyne City road, on

Friday, December 4

Commencing at 10:00 o'clock, the following described property:

Gelding, 10 yrs. old, wt. 1200
Gelding, 11 yrs. old, wt. 1350
Gelding, 11 yrs. old, wt. 1500
Mare, 11 yrs. old, wt. 1200
Guernsey Cow, 6 yrs. old, fresh in December 11
Guernsey Cow, 7 yrs. old, fresh Mar. 17
Guernsey Cow, 6 yrs. old, fresh Mar. 8
Holstein Cow, 8 yrs. old, fresh Feb. 8
Black Cow, 5 yrs. old, fresh Feb. 13
Red Cow, 6 yrs. old, fresh Mar. 2
2 Spring Heifer Calves
Registered Brood Sow
25 Chickens 12 Turkeys
Fordson Tractor and equipment
Ford Car
2 Wagons, one good as new with box
2-Horse Corn Planter
Three 2-Horse Cultivators
Three 1-Horse Cultivators
3-Spring tooth Harrows
Spike-tooth Harrow
2 Hay Rakes
Fanning Mill and Screens
Feed Grinder
Set of Horse Clippers
2 Sets Work Harness
Sprayer Set Sleighs
Bean Puller Milwaukee Binder
Superior Grain Drill
2 Cream Seperators
1 1-2 H. P. Gas Engine and Jack
Buzz Frame and Saw
24 ft. 6 inch Endless Belt
Little Red Hen Incubator and Brooder
Bean Picker
7 Tons Baled Hay 2 Tons Oat Straw
Ton Bean Straw
75 Shocks Corn, quantity Fodder
100 Bushels Oats Quantity Ground Oats
Range Writing Desk
Singer Sewing Machine
Kitchen Cabinet Music Cabinet
Parlor Set Rocking Chair
Quantity of Kitchen Chairs
2 Beds and Mattresses
Quantity of Canned Goods
Quantity of Rugs 3 Dressers
Oil Stove and Oven
And other articles too numerous too mention

FREE LUNCH AT NOON

TERMS OF SALE

All sums of $10.00 or under, cash; all sums over $10.00, 7 months time will be given on good, endorsed, bankable paper bearing interest at 7 per cent, payable at the Charlevoix County Bank. 5 per cent off for cash on all sums over $10.00. No goods to be removed until terms of sale are complied with and all settlements to be made on day of sale.

A. J. WINNICK, Prop.

H. J. TIMMER, Clerk
ROBT. BRIDGE, Note Clerk

W. E. BYERS,
Auctioneer.

Hatching Dollars

That dollar you have contains a fortune just as surely as an egg contains a bird. It takes time to bring forth both.

This Bank is the incubator which will hatch that dollar. It has done it for hundreds. It can do it for you.

On December 1st this bank paid interest to hundreds of Savings Depositors. We would like many more to join this throng of thrifty savers.

Deposits made up to and including December 12th, will receive interest from December 1st.

Charlevoix State Savings Bank

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

W. S. Richardson, President.
A. D. Crimmins, Vice President.
Archie Livingston, Cashier.
G. W. Richardson, Asst. Cashier.

The CHARLEVOIX COURIER
Issued every Wednesday at
CHARLEVOIX - MICHIGAN

DuBois & Usher, Publishers
A. J. Usher, Editor and Business Mgr.
Courier Building Van Pelt Place

Entered at the Post Office in Charlevoix, Mich., as second class matter.

Member Michigan Press Ass'n.

Advertising Rates.

For advertising rates apply for schedule.

Notices of church or lodge socials and entertainments, where admission is charged, regular rates.

Obituary poetry, regular rates.

Card of Thanks, 25 cents.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

One copy, one year.....$2.00
One copy, six months.....$1.00
One copy, three months.....60

REAL ESTATE BONDS

The Federal Bond & Mortgage Company, through F. J. Mahler, treasurer, has just issued a bulletin stating among other things, that their business for the months of August, September and October just past have been three of the largest in their industry. "The reason for this," they state, "is due to the fact, that investors are more and more turning to the conservative investments—securities in which the stability has been thoroughly established by both time and experience. Today more than ever before people are placing their faith in first mortgage real estate bonds offered by the leading and well established houses. Investors know that their funds are not only safe in this type of securities but that they carry a higher yield than any other security of like character. The American investor today realizes that accumulating funds is not a matter of luck, but a matter of systematic investing in the sound and substantial types of securities. For this reason the first mortgage real estate bonds carrying the recommendation of reliable houses are the accepted and most popular form of security among investors everywhere today."

PLANTING DOLLARS FOR A SAFE HARVEST

During recent years the farmer, who had formerly devoted all his land and energies to one crop, learned the value of diversified farming. Farmers in the wheat-belt particularly, confronted in the past by discouraging crop failures or low prices, have recognized the folly of depending solely upon a single crop. Acreage reduction, rotation and diversification have had much to do with the present prosperity of agriculture. The wise farmer now plants several crops. In the case of the failure of wheat or a poor market on corn, his losses will be offset by his profits on the entire harvest. In line, the farmer who is prospering is making every effort to reduce the element of uncertainty in his speculation.

The man who intends to plant the dollar seeds of his income in investments will do well to follow the plan of the farmer, and avoid the error that he has learned to avoid. To hazard one's fortune or small savings in one industry, railroad or utility company is neither wise nor necessary. No matter what evidence a security gives of being thoroughly sound, it may be unwise to invest the greater part of one's funds in it, since in this world of floods, fires and wars no investment is absolutely safe. The investor who places his surplus funds in a wide number of different types and classes of securities, so that he will have a variety of holdings none of which will be subject to the same possible hazards, is taking a logical step toward the preservation of his principal sum.

The end of diversification in investing is a sensible attempt to minimize the element of risk. It is just as necessary to profitable and sound investing as it is to profitable farming. And it is just as possible for the man with $1,000 to invest as it is for the man who can invest $100,000.

SPREADING OWNERSHIP IN ELECTRIC COMPANIES

During the first half of 1925 electric light and power companies in the United States sold more than 1,929,500 shares of stock to their employees and customers. These shares, valued at $185,130,000, accounted for more than 23 per cent of all the electric utilities' financing during that period.

Today the securities of electric light and power companies are in the hands of approximately 2,750,000 investors. A great number of these, through their ownership of preferred and common stock, are actually partners in this great business. This widening spread in the ownership of the electric utilities among the actual users of light and power has a dollar-and-cents value for the present and prospective bondholders in these companies. Not only does this spreading partnership increase the assets of the individual enterprise and hence the security of the bonds, but it also tends to lessen the possibilities of detrimental legislation and mismanagement, and to force wider and more enlightening publicity as to financial achievements. The wider corporations are spread in their ownership the stronger they are likely to be in the good will of the public. And public relations, especially in a business regulated by the public, often determine the success or failure of an enterprise.

Before becoming a creditor of any corporation through the purchase of bonds the investor should be certain that there is a substantial amount of dividend-paying stock junior to his securities to assume the shocks of the business. And he should seek out, if possible, those corporations whose owners are actual customers and employees, since their interest in the business is more likely to parallel his own.

AT THE MOVIES

"Crimson Runner" is Stirring Love Drama

Those who like their dramas served with action bubbling over on every side and vivacity sparkling all about have but to go to the Palace Theatre on Tuesday and Wednesday, December 8 and 9 to have their appetites in this direction fully and pleasingly satisfied.

"The Crimson Runner," featuring Priscilla Dean, is a daring, vital story of a young Apache girl whom poverty and oppression turned into a female Robin Hood, who, under a clever disguise and with the aid of her crafty henchmen, robbed the rich that the poor might eat.

"Hunchback" to Show Here At Last

Arrangements have at last been effected for a local showing of the gigantic motion picture classic, "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" December 10 and 11 at the Palace Theatre, for the benefit of the county Normal class.

It is claimed that an amount exceeding $1,500,000 was spent on the production and that 3,500 people take part in the great mob scenes before Notre Dame, where Lon Chaney, who is generally conceded to be the world's greatest character actor, plays the part of "Quasimodo," the mishappened bell ringer of the magnificent cathedral.

His sensational portrayal of this queer creature of the towers has been no less amazing to reviewers who have witnessed the production than the superb depiction of reality obtained in every detail of the picture by the members of the big supporting cast numbering 75 principals, among whom are Patsy Ruth Miller, Ernest Torrence, Brandon Hurst, Tully Marshal, Nigel de Bruiller and Winnifred Bryson, all of them being known to stage and screen. The production in its film form has been endorsed by the clergy of all denominations.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH
Rev. B. G. Mattson, Pastor

Church services at 10:00 a. m. with sermon by the pastor and music by the vested choir. Mrs. A. J. Steller organist and choir leader.

Sunday school at 12.00 m.

Young peoples meeting at 6:00.

Evening service at 7:00. The sermon subjects aim to present a religion adapted to the life of today, but founded on the ageless teaching of the gospel.

The pastor preaches at the Ironton church at 2:30 p. m. standard time.

WIRING SYSTEM
for lifetime
WOOD BROTHERS
—Adv. 43tf.

Arrest Airplane Thieves

More troubles for the state policeman. A recent arrest in Saginaw county, Michigan, proved to members of the Michigan State Police, that they have another job, which in the natural course of events may grow into a real one. This new job is watching out for airplane thieves.

Two men were arrested by Lieut Joseph Kearney and Trooper Bruce McGlone, of the Saginaw detachment, charged with stealing an airplane in Detroit. They confessed to y had stolen the plane from a field in Detroit and had piloted it to Saginaw, where trouble developed and they were forced to descend to make repairs.

Both men were convicted in court and sentenced to from six months to five years in Ionia Reformatory.

LAWLESS ELEMENT ORGANIZES

Because of the achievements of the new Rhode Island State Police in closing up gambling places and disorderly road houses, as well as breaking up the whisky-smuggling business, strong opposition to continuance of the force is predicted at the coming session of the legislature. Stroog political forces are reported as against the troopers.

STATE FAIR POLICED

By order of Governor Alex. J. Groesbeck, a post of State Police has been established at the State Fair grounds in Detroit. The State Fair buildings now house a large number of booze-cars confiscated in the many seizures of smuggled liquor about Detroit.

Many a chap who thought he loved at first sight has been entirely cured when he took another look.

It is estimated that cusswords have been added to our language by every alarm clock.

Carter's Underwear

For Ladies

Warmth without weight. Comfortable, trim and close fitting.

Your next buy should be Carter's

$1.00 and up.

M. A. Levinson & Co.

Inviting You to Compare

Step into our store—it only takes a few minutes! See these Wonderful Overcoat Values, examine them critically—thoroughly, see your yourself that the values we offer at our low prices are all wool, newest models at many dollars less than quality cost elsewhere.

Comparison cost you nothing

$20--22.50 $25--27.50 $30

F. E. CARTIER, Tailor and Cleaner

PHONE 248

METHODIST CHURCH

"The Sacrament,"—10:30 a. m. next Sunday. At this service there will be baptism and church receptions. Every member of the church present at the service is the church aim.

"The Christian Overcoming Adverse Circumstances," Sunday school lesson topic next Sunday.

All young people not otherwise affiliated with a young peoples society are urged to attend the Epworth League service at 6:00 p. m.

Be a "Happy Sunday Nighter" by attending the seven o'clock preaching service next Sunday evening.

McCools's Velvet Ice Cream now on sale at the Creamery Building, 105 Clinton street.—Adv. 45tf.

FELLOWSHIP SUPPER AT CONG. CHURCH

Aim to Have Such Meetings Once Each Month

The members and friends of the Congergational church are invited to attend a fellowship supper at the church, Thursday evening, November 3rd, at six o'clock.

It is hoped to have a "church night" once a month at which time several different organizations of the church will hold meetings and all will come together at the supper table for refreshments, after which a short spiritual service will be held. Each individual is invited to bring plate, cup, table silver and a contribution for the supper.

All activities will close in ample time for every one to attend the number of the lecture course, to be given that night.

Christmas greeting cards, exclusive line to select from, no duplicates. Engraved or plain. Call at the Courier office and look the line over. —Adv. 47-t4.

CHRISTMAS SEALS ARE NOW ON SALE

Let Everyone Do Their share to Drive Out Disease

The need of diminishing tuberculosis in the United States and the state of Michigan as a whole, where there are an unusually large number of deaths from the disease, is recognized generally.

The annual sale of Christmas seals commenced with Thanksgiving day, and everyone interested in the drive for funds will have an opportunity to help in a large or small way, in the effort to stamp out the tuberculosis scourge.

In a letter to Thos. J. Werle, executive secretary of the Michigan Tuberculosis association, Governor Alex. J. Groesbeck commends the effort and suggest that Sunday, November 29, be set apart for the consideration of the prevalence of tuberculosis in all churches of the state.

Here's a Chance To Save

We are going to close out our entire line of heavy winter

Overcoats
Mackinaws
Sheep-lined coats
Heavy pants
Sweaters
Caps and
Leather Vests

We want to discontinue the line of heavy winter garments and to sell what we have in stock we will make you prices that will startle you. Price will be no consideration with us—we want to and will sell the full line. The stock is not shelf-worn nor old, but the very line we bought for the fall and winter trade. Call and see the line yourself—then you will fully realize the slash we have made in prices and buy.

Benj. Brown Auto Sales

Phone 60

Order your
CUT FLOWERS
Early For
All Occasions
HILLCREST GARDENS
A. Edwards
Phone 18.

THE OLDEST BANK IN CHARLEVOIX COUNTY
FORTY-FIRST YEAR IN BUSINESS

1884 1925

OVER $6600.00

Interest paid on Savings Book Accounts for six months ending December First.

Interest from December First on all deposits made on or before December Tenth.

START SAVING TODAY

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY BANK
CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN
Nicholls, Buttars & Bridge, Bankers
THE BANK ON THE CORNER

LOCAL NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

Get the Habit—Read the Courier

WHY SOME ARE DOWN AND SOME ARE HIGH

One sadly sees the setting sun
And views his day's work with a sigh.
The other drops his tools to run
Nor cares how little he has done.
And people still go asking why
Some men are down, and some are high.

Regular communication of Charlevoix Lodge, No. 282, F. & A. M., Tuesday evening, December 9th. Election of officers.

Do your Christmas mailing early.

Only nineteen more shopping days before Christmas.

James Gordon of St. James was in the city last Sunday.

Emerson Hull of St. Louis, Mo., is in this city this week visiting his family.

Mr. and Mrs. John Burns are now located in their new home at 203 Grant street.

Mrs. Wm. Shaw, Sr. has been quite ill at her home in this city for the past week.

R. L. Lewis was a business visitor in Harbor Springs on Saturay morning of last week.

Wilbur Martin of St. James was n business visitor in Charlevoix on Friday of last week.

Guy Olney of Big Rapids, spent last week end in the city visiting relatives and friends.

Bert Wilbur of Chicago, spent Thanksgiving here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Wilbur.

W. A. Carey and wife of Detroit, spent Thanksgiving with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carey.

Benj. Brown made a business trip to Detroit on Friday of last week, returning the following Sunday.

Miss Lillian Kaye, teacher in the local high school, spent last week visiting friends at Tawas, Michigan.

A number of Charlevoix young people attended a dancing party at Harbor Springs last Saturday evening.

Fons Sendenberg of St. James, was a business visitor in the city on Tuesday, returning home Wednesday.

Robert Krulik, repair man for the Standard Oil company in this district, was in the city last week end on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Glossinger of Petoskey, spent Thanksgiving Day in the city visiting relatives and friends.

Miss Isabell Mitchell left last Saturday for Grand Rapids, where she will spend some time visiting friends and relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Snider and family left last Saturday for Grand Rapids, where they will spend the winter months.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Webster were Petoskey visitors last Saturday, Mrs. Webster and son spending the week end in that city.

Mrs. Mike McCann of St. James, spent Thanksgiving and the week end in this city at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Miller

Capt. Vandenberg of Grand Haven, Michigan, was in the city on Tuesday of this week on his way to his home at St. James.

Earl A. Young, wife and children left Tuesday of this week for Detroit, where Mr. Young has been called on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Ogden and daughters of this city, drove to Boyne City on Thanksgiving day and visited Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Reber.

Bert Carey of Detroit, was in the city from Thursday until Saturday visiting at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Carey.

The Ladies's Aid of the Baptist church will meet next Wednesday, December 9th, at the home of Mrs. Hamlin on Petoskey avenue.

S. M. Rose of this city purchased a lot at Boulder Park last week before leaving for Florida, and states that he will build there in the spring.

William Finucan, Jr., of Grand Rapids, spent Thanksgiving and the week end in the city at the home of his mother, Mrs. Wm. Finucan, Sr.

George Kelderhouse is in charge of the local coast guard station since the retirement of Capt. F. C. Partridge on November 16th.

Charles and Jack Roe, who are working in Charlevoix, with their pile driving outfit, spent the week end at their home in Harbor Springs.

Word was received at this office on Tuesday that Mr. and Mrs. George Brown nnd son, Ira, are now in Detroit and nicely settled for the winter.

Harold McCann of this city drove his car to White Lake, Wednesday morning, where he expects to leave the car and return with his boat to fish.

Harold Meggison and Don McHugh returned last Saturday from Seney, in the upper peninsula, where they have been on a deer hunting trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Mathew Saunders and Mr. and Mrs. Ogden of this city, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sherman of Eveline township.

Mr. and Mrs. S. O. Sorensen returned last Saturday from a three weeks auto trip and vacation visiting friends and relntives out of the state

H. R. Fowler left on Monday of this week for Grand Rapids, where he has been called to serve on the grand jury from Grand Traverse district.

Miss Margerie Swinton, who is attending the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, spent Thanksgiving vacation at the home of her mother in this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy King and two sons, Norman and Willard; spent Thanksgiving day in this city at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Kenneth Usher.

Gordon Parker returned last Saturday from Sault St. Marie, where he has been spending the past two week on business for Booth Fisheries company.

Thomas Russell and sons have completed the stone work on the first of Earl Young's cottages at Boulder Park and have now started on the second.

The Pilgrim Circle of the Congregational Ladies' Aid Society will hold an all-day meeting on Wednesday, December 9th, at the home of Mrs. N. A. Shores.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Corlett and little daughter, Alice, and Miss Amy Bell, all of Cheboygan, spent Thanksgiving and the balance of the week with relatives in Charlevoix.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Faulkner returned last Saturday from Chicago and other southern points, where they have been spending the past two week on a vacation.

A. L. Fitch and Thomas Meggison of Traverse City, returned last week from the upper peninsula, where they had been deer hunting. They brought back a nice buck.

W. J. Weikel returned last Tuesday from Athany, New York, where he has been spending the past ten days visiting at the home of his daughter, Mrs. F. L. Wallace.

Miss Lola Hinshaw, bookkeeper at the Charlevoix State Savings bank, left last Saturday for Chicago, where she will spend the next two weeks visiting relatives and friends.

Mrs. George Lennox of Port Huron, has returned to her home, after spending the past two weeks at the homes of her sisters, Mrs. George Gladys and Mrs. Sam Alexander.

The Rebekah Circle met with Mrs. Alice Gebeau last Friday, November 27th, and will meet Friday afternoon, December 11, with Mrs. Andy McCall, Jr., with a potluck supper.

Mr. and Mrs. Judson Markham returned to their home in this city Tuesday afternoon of this week, after spending the past month at the home of their daughter in Pennsylvania.

Mrs. George T. Allen left Monday for her home in Royal Oak, after spending the week at the home of her mother, Mrs. Roy Ranger She accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Will Ives to Detroit.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Ives left the first of the week, Mrs. Ives going to Gloucester, Mass for a visit with relatives, and Mr. Ives to Detroit. Mrs. Ives will return to Detroit, where they expect to spend the winter months.

Miss Mary McHugh, who is attending school in Traverse City, spent Thanksgiving and the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry McHugh, returning Sunday afternoon on the Greyhound.

Word was received this morning from Mr. and Mrs. George Priest, who are now located at 430-3rd avenue, St. Petersburg, Fla., stating that they are enjoying the fine weather and also very good health.

Bruce Armstrong, who is attending college at Alma, and Miss Phila Armstrong, student at the U. of M. at Ann Arbor, spent Thanksgiving in the city at the home of their parents, Dr. and Mrs. R. B. Armstrong.

The Literary and Sewing Club of the M. E. church will meet at the home of Mrs. James Bogart on Thursday afternoon, December 3rd. All members are urged to be present, as business of importance will be brought up at this time.

Mrs. Blanche Greenman and son, Louis, left Sunday evening for Cheboygan, where they will spend a short time visiting friends before going to Detroit for the winter. They will be joined by her mother, Mrs. Flora Lewis, in the near future.

Word has just been received by Earl A. Young of this city of the death of Sam Levy at his home in Fort Worth, Texas. Mr. Levy has been a summer visitor to this city for the past twenty-five years and lived in Mr. Young's stone house on Park avenue since it was built.

The Odd Fellows will give a dance at the I. O. O. F. hall on Friday, December 4. Members, come and bring your friends. Invitations will extended to non-members.—Adv. 48-tf.

WE MAINTAIN THAT THE NAVY FEEDS 'EM

Floyd Jeffrey Sends Copy of Thanksgiving Menu

The following menu which was sent to us by Floyd Jeffrey, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Jeffrey of State street, who is now at the U. S. Naval Training Station at Great Lakes, Illinois, proves that the "gobs" get more for dinner than time-worn ration of Navy beans.

This is the hill-of-fare served on Thanksgiving day, November 26: Cream of celery soup, ripe olives, sweet pickles, combination salad, roast young turkey, giblet gravy, cranberry sauce, oyster dressing, mashed potatoes, candied sweet potatoes, pumpkin pie, spice cake, oranges, mixed nuts, candy, ice cream, cigars, cigarettes, cafe noir.

We would say a rather appetizing lay-out to set down to, and "Jeff" says the boys certainly did justice to it.

MORE SUPPORT ASKED FOR LYCEUM COURSE

It Will Mean a Bigger and Better One Next Year

We have an excellent lyceum course this season, and we believe it should be heartly supported by all of the citizens of Charlevoix.

This lyceum course besides being a source of entertainment and education for mature people, is of considerable value in bringing the best in the line of lectures and muisc to the pupils in the schools.

It takes money to procure this talent, as it has been the desire of those in charge of the course to get the best that can be secured. If the people of the city support this course, we will be able to have as good or a better course another season.

The number scheduled for Thurs- supported, and we hope that every interested citizen will do his or her part to make it a success.

The number sceduled for Thursday evening, December 3rd, comes here highly recommended and you will miss a treat if you don't attend.

W. E. Parmelee builds storm windows.—Adv. 37-tf.

ON Friday and Saturday
OF THIS WEEK
we will give an 8 1-2 ounce
Bottle of Ketchup
—FOR—
10c
Every Monarch Canned Goods User is a satisfied one. Are you one of them?
Milton Block

Buy your Christmas Presents and Baked Goods at the Christmas Sale
To be held by the M. E. Sewing Club
—AT THE—
Charlevoix Hdw. Co.'s Store
—ON—
Saturday, December 5th

COURIER BARGAIN COLUMN.

Courier Want Advs. are One Cent per word per insertion. Minimum charge is 20 cents per insertion, for anything under 20 words. All Want Advs. are strictly cash in advance except to those who have ledger accounts. Please remember this when sending in your copy.

LOST

LOST—A brown Beaver neck fur. Finder please return to Mrs. R. S. Shapton, phone 1070-f13. —Reward.—47-t2 pd.

FOR SALE—MISCELLANEOUS

FOR SALE—Nice dry block wood. Call Will Mayne, phone 7003-f21. —47-t3.

FOR SALE—Pure-bred mammoth Bronze Turkeys—hens and toms. Phone 7012-f23, Alfred Williams, Route 1, East Jordan, Mich.—48-t2.

FOR SALE — Building material. Save 50 per cent in building. Phone W. S. Shaw Co., No. 75, Boyne City, for prices on lumber (boards and scantling,) steel beams, brick, pipe, pipe fittings and roofing.—40tf0.

FOR RENT—5 room bungalow with inside toilet. Call phone 18.—45tf.

WANTED—MISCELLANEOUS

WANTED—Position by young lady to work by week. What have you? Inquire at the office.—48-t1 pd.

CASH for Dental Gold, Platinum, Silver, Diamonds, magneto points, false teeth, jewelry, and valuables. Mail today. Cash by return mail. Hoke S. & R., Otsego, Mich.—12-tf.

MISCELLANEOUS

FOR INFORMATION regarding Florida land and investments, write Ernest E. Galloway, 845 N. W. 2nd St., Miami, Florida, Licensed Broker.—36-tf.

Blankets for Friday and Saturday
DECEMBER 4th and 5th

$12.00 Wool Blankets for $10.89
$10.00 Wool Blankets for $8.89
$4.50 Fancy Plaids for $3.98
$3.50 Cotton Fleece for $2.98
$2.75 Cotton Fleece for $2.39
$6.50 Bathrobe Blankets for $5.89

A. E. MASON

NEW PALACE THEATRE
ATTRACTIONS FOR THE COMING WEEK

Saturday and Sunday, December 5th and 6th

Margaret Livingston in the "WHEEL." A thrilling adventure of love staked against ronlette and a thoroughbred. Romance spins the "Wheel" of life. Says Sammy, "People are like shop windows—when they're not dressed up, nobody interested." The "Wheel is a play that will interest you.

Also showing a very good comedy, "Court Plaster."

Tuesday and Wednesday, December 8th and 9th

Priscilla Dean in "THE CRIMSON RUNNER." A fiery romantic drama of a young female Robin Hood who tortured the Aristocracy and vexed the police of post War-Vienna. Fire darting from the eyes—a blood-red kerchief about her throat—an unsheathed dagger in her hand—she swept all before her in a mighty gust of hatred and revenge. A startling story interpreted by a brilliant cast.

Also a comedy, "Why Hesitate," and a News Reel. Travel the world with the News Reel.

Thursday and Friday, December 10th and 11th

Lon Chaney in "THE HUNCHBACK OF NOTRE DAME." You have all heard of this wonderful picutre and many have seen it. It shows the emotions of a lifetime crowded into one splendid production. A love tale unfolded amid scenes of lavish splendor. Towering above all others, it stands alone in its superb grandure.

"The Hunchback of Notre Dame" is given for the benfit of the Charlevoix County Normal Class.

Friday and Saturday Specials

Thrifty housewifes are taking advantage of our week end specials and are saving money by so doing. These prices are pared to the bone and are worth looking over.

2 1-2 LBs. GINGER SNAPS for 25c
LARGE BOX OATMEAL for 25c
3 BOXES CORN FLAKES for 25c
10 LB. BOX MACARONI for 25c
10 LB. BOX SPAGHETTI for 25c
TWO 15c PACKAGES SPAGHETTI for 25c

MARTIN BLOCK
Opposite Post Office
Phone 12 or 142

W. E. Byers, Auctioneer

Twenty years experience in handling Auction Sales, both on farm and household goods.

Let Me Cry Your Sales

Phone me at Charlevoix or call the Charlevoix Courier, where all dates are made.

Cups for Lunch Furnished if Requested

Neighbors

By
ROBERT STEAD

Author of
"The Cow Puncher," "The Homesteaders"

WNU Service
Copyright by Robert Stead

(Continued from Page 3)

adjectives he goaded the oxen, and presently noted a slight acceleration in their movements. "We're making nearly four knots an hour," he shouted.

"That's nothing," the minister shouted back. "I made a knot in less than ten minutes."

But for all of Spoof's urging our oxen plodded stolidly along the wintry trail, now barely distinguishable from the gray whiteness of the plains. Flakes of snow were falling, and on every side the pall of night surrounded us, drawing its circle closer and closer. The trail was firm, but the surrounding snow was loose and deep, and to pass us Jake would have to plunge his horses through it, at considerable risk of upsetting his cutter. The old land guide, however, hesitated not a moment for such a consideration as that. Swinging his horses from the trail he cut out at them with his whip, and they rushed by us, throwing a snowy spray like a torpedo boat passing a liner.

But as it is so often the occasion that makes the man, so now was it the occasion that proved Spoof's resourcefulness. Climbing over the dashboard of the jumper he ran along the tongue and threw himself upon Buck's ample back, which immediately began to heave and gyrate with an entirely new motion. Whether it was a protest against the liberty which Spoof had taken, or whether it was that the legs about his sides brought back memories of youthful days when some barrel-legged brchin on a Manitoba farm rode him in wild triumph through pasture field of the parental herd, matters not; the fact is that Buck presently broke into a most unprecedented gallop, and his mate, willy nilly, followed suit. They were just in time to prevent Jake's party getting on the trail ahead of us, and in great glee we cavorted by them.

"Forced draught!" shouted Spoof. "Fourteen knots!"

But our triumph was short lived. Unaccustomed to such speed, the oxen presently began to wobble in their course and suddenly floundered off the trail.

"Hard a-port, Lard a port!" Spoof stormed. But he was too late, or his directions were misunderstood. Over went the jumper, flinging its freshly married and other contents into the snow. The speed of the oxen wrenched the tongue from the wreck, and they continued homeward in greater haste than before.

Spoof jumped free and barely escaped a defiant flourish of Buck's heels as they flipped by him. Ruefully he gazed upon the wreckage.

"I told the bully bullocks to swing hard a-port," he explained, "and instead of that they slithered off to starboard."

At last the shack on Fourteen came into view, and, to our great surprise, a light shone from the window. When we came up close we saw a number of jumpers and bobsleighs about, and the tracks of many feet in the snow.

The scene inside was an animated and amazing one. In the principal room a table had been built and now groaned beneath a load such as I had not thought the country-side could supply. It was covered with snowy linen, and an assortment of chinaware of several varieties of pattern threw back the yellow glint of two great oil lamps, one of which I recognized as having recently decorated a shelf in a corner of Spoof's shack on section Two. I had just time to catch a glimpse of a frosted wedding cake in the center of the table and a steaming turkey at one end when Jean brought me out of my trance.

"Isn't it wonderful, Frank—wonderful!—to think of it, and all of them so poor! Why, even, there's Mr. Sneezit!"

It was true. The whole community was present. They had swarmed to our premises in our absence, bringing the necessaries of the wedding dinner with them, and now they were lined up around the walls, guilty-faced but delighted.

I said the whole community was present, but I was wrong. Mrs. Alton and the little boy, Jerry, were not there. I mentioned their absence to Spoof when I had an opportunity.

"They must not have known about it," was his explanation. But Spoof had evidently been at pains to make sure that all the others in the district should know. Why had he omitted Mrs. Alton? It was one more tangle in the puzzle of Spoof's peculiar attitude toward the widow on Eighteen.

When we were settled Mr. Locke arose and asked a blessing. The serious words sobered us for a minute, but it was only a minute. The stimulus of turkey with cranberry sauce and scalloped potatoes and boiled turnips and creamed carrots would have spurred to safety limits much heavier than ours and it soon developed into a lively and frolicsome meal. The turkey was an enormous bird; the attack of all our hungry party left the skeleton not entirely stripped. I remember that one of the little Hansens, venturing up like Oliver Twist with a demand for more, was soundly rapped on his yellow head by a drumstick in the heavy hand of Ole, but the children as a whole were well behaved, allowing for the example set them by their elders. Then we had plum pudding and sauce and apple pie and cheese and nuts and candy for everybody, Jean and I mentally ejaculating between mouthfuls at the generosity of the meal and speculation as to whence it had come. No one ever told us the secret, but we did learn that Spoof had a fat check from England just before Christmas, and that Mrs. Burke's cooking of turkey and apple pie was the talk of Hurricane county in Iowa, and that Mrs. Brown positively refused first place to anyone when it came to making plum pudding, and so we come of our own conclusions.

After the meal the table was knocked to pieces and carried out so that there might be more room, and as the bridal couple stood about wondering what was to happen next they suddenly found themselves the objects of a number of presentations. Mrs. Brown made hers first: six wonderful yards of Limoges china, hand-painted by the squire's daughters if, and presented to Mrs. B. on her departure for Canada.

"Our present is outside, and I'm agoin' to bring it in," said Peg-leg, putting on his cap and coat.

"Oh, I would just love it in Paris," his wife suggested. "But dig it out here."

But Burke was bound to do it in style. "In it comes," he declared, and plunged into the night. In a few minutes he returned with a heavy sack on his back, which he set in the middle of the floor. Again and again he made the trip until five sacks were in the pile.

"Ten bushels of seed wheat," he exclaimed proudly, "and how be it hayed yield a hundy and fifty!"

"Well, Ah'm thinkin' Ah'll be next," remarked the placid Andy Smith, tamping his clay pipe and returning it to his pocket. From somewhere he produced a kit of shoemaker's tools; wonderful pieces of British workmanship, they were. I believe Jack still carries some of them in the back seat of his automobile.

"No as much as Ah could o' wisht," said Andy, modestly, "but richt guid in the makin', and they'll come guy handy when you buy that threshing mill for the neighborhood."

Just then we observed the color mantling to the tawny hair of Ole Hansen.

"Ay tank by Yhunday Ay mak mysell maybe a yoke (joker)," the tall Swede confessed. "Ay say to Olga, 'By dum, Olga, what you tank, Ay tak a load o' hay?' She say, 'Ole, you get more fool all the time. Hay for a marriaging! What you tank dey are, oxes?' Den Ay say, 'Well, den, w'at else?' an' she say, 'Dere ain't nodding else,' an' den Ay say 'Dah hay gets it', and so it does."

"I hope you're not going to bring it in, too," said Lucy Burke.

"Yuh!" said Ole, opening his mouth in a great circular orifice and laughing silently while his head rocked in time.

The Fre... Quickly

Long Distance offers you convenience and speed in reaching your customers. When calling several patrons, it will save much time to give the Long Distance operator your complete list of calls so she can set them up in rapid succession.

Long Distance Is An Effective Salesman

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE CO.

Ward ... of Mrs. Burke's joke. "Ay tank she make good bedding, but not for eat. Ay pitch 'im off beside dah barn."

We found it was true. Ole, having nothing to bring but a load of hay, in the fullness of his heart brought that.

But an even more striking token of that community spirit which was the salvation of these early days was now to be presented. Sneezit had slipped out while the hay was under discussion and now came thundering in, his broad back bearing a whole dressed carcass of pig. Sneezit did not trust his English to make any remarks, but he smiled broadly under his bristly mustache . . . But what I saw was a dug-out full of children, with eyes peering through the gloom, and little, wistful, silent mouths.

"Now it's my turn," said Spoof, but Jake interrupted.

"As it happened, I was down in Regina on business connected with my estate when news o' this approachin' doup on Fourteen reached me, by means of a note from Spoof," Jake explained. "At first I couldn't make head or hinder of it, it was so bad wrote. So I took it to a young fellow I know with lots o' learnin'; got in know him on account o' the int'rest he usta take in the people on Twenty-two; he found out I located some boys an' girls and usta come roun' pretty reg'lar askin' questions casual-like, an' I says to him, 'How many shirts does a fellow get on this laundry ticket?' Well, he read it over slow to himself, an' then he jus' sits lookin' at nothin' till I began to think maybe there was some bad language such as he couldn't repeat in my presence. An' after awhile he says, 'Jake, jus' another thing: you know, those phenom'non'—that's what he called it—'on the prairie that makes you think things is what they ain't. Let's go down town,' he says, an' on the way he tells me what's in the ticket. Well, I thought he was leadin' for a bar, which is the best place I know of to raise a new mirage when your old one goes bust, but danged if he don't lead me into a jewelry store. And there he buys this."

Jake delved into a pocket and brought out a little gold pendant, a delicate and delicate example of the goldsmith's art. He held it for a moment to the admiring gaze of all present before resuming his narrative.

"'Give that,' my friend says, 'with my good wishes an' a touch o' my regrets, to the young lady on Twenty-two, with the compliments o' Sergeant Brook,' he says," and so Jake placed the little golden trinket in Jean's hands . . . It was a difficult situation. Jean's first impulse was to hand it back.

"Better accept it," I whispered to her. "The fewer explanations the better."

"But it—it's a wedding present," she demonstrated. "How can I . . . ?"

"Keep it until you need it," I suggested. Jean was very lovely in the heightened color of her embarrassment, and as her hand fell by my side I seized it surreptitiously in my own.

"Oh, Jean, why not make it tonight?" I whispered, mad with her beauty and her nearness.

"It's quite impossible," she answered, but she did not immediately withdraw her hand. She left me marveling more and more over the bewildering complexity of her attitude toward me.

Fortunately, the interest of those about us had been quickly restored by Jake. "Havin' a little weakness o' my own," Jake was continuing, "although I never said nothin' about it, not wishing to start a scene with Bella Donna, I bought its mate for the lady on Fourteen." And with this little speech he placed another pendant in the hands of Marjorie.

"When I came to Canada to farm," said Spoof, after the excitement over Jake's gift had died down, "I came equipped for everything but farming. I could have started a second-hand store, a curiosity shop, an arsenal, or a music hall much better than I could start a farm. In fact, I feel like all of these things, except, perhaps, the music hall, when I look around my shack. Particularly well was I equipped against savages, grizzly bears, and mountain lions. I remember the days I spent in picking out my rifles, weighing the qualities of this arm and that, and the penetrating power of the different bullets. My biggest game so far has been a badger, whose hide now adorns the den of my immediate and adjoining ancestor. Out of the abundance of my defenses I now bring to you, John Lane, this piece of artillery, with the injunction that it must never be pointed toward section Two, and, preferably, not at anything else. Hang it over your portal, as evidence that you can be a desperate man upon occasion, and let it go at that. I have been thoughtful enough not to bring any ammunition." Spoof then produced, out of the bedroom where Brown, acting as his agent, had secretly cached it, a repeating rifle, which Jack handled with as much admiration as Marjorie spent on her pendant and then placed it lovingly away.

"Now I believe that's all," said Spoof.

"Not yet," Reddy interrupted. "I want to be in on this, although I didn't come prepared." He had written something in a notebook, which he now tore out and handed to Jack. It was a receipt for the price of his wedding ring. Jack protested, but Reddy would have it no other way.

The only one not represented by a presentation was the minister, but he proved equal to the occasion.

"My children," he said—he was not much older than Jack or I, perhaps about the age of Spoof—"I am not a man of the world, and consequently cannot give you of the good things which the world provides. The theory that a minister should lay up his treasure in heaven is taken rather literally in these times. I am not quarreling with that. Materialism is the monstrous outlaw of the age, an enemy that goes bullying through the land, outraging our finer natures, overturning our ideals, polluting our ambitions. I hope I am not envious of his followers. And to you, I give something that money could not buy—my blessing, with a promise of my ministrations, without charge, on those future occasions upon which it may be assumed you will be in need of them."

The minister had escaped from a somewhat embarrassing position with the dignity that became his calling, and with a gentle joke that showed how very human he was at heart.

"Tear out the pork and the seed wheat," Spoof ordered, as there seemed likely to be a lull in the night's enjoyment. "Ole, it is fortunate that Mrs. Burke persuaded you not to bring in your load of hay."

So the door was cleared. The floor, when opened, revealed a wedge of snow-storm whistling by, but inside the wintry weather was forgotten and the tremor of our shanty's timbers passed unnoticed. Reddy had mounted himself on our own table—the big one had been taken out, in pieces—and was twisting the strings of a violin to tune. Presently his bow cut loose a drone of dancing rhythm, and feet began to tap the plain pine boards of the floor.

"Partners all!" Jake commanded. It was evident he was to be master of ceremonies; he had just taken a great chew of tobacco to promote the flow of language. The insistent note of the violin brought Jack and me with Marjorie and Jean, Mr. and Mrs. Burke, and Mr. and Mrs. Brown, to the center of the room. The dancing would be of the "square dance" variety, which was no novelty to us or to the Burkes, and which the others would soon pick up under the guidance of Professor Jake.

"Shute yer partner! . . . Pass 'er by . . . Balance to the next." And we were off. Jake and the fiddler warmed up with the dancers, and presently the shanty was rocking with the stamp and the swing of it. Those were not the days of dancing that is little more than a walk; one danced with all his heart and body, and was not afraid to strain the doors and ceilings.

The end of the set found us perspiring and happy.

And so the evening wore on, Ole and Olga joined the dancers in the third set, and thereafter never left the floor; Andy Smith ventured into Marjorie's arms, and in five minutes was feeling younger than in the days of his apprenticeship on the Clyde; Spoof danced with Jean as much as seemed necessary. When Spoof was not monopolizing her, Burke or Brown or Smith was. But at length she sparred us off in order that she might be in Mr. Sneezit to the door. The Russian hesitated, fearful to appear foolish, but he would have been more or less than human if he could have resisted Jean's enticements, and presently she was leading him through the simple movements of a quadrille.

At length they went. The flurries of snow had driven by; the moon poured its silver radiance on a world of downy ivory, and the bigger stars blinked stolidly from a steel-blue heaven as our guests bundled themselves into jumpers and sleighs and took their departure. Their cries of good wishes and good luck were wafted back to us above the crunching of the snow. We watched them until they faded out of sight in the white moonlight.

Soon after Jack and Marjorie and Jean crossed the snow-filled valley to their overcrowded house, and left me to one that was overempty. For a long time I stood looking into the stove, with lid and lifter in my hand, in the act of putting on more wood. The glow of the coals went gray as I watched, and, for the first time in my life, I measured the depth to which the plummet of loneliness can plunge. . . .

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Electric light bulbs that give service at Charlevoix Hardware Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

FINGERPRINT LAW MADE EFFECTIVE

Detective Lyle W. Morse, a fingerprint expert attached to the headquarters of the Michigan State Police at Lansing, is now on a speaking trip which will take him to every city, village and hamlet in the lower part of the state, explaining the provisions of the new state law relative to fingerprints.

Lieutenant H. E. Erickson, who is in charge of the department, recently made a similar tour of the upper peninsula.

The new finger print law which was enacted by the 1925 state legislature and which became effective the latter part of August, provides that all law-enforcing officers shall have fingerprints taken of every one arrested for a felony, and that they shall send copies of the prints to the State Police headquarters. There are a number of technicalities which the two officers also are explaining for the benefit of the local law-enforcing officers.

The new law has the endorsement of the Michigan Police Chiefs' association and they aided in obtaining its passage.

The Head of the House.

Wife beating, having the sanction of the Koran, is common in Egypt.

SAVE CHILDREN FROM INJURIES BY SAFETY PLAN

STATE POLICE VISIT RURAL SCHOOLS TO ORGANIZE JUNIOR PATROL AMONG SCHOLARS

Aim to Cut Down Total of Deaths From Auto Accidents.

To diminish the tragic number of fatalities and severe injuries to children through traffic accidents is the aim of a state-wide campaign undertaken by the Michigan Department of Public Safety, of which the State Police is the principal unit. During the winter, when the troopers are not so much needed for highway patrol work, they will visit the rural schools in furtherance of this campaign.

There were nearly 11,000 children killed in traffic accidents last year in the United States and of this total Michigan furnished a large quota. A very large proportion of the accidents were outside the larger cities.

This safety campaign is a natural adjunct to the patrol work of the State Police in seeking to make the highways safe through arrest of reckless and careless drivers. It is being personally directed by Alan G. Straight, Commissioner of Public Safety, who has seen many instances of the sorrowful result of reckless driving.

Form Junior Patrol.

The work has been divided up between the various posts of the State Police and, as their duties permit, the troopers will be assigned to visit the schools, talk on safety matters and organize the "Safety Patrol." This patrol is to consist of pupils in the schools, designated by the principals, those being among the older children.

It will be the duty of the Safety Patrol to watch over the other children when at play and when coming to or going from school. Each pupil so designated will be furnished with an arm band in green.

Any member of the Safety Patrol who performs a meritorious act, such as saving another child from death or injury, will be awarded a distinguished service medal supplied by an automobile club. It will be similar, in medals awarded soldiers for war time service.

The Safety Campaign.

The school talks will deal with dangers to be avoided by the children. They will be told of the perils incident to roller-skating on the concrete roads, coasting down hills which cross highways and other acts which imperil life and limb. Advice will be given to walk on the left side of the road . . . to look around before crossing . . . to keep one's self and clothing clean . . . to obey traffic officers and to learn how to stop vehicles and how to turn them off the road or into a garage.

Enrollment cards, bearing the children to practice safety on the highways, will be distributed.

Captain C. J. Sevarald, district commander of the Bay City district, recently broadcasted a highway safety talk from the radio station at Michigan State College.

A Humorist Born.

—Western Paper: Mr. and Mrs. Brunson are rejoicing in the birth of a laughter.—Boston Transcript.

Frogs Have Keen Hearing.

Frogs and toads are gifted with a remarkably acute sense of hearing.

Cut prices on all heavy winter garments to close out the line. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 47tf.

LEGAL NOTICES

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain real estate mortgage whereby the Power of Sale therein contained has become operative, which mortgage was given by John Pesek and Josephine Pesek, husband and wife, to Margaret M. Harsha, which mortgage was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Charlevoix, Michigan, July 5th, 1922 in liber sixty-four of Mortgages on page forty-one; and wherens the amount claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice is the sum of fourteen hundred eighty and 11-100 Dollars, together with an attorney fee of twenty-five dollars as provided for in said mortgage, and no suit or proceedings at law have been instituted to recover the money secured by said mortgage or any part thereof; and whereas the tax required by Statute to be paid on said mortgage was duly paid prior to the recording thereof.

Now therefore, notice is given that by virtue of the Power of Sale contained in said mortgage and the Statutes in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the premises therein described or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy the amount then due thereon of principal and interest together with the attorney fee, costs and expenses of the foreclosure, at public auction to the highest bidder therefor at the front door of the Court House in the City of Charlevoix, County of Charlevoix (that being the place where the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix is held) on the 20th day of February 1926 at ten o'clock in the forenoon on that day. The premises described in said mortgage being herein described as follows; to-wit:

All the north fractional half of the Southwest fractional quarter of Section Seven (7) in Township thirty-three (33) North of Range eight (8) West, containing eighty-two acres and 84-100 acres of land more or less according to the U. S. Survey thereof.

Dated November 16th, 1925.
Margaret M. Harsha,
Mortgagee.

Rollie L. Lewie,
Attorney for Mortgagee,
Charlevoix, Michigan. 46-t13

Order for Publication

State of Michigan, The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the city of Charlevoix in said County, on the 1st day of December A. D. 1925.

Present: Hon. Servetus A. Correll, Judge of Probate.

In the Matter of the Estate of William Evers, Deceased.

Amandus Evers having filed in said court his petition praying that the administration of said estate be granted to petitioner or to some other suitable person,

It is ordered, that the 23rd day of December A. D. 1925, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, be and is hereby appointed for hearing said petition;

It is Further Ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix Courier a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Servetus A. Correll,
A true copy Judge of Probate.
Adv. 48-t3.

Order for Publication

State of Michigan, The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the city of Charlevoix in said County, on the 1st day of December A. D. 1925.

Present: Hon. Servetus A. Correll, Judge of Probate.

In the Matter of the Estate of William Evers, mentally incompetent.

Amandus Evers having filed in said court his final administration account, and his petition praying for the allowance thereof and that it be turned over to the administrator of his estate.

It is Ordered, That the 23d day of December A. D. 1925, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, be and is hereby appointed for examining and allowing said account and hearing said petition;

It is Further Ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix Courier a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Servetus A. Correll,
A true copy Judge of Probate.
Adv. 48-t3.

Order for Publication

State of Michigan, The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the city of Charlevoix in said County, on the 10th day of November A. D. 1925.

Present: Hon. Servetus A. Correll, Judge of Probate.

In the Matter of the Estate of William H. Collins, Deceased.

Hannah M. Collins having filed in said court her petition praying that the administration of said estate be granted to petitioner or to some other suitable person.

It is ordered, That the 3rd day of December A. D. 1925, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, be and is hereby appointed for hearing said petition;

It is Further Ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order, one each week for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix Courier a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Servetus A. Correll,
Judge of Probate.
A true copy. 45t3

D. T. McHUGH
General Contractor
Phone 214
CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

WM. J. BOGART
CONTRACTOR and BUILDER
No Job Too Large
No Job Too Small
Phone 139 Charlevoix, Mich

R. B. ARMSTRONG
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Special Attention to Diseases of Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat
Priest Bldg. Phone 255

DR. F. F. McMILLAN
Physician and Surgeon
Office above Postoffice
Phone 17
Charlevoix - - Michigan

A. L. FITCH
ATTORNEY AT LAW
Office in Court House
Phone 18
Charlevoix - Michigan

VIRGINIA RYALL BROWN, D. C.
PALMER CHIROPRACTOR
PHONES:
Office 347 Residence 39
Postoffice Building

Ellsworth Section

Mrs. H. Black is sick with diphtheria, at this writing.

Helen Springstead is on the sick list this week with quinsy.

Mr. and Mrs. Burt of Ortonville, returned home Sunday, after a visit with their son, H. T. Burt.

Mr. Gilson, Standard Oil man, of Petoskey, was a business caller in town for two days last week.

Mrs. Mary Morrow of Central Lake, spent the week end with her daughter, Mrs. August VanderArk.

Mr. H. L. Dawson spent several days of the latter part of last week at Central Lake with his mother, who is seriously ill with pneumonia.

The Independent Basketball team of here and the Independents of East Jordan, and also the Junior High of both schools will play here, Friday night, the money will be for the benifit of bleechers in the gym.

PHELPS

Miss Margaret Watson, spent Thanksgiving with home folks at Central Lake.

C. Vandenberg and two sons, Jacob and Edward, were callers in Gaylord Monday.

Chris Drost spent a few days last week visiting his brother Ira Drost, near Ellsworth.

George Klooster, Jr., of Ellsworth, spent Thanksgiving and the week end at the F. R. Klooster home.

Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Klooster and children spent Thanksgiving evening at the Ed. Boss home in Barnard.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Stevens and family, drove to Horton Bay Sunday to visit Ralph Klooster and family.

John Brock, moved his household goods Saturday and took possession of the C. Vandenberg farm Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Koo Klooster and children of Ellsworth, were Sunday evening callers at the F. R. Klooster home.

Miss Lula Mason returned to Petoskey Sunday evening, after spending Thanksgiving and the week end with home folks.

The Thanksgiving program given by the school children was given Tuesday evening of this week, having been postponed for the revival meetings.

A very jolly "Charivari" crowd gathered at the Phelps store, Thanksgiving evening at about eleven o'clock to buy treats with the money they had secured from the newly wedded couple, Mr. and Mrs. Lucas Reamsma. "Congratulations."

You will find high quality merchandise at reasonable prices at the Charlevoix Hdw. Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

ROCK ELM

Mrs. Bessie Willis has accepted a position as housmaid with Mrs. Steven Shepherd.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Whitfield visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Spidle Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Davis left Saturday by auto for Grand Rapids, where they will spend the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Jensen visited at the Smatts' home Thursday evening to enjoy the radio.

They say, "In Florida the mosquitos are so fierce people are obliged to screen in the hen coops." Oh, boy!

Miss Jessie Metz and Frank Foote enjoyed Thanksgiving dinner as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Whitfield.

Wilbur Spidle went deer hunting this fall and returned with a two-hundred pound buck. A sure beauty with five points on the horns.

Overcoats, Mackinaws, sheeplined coats, heavy pants, sweaters, leather vests and caps at cost price to close out the line. Benj. Brown—Adv. 47tf.

BENTLEY HILL

Joe Gaunt has moved to the farm which he rented near Ironton.

Kenneth Peebles left for Detroit, and will work there this winter.

W. P. Smith traded a cow for a horse with John Koster one day last week.

Herman Heeres and family called on his brother, Jim, near Norwood, Sunday night.

John Koster purchased two cows at the McLeod & Sneller sale last week Tuesday.

Bert DeGroot and family, visited at the home of G. Ruhing near Ellsworth, Sunday evening.

Lukas Reamsma and Jennie Zylstra, were married at the bride's home near Barnard, November 24. They will make their future home on a farm near Barnard. We wish them a long and happy life.

MILES DISTRICT

Miss Esther LaLonde of East Jordan, spent Sunday at the G. Steenhagen home.

Fred Bancroft attended the funeral of Mrs. Ranney in Ranney district last Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Miles were callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Art Farmer in East Jordan, Sunday.

Joseph M. LaLonde returned to his home Sunday, after a visit at the home of his niece, Mrs. A. Miles.

Mrs. Anna LaLonde of East Jordan, was a Sunday visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Supley LaLonde.

Herbert Evans and George Henderson of East Jordan, were Sunday visitors of Herbert's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dett Evans.

Mr. and Mrs. Will LaLonde of Traverse City, were Sunday visitors at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Supley LaLonde.

"COLD IN THE HEAD"

is an acute attack of Nasal Catarrh. Those subject to frequent "colds" are generally in a "run down" condition.

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is a Treatment consisting of an Ointment, to be used locally, and a Tonic, which acts Quickly through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces, building up the System, and making you less liable to "colds."

Sold by druggists for over 40 Years.
F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.

Miss Josie Hammond of Mt. Pleasant, and Francis Klienhans of East Jordan, called at the A. Miles home Friday afternoon.

Earl H. Glynn of Detroit, Mich., district manager for the Ancient Order of Gleaners, was a caller at the A. Miles home Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Mullen of Traverse City, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Addis of Walloon Lake and Mr. and Mrs. Supley LaLonde, were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Addis, Thanksgiving.

Wear wool garments and keep warm this winter. We are selling them below cost to close out the line. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 47tf.

ANTRIM CITY

Miss Grace Brooks spent Thanksgiving at her home.

Mr. Stoel and family have moved to Detroit to live now.

Mr. Stott attended the Sneller and McLeod sale, Tuesday.

Mr. Baumback has finished hailing hay around Central Lake this week.

Miss Myrtle Hoffman of Atwood, was a visitor at the school house, Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Baker spent Thursday at the home of Mr. Baker's mother at Eastport.

Mr. and Mrs. Brooks and Grace Brooks ate supper at the Stott home, Thursday evening.

Mrs. Brooks and daughter, Grace, attended the Thanksgiving dinner at Eastport, Thursday.

Zylstra-Reamsma

Miss Jennie Zlystra, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Zylstra of Barnard and Lucas Reamsma, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Reamsma of Ellsworth, were married last Wednesday, November 25th, by Rev. Einink at the Christain Reformed parsonage in Ellsworth. The young couple were attended by the bride's sister, Alice, who acted as bridesmaid, and the groom's cousin, Kenneth Berkey, as best man. They will make their home on a farm near Barnard.

You can afford to wear heavy wool winter garments at the price we are selling them to close out the line. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 47tf.

More Careful Study of Feeding Problem Needed

A litter of twelve pigs, six and six, on one sow is a heavy drain, so R. W. Fairbanks, live stock extension specialist, told a western slope farmer who showed him the pigs, which had been sired by a pure bred Duroc of excellent breeding. They should have been weaned late in June, but were still on the sow July 10. Starting them on grain before weaning was advised; a little corn, so as shorts and plenty of buttermilk and pasture for exercise. Then after weaning feed a mixture of corn, 40 pounds, oats 20 pounds and middlings 20 pounds. This should be hand-fed until the pigs get up to 150 pounds. After that a self-feeder may be used.

Another litter of eight, from a pure bred sire, was had on over. Here the problem was of another sort. These pigs had evidently been weaned too early, at seven weeks. They should have been left with the sow at least twelve weeks. They were being fed middlings and skim milk and they would only have a run where they should have been well beyond that point in order to stand any show for a fall litter contest prize. Here the trouble was underfeeding.

"The two litter contest emphasizes the need for more careful study of the feeding problem," says Mr. Fairbanks.—Extension Service, Colorado Agricultural College.

You will find high quality merchandise at reasonable prices at the Charlevoix Hdw. Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

PILGRIM HOLINESS CHURCH
Phelps and Ellsworth

Phelps

Sunday school, 10:00 n. m.
Preaching, 11:00 a. m.
Prayer meeting, Wednesday evening at 8:00 p. m.

Ellsworth

Sunday school, 1:15 p. m.
Preaching, 2:30 and 7:30 p. m.
Prayer meeting Thursday evening at 8:00 p. m.

B. E. Manker, Pastor.

B. J. BEUKER
Physician and Surgeon
Office over Blue Store
Ellsworth, Michigan
Office Hours: 2-4 p.m., Phone 38

Ford

TUDOR SEDAN
$580

Runabout	$260
Touring	290
Coupe	520
Fordor Sedan	660

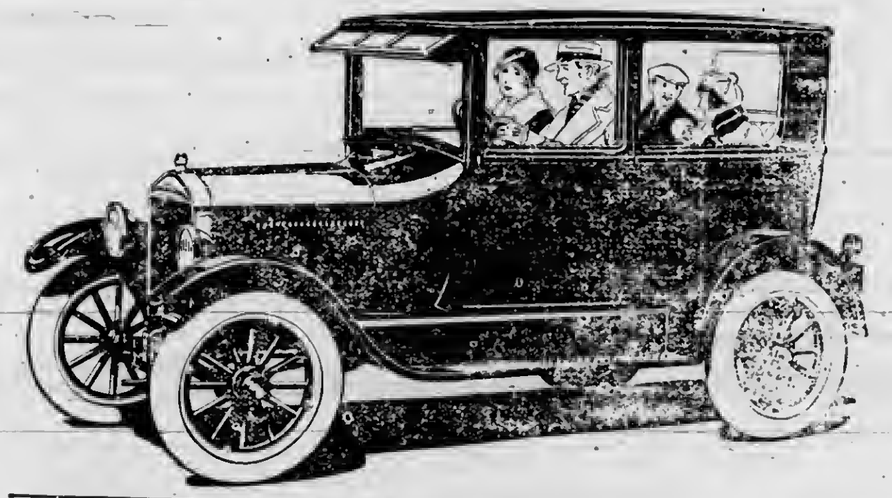
Closed cars in color. Demountable rims and starter extra on open cars. All prices f. o. b. Detroit

To anyone familiar with closed car values, it is amazing that such quality and workmanship can be had at this low price.

Everyone admires the smart lines and the cozy interior, with its strong, hand-built seats and attractive upholstery. Windows and windshield are of fine plate glass.

Inspect all the new features at any Authorized Ford Dealer's showroom. Any Ford car can be purchased on very easy payments.

Ford Motor Company
Detroit, Mich.



LIVE STOCK

ABORTION IN SWINE MAY BE CONTROLLED

The following suggestions for the management of a herd of swine in which infectious abortion has broken out are based upon practical experience. By putting them into practice it is believed the disease may be brought under control in the shortest possible time, according to the Wisconsin College of Agriculture.

1. Remove aborting sows at once from contact with other sows and gilts.

2. Collect and burn aborted pigs' afterbirths and all contaminated feed and litter.

3. Find out whether the abortions were caused by abortion germs by having blood samples tested to detect evidence of the disease.

4. Consider the herd infected if any of the blood samples are found to react to the test for abortion.

5. Divide the non-reacting sows into as small groups as possible.

6. Disinfect the hog houses by thoroughly saturating the floor walls and troughs with a coal-tar disinfectant prepared and applied according to directions of the manufacturer of the product.

7. Sell for slaughter grade sows which abort as soon as their condition will permit, as such animals will scarcely pay for the trouble of treatment.

8. Postpone breeding sows that have aborted until they have passed at least two heat periods.

9. Keep a special boar for the aborting and infected sows. This, of course, is impractical except in large herds.

10. Provide a clean boar for all sows that show no evidence of infection.

11. Ask your veterinarian to secure vaccine from the college of agriculture to vaccinate all open sows and gilts that have not aborted. In order to prevent them from contracting the disease.

Ventilation for Hogs

The average hog house has doors along the side and a cupola at the top which is supposed to take care of any necessary ventilation. Cold air coming in at the doors strikes the hogs direct and continues to pass over them in a current from door to ventilator. When the doors are shut there is no intake of fresh air, steam collects, and when the hogs go out on the feed floor they very easily take cold.

Hogs Avoid Flu

It is a striking fact that hogs following steers and that sheep in open sheds are seldom if ever affected by swine "flu." Inquiries come in asking why the disease does not spread to other herds which are just across the fence. In nine cases out of ten the herd not affected is being housed in open sheds with steers or else they are in properly ventilated houses which have plenty of bedding.

Subscribe for the Courier.

Report of The Charlevoix County Co-op. Cow Testing Ass'n

Report of the Charlevoix Co-Operative Cow Testing Association for month of November 1925, Edgar Mitchell Cow Tester. Number of cows tested 274; Number of cows dry 52.

Cows Over 50 Pounds Fat

Owner	Name of Cow	Breed	Lbs. of Milk	Test	Lbs. of Fat	Age
Orchard Bay Farm	187	P. B. H.	1656	4.0	66.2	2
Orchard Bay Farm	138	P. B. H.	2040	3.2	65.2	5
Geo. Meggison	Short Horns	Gr. J.	1131	5.4	61.0	8
Arthur Shepard	Moonshine	Gr. J.	1440	3.8	54.7	5
Breezy Point Farm	14	P. B. H.	1404	3.9	54.7	5
Loeb Farms	Grace Lady	P. B. H.	1689	3.0	50.6	3
Loeb Farms	Deane	P. B. H.	1629	3.1	50.4	9
Loeb Farms	Vassar	P. B. H.	1488	3.6	53.5

Cows Over 1250 Pounds Milk

Orchard Bay Farm	56	P. B. H.	1386	2.9	40.1	9
Orchard Bay Farm	160	P. B. H.	1287	3.4	43.7	4
Orchard Bay Farm	187	P. B. H.	1656	4.0	66.2	2
Orchard Bay Farm	128	P. B. H.	1305	3.6	46.9	6
Orchard Bay Farm	138	P. B. H.	2040	3.2	65.2
Orchard Bay Farm	155	P. B. H.	1383	3.5	48.4
Arthur Shepard	Moonshine	Gr. H.	1440	3.8	54.7	5
Sam Ulvund	Milo	mixed	1272	3.6	45.7
Edward Jensen	Artis	P. B. H.	1281	2.9	37.2	3
Breezy Point Farm	10	P. B. H.	1398	3.0	41.9	9
Breezy Point Farm	14	P. B. H.	1404	3.9	54.7	5
Loeb Farms	Vassar	P. B. H.	1488	3.6	53.5
Loeb Farms	Grace Lady	P. B. H.	1689	3.0	50.6	3
Loeb Farms	Patricia	P. B. H.	1494	2.7	40.3	7
Loeb Farms	Jane	P. B. H.	1563	2.9	45.3	2
Loeb Farms	Deane	P. B. H.	1629	3.1	50.4	9
Loeb Farms	Maybury	P. B. H.	1719	2.9	49.8	3
Loeb Farms	Martha	P. B. H.	1260	2.9	36.5	2
Loeb Farms	Evelyn	P. B. H.	1584	3.0	47.5
Loeb Farms	Irene	P. B. H.	1338	3.5	46.8
Loeb Farms	Kary	P. B. H.	1251	2.5	31.2	2
Loeb Farms	Pontiac	P. B. H.	1383	3.3	45.6	3
Loeb Farms	Elenor	P. B. H.	1287	3.5	45.0	11

Three High Cows in B. F., Under 3 Years Old

Orchard Bay	187	P. B. H.	1656	4.0	66.2	2
Loeb Farms	Jane	P. B. H.	1563	2.9	45.3	2
Ed. Jensen	Daisy	P. B. H.	981	3.8	37.2	2

Three High Cows in B. F. Under 4 Years Old

Loeb Farms	Grace Lady	P. B. H.	1689	3.0	50.6	3
Loeb Farms	Marbury	P. B. H.	1719	2.9	49.8	3
Loeb Farms	Pontinc	P. B. H.	1383	3.3	45.6	3

Three High Cows in B. F. Under 5 Years Old

Orchard Bay Farm	153	P. B. H.	981	4.7	46.1	4
Orchard Bay Farm	160	P. B. H.	1281	3.4	43.7	4
Ed. Jensen,	Marvel	P. B. H.	1137	3.8	43.2	4

Three High Cows in B. F. Above 5 Years Old

Orchard Bay Farm	138	P. B. H.	2040	3.2	65.2	5
Geo. Meggison	Short Horns	Gr. J.	1131	5.4	46.1	8
Breezy Point Farm	14	P. B. H.	1497	3.9	58.3	5

Two High Herds in B. F. Average

No. of Cows in Herd	Owner	Average Milk Production	Average Butter Fat Production
10	Breezy Point Farm	1024	35.1
11	Ed. Jensen	997	34.3

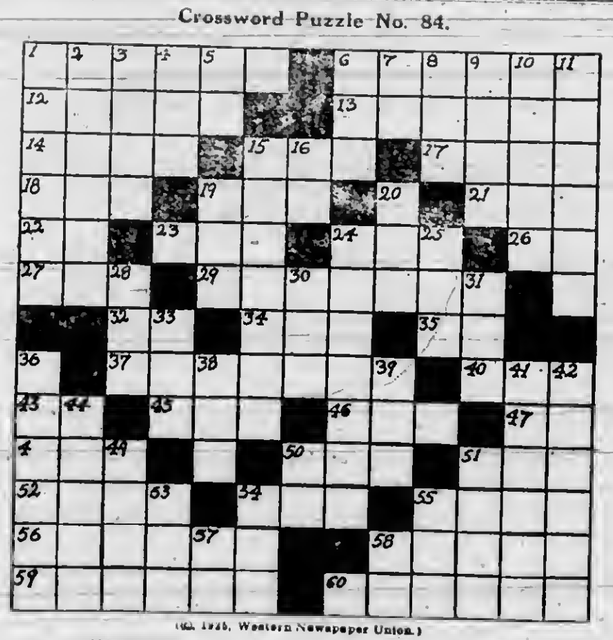
Two High Herds in Average Milk Production

10	Breezy Point Farm	1024	35.1
11	Ed. Jensen	997	34.1

Feed Prices Used

Silage, $4.00; Alfalfa, $16.00; Oats, $40.00; Barley, $45.00; Cotton Seed, $57.00; Pillsbury, $53.00 Blackfords, $53.00; Bran, $36.00; Oil Meal $55.00; Cow Chow, $60.00; Corn Meal, $48.00; Rye, $40.00; Honey Bee, $35.00; Butter Fat .48.

Crossword Puzzle No. 84.



(©, 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

Horizontal.

1—Noisy argument
6—Conference
12—A dead language
13—Black and yellow bird
14—Footless
15—Young bear
17—Sailing canoe of Malay archipelago
18—Circumferences of a wheel
19—Possesses
21—Young goat
22—Early English (abbr.)
23—Deep hole
24—Girl's name
26—Point of compass
27—Arid
29—Large bird with brilliant, sweeping feathers
32—Preposition
34—Long, narrow inlet
35—Note of musical scale
37—Basket of a balloon
40—Born
43—Exist
45—Sailor
46—Organ of head
47—Preposition
48—Occupied a chair
50—Fly
51—A pixie
52—English school for boys
54—Ember
55—Set of three
56—To vote
58—Pertaining to the moon
59—A part of the ear
60—Convincing

Solution will appear in next issue.

Vertical.

1—Blazed up
2—Kind of two-edged sword
3—Small particle of matter
4—In Spanish literature, a champion of Christianity and royalty
5—Indefinite article
6—The black-backed gull
7—Conjunction
8—To arrest
9—An eating utensil
10—A drug
11—Made of beads
15—One who is hired to provide food for large parties
16—You and me
19—Thick joint
20—Fuse
24—Any one of a group of jellyfish
25—To perform
28—Over there
30—To affect with palsy
31—Relatives
33—Obese
36—Not present
38—Informal head covering
39—Consume
41—Pertaining to Delia
42—Exertion of power
44—Consumer
45—Roman senator's garment
50—Like
51—Sea eagle
53—Broken-down horse
54—Grope
55—To pull laboriously
57—Trade union (abbr.)
58—Behold!

Solution Puzzle No. 83.

Let The COURIER Sell IT for YOU

BASKET BALL MATERIAL LOOKS GOOD

(Continued from Page One)

condition is allowed to exist. Providing that a good court is procured for this winter more home games will be added to this schedule:

Jan. 15th.—Muncelegia at Muncelona.

Jnn. 22nd.—Pellston at Charlevoix.

Jan. 29th.—Petoskey at Petnskey.

Feb. 5th.—Boyne City at Boyne City.

Feb. 12th.—Sault Ste. Marie at Sault Ste. Marie.

Feb. 19th.—Traverse City nt Traverse City.

Feb. 26th.—Pellston at Pellston.

March 5th—East Jordnn at Charlevoix.

March 12th.—East Jordan nt East Jordan.

Other games are being nrranged for.

MISS HEISE HOSTESS TO YOUNG FRIENDS

Thirteen Young Ladies Enjoy Evening of Fun

A very pleasant and enjoyable time was spent last Friday evening, November 27, when Miss Lila Heise, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Heise of 226 An'rim street gave a party to a number of her young lady friends.

The time was passed quickly for those present by the playing of games and dancing, one of the enjoyable features being a number of old fashioned dances which are much out of use by our present generation of young folks. Engineered by the hostess's parents, the old time dances proved more fun than was anticipated by the more modern followers of the "Charleston." Refreshments in the form of a potluck supper rounded out a full evening of enjoyment.

Those present were the Misses Marion Bartlett, Geraldine Halverson, Gwen Geneit, Dorothy Fairchild, Jessie Allen, Irene McCann, Myrtle Guild, Genevieve Supernaw, Francis Nowland, Frieda McMillan, Lucille Usher, Dorothy Gill and Dorothy Hooker.

To the Taxpayers of the City of Charlevoix:

Notice is hereby given that the December Tax Roll of the City of Charlevoix has been delivered to me, and that the taxes therein levied are payable at my office at any time on or before the 9th day of January, 1926 without charge for collection.

On all taxes remaining unpaid after the 9th of January, a collection fee of 4 per cent will be charged, and collected.

Office Hours: 8:30 a. m. to 12 m. 1:30 p. m. to 5 p. m.

Elma H. Cook,
City Treasurer.

Adv. 48-42

Give A Useful Christmas Present.

Something that Father, Brother, Mother, Sister, Uncle, Aunt, Sweetheart, or anyone who drives a car will appreciate.

5 Gallon Can En-ar-co Motor oil

"The Oil of a Million Tests"

It will give the motor new life. You will have less carbon trouble. You will have less repairs. Order Now.

A Merry Christmas to You

THE AUTO SHOP

Phone 93 204 Mason St.

ON THE PEDESTAL

MILK is just as vital to growing children as sunshine and fresh air. Be sure of giving them the best milk obtainable by leaving your order with us.

MARION CENTER DAIRY
Pure Aerated
Milk and Cream
CHARLEVOIX, MICH.

WHAT IS TO BE DONE ABOUT IT

(Continued from page one)

would make boat captains more cautious about loading their ship and that they should profit by former experiences, for this boat in particular has cost the city considerable money from broken water mains on former occasions.

It will take more than ordinary effort on the part of the people in the cities of this county to get an appropriation large enough to have the government step in here and put the channel in the shape it should be and we will not get that appropriation by letting "George do it."

Electric light bulbs that give service at Charlevoix Hardware Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

CAPT. F. C. PARTRIDGE NOW RETIRED

Has Seen 30 Years' Service In Government Coast Guard

After thirty years of faithful duty in the government coast guard service, Capt. F. C. Partridge has gone on the retired list. His departure from the local station took effect on Monday, November 16, and he is now busy moving his personal belongings from the captain's quarters to his residence on Park avenue.

Mr. Partridge has seen many years in this department of the government service, fifteen years being spent at Michigan City, Indiana, two years at Sleeping Bear Point and thirteen years at the Charlevoix station. During this time his experiences have been greatly varied in nature and not devoid of many dangers and risk of life, and it can be safely said that the captain is deserving of the years of rest now before him.

When asked if he would make his future residence in Charlevoix the captain replied, "Why not, isn't Charlevoix alright? I like the town and the people who live in it, and could not ask for a better place to make my future home." We agree with him. Charlevoix is alright and we are glad that Capt. Partridge and family will continue to reside in our fair city.

The Odd Fellows will give a dance at the I. O. O. F. hall on Friday, December 4. Members, come and bring your friends. Invitations will extended to non-members.—Adv. 48-tf.

CITY WILL GET TWO COMPLETE DELIVERIES

First Class Mail Now Delivered by Bus From Petoskey.

Starting on Monday morning of this week the city of Charlevoix will from now on have two complete mail deliveries to the residential section and two deliveries each day in the business district. Formerly there was only one complete delivery each day, besides those on the main street.

Postmaster Weaver announces that after considerable effort he has secured a delivery of first class mail and papers from Petoskey via Fowlers Bus line, which will be known as a "Star Route," and is in use in many other localities, including Boyne City and East Jordan. Mail of this class which arrives in Petoskey over the G. R. & I. R. R. at 5:45 a.m., and which formerly did not reach Charlevoix until the afternoon train from the north, will now get here at about 9 o'clock.

The first complete deelivery will go out at 7:30 in the morning and the second at 12.30 p. m. Deliveries of the business district will be made at 10:00 a. m. and 4:00 p. m. The post office will be closed all day Christmas, December 25, and patrons are asked to arrange mailing business accordingly.

C. H. S. DEFEATS EAST JORDAN HIGH DEBATORS

Charlevoix Has Able Speaker in Miss Cecil Pollock.

The Charlevoix high school debating team won their first tilt of the season by defeating East Jordan. The debate was held last Thursday evening, November 19th, at the high school auditorium in East Jordan.

The question under debate was "Resolved, That the Proposed Child Labor Amendment to the National Constitution should be adopted by the United States." Charlevoix upheld the negative side of the question and was ably represented by Miss Francis Martin, Leroy Saunders and Miss Cecil Pollock.

The discussion was a lively one and the case presented by each side was very good. Denn C. C. Barnes, debate coach at the Central Michigan normal school at Mt. Pleasant, acted as judge and rendered a satisfactory decision to both sides.

Today is the time to order those Christmas Cards. Exclusive sample line at this office.—Adv. 47t4.

W. E. Parmelee builds storm windows.—Adv. 37-tf.

DAIRY FACTS

HEALTHY COWS GIVE HIGH QUALITY MILK

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The purchase of a good herd bull is the first forward step in producing better calves at a less cost per pound. In common or grade herds calves sired by good pure bred beef bulls weigh on the average about 125 pounds a head more when one year old than calves of the same age sired by the general run of scrub bulls, says the United States Department of Agriculture, and they sell for about 2 cents a pound more as stockers and feeders. Two-year-old steers sired by good pure bred bulls weigh on an average about 200 pounds a head more than steers of the same age sired by scrub bulls, and sell for from 2 to 4 cents a pounds more as stockers and feeders.

In the case of yearlings, scrubs weigh about 700 pounds, and when they sell for about 4 cents a pound as stockers and feeders they bring $12 a head, while grades at the same age weigh about 425 pounds, and will sell for about 2 cents more, or 6 cents a pound, bringing $25.50. Two-year-old scrubs weigh about 525 pounds a head, and, assuming that they sell for 8 cents a pound, will bring $12 a head, while grades of equal age weigh about 725 pounds, and at 2 cents more a pound (10 cents) as stockers and feeders, bring $72.50.

There is practically no difference in the cost of feed for the two classes of calves up to the yearling age, but from that time on grades develop more rapidly and require more feed than scrubs. The difference in cost of feed, however, is a very small item when the offspring of the good bulls are worth practically twice as much as those of scrub bulls.

There Are Many Coffee Cows in United States

There are 3,000,000 coffee cows and 750,000 tea cows in the United States declare dairy statisticians of the United States Department of Agriculture. That is to say, the quantity of milk and cream used in tea and coffee in the United States is equivalent to the production from that many cows.

Coffee consumption is around 1,000,000,000 pounds annually or approximately 50,000,000,000 cups. This requires 10,000,000,000 ounces of cream, the milk equivalent of which is 12,500,000,000 pounds, or practically one-sixth the total production of milk in the United States.

Consumption of tea in the United States is practically 57,000,000 pounds or approximately 21,000,000,000 cups. The quantity of cream used in tea averages only one-half that in coffee or one-half ounce per cup, or a total in terms of milk of over 3,000,000,000 pounds.

Making liberal allowances for the use of milk in coffee and tea or of half milk and half cream, there still would be more than one-eighth the total production of milk used in these two beverages. The department's survey also brought out the fact that one-tenth the sugar consumed for all purposes in the United States is used in coffee and tea, the quantity thus consumed being 800,000,000 pounds a year.

Consumption of Cream and Milk Is Increased

Consumption of fluid milk and cream in both farm and city homes has been increasing rapidly for several years, a survey just completed by the United States Department of Agriculture indicates. Average consumption in 1923 was 53 gallons, compared with 50 gallons in 1922, and 49 gallons in 1921. The average daily consumption in 1923 figures out 1.6 pints per person.

Farm people who have producing cows consume more milk and cream than do city people, but farm people without cows or with nonproducing cows, consume less than do city people the survey shows. Average daily per capita consumption on farms having cows was 1.78 pints in 1923; on farms without cows or having nonproducers the average consumption was .775 of a pint, and in city homes the per capita daily consumption averaged .87 of a pint.

The farm figures were tabulated from approximately 30,000 schedules of consumption on individual farms, and represent the most comprehensive survey ever made of milk and cream consumption. Data on consumption in cities were obtained principally from boards of health and covered nearly 300 cities, or about 25,000,000 people.

Dairy Cow's Requirements

A dairy cow's requirements are measured by her body weight and milk production. An average dairy cow giving a good flow of milk requires about 30 pounds of silage and 15 pounds of alfalfa or clover hay besides a grain ration of from 6 to 10 pounds. Some farmers have the idea they do not need a silo because they have alfalfa or clover. This is a great mistake and a most wasteful and incorrect conception of feeding. Legume hay is not a balanced food.

For all the news, read the Courier.

ROAD BUILDING

SOUTH CAROLINA TO BUILD HIGHWAYS

Another motoring field is to be opened to motorists of the Middle West as South Carolina has authorized construction of a state-wide road system to rival the fine highway system which is winning North Carolina fame all over the country. Construction of the "Dixie A" highway from Chicago through Kentucky to North Carolina will hook up South Carolina also with all the West.

Under the highway act of 1924 the South Carolina Highway department is authorized to proceed upon construction of roads which will fill out the unimproved states in a system which will include 4,437 miles of roads. Construction and maintenance work have been done since the highway department was organized, and the effect of the highway act of this year will be to complete the network of highways which have been only partially built.

The highway commission is given the right to make further additions to the system under the act, but the commission believes that the general assembly in designating specifically in the act certain routes, intended that the designated system should be improved and paid for before other additions are made, save those which for good reasons the commission deems imperative.

Additions to the state highway system will be considered only at meetings of the commission. It was decided by that body at a recent meeting. At this time the department has under maintenance a total of 3,052 miles of highways. Federal aid claimed up to June 1 amounted to $5,470,293.00 for highway purposes from the beginning of the federal aid period. Under the so-called "pay-as-you-go" plan the construction will be paid for from 1 cent of the gasoline tax and dog fee automobile and truck license taxes.

Rubber for Pavement Is Suggested by Ohio Firm

The newest material suggested for street paving is rubber. It may be a by-product or refuse from the big tire factories but it will be a rubber preparation. The coming generation may see rubber stones, wood, wire or disc wheels, and fabric tires in museums only.

On his way to view those "relics" the motorist of the future may be rolling over rubberized roads, on balloon tires and rubber-spoked wheels. This is what certain big firms in Akron, Ohio, are planning and experimenting for. The city of Akron has been asked to "appropriate" a street, for pavement by one of the large rubber manufacturers with some rubberized concoction to be tested for road wear and tear. It is based on an attempt to find some substance that will help make riding easier and more economical for the motorist.

Rubber pavement, is is argued, might even solve the skidding problem. For contrary to most people's idea rubber takes a firm hold against rubber. During wet weather, only the first film of rain would be dangerous, because of the underlying grease that is brought to the surface. But as soon as that grease is washed off, no amount of rain could make a rubber pavement skiddy.

Enormous Building Plan

If proof were necessary that the United States, which, thanks to the development of the motor vehicle, is now passing through the most intensive period of highway development in the history of the world, is building roads that surpass in quality anything of the kind constructed since the days of the Roman empire, that proof is to be found in abundance. It exists not only in the quality and quantity of American highways, but in the development of road building methods and materials. The road builders of this country have not only outstripped their ancient predecessors in the use of the most ancient materials, but are getting better results with greater speed, less labor and lower cost.

Concrete Paving Research

Announcement is made by Charles M. Upham, director of the advisory board on highway research of the national research council, that C. A. Hogentogler of the United States bureau of public roads has been granted leave of absence to conduct for the board a survey of the economic value of reinforcement in concrete pavements.

The survey will be national in scope, and will be conducted in co-operation with agencies interested in that subject. It is proposed to cover the various soils, traffic and climatic conditions throughout the United States.

Good Roads Notes

Experts declare that trunk highways should be capable of carrying any vehicular traffic that is economically justified.

The Pennsylvania highway department will attempt to break all highway construction records this year by laying 900 miles of improved roads.

Wyandotte county, Kansas, and the Kansas City Light and Power company will co-operate in lighting the Victory highway across Wyandotte county westward from Kansas City.

Get your Auction Bills now!

Charlevoix Hdw. Co.

Only Nineteen Shopping Days Before CHRISTMAS

Get ahead of the crowd and make your selection comfortably.

Our Christmas Goods Are Ready

Lots of practical, sensible things. Sleds, Skis, Skates, Radiolas, Beautiful Royal Rochester Ware, Electrical Helps, Silverware.

Surely Just the Articals You Want Are Here

Charlevoix Hardware Company

302 Bridge St Phone 1.

FALL and WINTER Egg-Production

is the basis of poultry profits. Feed your flock carefully in the fall if you would profit from them during the cold winter months when eggs are most profitable.

A dry mash such as

Blatchford's "Fill-the-Basket" Egg Mash

is your only hope for winter eggs. Scratch grains alone will not stimulate winter egg-production. Blatchford's Egg Mash is a high-protein, low-fiber, palatable feed. Keep it before them at all times. Only one pound per day per ten hens needed. The most economical mash feed on the market when considered by results. It fills the egg basket. Insist on Blatchford's.

Blatchford's Egg Mash is manufactured by the Blatchford Calf Meal Company of Waukegan, Illinois. They have been in business for over 120 years making quality feeds. They invite you to write them for Handy Egg Record, poultry literature, or personal poultry advice. They want to know you. Write today!

ARGO MILLING COMPANY
Charlevoix, Mich.

WELL, they tell us
THAT old Santa Claus
WILL soon be here and
THE gift season will be
UPON us before we know
IT which reminds us
THAT a lady in this TOWN told us yesterday
THAT she was going to GET her husband a nice
STRING of pearls for CHRISTMAS and that her
HUSBAND was going to
BUY her a shaving
OUTFIT—which is what
ONE might call practical
GIVING—but if the GIFT problem is going
TO bother you this
CHRISTMAS and you feel
A LITTLE discouraged
OVER the prospect
JUST drop in here at
OUR store, take plenty
OF time, make your own
SELECTIONS, and you'll
HAVE your gift shopping
DONE in a way that will
IMMENSELY please both YOURSELF and the RECIPIENTS.

Forest & Clarence

WOOD BROTHERS

Hardware & Electrical Supplies

Let The COURIER Sell IT for YOU

CHARLEVOIX COURIER

VOLUME 32. NUMBER 49 TEN PAGES COURIER, CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 9, 1925 PRICE $2.00 PER YEAR

CHANGE MADE IN INHERITANCE TAX

LITTLE TO BE COLLECTED UNDER THE NEW RULING

Probate Judge S. A. Correll Gives Courier Information as to How Law Applies

Through the courtesy of Judge of Probate, S. A. Correll, the Courier is able this week to present some interesting information in reference to inheritance taxes, especially the state tax. The legislature of 1925 made material changes in the law. Charlevoix county, under the former law, determined $9,171,65 in five years, an average of $1,834.33 annually. Under the new law there will be very little inheritance tax collected here.

The exemption for the widow, which under the old law was $10,000, has been increased to $30,000.

Under the former law, if the widow's legacy was $10,000 or more, the tax was one per cent not only on the excess over $10,000 but on the whole estate. Under the new law, the exemption for the widow is $30,000. If the estate is above this amount, the exemption still holds good and no inheritance tax levied on the first $30,000.

The exemption for a child who is an heir to any part of an estate has been fixed at $5,000. Under the old law there was really no exemption. In the case of a widow or children, one per cent inheritance tax is now levied on the excess of her interest in the estate over $30,000 and up to $50,000. If her interest in the state should exceed $50,000 and up to $250,000, she would be required to pay two per cent on the excess above $50,000.

In the case of children, one per cent will be levied on the excess they receive from an estate above $5,000 and up to $50,000. A tax of two per cent would be levied on all that a child received from an estate in excess of $50,000 and up to $250,000.

The scale of rates increases as the amount of the estate increases the rate being eight per cent from $750,000 up to $1,000,000, and for all in excess of the latter sum.

Collarterd heirs, that is, nieces, nephews, cousins, friends who are remembered in a will, etc., will pay a state inheritance tax of five per cent on all that they receive from the estate up to $50,000. In excess of $50,000 and up to $500,000 the tax is ten per cent. In excess of $500,000 the rate is fifteen per cent.

Under this law alien heirs will continue to pay a tax of 25 per cent but to this law there is an important exception. In the case of alien heirs from a county with which the United States has a treaty, as for illustratioo Canada, the inheritance tax laws are the same for aliens of that country as for citizens of Michigan.

The government also levies an inheritance tax on estates of $50,000 or more. The rate ranging nll the way from one per cent up to 40 per cent, for the excess of $50,000.

If these taxes are paid within one year after the death, there is a discount of 5 per cent; if within 18 months, no interest is charged. If after 18 months, interest at the rate of 8 per cent is charged from the date of death.

It is expected that congress will greatly reduce the rates on federal inheritance taxes making the maximum somewhere about 20 per cent or possibly 15 per cent, and starting with one per cent. There seems also to be a sentiment in congress in favor of reducing the government inheritance tax by the amount of such tax paid in the state where the deceased person resided and where his or her estate may have been probated.

Well Known Resorter Dies

We were informed last week of the death of Mrs. Wm. R. Linn, well known Chicago Club resorter and cottage owner, which occurred recently at San Gabriel ranch, in Al Calder New Mexico. Mrs. Linn was injured in an auto accident last summer from which she never fully recovered and death was probably hastened from this cause. Deceased was well known to residents of this city, having spent her summers here for the past 35 years. She was a very charitable woman and an active and financial supporter of Charlevoix's summer baseball teams. The body was taken to Chicago for burial.

ANNUAL MEETING ASSN. OF COMM.

WEDNESDAY DEC. 16 AT CHARLEVOIX HOTEL

Banquet, Election of Officers, Reports of Year's Activities Order of Evening

On next Wednesday, December 16th, the Charlevoix Association of Commerce will hold their annual meeting in the dining room of the Charlevoix Hotel where a banquet will be served to members in attendance. Officers for the ensuing year are to be elected and reports of the year's activities will be given by the various committees.

A financial statement showing where the money has been spent and for what purpose it was expended, along with the names of those who donated money for carrying on the 1925 advertising campaign will be given in detail. An effort is being made to secure an outside speaker for the occasion if possible.

For the past two years the hotel managers and owners, city council and the association of commerce have worked hand in hand in an effort to put Charlevoix on the map as a resort center. No one can doubt the success which has rewarded their endeavors. In 1924 Charlevoix had a normal summer in the face of adverse weather conditions and the fact that other resorts fell behind. The 1925 season was the best we have had since quite a number of years ago during the war period. This success is entirely due to the untirlng work of the members of the association of commerce and the results of a well conducted and extensive advertising campaign.

It is not necessary to state that all business men and members of the association are urgently requested to be present at the meeting next Wednesday evening. It is your duty to be there. Now that summer is over and the harvest safely tucked away, don't crawl into your shell and hibernate until next summer when the "grab bag" is open again. There is work to be accomplished at the present time along with matters of importance which are vital to everyone. Don't let a few do the work and then step out and profit from their efforts. Be there!

F. & A. M. ELECTED OFFICERS FOR 1926

At Meeting Held Tuesday Evening December 8th

At a meeting held in the Masonic temple on Tuesday evening, December 8th, Charlevoix Lodge, No. 282, F. & A. M., elected the following officers for the ensuing year.

W. M.—Ray Ashdon.
S. W.—George Beeman.
J. W.—Horace Fowler.
S. D.—Charles Sterritt.
J. D.—Richard Hall.
Treas.—E. J. Hiller.
Sec.—Henry Partridge.
Tyler.—Andy McCall, Jr.
Trustee—Frank Wilkinson.
Alt.—Leo Carey.

Holley Gift Shop for Toys, Dolls and numerous other gifts.—49-t2.

POSTMASTER TELLS WHEN TO POST CHRISTMAS MAIL

Christmas gifts and cards addressed to points within one day's travel should be mailed not later than December 20; within two days' travel, not later than December 18; within three days' travel, not later than December 16; for more distant points, not later than December 14. Parcels and cards for local delivery should be mailed not later than December 22.

PARCELS AND ENVELOPES MAY BE INDORSED "PLEASE DO NOT OPEN UNTIL CHRISTMAS."

The early mailing of Christmas cards in just as important as parcels. Millions of these cards, separate and in envelopes, are mailed each Christmas. Consequently great congestion and delay occurs in large post offices, where they are all mailed within a day or two of Christmas. Therefore, if you want your Christmas greetings to reach your relatives and friends on or before Christmas day, follow the instructions in the preceding paragraph relative to mailing early and be certain of delivery before Christmas.

The Christmas Shopper

WANT STATE TO HELP IN WORK

KEEPING ROADS OPEN IN WINTER A PROBLEM

Proposition Discussed at Meeting of Northern Michigan County Road Commissioners

About seventy-five people, including W. E. Byers, Ernest Peaslee, F. E. Cartier, H. A. Craig and William Wallace of this city, were present at a meeting of the Northern Michigan County Road Commissioners' association, held at the Wolverine Hotel, Boyne City, on Monday of this week.

The meeting was called to order by Hon. J. M. Harris of Boyne City, who, representing the Rotary club of that city, welcomed the visiting delegates. An address welcoming members of the association to the city was also given by its mayor, Dr. Guy C. Conkle. A. B. Backus of Harbor Springs, president of the association, then took the meeting in charge and business at hand was discussed in detail.

The principal speakers of the meeting were Hon. W. J. Pearson of Boyne Falls and Hon. J. M. Harris of Boyne City. The main object of discussion was that of the necessity of keeping highways of the county open for automobile traffic during the winter months; how such action could be brought about, and to effect an organization with that purpose in view strong enough to convince the state highway department to assist in the work financially when the matter is presented to them. Harris and Pearson have given their promise to put the question of further support up to the state administration, and how far we get in this direction depends upon how much pressure can be brought to bear on the highway department.

The state now gives just so much support to counties on the main trunk lines during the winter months to keep the highways clear of snow. The major portion of this support is given to counties on a line south of Cadillac, with the sum of around $20 a mile, to those counties north of that line to be used on trunk lines only. Two snow plows were demonstrated at the meeting Monday, one owned by the county and the other here on approval. Two or three plows like the ones shown, bought from year to year as funds allow, would solve Charlevoix County's winter road problem. No definite action was taken at the meeting except to bring about an organization in the territory with this end in view and bring before the public the need of their support behind Harris and Pearson in their efforts to convince the state department that we need more support in northern Michigan to keep our highwnys open to winter traffic.

It was brought out that the state might be persuaded to run their own plows north over the trunk lines after bad storms and the county could take care of the work after light storms.

Other subjects pertinent to road building and maintenance work were discussed and the delegates left the meeting feling that much had been accomplished toward the betterment of road conditions in the territory represented.

Expert shoe repair work by one of the most capable cobblers in the city. Campbell Boot Shop.—Adv. 49tf.

The Annual Toboggan Slide

DID YOU EVER CONSIDER THIS?

Think It Over Before Shouldering the Axe This Year

With Christmas near at hand and local citizens on the trail of a tree for the home, we have the annual complaint from land owners throughout the country relative to people trespassing upon their lands and cutting down their trees.

In our opinion they are fully justified in their stand. One tells us that a party entered his woods armed with axes and shotguns and, before leaving, cut down four or five trees to get the one that suited them best and shot one his cows in the bargain. Other reports of more or less destruction come from many different quarters.

The public takes too much for granted. Here in town you wouldn't let a person come into your yard and take some shrubs that he thought he would like to have for his own. Not on your life! Well, the trees in a farmer's woods are just as much private property as the shrubs on your lawn. Give him the same respect. Nine chances out of ten if permission is sought first, anyone will be allowed to enter the woods and secure his Christmas tree.

ROADS BUILT DURING YEAR 1925

TOTAL MILEAGE AMOUNTS TO 437 MILES

Figures Reveal That Over Half is of Hard Surface Construction —Now Have 2514 Miles

A dispatch from Lansing contains the following information in reference to highways and highway construction in 1924, 1925 and 1926.

"The state completed 437 miles of trunk line highways this year, according to a report just completed by the highway department. Of this, 251 miles were concrete or other hard surface; the remainder was gravel.

"The year's activities brought the total hard-surface mileage to more than one-third of the trunkline system, or 2,514 miles. The 1925 program, however, was modest as compared with the 849 miles—350 of which was concrete or hard surface—in 1924.

"Shortened finances, caused by the necessity of setting aside large sums for bond sinking funds and interest, meeting a deficiency appropriation, paying back state rewards and so forth, plus heavy expenditures on large projects with abnormally wide pavements and right of way, such as the wider Woodward Ave. improvement, was given as one of the reasons for the reduced program.

"Many state officials and members of the administrative board believe that the work completed in 1925 represents a large enough program to be undertaken in any one year.

"Aside from extraordinary projects paved ways averaged something more than $30,000 a mile and the gravel roads around $12,000. On this basis if all the mileage had been straight-away average width pavement and gravel, the state, counties and federal government would have expended between $10,000,000 and $11,000,000 for new construction.

"No figures as to the actual amount spent were available.

"The 1926 program is expected to show further slump, although increased highway finances, developed by the normal growth of the consumption of gasoline and the increase in the number of cars which will pay the weight tax, may ease the situation somewhat.

Christmas Party

The Lady Maccabees will hold a Christmas party at their hall on Tuesday evening, December 15th. Each member is requested to bring a ten cent present which will be hung on the Xmas tree and numbers drawn for disposition of the gifts. Come prepared to sing, dance or speak is order given and costumes will be that of a little girl. We predict a merry party.

Here's to the man who eats with the Brewsters,
Though he should not eat alone,
He should take his wife and six children for boosters,
'Twill be better than eating at home.
11 a. m. to 1 p. m.
If you don't know the place, just follow Santa Claus.—Adv. 49-tf.

Subscribe for the Courier.

BAIRD TAKES HAND IN COLLINS CASE

WILL CONDEMN LAND FOR STATE IF NECESSARY

Action Means Future of Fish Hatcheries and Conservation Work in State

In the last week's issue of the Courier we published an article commenting on the Collins-Gerhardt trespass case which has gained state-wide attention of late. It seems that we are not the only ones interested and that the state conservation department has now stepped in and will take a hand in the affair. Last Thursday John Baird, director of the state department of conservation, announced that the state would seek to condemn for public purposes all lands held by private owners who prohibit fishing in waters passing through such property.

The new policy of the department was made known when Baird published a letter he had sent to Collins, asking him to set a fair price on the property and calling attention to an act passed by the 1921 legislature giving the state a right to condemn property for conservation purposes. (The same day the Michigan State Association of Farmers' Clubs adopted a resolution calling for a constitutional amendment if necessary to protect the public hunting and fishing rights.

"The recent action of Judge Lamb in setting aside the verdict of the jury in the Collins vs. Gerhardt case," Baird wrote Collins, "opens two distinct lines of action to this department:

"1. Abandonment of the fish hatcheries and discontinuance of all state fish planting.

"2. Acquiring through purchase so-called private waters from which the public is excluded and dedicating such waters as public fishing waters.

"Under provisions of section 3, act 14, public acts of 1921, the conservation commission has authority to buy or condemn lands adapted to any conservation usage. This provision will be used by the department as a means of obtaining state control of fishing spots from which the public is excluded. The alternative would be to abandon completely further propagation of fish in this state. The department cannot for a moment consider this latter action.

"We earnestly hope owners of such fishing areas will consent to sell their holdings to the state for a fair and reasonable price. We will invoke condemnation proceedings only where it is necessary to protect the interests of the state. Will you kindly advise me at your earliest convenience as to the price for which you will sell your lands adjacent to the Pine river in Lake county?"

Gov. Groesbeck has taken a decided stand with Baird and has intimated if the present laws were not sufficiently broad to cover the situation he would see that a special session of the legislature remedied the situation.

This decision on the part of the conservation department sounds good to us as well as all sportsmen

(Continued on Page 10)

FREE XMAS SHOW AT PALACE THEATRE

Santa Claus Will Be There and Give Presents to the Kiddies

As has been the custom for the past two or three years, the Palace Theater has announced though it's manager, Walker Miles, that they will again put on a free moving picture show for the benefit of the kiddies of Charlevoix and surrounding territory.

The picture to be shown this year is Charlie Chaplin in "The Idle Class." The name of Charlie Chaplin alone spells an afternoon of pleasure and excitement for the young folks. The picture will be given at the Palace Theatre on Christmas afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Arrangements have been made with the business men of the city and it has been announced that Santa Claus will be there in person and distribute candy and gifts to the children.

A special invitation is extended to the farm children to join their brothers and sisters and help them celebrate this joyful occasion.

Every Ford owner should have a Koolfast radiator on his car. Hundreds have made the change. We have them. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 49tf.

The Baby's Cold

Continual "dosing" with internal medicine upsets delicate little stomachs. Treat colds externally with Vicks. You just rub it on.

VICKS VAPORUB

* * * * * * * * * *
* CORRESPONDENCE *
* * * * * * * * * *

NORWOOD

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Tchoe, last Saturday, a daughter.

Rev. Conklin and wife were Norwood callers last Wednesday.

Mrs. Dick Kirby was taken to the Charlevoix hospital last Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Light and son, George, Jr., spent Sunday in East Jordan.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Jones of Atwood, spent Saturday at their own home near Norwood.

Mrs. Harris Pierce visited at the farm home of Chas. Ruber and family near Burgess, last Tuesday and Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Light and family, who have been in Charlevoix for the past month, are at their home in Norwood again.

Dr. McMillan was called to the home of Sam Routley last Tuesday for medical treatment. Mr. Routley is improving in health.

Barney Harrington, Bob Stafford and Chas. Wisner of Charlevoix have completed plastering the Publow cottage in Norwood this week.

Next Sunday morning at the regular hour for services at Norwood, Miss Estella Short will speak on the topic, "The Near East Relief Work." Everyone welcome.

You can afford to wear heavy wool winter garments at the price we are selling them to close out the line. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 47tf.

PHELPS

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Cooling and children were callers in our berg Saturday.

F. R. Klooster and Chas. Stevens were business callers in Charlevoix, Saturday evening.

Clint Blanchard and W. H. Henley were business callers in Ellsworth on Friday of last week.

Edward James returned home on Wednesday of last week from a two weeks' visit with relatives at Vassar and Bay City.

Another family has moved into our community by the name of Carpenter. They are living on the farm recently owned by Leslie Himebauck.

Mr. and Mrs. Marion Jackson and children from Ironton, visited at the Chas. Stevens home here Monday evening and returned home Tuesday morning.

Miss Esther Eckert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Eckert, who attends high school in Boyne City, spent the week end with her parents here.

Leslie Klooster and Weslie Manly, high school students at Ellsworth, are spending the week at their respective homes on account of the Ellsworth schools being closed because of scarlet fever and diphtheria epidemics.

Overcoats, Mackinaws, sheeplined coats, heavy pants, sweaters, leather vests and caps at cost price to close out the line. Benj. Brown—Adv. 47tf.

CLARION

J. W. Colden has been quite ill for the last week.

The Ladies' Aid met at the home of Mrs. Cora Hinkley on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Palmer and children spent Thanksgiving at Traverse City.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Fass and Mrs. Linehan of Harbor Springs, were in town on Saturday.

Mrs. Jessie Planck of Detroit, was called here on Sunday by the sudden death of her mother.

Mrs. R. H. Webster came up from Flint on Sunday to attend the funeral of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Hinkley.

Mrs. N. C. Griswold returned Sunday from a few days visit with her mother, Mrs. Akers of Traverse City.

Mr. and Mrs. Pilstner and family have returned from Boyne City, where they have been for several weeks.

The community dinner at the town hall on Thanksgiving was well attended. The school children gave a short program in the afternoon.

Wear wool garments and keep warm this winter. We are selling them below cost to close out the line. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 47tf.

EVELINE

Mrs. Kemp has gone to Detroit for the winter.

Dr. McMillan was called to attend Mrs. Curtis, who is on the sick list.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherman spent last Sunday in Charlevoix with Mr. and Mrs. Ogden.

A new baby arrived at the Patrick home at the Eveline orchards on Thanksgiving Day.

Mrs. Skow from Ellsworth, has been visiting neighbors and friends here. She stayed with Mrs. John Nasson for a week. Mr. Skow came and spent a couple days here also.

We sell Koolfast Radiators for Fords because we believe they are the best radiator on the market today. Benj. Brown. —Adv. 49tf.

* * * * * * * * * *
* OF INTEREST TO FARMERS *
* By B. C. Mellencamp *
* * * * * * * * * *

Charlevoix, the Best Co-op. County

The following article from a recent issue of "The Michigan Potato Exchange," is of interest to Charlevoix county.

"Seventy-five per cent of the potatoes shipped from Charlevoix county last year, were sold to the Exchange. Charlevoix county, therefore, with respect to potatoes at least, is the best Co-op. county in Michigan. The total number of cars shipped was 155. Of these, 120 cars were loaded by the association at East Jordan, Boyne City and Charlevoix and sold by the Exchange.

Other potato shipping counties with the percentages of co-operative sales are, Benzie, 73 per cent; Lake, 56 per cent; Delta, 54 per cent; Missaukee, 45 per cent; Antrim, 36 per cent; Midland, 35 per cent; Grand Traverse 28 per cent; Emmet, 27 per cent; Osceola and Wexford, 25 per cent; Leelanau, 21 per cent; Montcalm, 18 per cent; and Mecosta, 17 per cent.

Last year there were three towns, Beulah, White Cloud and Harrietta, that were 100 per cent co-operative, The associations at Hillman and Escanaba missed one car each and at Charlevoix only two carloads went to cash buyers.

Poultry School Well Attended

The two-day poultry school held at Boyne City on December 2nd, and 3rd, was one of the most instructive and interesting meetings held in the county. A total attendance, considering there were four different meetings, that is forenoon and afternoon sessions of each day. The entire field of poultry was discussed and many useful hints were received.

Several of the most important suggestions given, were that yellow corn and wheat equal parts as a Scratch Feed excels anything on the market today and all other grains added would lower the value of it. If you have oats or buckwheat, never have over one quarter by weight of the above and three quarters corn and wheat. The best laying mash is equal parts of corn, oats, middlings, bran and meat scraps. If you have milk, you can lower the percentage of meat scraps, but do not take it all out. In addition, add 2 per cent limestone or marl, 2 per cent acid phosphate (fertilizer) and 1 per cent salt.

As a means of improving the health and vigor of your flock, warding off diseases, and increasing their egg-laying, feed at least one pound of cod liver oil to 100 birds, in your laying mash once a week or twice a week is better. Also feed the chicks cod liver oil as much and sometimes more than adults.

Suggestions such as these, are given at meetings of this kind and are always worth while to those interested in securing the best results with their flock.

OH! MY BACK!

Aching Backs Make Life Miserable For Many Charlevoix People

It isn't right to suffer day in and day out with dull, unceasing backache. Or be utterly miserable with sharp stabs of pain whenever you stoop or lift. But chances are you will suffer these tormenting aches and pains as long as your weakened kidneys are neglected. You may have headaches, too, spells of dizziness and urinary disorders. Then use Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. Experiences of Charlevoix people prove the merit of Doan's.

W. H. Guild, prop. "Fixit" shop, 109 Antrim St., Charlevoix, says: "I had an attack of backache and kidney trouble and was so bad, I had to stop work entirely. Sharp, stabbing pains darted across my kidneys when I turned quickly. Finally I got so I could hardly get out of my chair. My kidneys acted irregularly, too. Nothing seemed to give me any relief until I used Doan's Pills. One box cured me."

60c, at all dealers. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

We will allow you $2.50 on your old Ford radiator and install a new Koolfast, the best on the market. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 49tf.

Christian Science Society

Sunday services, 11:45 a. m., subject, "God the Preserver of Man."

Sunday school, 12:00.

Wednesday evening service, 7:45 p. m.

The public is cordially invited to use our reading room and attend the services.

W. E. Parmelee builds storm windows.—Adv. 37-tf.

This is the Time to buy your Better Buick

Buy now, the Better Buick you had intended to buy in the spring. Have it standing at the door when Christmas morning dawns. Give your family the pleasure and surround them with the safety of the Better Buick's easier starting and safer control for the winter months.

BUICK MOTOR CO., FLINT, MICHIGAN
Division of General Motors Corporation

The Better BUICK

Heaton & Hooper, Boyne City, Mich.

An 85% Egg Yield

is possible only through proper feeding. Proper feeding specifies the use of both scratch grains and egg mash. Of the two, insist upon the egg mash at least being strictly a quality article. The highest quality egg mash upon the American market is

Blatchford's "FILL-THE-BASKET" EGG MASH

It contains 17 ingredients, 25% of which are milk or meat feeds. Your success is assured if you use this feed as directed. It is simple and economical to feed. One pound is enough for a flock of 10 hens per day.

Blatchford's Egg Mash is manufactured by the Blatchford Calf Meal Company of Waukegan, Illinois. They have been in business for over 120 years making quality feeds. They invite you to write them for Handy Egg Record, poultry literature, or personal poultry advice. They want to know you. Write today.

Every bag guaranteed
It will pay you to get Blatchford's
Accept no substitutes

ARGO MILLING COMPANY
Charlevoix, Mich.

Christmas Gift Bargains

Pre-Christmas Sale of Gift Goods

Our Gift to You--- A Tremendous Slash in Prices

An event that affords most unusual opportunities to buy many of your Gifts at prices much under regular. Our line of Men's Overcoats, Mackinaws, Leather and Sheep-lined Coats and Vests, Sweaters, Heavy Pants and Caps must be closed out to make room for a larger line of auto accessories. The original cost of this merchandise is no object. We are determined to close out the line regardless of price, and right at the time of Christmas buying we are are offering you the greatest values in this line ever offered by any merchant in Charlevoix. Our gift to you will be in the form of a great slash in price on atricles the men folks and boys will appreciate as gifts. Just how much you can save during this sale depends upon the price of the article you buy. But no matter what it is, the saving will be worth your while. The stock offered is the same we have always kept in stock—no shelf worn goods—and our guarantee stands back of every article we sell. You will probably never have another chance to buy at prices we offer listed below:

MACKINAWS

When you see them you will wonder how we can sell Mackinaws of the quality these represent at the phenomenally low price of $9.00 and $5.00.

The best heavy, all wool Mackinaws, 12.00, all placed on sale for.....$9.00

Good wool Mackinaws, values from $7.00 to $10.00, all placed on sale for.....$5.00

SHEEP-LINED MACKINAW COATS

Made of the best quality of goods and a coat that will give you years of service. You have never had a chance to buy a coat like these at prices we offer them:

Assortment of Sheep-lined Mackinaw Coats
$18.00 values, our sale price.....$13.50

Assortment of Sheep-lined Coats
$15.00 and $16.00 values, sale price.....$10.00

Assortment of Sheep-lined Coats
$12.00 values, sale price.....$8.00

Sheep-lined Vests, $5.00 values, for.....$3.00

MEN'S KERSEY PANTS

Garments made by the Soo Woolen Mills, Alpena Mills and other manufacturers, the kind those spending their time out-of-doors like to wear, we will sell any pair in stock for one dollar less than they are regularly sold. This is an opportunity that will not be offered again.

BOYS' CAPS

Boys Caps, all kinds and sizes. Every man or boy likes a good warm cap. Here is your chance to buy one practically at cost price.

Assortment of Men's and Boys' Caps
Our sale price.....25c, 50c, 75c and $1.00

Another assortment of Men's and Boys' Caps at ONE HALF OFF.

MEN'S ALL-WOOL OVERCOATS

We have an assortment of Men's All-Wool Overcoats, the finest that money can buy. All we ask is for you to choose your size and style and we will make the PRICE TO SUIT YOU.

MISCELLANEOUS SALE ITEMS

Our complete line of Horse Blankets, Robes, Rain Coats, Stock Foods, etc., are included in our close-out sale, and prices are cut accordingly.

SUGGESTIONS FOR MEN AND BOY GIFTS

Just a few Gift reminders that will be found in our regular stock suitable for Men and Boys: Underwear, Shirts, Men's Pants, Sweaters, Overalls, Jackets, Gloves and Mittens.

TRUNKS, SUIT CASES, BAGS

Substantial built bags that will withstand the hardest knocks of travel yet always look good. Suit Cases of the very best and those moderately priced. Trunks of all kinds. Either of these will make a suitable gift for any member of the family. They are moderately priced, too.

DO YOUR SHOPPING EARLY!

Largest and most complete line of Auto Accessories, Tires Tubes, Skid Chains, auto parts and ignition supplies in Charlevoix County.

Benj. Brown

Agency for the Willard Storage Battery. We also carry a complete line of battery parts. Bring in your batteries to us for charging and winter storage.

Christmas Giving and Being Happy

How Yuletide Problem Was Solved in Most Satisfactory Manner.

By KATHERINE EDELMAN

JOHN WARNER and his wife sat talking in the living room of their little bungalow until the clock on the mantel struck the midnight hour.

"Good gracious John!" Ellen said, "I had no idea that it was so late."

"That's because you were so interested, dear," John answered; "when it comes to making plans for Betty you forget time and everything else."

Ellen reddened ever so slightly. She knew that what John said was true, for ever since Betty had come to them, now nearly six years ago, her whole life had been wrapped up in the child. Hers was such a passion of motherlove that sometimes she grew almost frightened at its intensity, and often when John had laughingly teased her about forgetting him for Betty her conscience smote her.

And now she had talked John into letting her buy the big doll that had been in Harwell's window since the holiday season opened. John had tried to tell her that the small gifts they had already purchased would be enough for Betty, but finally he had given in to her pleading. She agreed with him that twenty dollars was a big sum to spend for a doll, but Betty was Betty and deserved it.

For the Warners were poor—not poor in the utter, abject poverty that flaunts its face to the world unshamed—but poor in the poverty that means worn and threadbare carpets, clothing grown thin and shiny from long usage, and a careful pausing before the spending of an unnecessary penny. Somehow, since Betty came they had never been able to get ahead; there was always something needed for Betty and she had always gotten it.

Next morning Ellen left the house early, with the wonderful twenty dollars in her purse. Betty had been left next door, all unconscious of the errand her mother was on. Half way to town two women entered the car and sat back of Ellen. They were of the loud, overbearing type of women, overdressed and contemptuous of those who possessed little of material things. Scraps of their conversation came to Ellen at times through the maze of her busy thoughts.

"I think it's perfectly awful, I do," one of them was saying, "the way some women do. It's really sinful in these days to be dowdy. A woman's got to wear good clothes to be anybody, and believe me, it's the dowdy women who walk alone."

"You've just said it," her companion answered. "As I tell George when he kicks about the bills, a woman has got to dress nowadays or get nothing out of life."

The words sank into Ellen's brain as her eyes were scanning an advertisement at a crossing: "Be fair to yourself, buy your millinery at Madam Courteau's." And as other words of that ilk floated back from the women they began to stir up a queer feeling inside of Ellen Warner.

Her glance traveled to her dress, her shabby, mended gloves, and her face began to burn as she thought of the little hat she was wearing. She tried to shake off the feeling that was upon her and to get her mind back on her mission, but somehow everything seemed different now in the light of the strange unrest that was filling her heart. "Was she a little fool, as these women had said. Was she fair to herself? Had she, in the little mean things that were her everyday portion and which until now had seemed to her veritable things of delight, cheated herself out of all that meant so much to other women? Had she really been fair to herself in sacrificing so much for her child?"

The car pulled up with a jerk. She alighted quickly and made her way toward Harwell's. Suddenly she stopped short. A sign overhead caught her eye: "Be fair to yourself—buy your millinery at Madam Courteau's." Then her gaze traveled to the window with its array of tempting millinery. And as she gazed her breath began to come quickly, her hands to open and close with nervous, twitching movements. For a little hat in a dull shade of blue caught her eye. She was gazing at it fascinated, for as the sun outshines the stars, so to Ellen did this particular hat eclipse all the others in the window. Somehow, it seemed to her at that moment as if she had been wanting a hat like that all her life. The little pink rosebuds that nestled around the crown seemed to call and beckon to her, and almost before she realized what she was doing she was inside the store and asking to see the hat. The saleslady, with all the art that was hers, placed it with a skillful touch on Ellen's head. And as Ellen looked in the great mirror she saw a face that was flushed to a rose-pink with excitement, and above it the much-wanted hat, which seemed to be a very part of herself, so thoroughly becoming it was. She wanted the hat so bad! The soft, lovely colors brought out all the charm of her fair loveliness and she thought how much John would like to see her as she looked now. The thought of her husband brought another thought to her, too. Perhaps all these years, while they had been sacrificing and skimping, he, too, had wished for and wanted many things. Surely he must have! Not, perhaps, things like women cared for, but other little luxuries that many of her friends had. She remembered now how longingly he had often looked toward the golf links—what a big thing it would be if Christmas would bring him the things necessary to play the game. The city maintained a free course not far from their home. And if she wanted so badly to spend twenty dollars for a hat, surely John, who was seeing and hearing things every day, must often have wanted something pretty badly, too. She thought now how wonderful he had always been—never a word of complaint, but always cheery and happy. She realized now, with a bitter feeling at her heart, that she had not been fair to him—she had given their child more than her share of the little they had. But from now on things were going to be different—John must have the best. Betty had many years ahead to enjoy things, and besides she realized now it did not take expensive gifts to please children.

With hands that trembled Ellen reached up and took the hat from her head and, not daring to look at it again, hurriedly left the store.

That Christmas was a very happy one for the Warners. For, although Betty did not get the big doll, she seemed just as pleased and happy as a child could well be. And Ellen felt a new glow at her heart when she presented John with his Christmas gift, for he was as jubilant as a boy about it. Her sacrifice had been indeed worth while—what did a becoming hat matter when put beside the happiness she felt just now?

But the good Christmas fairy must have been watching all, for an hour later John's boss called up to wish him a merry Christmas and to tell him that Old Man Jinson was going to resign and that John would have his place. A wonderful Christmas surprise it was, for it meant an extra five hundred a year to the Warners. Which made it probable that Ellen got her much-wanted hat, after all.

(©, 1926, Western Newspaper Union.)

A Gift Suggestion.

A pretty little Christmas gift is a towel holder, made in the same way as the elastics. Make two strips of the band, one a little longer than the other, and wind ribbon of the same shade on two large embroidered hoops and one small one. Join to the bands, small one at the top and large ones on the bottom. Run white ribbon through the bands and finish with bows at the top of hoops. This is also nice as a tie rack or hair ribbon holder.

For all the news, read the Courier.

Made for You!

The greatest picture of all times — Screendom's supreme achievement. Crowded from beginning to end with all those things which please you most.

Just below the surface smouldered a sullen discontent, needing but the slightest thing to fan it to an all-consuming blaze. A dashing young noble looked with eyes of desire upon a beautiful dancing girl,—a child of the people—and then—!

YOU MUST SEE IT!

Benefit of the Normal Class
Palace Theatre
December 10th and 11th

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

Council Chambers, Dec. 7, 1925

The Common Council of the city of Charlevoix met on the above date with Mayor Bergeon presiding. Aldermen present: Eckinger, Livingston, Madill, Partridge, Parmalee.

Minutes of meeting held November 23, were read and with one correction made were approved.

Moved by Ald. Partridge, seconded by Ald. Livingston, that further consideration of bids on Wood and Carpenter buildings be deferred to next meeting of council to be held December 14th. Motion carried.

The finance committee submitted the following report having examined the following bill aggregating $11,018.53, find them correct and recommend they be allowed.

December 7, 1925

To the Honorable:

The Mayor and Common Council of the City of Charlevoix.

Gentlemen:

Your finance committee having examined the following bills report the same correct, and recommend they be allowed and the clerk authorized to issue orders for the same.

Contingent Fund
Burroughs Adding Mach. Co. care of adding machine	$ 5.55
Gregory Mayer & Thom. Co. 4 drawers letter file	23.50
Sam Hamilton, telegrams	.92
Park Fund
Char. Lbr. Co., posts	13.30
Police Fund
J. B. Anderson, services	42.00
Advertising Fund
Char. Assn. of Com., Adv.	253.30
Water Fund
Benj. Brown, supplies	19.00
Robt. Mitchell, supplies	7.03
Elmer Pool, labor	40.25
Char. Hdw. Co., supplies	6.17
Sanitary Eng. Co., supplies	2.50
Traverse City Iron Works, supplies	107.60
Mueller Co., supplies	11.71
Will Spade, labor for Wyers	6.00
Dan Spade, labor for Wyers	15.50
Forest Bluck, labor for Wyers	4.00
C. Howe, labor for Wyers	18.00
Ralph Vanhouten, labor for Wyers	4.25
Bert Alcox, labor for Wyers	13.00
Chas. Alexander, labor for Wyers	22.50
James Wyers, labor for Wyers	59.50
Geo. H. Wyers, to apply on contract	50.00
Interest and Sinking Fund
City Treasurer, transfer to State Bank	10,000.00
Electric Fund
Edward O'Neill, supplies	38.35
H. R. Fowler, supplies	1.00
Scully Steel & Iron Works, supplies	2.80
Wood Bros., supplies	11.67
Central Garage, supplies	.50
Western Elec. Co., supplies	12.13
Edison Electric Appliance Co., supplies	11.70
Char. Hdw. Co., supplies	5.19
C. N. Bridge, Holm Assign. unloading coal	26.45
Char. County Bank, exchange on bonds	1.10
P. M. Ry. Co., freight on coal	182.56

Moved by Ald. Livingston, seconded by Ald. Parmalee that bills be allowed and mayor and clerk authorized to issue orders for same. Motion carried by the following aye and nay votes, Aldermen Eckinger, Livingston, Madill, Partridge, Parmalee. Nays none.

Move by Ald. Livingston, seconded by Ald. Eckinger that the Mayor be authorized to negotiate with Charlevoix Golf Association for supplying electric power current to its water pumping station on the following basis:

That the city construct transmission line to corporation line at Godbold's corner. The association to construct its line from such corporation line to the pumping station at its own expense including necessary transformers and mensuring meter. Rate for current to be the prevailing rate for power current in the city during the season of actual use. If the city should later use the association lines in extending its service to the east, then the association to be re-embursed by the city for the use of that part of the association lines located on Petoskey avenue. Such re-embursement to be agreed upon by the city and the association if possible. Otherwise by submission to arbitration. Carried.

Moved by Ald. Parmalee seconded by Ald. Madill that the option given by Karl Kiefer to the city for certain water front on block 10, and dated October 10, 1925, be exercised and the Mayor and City Clerk be authorized to enter into contract for the purchase of the lands described on the terms and conditions of such option.

Motion carried by aye and nay vote as follow:

Ayes: Aldermen Livingston, Madill, Eckinger, Parmalee and Partridge. Nays none.

On motion of Ald. Madill council adjourned.

Chas. H. Lamphear, Clerk

One Week 'Till Christmas
He Gives Two Gifts
Who Seals With the

Tuberculosis Christmas Seal

For all the news, read the Courier.

Gift Hints

Here's a Score of Good Gifts For Every Member of the Family

To attempt to describe them all would use way too much space so we will content ourselves with telling you about a few, and cordially invite you to come here and see the others. We do know that whatever you may choose, the recipient will be well pleased with your selection.

His Shaving Needs

Christmas offers a splendid opportunity to give Him the shaving needs—Gifts that will cause him to think of you every day during the year. We have Safety Razors and Shaving Mirrors, just the kind he will appreciate.

Gift Perfumes

Fashion Favored Scents in daintily designed containers. These exquisite Perfumes make a most delightful Gift item. You may easily determine her favorite and we will do the rest. Prices from $2.50 to $8.00

Gift Things for Dressing Table

An item of [illegible] something that will make her remember your thoughtfulness in selecting her gift. We have Pyraline Toilet Sets in [illegible] Shell-tone, Manicure Sets and Picture Frames.

New Gift Cameras

A most delightful gift, and one that is certain to give more than the usual measure of entertainment the year round. An Eastman Kodak would make a splendid gift for any member of the family.

Gift Reminders for Those Out Shopping

Popular Copyright Books, Boy's and Girl's Books, Fountain Pens, Eversharp Pencils, Toilet Water, Manicure Sets, Mirrors, Brushes, Combs, Thermos Bottles, Pen and Pencil Sets, Christmas Cards, Christmas Tree Decorations, Wreaths and Ornaments, Candle Holders, Candles.

Perfumes, from ..... 60c to $1.50
Stationery from ..... 35c to $2.00
Cigars in Packages ..... 50c and up

Smoking Stands and Cigarette Cases

CENTREL DRUG STORE

B. A. HERMAN, Prop.

AUCTION SALE

of

Household Goods

The undersigned will sell at Public Auction at 208 West Upright, Charlevoix, on Saturday, Dec. 12

Commencing at 1:30 p. m., the following described property:

2 Oak Dressers	Oak Buffet
White Enameled Dresser	Center Table
Iron Bed and Springs	Perfection Oil Stove
Oak Bed and Springs	Good Steel Range
Kimball Piano	Renown Heater
3 Rocking Chairs	Victor Talking Machine
Davenport	3 Bedroom Stands
6 Dining room Chairs	Quantity of Dishes
3 Kitchen Chairs	Cooking Utensils
9x12 Tapestry Rug	Many other articles too numerous to mention.
6x9 Axminister Rug
Dining room Table

TERMS OF SALE

All sums of $10.00 or under, cash; all sums over $10.00, six months time will be given on good, approved, endorsed, bankable paper bearing interest at 7 per cent, payable at the Charlevoix State Savings Bank. Five per cent off for cash on all sums over $10.00. No property to be removed until terms of sale are complied with and all settlements must be made on day of sale.

Hugh R. Nelson, Prop.

ARCHIE LIVINGSTON, Note Clerk — W. E. BYERS, Auctioneer.

The CHARLEVOIX COURIER
issued every Wednesday at
CHARLEVOIX - MICHIGAN

DuBois & Usher, Publishers
A. J. Usher, Editor and Business Mgr.
Courier Building, Van Pelt Place

Entered at the Post Office in Charlevoix, Mich., as second class matter.

Member Michigan Press Ass'n.

Advertising Rates.

For advertising rates apply for schedule.

Notices of church or lodge socials and catertainments, where admission is charged, regular rates.

Obituary poetry, regular rates.

Card of Thanks, 25 cents.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

One copy, one year.....$2.00
One copy, six months.....$1.00
One copy, three months.....60

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATED

Mr. and Mrs. Dell Dutcher Host to Party of Friends.

A very pleasant time was enjoyed Monday evening, December 7, when about twelve couples, friends of Mr. and Mrs. Dell Dutcher, helped them celebrate their "China" wedding anniversary at their home on Antrim street. The arrival of the bunch was a complete surprise to the host and hostess.

The evening was spent in visiting and playing progressive pedro. The high honors in cards were carried off by Joe Gornell and Mrs. Chas. Marshell, winners of the first prizes for men and women respectively. Dainty refreshments were served at a late hour and the guests departed for their homes leaving a beautiful piece of chinaware as a remembrance of the occasion.

Personal Christmas Cards for all members of the family and tree decorations at the Holley Gift Shop. Adv. 49-t2.

* * * * * * * * * * *

HOSPITAL NOTES

* * * * * * * * * * *

Mrs. Vern Train of Onaway, was operated on at the Hospital the first of the week.

Mrs. Ethel Kirby of Norwood, submitted to an operation last week.

Mrs. LeRoy Fitzpatrick of East Jordan, is in the hospital, receiving medical treatment.

Mrs. Elsie Chapman of Bellaire, was operated on last Friday.

Miss Wilma Hewitt of this city, was operated on for appendicitis the first of the week.

Miss Phylis Woerfel and her mother from East Jordan, both submitted to operations last Tuesday.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Howard Stevens of Horton Bay, last Wednesday, a baby daughter.

Mrs. Bancroft of East Jordan, was operated on last Tuesday.

Supt.'s Report for the month of November:

No patients admitted	7
No. patients discharged	11
No. days care of patients	134
Average No. per day	4
No. medical cases	1
No. surgical cases	5
No. accident cases	0
No. obstetrical cases	1
Births	1
Deaths	1
Highest No. any day	11
Lowest No. any day	4
No. meals served	1032
No. patients in hospital Nov. 1	9
No. patients in hospital Dec. 1	4

Koolfast Radiators, the kind that don't freeze, for Ford cars. $2.50 on your old radiator when we install a Koolfast. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 49tf.

M-11 TO BECOME A FEDERAL HIGHWAY

Will Be Known As United States Highway No. 31

Following is an announcement of great interest to Charlevoix as well as all other towns in northern Michigan served by trunk M-11.

"That M-11 will be taken over by the federal government late in 1926 and form part of a transcontinental highway was the announcement made by Frank V. Blakely, field representative of the Michigan Tourist & Resort association, to members of the Ludington trade bureau at Hotel Stearns last Thursday night. It will be known as United States highway No. 31. M-20, Saginaw to Ludington, is also designed as a federal highway."

We are of the opinion that this action will strengthen northern Michigan's claim to first consideration on the completion of paving this highway before other trunk lines in the state and will also aid financially in the maintenance and upkeep of the route.

McCools's Velvet Ice Cream now on sale at the Creamery Building, 105 Clinton street.—Adv. 45tf.

GREENFIELD QUARTET PLEASES AUDIENCE

Played to a Full House Last Wednesday Night

The Greenfield Orchestral Quartet which featured on the last number given by the Charlevoix Lyceum bureau at the Palace Theatre last Thursday evening, December 3rd, played to a full house.

With first-class artistry the quartet presented classical and semi-classical ensemble selections, varying with popular numbers. Miss Edith Greenfield featured with violin solos and Miss Mollie Greenfield with piano solos. The playing of the two sisters was highly enjoyed by all. Saxaphones were employed in the numbers given by the Greenfield brothers but not as "jazz" instruments. They showed that, as they played them, the saxaphone is capable of beautiful harmonic effects.

In all the program was highly enjoyed by the largest audience which has attended any of the lecture course numbers so far this season and those sponsoring the program will appreciate a continuance of the interest shown last Thursday evening.

Pies, cakes, cookies, rolls, Fancy work, candies, luaches and dolls; Christmas wreaths, canned goods and everything fine, We'll be there to do business at half after nine— The Mary Brewster Circle at Wood Brothers.—Adv. 49-t1.

Shoes properly repaired and the best of leather used. Campbell Boot Shop.—Adv. 49tf.

WIRING SYSTEM
for 1925
WOOD BROTHERS
—Adv. 43tf.

Today is the time to order those Christmas Cards. Exclusive sample line at this office.—Adv. 47t4.

Holley Gift Shop will be open evenings from December 14th to Christmas.—Adv. 49-t2.

Remember the Mary Brewster Christmas Sale, Saturday at Wood Brothers.—Adv. 49-t1.

Warning

The cutting of Christmas trees on property owned by Coulter Bros. is strictly prohibited. The first offender apprehended will be prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law. Keep off. E. N. Coulter.—Adv. 49t1. pd.

DRIVE FOR CANNED FRUIT A SUCCESS

Hospital Board Thanks All Those Who Donated

The hospital board and Miss Larsen, superintendent, wishes to thank all those who so generously responded to the appeal made for canned fruits and jellies for the Charlevoix hospital. The drive was made on Tuesday of this week by various committees and the amount gathered far exceeded any of previous years.

This tends to show the good will and spirit of the people towards the hospital. Appeals of this nature have always been generously met and the spirit shown has contributed greatly to the success of the local institution.

The board also wishes to thank the ladies of the hospital auxiliary, the churches, the schools, and all those who helped to make this drive a splendid success.

Your old radiator is worth $2.50 when we intsall a Koolfast on your Ford. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 49tf.

McCools's Velvet Ice Cream now on sale at the Creamery Building, 105 Clinton street.—Adv. 45tf.

BASKETBALL PLAY AT HOOKER'S GARAGE

West Side of Building Will Be Used Again This Year.

We are in receipt of the announcement that the high school athletic association has secured Hooker's garage again this year for the use of the basketball squad. Practice will commence as soon as the hardwood floor has been laid, and the boys are anxious to "be up and at 'em."

Last season excellent crowds attended every home game on the schedule and the attendance broke all previous records. It is hoped that the same spirit of support will prevail again this winter. Looking over the list of material for the team this year it appears that we will have a team as good if not better than last season and fans can be assured of getting their money's worth at every game.

You will find high quality merchandise at reasonable prices at the Charlevoix Hdw. Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

Christmas greeting cards, exclusive line to select from, no duplicates. Engraved or plain. Call at the Courier office and look the line over. —Adv. 47-t4.

Next Years Christmas Tree

We wish you a
Very
Merry
Merry
Christmas
Not only this year but next year
too. And we want
to help to make a Merry
Christmas for you next
year. This much we know
—that if you will come in
and join our Christmas Savings Club for next year—and deposit regularly for fifty weeks
—that next December, when we mail you a nice fat Christmas
check, with 4% interest added in,
you will be as tickled as a kid with
a new pair of boots—and we also know you will thank us, and admit that—
it was one of the best things
you ever did

Charlevoix State Savings Bank

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

W. S. Richardson, President.
A. D. Crimmins, Vice President.
Archie Livingston, Cashier.
G. W. Richardson, Asst. Cashier.

W. E. Byers, Auctioneer

Twenty years experience in handling Auction Sales, both on farm and household goods.

Let Me Cry Your Sales

Phone me at Charlevoix or call the Charlevoix Courier, where all dates are made.

Cups for Lunch Furnished if Requested

SANTA CLAUS HEADQUARTERS

This Store For Christmas Shoppers

As the days pass and Christmas seems racing to meet us, much time and effort may be spared the Christmas Shopper if she will come to this store where everything has been done to make her shopping problems easy. You may come here with the assurance that what ever gift you may choose it will be of a quality and a style that will appeal instantly to the recipient. Note the following suggestions—and this store will be crowded with others:

Put These on Your List

Just a few suggestions for making your shopping easier. Note the prices.

Hickock Belts and initial buckles, at —
$1.50—$2.00—$3.00

—o—

Holiday boxed Garters, at 50c

—o—

Under the arm Bags—very new—at—
$3.50 AND $5.00

—o—

Silk Shirts—in plain or fancy colors, at—
$5.00 AND UP

Very Special

Unusual values at unusual Prices

Lingetee Bloomers, for $1.00
Fibre Silk Vests, for $1.00
Fibre Silk Bloomers, for $2.00
Extra large Bath Towels, for 50c

Women's Gifts

It will be a real pleasure to select her gift here.

Wool Scarf, for $3.00
Silk Bloomers, for $5.00
Silk Vests, for .....$1.95 and $3.00
Silk Hose, for .....$1.50 and up
Silk Gloves, for .....$1.00 and $1.50
Silk Combinations, for .....$3.50 and $5.00

Gifts for the Children

Whether your list be large or small, you will find this store equipped to provide all those loved by children. Prices and quality are right.

FOR BOYS

WOOL MITTENS for 50c
SWEATERS for .....$3.75 and $5.00
WOOL HOSE for .....75c and $1.00
STOCKING CAPS for .....$1.00 and $1.50

FOR GIRLS

BOXED HANDKERCHIEFS for .....25c and 50c
HAND BAGS for $1.00
SWEATERS for $3.75
GLOVES for 75c
CAPS and SCARFS for $2.00, $2.50, $3.00

Men's Gifts

Please him Christmas morning with a gift of real value.

Bath Robes, for $5, $7.50, $10.00
Silk Socks, for .....75c and $1.00
Ties, for $1.00
Handkerchiefs, for 10c, 25c, 50c
Belts with Initials, for .....$1.50 and $2.00
Gloves, for .....$2.00 and $3.00

HOLIDAY BOXES FOR SALE

Things to Remember

Here are gifts that are always acceptable. The prices invite attention.

Reindeer Leather Jackets for Ladies or Men. Either tan or grey, at.....$15.00

—o—

Silks in all grades at the lowest prices. Sweaters for ladies and men in the pull-over style and also button, at—
$5.00 AND UP

—o—

TOWEL SETS in Holiday Boxes at—
$1.00 AND $1.50

Real Bargains

These will make excellent Gifts

Full Fashioned Pure Silk Hose, for $1.50
Ladies' Fine Sateen Underslips, at $1.50
Ladies' Overblouses in English Broadcloth, at.....$2.50

M. A. Levinson & Co.

Neighbors

By
ROBERT STEAD

Author of
"The Cow Puncher," "The Homesteaders"

WNU Service
Copyright by Robert Stead

(Continued from Page 3)

the woolen mill. I glanced over them with casual interest and as I did so a loose slip fell from the pages. I picked it up from the floor and found a number of lines in Jean's handwriting:

When through the livelong day I sigh
And ponder on my sad estate,
I would my Nemesis defy
And burst the bounding cords of Fate.

Now would I tear each bond away;
Now would I risk your sad reproof;
Come, let us live and love who may:
Come to me. . . . Spoof.

"So it has come to that," I said to myself. "Lovesick doggerel!" I crushed the sheet of paper in my hand in a rage, even while a hot flush of color ran up my face at the realization of the fact that I had read something never intended for other eyes—for my eyes least of all. So she could tear the bonds away; she could risk his "sad reproof"; she could do anything but find words to fill out the feet of the last line. "Come to me. . . . Spoof!" With a sudden stabbing at my heart the question interrogated me. Could Jean be ingenious enough to use those dots, after the manner of one modern writers, to suggest something which she shrank from saying in plain English?

• • • • • • •

I resolved to have it out with Jean. There was no sense in letting things go on like this. Jean had happiness within her grasp, for the taking, but she persisted in writing moonstruck doggerel to a man who apparently cared no more for her than for the post that marked the corner of his section. Spoof's continued and deliberate neglect—I called it neglect now—admitted no other explanation.

I spent a wakeful night thinking about this, and toward morning I got up and retrieved the crumpled bit of paper which I had thrown into a corner of the kitchen. I spread it out and read the lines again. A night of reflection had worn the edge from my indignation, and I adjudged that, from an artistic point of view, the verses were perhaps not as hopeless as I had thought them. Indeed, they suggested a certain germ of possibility. A little development—suggestion on my part, encouragement on my part, a little of the play, oh and I don't know what I could work up. Well, I'd try it on Jean. I took a piece of paper and wrote underneath Jean's and then sat out hunting for rhymes for it. Oh, I could think of only two "dove" and "love." None of these seemed to [illegible] treatment.

Suddenly a wave of memory rushing in from some hidden cave of drifting among old scenes and events at the bottom of my mind. It was a night of mine to keep my old school books—I only [illegible] that Miss Offer years I might read and appreciate the little gems of literature which, with the assistance of a phlegmatic teacher, I cordially hated when a child. Here it was—an old Ontario reader with a sensational story about an Indian woman who killed a bear with a butcher knife, or some such weapon. My sympathy, I remember, had always been with the bear, doubtless because of the picture which was made to represent the Indian woman. I had read this story again and again, when all other passages in the book had failed to interest me, and some little long-forgotten cell of memory told I would find a fragment of paper tucked between these pages. Sure enough, there it was! I drew it out eagerly, but tenderly and almost reverently, and held it under the lamp. How that strange, childish scrawl seemed to run all over my heart and pucker it into little gasping pockets! I could feel a thumping between my lungs and the hard beating of my pulse went throbbing through the paper in my fingers.

When I am old
And very tall
I hope my name
Will be Mrs. Hall.

A mist came up out of the past and blurred the scrawly letters until they swam before my eyes and failed out of sight. They had carried me back to the dear dead days of childhood—to that Eden of life which comes before the disillusionment which is the Fall. The years between had gone as with a gulp that filled my throat, and there we were little children playing together, solemnly uniting ourselves for the future under the witnessing sycamore of the great pine. That had been one of the great days in my life, and I had not known it then. I wonder how often we know the great day when it is actually upon us? But in that day I had drunk in something which had become part of my system; part of my flesh and bone and brain; part of my hope, my aspiration, my life. And now would I give it up? Never—never! I pressed the precious missive to my lips and suddenly the dam of my overwrought nerves gave way, and tears rushed down upon me. With a man's shame I would have checked them if I could, but the flood would not be stopped and there was no one to see. I fell on my bed and let the storm sweep over me.

After a while came calmness, and with that calmness the resolution which I recorded in the opening lines of this chapter. I would have it out with Jean. I would put up another fight for all that made life worth the living. I would not accept my fate; at least, I would not accept the fate to which Jean had resigned me. She would see! . . .

"So It Has Come to That," I Said to Myself. "Love-Sick Doggerel!"

But this was a battle which could not be fought in public, and I racked my wits for some way in which I might lay siege to Jean—alone. I hardly could ask Jack and Marjorie to get out of their own house while I subjected Jean to the main drive which was to break down her resistance; much less could I invite Jean to Fourteen for the same purpose. The prairies, with all their vast spaces, refused me just that one little niche of privacy I needed. As I turned the matter over in my mind a clever plan unfolded itself before me. I would make a sled and invite Jean to go coasting somewhere along the banks of the gully.—Then we would wander on and on, the farther the better.

Fortunately some boards remained of the table which had supported the wedding feast, and I went to work with a will. The reaction from inactivity was in itself a tonic to my spirits, and I found myself whistling an improvised tune which I fitted to the words, "When I am old and very tall, etc." Hope rebounded, as hope will, from its dip into despair, and I began to picture the shack on Fourteen as it would be under the loving care of "Mrs. Hall," and the joy that we would find in its seclusion. The winter months, which had been dragging so unutterably, suddenly threatened to be all too short.

I completed my sleigh and presented myself at the door of Twenty-two. Jack looked upon the vehicle with evident misgiving. I may have built it rather stoutly, but that was no reason why he should suggest that I hitch an ox to it.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Cut prices on all heavy winter garments to close out the line. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 47tf.

W. E. Parmelee builds storm windows.—Adv. 37-tf.

D. T. McHUGH
General Contractor
Phone 214
CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

WM. J. BOGART
CONTRACTOR and BUILDER
No Job Too Large
No Job Too Small
Phone 139 Charlevoix, Mich

R. B. ARMSTRONG
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Special Attention to Diseases of Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat
Priest Bldg. Phone 255

DR. F. F. McMILLAN
Physician and Surgeon
Office above Postoffice
Phone 17
Charlevoix - - Michigan

A. E. FITCH
ATTORNEY AT LAW
Office in Court House
Phone 48
Charlevoix - Michigan

VIRGINIA RYALL BROWN, D. C.
PALMER CHIROPRACTOR
PHONES:
Office 347 Residence 89
Postoffice Building

Seasonable Xmas Gifts

In Holiday Mood--The Store Abounds with Gift Suggestions

Come here shopping early and often. The values we offer will save you money—the gifts you select from our stock will prove most pleasing to the recipient and the convenience of shopping here will add to your pleasure of gift choosing.

For the Men	For the Ladies	For the Children
GLOVES	SCARFS	CAPS
HOSE	COLLARS	GLOVES
TIES	GLOVES	BLOUSES
SHIRTS	APRONS	UNDERWEAR
CAPS	BLANKETS	WOOL HOSE
HATS	HANDKERCHIEFS	LEATHER MITS
UNDERWEAR	SILK HOSE	HANDKERCHIEFS
HANDKERCHIEFS	TABLE COVERS	WINDSOR TIES
	LUNCH CLOTHS	GOLF GLOVES

THIS STORE IS FILLED WITH XMAS GIFTS FOR ALL

Bergeon's DRY GOODS STORE

PLAN TO DO YOUR XMAS SHOPPING EARLY

LEGAL NOTICES

Order for Publication

State of Michigan, The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate office in the City of Charlevoix, in said County, on the 3rd day of December A. D. 1925.

Present: Servetus A. Correll, Probate Judge.

In the Matter of the Estate of Janet Shapton, deceased.

The above estate having been admitted and John Smith appointed executor thereof.

It is ordered that four months from this date be allowed for creditors to present their claims against said estate, and that such claims will be heard by said court on Monday, the 12th day of April A. D. 1926, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon at the probate office in the city of Charlevoix.

It is further ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of this order for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing in the Charlevoix Courier a newspaper printed and circulated in this county.

Servetus A. Correll,
Adv. 49-43 Judge of Probate.

Order for Publication

State of Michigan, The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the city of Charlevoix in said County, on the 1st day of December A. D. 1925.

Present: Hon. Servetus A. Correll, Judge of Probate.

In the Matter of the Estate of William Evers, Deceased.

Amandus Evers having filed in said court his petition praying that the administration of said estate be granted to petitioner or to some other suitable person,

It is ordered, that the 23rd day of December A. D. 1925, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, be and is hereby appointed for hearing said petition;

It is Further Ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix Courier a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Servetus A. Correll,
A true copy Judge of Probate.
Adv. 48-t3.

Order for Publication

State of Michigan, The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the city of Charlevoix in said County, on the 1st day of December A. D. 1925.

Present:- Hon. Servetus A. Correll, Judge of Probate.

In the Matter of the Estate of William Evers, mentally incompetent.

Amandus Evers having filed in said court his final administration account, and his petition praying for the allowance thereof and that it be turned over to the administrator of his estate.

It is Ordered, That the 23d day of December A. D. 1925, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, be and is hereby appointed for examining and allowing said account and hearing said petition;

It is Further Ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix Courier a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Servetus A. Correll,
A true copy Judge of Probate.
Adv. 48-t3.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain real estate mortgage whereby the Power of Sale therein contained has become operative, which mortgage was given by John Pesek and Josephine Pesek, husband and wife, to Margaret M. Harsha, which mortgage was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Charlevoix, Michigan, July 5th, 1922 in liber sixty-four of Mortgages on page forty-one; and whereas the amount claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice is the sum of fourteen hundred eighty and 11 100 Dollars, together with an attorney fee of twenty-five dollars as provided for in said mortgage, and no suit or proceedings at law have been instituted to recover the money secured by said mortgage or any part thereof; and whereas the tax required by Statute to be paid on said mortgage was duly paid prior to the recording thereof.

Now therefore, notice is given that by virtue of the Power of Sale contained in said mortgage and the Statutes in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the premises therein described or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy the amount then due thereon of principal and interest together with the attorney fee, costs and expenses of the foreclosure, at public auction to the highest bidder therefor at the front door of the Court House in the City of Charlevoix, County of Charlevoix (that being the place where the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix is held) on the 20th day of February 1926 at ten o'clock in the forenoon on that day. The premises described in said mortgage being herein described as follows; to-wit:

All the north fractional half of the Southwest fractional quarter of Section Seven (7) in Township thirty-three (33) North of Range eight (8) West, containing eighty-two acres and 84-100 acres of land more or less according to the U. S. Survey thereof.

Dated November 16th, 1925.
Margaret M. Harsha,
Mortgagee.

Rollie L. Lewis,
Attorney for Mortgagee,
Charlevoix, Michigan. 46-t13

You can afford to wear heavy wool winter garments at the price we are selling them to close out the line. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 47tf.

THE SIMPLEST LIGHT & POWER PLANT IN THE WORLD

"KEEP THEM CONTENTED AND YOU KEEP THEM HOME."

You don't hear of children leaving a farm home that has the benefits of the city dweller. The girls will be proud of home and mother and the boys will be fascinated with the power application possibilities of the Marco.

The electric washer, vacuum cleaner, electric iron, toaster and electric lights will keep the wife contented and make her days and nights pleasanter.

The Maren (1,500 watt capacity) furnishes lights and electricity for every electrical need of the modern farm, and the powerful 5 H. P. simplified "New-Way" Air-Cooled Engine can be removed to run all other farm machinery.

Ask us to show you the many features of the Super-Powered Marco.

Benjamin Brown Auto Sales
CHARLEVOIX, MICH.

The SUPER-POWERED MARCO

W. E. Byers, Auctioneer

Twenty years experience in handling Auction Sales, both on farm and household goods.

Let Me Cry Your Sales

Phone me at Charlevoix or call the Charlevoix Courier, where all dates are made.

Cups for Lunch Furnished if Requested

NEIGHBORS

BY ROBERT STEAD

AUTHOR OF "THE COW PUNCHER," "THE HOMESTEADERS"

WNU SERVICE

COPYRIGHT BY ROBERT STEAD

CHAPTER XIII

I had given Jean up, under protest, as the only thing to do. But having made my protest I meant to accept my fate with dignity; I would take my sentence like a man, and serve it without whining.

I had been long in going to sleep, and as a consequence had awakened late. The shack was bitterly cold; the only comfort lay under my heavy blankets. As the light increased I counted the kinds of frost that had formed on the ends of the nails that came through the roof. I had never noticed that so many nails had missed the rafters. We were rather bad carpenters. My mind leaped back to the time when we built the shack, clearing all the events crowded between, as the vision leaps from height to height across great valleys in the prairies. How unreal and far away it all seemed! But another leap carried me to the bank of a river, and little children playing in the sand, and a slow-pacing water wheel that sprayed its mist of diamonds in the sunshine. I saw her little calico dress, her little brown bare feet, the ringlets of yellow hair hang about her cheeks. That was Jean. . . .

The clock had stopped! It was with terrific suddenness that I realized the clock had stopped and in my barren shanty was the silence of the tomb. Its round, glassy face grinned an imbecile grin at me from its place on a shelf on the wall. Its hands showed a quarter to four. . . . Well, there was nothing very mysterious about that. In the excitement of the wedding party I had merely forgotten to wind the clock. Only an overwrought nervous system could discern anything uncanny in that. I reasoned all this out, with absurd deliberation, as I rubbed my eyes and wondered why the clock had stopped. Or perhaps the frost had stopped it.

My watch had fared better, and when I drew it from my pocket on the corner of the bed the friendly bustle of its ticking was reassuring to my ear. I could hear the companionable canter of its balance wheel galloping down the road of life by my side. "Next to a dog," I said to myself, "a watch is the best friend a man can have."

That set me thinking about dogs, and I wondered why in all these months I had neglected to provide myself with a dog. As a sort of insurance, I grimly reflected. One always can fall back on a dog.

The hands of the watch said half-past eight, and I suddenly remembered that there were cattle to feed. It would be a decent thing to get up and do all the chores that morning, if they were not already done. So I drew my underwear from beneath my pillow, and sprang from the friendly shelter of the blankets.

I hurriedly started a fire; watched it until it had a proper draft; turned the damper in the pipe to guard against its getting beyond control after I left it. Then, after drawing on my peajacket, cap and mitts, I set out for the stables. The morning was gray, with a scattered sifting of small snowflakes, but the nip to the air was not nearly so uncomfortable as it seemed when contemplated from under the warm blankets. I reflected that comfort and happiness are largely a matter of the point of view. But that doesn't help when the bottom has fallen out of your particular universe.

The stove lids were red hot and the kettle was belching forth a small geyser of steam when I got back to the shack. My search for remnants from the feast of the night before was astonishingly fruitless, until I remembered that the young Hansens had been turned loose upon the left-overs. So I cooked a mixture of oatmeal and water, which I called porridge, boiled two fresh eggs, thawed out part of a loaf of bread, melted a piece of butter, and sat down to a meal that was hardly calculated to make me rejoice in my single blessedness.

After breakfast I washed my few dishes, swept the floor, made my bed, and generally set the house in order. Even then it was only ten o'clock, with nothing more to do until noon. At noon there would be a repetition of the routine, and then nothing to do until night. At night there would be supper and the evening chores, and nothing more to do until morning. And the next day the same, and the same, and the same.

It was mid-afternoon when Jack burst in upon me. "Well, old Robinson Crusoe, how goes solitude?" he demanded.

"Rotten," said I, "but I can always change my mind if I want to."

"Aha!" he exclaimed, in return, clasping himself about the middle. "A blow in the fifth rib! A subtle blow under the fifth rib!"

Jack was obviously in great spirits, but with a sudden soberness he sat down beside me, and I felt his hand on my knee. "It's not quite the thing, old chap," he said, "to cut us dead, just because we're married—that is, some of us."

"I haven't cut you," I retorted. "Give me time."

"I know it's a raw deal for you," he went on, disregarding my interruption, "and I'd give—I'd give—half of my happiness, if you like, if I could put it right. It's a little embarrassing for us all. But don't you think Jean is worth a fight—a little more fight than you have made?"

"I understand English," I said, "particularly Jean's English. If she wants me now she'll have to say so."

"Oh, get off your high horse. He's a lame nag, anyway! Jean thinks she loves Spoof, but she doesn't. She's just infatuated with him. She'll grow out of that. But you might help her along a little."

"I'm not so sure. Spoof's a pretty decent chap," I said, inwardly giving myself credit for amazing magnanimity.

"Of course he is," Jack agreed, somewhat too readily, as it seemed to me. "But that has nothing to do with it. Jean isn't putting you and Spoof under the magnifying glass, so to speak, and studying out which is the more decent chap. It isn't done that way. And to save her life she couldn't tell you why, today, she thinks she loves Spoof, and why, tomorrow, she will know she loves you. Reason doesn't enter into these things at all."

"That doesn't make it any easier for me."

"Maybe not," Jack admitted. "And, as I have argued that reason doesn't enter into the consideration, I suppose it is of no use to reason about it. Then let us get onto ground you can understand. Come on over for supper."

I accepted with more alacrity than might be expected of a young man who was resolved that although tied to the stake he would not thrust his feet in the fire. Marjorie kissed me when I went in—a kiss for her dear old bachelor brother, she said, obviously in fun. But I think there was a tang of deep sisterly sympathy under-neath. Jean was coldly poised and controlled; her eyes seemed larger than usual, and the white of them showed that clear blue tinge that is found in some kinds of delicate china. Either the lamp light was peculiarly yellow or Jean's complexion was below the mark. She chatted freely, almost too freely, and laughed upon occasion, but there was no ring in her laughter.

Altogether, it was rather a difficult evening. We played cards after supper, and tried, as so many others have done, to forget our troubles in the chance of a lucky hand. Even the cards were against me. Jean and I had always played together, but tonight Jack insisted that it was not meet that a man should have his wife for a partner at cards, so our combination was broken. I may have had a subconscious and disturbing feeling that Jean's hand, to my left, would have made better holding than anything I could hope to draw from the deck. At any rate I played abominably and went home early.

And so the days dragged on. I kept a corner of my south window rubbed clear of frost so that I might maintain a lookout for a visit from Spoof, for although he was my rival, or because he was my rival, I felt that I had with Spoof something very much in common. But Spoof seemed suddenly to have discontinued his visits to Fourteen and Twenty-two, and for the first time in that winter the trail to his shack was entirely overblown and obliterated in a waste of snow.

Jack came over every day, and Marjorie and Jean came two or three times a week and gave my shack the womanly touches of which it was beginning to stand in need, but Jean never came alone. I began to understand that the prairies give solitude without privacy; if one seeks privacy he goes to the city for it.

In this way a couple of weeks had passed when one evening it occurred to me that I could kill a dull hour or two, and discharge a somewhat neglected filial duty, by writing a letter to my father. Investigation proved that I had no writing paper, so I went over to Jack's to borrow some. They had none, either, but Jack produced an old account book with some blank sheets in it, which we decided would do quite well. In those days we weren't particular about stationery.

Jean was in her room while I was there, and did not come out, so in a few minutes I returned to Fourteen. There I set the lamp on the table and spread the old account book out before me. It once had been owned by Jack's father; the first pages were filled with items which apparently had to do with the purchase of the Lane farm, and with Mr. Lane's services in

(Continued on Page 6)

Santa Claus is Here

The greatest anniversary of the whole year

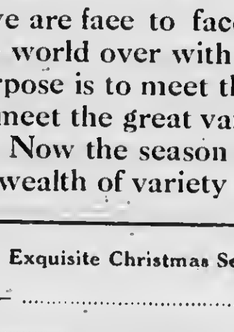
HERE we are face to face with the greatest of all our holidays. It is observed the whole world over with a beautiful custom of giving gifts. At our store whose whole life and purpose is to meet the demands of its many customers, we have planned for months to meet the great variety of tastes with the choicest possible selection of special gift goods. Now the season is here, everything is awaiting your call. Never have we had such a wealth of variety and value at price to fit every purse.

Exquisite Christmas Sets

Manicure Sets— ..... $2.50 to $10.00
Toilet Sets— ..... $5.00 to $25.00
Perfume Sets— ..... $1.00 to $15.00
Bill and Key Sets— ..... $1.00 to $10.00
Shaving Sets— ..... 75c to $8.00
Bobbed Hair Sets— $1.50

TENNIS RACKETS and COVERS
SPALDING'S—THE BEST—
$3.50 to $10.00

XMAS TREE DECORATIONS OF ALL KINDS



Perfumes and Toilet Waters
Finest Imported, in dainty boxes—L'Origan, Quelque Fleur, Ideal, etc.
$1.00 to $15.00

Greeting Cards and Booklets
We have an extra fine assortment of Christmas Greetings and boxed Novelty Cards—
1c to 25c

Christmas Candies
Norris variety in beautiful Cedar Chests. Whitman's Sampler in Christmas Wrapping
$1.00 to $5.00

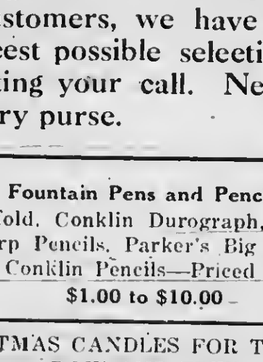
For the Kiddies we have special packages of pure sugar Candies, Lollipops, Sticks, etc., also special packages for the Christmas Tree—
25c per pkg.

Fountain Pens and Pencils
Parker's Duofold, Conklin Durograph, Sheaffer's Lifetime, Eversharp Pencils, Parker's Big Brother Pencils, Conklin Pencils—Priced at
$1.00 to $10.00

CHRISTMAS CANDLES FOR THE WINDOW AND TREE

Compact and Vanity Cases
Coty's, Houbigant's, Hudnut's, Woodworth's—
$1.00 to $15.00

Leather Goods
Ladies' Hand Bags, Men's Purses and Bill Folds, Manicure Sets in Leather Cases, Bill Fold and Key Sets in gift boxes—
50c to $10.00



For the Smokers
Cigars in special packages— ..... 50c to $5.00
Cigarettes in Christmas wrap.
Tobaccos in glass Hummidor Jars.
Ash Trays, Cigar Stands, Cigarette Cases
Cigar Cases, etc.

Safety Razors
Gillette, Gem, Everready, Autostrop—
$1.00 to $5.00

Kodaks and Brownies
Special Brownie Gift Box—just the thing for the Children.

To Dress Your Gifts
Tags, Seals, Cards, Colored Tissues, Fancy Cord—Everything for the Christmas wrap in new designs for this season.

FLASHLIGHTS
—for—
Pa, Ma and the Kids
$1.00 to $3.50

Perfumizers
Dainty Colorings in Art and Iridescent glass—
$3.00 to $10.00

Gift Stationery
In beautiful boxes—Highland Linen, Sheerlawn, Purity Lawn, Keith's Krafton, London Laid, etc.—
50c to $5.00

Special Reductions in prices on Toys, Books, Ivory and Rustcraft Goods

FESSENDEN, The Druggist

THE OLDEST BANK IN CHARLEVOIX COUNTY
FORTY-FIRST YEAR IN BUSINESS

1884 1925

THERE ARE NO CLOSED DOORS—

in this bank which are entered "by appointment only." All kinds of business, big and little is served, with nothing relative about that service. It is our desire that our customers may benefit as much from the interested efforts of our officers in their behalf—as from our care in handling routine transactions.

Join our Xmas Savings Club Now Open

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY BANK
CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN
Nicholls, Bullars & Bridge, Bankers
THE BANK ON THE CORNER

LOCAL NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

Get the Habit—Read the Courier

Since We Got Our Radio

Our home has changed a lot these days.
The rooms are all upset;
Although the week is nearly gone,
The washing ain't done yet.
The meals are seldom ready,
And we never seem to know
If we've really got a Ma or not
Since we got our radio.

Before—when Pa was through with work
He'd read the funny papers;
He'd tell us kids about Spark Plug
And all his latest capers.
But now when Pa comes home at night,
He hardly says "Hello."
He changes clothes and grabs a chair
Right by the radio.

I've never had a chance to hear
The news that comes by wire;
When I have asked to "listen in"
I've aroused my fathers ire.
We kids are just like orphans,
And we've suffered heaps of woe
Since Pa rigged up an outfit
That he calls a "radio."

Oral Lewis was a Traverse City visitor last Sunday.

Capt. John Roen has laid his boat up here for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Moran left last Friday on a short business trip to Detroit.

Watch for announcement concerning the hospital benefit dance to be given soon.

Louis Wallace is home from Detroit, where he spent a couple of weeks visiting.

William Duba left Tuesday for Detroit, where he expects to spend the winter months.

Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Wilbur left Saturday for Chicago, where they will spend the winter with their son, Bert.

Mr. and Mrs. Philo Campbell of this city left Monday by auto for California, where they will spend the winter months.

Earl A. Young, wife and children returned last Saturday from Detroit, where they spent a few days of last week.

Grny's Reef light ship, Cnpt. Hill in charge, is in the harbor on their way to Milwaukee to lny up for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sherman of Eveline township, spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ogden in this city.

The steamer J. B. Johns, owned by the Petoskey Portland Cement company has laid up at Wilbur's dock for the winter.

The Christmas vacation period in the Charlevoix public schools will commence on Friday, December 18th, for two weeks.

Dr. W. W. Mitchell left Tuesday for Miami, Florida, where he will spend the next two or three weeks enjoying a vacation.

Miss Lola Hinshaw returned last Sunday from Chicago, where she has been spending the past week visiting relatives and friends.

The M. E. Literary and Sewing Club will meet Thursday afternoon, December 10th, with Mrs. Henry Block on State street.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Cofcier and family, from East Jordan, spent Sunday in this city at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Courier.

Charles Munyon and Bert Helmes returned Tuesday from Beaver Island, where they have been moving a building for parties there.

Capt. Chas. Allers, Leroy Allers and Irving Belfy came over from the Beavers on the Rambler, Tuesday, and are in town on business.

The Misses Nita and Anna Shearer, accompanied by Mrs. Andy McCall, Jr., were Traverse City visitors on Saturday of last week.

The W. C. T. U. will meet with Mrs. F. F. McMillan, on Park avenue, Friday afternoon of this week. Musical program in charge of Mrs. A. J. Stelter.

Miss Della Lemieur and Mrs. Chas. Hebert left Tuesday afternoon for Detroit, where they will spend the next two weeks visiting friends and relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Lewis leave on Thursday afternoon of this week for California, where they expect to spend the winter at the home of Mrs. Lewis' parent.

Mrs. William Collins left on Tuesday of this week for Fort Madison, Iowa, where she will spend the winter at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Paul Masters.

Mrs. Grover Geneit and Mrs. McMulkin of Ironton, left on Monday of this week for Detroit, where they will attend a three day convention of the L. O. T. M., as delegates from this district.

Capt. Oscar Smith of Glen Haven, Michigan, is the new captain at the Charlevoix coast guard station. Mr. Smith and family have taken up their residence in the city and are now settled in their new home.

Mrs. Phoebe Schaffer, who has been spending the past three weeks in Charlevoix at the home of her niece, Mrs. Amos O'Neill, and her sister, Mrs. R. Granelin, has returned to her home in Eveline township, near Ironton.

A number of Charlevoix business men and W. E. Byers and Ernest Penslee of the county road commission attended a meeting of the 29th senatorial district highway commissioners, held at the Wolverine Hotel, Boyne City, on Monday, of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bridge, accompanied by Robert Morse, left Saturday for Grand Rapids and Lansing. Mr. Bridge will attend a meeting of the M-11 committee in Grand Rapids, Monday, and a similar meeting in Lansing, Tuesday, as a delegate from Charlevoix.

Word was received from Mrs. Frank Bearss of Royal Oak, Michigan, that Miss Alice Chew of this city, who is now attending school at Kalamazoo, made her a visit recently. She also stated that her son, Glen, was one of 2,500 boys in attendance at the Older Boys' State Conference held at Lansing, Michigan.

Visit Holley Gift Shop, Saturday, December 12th, 25 per cent discount on all stamped good. Have a nice line of ladies' and children's dresses to be embroidered.—Adv. 49-t1.

TWO BUILDINGS DESTROYED IN BAD FIRE

Grocery Store and Contents Lost—Two Building Scorched

The village of Ellsworth was visited by a disastrous fire last Saturday night at about eleven o'clock, two store buildings being completely destroyed and two others badly scorched.

The fire started in the old Struik building now occupied by Harry Davey. The store had only recently been remodeled at considerable expense. Mr. Davey using the second story for living quarters for his family and conducting a grocery store on the first floor. The contents of the store and household furniture were a total loss. The other building destroyed was owned by F. H. Skow and was unoccupied. The Citizens bank and a building formerly occupied by Ely's barber shop were both badly scorched.

The East Jordan fire department answered the call for aid but were unable to check the blaze.

* * * * * * * * * *
* METHODIST CHURCH *
* * * * * * * * * *

"The Door Beautiful"—sermon at 10:30 a. m.

"Bethlehem Music"—sermon at 7:00 p. m.

This will be on evening with the great hymns and carols of Christmas. Christmas is a season of great sacred song. It is the holy season of the year. Get into the spirit of Christmas shopping by tuning your soul to the key of the Christmas music. Do it early.

This is a great week in the church with the sacramental services at the opening service of the beginning day, with the big senior supper on Wednesday evening, a great prayer meeting on Thursday evening, and the missionary banquet on Friday evening. Next Sunday will be beginning another wonderful week. Begin the week with a tendance at some church service. Let every one go to church during this holy season. Find some service that suits your need and attend.

The Church Night service was well attended last Wednesday evening. A generous supper was enjoyed, after which the pastor introduced a symposium of readings, followed by a pastoral address on "The Prophetic Vision." An original hymn was sung for the first time, which fitted in with the sentiment of the address. After brief devotions, several business meetings were held, and the business of the church was planned for the next month.

There were fifteen baptisms and fifteen received into the church last Sunday morning at the ten o'clock service.

The Junior church which meets each Sunday afternoon at four o'clock is well attended. The pastor and his helpers will be glad to welcome anyone who cares to come at this hour.

* * * * * * * * * *
* CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH *
* Rev. B. G. Mattson, Pastor *
* * * * * * * * * *

Morning service at 10:30 with sermon on, "An Achievement in Christian Education." The special offering for the morning will be for Congregational benevolence in the home land. A parish letter is being distributed with contribution envelopes for this Christams remembrance of the great Christian cause.

12:00 Sunday School.

6:00, Young People's Meeting.

7:00 Evening Church service.

The pastor will conduct an informal meeting with discussion of the subject, "Our Christian Leaders of Today, Their Aims and Counsel."

The pastor conducts regular church service at Ironton at 2:30.

CLARION WOMAN VICTIM OF HEART ATTACK

Was Found Dead Inside Gate of the Village Cemetery

People in the Clarion community were greatly shocked on Friday afternoon of last week, when a man bringing a load of wood to town reported he had seen the body of a woman lying just inside the east gate of the cemetery. It was found to be that of Mrs. Cora Hinkley, age 52 years, for many years a resident there.

Mrs. Hinkley had been to a nearby farm for apples and on the way home had stopped at the cemetery to do some work on the lot where her father and mother were buried. She had gotten as far as the gate on her way home when overcome, death being due to heart failure.

Mrs. Hinkley was born in Detroit and came here when a small child with her parents to a farm near Goodhart, Emmet county. Later her parents moved to their old homestead about a mile north of Clarion. When a young woman she was married to Delbert H. Hinkley and they have made their home in Clarion for the past 20 years.

She is survived by her husband, two sons, Henry and Carl; a daughter, Mrs. Jessie Planck, of Detroit; two sisters, Mrs. Norah Annabel and Mrs. Florence Hunt, and one brother, Frank Wooden, all of California.

Funeral services were held Tuesday, December 8th, at 10:30 a. m., at the M. E. church Clarion, Mrs. Maude Brown officiating. Interment in the Clarion cemetery.

If your shoes need repairing, why not have the work done right. We use only the very best of leather and the work is done by an expert cobbler. Campbell's Boot Shop.—Adv. 49tf.

SOUTH SIDE CIRCLE AT JEFFERIES HOME

Seventeen Couple Gather Around Festive Board

The South Side Circle enjoyed the first of its pot-luck suppers Tuesday evening, at the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jefferies on E. Upright avenue.

The supper was carefully planned and promptly served to seventeen couples. Delicious lemon and pumpkin pies, fruit salads crowned with whipped cream and surpassing coffee supplemented roast of veal and dressing with vegetables.

The following gentlemen sat at the first table: James Gaskin, guest; Dr. Armstrong, Ernest Dawson, W. E. Parmeter, W. H. Miller, Allen Campbell, Bert Beaudoine, Morris Ackert, Miles Olmstead, Walter Rodgers, C. R. Munyon, Fred Cartier, W. G. Parker, W. J. Stevenson, Capt. G. W. Weaver and mine genial host.

COURIER BARGAIN COLUMN.

Courier Want Advs. are One Cent per word per insertion. Minimum charge is 20 cents per insertion, for anything under 20 words. All Want Advs. are strictly cash in advance except to those who have ledger accounts. Please remember this when sending in your copy.

LOST

LOST—Leather wallet containing $23.75, between the postoffice and Wyer's Cigar store. $5.00 reward if returned to James Wyers, 405 Antrim street.—49-t1.

FOR RENT—HOUSE

FOR RENT—5 room bungalow with inside toilet. Call phone 18.—45tf.

FOR SALE—MISCELLANEOUS

FOR SALE—Nice dry block wood. Call Will Mayne, phone 7003-f21.—47-t3.

FOR SALE—Good, dry poplar buzz wood. Frank Ilyek, Charlevoix Rt. 3.—49-t2.

FOR SALE—Pure-bred mammoth Bronze Turkeys—hens and toms. Phone 7012-f23, Alfred Williams, Route 1, East Jordan, Mich.—48-t2.

FOR SALE — Building material. Save 50 per cent in building. Phone W. S. Shaw Co., No. 75, Boyne City, for prices on lumber (boards and scantling,) steel beams, brick, pipe, pipe fittings and roofing.—40t10.

WANTED—MISCELLANEOUS

CASH for Dental Gold, Platinum, Silver, Diamonds, magneto points, false teeth, jewelry, and valuables. Mail today. Cash by return mail. Hoke S. & R., Otsego, Mich.—12-tf.

HELP WANTED.

WANTED—Local man for sales position in Charlevoix county. This is permanent and gives opportunity for advancement. If you are capable of earning $50 a week and willing to start at $25, write Fuller Brush Co., 304 Eddy Building, Saginaw, Michigan, giving age and past employment.—49-t2.

Christmas News

Gloves, Sued and Wool, at	$1.00, $1.15 and $1.35
Ladies' hand-made and embroidered Gowns—for	Colored—85c; White—$3.00
Fiber Silk Slips—hemmed, also plaided flounce at	$3.00
Fiber Silk Bloomers, all colors	$2.25
Fiber Silk Vests, all colors	$1.00
Glove Silk Vests, flesh color	$2.50
Glove Silk Bloomers, flesh color	$3.50
Glove Silk Teddys, lace trimmed	$4.00
Silk Hose, all colors, at	$1.00, $1.50 and $2.00
Ladies' fancy ribbon Garters, at	30c and 50c
Ladies' and Misses' Wool Scarfs, at	$1.50 and $2.00
Boudoir Caps, made of silk and lace, at	50c to $1.00
Buffet and Dresser Scarfs, trimmed with lace and insertion, at	50c, 69c and 85c
Stamped Pillow Cases, 42 and 45 in., at	$1.15 and $1.25
Hand-made Pillow Cases, for	$3.00
Luncheon Set, 6 napkins and 50-inch Cloth—all Linen, for	$4.00 and $5.00
All Linen Luncheon Sets, 4 napkins and 36-inch cloth—finished with lace edge, for	$3.25
Repolette Bed Spreads, white and colored	$3.00 to $4.00
Embroidered Guest Towels, for	$1.00 and $1.25
Linen and Huck Towels to be embroidered	30c and 50c
All Linen Guest and regular sized Towels	89c and $1.15
Bath and Huck Towels, plain and fancy borders—for	25c, 50c, 75c and $1.00
Bath Towel Sets in box—2 cloths and one towel—for	$1.00 to $1.75
Handkerchief Boxes, 2 and 3 Handkerchiefs in a box—for	25c to 75c

For the Infants We Have:

Wool Caps, at	$1.00
Sweaters—pink and blue trimmed, for	$1.50 and $2.00
Sweater Sets—bonnet, sweater and booties—for	$3.00 and $3.25
Blankets, all styles, for	$1.00, $1.25, $2.00 and $3.75

EVERYDAY GROCERY PRICES AT MASON'S

4 lbs. A. & Co.'s Soda, for	25c
3 lbs. Sal Soda, for	10c
22 bars Classic Soap, for	$1.00
6 Boxes 5c Swan Matches for	25c
7 Dozen Clothes Pins for	25c
Any 10c Toilet Soap, 3 bars for	25c
1 large package R. N. M. Soap Powder
2 large pkgs. R. N. M. Soap Chips
5 bars white R. N. M. Soap—	ALL FOR 72c
3 lbs. No. 101 Santos Coffee, for	$1.25
3 lbs. Good Rio Coffee, for	98c
4 lb. package of Raisins, for	50c

Most Package Cookies AT COST

1-quart can Cocoa, for	15c.
3 lbs. 50c Jap Tea, for	$1.35
3 large cans Pineapple, for	$1.00
Libby's Chili Sauce, 2 bottles for	25c
25c bottle V. C. Chili Sauce, for	19c
Elk's Catsup, for 10c—3 bottles for	27c
Salad Dressing, per bottle	10c

Come in and Look Us Over for Bargains

A. E. MASON

Just Arrived

Large Shipment of

Nuts and Candy

For Christmas trade. Place your orders early.

Milton Block

NEW PALACE THEATRE

ATTRACTIONS FOR THE COMING WEEK

Thursday and Friday, December 10 and 11

Lon Chaney, Ernest Torrence and many others in "THE HUNCHBACK OF NOTRE DAME." The biggest picture of all time! The production that the whole world knows. It is vivid, colorful, immense, splendid, supreme. The picture that you simply must see.

Saturday and Sunday, December 12 and 13

Milton Sills in "THE KNOCKOUT." A romance of the Canadian wilderness, where life and death gamble with love as the stake. Filmed in the big timber country, where logs by the thousands catch in thundering jams. The red-blooded picture of the year.

Also a good comedy, "THE WRESTLER."

Tuesday and Wednesday, December 15 and 16

"THE WOMAN ON THE JURY." Here is a novel story, woven about women's rights and the way they interpret their rights. This picture is well worth seeing and you are sure to find the entertainment interesting from the very first.

Also a Fox News reel. Come and travel the world with the News Reels.

EDITORIALS

GUNS AND AUTOMOBILES

Coming sessions of state legislatures will undoubtedly be faced with agitation for compulsory automobile liability insurance. The demand will come mostly from persons interested in launching the state into the business of furnishing such insurance. It will be the old drive of socialism against private enterprise.

An opponent of a compulsory law says: "The pistol and its ancestor, the gun, are behind nearly every crime of violence in this country. Why should not every purchaser of a dendly weapon be required to take out compulsory insurance for $10,000 to cover his liability against accidental or erlminal use of such weapons?"

The newspapers daily record deaths and injuries from guns resulting from willful or accidentnl discharge. The total list would rival the automobile casualities. The law provides punishment for crim inal use of a gun and it does the same for an automobile. But it provides no insurance recovery for a victim accidentally injured by a gun. Why should the law be stretched to protect the victim of automobile accidents and leave the victim of death-dealing guns helpless?

It would be just as easy to require the purchaser of a gun to take insurance protecting the public, as it would to require the purchaser of an automobile to carry insurance. In the effort to curb nutomobile accidents and gun accidents, it may be necessary to tighten the linhility laws relating to the owners of such article. This would automatically increase the necessity for insurance protection. But this is no reason for putting the state into the insurance business.

WESTERN EXPOSITION IN NEW YORK

The beginning of a national exposition movement patterned after the Wembley plan which is exploiting the products and resources of Great Britain, is being undertaken by four Northwestern states that purpose a joint exposition in New York City.

The Pacific Northwest exposition to exhibit the resources of Montana, Idaho, Washington and Oregon, is to be held in the metropolis, at the new Madison Square Garden, in easy reach of about ten million people. Other groups of states will undoubtedly plan similar exhibitions.

PUBLIC SERVICE DEMANDS CAPITAL

Recent ineger developements in the electric light and power industry have focused increasing attention upon the value of holding company management for local utility companies and emphasized for the industry the economies that are possible.

An important advantage of the large parent or holding company over the local company is the superior ability to raise capital. Although electric light and power companies operate under regulation with respect to service and territories, they are engaged always in a competitive struggle for new capital.

The small local company is at a pronounced disadvantage in this struggle. It is limited, because of its earnings and assets, to loans from local banks and the sales of small issues of securities. The parent company, with its larger and more stable earnings, can go to the national and even international markets for capital.

RADIO FUTURE

Radio has a future in which entire newspapers will be flashed as complete pictures, international broadcasting will be commonplace, entertainment and instruction will penetrate to remotest corners of the world and static will be eliminated, believes Major General James G Harbord, President of the Radio Corporation of America.

Our country leads in radio communication, having more than 600 broadcasting stations. The radio business has grown from a total of approximately $2,000,000 in 1920 to $350,000,000 in 1924 and to an estimate total of $5000,000,000 this year.

The problems of the industry and of its future fall into three classes: technical, commercial and those touching public and governmental relations.

TAXATION AND THE FARMER

Financeinlly and psychologically the American farmer is in a better comlition than for years. Prices are advancing, the purchasing power of the farmer's dollar is increasing, and the firm tone in market comlitions indicates that the future offers sufficient encouragement to enable farmers to plan with hope of reward, says L. J. Taber, master of the National Grange.

"There is no one problem more universal in its application than the effect of taxation on agriculture. Taxes have increased enormously, out of all proportion either to the farmer's income or the selling price of his land," he declares.

W. E. Parmelee builds storm windows.—Adv. 37-tf.

BREAD AND BUTTER

Every citizen, whether he is a day laborer or a millionaire, is interested in three common problems: First, bread and butter for himself and family; Second, business conditions throughout the state, the nation and the world which will permit peaceful and profitable operation of industry and farming; Third, the investment of capital in business enterprise which furnishes steady employment for labor.

By an understanding of these questions on the part of the general public a sound business balance is maintained, and uninterrupted employment assured.

You will find high quality merchandise at reasonable prices at the Charlevoix Hdw. Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

WHAT TO BUY

Why Bother Baking Christmas Pies

Baking Christmas Pies at home is a needless amount of work that you can get along without doing. Our pies, compounded from the purest and best ingredients, cost less in the end than baking them yourself.

Better Then Homemade Bread

McCann's Bread, scientifically compounded from the purest materials, baked in a sanitary oven just the right temperature is more wholesome and nourishing than homemade bread.

The busy weeks before Christmas is a good time to try it.

Bread, per loaf	10c
Buns, per dozen	20c
Pies, any kind	25c
Cookies, per dozen	20c
Cakes up from	25c to 50c

McCann's Bakery

Phone 155

It Was the Night Before Christmas

Little Snowflakes Glad to Be of Service on Greatest of All Days.

By W. D. PENNYPACKER

IT WAS one of the tiniest things imaginable. In all the whitened fields of late December it could scarcely be reckoned with. It was a snowflake. Fleeting was the span of its existence. Today, here, tomorrow possibly drawn into the moisture of the atmosphere, depending upon temperature, and where it chanced to fall.

Some say fairies fashion snow crystals in wonderful workrooms and laboratories which man has not explored. It may be. They are more exquisitely cut than the rarest jewels.

It was the night before Christmas.

There was the usual sense of quiet which comes over things when the preholiday rush and confusion ends—the sense of peace—perhaps the echo of that old song which man has so often and so ruthlessly heard and forgotten.

It seems that the snowflake knew.

In the land whence snowflakes come there is a great chief. The country, if one speaks of it as such, is an absolute monarchy. But it is different from those our geographies name under Political Divisions. It is a monarchy ruled by love, where a desire to give happiness is the prevalent ambition.

So, on that night before Christmas, as the snowflakes danced about in great billowy clouds, some of them thought of companions already fallen to earth. Yes, some had fallen, and their beauty had lasted for a while, then disappeared.

Then the chief spoke:

"Fellows," he said, with an appealing note in his voice—a voice that had much of the plaintive sound of the north wind, "there is a service to perform. This is the night before the birthday of our King. Millions will worship Him when the morrow comes, but more, ignorant of its source, will seek to revel in the gladness which His coming brought and many millions more—" he went on.

"The nations of the world wait for that gladness. Once a year they seek to know the spirit and the significance of the Christmas time. They see vaguely what the carroling of angels and the song of shepherds was all about—and then forget. "Perhaps," he said, "in the chaotic strivings of man's life he is not so much to blame."

Silence profound. A stillness like unto the silence of the plains before the angels uttered their refrain of "Peace on earth, good will toward men."

"Comrades," said the chief.

"Aye!" answered the crowd in a note that had the shrill keeness of the winter wind and yet was warm with an eagerness to serve.

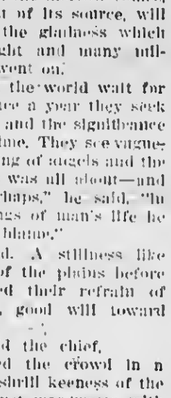
"Down, just below us, there are boys and girls dreaming of Santa Claus, and snow, and sleighs, and sleds. To some, your going would give life and zest and happiness to Christmas. You may stay here, or go to give them joy. Think soberly before you make reply."

So hearty and so quick was the response that the results were almost blizzard like. Twisting and turning in fantastic ways they fell to earth, filled high the paths, and all but capped the fences, and almost blocked the roads.

When morning broke, a truly Christmas day, the world lay white as untouched marble. Such myriad flakes had fallen in the night that the ablest statistician could not guess how many, and, oh, what joy! Snowballs, snow men and sledding. And coasting, too, on yonder hill. Such healthy winter exercise, such ruddy cheeks, such mighty appetites!

Who would have thought so much of good a little snow had wrought?

An aggregation of tiny snowflakes was putting value into the sleds which Santa Claus brought and making of the day a real Christmas, in themselves, the little flakes scarcely counted at all, but in their united desire to give happiness to unnumbered boys and girls, they became a great power.



The chief had wireless communication with each of his humble subjects, of course. When night fell he was eager to ascertain the feelings of his white crusaders, some of them crushed, beaten down and muddy, as a result of their service. Some would have thought it a hard day for them.

Nobody really thought of the white ground covering as an aggregate of individuals. They recognized no personality, and thought it merely "snow."

Yet in spite of the fact that billions of snow crystals were maimed and soiled and melted, as a result of their Christmas Day mission, the chief received many replies;

"We have given a child happiness, and would rather do that than stay in the clouds forever," said one:

"Enabled a boy to play with his old sled," said another, "and would not come back if we could."

"Has been a great Christmas. We have given much but have received full measure in return."

These and similar bulletins were posted in the court of the clouds, and every snowflake held in reserve felt a sense of regret that it had not been a participant in providing so much of the joy and jollity of Christmas. Only: a snowflake!

Yes. But it rendered service.

And this was the snowflake that was glad.

(©, 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

A MATTER OF MONEY

He—I'm going to give you a Christmas present this year that no money can buy.

She—I prefer one that some money can buy.

Three Weeks 'Till Christmas
Shop Early
Wrap Securely and Seal with the Tuberculosis Christmas Seal

ORDER FOR PUBLICATION

State of Michigan, The Probate court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate office in the city of Charlevoix, in said County, on the 3rd day of December A. D. 1925.

Present: Hon. Servetus A. Correll, Probate Judge.

In the matter of the estate of William H. Collins, Deceased.

The above estate having been admitted to probate and Hannah M. Collins appointed administratrix, thereof.

It is ordered that four months form this date be allowed for creditors to present their claims against said estate, and that such claims will be heard by said court on Saturday, the 10th day of April, A. D. 1925, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at the Probate office in the city of Charlevoix.

It is Further Ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of this order for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing in the Charlevoix Courier, a newspaper printed and circulated in this county.

Servetus A. Correll,
Judge of Probate.

Adv. 49-t3.

DESIRABLE GIFTS

What About Christmas Gifts

We invite you to call at our store and see the many useful pieces we are offering—among which are:

SMOKING STANDS, LADIES' DESKS, SEWING CABINETS, PEDESTALS, DRESSING TABLES, CHAIRS AND ROCKERS, PICTURES, VICTROLAS AND RECORDS, RADIOS—THE PSANSTIEHL, CROSLEY AND CHELSEA LINOLEUM AND CONGOLEUM RUGS

In fact most every piece of Furniture in our stock will make a suitable Christmas Gift We have a nice 1926 Calendar for you. Call for it.

S. M. SEE & SON

RELIABLE HOME FURNISHERS

Presents For All

What Is Christmas Without Candy

You probably cannot answer, for everyone always has it then. But Sugar Bowl Candies are an exceptional treat, and those who receive them, particularly fortunate.

They are delightfully flavored and filled and are healthful and wholesome, too. Buy them by the box or bulk, any kind you may want. We will be well supplied with

Candy Canes
Fudges of All Kinds
Delicious Taffies
Attractive Gift Boxes
Dates - Figs
Dried Fruits

Your order for Christmas Ice Cream will receive our most careful attention. Special orders solicited.

The Sugar Bowl

GEO. GLADOS

For The Christmas Trade

What would Christmas be without candy? It would simply spoil the entire day. We have had this in mind and for the Christmas trade have ordered a special line of Candies that will delight all. Special prices in quantities to lodges and church societies.

Week-End Specials

Royal Baking Powder, per can	50c
4 lbs. Seedless Raisins, for	50c
10 bars yellow Rub-No-More Soap	50c
12 bars white Rub-No-More Soap	50c
1 lb. Hersey's Cocoa	35c

MARTIN BLOCK

Opposite Post Office
Phone 12 or 142

Let The COURIER Sell IT for YOU

Ellsworth Section

MILES DISTRICT

Albert Miles helped Jerry Moblo to cut wood Friday.

Merritt Shaw of East Jordan, visited Carl Moblo, Sunday.

Lawrence Addis sold his baled hay to Bert Mullen of Traverse City.

The McCannon medicine agent of Atwood was in our neighborhood last week.

John TerWee of East Jordan, was a caller at the A. Miles home Saturday.

Frances Evans was a Sunday visitor at the home of Chester Donaldson.

Mrs. Mary Clark of East Jordan, called on Mrs. John Cole one day last week.

Ralph Bancroft of Ranney district, visited at the Fred Bancroft home last Thursday.

Frank Lindenau left for his home in Ludington, Saturday, after a visit at the Dett Evans home.

Henry Steenhagen left for Grand Rapids last Tuesday, where he expects to spend the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Strong of East Jordan, spent Sunday with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Miles.

Little Wesley Simmerman was absent from school a few days last week on account of a bad cold.

Some changeable weather. One day like the good old summer time and the next like old King Winter.

Frank Lindeman of Ludington, and Dett Evans were supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bancroft Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Reed and children of East Jordan, were Sunday visitors at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Moblo.

Mrs. Bert Mullen came up from Traverse City, Saturday afternoon and spent the night with her sister, Mrs. Frank Addis. Bert Mullen, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. King of Traverse City, along with the Frank Addis family and Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Addis from Walloon Lake, all took dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Supley LaLonde. The Mullens and Kings had supper with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Addis, returning home in the evening.

Overcoats, Mackinaws, sheepline coats, heavy pants, sweaters, leather vests and caps at cost price to close out the line. Benj. Brown—Adv. 47tf.

ROCK ELM

Norman Jensen and wife went to Detroit for the winter months.

Wilbur Spidle loaded and shipped a carload of hay to Grayling last week.

Ben Smatts sold some beef cattle to the car which loaded in Ellsworth last week.

Dan Swanson is hauling gravel to begin his new barn. We hope you'll have better luck next time, Dan.

Art Shepherd visited his mother, Mrs. Steven Shepherd, last Thursday. Mrs. Shepherd is recovering from an operation for goiter.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Gunther, Mr. and Mrs. Gudersen, and Mr. Hansen, visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Jensen Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Teboe and Lawrence Jensen, were initiated in the first degree of the grange at Rock Elm hall last Saturday night.

Mr. McClure of Roscommon, the Mutual Grange Insurance representative, wrote several policies for the members of Rock Elm Grange last week.

Wear wool garments and keep warm this winter. We are selling them below cost to close out the line. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 47tf.

BENTLEY HILL

Jack Smith was bailing hay for Henry Reantsma Tuesday.

John Koster Butchered a pig for grandpa, H. Heeres, Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Brat called on H. DeYoung Wednesday evening.

Richard DeYoung and family from near Eastport, called on John Doctor Wednesday.

Taxes! Sure, to be paid in the Bentley district. Hans DeYoung will welcome you.

John Doctor purchased a wind-mill from the Ellsworth Hardware Co. who put it up one day last week.

Mrs. D. E. Carpenter is quarantined in on account of scarlet fever attacking nearly the whole family. They are not able to do their own chores.

Electric light bulbs that give service at Charlevoix Hardware Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

ATWOOD

We will be young but once.

Two weeks from Friday is Christmas.

William Petter and wife went to Grand Rapids last week for the winter.

Come and hear the Indy preacher at the M. E. church next Sunday at 10:45 a. m.

Does farming pay? Of course it does. There never has been a year when farm failures have equalled business failures. Farmers will always abandon farms just as good mechanics will quit jobs to try something else.

PILGRIM HOLINESS CHURCH
Phelps and Ellsworth

Phelps

Sunday school, 10:00 a. m.
Preaching, 11:00 a. m.
Prayer meeting, Wednesday evening at 8:00 p. m.

Ellsworth

Sunday school, 1:15 p. m.
Preaching, 2:30 and 7:30 p. m.
Prayer meeting Thursday evening at 8:00 p. m.

B. E. Manker, Pastor.

Last minute orders for Christmas Greeting Cards are hard to fill. Order early from our exclusive line, plain or engraved. The Courier has just the card you want.—Adv. 47-1.

B. J. BEUKER
Physician and Surgeon
Office over Blue Store
Ellsworth, Michigan
Office Hours: 2-4 p.m., Phone 38

"COLD IN THE HEAD"

is an acute attack of Nasal Catarrh. Those subject to frequent "colds" are generally in a run down condition.

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is a Treatment consisting of an Ointment, to be used locally, and a Tonic, which acts Quickly through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces, building up the System, and making you less liable to "colds."

Sold by druggists for over 40 Years.
F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.

BUSINESS METHODS FOR THE INVESTOR

This is the age of the specialist. The successful man specializes in his particular field of knowledge and business. Other professions and businesses he leaves to the other specialists and he consults them whenever the need arises. If he is ill, he calls a doctor; if he has a legal problem, he consults his attorney; if he wishes to erect a building, he consults an architect.

Following this same principle, the prudent man will consult a specialist whenever he has money to invest.

The Michigan Trust Company has had 36 years experience in investing money in bonds. None are offered for sale which are not owned by the Company. That we have confidence in the bonds which we offer for sale, is evidenced by the fact that we invest our own funds in them FIRST. When you buy from us, your money is invested in the same securities as our own.

We will gladly send you our "Investment Suggestions" every month.

THE MICHIGAN TRUST COMPANY
Grand Rapids
The Oldest in Michigan
Organized in 1889

NOT A HOLIDAY LIKE OTHERS

Significance of Christmas Is Not Lost; Its Spirit Enters Into Life of World.

IT IS not likely that all of the multitude of people who eagerly and anxiously prepare to celebrate Christmas day are conscious of its sacred character. They know of course that it stands for the anniversary of the birth of the Founder of the Christian religion, but that thought is not uppermost in their minds. To such, for the moment, it is merely a holiday in which they wish to give gifts to persons they care for and whom they wish to please. It is a period in which they forget themselves in order to give joy to others.

In this one thing, though they may not be aware of it, they demonstrate the teaching of the One whose day they observe, for unselfish thought for others is one of the great lessons taught by the Teacher of teachers who was born in Bethlehem of Judea centuries ago. There are Christmas givers today who make no sacrifice when they purchase rich gifts for family or friends; they know no self-denial, though it does not follow that they do not give all their hearts. But with the great mass of givers there is a setting aside of personal wishes and even urgent needs in order that those they love may be glad on that day of the year when all the Christian world rejoices. The self-sacrifice is as nothing compared to the end to be attained.

On the other hand, a multitude of men and women are spiritually aware of the character of the day. They look back across the centuries to the Child in the manger and see in it the dawn of a new hope to mankind, a revelation of a new life, a bond between mortal existence and the hereafter that has given comfort to myriads and a light to the world that grows brighter with the passing of the ages. The gifts that they bestow and those they receive typify to them the greatest of all gifts to the world—the One who came to point the way to eternal life.

No, Christmas for all its seeming frivolity and thoughtlessness is not a mere holiday like others. Even the light-minded and heedless ones realize a difference, and if pushed to explain would do so reverently. Under all the hurry and confusion and gayety of the preparations and the celebration the significance of Christmas is not lost. The meaning of the Great Event whose anniversary we observe cannot be escaped. Its spirit has entered into the life of the civilized world.—Indianapolis Star.

SPIRIT OR SOUL OF THE OAK

Mysterious Mistletoe, Growing From Sturdy Tree, Looked Upon by Druids as Holy Thing.

THE mistletoe season draws near. Many boughs or pendants of this mysterious and beautiful plant will be torn from oaks and other trees and suspended from chandeliers and doors.

Many myths are associated with the mistletoe. The Druids of Britain looked upon it as a holy thing. To them the oak tree had a strong religious significance and seeing the curious plant growing out of the oak they conceived that it was the spirit or the soul of that tree. In this way it is believed that the Druids came to regard the mistletoe as the symbol of life and they therefore treated it with manifest reverence and gave it a prominent place in their religious rites. It is also believed that the Druids held the mistletoe as sacred to Freya, the goddess of love, and that this is how it came to be associated with love-making and kissing.

The old herbalists, the forerunners of the physician, regarded the mistletoe as a thing having remarkable therapeutic properties. It was held to be good for epilepsy and for various convulsive "distempers." Many of our British and our Irish ancestors believed that the mistletoe was a charm against disease.

The mistletoe is a plant parasite, and yet not altogether a parasite. Though it would rather live off of the tree, it was the means of self-support. It fastens itself upon its host, penetrates its tissue and draws nourishment from it, often deforming it and sapping its vitality. Yet the mistletoe is a green, leafy plant; that is, it possesses the green pigment, chlorophyll, which gives the green color to normal vegetation. The presence of green leaves indicates that the mistletoe has the power, which independent green plants everywhere possess, of constructing organic foodstuffs, such as starch, out of inorganic compounds, carbon dioxide and water, utilizing sunlight as the source of energy in the process. It is, therefore, only partly a parasite so far as dependence upon its host for food is concerned, but it is none the less harmful on that account.

Solution Puzzle No. 84.

GIFTS for MEN

Have You Decided What To Give Him?

Men and Boys never have too many of these Gifts on hand

Let us suggest:
Sweaters - Belts
Suits or Overcoats
Mackinaws - Ties
Leather Vest

Sport lovers will welcome any gift from our attractive line of outdoor goods

We have a very complete line of suits and overcoats that are up to the minute in styles and priced within reach of every purchaser. Our display also presents many other articles which are appropriate and make useful Christmas gifts. Look over our line of ties, shirts, belts, mufflers, and vests and your problem of what to give will be solved without leaving this store.

F. E. CARTIER

TAILOR AND CLEANER PHONE 248

DODGE BROTHERS
SPECIAL
TYPE-B SEDAN

A car that many will consider an ideal Christmas gift for the family.

To ride restfully in the ample rear seat is an experience in motoring luxury.

Its desirability is further heightened by the smartness and good taste of the special equipment.

You are pleasantly aware, too, that the car is everywhere admired, not alone for its beauty but for the genuine goodness and dependability which Dodge Brothers have built into it.

It is this knowledge—that you are not enjoying luxury at the sacrifice of economy—which, in the final analysis, is the solid foundation on which rests your pleasure in giving or in owning the special Type-B Sedan.

Ask us about Dodge Brothers New Credit-Purchase Plan

BENJ. BROWN
Charlevoix, Michigan

LOCAL HARBOR APPROPRIATIONS

U. S. ENG. DEPT. MAKES ANNUAL RECOMMENDATIONS

We Get $23,750 for Completion of Work and $4,200 Per Annum For Maintenance

Major-General H. Taylor, chief of army engineers, in his annual report made public last Saturday, recommends among other appropriations for river and harbor improvement for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1297, $23,750 for completion of the work at Charlevoix and $4,200 per annum for the maintenance thereof.

The present condition of the channel leading from Lake Michigan into Round lake is sufficient proof that the appropriation will not be misplaced. We sure do need it! The level of the lakes here has lowered to the extent of fifteen inches since September 1st. It has lowered six inches in the last ten days and is still going down. At the present rate it will be a matter of only a short time when freight carrying boats drawing over 13 feet of water will not be able to enter the harbor at all.

Now that an appropriation has been allowed for the completion of work here, it is up to the people of Charlevoix, the Association of Commerce, the city council and, in fact, every organization of the city, to get behind the project and do all in their power to get the government dredge in here at the proper time. Immediately after the lakes open up in the spring is the logical time for this work to be done. Heavy blows during the fall months and the constant movement of the ice flows during the winter do more to fill up the channel than any other existing cause. Just for example we will site the work done by the dredge this fall. They reported better than fifteen feet of water in the channel upon completion of operation here. One month later, after several hard blows, soundings showed only fourteen feet of water, showing what a couple of hard storms, along with the general lowering of the water, will do in a short time.

Now it is up to this city to petition our senators and representatives and exert every effort to have the dredge come in here in the spring and do the work at a time when it will be of the greatest benefit. Let's go after it!

INCREASE THE BABY'S MILEAGE

THERE will be no detour on the road to Health for your baby if you will leave your order with us to make regular deliveries of delicious milk and cream.

BAIRD TAKES HAND IN COLLINS CASE

(Continued from Page One)

who have become interested in the case. Why should we be taxed each year for the purpose of maintaining fish hatcheries and support of conservation work in the state and then have private parties step in and buy the land adjacent to our best streams and prevent fishing in them? Upholding such a decision as Judge Lamb recently made would allow all property owners with streams running through their holdings to take the same action as did Collins, and then where would we fish? We are of the opinion that Mr. Baird has taken a step in the right direction and the rights of the public should be protected at all times.

To the Taxpayers of the City of Charlevoix:

Notice is hereby given that the December Tax Roll of the City of Charlevoix has been delivered to me, and that the taxes therein levied are payable at my office at any time on or before the 9th day of January, 1926 without charge for collection.

On all taxes remaining unpaid after the 9th of January, a collection fee of 4 per cent will be charged, and collected.

Office Hours: 8:30 a. m. to 12 m. 1:30 p. m. to 5 p. m.

Elma H. Cook,
City Treasurer.

Adv. 48-t2

Give A Useful Christmas Present.

Something that Father, Brother, Mother, Sister, Uncle, Aunt, Sweetheart, or anyone who drives a car will appreciate.

5 Gallon Can En-ar-co Motor-oil

"The Oil of a Million Tests"

It will give the motor new life. You will have less carbon trouble. You will have less repairs. Order Now.

A Merry Christmas to You

THE AUTO SHOP

Phone 93 204 Mason St.

WINNERS IN ESSAY CONTEST

SPLENDID PAPERS WRITTEN ON SUBJECT

Mrs. Brayton Saltonstall Gets First Money—Essays Will All Be Published

Our issue of September 30, contained a good roads cross-word puzzle and the subject for an essay contest. At the same time $20.00 was deposited at the Charlevoix County Bank by "Uncle" George H. Van Pelt, Charlevoix county's pioneer reinforced concrete road advocate, in guarantee of the payment of $10.00, $5.00, $3.00, $1.00 and $1.00 for the best five essays written on the subject set forth.

We now have the winning essays, judging having been completed by Miss Isabelle Mitchell and Supt. George Coverdale of the Charlevoix public schools, and they will be published, one each week for the next five weeks. Checks to the winners will be mailed to them immediately. The solution of the cross-word puzzle was the same in all cases.

The winning essay was written by Mrs. Brayton Saltonstall of this city, and other awards are as follows: 2nd, John Dutcher, Charlevoix; 3rd, Mrs. G. K. Fisher, Pontiac, Ill., 4th, Alice Chapman, Flint, Mich., 5th, Evelyn Peck, East Jordan, Michigan.

Following is Mrs. Saltonstall essay:

Subject—"Advantages of a Good Road around Pine Lake. Its effect on Increased Valuation of Lake Shore Property as well as Adjacent Property."

"The constantly increasing volume and weight of motor traffic makes it necessary in building roads, not only to meet conditions as they exist at present, but to anticipate the demands of the future. The speed of the automobile and the weight of the motor truck have become the guage on which road development today must proceed.

Scientific tests have proven beyond a doubt that reinforced concrete roads have the greatest durability, are easiest to ride on and most saving of gas and car equipment. Further than this, they save a great amount of road tax money, as repairs are practically eliminated. And further, consolidated schools are made more practicable and education thereby popularized and improved.

A road of this type around Pine Lake would be a great asset to the county, an improvement that never would be regretted; and as future generations would benefit thereby, a part of the cost could justly be left for them to pay.

The proposed improvement would make the county seat more accessable and county get-togethers of all kinds more practicable. The chief towns of the county are not connected by rail and the fine highway under discussion would take the place of a railroad and accelerate transportation between them.

The farmers would be benefitted because the transportation of their produce would be quicker and cheaper and in many instances, produce if exhibited at wayside stands could be sold to passers-by without the trouble of taking to market.

Those sections of the county dependent for their livelihood and prosperity upon the coming of resorters and yet more resorters, would benefit greatly by such an improvement. The drive around the lake would be a great attraction to the summer visitors who come with their cars and drive daily for health and pleasure. The almost constant repairs necessary on sections of the present road detract greatly from the pleasure of the drive.

The proposed improvement would hasten the development of the whole Pine Lake water front as resort property, and greatly increase real estate values in the vicinity. Those who have studied the road question tell us that the cost of any permanent road improvement can always be added to the valuation of the property, and in this instance, owing to the resort features, valuations would undoubtedly soar beyond the usual.

Without doubt, the building of a good concrete road around Pine Lake would benefit all the people of the county in one way and another; through cheapening of transportation costs; through the pleasure of automobiling; through making commercial, educational and social opportunities more accessible; and through financial benefits accruing from the rise in land values and from the increased number of summer visitors.

Pine Lake and the beautiful parks located in its vicinity are a big asset to the county, and we can only make the most of these natural attractions by building around the lake the very best road known to mankind, viz, reinforced concrete.

Mrs. Brayton Saltonstall.
No. 408 Mason St.,
Charlevoix, Mich."

In determining the prize winners of the contest, the subject, composition, points and neatness were the merits for which the winners were picked. The second prize winning essay will appear in this paper next week.

Electric light bulbs that give service at Charlevoix Hardware Co.—Adv.-35-tf.

AT THE MOVIES

Hunchback of Notre Dame

Fortunate indeed is the actor lucky enough to have a role in a production which scores one of the biggest hits in the history of the cinema art but when he comes right back as a featured member of the cast of another production hailed as greatest of all, he can surely be said to be a child of destiny. Such is Ernest Torrence, who plays one of the principal roles in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," which opens its local engagement at the Palace Theatre on Thursday and Friday, December 10 and 11.

Torrence was given lavish praise for his work in "The Covered Wagon," but all who have seen him in the new University production, admit that he has accomplished a piece of art that will go down into history. In "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" this part is second only to that of Lon Chaney, the star, who portrays the role of "Quasimodo." Torrence will be seen as "Clopin, King of the Underworld." It is no reflection on either man to say that with any other man than Chaney in the title role Torrence would have "stolen" the dollar honors.

Log Rollers Risk Lives For Movies

Riding on a log less than two feet in diameter, down a rapid stream, isn't the easiest thing the world. Yet the lumberjacks who were drafted into actors' jobs for atmospheric scenes in "The Knockout," which comes to the Palace Theatre Saturday and Sunday, December 12 and 13, declare that they would rather ride a log than cruise in a taxi down Broadway.

They made this assertion while in New York, where they were brought by First National from Canada for the interiors of the picture.

One of the most thrilling scenes in the picture is an incident in which a number of intoxicated woodsmen ride down a rapid stream to witness a fight between Milton Sills and a six-foot-seven adversary.

The shooting of the rapids is said to be only one of the many sensations of "The Knockout." There's a jam break with thrilling rescues; the blowing up of a river dam; a lumber camp battle and several other hair-raisers.

The very best of leather used in shoe repairing. Campbell Boot Shop.—Adv. 49tf.

Charlevoix Hdw. Co.

Only Twelve Shopping Days Before CHRISTMAS

Get ahead of the crowd and make your selection comfortable.

Our Christmas Goods Are Ready

Lots of practical, sensible things. Sleds, Skiis, Skates, Radiolas, Beautiful Royal Rochester Wear, Electrical Helps, Silverwear

Surely Just the Articles You Want Are Here

Charlevoix Hardware Company

302 Bridge St. Phone-1

Coal Prices

Advancing Rapidly

due to car shortage.

Better get your coal as our supply is limited.

Charlevoix-Co-Operative Assn.

Let The COURIER Sell IT for YOU

REDPATH'S

Our store is filled with new and novel merchandise for the Holidays.

Gifts that others will be delighted to receive from you and that you will be delighted to receive from others. Let us help YOU with your Christmas problems. Our suggestions are yours for the asking. Our store is at your disposal. Courteous and willing service—always.

REDPATH'S

The Best Gift of All

Give Useful Gifts

And in the whole catalog of Christmas gifts there is nothing so Useful, so Economical, so Comforting as gifts selected from our complete stock of Hardware and Electrical Supplies.

Aluminum and Glass Cooking Utensils, Carving Sets, Electric Percolators, Waffle Irons, Heating Pads Hoover Vacuum Cleaners, Bissell Carpet Sweepers, Radio Sets to suit any pocketbook.

Snow Shoes, Hand Sleds, Skiis, Tobbogans, Skates, Fishing Tackle, Pocket Knives, Flashlights and Xmas Tree Lights, Bridge, Floor and Boudoir Lamps Tools, Grinders, Hand Drills, and hundreds of other worth-while gifts for every member of the family.

WOOD BROS.

Hardware and Electrical Supplies

CHARLEVOIX COURIER

VOLUME 32. NUMBER 50. TWELVE PAGES. COURIER, CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 16, 1925 PRICE $2.00 PER YEAR

VESPER SERVICE AT CONG. CHURCH

SUNDAY, DECEMBER 20TH AT FOUR-THIRTY O'CLOCK

Soloists and Choir of Twenty Voices Will Render Selections By Handel

The choir of the First Congregational church will render a notable program of Christmas music Sunday afternoon, December 20, at 4:30 o'clock. The chorus and soloists will number about twenty voices. Selections from Handel's oratorio, "The Messiah," will comprise the greater part of the program. The special Christmas offering which will be asked for is to go to the choir fund. Generous support will enable this courageous and faithful group of musicians and church workers to secure needed music folios and to continue from time to time the preparation and presentation of noble devotional compositions.

The following is the program:

Processional Hymn, "O Come, All Ye Faithful."

Invocation, "Gloria."

Response, Reading—The Christmas Story.

A group of Messiah numbers:

1. "And the Glory of the Lord"—chorus.
2. "Comfort Ye, Comfort Ye, My People," tenor solo—Dr. Wilkinson.
3. "O Thou That Tellest Good Tiding," contralto solo—Mrs. Mattson and chorus.
4. "Rejoice Greatly, O Daughter of Zion," soprano solo—Mrs. Livingston.
5. "Then Shall the Eyes of the Blind Be Opened." Recitative followed by aria, "He Shall Feed His Flock," Mezzo soprano—Mrs. Coulter.
6. "Come Unto Me All Ye That Labor and are Heavy Laden," soprano—Mrs. Livingston.
7. "He Was Despised," contralto solo—Mrs. Mattson.
8. "Surely He Hath Borne Our Griefs"—chorus.
9. "Since By Man Came Death, By Man Came Also the Resurrection"—double quartette.
10. "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth," soprano solo—Mrs. Adams.
11. Offertory, "Silent Night"—men's chorus.
12. Brief Christmas Message—Dr. Mattson.
13. "Hark, Hark, My Soul," Shelley—chorus with solos by Mrs. Mattson, Mrs. Livingston and Mrs. Stout.
14. "Hallelujah," Messiah, chorus with organ, Mrs. Stelter and cornet, Mr. Livingston.
15. Benediction.

BRING THE KIDDIES TO PALACE THEATRE

Free Moving Picture and Gifts for All Christmas Day

Arrangements are all made and plans completed to give the kiddies of Charlevoix and surrounding territory a "time of their life" on Christmas afternoon, Friday, December 25th.

The business district was solicited on Monday afternoon of this week by a committee in charge of the program and sufficient funds were raised to provide a present for every child who comes to the Palace theatre on that afternoon. Santa Claus will be there in person to distribute the gifts to the children. The management of the theatre will present Charlie Chaplin in "The Idle Class," a picture that will provide an afternoon of merriment for the young folks. An orchestra composed of members of the Charlevoix Band will be there to furnish music, so the stage is all set for a merry time.

Every father and mother of children in the city as well as the surrounding farm community are invited to bring their children in for an afternoon of fun. The date and hour is Christmas Day afternoon 2:30 o'clock and the Palace Theatre is the place.

Birthday Surprise

A delightful surprise party was staged Tuesday evening, December 15 when sixteen friends and neighbors called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wagner on Hurlbut avenue, to remind the hostess of her birthday anniversary. The guests enjoyed progressive pedro until a late hour, after which a dainty potluck lunch was served.

W. E. Parmelee builds storm windows.—Adv. 37-tf.

SHOULD KEEP M-11 OPEN THIS WINTER

IS MATTER OF VITAL IMPORTANCE TO CITY

The Issue is Now a Live One—Let's Not Let it Be Dropped

Every possible effort should be made to keep roads out of Charlevoix open to automible traffic this winter. Other towns are doing it and there is no reason why it cannot be done here. The matter is vital to the town and is becoming more important from year to year as the automobile becomes the principal and most convenient mode of travel.

There are several important reasons why we should keep roads leading into the city open in the winter time. The first is the matter of mail delivery. We are now enjoying two complete mail deliveries to the residential section of the city. This service will be continued as long as possible and the road between here and Petoskey will have to be kept open to car traffic if it is to be continued. We now get a delivery of first-class mail from Petoskey via Fowler's bus line which otherwise would not get here until afternoon. Hence the two city deliveries.

It can be plainly seen that when the roads become impassable so that the bus can no longer operate, we will be deprived of this service. Then too, we might want to go to Petoskey or Traverse City some time this winter and get home the same day. It might also be mentioned that the Greyhound line will also keep up their schedule as long as road conditions permit.

The county now owns two snow plows which can be used to keep the roads open. In previous years their operations have been confined to the east end of the county around East Jordan and Boyne City with occasional trips around the lake. It seems only fair and reasonable that one of these machines should be located at Charlevoix for the winter and it could be put to very good use. There is no reason why the roads between here and Petoskey and Traverse City cannot be kept open this winter.

Considerable progress along this line was made at the meeting in Boyne City last week and, now that the issue is a live one, let's keep after it and accomplish something.

PREPARING MUNICIPAL SKATING RINK

City Will Tend to Upkeep and Provide Benches and Lights

Charlevoix will have a municipal skating rink this winter. The project is sponsored by the city and work commenced Tuesday morning of this week to get the grounds ready for icing.

The rink will take in the entire front of the school yard from Mason street to Clinton. A road scraper is being used to remove the snow and bank it up on the sides and the whole thing will be flooded with a fire hose as soon as this work is completed. Benches are to be placed in convenient places along the rink and the lot will be lighted at night with electric lights.

This will furnish a safe place for the children to enjoy skating this winter and will keep them away from the lakes and under proper supervision at all times.

McCools's Velvet Ice Cream now on sale at the Creamery Building, 105 Clinton street.—Adv. 45tf.

You can afford to wear heavy wool winter garments at the price we are selling them to close out the line. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 47tf.

PRESENTED WITH BIRTHDAY GIFT

Baptist People Surprise Pastor in Church Parlors

"Now I can certainly locate my favorite fishing grounds," were the words used by Rev. Herman Burns of the Baptist church when presented with a beautiful picture of the entrance to Round Lake from Pine Lake at a birthday surpirse party given by members of the church last Friday evening.

The party was given in honor of Pastor Burns' 68th birthday anniversary, and surprised he certainly was when he entered the church parlors looking for Mrs. Burns and wondering why she was not at home with the usual evening meal ready for him.

The table was spread for fifty. A huge birthday cake, made by Mrs. Isaksson occupied the center of the table, in front of which Mr. and Mrs. Burns were seated. At the close of the meal Dr. Burns was asked to carve the cake, which he did accompanied by numerous amusing and witty remarks. Mrs. Nettie Correll, in behalf of the church membership, presented Dr. Burns with a benutiful Charlevoix harbor scene. In words that expressed deep appreciation, he responded to the presentation speech. A social hour followed with short talks by a number of those present.

WARNING

People are given time warning to keep off the Orchard Bay Farm when after Christmas trees, unless given special permission by the manager, E. J. Edwards. The trees are private property and must not be disturbed. If violations do not cease, prosecution will follow.—Adv. 50t1.

Every Ford owner should have a Koolfast radiator on his car. Hundreds have made the change. We have them. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 49tf.

Holley Gift Shop for Toys, Dolls and numerous other gifts.—49-t2.

STATES UNITED ACTION URGED

POLLUTION OF WATERS DISCUSSED AT RECENT MEETING

Conservation Commission Secretary Says Others Must Help Michigan in Solving Problem

Common action by the states of the Great lakes region against the pollution of streams by municipal and industrial waste was urged by Edgar Cochrun, secretary of the Michigan conservation commission, before the second annual Lake Michigan sanitation congress Friday at St. Joseph.

"Almost every sizable city in the state is contemplating the construction of a modern sewage disposal plant," he said. "The industries are beginning to realize they must take care of their waste."

The bad consequences of neglect in not stopping stream pollution "will pyrumid on us unless there is immediate and heroic action," he said.

"Action against stream pollution should be undertaken in common by all the states of this region. It is not fair to expect Michigan to handicap its industries if the industries in neighboring states are permitted to run wild."

Mr. Cochrun said the first of a series of regional conferences with cities would be held in Lansing in January under auspices of the attorney general's office, the department of conservation and the state health department. This first conference, he said, will be with representatives of cities in the St. Joseph river basin.

Dr. L. D. Rawlings, health com-

(Continued on Page 6)

SECOND ESSAY ON GOOD ROADS

JOHN DUTCHER OF CHARLEVOIX THE WINNER

Is Right When He States That Tourists Will Always Avoid Bumby Gravel Roads

The winner of second prize in the good roads essay and cross-word puzzle contest recently staged by "Uncle" Geo. H. VanPelt, concrete road adocate, is John Dutcher, high school student, of Charlevoix.

Mr. Dutcher handled the topic in a very satisfactory and intelligent manner, showing that the younger generation fully realizes what good roads mean to Charlevoix county, especially a drive of concrete around Pine Lake. The essay follows:

"A good road—a concrete road—if properly constructed around Pine Lake would be of many advantages. First, because of the invaluable advertising that it would give to Charlevoix and surrounding territories. Second, because of its scenic value. Third, because of our resort proposition. And fourth, because Charlevoix county depends upon the resort trade and the farming for its prosperity.

"The present roads which surround this beautiful drive consist of tar and gravel, which are decidedly bumpy. A new packed gravel road is a fair road for a short time only. Then by heavy traffic and lots of it, it becomes a curse; something which the tourists and sightseers have, and always will avoid. It is known far and near that the drive around Pine Lake is the most beautiful drive in Northern Michigan; yet to see this, one must suffer to drive over roads that take the pleasure from it, not only unpleasant for the occupants of the car but detrimental to the car itself. At some of the most beautiful spots of the drive we find the road is in a most precarious and dangerous condition. There is room for but one machine, and on each side of the road there is quite a bit of mire making it utterly impossible to pass another without grave danger. Let us take the tourist, for example and consider the amount of money which he leaves behind him. If he stays at our fine auto camp he is sure to hear about our beautiful drive and nine times out of ten he will stay one day or more than he had intended, thus he leaves his money for camping expenses and his meals, besides the other things that tourists are always buying. Perhaps after seeing it he will desire to purchase a piece of property and build him a summer home. And if this road were built people will be more likely to buy the land and improve it. The valuation of property is at the present time worth from $25.00 an acre to $500.00 per acre. A good concrete road would advance this land to about $2500.00 an acre and all adjacent property will advance in proportion. Also by increasing value of lake shore property it would have a tendency to lower the rate of taxation, and property more distant would also benefit. There is about 52 miles of this drive, of which about two miles are already concrete. Providing a part of this proposed road could be made a part of a trunk line system the cost of building and maintenance would be born by the state. Otherwise the county will have to bear the full cost."

Thus I have endenvored to show that it is as "Uncle George" says:

"And 'fore I'm through, I going to prove
What good roads really "AM,"
And show the people Soft Stuff pikes
Ain't wu'th a Tinkers D—!

It takes CONCRETE to do the job
With any satisfaction.
The gravel trails are outta date—
Let's have some speed and action!"

Enjoyable Week-End Party

A most enjoyable week-end party was given by Mr. and Mrs. John McCann at their Norwood home Saturday evening and Sunday. Three couple were present, the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Hamilton and Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Usher. It goes without saying that every minute of the time was thoroughly enjoyed by those present, who did ample justice to the noon-day meal as well as what might be termed as "snacks" 'tween meals.

Expert shoe repair work by one of the most capable cobblers in the city. Campbell Boot Shop.—Adv. 49tf.

Fine for catarrh when melted in a spoon or snuffed up the nose and vapors inhaled.

Head and Chest Colds Relieved In a New Way

A Salve which Releases Medicated Vapors when Applied Over Throat and Chest.

Inhaled as a vapor and, at the same time absorbed through the skin like a liniment, Vicks VapoRub reaches immediately inflamed, congested air passages.

This is the modern direct treatment for all cold troubles that is proving so popular in Canada and the States where over 17 million jars are now used yearly.

Splendid for sore throat, tonsilitis, bronchitis, croup, head and chest colds, catarrh, asthma or hay fever.

Just rub Vicks over throat and chest and inhale the medicated vapors. It quickly loosens up a cold.

VICKS VAPORUB

OVER 21 MILLION JARS USED YEARLY

CORRESPONDENCE

NORWOOD

Mrs. Dick Kirby returned from the Charlevoix hospital last Saturday.

Oscar Light of East Jordan, visited his brother, George Light and family, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Bearss of Ellsworth, visited Mr. and Mrs. Morris Henry, last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Parsons of Ellsworth, visited their mother, Mrs. Haskins, one day last week.

Mrs. Wm. Supernaw and family of Charlevoix, spent the week end at their farm on the Norwood road.

Sam Routley, who has been ill for the past month, was taken to the Charlevoix hospital last Wednesday and is getting along fine.

The chicken pie supper and Xmas bazaar was well attended last Wednesday evening and all enjoyed a good time.

Miss Furst, teacher of the Clark school, and boarding with the Gennett family, spent Saturday and Sunday in Traverse City.

Mr. and Mrs. Colon McKenzie of Charlevoix, drove to Traverse City, Saturday, and took their father, Geo. Lord, of Norwood, with them.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Gennett and family expect to move to East Jordan this week, where Mr. Gennett has employment with the Porter Co.

Miss Hipp, teacher of the Norwood school, attended the funeral of her grandmother, Mrs. Horace Hipp of East Jordan, on Tuesday afternoon of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. John McCann and their friends, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Usher and Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Hamilton, all of Charlevoix, spent Saturday night and Sunday at the McCann cottage in Norwood, where they enjoyed a fine chicken dinner and a good time.

You can afford to wear heavy wool winter garments at the price we are selling them to close out the line. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 47tf.

EVELINE

Charles Zitka took a load of hogs to East Jordan last week.

Everybody is glad to hear that Mrs. LeRoy Fitzpatrick is better at at this writing.

Elena and Homer Nasson are boarding in East Jordan now, while going to high school.

The taxes will soon be here now, and the farmer who had a good crop of potatoes this year won't mind the taxes.

There is going to be a Christmas program at the Walker school, Friday evening, December 18th. Everybody is invited, and come early.

The neighbors and friends of Mesdames Karn and Walter Lyngklip, helped them celebrate their birthday Sunday. Everybody there had a nice time.

Mrs. Griffin's father, Mr. Wallace, died last week. The body was taken from the Griffin home to Bellaire for burial. The Griffin family have the sympathy of all the neighbors.

Wear wool garments and keep warm this winter. We are selling them below cost to close out the line. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 47tf.

We sell Koolfast Radiators for Fords because we believe they are the best radiator on the market today. Benj. Brown. —Adv. 49tf.

CLARION

Mrs. Embury returned from Alanson on Saturday.

School will close Friday for the holiday vacation.

Mrs. Lillian Ralls of Boyne City, was in town on Sunday.

Mrs. R. H. Webster returned Sunday to her home in Flint.

Mrs. Frank Hankins, who returned last week from Grand Rapids, is very ill.

Mrs. Jesse Planck is visiting relatives in Petoskey, before returning her her Detroit home.

Mrs. Kate Flashman of Harbor Springs, is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Kent.

The Clarion schools will give a Christmas program at the M. E. church on Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Baumgarden, who have been living east of town, have moved into town for the winter.

Mrs. Mary A. Harrington and grand-daughter, Mirla Herrington, left last week for a visit with friends near Grand Rapids before going on to Kalamazoo and Ohio.

The Ladies' Aid will hold a Panel Post Sale at the town hall on Tuesday evening, December 15th. A cafeteria lunch will be served and there will also be a fish pond.

Overcoats, Mackinaws, sheeplined coats, heavy pants, sweaters, leather vests and caps at cost price to close out the line. Benj. Brown—Adv. 47tf.

BARNARD

Our school closes this Friday for the holiday vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. George Ball of Lansing, were caller in our community on Saturday.

The school and Sunday school Christmas program and tree will be held on Friday evening of this week.

On account of Christmas festivities the Grange will hold their regular meeting on Monday evening, December 21st. A good attendance is desired.

The Ladies' Aid motored to Boyne City last Wednesday and held their regular meeting with Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Cole. A very enjoynble time was had by all.

About twenty young people perpetrated a surprise on Miss Ruth Matchett, last Friday evening, the occasion being her fourteenth birthday. Of course they had a good time. They left several gifts for her and all partook of a bountiful supper.

BOYNE FALLS HOTEL BURNS

Hotel Marsh Was Leading Hostelry For More Than 30 Years

At 4:30 Tuesday morning of last week the Hotel Marsh at Boyne Falls was practically destroyed by fire. Fire started in the basement around the furnace. Building was insured for $5,000 but only a piano and a few beds saved.

The Marsh Hotel has been the leading hotel in the village for more than 30 years.

HOLD THEIR ANNUAL BIRTHDAY BANQUET

Annual Affair the High-light of the Year

Members of the Woman's Foreign and Home Missionary Societies of the Methodist Episcopal church held their annual banquet last Friday evening. Mrs. Adan Beeman presided over a program consisting of selections by the orchestra and speeches by the pastor and others.

A generous birthday offering was received. The tables were betutifully arranged with Christmas decorations and a large Christmas tree occupied the center of the room. This annual affair of these societies is the high-light of the year.

Notice to Tax Payers

I will be at the Charlevoix County Bank, Saturday, January 2nd, and Saturday, January 9th, to receive Charlevoix township taxes. Cora D. Rodger, Twp. Treas.—Adv. 50t2 pd.

HOLIDAY CASH SPECIALS

Candy from	15c to 35c per pound
Fancy juicy Oranges good size, per dozen	60c
Fresh Roasted Peanuts, per pound	15c
Mixed Nuts, per pound	35c
Best grade soft shell budded Walnuts, per pound	45c
10 pounds Rice for	$1.00
10 pounds powdered Sugar for	$1.00
100 pounds Granulated Sugar for	$6.50
Apples, per bushel	45c to 75c
2 packages 15 oz. or Seedless or Seeded Raisins for	25c
20 pound pail Cottosuet for	$3.25
Camel Cigarettes, per cartoon	$1.35
5 pound pails honey for	75c
60c Mayonnaise for	50c

10 per cent OFF on all fancy Richelieu canned goods

Wishing you all A Merry Christmas and a very Prosperous New Year

LOUIS S. ORLOWSKI

DESIRABLE GIFTS

What About Christmas Gifts

We invite you to call at our store and see the many useful pieces we are offering—among which are:

SMOKING STANDS, LADIES' DESKS, SEWING CABINETS, PEDESTALS, DRESSING TABLES, CHAIRS AND ROCKERS, PICTURES, VICTROLAS AND RECORDS, RADIOS—THE PSANSTIEHL, CROSLEY AND CHELSEA LINOLEUM AND CONGOLEUM RUGS

In fact most every pieee of Furniture in our stock will make a suitable Christmas Gift We have a nice 1926 Calendar for you. Call for it.

S. M. SEE & SON

RELIABLE HOME FURNISHERS

Christmas Gift Bargains

Pre-Christmas Sale of Gift Goods

Our Gift to You--- A Tremendous Slash in Prices

An event that affords most unusual opportunities to buy many of your Gifts at prices much under regular. Our line of Men's Overcoats, Mackinaws, Leather and Sheep-lined Coats and Vests, Sweaters, Heavy Pants and Caps must be closed out to make room for a larger line of auto accessories. The original cost of this merchandise is no object. We are determined to close out the line regardless of price, and right at the time of Christmas huying we are are offering you the greatest values in this line ever offered by any merchant in Charlevoix. Our gift to you will be in the form of a great slash in price on atricles the men folks and boys will appreciate as gifts. Just how much you can save during this sale depends upon the price of the article you buy. But no matter what it is, the saying will be worth your while. The stock offered is the same we have always kept in stock—no shelf worn goods—and our guarantee stands baek of every article we sell. You will probably never have another chance to buy at prices we offer listed below:

MACKINAWS

When you see them you will wonder how we can sell Mackinaws of the quality these represent at the phenomenally low price of $9.00 and $5.00.

The best heavy, all wool Mackinaws, 12.00, all placed on sale for $9.00

Good wool Mackinaws, values from $7.00 to $10.00, all placed on sale for $5.00

SHEEP-LINED MACKINAW COATS

Made of the best quality of goods and a coat that will give you years of service. You have never had a chance to buy a coat like these at prices we offer them:

Assortment of Sheep-lined Mackinaw Coats $18.00 values, our sale price $13.50

Assortment of Sheep-lined Coats $15.00 and $16.00 values, sale price $10.00

Assortment of Sheep-lined Coats $12.00 values, sale price $8.00

Sheep-lined Vests, $5.00 values, for $3.00

MEN'S KERSEY PANTS

Garments made by the Soo Woolen Mills, Alpena Mills and other manufacturers, the kind those spending their time out-of-doors like to wear, we will sell any pair in stock for one dollar less than they are regularly sold. This is an opportunity that will not be offered again.

BOYS' CAPS

Boys Caps, all kinds and sizes. Every man or boy likes a good warm cap. Here is your chanee to buy one practically at cost price.

Assortment of Men's and Boys' Caps
Our sale price ..... 25c, 50c, 75c and $1.00

Another assortment of Men's and Boys' Caps at ONE-HALF OFF.

MEN'S ALL-WOOL OVERCOATS

We have an assortment of Men's All-Wool Overcoats, the finest that money can buy. All we ask is for you to choose your size and style and we will make the PRICE TO SUIT YOU.

MISCELLANEOUS SALE ITEMS

Our complete line of Horse Blankets, Robes, Rain Coats, Stock Foods, etc., are included in our close-out sale, and prices are cut accordingly.

SUGGESTIONS FOR MEN AND BOY GIFTS

Just a few Gift reminders that will be found in our regular stock suitable for Men and Boys: Underwear, Shirts, Men's Pants, Sweaters, Overalls, Jackets, Gloves and Mittens.

TRUNKS, SUIT CASES, BAGS

Substantial built bags that will withstand the hardest knocks of travel yet always look good. Suit Cases of the very best and those moderately priced. Trunks of all kinds. Either of these will make a suitable gift for any member of the family. They are moderately priced, too.

DO YOUR SHOPPING EARLY!

Largest and most complete line of Auto Accessories, Tires Tubes, Skid Chains, auto parts and ignition supplies in Charlevoix County.

Benj. Brown

Agency for the Willard Storage Battery. We also carry a complete line of battery parts. Bring in your batteries to us for charging and winter storage.

Gift Hints

On Christmas Morning

A SMILE OF REAL DELIGHT GREETS MEN'S GIFTS FROM THIS STORE

Almost every article in our entire stock of Men's and Boy's Clothing and Furnishings may he suitably given as Gifts. Below we are listing a few of them, but the only way for you to know of the many items here is to come shopping. You will also find our prices as consistently low as reliable merchandise can be sold.

SMOKING OR HOUSE COATS
PERFECTLY TAILORED KNIT VESTS
BELTS—PLAIN OR INITIALED BUCKLES
HOSIERY IN GIFT PACKING
TRAVELING BAGS and other LUGGAGE ITEMS
SUITS, OVERCOATS and TOPCOATS
MUFFLERS AND GIFT TIES
SWEATERS AND SWEATER COATS

There is more than usual satisfaction in giving gifts that will prove both useful and pleasing. It is with a feeling of more than usual satisfaction that we call these items to your attention.

EMERY CLOTHING HOUSE

THE MEN'S GIFT STORE

Open Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday Evenings Next Week

UNCLE GEORGE APPRECIATES HONOR

Pleased Over Selection as Honorary Chairman

H. A. Craig, secretary of the Charlevoix County Concrete Road Association, received a letter the other day from "Uncle" Geo. H. VanPelt, now at his winter home in Daytona, Fla., expressing his appreciation of being named as honorury chairman of the association at a recent meeting held in Boyne City.

"Uncle" George is the acknowledged daddy of concrete road construction in northern Michigan, especially in Charlevoix county. Years ago when he insisted and argued that the only road to build was of concrete, many thought he was wrong and he was severely criticized. Today these critics acknowledge he was right; that roads of concrete were the only kind to build and had Charlevoix county roads been built of concrete today we would have had permanent roads instead of miles of worn out gravel.

Who could be more deserving of this honor than "Uncle" George?

BAPTIST CHURCH

At 10:30 Rev. A. J. Weeks, a missionnry from Burma, at home on a furlough, will be the speaker. He has a wonderful message for us and we hope he will have a large audience to hear him. This will be followed by the baptism of several candidates—said One: "I never took mueh stock in sermons on baptism, but after seeing that baptism last Sunday evening there is no longer any doubt in my mind, what the bible teaches and baptism means."

Bible school will meet at 12:00 M. "Paul's Summary of His Life" will be the topic. This is a wonderful auto-biography. You will enjoy the study of it.

At the hour of evening service the Bible school will have its annual Christmas exercises. Santa will be there to meet all his little friends and hear their exercises. If they are of a high order He will doubtless leave some token of His appreciation.

The pastor was given a genuine birthday surprise last Friday evening. He will long remember and appreciate this expression of esteem. Dr. and Mrs. Burns expect to leave early in the week to spend the holidays with their children in Detroit. They have not been separated at Christmas time in thirty-five years. They go praying that all their Charlevoix friends may have a joyful Christmas and happily beginsthe year 1926.

Mrs. E. G. Shumway Dead

Word comes from Chicago of the death on Mondny, December 7, of Mrs. E. G. Shumway, for a number of years a summer resident of Charlevoix and a cottage owner at the Chicago Club. She is survived by one son, Edward Shumway, and three daughters, Mrs. Cyrus Adams, Mrs. Solomon Smith, and Mrs. John Stuart. She will be greatly missed among members of the Chicago colony who annually spend their summers in Charlevoix.

W. E. Parmelee builds storm windows.—Adv. 37-tf.

Hens Will Lay The Year Around

Give a hen the right materials and she will turn out plenty of eggs and do it in fall and winter. Thousands are getting full egg baskets, keeping their hens on full time schedules the year around, making real profits, by feeding correctly. They are feeding the world's best known, highest quality egg making feed.

Blatchford's
"Fill the Basket"
Egg Mash

Why experiment? The Blatchford factory has done that for you. They have been making commercial feeds for over 125 years. Their Egg Mash is a guaranteed feed. Contains 17 ingredients—25 per cent of them milk and meat products. That's why it makes hens lay.

Ask us to name some others who have tried it with gratifying results. We stake our reputation on it. Take home a trial bag and watch results.

TRADE-MARK

ARGO MILLING COMPANY

CELEBRATE THEIR GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Willis Married for 50 Years

Fifty years of blissful married life and both in good health is an event not usually enjoyed by the average person of todny. However, this long period was reached by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Willis of Hayes township December 8, who, with members of their family and a number of close friends, celebrated the event on Tuesday of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Willis have been residents here since 1866, and both have done their part in helping to convert the unbroken forests into comfortnble homes and making Hayes township a good place in which to live.

The event was a thoroughly enjoyable one, and congrntulations on their long and useful life and the rounding up of so many years were extended. Two daughters and a son were present, besides a number who have known them during their residence in this vicinity.

A bounteous noon day meal was served and the guest presented their host nnd hostess with suitable presents showing in a munner the high esteem in which they are held.

MANY COAST GUARD PORTS REMAIN OPEN

Eleven "Inactive Winter" Stations Will Have Service This Year

Instead of closing for two months during the winter season, 11 of the coast guard stations of the tenth district, located at so-called inactive winter ports, will remain open during the months of January and February according to Capt. C. A. Lippincott, district superintendent.

Ordinarily the first of the year is the signal for closing the coast guard stations at Bois Blanc island, Mackinaw, Charlevoix, North Manitou Island, South Manitou Island, Sleeping Bear, Manistee, Macatawa, South Haven, St. Joseph, and Benton Harbor. This year these stations will remain open.

Grand Haven, Muskegon, Ludington and Frankfort, ports having navigation the year around, always have remained open.

Stations at White lake, Pentwater, Pointe Betsey and Beaver Island are inactive. The Beaver Island station has an officer in charge and three men under him, the other three having only an officer and one surfman at each station.

INDEPENDENTS LOSE TO E. JORDAN OUTFIT

Locals Outplayed Opponents in First Half.—Score 26-37

The Charlevoix Independent basketball team suffered defeat in its first game of the season when they were trounced by the East Jordan outfit, at East Jordan, to the tune of 26 to 37.

The local squad had the best of their opponents throughout the first half of the game and outplayed the lumber town boys. The score for the first period was 14 to 12 in Charlevoix's favor. The second half, however, was a different story and the East Jordan lads walked off with the bacon and a comfortable margin of 11 points to their favor.

The local Independents will endeavor to even the score when East Jordan plays here on Wednesday evening of this week. This is the first home game of the season and let's turn out and give the team our support.

Your old radiator is worth $2.50 when we intsall a Koolfast on your Ford. Ben: Brown.—Adv. 49tf.

METHODIST CHURCH

"The Promise of Joy"—Christmas sermon, 10:30 a. m., next Sunday.

"The Man Without a Christmas." Feature sermon illuminated by Dickens Christmas Carol, 7:00 p. m. next Sunday.

The special Christmas music by the choir will be rendered in the morning service. In the evening, Christmas carols by the congregation led by the big choir. The orchestra will also assist with the evening music.

The Sunday School Christmas program is being prepared for Christmas eve.

The Junior church meets nt four o'clock next Sunday as usual.

Epworthians are all urged to be present for the six o'clock hour next Sunday. All young people are invited.

Sunday school is scheduled to meet nt 11:45 each Sunday.

Card of Thanks

We wish to thank our many friends for their kindness shown during illness of our father, George S. Wallace, who passed away Monday, November 7. Also for the lovely flowers and expressions of sympathy. Mr. and Mrs. Norman P. Griffith.—Adv. 50t1.

Gifts for Children

Pleasing, practical, surprising and thoughtful Gifts for All. Truly, this is the store of many wonderful Gift Suggestions for everybody. Makes no difference how old or how young that friend or relative may be, there is something here that will look real good in his or her stocking on Christmas morning.

CRYING VOICE DOLLS
Soft body, walking doll. Composition head and arms. Imitation shoes and stockings, painted hair and eyes, crepe dress and panties with bonnet to match, Each.....49c

MAMA VOICE DOLLS
16 inch stiffed chubby body, composition head and arms, painted hair and eyes, shoes and stockings, fancy linen finish dresses and hats, each.....98c

20 inch soft body, printed voile and linen finish two-piece dress, assorted colors, lace trimmed cap to match, composition head and arms, fixed eyes, embossed wig, shoes and stockings, each.....$1.98

"KIDLYNE" BODY DOLLS
Beautiful bisque heads, well formed body, hip joint, showing teeth, moving eyes, wigs and finly modeled features. With shoes and and stocking, each.....48c

BABY BUGGIES
17 1-2 inches long 7 1-2 inches wide, 22 1-2 inches high. Narrow flat reed, patented steel hood bows, blue, gray or cream finish. Gears all steel, black enameled, 6 inch wheels, double spoke, 1-4 inch rubber tires each..$3.75

CHECKER BOARDS
Size 12x12 in., squares in red, black and gold, lithographed, each.....15c

PLUSH TEDDY BEARS WITH VOICES
12 inches high, stuffed, Cinnamon colored plush covered body, jointed arms and limbs, felt palms and soles, head eyes, bellows with voice inside, each.....98c

BROWNIE HORSE SHOE GAME
Contains two 11 1-2 inch steel discs, enamled in black and orange, with separate nickel plated pegs. Four rubber shoes, two black and two red. Suitable for either indoor or outdoor playing. Each set packed in box, each.....98c

SNAP BALL
A new fascinating game of skill and fun, played with nine balls. Made of metal, beautifully decorated in five colors, complete set in attractive box, each.....98c

ROUND CORNER BLOCKS
Natural wood, two sides embossed and printed in colors, two sides letters and illustrations printed in colors, each.....23c

China Tea Sets, Toy Clothes Baskets, Weeden Steam Engines, walking, Barking Dog, Wheelbarrows, Express Wagons, Mechanical Toys, Toy Telephones, Toy Sets of Dishes, Cake Plates and Sugar and Cream Sets.

STORE OPEN EVENINGS UNTIL CHRISTMAS

SMITH VARIETY STORE

GIFT HEADQUARTERS

SHOP EARLY AND MAIL EARLY

CHRISTMAS GREETINGS

In addition to it being a custom at this time of the year for everyone to wish everyone else a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year, we consider it a privilege to wish our friends and customers this cordial and timely greeting. We hope that we may see you in person to extend our best wishes to you, but, if not, please consider this message as direct from our hearts.

Charlevoix Abstract & Engineering Co.

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

The CHARLEVOIX COURIER
Issued every Wednesday at
CHARLEVOIX - MICHIGAN

DuBois & Usher, Publishers
A. J. Usher, Editor and Business Mgr.
Courier Building Van Pelt Place

Entered at the Post Office in Charlevoix, Mich., as second class matter.

Member Michigan Press Ass'n.

Advertising Rates.

For advertising rates apply for schedule.

Notices of church or lodge socials and entertainments, where admission is charged, regular rates.

Obituary poetry, regular rates.

Card of Thanks, 25 cents.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

One copy, one year.....$2.00
One copy, six months.....$1.00
One copy, three months..... .60

ADVICE WORTH HEARING.

President Gifford of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, says that "there is a steady growth of volume of business affairs. Finances are easier and everybody is in a more optimistic frame of mind. There is nothing about the country that suggests a boom, there being nothing abnormal."

The telephone business is recognized as one of the fairest, surest indexes of business conditions in America. Certainly, the president of the biggest unit in this industry can speak with authority on business tendencies.

ENCOURAGE COMMERCIAL AVIATION.

Although conditions in America are "the most favorable in the world" for commercial aviation, this country is being distanced by all other important nations, according to the opinion of the Hoover Committee on Civil Aviation.

The Hoover Committee's report offers four major recommendations to remove what it characterizes as the fundamental difficulties which are retarding development here. They are: Enactment by congress of a civil aeronautic law; a definite government program concerning civil and industrial uses of aircraft; co-operation of all government agencies to strengthen the aircraft industry; public and business support through modified insurance rates and careful investment of private money.

The committee opposes direct subsidy of the industry as unnecessary, provided essential air navigation facilities are furnished by the government (landing fields, guiding lights, etc., the same as public highways.)

European countries subsidize the airplane industry. But with fair laws and government cooperation, private enterprise in this country will push the airplane to the front just the same as it has electricity, the telephone, railroad transportation, the automobile and radio. Give American ingenuity the chance and it will produce results much more rapidly than can be secured under government supervision or operation of any commercial enterprise.

SUGAR INDUSTRY BENEFITS FARMER.

A domestic beet sugar company announces construction of a fourth new factory during the present year, the new plants being located in Neb., Colo., and Wyoming.

Since the erection of a beet sugar factory at Scottsbluff, Neb., in 1910, the growth of the industry has been rapid and next year close to 100,000 acres will be under beet cultivation in Nebraska.

These simple facts give an idea of what the growth of an indispensable industry means to farming. Reasonable encouragement and protection of sugar beet indsutry has been a farm developer in many states and has safeguarded this nation against a foreign sugar monopoly.

BEAUTIFUL STREETS A COMMUNITY ASSET

Denver, which has long been noted as a beautiful city with unsurpassed scenic surroundings and invigorating climate, is constantly adding to the many attractions which nature has given it. This year it is constructing upwards of 600,000 square yards of pavement of the flexible asphaltic type. This would be equivalent to 60 miles of 18-foot highway.

MODERN HOUSE HEATING

Fuel engineers declare that development during the past year have brought house heating with gas within reach of millions of citizens. More efficient gas furnaces and progress in building insulation have made this possible. The result is that gas has been brought into direct competition with coal for house heating.

One need hardly waste any sympathy on the Flint motorist who was driving his car backward and didn't know the difference. If they should start to take him to jail he would think he was just coming out.

ANOTHER SLASH IN DODGE CAR PRICES

Tremendous Price Reduction Announced for January 7

Dodge Brothers, Inc., manufacturers of the Dodge car, through their local representative, Benj. Brown, announce another big price reduction in their product.

Wednesday morning, Mr. Brown received a telegram, the text of which is as follows: "Tremendous price reduction. On January 7th, 1926, Dodge Brothers, Incorporated, will announce a tremendous reduction in the prices of their complete line of motor cars. These reductions will apply on all cars bought after midnight, December 15th, 1925. When the new prices are made known, January 7th, the full amount of the reductions will be immediately refunded to all purchasers since December 15th. These revolutionary reductions are made possible by a recently completed ten million dollar extension program—new buildings and equipment that will nearly double the capacity of Dodge Brothers' factories in 1926. There is no change in the policy upon which Dodge Brothers established their leadership eleven years ago, the policy of constant improvement without yearly models."

A full page announcement of the proposed price cut will appear in next week's issue of the Courier. Further information concerning the subject may be obtained from Mr. Brown.

RESULTS THAT LAST!

Proven by Charlevoix People.

Thousands of kidney suffers have tried remedy after remedy with only temporary benefit. That's mighty discouraging! But one kidney remedy has earned a reputation for lasting results and there's plenty of proof right here in Charlevoix.

Read the experience of one who used Doan's Pills years ago and now makes her endorsement even stronger.

Mrs. Frank Smith, 307 May St., Charlevoix, says: "My back was sore, stiff and achy and when I did any stooping, pains darted across my kidneys. I felt nervous, depressed and completely worn out. Dizzy spells also came over me and my kidneys acted irregularly. I used a few boxes of Doan's Pills and they completely cured me." (Statement given May 4, 1920.)

On October 9, 1924, Mrs. Smith said: "The cure Doan's made for me has been lasting."

60c, at all dealers. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

CAMP FIRE DANCE TUESDAY, DEC. 22ND

Will Be Given at Oldham Club By Local Girls

The Charlevoix Camp Fire Girls will give a Christmas dance at the Oldham Club, on Tuesday evening, December 22nd, funds to be used by the girls in their organization.

Much work and considerable time have been spent by the young ladies to insure everyone a good time at the dance. The hall is being beautifully decorated and clever favors will be given to the dancing couples during the course of the evening. Everyone is invited to attend and enjoy an evening of dancing and fun and, at the same tome, help the girls to raise funds for their organization.

You will find high quality merchandise at reasonable prices at the Charlevoix Hdw. Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

The very best of leather used in shoe repairing. Campbell Boot Shop.—Adv. 49tf.

Hoffman-Maybury

William Maybury of this city and Mrs. Anna Regina Hoffman of St. Louis, Mo., were united in marriage last Friday evening, December 11, by Justice J. R. Cooper. The ceremony was performed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Campbell Shaw on the south hill at seven o'clock. The couple will make their home here and have the best wishes of their many friends.

Don't forget the Camp Fire dance at the Oldham Club on Tuesday evening, December 22. Special music and favors.—Adv. 50-tf.

INTERESTING BITS OF INFORMATION CLIPPED FROM OUR EXCHANGES

In an after dinner speech at Monroe, a speaker complained that the world is pleasure-mad. And right after a good dinner, too, the misanthrope!

The theft of diamonds and other precious stones from a show window in Bay City reminds us that people who live in glass houses shouldn't show stones.

A driver of a horse and buggy in a Jackson street was arrested for colliding with an automobile. The rule is that when the driver of a horse and buggy sees an atuomobile he must get out and collide with it on foot.

Next Years Christmas Tree

We wish you a
Very Merry
Merry
Christmas
Not only this year but next year
too. And we want
to help to make a Merry
Christmas for you next
year. This much we know
—that if you will come in
and join our Christmas Savings Club for next year—and deposit regularly for fifty weeks
—that next December, when we
mail you a nice fat Christmas
check, with 4% interest added in,
you will be as tickled as a kid with
a new pair of boots—and we
also know you will thank us, and admit that
it was one of the best things
you ever
did

Charlevoix State Savings Bank

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

W. S. Richardson, President.
A. D. Crimmins, Vice President.
Archie Livingston, Cashier.
G. W. Richardson, Asst. Cashier.

W. E. Byers, Auctioneer

Twenty years experience in handling Auction Sales, both on farm and household goods.

Let Me Cry Your Sales

Phone me at Charlevoix or call the Charlevoix Courier, where all dates are made.

Cups for Lunch Furnished if Requested

SANTA CLAUS HEADQUARTERS

This Store For Christmas Shoppers

As the days pass and Christmas seems racing to meet us, much time and effort may be spared the Christmas Shopper if she will come to this store where everything has been done to make her shopping problems easy. You may come here with the assurance that what ever gift you may choose it will be of a quality and a style that will appeal instantly to the recipient. Note the following suggestions—and this store will be crowded with others:-

Put These on Your List

Just a few suggestions for making your shopping easier. Note the prices.

Hickock Belts and initial buckles, at —
$1.50—$2.00—$3.00
—o—
Holiday boxed Garters, at 50c
—o—
Under the arm Bags—very new—at—
$3.50 AND $5.00
—o—
Silk Shirts—in plain or fancy colors, at—
$5.00 AND UP

Very Special

Unusual values at unusual Prices

Lingetee Bloomers, for $1.00
Fibre Silk Vests, for $1.00
Fibre Silk Bloomers, for $2.00
Extra large Bath Towels, for 50c

Women's Gifts

It will be a real pleasure to select her gift here.

Wool Scarf, for $3.00
Silk Bloomers, for $5.00
Silk Vests, for .....$1.95 and $3.00
Silk Hose, for .....$1.50 and up
Silk Gloves, for .....$1.00 and $1.50
Silk Combinations, for.....$3.50 and $5.00

Gifts for the Children

Whether your list be large or small, you will find this store equipped to provide all those loved by children. Prices and quality are right.

FOR BOYS

WOOL MITTENS for 50c
SWEATERS for .....$3.75 and $5.00
WOOL HOSE for .....75c and $1.00
STOCKING CAPS for .....$1.00 and $1.50

FOR GIRLS

BOXED HANDKERCHIEFS for .....25c and 50c
HAND BAGS for.....$1.00
SWEATERS for $3.75
GLOVES for 75c
CAPS and SCARFS for $2.00, $2.50, $3.00

Men's Gifts

Please him Christmas morning with a gift of real value.

Bath Robes, for $5, $7.50, $10.00
Silk Socks, for .....75c and $1.00
Ties, for $1.00
Handkerchiefs, for 10c, 25c, 50c
Belts with Initials, for .....$1.50 and $2.00
Gloves, for .....$2.00 and $3.00

HOLIDAY BOXES FOR SALE

Things to Remember

Here are gifts that are always acceptable. The prices invite attention.

Reindeer Leather Jackets for Ladies or Men. Either tan or grey, at.....$15.00
—o—
Silks in all grades at the lowest prices. Sweaters for ladies and men in the pull-over style and also button, at—
$5.00 AND UP
—o—
TOWEL SETS in Holiday Boxes at—
$1.00 AND $1.50

Real Bargains

These will make excellent Gifts

Full Fashioned Pure Silk Hose, for $1.50
Ladies' Fine Sateen Underslips, at $1.50
Ladies' Overblouses in English Broadcloth, at.....$2.50

M. A. Levinson & Co.

THE OLDEST BANK IN CHARLEVOIX COUNTY
FORTY-FIRST YEAR IN BUSINESS

1884 1925

SAVE

Join the Christmas Club
now forming at this bank

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY BANK
CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN
Nicholls, Buttars & Bridge, Bankers
THE BANK ON THE CORNER

LOCAL NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

Get the Habit—Read the Courier

Mrs. R. A. Emrey is ill this week at her home on Clinton street.

Mrs. J. B. Redpath returned home Monday from a two weeks visit in Chicago.

Percy Woolley made a business trip to Traverse City on Tuesday of this week.

W. G. Parker left for Sault Ste. Marie, Monday, on business for the Booth Fisheries.

Cleo LaPeer of East Jordan, was a business caller in this city on Tuesday of this week.

Art Larsen came over from St. James, last Friday, returned Sunday with a load of oil.

George Smith made a business trip to the southern part of the state on Monday of this week.

C. Y. Marshall is home for a visit with is parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Marshall of this city.

Harry Simmons of East Jordan, was in the city Tuesday morning of this week on business.

Miss Bernice Sayler, county normal cruic, will go to Big Rapids for the Christmas holidays.

Dr. Hugh Dicken of East Jordan, was a business caller in the city on Wednesday of this week.

Miss Katherine Clarke will spend her Christmas vacation at the home of her parents in Chicago.

Bring the kiddies to the free show and entertainment at the palace theatre Christmas afternoon.

James Simmons left last Friday for Chicago, called there by the serious illness of his mother.

A. Cameron, an engineer from Chicago, is here this week in the interest of the new club house to be built at the Belvedere golf grounds.

Mr. and Mrs. Colon McKenzie of this city were visitors in Traverse City on Saturday of last week.

The Camp Fire Girls will hold their Christmas dance at the Oldham Club on Tuesday evening, December 22.

Ray Hamilton is building a new ice boat for the accommodation of the winter tourists coming here this winter.

W. E. Driggett left Tuesday for St. James, Beaver Island, on business for the Sinclair Oil company of this city.

Supt. Coverdale of the Charlevoix high school will spend his Christmas vacation in Ypsilanti and Almont, Michigan.

The Congregational Woman's Missionary Society meets Friday afternoon with Mrs. W. W. Mitchell, 110 Park avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bridge returned last Friday from Grand Rapids and Lansing, where they have been on business and visiting relatives.

George Jefferies, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jefferies of this city, is home from Fort Levenworth, Kansas on a furlough.

The Congregational Sunday school Christmas celebration will take place at 7:00 o'clock Christmas eve. Parents and friends invited.

Miss Edna Fox, English instructor at the Charlevoix high school, will spend the holiday vacation at her home in Adrain, Michigan.

The deer reported having been shot and dressed on the road leading around South Point was found, upon investigation, to be a cow.

All operations at the new Belvedere golf course south of town have been concluded for the winter and will be resumed again in the spring.

Mr. North, principal at the Charlevoix high school, accompanied by his family will spend the Christmas vacation in Bay City, Michigan.

Miss Mildred Parker is expected home from Grand Rapids, Tuesday, to spend the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Parker.

Workmen from the Benj. Brown Auto Sales are installing a Marco-Light lighting system at the Albert Balch home near Phelps this week.

Mrs. William Hulme of Toledo, Ohio, is in the city this week, having accompanied the body of her father, Albert Brown, to this city for burial.

Roy Stafford returned the first of the week from South Chicago, where the boat he has been sailing on this summer laid up for the winter months.

Miss Isabelle Mitchell left Tuesday afternoon for Grand Rapids, where she will spend a few days visiting Mrs. Sloan, who is in a hospital in that city.

Frank V. Blakely, field representative of the Michigan Tourist and Resort association, was in the city on Friday and Saturday of last week on business.

Miss Lillian Kaye, teacher in the Charlevoix public schools leaves on Saturday of this week to spend the Christmas vacation at her home in Ypsilanti.

Miss Irene Finucan is home from Chicago and will spend the holidays in the city with her mother, Mrs. William Finucan, and sisters, Mary and Eleanor.

A. F. Bridge of the Charlevoix County Bank, expects to leave this week for Mercedes, Texas, where he will join Mrs. Bridge and spend the winter months.

The Michigan Lake Lands company of Lansing, Michigan, has recently purchased the farm belonging to Mrs. Sarah Dunlop, located on the peninsula across from Ironton.

Don't forget the dance for the benefit of the Charlevoix hospital to be given at the Oldham Club on Thursday evening, December 31, under the auspices of the nurses.

Don't Forget the dance for the benefit of the Charlevoix hospital to be given at the Oldham Club on Thursday evening, December 31, under the auspices of the nurses.

Mrs. Naoma Lacy of Aurora, Ohio, is the guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Calcr this week having been called here on account of the illness of her grandson, Albert Brown.

Dr. Sellers was expected on Monday of this week to see the work of straightening Old River. It is a creditable piece of work and has evolved one of the beauty spots of Charlevoix.

The Ladies' Literary and Sewing Club of the M. E. church will meet with Mrs. Joe Gormell, at the Loeb Farms, Thursday, November 17. Please meet at Brown's garage at 2:15 p. m.

Theodore Kibbe returned last week from Dubuque, Iowa, where he has been stationed with the government bureau of fisheries this summer. He will be stationed here for the remainder of the winter.

Word comes from Grand Rapids where Mrs. R. F. Sloan has been convalescing from a recent operation, that she is improving nicely and will soon be out and around again. Mr. Sloan and Paul are in Grand Rapids with her.

P. E. Bogart, who has been spending the past four weeks at the home of his son, William Bogart, of this city, left Tuesday for Flint, where he will spend the winter with his daughter, Mrs. Ed. Ultz.

A communication was received recently by the Association of Commerce from the Kinogram Publishing Co. of New York, relative to winter scenes from Charlevoix to be used in making up their news reels for motion picture theatres. No better form of advertising could be found than this.

A card from S. M. Rose, now at Sarasota, Florida, states that Sarasota is a mighty busy place. Over a thousand buildings under construction, some large and some small. Labor is scarce and hard to get at any price. Sam and Mrs. Rose are spending the winter with their son, Mason.

Mr. and Mrs. James Rogart of St. Catherine, Ont., and Mrs. Charles Oldham of Jhrayton, Ont., who have been spending the past two weeks at the home of James and Will Bogart of this city, have gone to Petoskey, where they will spend a few days at the home of Fred Oderkirk before returning to Canada.

Among the teachers in the Charlevoix public schools who will go to their homes during the Christmas holidays are Miss Velera Keller, who will go to Howell, Mich., Miss Eleanor Thomas to Williamston; Miss DuPrey to VanWert, Ohio; Miss Helen Ross to Houghton; Miss Emily Prussing to Traverse City; Mrs. Ethel Service to Blissfield; Miss Eunice Fenner to Bronson, Mich., Mr. Johnson to Chief, Mich., Mr. Addison Oakley to Caro, Mich., and Floyd Alldred to Grand Rapids.

If your shoes need repairing, why not have the work done right. We use only the very best of leather and the work is done by an expert cobbler. Campbell's Boot Shop.—Adv. 49tf.

ENTERTAIN ALBA SCHOOL DEBATERS

Pleasant Social Affair at Pollock Home Friday Evening

Following the High School debate at the assembly room of the High School last Friday evening, the members of the local High School debating teams entertained the visiting team from Alba, the judges, and the members of the local High School faculty, at the home of Rev. and Mrs. C. E. Pollock. A buffet luncheon was served, and the twenty guests made merry until a late hour.

Don't forget the Camp Fire dance at the Oldham Club on Tuesday evening, December 22. Special music and favors.—Adv. 50-t1.

COURIER BARGAIN COLUMN.

Courier Want Advs. are One Cent per word per insertion. Minimum charge is 20 cents per insertion, for anything under 20 words. All Want Advs. are strictly cash in advance except to those who have ledger accounts. Please remember this when sending in your copy.

LOST

LOST—New horse blanket between Belvedere Hotel and Co-Ops. Finder please notify Arlo Wickersham, Charlevoix Route 2.—50t1

LOST—Left bank book by mistake in back right car door pocket. Please leave at the Charlevoix County Bank, William Skye.—50t1 11.

FOUND

FOUND—Pair gold bowed glasses in case on South Bridge street. Owner can have same by proving property and paying for this now. Inquire at this office.—50t1.

FOR SALE—LIVE STOCK

WHITE LEGHORNS

I have a few choice R. C. W. strain cockerels left at $2.00 each while they last. R. A. Hunter, Atwood Road, ½ mile east.—50t2.

FOR RENT—HOUSE

FOR RENT—5 room bungalow with inside toilet. Call phone 18.—45tf.

FOR SALE—MISCELLANEOUS

FOR SALE—About 2 cord of dry, dipped, hardwood. Inquire of Frank Bird at court house.—50-t1.

FOR SALE—Good, dry poplar buzz wood. Frank Hyek, Charlevoix Rt. 3.—49-t2.

FOR SALE — Building material. Save 50 per cent in building. Phone W. S. Shaw Co., No. 75, Boyne City, for prices on lumber (boards and scantling,) steel beams, brick, pipe, pipe fittings and roofing.—40t10.

WANTED—MISCELLANEOUS

WANTED—Small Coal Heater. Inquire of Martin Block at grocery store.—50t1.

WANTED—Old false teeth. We pay pay high as $10 for full sets. Don't matter if broken. We buy crowns, bridges. Western Metal Co., Bloomington, Ill.—50t2 pd.

CASH for Dental Gold, Platinum, Silver, Diamonds, magneto points, false teeth, jewelry, and valuables. Mail today. Cash by return mail. Hoke S. & R., Otsego, Mich.—12-tf.

HELP WANTED.

WANTED—Men to work in the woods. Day or piece work. Inquire of James Raymon, 3 miles south of Charlevoix on Route 1. 50t1pd.

WANTED—Girl employed days or school girl to help with work and stay home evenings for room and board. Apply 214 Clinton St., or phone 250.—50t1

WANTED—Local man for sales position in Charlevoix county. This is permanent and gives opportunity for advancement. If you are capable of earning $50 a week and willing to start at $25, write Fuller Brush Co., 304 Eddy Building, Saginaw, Michigan, giving age and past employment.—49-t2.

Christmas News

Gloves, Sued and Wool, at	$1.00, $1.15 and $1.35
Ladies' hand-made and embroidered Gowns—for	Colored—85c; White—$3.00
Fiber Silk Slips—hemmed, also plaided flounce at	$3.00
Fiber Silk Bloomers, all colors	$2.25
Fiber Silk Vests, all colors	$1.00
Glove Silk Vests, flesh color	$2.50
Glove Silk Bloomers, flesh color	$3.50
Glove Silk Teddys, lace trimmed	$4.00
Silk Hose, all colors, at	$1.00, $1.50 and $2.00
Ladies' fancy ribbon Garters, at	30c and 50c
Ladies' and Misses' Wool Scarfs, at	$1.50 and $2.00
Boudoir Caps, made of silk and lace, at	50c to $1.00
Buffet and Dresser Scarfs, trimmed with lace and insertion, at	50c, 69c and 85c
Stamped Pillow Cases, 42 and 45 in., at	$1.15 and $1.25
Hand-made Pillow Cases, for	$3.00
Luncheon Set, 6 napkins and 50-inch Cloth—all Linen, for	$4.00 and $5.00
All Linen Luncheon Sets, 4 napkins and 36-inch cloth—finished with lace edge, for	$3.25
Repolette Bed Spreads, white and colored	$3.00 to $4.00
Embroidered Guest Towels, for	$1.00 and $1.25
Linen and Huck Towels to be embroidered	30c and 50c
All Linen Guest and regular sized Towels	89c and $1.15
Bath and Huck Towels, plain and fancy borders—for	25c, 50c, 75c and $1.00
Bath Towel Sets in box—2 cloths and one towel—for	$1.00 to $1.75
Handkerchief Boxes, 2 and 3 Handkerchiefs in a box—for	25c to 75c

For the Infants We Have:

Wool Caps, at	$1.00
Sweaters—pink and blue trimmed, for	$1.50 and $2.00
Sweater Sets—bonnet, sweater and booties—for	$2.00 and $3.25
Blankets, all styles, for	$1.00, $1.25, $2.00 and $3.75

EVERYDAY GROCERY PRICES AT MASON'S

4 lbs. A. & Co.'s Soda, for	25c
3 lbs. Sal Soda, for	10c
22 bars Classic Soap, for	$1.00
6 Boxes 5c Swan Matches for	25c
7 Dozen Clothes Pins for	25c
Any 10c Toilet Soap, 3 bars for	25c
1-large package R. N. M. Soap Powder
2 large pkgs. R. N. M. Soap Chips
5 bars white R. N. M. Soap—	ALL FOR 72c
3 lbs. No. 101 Santos Coffee, for	$1.25
3 lbs. Good Rio Coffee, for	98c
1 lb. package of Raisins, for	50c

Most Package Cookies AT COST

1-quart can Cocoa, for	15c
3 lbs. 50c Jap Tea, for	$1.35
3 large cans Pineapple, for	$1.00
Libby's Chili Sauce, 2 bottles for	25c
25c bottle V. C. Chili Sauce, for	19c
Elk's Catsup, for	10c—3 bottles for 27c
Salad Dressing, per bottle	10c

Come in and Look Us Over for Bargains

A. E. MASON

WHERE and WHAT to BUY

ROASTING FOWLS FOR CHRISTMAS

There is one way to be sure that the Fowl you plan to serve for Christmas Dinner will be good—phone 202 and tell us to pick you out one the size needed. It is our business to know Fowls—and we do. We will have

TURKEYS — DUCKS — CHICKENS AND OYSTERS

Christmas Mixed Nuts and Candies

Mixed Nuts fresh from the grove, they carry that tasteful tang of goodness so pleasing to the lover of Nuts. Have a dish for 'tween meal lunching during the Holidays, and they are also fine for dessert after a heavy dinner. Christmas Candies of all kinds. Note our extermely low prices on these Christmas necessities:

Mixed Nuts, per pound	35c
Choice English Walnuts, per lb	35c
Fresh Roasted Jumbo Peanuts, per lb.	25c
Xmas Candies, per lb	25c
Chocolate Candy, per lb	25c
Fresh Creams, per lb.	25c
Cocoanuts Bonbons, per lb	30c
Peanut Brittle, per lb	25c

MILTON BLOCK

Our Service is Quick Our Goods are Reliable

NEW PALACE THEATRE

ATTRACTIONS FOR THE COMING WEEK

Saturday and Sunday, December 19 and 20

Madge Bellamy in "THUNDER MOUNTAIN." The story fairly throbs with drama—not the blood and thunder kind, either. It rocks and quakes and bubbles over with comedy, too. The last scene wells up from a fountain of laughter. Describe it in words? Impossible! You have to see it. Then you will agree that "Thunder Mountain" is entertainment—in seven decimal places.

Also oodles of laughter and fast action in the comedy, "HIS HIGH HORSE."

Monday, December 21

Alma Rubens in "THE WINDING STAIRS." If it is thrills you crave—if it's excitement you're looking for—then, by all means, see "THE WINDING STAIRS." The romance of a fighting laggard.

Also a Van Bibber comedy, "THE WRESTLER." You all know Van. Come on and have a good laugh.

Tuesday and Wednesday, December 22 and 23

Constance Bennett in "THE GOOSE HANGS HIGH." You're sick of pictures about flappers. Now see the other side of America's young people. This story will be of benefit to young and old alike. This modern picture brings home to everyone the changing of every-day events.

Also a Fox News Reel. Travel the world with the News Reels. An education which you will always remember.

Thursday and Friday, December 24 and 25

"THAT ROYAL GIRL." Many of you may have read the story in the Cosmopolitan magazine.

Show every night Christmas and New Years Weeks

P. O. CLOSED ALL DAY XMAS

EMPLOYEES WILL HAVE DAY TO THEMSELVES

Early Shopping and Mailing of Packages Urged by Officials of P. O. Department

If Postmaster General New has his way about it, Christmas Day this year is going to be the biggest and the best for all the employees of the postal service and especially for the ever-fnithful letter carriers.

He has issued orders to postmasters throughout the country that their offices will be closed all day Christmas except for the dispatch of special delivery letters and parcels and special handling letters and parcels.

In order that the vast urmy of carriers and clerks may enjoy Chrismas Day to the fullest extent with their families and friends, the cooperation of every man, woman and child in the United States will be necessary.

Under the leadership of the Postmaster General, a campaign is now under way throughout the country to instill into the minds of everybody the necessity for shopping and mailing early in order that there will be as little congestion at the post offices as possible during Christmas week and in order that both the sender and receiver of gifts and remembrances may reap the happiness that is contemplated by such an exchange of presents.

Once more the Post office Department urges the American public to do its Christmas shopping und mailing early. If the shopping is done now the buyer gets just what he or she wants and if the gift is mailed before December 15 it is sure to reach its destination in plenty of time before Christmas Duy.

Overcoats, Macklnaws, sheepliued coats, heavy pants, sweaters, leather vests and cups at cost price to close out the line. Benj. Brown—Adv. 47tf.

STATES UNITED ACTION URGED

(Continued from page one)

missioner of Illinnis, was one of the sanitation experts scheduled to address the congress at the city hall Saturday. Others included George W. Fuller of New York, H. E. Crohurst, director of the United States health service, and George Conser, city engineer of Calumet.

Dr. E. M. Olin, Michigan, health commissioner, scheduled to address the congress Friday night, was unable to be present. Talks were given on modern water supply pumping, storage and treatment by George H. Fenkell of Detroit, by Prof. William C. Hoad of the University of Michigan, who discussed sanitnry engineering as a profession, and by John Oliver, Chicago, who described sanitation projects now under way in the Chicago area.

Mr. Oliver told the congress the north shore sanitary district contemplates the expenditure of several hundred thousand dollars between now and 1927 in the improvement of sewage disposal apparatus in his district, which includes Highland Park, Lake Forest, Zion City and Waukegan.

"We have found the Enhoff system of treatment the most satisfactory and the sanitary district trustees have authorized the drawing of plans for new plants during the next two years," said Mr. Oliver.

He described sewage treatment as comparntively simple and told how the north shore sanitary district, by public education and legislative power had abated the danger of disease and epidemic through securing community co-operation in sanitary snfeguards. All waste from cities in the district is discharged into Lake Michigan only after thorough chemical treatment, he declared.

You will find high quality merchandise at reasonable prices nt the Charlevoix Hdw. Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

Christian Science Society

Sunday services 11:45 a. m., subject, "Is the Universe, including Man, Evolved by Atomic Force?"

Sunday school, 12:00.

Wednesdny evening service, 7:45 p. m.

The public is cordially invited to use our reading room and attend the services.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

Council Chamber, Dec. 15, '25

The common council of the city of Charlevoix met on the above date with Mayor Bergeon presiding. Aldermen present: Bridge, Eckinger, Livingston, Madill, Parmalee. Minutes of the meeting held Dec., 7th, were rend and approved.

The finance committee submitted the following report, having examined the following bills, aggregating $2991.97, report the same correct and recommend they be allowed.

Contingent Fund
Arthur Bergeon, salary	$ 31.25
Elma H. Cook, salary	27.50
John Cook, salary	25.00
D. S. Payton, salary	70.83
Wood Bros., dry cells	.80
Charlevoix County, charged hack taxes	27.76
B. A. Herman, supplies	3.00
A. E. Edwards, supplies	7.00
City Treasurer, taxes	260.92
Charlevoix Courier, printing	14.86
Dar Meech, assigned to Co. Bank, assessor	200.00
Health Fund
J. C. Luce, labor	10.00
Park Fund
H. L. Brady, labor	89.00
Police Fund
W. J. Weikel, salary	45.00
Charlevoix Courier, printing	2.52
Wood Bros., supplies	.45
Fire Fund
H. D. Marshall, labor	31.75
Chas. Marshall, salary	42.50
W. E. Wyers, freight	1.24
Robert Bonthron, supplies	6.00
Highway Fund
Art Alcock, salary	57.50
Lou Sandle, labor	63.00
M. B. Hooker & Son, team	45.00
John Martin, grnvel	7.50
Robt. Dickie, drayage	2.75
Wood Bros., lantern	1.35
Argo Milling Co., cement	142.00
Straat Lighting Fund
Western Electic Co., lamps	15.75
Bridge Fund
Einer Johnson, salary	70.83
Harve O'Brien, salary	50.00
Robert Bonthron, supplies	.60
Char. Hdw. Co., supplies	2.02
Argo Milling Co., coal	21.00
Cemetery Fund
Chas. Hyers, salary	12.00
Wood Bros., supplies	3.60
S. M. See & Sons, supplies	2.00
Brown & Wallace, gas and oil	9.55
Argo Milling Co., coal and cement	3.25
Sewer Fund
H. D. Marshall, labor	54.93
Argo Milling Co., cement	5.25
Water Fund
Morris Ackert, salary	60.00
B. A. Herman, supplies	.65
H. D. Marshall, labor	137.25
Robert Bonthron, supplies	6.42
Wood Bros., supplies	19.20
Traverse City Iron Works supplies	14.00
W. E. Byers, freight	13.83
City Treasurer, express	3.91
Mueller Co., supplies	94.73
Argo Milling Co., supplies	.75
H. W. Clark Co., supplies	11.28
Electric Fund
C. N. Bridge, salary	104.17
Floyd Rice, salary	50.00
Murley Plum, salary	50.00
James Divis, salary	45.00
Percy Marsa, salary	50.00
Sam Brown, salary	36.00
Chas. Hyers, salary	38.00
Dan Soule, salary	60.00
Robt. Allspaugh, salary	45.00
Postmaster, envelopes	68.46
B. A. Herman, supplies	2.00
C. N. Bridge, exp. on line	2.03
Murley Plum, Exp. on line	.80
W. E. Parmalee, lumber	11.44
Robt. Bonthron, supplies	6.35
Northern Coal Co., coal	129.11
West. Electric Co., wire	95.11
City Treasurer, interest on [illegible]	356.00
W. E. Byers, freight	9.15

Moved by Ald. Livingston, seconded by Ald. Bridge, that the bills be allowed and the clerk authorized to issue orders for the same. Motion carried by the following aye and nay vote as follows:

Ayes Aldermen, Bridge, Eckinger, Livingston, Madill Partidge. Nays none.

Moved by Bridge seconded by Livingston, that the council adjourn until Wednesday the 16th day of December 1925 at 4 o'clock p. m.

D. S. Payton,
Deputy City Clerk

Subscribe for the Courier.

LEGAL NOTICES

ORDER FOR PUBLICATION

State of Michigan, The Probate court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate office in the city of Charlevoix, in said County, on the 3rd day of December A. D. 1925.

Present: Hon. Servetus A. Correll, Probate Judge.

In the matter of the estate of William H. Collins, Deceased.

The above estate having been admitted to probate and Hannah M. Collins appointed administratrix, thereof.

It is ordered that four months form this date be allowed for creditors to present their claims against said estate, and that such claims will be heard by said court on Saturday, the 10th day of April, A. D. 1925, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at the Probate office in the city of Charlevoix.

It is Further Ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of this order for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing in the Charlevoix Courier, a newspaper printed and circulated in this county.

Servetus A. Correll,
Judge of Probate.

Adv. 49-t3.

Order for Publication

State of Michigan, The Probnte Court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate office in the City of Charlevoix, in said County, on the 3d dny of December A. D. 1925.

Present: Servetus A. Correll, Probate Judge.

In the Matter of the Estate of Janet Shapton, deceased.

The above estate having been admitted and John Smith appointed executor thereof.

It is ordered that four months from this date be allowed for creditors to present their claims against said estate, and that such claims will he heard by said court on Monday, the 12th day of April A. D. 1926, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon at the probate office in the city of Charlevoix.

It is further ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of this order for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing in the Charlevoix Courier a newspaper printed and circulated in this county.

Servetus A. Correll,
Judge of Probate.

Adv. 49-t3

Order for Publication

State of Michigan, The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the city of Charlevoix in said County, on the 1st day of December A. D. 1925.

Present: Hon. Servetus A. Correll, Judge of Probate.

In the Matter of the Estate of Willinm Evers, mentally incompetent.

Amandus Evers having filed in said court his final administration account, and his petition praying for the allowance thereof and that it be turned over to the administrator of his estate.

It is Ordered, That the 23d day of December A. D. 1925, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, be and is hereby appointed for examining and allowing said account and hearing said petition;

It is Further Ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix Courier a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Servetus A. Correll,
Judge of Probate.

A true copy
Adv. 48-t3.

Order for Publication

State of Michigan, The Probata Court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the city of Charlevoix in said County, on the 1st day of December A. D. 1925.

Present: Hon. Servetus A. Correll, Judge of Probate.

In the Matter of the Estate of William Evers, Deceased.

Amandus Evers having filed in said court his petition praying that the administration of said estate be granted to petitioner or to some other suitable person,

It is ordered, that the 23rd day of December A. D. 1925, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, be and is hereby appointed for hearing snid petition;

It is Further Ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix Courier a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Servetus A. Correll,
Judge of Probate.

A true copy
Adv. 48-t3.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE.

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain real estate mortgage whereby the Power of Sale therein contained has become operative, which mortgage was given by John Pesek nnd Josephino Pesek, husband and wife, to Margaret M. Harsha, which mortgage was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Charlevoix, Michignn, July 5th, 1922 in liber sixty-four of Mortgnges on page forty-one; and whereas the amount claimed to be due on said mortgage nt the date of this notice is the sum of fourteen hundred eighty and 11 100 Dollars, together with an attorney fee of twenty-five dollars as provided for in said mortgage; and no suit or proceedings at law have been instituted to recover the money secured by snid mortgage or any part thereof; and whereas the tax required by Statute to be paid on said mortgage was duly paid prior to the recording thereof.

Now therefore, notice is given that by virtue of the Power of Sale contained in said mortgage and the Statutes in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed hy sale of the premises therein described or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy the amount then due thereon of principal and interest together with the attorney fee, costs and expenses of the foreclosure, at public auction to the highest bidder therefor at the front door of the Court House in the City of Charlevoix, County of Charlevoix (that being the place where the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix is held) on the 20th day of February 1926 at ten o'clock in the forenoon on that day. The premises described in said mortgage being herein described as follows; to-wit:

All the north fractionnl half of the Southwest fractional qunrter of Section Seven (7) in Township thirty-three (33) North nf Range eight (8) West, containing eighty-two acres and 84-100 acres of land more or less according to the U. S. Survey thereof.

Dated November 16th, 1925.

Margaret M. Harsha,
Mortgagee.

Rollie L. Lewis,
Attorney for Mortgagee,
Charlevoix, Michigan. 46-t13

Long Distance Is Easy to Use

A Long Distance Telephone call is a quick and very effective way to reach an out-of-town customer or friend.

It is economical, too, particularly if you call by telephone number.

Your Long Distance Message is Personal.

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE CO.

D. T. McHUGH
General Contractor
Phone 214
CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

WM. J. BOGART
CONTRACTOR and BUILDER
No Job Too Large
No Job Too Small
Phone 139 Charlevoix, Mich

R. B. ARMSTRONG
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Special Attention to Diseases of Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat
Priest Bldg. Phone 255

DR. F. F. McMILLAN
Physician and Surgeon
Office above Postoffice
Phone 17
Charlevoix - - Michigan

A. L. FITCH
ATTORNEY AT LAW
Office in Court House
Phone 48
Charlevoix - Michigan

VIRGINIA RYALL BROWN, D. C.
PALMER CHIROPRACTOR
PHONES:
Office 347 Residence 89
Postoffice Building

Ford

Christmas Suggests This Judicious Purchase

The Fordor Sedan is an ideal Christmas gift for the whole family—an attractive and practical all-year car. It is finished in deep Windsor Maroon, with interior upholstery to harmonize. Nickeled radiator, low, deep seats, wide doors, hooded sun visor and large fenders. See this good-looking car at the salesroom of the nearest Authorized Ford Dealer. Easy terms gladly arranged.

Ford Motor Company
Detroit, Mich.

THE FORDOR SEDAN
$660

Runabout - $260 Touring Car $290 Coupe - - - $520 Tudor Sedon $580
Closed cars in color. Demountable rims and starter extra on open cars.
All prices f. o. b. Detroit

Overcoat Sale

Three Popular Prices
$20.85 $22.85 $24.85

Others at $17.85 up to $31.85

Do! Take the time to examine these values. It is by comparing values in shopping around that you discover where to save most.

Hand-Tailored Suit Sale—

All of our highest grade suits have been marked down to an ordinary price $26.85 Extra pants with every suit at $5.65

Particular buyers,—here's a real opportunity for you to save money.

F. E. Cartier
Charlevoix - Clothier - Dry Cleaner

PHONE 248

TAILOR AND CLEANER

Ellsworth Section

Charles Edson and M. McElroy were at Traverse City on business, Monday.

Rev. Einink returned home Saturday from attending clnsses at Muskegon.

Mr. Gilson, the Standard Oil mnn from Petoskey, was in town Tuesday on business.

Miss R. Crothers left for Petoskey, Saturday, to spend Christmns nt her home.

Cecil Boise of Central Lake, visited at the home of G. M. Heims over the week end.

Davey & Son have opened a new grocery store on the corner, across from the hardware store.

Mr. and Mrs. Chns. Edson nnd Mr. L. Springstead motored to Petoskey, Tuesday, on business and shopping.

Wear wool garments and keep warm this winter. We are selling them below cost to close out the line. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 47tf.

ATWOOD

Let's all have Christmas thoughts.

Mr. See of Charlevoix, wns in this vicinity last week.

C. Klooster has gone to Holland on a business trip.

When I hate I take something from myself. When I love, I become richer by what I love.

The Atwood school will render Christmas exercises at the hall on Friday evening of this week.

Miss Sarah Klooster, who is attending college at Holland, will arrive home next Friday for the holidays.

The M. E. Sunday school will have a Chrlstmas tree and program on Christmas eve, Thursday, December 24th. Every person will be welcomed. Bring your presents Thursday afternoon to the committee who will take care of them. Rev. Conklin and family are expected to be present.

We will allow you $2.50 on your old Ford radiator and install a new Koolfast, the best on the market. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 49tf.

ANTRIM CITY

Jack Smith is nearly done beling hay.

Mr. Baumbach is hauling hay to Bellaire now.

Frank Mason butchered a pig for Mr. Stott Thursday.

A dance was held at the Mason home Friday evening.

Frank Mason butchered two pigs for Clyde Baker, Friday.

Miss VanderStreek was a visitor at the Baumbach home last Wednesday evening.

Electric light bulbs that give service at Charlevoix Hardware Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

AT THE MOVIES

Thunder Mountain

"Thunder Mountain," the William Fox production which will be shown at the Palace Theatre Saturday and Sunday, December 19-20, is a highly romantic and tensely dramatic story of the crude people of the Blue Ridge mountains, filmed in the midst of gorgeous natural surroundings under the able direction of Victor Schertzinger.

It is a picture in which pathos is pleasingly blended with homely comedy, where tolerance and intolerance walk hand-in-hand; a picture filled with thrilling situations, sudden dramatic pauses—with an ending as different as it is unexpected.

"The Winding Stair"

"The Winding Stair," the A. E. W. Mason novel, which John Griffith Wray produced as a picture for William Fox and which opens Monday, December 21, at the Palace Theatre, provides some of the most colorful and exotic scenes and episodes ever filmed.

The story is laid in Morocco, for the most part, with a short prologue in England and the final scenes there. But the main portion of the picture—the real drama of it—is enacted in the city of Casablanca, on the coast of Morocco, and on the desert of the interior.

Tense situations fill this picture with interest and suspense; there are all the elements in "The Winding Stair" to make the perfect picture—thrills, action, love interest, adventure, a touch of comedy here and there, and, nbove all, a story logical and deeply human.

"The Goose Hangs High"

Florence Ziegfeld, now, has nothing on James Cruze, for the noted Paramount director does a little glorifying himself in his latest photoplay, "The Goose Hangs High."

The Follies producer, however, need not lose any sleep over his new competitor as the maker of "The Covered Wagon" and other notable film productions has chosen to glorify, not the American girl, but the American father!

"The Goose Hnngs High," which Walter Woods and Anthony Coldewey adapted from the fnmous stage plny by Lewis Bench, reveals Dad ns the great unappreciated family hero. Cruze, with infinite skill and understnnding, renlistically pictures all the disappointments nnd sacrifices of an nverage small-town father who struggles and scrapes so that his children may have the benfit of a college education.

In the final analysis, "The Goose Hnngs High" deserves a blue ribbon nward not alone for its excellent entertninment, but for its sympathetic treatment of a phase of American life that is, at the present moment, looming large in the public consciousness. At the Palace Theatre, Tuesdny and Wednesdny, December 22-23.

PILGRIM HOLINESS CHURCH
Phelps and Ellsworth

Phelps
Sunday school, 10:00 a. m.
Preaching, 11:00 a. m.
Prayer meeting, Wednesday evening at 8:00 p. m.

Ellsworth
Sunday school, 1:15 p. m.
Preaching, 2:30 and 7:30 p. m.
Prayer meeting Thursday evening at 8:00 p. m.

B. E. Manker, Pastor.

W. E. Parmelee builds storm windows.—Adv. 37-tf.

"COLD IN THE HEAD"
is an acute attack of Nasal Catarrh. Those subject to frequent "colds" are generally in a "run down" condition.
HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is a Treatment consisting of an Ointment, to be used locally, and a Tonic, which acts Quickly through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces, building up the System, and making you less liable to "colds."
Sold by druggists for over 40 Years.
F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS
By B. C. Mellencamp

Probnbly the Inst Demonstration School to be held in Charlevoix county this year, owing to weather conditions, will be of henefit to those interested in fruit culture nnd other fruit problems. Mr. H. A. Cardinell, Specialist of M. S. C., will be present and use the henvy nrtillery nnd no doubt a henvy bombardment will be heard all the afternoon, beginning at 1:30 o'clock fast time. He will demonstrnte the proper way of pruning nnd trimming, ways of combating the sprend of Fire Blight, n disease that is reaching alarming proportions, and anything else that will be of interest to fruit men.

Remember fruit men; n lot of work can be done during the winter months, that will increase the qunlity and quantity of your fruit, and more especinlly in cutting out your Fire Blight, so plan to be at Eveline Orchards, at 1:30 fnst time on December 22nd, and learn from Mr. H. A. Cardinell.

Cut prices on all heavy winter garments to close out the line. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 47tf.

Please Remember

If wheat prices continue to advance we are going to see higher flour prices. Better get your supply now at prices lower than wholesale.

Your choice of three high-grade flours:

PASTRY FLOUR——WHOLE-WHEAT FLOUR
GRAHAM FLOUR——RYE FLOUR
TABLE MEAL——WHEAT CEREAL
ROLLED OATS
BUCKWHEAT AND PREPARED PANCAKE FLOUR

Nearly always you will find that you can do little better at the

Charlevoix-Co-Operative Assn.

CONQUEROR OF THE MONGOLIAN WILDS

Dr. Roy Chapman Andrews, who startled the world a few years ago by discovering a nest of dinosaur eggs ten million years old, arrived in New York on November 9th from his Third Asiatic Expedition under the auspices of the American Museum of Natural History.

Again he attributes much of the success of his expedition to the astounding performance of his five Dodge Brothers Motor Cars.

Following is a direct quotation from an official statement by Dr. Andrews upon his return to America:

> The Gobi Desert in Mongolia is the most extensive undeveloped and unexplored region now left in the world. Until a few years ago it was retarded by the impossibly slow traffic of camel trains, the only means of communication.
>
> But now it is being crisscrossed in every direction by motor cars, or, more correctly by one motor car, the Dodge. Sixty or seventy Dodge Brothers cars are making regular trips far into the interior of this vast waste, bringing out loads of sables, precious furs, wool and other products.
>
> No other car except the Dodge is found there because we have tried it out on each of our three expeditions and have had it demonstrated to our satisfaction that the Dodge is the only car that will stand up under the strain of the roadless desert and do everything we ask of it.

Few people have occasion to subject their motor cars to punishment of this severity. It is reassuring, however, to know that in emergencies Dodge Brothers Motor Car is built to meet the test.

These dependable and sturdy qualities also account for the fact that more than 90% of all the motor cars Dodge Brothers have built during the past eleven years, are still in active service.

BENJ. BROWN
CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

B. J. BEUKER
Physician and Surgeon
Office over Blue Store
Ellsworth, Michigan
Office Hours: 2-4 p.m., Phone 38

LOCAL W. C. T. U. HAS GOOD YEAR

MANY THINGS ACCOMPLISHED IN YEAR 1925

Annual Meeting Held at Mrs. F. F. McMillan Home—Reports Read

The December meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union was held with Mrs. F. F. McMillan, December 11th, with Mrs. Simmons in the chair. The secretary and treasurer read their reports. The civics committee notified the union that the League of Women Voters had changed their headquarters to the Women's City Club building in Detroit, also called attention to World's Court day, December 17th.

Annual reports were given and elective officers named. At the conclusion of the business, Mrs. A. J. Steller presented a fine musical program, a solo was given by Miss Adams. A ladies quartet, composed of Mrs. A. Livingston, Mrs. Ira Adams, Mrs. B. Mattson and Mrs. Stelter, rendered several pleasing numbers. Mrs. Mattson and Miss Adams also sang a duet. These numbers were all thoroughly appreciated.

During the past year the activities of the union have included remembering the sick with flowers and fruit; held one meeting in the high school on "Tobaccoism" with Rev. Herman Burns as speaker; kept before the union the activities of the state legislature and the League of Women Voters; took an active part in the school meeting; followed closely the court procedures; held teas which netted $35.00 for local work; sent delegates to district and county conventions. Have included in the programs, scripture, music and papers on the topic: "Building up Public Sentiment," "National Christianity in the public School," "Constructive Forces and Destructive Interests in the Community," "Passing the Torch That Youth May Carry On." Held one playlett contributing to the Detroit Child Welfare Center, and two memorial funds, also the W. C. T. U. Home in Grand Rapids.

Mrs. P. J. Howard, former district president, and Mrs. W. J. Weikel of our local union were paid tributes of loving memory, both having passed into the Great Beyond the past year.

The union has great reason to be encouraged by the position leading men and women are standing by the eighteenth amendment. Prof. Smith Burham of Kalamazoo Western Normal, recently said: "If ever there was an amendment written into the constitution by the will of the people, it was the eighteenth amendment." We recognize that prohibition is following the course of all great reforms. Law observance is the fundamental basis on which final enforcement rests. The people are the rulers. We are grateful for legislators, Judges and all public officials, who, by precept and example, are helping to win the fight for safeguarding the home and the fundamentals of law and order.

Mrs. E. E. Cross, Secy.

Peter Scott will operate the feed stable at 101 Antrim street as in former years. Barn will be open for business Saturday, December 12th.—50-52 pd.

ALBERT BROWN DIES AT AGE OF 84 YEARS

Had Been a Resident of Charlevoix for 52 Years

Albert Brown, a resident of Charlevoix for a period of 52 years, died Wednesday, December 9th, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. William Hulme, at Toledo, Ohio.

Mr. Brown was born in the state of Illinois in 1844 and was 81 years of age at the time of his death. His early years were spent in several of the middle western states. He was married to Miss Sarah Worthington in Missouri about 62 years ago, and the couple moved here and made it their home for some 52 years. Deceased was a veteran of the Civil war, having served in Company K, 15th regiment, Iowa infantry. He is survived by three daughters, Mrs. William Hulme of Toledo, Ohio, Mrs. May Mills of Aurora, Ohio, and Mrs. Nellie Cooper, one son, Roy Brown of this city, besides a number of other relatives.

Funeral services were held last Saturday, December 12th, from Seo's funeral parlors in this city, Rev. Herman Burns of the Baptist church officiating. Interment at Brookside.

Holley Gift Shop will be open evenings from December 14th to Christmas.—Adv. 49-42.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH
Rev. B. G. Mattson, Pastor

Services for Christmas Sunday will be as follows:

10:30 a service of special music and devotional observance with sermon theme, "A Christinn Journey to Bethlehem."

Sunday school at 12:00, a general Christmas exercise followed by the regular lessons. Christmas Vesper Service at 4:30 with selections from the Oratorio of "Messinh" and other numbers for instruments and voices. Choir of twenty voices. Brief address by the pastor. Vesper offering for benefit of choir fund. The Vesper service takes the place of the usual evening service.

There will be a special Christmas program by the Sunday school on Christmas eve, Thursday at 7:00 p. m. to which all scholars, parents and friends of the school are invited. Gifts of candy will be distributed to the scholars. Following the program, groups of singers from the school will sing carols as they go about among the homes of the neighborhood. We recommend the custom of placing a lighted candle in the windows in honor of Christmas eve.

A special notice for Thursday, December 17, invites those attending prayer meeting to meet at the parsonage a half hour later than usual, coming at 7:30. This will leave the church building free for the extended choir rehearsal that evening.

Ironton service at 2:30 Sunday and a Christmas gathering and program on Tuesday evening at the church, December 22.

Shoes properly repaired and the best of leather used. Campbell Boot Shop.—Adv. 49tf.

LOCAL BOAT BUILDER IS WIDELY KNOWN

Lake Michigan Yachting News Contains Story on Local Man

In our constnnt search for interesting bits of news for our readers, we recently run across an nrticle in the December number of the Lake Michigan Yachting News. A picture accompanied the following nrticle from which you will gather who it's all about. Here it is:

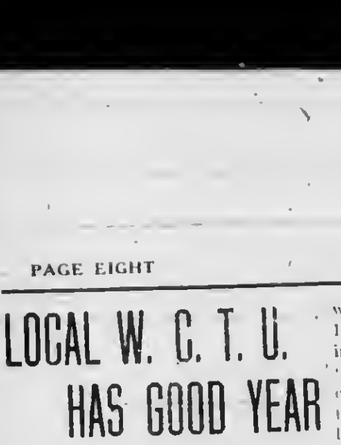
"Sam Hamilton is his name. He's really mayor of Round Lake up at Charlevoix and Branch Commodore of the C. Y. C. in those parts. At any hour, day or night, Sam is ready to look after the sailor folks—sail or gasoline. In addition to being a noted pedestrian, a marvelous host, and an honest boat builder, Sam is the daddy of that boy Ray who is one of the crew of Flight, the Bar Harbor 31 that hails from Sam's lake. Have a good winter, Sam! See you next summer."

Hats off to Sam!

GE WIRING SYSTEM
for lifetime service
WOOD BROTHERS
—Adv. 43tf.

McCools's Velvet Ice Cream now on sale at the Creamery Building, 105 Clinton street.—Adv. 45tf.

Electric light bulbs that give service at Charlevoix Hardware Co.—Adv. 35-tf.



ONLY Nature can build muscle, and the finest and best foundation is plenty of milk. We will gladly book your order for pure milk and give you the best possible service.

MARION CENTER DAIRY
Pure Aerated Milk and Cream
CHARLEVOIX, MICH.

Give A Useful Christmas Present.

Something that Father, Brother, Mother, Sister, Uncle, Aunt, Sweetheart, or anyone who drives a car will appreciate.

5 Gallon Can En-ar-co Motor oil

"The Oil of a Million Tests"

It will give the motor new life. You will have less carbon trouble. You will have less repairs. Order Now.

A Merry Christmas to You

THE AUTO SHOP
Phone 93 — 204 Mason St.

Flowers For Ideal Xmas Gift

Get your orders in for Cut Flowers and Plants early; to be delivered when you want them. You might select a gift for Him or Her that would cost more, that might last longer, but you cannot select a better gift than Flowers.

HYACINTH AND NARCISSUS BULBS, POINSETTAS, COLEUS, PRIMROSE, GERANIUMS, ETC.

These are a few that we suggest for gift making. Christmas cards for Gift Flowers.

A. E. Edwards, Florist.

Phone 374 — Greenhouses on May St.

Holiday Greetings!

Something she really wants
SILK HOSIERY

You have silk hosiery AND silk hosiery to select from as gifts. Naturally you want to give her silk hosiery that's beautiful and will keep its beauty—and will wear!

You'll find all this in Westcott Silk Hosiery. That's why thousands select it every year for gifts.

And it's beautifully packed in the prettiest gift boxes with greeting card inside. One pair to a box. Packed so it will not rumple or muss in mailing.

The kind of hosiery YOU like to give and SHE likes to get!

REDPATH'S
207 Bridge Street

The Best Gift of All

Give Useful Gifts

And in the whole catalog of Christmas gifts there is nothing so Useful, so Economical, so Comforting as gifts selected from our complete stock of Hardware and Electrical Supplies.

Aluminum and Glass Cooking Utensils, Carving Sets, Electric Percolators, Waffle Irons, Heating Pads Hoover Vacuum Cleaners, Bissell Carpet Sweepers, Radio Sets to suit any pocketbook.

Snow Shoes, Hand Sleds, Skiis, Tobbogans, Skates, Fishing Tackle, Pocket Knives, Flashlights and Xmas Tree Lights, Bridge, Floor and Boudoir Lamps Tools, Grinders, Hand Drills, and hundreds of other worth-while gifts for every member of the family.

WOOD BROS.
Hardware and Electrical Supplies

GIFTS for ALL

When Selecting Gift Footwear

You could not come to a better place, for we made special plans to meet the needs of those wishing to give Footwear. If the sizes are not exact, exchanges may be made after Christmas.

SLIPPERS—A WELCOME GIFT

They are the most comfortable, attractive, of Footwear. They endear themselves to their owners by use because of their excellent quality

FOR THE MEN— Leather or Felt —in several styles and sizes, at— Price 95c Up

FOR THE WOMEN— Most pleasing to the eye and to the foot, all sizes and colors— Price 95c Up

We have Footwear for every member of the family and friends as well. All may be remembered with gifts selected from this store. It will be a pleasure to us to aid you in the selection of your gifts.

THE MAYER SHOE STORE
JOHN SLEZAK, Prop.

SPECIAL HOLIDAY
SHOE SALE

10 PER CENT DISCOUNT
On Men's and Boys' Shoes and Oxfords and Women's and Children's Shoes, Oxfords and Pumps.

Men's $10.00 Florsheim Shoes and Oxfords on sale . . . $8.50

Sale starts Saturday, December 19th, and ends December 31st.

Save 10 Per Cent on Your Shoes

Campbell Boot Shop

MUST ALTER LAMB DECISION

MICHIGAN'S REPUTATION AS A RESORT AT STAKE

Fishing One of Chief Attraction to Tourists From All Nearby States.

The State Administrative Board has just appropriated $39,000 for purchase of trout eggs to be hatched in Michigan hatcheries and distributed in streams all over the state. That appropriation is only a small part of what Michigan spends for development of fishing annually. In 1924 the state planted more than 118,000,000 fish fry and fingerlings in lakes and streams, which are in part, at least, bordered by private property. If the decision of Judge Fred S. Lamb of Cadillac is affirmed by the state supreme court private property owners may bar the public from catching these fish which were planted with their money.

That is the crux of the question of fishing rights in Michigan as involved in the trespass case brought by Frank Collins of Toledo against Gideon Gerhardt of Reed City, the defense of which the state division of the Izaak Walton league is financing. Judge Lamb has ruled that fishermen angling in streams running through private property are guilty or trespass. This decision, whatever the law involved, is a violation of all accepted practice in Michigan. Ever since the day of Father Marquette and before his time in the day of the Ottawa, the Chippewa and the Pottawatomie, Michigan streams have been open to fishermen. It has been on the basis of this precedent that the state has spent millions of dollars maintaining fishing. Eighteen fish hatcheries in the state function for no other purpose than the stocking of lakes and streams. They represent a huge investment of public funds. Further millions of dollars in resort development has been carried on and is still going forward in the expectation that the public's fishing rights will continue as hitherto.

This then is, as The Herald first pointed out when Mr. Collins took the initial action in his trespass case, a matter of profound importance to the Michigan public. It involves not alone the great sport of Izaak Walton—clean, healthy, appealing—but also a considerable cash investment. Land values alone, streams will increase if only frontage owners, may fish, but the curtailment in other resort interests, deprived of angling rights, inevitably will more than offset this.

In the days when Michigan was a lumbering state the courts and legislature gave special rights on the streams to the loggers as a matter of public interest. Today recreation has become the chief business of a vast section of Michigan. Fishing rights are important assets of this business. To abrogate them would be to hamper and discourage it. These are matters to which undoubtedly the supreme court will give heed before rendering its decision. Public interest always may be taken for granted as assured of consideration in the courts.

In defending this trespass case through the courts, the Michigan Division of the Izaak Walton league is rendering a service of great value not alone to fishermen, but as well to all who are interested in the growth of Michigan's great resort business. —Grand Rapids Herald.

Overcoats, Mackinaws, sheeplined coats, heavy pants, sweaters, leather vests and caps at cost price to close out the line. Benj. Brown—Adv. 47tf.

INTERESTING BITS OF INFORMATION CLIPPED FROM OUR EXCHANGES

When a hunter shoots his own dog by accident, as one at Sturgis did, then accidents are getting entirely too accidental.

If those burglars who took 700 pounds of buttter from a Muskegon creamery go ahead and use it, they will be able to tell on which side their bread is butttered.

While driving an oil truck to Morgan, a St. Ignace man ran into a 300-pound buck and killed it. "But what gauge truck?" is the eager inquiry of a thousand worried hunters who were less successful.

The fellow who charges a Fenton man with "petty" larceny in connection with the theft of 15 chickens manifestly never has bought one.

The Boston man who is pushing a wheelbarrow around the world broke down and had to stop for a rest at Owosso. Just as if he had stayed home and started to push a lawnmower around the lawn.

An Albion school teacher the other day found a diumond stuck fast in the rubber heel of her shoe. Some people are just that lucky. They can find them anywhere except in a ring on their finger.

The traffic department at Flint has asked motorists to be careful not to splash mud on pedestrians. Complaints of ambulance men that they soil their hands in picking up the pedestrians are said to be the concussion of this.

After an up-state family had moved to a new house one day last week, they found they had forgotten a small boy. Many people are now adopting the practice of tying a string on the finger to help them remember they have a child.

As the result of an encounter with a crossing flagman, a Nunica truck driver is displaying a large lump on his head. Local phrenologists say the bump on the truck drivers' head indicates a large stick in the flagman's hand.

The elbow is a better thing to use in breaking the glass of a fire alarm box than sticks, stones, key rings, etc., declares the fire marshal at Grand Rapids. Among other reasons, the elbow is something that you will nearly always have with you.

After robbing the pockets of his bedfellow, an iron Mountain man put on his clothes and disappeared in the night. He was right to go, of course. He wouldn't want the bedfellow to have to associate with such a person.

A young man who crawled through the window of a Clinton home one night with a large rock in his hand said he had no intention of harming any one. No he just wanted to ask the people how they liked the weather.

Story comes from Owosso that an unclaimed trunk sold at uuction, was bid in for $14.50, and the purchaser found $85,000 in Liberty bonds in it. They say fact is stranger than fiction, but now let us have the fact, so we can judge.

We will allow you $2.50 on your old Ford radiator and install a new Koolfast, the best on the market. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 49tf.

Upon Christmas Day

By WILLIAM LUFF, in The Christian

A STAR peeped forth upon Christmas Eve,
And told of that other Star:
Whose beams shine bright, through the world's dark night,
And scatter the shadows far.

A snowdrop bloomed upon Christmas Day,
And told of that spotless flower:
Whose perfume pure, should all frosts endure,
And brighten Earth's wintry hour.

The bells rang out upon Christmas Day,
And their message came a call
To worship the Son of the Highest One,
Who came with good will to all.

The holly berries on Christmas Day,
Blushed red in their fadeless green:
For their coral red, showed the blood-drops shed,
As they shone the barbed leaves between.

A feast was spread upon Christmas Day,
And mirrored the feast He spread,
Who was born that He might our Banquet be,
The True and the Living Bread.

A son came home upon Christmas Day,
A son from a far off land:
And he told once more, of God's open door,
The kiss and the welcoming Hand.

A babe was born upon Christmas Day,
And the speechless infant told,
Of the manger Child, that in beauty smiled,
On that first glad day of old.

Jewelry
The Gift that Lasts

A Gruen Watch Will Make Him The Happiest Man in Town

Then whenever anyone asks the time, he can reply with confidence, for Gruen Watches are noted as the world's finest and most accurate timekeepers. We have them in all styles priced from $25.00 to $55.00. Made also in Wrist Watches for both old and young people.

CHESTS OF SILVER

A chest of silver is one of the most beautiful and practical gifts you could select for your wife. Let us show you some of those we have on display.

1847 Roger Bros. and W. M. Roger Line

SILVER IN SEPARATE PIECES

When making up your Christmas gift list, you will be certain to please many of those you plan to remember if you include several items from our stock of silver, in separate pieces. We suggest Fruit Dishes, Cake Baskets, Spoons, Ladles, Tureens, etc.

Discontinued Patterns in Silver Spoons ONE-FOURTH OFF

JEWELRY

Never before have we offered a more complete display of quality Jewelry so admirably suited for Christmas giving. Come in early and see what we have prepared for you. Beautiful line of Rings, Lavaliers, Stick Pins, Neck Chains and novelties in Jewelry.

GIFT PENS AND PENCILS

Suitable gifts that are always appreciated. They will be put to more use than most any gift you can select. We have Parker and Waterman Fountain Pens and Eversharp Pencils

BEAUTIFUL MANTLE CLOCKS

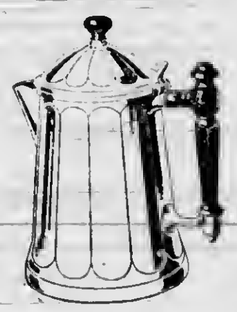
An important item in the home is a clock that keeps correct time. See our line for gifts for the home.

C. R. BELLINGER

PIONEER JEWELER

SETTLE ON A RADIO FOR FATHER

IF Father enjoys good music—as he undoubtedly does—then the Gift of a Radiola or Day Fan Radio is the one gift that will please him best of all. Think what a joyfully Merry Christmas you can make in your home with one of these wonderful inventions. Their wonderful tone, bell-like clearness and ease of tuning quickly make them a household favorite. You can always get the station you want, clear and loud, when you want it—and with the minimum of dial twisting.



ITEMS FOR THE HOME

MAKE MOST DESIRABLE AND USEFUL GIFTS

Come here shopping early and often. The values we offer will save you money—the gifts you select from our stock will prove most pleasing to the recipient and the convenience of shopping here will add to the pleasure of gift choosing.

Suggestions for the Busy Christmas Shoppers

FOR MOTHER

Aluminum Ware, Silver Ware, Electric Floor Lamps, Electric Heaters, Graniteware, Electric Percolators, Jardiners and Vases.

FOR FATHER

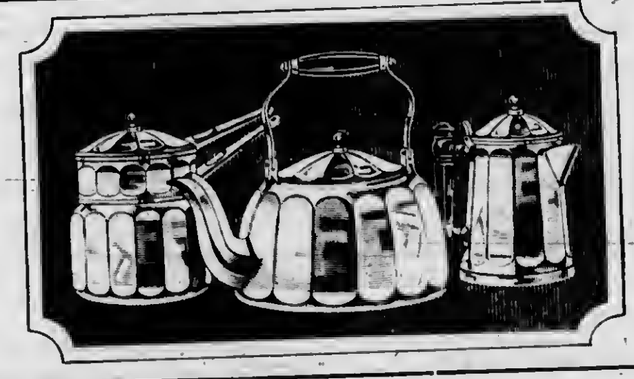
Leather Coats, Hunting Coats, Hand Saws, Hammers, Drills, Planes, Screw Drivers, Rulers, Knives, Flash Lights and Safety Razors.

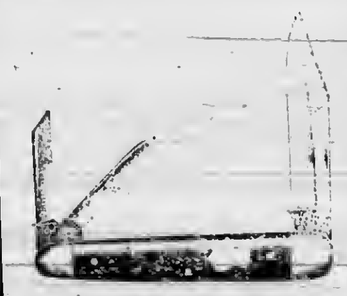
FOR THE GIRLS

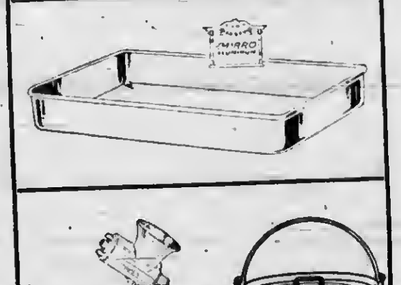
Electric Curling Irons, Eleetric Flat Irons; Skiis and Sleds, Snow Shoes, Flash Lights and Reading Lamps.

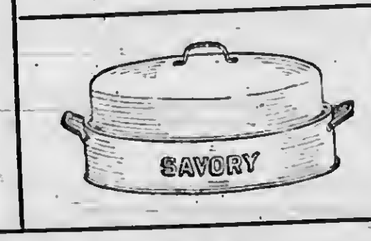
FOR THE BOY

Guns, Snowshoes, Hunting Axes and Knives, Fishing Tackle, pocket and Scout Knives, Watches and Tools of all Kinds.









Almost every article in our entire stock may be suitably given as gifts. We mention but a few of them, but the only way to gain a coneeption of the many items here is to come shopping. That the priees we quote will please you we are certain.

CHARLEVOIX HARDWARE COMPANY

HEADQUARTERS FOR XMAS GIFTS PHONE NO. 1 WE SUGGEST EARLY SHOPPING

NEIGHBORS

BY ROBERT STEAD

AUTHOR OF "THE COW PUNCHER," "THE HOMESTEADERS."

WNU SERVICE

COPYRIGHT BY ROBERT STEAD

CHAPTER XIII—Continued.

"An ox!" I retorted. "This is built for speed. I am going to ask Jean to go coasting."

"Aha!" said Jack, significantly. "I wish you all possible—speed."

Jean showed no reluctance about going. She drew on a wooden sweater and a short, cloth winter coat, with a collar of some fluffy kind of fur which had originally grown on a cat. She had a little fur cap of the same material, which she pulled down snugly on her head, and we were off.

We followed the crest of the gully for some distance in the direction of Sneezit's farm, ostensibly in search of a good coasting spot, but actually much engaged with our thoughts and the real purpose of our outing. That Jean understood it perfectly I was convinced, and under such circumstances the fact that she had so readily accepted my invitation was at least a hopeful omen.

Walking on the untracked snow in midwinter is an uncertain business, and the prairie people rarely make use of snowshoes. For the most part there was frozen crust that bore our weight, but this crust has an unfortunate habit of giving way at unexpected moments, particularly when one has just taken a big stride forward. There is an effect very much like coming upon the head of the stairs in the darkness when you think you are still safely walking along the hall. It precipitates one forward with great suddenness, but fortunately snow is a good thing to fall in. We scrambled to our feet, laughing and in high spirits. It was a wonderful thing to laugh again, and mean it.

At last we found a place where the snow had curved in a great white plume over the bank of the gully. For fifty or sixty feet it dropped away in an absolutely smooth descent; then came a sudden pitch, as though a great ladle had scooped out the drift; then a succession of little billows whipped up by the cross currents at the foot of the hill.

But the Descent Was Steeper Than She Thought; Her Momentum Overbalanced Her, and in an Instant I Saw Her Careening Wildly Down the Slope.

"It looks good," said Jean. "Let me see if it is firm."

With that she ran out upon the drift, her dainty feet tripping down it like a bird. But the descent was steeper than she thought; her momentum overbalanced her, and in an instant I saw her careering wildly down the slope, her arms outstretched, her hair flying loose from under the rim of her cap. Near the foot she disappeared entirely.

Perhaps I should have rushed after her, but I didn't. I sat down leisurely at the top of the hill and waited for her to reappear. Presently a mittened hand came up over the crest which hid her from view; then something something round and furry, like a sleeping kitten; then a forehead, two eyes, and a glimpse of cheeks.

"Aren't you coming down—to help me?" she called.

Now I had meant to stand on my rights; to tell Jean that she had gone down the hill on her own accord, and might come back in the same way; perhaps to poke some quiet mirth at her efforts to scramble up the slippery drift. When a man contemplates matrimony he may as well settle at once who's who, and why. Now was my time to be firm.

"No, I'm not coming," I said.

Jean looked at me for a moment, in surprise; then uttered not another word. But from her hand she drew her woolen mitten, and raised her fine, firm fingers in the air. One of those fingers crooked, with the knuckle bent toward me, and the finger pointing to her face; then, with a little seductive flicker, she beckoned me to her. . . . It was too much. I sprang on my sled and shot like an arrow to his target.

"Isn't it wonderful, wonderful!" she exclaimed. "All this white wilderness to play in, to shout in—Listen!" And she hollooed at the top of her voice. Only an echo, beating back from the banks of the gully, answered. "See, we are all alone—alone in all the world. Why didn't you bring me out here before?"

"Are you glad to be alone with me, Jean?" I asked, drawing her hand into mine. "Are you glad to be here, alone, with me?"

"Why, yes. You are my friend."

"Only your friend?"

"Oh, see there's a place where perhaps we can slide right over the pitch! Let's!"

She was on the sled in an instant, and I behind her. I kicked it loose. With a gentle crunching sound the runners started scraping through the snow; then, as the speed increased, the sound rose to a whine which mingled with the rush of air in our ears and the spray of snow in our faces. Jean's heels were just above the snow surface, and when, as happened once or twice, they dropped too low, they showered us with flying icy crystals. Then just at the dip, one heel drove in much too deep—too deep to be accidental—the sled trembled, turned sideways, and went over.

We disentangled ourselves, laughing, but we did not immediately reclimb the hill. I found a sheltered spot in the pitch where we might sit on the sled with our backs to the great drift while our faces caught the slanting warmth of the sun and our eyes could range the field of tiny rainbow signals thrown up from the ripple at our feet.

Jean broke up the crusted snow with the heel of her overshoe; then buried her feet in the powdery mound. Presently a toe came wiggling up through it. . . . .

"Jean, don't!" I cried. "You take me back to those old days! We understood everything then; then everything was supposed to be settled."

The toe settled to stillness in its burrowing; Jean's sensitive lips, too, settled to a stillness firm and sad.

"Tell me, Jean," I pressed at length; "why can't we go back; why can't we start over again like that?"

"We have always been good friends," she murmured.

"Good friends—yes. Must it stop at that?"

"And neighbors," she continued. "We have always been good neighbors. Perhaps that is the trouble."

"How—the trouble?"

"Well, it's like this," she said, and again the toe began to gyrate in the snow. "We've known each other so well, and so long, there isn't anything—nuance left to know, is there? Could you stand the boredom of a person who has no new thoughts, no strange ideas, no whims—nothing that you haven't already seen and known a hundred times?"

"There never could be boredom with you, dear. Just to have you with me, to feast on you, to know you were mine, would be enough for me."

"For about a week. You'd soon tire of a feast with no flavor to it. I would, at any rate. . . . Oh, I see it working out already. I don't want to gossip, and Jack and Marjorie have been everything they could to me, but already I can see them settling down to the routine—the deadly routine. Bad enough anywhere, but on these prairies, with their isolation, their immensity—unbearable. . I couldn't stand it."

I studied her for a moment in silence. Jean might know all about me; I might have no new thoughts, new ideas, new whims, but it was quite plain I didn't know all about her.

"Still, there are many couples on these prairies living happily, I suppose," I ventured.

"You suppose," she repeated. "That's right. It just supposition. Nobody knows; that is, the public doesn't know. But what is their happiness? An ox-like acceptance of the routine. Breakfast, work; dinner, work; supper, work; sleep; breakfast—the whole circle over again. I couldn't stand it, Frank; there's no use pretending I could. I'd—I'd run away with some one."

"Jean!"

"Yes, I know what you're thinking, but it would break the routine, anyway; it wouldn't be that way I would lose my soul;—perhaps that way I might save it."

"You're a strange girl, Jean."

"Yes? After all these years? I am so glad. As long as I am strange you will be interested in me. That's the trouble with you; you're not strange, I know all about you. And I wouldn't be your housekeeper for life for the

(Continued on page 11.)

Santa Claus is here

The greatest anniversary of the whole year

HERE we are face to face with the greatest of all our holidays. It is observed the whole world over with a beautiful custom of giving gifts. At our store whose whole life and purpose is to meet the demands of its many customers, we have planned for months to meet the great variety of tastes with the choicest possible selection of special gift goods. Now the season is here, everything is awaiting your call. Never have we had such a wealth of variety and value at price to fit every purse.

Exquisite Christmas Sets

Manicure Sets— ..... $2.50 to $10.00
Toilet Sets— ..... $5.00 to $25.00
Perfume Sets— ..... $1.00 to $15.00
Bill and Key Sets— ..... $1.00 to $10.00
Shaving Sets— ..... 75c to $8.00
Bobbed Hair Sets— $1.50

TENNIS RACKETS and COVERS
SPALDING'S—THE BEST—
$3.50 to $10.00

XMAS TREE DECORATIONS OF ALL KINDS

Perfumes and Toilet Waters
Finest Imported, in dainty boxes—L'Origan, Quelque Fleur, Ideal, etc.
$1.00 to $15.00

Greeting Cards and Booklets
We have an extra fine assortment of Christmas Greetings and boxed Novelty Cards—
1c to 25c

Christmas Candies
Norris variety in beautiful Cedar Chests. Whitman's Sampler in Christmas Wrapping
$1.00 to $5.00

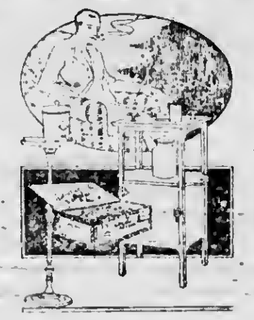
For the Kiddies we have special packages of pure sugar Candies, Lollipops, Sticks, etc., also special packages for the Christmas Tree—
25c per pkg.

Fountain Pens and Pencils
Parker's Duofold, Conklin Durograph, Sheaffer's Lifetime, Eversharp Pencils, Parker's Big Brother Pencils, Conklin Pencils—Priced at
$1.00 to $10.00

CHRISTMAS CANDLES FOR THE WINDOW AND TREE

Compact and Vanity Cases
Coty's, Houbigant's, Hudnut's, Woodworth's—
$1.00 to $15.00

Leather Goods
Ladies' Hand Bags, Men's Purses and Bill Folds, Manicure Sets in Leather Cases, Bill Fold and Key Sets in gift boxes—
50c to $10.00



For the Smokers
Cigars in special packages— ..... 50c to $5.00
Cigarettes in Christmas wrap.
Tobaccos in glass Hummidor Jars.
Ash Trays, Cigar Shands, Cigarette Cases
Cigar Cases, etc.

Safety Razors
Gillette, Gem, Everready, Autostrop—
$1.00 to $5.00

Kodaks and Brownies
Special Brownie Gift Box—just the thing for the Children.

To Dress Your Gifts
Tags, Seals, Cards, Colored Tissues, Fancy Cord—Everything for the Christmas wrap in new designs for this season.

FLASHLIGHTS
—for—
Pa, Ma and the Kids
$1.00 to $3.50

Perfumizers
Dainty Colorings in Art and Iridescent glass—
$3.00 to $10.00

Gift Stationery
In beautiful boxes—Highland Linen, Sheerlawn, Purity Lawn, Keith's Kraften, London Laid, etc.—
50c to $5.00

Special Reductions in prices on Toys, Books, Ivory and Rustcraft Goods

FESSENDEN, The Druggist

Neighbors

By
ROBERT STEAD

Author of
"The Cow Puncher," "The Homesteaders"

WNU Service
Copyright by Robert Stead

(Continued from page 10.)

sake of being your lover for a week."

"Jean!"

"Shocking, isn't it? But true. Don't you know that's what happens nearly always? It must happen, unless there are new points of interest always arising. I have the misfortune to think, and so I see these things in advance, and try to shield you from them."

"The misfortune to think?"

"Of course. Otherwise I could accept the ox-routine and grind out my soul in the treadmill of three meals a day. I suppose that's what people call morality—ideal wife and mother, etc. I'd run away from it all."

I, too, punched the snow with my heel. "I never heard you talk like that, Jean," I said at length. "I didn't think you thought—along those lines. You wouldn't excuse people who run—who disregard their marriage vows?"

"The first of which is to love," she shot back. "When that fails, all falls. Why make a mockery of it?"

"But I would love you, always—always. You would be to me the only—the only possible girl in the world!"

Slowly she turned her face toward me; she had been giving me an opportunity for profile study during this dialogue. Her eyes found mine; her lips—in them again I saw the rose-leaf beauty of her childhood. When she spoke her voice was low and tremulous and musical.

"You dear boy! You think so. I only wish it were true!"

The last words came with a catch in her breath. I thrust forward and clasped her hands in mine.

"You mean that? Oh, Jean, if you do. . . . ."

"Yes, I mean it. That is the great difficulty. It isn't true. You wouldn't love me always. I wouldn't always be the only girl."

"Jean, you would. I swear it!"

"Then I must reverse it. I wouldn't love you always. You wouldn't always be the only man in the world."

My spirit, which had gone pounding upward, fell like a burst balloon.

"Why?" I demanded.

"Because your vision is too small. Because it is bounded by the corner posts of Fourteen. Because I couldn't live penned up in such a—a pasture."

"You'd be breaking out—toward section Two."

"Frank!" It was her turn to exclaim.

"Yes, toward section Two. You've done some plain talking, Jean; now tions in your head. It is Spoof that you are thinking about, not me. I suppose you think you could marry him and not drop into the routine; you would be less an ox, as you put it, on Two than on Fourteen. Perhaps that would be best, after all. Perhaps if you were fenced in on Two, you might break out toward Fourteen!"

"Frank! Please don't be unkind—and unfair. . . . I am thinking about Spoof, and it is just because he is not bounded by section Two. You and Jack and Jake think he's a greenhorn, and you play your silly little tricks on him, but his world is the world, and yours is Fourteen, and Jack's is Twenty-two, and Jake's is—whatever his section is. He's so big, so big!"

"I see. Spoof has traveled more than we have. He has seen more of the world. He has met more people. And so he is big; I bet I grow more oats to the acre than he does—you should see his plowing; looks like—he guess and be d—d," as Jake says."

"Quite an elegant remark; suitable to Jake, hardly to be expected from you. And your argument would be irresistible—if I were an ox."

"You're sharp, aren't you? Well, something to eat is not to be despised even by big people, like you and Spoof. Even the soul, which you are afraid of losing on Fourteen, will pick me and leave you on Two, unless you feed that body in which it lives. That's what the soul itself thinks about people who don't hustle for a living; it gets up and leaves them."

"Good for you!" cried Jean. "You are actually thinking. I have goaded you into it. Now—where are we?"

"We're at Spoof. You say you could love me for a week, and him forever."

"I didn't say that."

"You as much as said it. Spoof may have advantages—I admit his travel, and all that—but will those things keep him big? Won't section Two bound him in a year or so, just as you say Fourteen bounds me now? Is he different clay; less ox, more soul?"

"Section Two can never hold Spoof, because he—because he is big, don't you see? He reads, he thinks, he sings, he dreams. No section can bind one who does those things."

"Does he write poetry?" I inquired innocently.

"I—I don't think so," said she, not scenting my trap, "but he is very fond of it. You should hear him read—"

"Hear him read 'Come to me, . . . Spoof?'"

She turned to me fairly again. She had withdrawn her hands from mine and was crushing little crusts of snow between her mittens. Now she dropped the snow, shook her hands free of its powdery residue, then linked them about her knee. For a long moment she held me under her eyes without blinking.

"So you saw that, did you?"

"Jean—I'm sorry. I apologize. I saw it by accident. I couldn't help that. I could have helped spanking about it. I apologize."

Then her eyes dropped. "It was very foolish," she murmured. "You have a right to be amused."

"But I'm not amused." I protested. "And I'm not sure it is really foolish. At any rate, I'll confess committing Jean; when I found it I tried to write a poem—to you—but I couldn't. The only rhymes I could think of were Jean and bean."

"Splendid!" Oh, Frank, I'm beginning to be afraid—to hope—that I didn't quite know you after all. Fancy you trying to write poetry—and about me! Let's write a verse now. I'll help you."

She whipped a mitten from her hand and sat with her fingers lightly drumming on her lips, summoning the muse.

"You'll have to write it," I said. "I'll sign it."

"All right!" she exclaimed at length, and turning to the large drift behind us she traced on its hard surface with her forefinger this inscription:

If you will only be my wife,
No matter what the past has been
I'll take a broader view of life
And try to keep you guessing, Jean.

"Oh, you used my rhymes!" I exclaimed. "But isn't that last line slangy?" I said, when we had it well laughed over and I had added at the side an idealistic sketch of Jean's face under a bridal veil. My drawing rather lost its point in the fact that I had to explain what it was.

"No, not slang—poetic license. That's a great advantage poets have; anything that isn't quite good English can always be called poetic license. Now sign it."

I signed it in bold, printed letters, and then we fell into silence.

"What's the answer, Jean?" I said at length.

"Oh, Frank, I can't give you an answer—not now. That may have been slang, about keeping me guessing, but it goes a long way down in one's nature. If you would only read, and study, and think, and learn to appreciate beautiful things—"

"Oh, Jean, I do! I appreciate you."

"Rather clever, Frank, but that isn't just what I mean. I mean like Spoof; we might as well be frank about it. I've seen him watch the sunset in the pond; watch the colors change and blend and run in little ripples with a touch of breeze as though the water had been stirred with a feather; I've seen him sit for hours watching the ambers and saffrons and champagnes of the prairie sunset, and—"

"And that's why he got so little plowing done."

"Stop it! And he knows every flower on the prairies, and all you know is pigweed, and he takes note of little things, like when I worked a new strip of lace into the yoke of my dress, and when I put a dash of scarlet ribbon in my hat he said it gave me just the touch of color that one needed on the prairies and it was no wonder that the Red Indians loved color, and how much wiser, in some things, they were than we, and—"

"He was spoiling you, Jean."

"He wasn't."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

You can afford to wear heavy wool winter garments at the price we are selling them to close out the line. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 47tf.

Wear wool garments and keep warm this winter. We are selling them below cost to close out the line. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 47tf.

Seasonable Xmas Gifts

In Holiday Mood--The Store Abounds with Gift Suggestions

Come here shopping early and often. The values we offer will save you money—the gifts you select from our stock will prove most pleasing to the recipient and the convenience of shopping here will add to your pleasure of gift choosing.

For the Men	For the Ladies	For the Children
GLOVES	SCARFS	CAPS
HOSE	COLLARS	GLOVES
TIES	GLOVES	BLOUSES
SHIRTS	APRONS	UNDERWEAR
CAPS	BLANKETS	WOOL HOSE
HATS	HANDKERCHIEFS	LEATHER MITS
UNDERWEAR	SILK HOSE	HANDKERCHIEFS
HANDKERCHIEFS	TABLE COVERS	WINDSOR TIES
	LUNCH CLOTHS	GOLF GLOVES

THIS STORE IS FILLED WITH XMAS GIFTS FOR ALL

Bergeon's DRY GOODS STORE

PLAN TO DO YOUR XMAS SHOPPING EARLY

WHAT To BUY

Why Bother Baking Christmas Pies

Baking Christmas Pies at home is a needless amount of work that you can get along without doing. Our pies, compounded from the purest and best ingredients, cost less in the end than baking them yourself.

Better Then Homemade Bread

McCann's Bread, scientifically compounded from the purest materials, baked in a sanitary oven just the right temperature is more wholesome and nourishing than homemade bread.

The busy weeks before Christmas is a good time to try it.

Bread, per loaf	10c
Buns, per dozen	20c
Pies, any kind	25c
Cookies, per dozen	20c
Cakes up from	25c to 50c

McCann's Bakery

Phone 155

Gift Hints

Here's a Score of Good Gifts For Every Member of the Family

To attempt to describe them all would use way too much space so we will content ourselves with telling you about a few, and cordially invite you to come here and see the others. We do know that whatever you may choose, the recipient will be well pleased with your selection.

His Shaving Needs

Christmas offers a splendid opportunity to give Him the shaving needs—Gifts that will cause him to think of you every day during the year. We have Safety Razors and Shaving Mirrors, just the kind he will appreciate.

Gift Perfumes

Fashion Favored Scents in daintily designed containers. These exquisite Perfumes make a most delightful Gift item. You may easily determine her favorite and we will do the rest. Prices from $2.50 to $8.00.

Gift Things for Her Dressing Table

An item of ordinary use—and hence something that will make her daily remember your thoughtfulness in selecting her gift. We have Pyraline Toilet Sets in Ivory or Shell-tone, Manicure Sets and Picture Frames.

New Gift Cameras

A most delightful gift, and one that is certain to give more than the usual measure of entertainment the year round. An Eastman Kodak would make a splendid gift for any member of the family.

Gift Reminders for Those Out Shopping

Popular Copyright Books, Boy's and Girl's Books, Fountain Pens, Eversharp Pencils, Toilet Water, Manicure Sets, Mirrors, Brushes, Combs, Thermos Bottles, Pen and Pencil Sets, Christmas Cards, Christmas Tree Decorations, Wreaths and Ornaments, Candle Holders and Fancy Candles.

Candies, from.....60c to $1.50
Stationery from.....35c to $2.00
Cigars in Packages.....50c and up

Smoking Stands and Cigarette Cases

CENTRAL DRUG STORE

B. A. HERMAN, Prop.

Happy Christmas for Aged Artist

Finds Fairy Spirit Shines Behind Gloom and Cold of the World.

By CHRISTOPHER G. HAZARD

ERECT as ever, and striking his cane sharply upon the pavement as he strode along, the old man was a distinguished figure amid the hurrying Christmas crowds. He pressed on like a contradiction of the Christmas spirit.

He had not far to go before reaching the ancient looking house that had once known youth and gayety as the result of his prosperity, but, which in its loneliness and disrepair, had become a surviving sympathy in his later and adverse experiences. There he could sit and renew in memory the events and associations of happier days, which, like pictures in the gallery of life, were vivid again for a moment out of their tarnished frames.

They were more real than the pictures that hung upon his walls, for it is the artistic atmosphere of the day that determines the light in which its art shall be viewed, and these works of the past had become only memorials to the present to which he had come.

But the present realities of the past are as helpless as the old-fashioned-nesses of the present to succor fainting mortality, and the old artist had to confess on that Christmas eve that he was not only hungry, but rather hopelessly so. It was true that his artistic remains were not wholly despised. Mr. Blavatsky's auction room was not very far away, and there was a daily slaughter of helpless pictures there. But this massacre of innocents their father could not consent to: he felt ready to starve first. Then certain publishers had offered something for a set of skeletons, but in order that they might reproduce them upon a reduced scale, which was intolerable to his artistic pride. So that "The Solitary Pine" whispered to "The Old Meeting House" that it looked as though they would all go down together, and "The Mountain Summit" suggested to "An Evening Sea" that it might be better to stoop to conquer.

The Old Artist Had to Confess That He Was Hungry.

There was no token of this last idea, however, in the preparations for the night that signified the old man's intention of remaining in and sticking the situation out. He had no ear for the chimes that had begun to ring out.

There was not a trace of expectation of Christmas cheer in the determined expression of the face that was reflected from the old mirror. They must all belonw to the past forever.

There was another thought on the way, though, and it found expression that Christmas morning when the artist awoke to a rather cheerless environment to be summoned to his door by the loud knocking of a very rotund, florid and merry individual, who seemed to have brought his years with him into a congenial and friendly climate. An old friend from a far country, he took in the state of things at a glance and as quickly decided upon his course of action. After the greetings and the historical recountings were over, and as a result of this most unexpected visitation, a number of the paintings that had concluded to die were introduced to a new life upon the walls of one who had never lost his love for them, and it appeared that the one aim of their new possessor had been to get them at their maker's prices. All of which gave to the old artist a new view of the fact that while the arts may change, hearts do not; and a new idea of the reality which all art strives in vain to fully represent, the reality of the fairy spirit that moves and shines behind all the gloom and cold of the world. "I'll be hanged," he said, "if he didn't look just like Santa Claus."

(©, 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

ORIGIN OF CHRISTMAS TREE

History of the Yuletide Emblem Extends Far Into the Mists of Antiquity.

THE history of Christmas tree usage extends far into the mists of antiquity. Some say its origin is connected with the legendary Tree of Time, Ygdrasil, the great tree of Norse mythology, within whose roots and branches heaven and earth are bound. Some say the custom may be traced to the Egyptians who, at the time of the winter solstice, decorated their portals with branches of the date palm.

To a Scandinavian legend may perhaps be traced our custom of illuminating the tree when darkness comes. Among the Greeks, Christmas is known as the feast of lights.

To people of different localities today the term Christmas tree may mean fir, spruce, pine, cedar or even magnolia, for each particular region makes use of the most suitable species that is to be found near its markets. In the vicinity of the mid-west, a short-needle pine found in Michigan and Wisconsin may be used. On the Pacific coast the white fir finds favor, while throughout Ohio, the Norway spruce is largely used. In Maryland and Virginia, the scrub pine and farther south cedar and holly. Best of all is the symmetrical balsam fir, each tiny leaf of which sends out a breath of aromatic fragrance.

AN OLD CHRISTMAS CUSTOM

Village Boys in North England Reproduce Play That Is as Old as the Race.

IN THE North of England some of the oldest of our Christmas customs are still faithfully observed. One of the quaintest is that of the village boys who call themselves "The Mummers." At Christmas time they perform a little play that is as old as the English race.

There are three chief characters—St. George, resplendent in silver-papered armor, and brandishing a wooden sword; Beelzebub, who is, of course, the famous dragon; and the Doctor, who wears a battered top-hat.

At the beginning of the play it is announced that the countryside is being laid waste by Beelzebub. Various minor characters make an appeal for deliverance from the monster's sway. Then St. George bursts upon the scene. A fierce battle takes place, in which he slays Beelzebub, but is himself badly wounded. At this point the Doctor rushes in with a bottle, which he places to the saint's lips.

"Tak soom o' mah niff-naff dahn thy tiff-taff," he prescribes. So George drinks and is cured.

Some of the words used in the play are so old that neither the boys nor the majority of the audience can understand them.

WORTH SAVING

Jack and Betty are both at Howell where they are being treated for tuberculosis. Their father and mother are both dead from the disease. The parents did not have treatment in time. Many children are given a chance when you buy tuberculosis Christmas seals.

CHRISTMAS HEADQUARTERS

Prime Roasting Turkeys for Christmas

What is more appetizing than a prime Roast Turkey for Christmas Dinner? And we will consider it a special privilege if you will allow us to supply the Turkey. Picked from the finest of this year's crop, we are glad to guarantee the quality.

You Go Home Happy When You Do Your Christmas Shopping Here

Come here and load your arms full of Christmas delicacies. You will have food for the Holidays that the entire family will enjoy to the utmost.

Dates Oranges Figs Grapes Lettuce
Lemons Grape Fruit Celery Etc.

Order it now. Insure the success of your Christmas Dinner by placing your order with us early. Remember we will have

Geese Ducks Chickens Oysters

CHOICE MEATS OF ALL KINDS

Keep in mind that we have the largest assortment of Christmas Candies in the city. We bought heavily for the Christmas Trade, and can supply you in any quantity you may need. Special rates to lodges and church societies.

MARTIN BLOCK

PHONE 12 AND 142

Presents For All

What Is Christmas Without Candy

You probably cannot answer, for everyone always has it then. But Sugar Bowl Candies are an exceptional treat, and those who receive them, particularly fortunate.

They are delightfully flavored and filled and are healthful and wholesome, too. Buy them by the box or bulk, any kind you may want. We will be well supplied with

Candy Canes
Fudges of All Kinds
Delicious Taffies
Attractive Gift Boxes
Dates - Figs
Dried Fruits

Your order for Christmas Ice Cream will receive our most careful attention. Special orders solicited.

The Sugar Bowl

GEO. GLADOS

AUCTION SALE

The undersigned will sell at Public Auction on what is known as the Hammet Farm, about six miles east of Charlevoix on the Boyne City-Charlevoix road, the stone house at south end of Susan Lake, on

Friday, Dec. 18th

Commencing at 1:00 p. m., the following described property:

Brown Gelding, 12 yrs. old, wt. 1400
Gray Gelding, 6 yrs. old, wt. 1200
Grade Holstein Cow, 10 yrs. old, fresh April 28
Brown and White Cow, 4 yrs. old, fresh April 1
Red and White Cow, 2 yrs. old, fresh May 1
Red and White Cow, 6 yrs. old, fresh March 1
Red Cow, 6 yrs. old, fresh
Red Cow, 5 yrs. old, fresh April 1
Brown and White Cow, 4 yrs. old, fresh March 1
6 Yearlings 4 Calves 2 Pigs
10 Chickens 5 Turkeys
Empire Cream Separator No. 42, good as new
Good 11x30 Silo
I. H. C. Tractor and Plows
Riding Cultivator Plow
Spring-tooth Harrow
Deering Mowing Machine
Lumber Wagon
Set of Heavy Sleighs
Ford Radiator Hay Rake
I. H. C. Hay Bailer with 6 h. p. engine
Motor Boat Engine
Set of Light Sleighs
Set of Dump Boards
Potato Sprayer
Cutting Box
18 tons of good Hay
2 tons of Straw
125 bushels of Oats
A few other articles not mentioned

TERMS OF SALE

All sums of $10.00 or under, cash; all sums over $10.00, ten months time on good approved, endorsed, bankable paper bearing interest at 7 per cent, payable at the Charlevoix County Bank. Five per cent off for cash on all sums over $10.00. No property to be removed until terms of sale complied with and all settlements must be made at time of sale.

James A. O'Brien, Prop.

ROBERT BRIDGE, Note Clerk W. E. BYERS, Auctioneer.

CHARLEVOIX COURIER

VOLUME 32. NUMBER 51. EIGHT PAGES. COURIER, CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 23, 1925 PRICE $2.00 PER YEAR

OFFICERS NAMED FOR COMING YEAR

ASSOCIATION OF COMMERCE HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

Forty-two Members Attend Banquet at Hotel Charlevoix—Work Receives Impetus

One of the best attended ond most profitable meetings held by the Charlevoix Associotion of Commeree since its organization, was staged at the Hotel Charlevoix on Wednesday evening of last week, the occasion bcing the association's annual banquet and election of officers.

Business men interested in the association's work and welfare of the city in which they live to the number of over forty were in attendonce. The supper wos all that could be asked for, and with the prevailing spirit of good fellowship the bunch forgot the many perplexing problems and worries of business life and enjoyed to the utmost every minute of the evening.

At the close of the supper hour, Fred E. Cartler, persident of the association, called the meeting to order, and the minutes of the preceding meeting were read and approved. Chairmen of several committees were called upon for reports of their activities, and in their short talks one could readily see that all hnd heartily co-opernted in a work thnt resulted in hringing ahout one of the most successful resort seasons in the history of Charlevoix.

The most interesting report of the evening was that of Robert Bridge, secretary ond treasurer of the ossociation. Receipts and expenditures were all carefully itemized and the report should hc read hy every citizen in the community. It requires hut a glnnce to inform one "Who is Who" in Charlevoix. It also shows up the number who are in the habit of taking a "free ride" at the expense of those who desire to see Charlevoix forge ohead and continue to be what it is—the best town ond the finest place to live in Northern Michigan.

In reading this report you will notice two items, one of $304.06 for stenographer and secretary services, and the other of $50.00 for rent, o total of $354.06. This means that it cost the association $50.00 for rentol of the space occupied by our local information hurenu in the Brown building, and $304.06 for handling over fourteen thousand booklets, answering hundreds of inquiries for rooms, hotels, accommodations nnd generol information nsked my prospective summer visitors, and the hundreds of letters mailed out by the association for other purposes.

It might be well to state for further information to our readers tbat it costs the city of Petoskey in the neighhorhood of $1,500 for the execution of this same work. Boyne City has pold out yearly some eleven hundred dollars, and Traverse City also comes under the list of cities having paid sceretaries, the cost running over $3,000.00. Outside of these two items no officer or memher of the locol associotion has received a single penny for services rendered.

Following is the detailed report of Secretary-Treasurer Bridge:

Receipts

Bal. on hand Jon. 22, 1925	$ 90.08
Dues received from members	54.00

Doositioos

C. R. Bellinger	$ 6.00
J. H. Koch	300.00
The Inn	300.00
Charlevoix Creamery	25.00
Northern Auto Co.	25.00
Fountain City House	15.00
Mich. Bell Tel. Co.	15.00
F. J. Fessendcn	25.00
H. A. Wlddlfield	10.00
Belvedere Hotel	150.00
E. A. Young	50.00
Char. Abst. and Eng. Co.	50.00
Char. State Bank	50.00
J. J. Hollett	75.00
Char. Hdw. Co.	25.00
Wood Brothers	25.00
S. M. Sce & Sons	25.00
M. A. Levinson	25.00
F. E. Cartier	25.00
Central Drug Store	25.00
Don Campbell	10.00
O. E. Wilhur	25.00
A. E. Mason	15.00
Argo Milling Co.	25.00
John Slczak	5.00
Louis Orlowski	5.00

(Continued on Page 7)

Odd Fellow Dance, New Yaar's night.—Adv. 51tl.

Santa's Arrival

DELAND WANTS CHANGE IN TAX

FAVORS STRAIGHT GASOLINE TAX FOR STATE OF MICHIGAN

Need of Plates Only for Registration and Identification—Must Have New Licanse

That tho state administration is deslrous of a change from the present system of automohile taxation to one in which all higbway funds will be raised by a straight gas tax is indicated in a poster that has been sent to Charles H. Emrey, county clerk, and which will hang where it can be read hy every person who secures a set of auto license plates this year. The poster is signed hy Charles J. DeLand, secretary of state and a member of the administrative hoord.

The poster declares that Michigan motor vehicle owners are paying the equivalent of a five cents per gallon gasoline tax at the present time, tbis money going into the state highway fund. The receipts from the automohile license tax and the gasoline tox in 1925 will be approximately $22,500,000, declares the printed statement. This amount is pald hy approximately 1,000,000 automohile owners. The gas tax, at two cents a gollon, raised approximately $9,000,000 at a collection expenso of shout $40,000. The graduated weight tax raised $13,500.00 at a collection cost of approximately $500,000.

(Continued on page three.)

McCools's Velvet Ice Cream now on sale at the Creamery Building, 105 Clinton street.—Adv. 45tf.

VESPER CHOIR MUCH ENJOYED

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH PACKED LAST SUNDAY

Handel's Oratorio, "The Messiah" Well Reodered By Choir aod Local Soloists

The Christmas services at the Congregational church last Sunday were carricd out as announced in this paper last week.

The pastor spoke in the morning on the subject, "A Christmas Journey to Bethleham," and took occasion to remind his people of the deeper things for whicb this holiday stands. The "solo Nord," hy Adams, was very heautifully rendered by Miss Eva Adams and the choir sang as a special number "The Birthday of the King" with a solo hy Gilbert Saltonstall.

A musical program of outstaading merit rewarded the large audience which wos present in the afternoon at the Congregational church. The group of numbers from Handel's Oratorio, "The Messiah," presented many difficulties for a moderate sized chorus but were rendered with a smoothness of precision which inspired as well as surprised thosa best able to appreciate the difficulties involved. The choir was fortunate in hnving a group of sololsts whose voices in swcetness and power might well distinguish a much larger city than Charlevoix.

Dr. F. H. Wilkinson's tenor solo,

(Continued on Page 7)

W. E. Parmelee builds storm windows.—Adv. 37-tf.

DICKENS CLUB ANNUAL PARTY

HELD AT WILKINSON HOME LAST TUESDAY AFTERNOON

Entertaioment Unique and Original and Was Appropriate to the Season

On of the most interesting and unique social events of the season transpired last week when the Dicken's Club entertained in honor of the members of the Shakespeare Club at the home of Dr. and Mrs. F. H. Wilkinson. The guests arrived promptly nt onc o'clock at the home of Robert Cratchit, Esq. Camden Town, London, England, where they were received by the ghosts of Christmas Past, Christmas Present and Christmas Future in the home made gay with Christmas decorations.

Boh returned from church bearing Tiny Tim on his back ond was greeted by the other members of the Cratchit family all "brave in a sixpence of ribbons." The guests were invited to enter the dining room where a sumptuous Christmas dinner was served. After all had "made merry with the goose" and "the two young Cratchits were steeped in sage and onion to the eyebrow," Mrs. Cratchit bore in the pudding "blazing hot and bedight with Christmas holly stuck into the top."

At last the dinner was all done, the cloth was cleared, the hearth swept and the fire made up. The compound in the jug being tasted was considered perfect. Boh served it out with beaming looks and all joined in "A Merry Christmas to us all, my dears, God bless us."

Then all the Cratchit family and all the guests "drew round the hearth in what Boh Cratchit called a circle, meaning half a one and the afternoon was spent with songs and games, all joining merrily in the Christmas Cheer."

At the close of the afternoon a Christmas tree was brought in and Tiny Tim assisted by the two young Cratchits, Peter, Martha and Belinda, distributed the gifts—a benutiful red Murrocco volume of Dicken's Christmas carol was given to each of the guests as a memento of the occasion.

SANTA UNLOADS A HEAVY PACK

Ironton Community Christmas Drew Crowded House

The Ironton Community Christmas drew a crowded house, Tuesday evening, at the Congregational church. Miss Mildred Howe, teacher of the Ironton school, with her pupils presented an enjoyable program. A handsome tree nnd generous distribution of gifts delighted everybody, young and old. Miss Howe wns assisted by a group of Ironton ladies and by Dr. and Mrs. Mottson.

The unsolicited gift of a generous check which came to Dr. Mattson in a letter from Mrs. Robert Stewart of Chicogo, to be used for Christmos gifts to the Ironton children enobled Sonta Claus in the person of Ralph Price to distribute a heavy pack of gifts to all present.

FIREMEN WILL HOLD A NEW YEAR'S DANCE

Come Daoce the Old Year Out aod the New Year In

The boys of the Charlevoix fira department will give a New Year's dance at the Lakeside pavilion Thursday evening, Decemher 31st. A good orchestra will furnish music that will make you dance and a "ripping" good time is promised to all who attend.

Come and dance the old year out and the New year in. Have the time of your life remember that you are helping out a good cause. There will be dances to suit the tastes of all, young ond old.

No Sunday Milk Deliveries

After Janoary 1, 1926, there will ho no Sunday delivery of milk. Please get your week end requirements when the milk is delivered on Saturday.

Signed: William Withers, Elmer Ingalls, Robert Gregory.
Adv.—51-t2.

Pete Scott will operate the feed stable at 101 Mason street as in former years. Barn will be open for business Saturday, December 19th—51-t2pd.

Odd Fellow Danca, New Year's night.—Adv. 51tl.

For Sore Throat

Rub throat and chest with Vicks; cover with warm flannel. Its double direct action (inhaled and absorbed) brings welcome relief.

VICKS VAPORUB

HAVE YOU PAID YOUR DOG TAX?

MUST BE PAID ON OR BEFORE MARCH 1ST

But—A Penalty of $2 Will Be Charged If Applied For After January 10th

We are reproducing below a few sections from the dog law as amended for the year 1925, so that any dog owner in doubt of its content will be able to make himself familiar with its provisions. As you will see, there is a "catch" to the law this year that reads the dog tax must be paid on or before March 1st, "Provided, that a penalty of two dollars be charged for each license applied for after January 10th." Better go in now and pay your dog tax and snve the extra two bucks. Here are the facts:

"Section 6. On or before the first day of March, nineteen hundred and twenty-six, and on or before the same date of each yenr thereofter, the owner of any dog four months old or over shall, exeept as provided in section fourteen, apply to the county treasurer in writing for a license for each such dog owned or kept by him. Such application shall state the breed, sex, age, color and marking of such dog and the name and address of last previous owner and shall be accompanied be a fee of ewo dollars for ench male dog, four dollars for each female dog and two dollars for each unsexed dog: Provided, That a penality fee of two dollars be charged for each license applied for after January tenth for any dog four months old or over on that date, such penalty fees to be placed in the general fund.

Section 8. Any person becoming the owner, after the first day of March nineteen hundred twenty-six or any year thereafter, of any dog four months old or over, which has not already been licensed, or any person owning a dog which becomes four months old at any time after the first dny of March of any year, shall forthwith apply for and secure a license for such dog, and in case of application made at any time after the tenth dny of July of any year, the license fee shall be one-half the amount fixed as the annual license fee for auch dog.

Section 10. Any person who keeps or operates a kennel may, in lieu of individual license required under this act, apply to the county treasurer for a kennel license entitling him to keep or operate such kennel. Such license shall be issued by the county treasuerer, on a form prepared and supplied by the State Live Stock Sanitary Commission, Commissioner of Agriculture, and shall entitle the licensee to keep any number of dogs four months old or over not at any time exceeding a certain number to be specified in the license. The fee to be paid for each kennel license shall be fifteen dollars for ten dogs or less, and twenty dollars for more than ten dogs: Provided, That an additional fee of five dollars be charged for each kennel license applied for after the first day of March. With each kennel license the county treasurer shall issue a number of metal tags equal to the number of dogs authorized to be kept in the kennel. All such tags shall bear the name of the county issuing it, the number of the kennel license, nnc shall be readily distinguishable from the individual license tags for the same year.

Section 14. Every township or city treasurer in the state shall, on or before December first, nineteen hundred twenty-five, and of each year thereafter, make application to the county treasuerer for the necessary license blanks and tags for the ensuing year and after reccipting therefor may issue dog licenses and tags in like manner, and upon like application as prescribed for the issuof licenses by the county trensurer."

HAVE YOU URIC ASID TROUBLE?

Many Charlevoix Folks Are Learning How to Avoid It.

Are you lame and achy; tortured with backnche, and rhumatic pains? Feel nervous, despressed, and allplayed- out? Then look to your kidneys! When the kidneys weaken uric acid accumulates, poisoning blood and nerves, and many mysterious aches and ills result. Help your kidneys with a stimulnut diuretic. Use Doan's Pills! Your friends and neighbors recommend Doan's.

John Stephens, 209 W. Upright Ave., Charlevoix, says: "My kidneys were weak and acted too frequently, often causing me to get up several times during the night to pass the secretions. The passages of the secretions burned a grent deal. Doan's Pills relieved the trouble and made me feel better in every way."

60c at all dealers, Foster- Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Your old radiator is worth $2.50 when we intsall a Koolfast on your Ford. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 49tf.

AT THE MOVIES

The Story in Brief

"That Royle Girl" is Joan Daisy Royle, a jazzy, beautiful modiste's mannequin, who becomes infatuated with Fred Ketlar, famous leader of a Chicago dance hnll orchestra. The latter, though married, is estranged from his wife, Adele, who has become the mistress of George Bnrettn, wealthy bootlegger and gang leader.

Adele is found murdered one morning. Ketlnr is accuse of the crime, having been seen entering her apartment. The trial is the sensation of the city. Although Calvin Clarke, the straitlaced district attorney, finds himself strangely drawn to Joan, who is a witness for the defense, he is, nevertheless, merciless in his cross-examination of her, and succeeds in convicting Ketlar.

As the day of Ketlar's execution approaches, Joan works franticnlly to save him. Tipped off that Baretta is the real murderer, she disguises herself and joins a party the gangster is giving at Boar's Head Inn, a notorious roadhouse. She overhears Baretta ndmit the murder, but is discovered and forced to make a sensntional escape, just as a terrific cyclone breaks in all it's fury. The inn collapses, killing all the gnngsters.

Clarke, who had followed Joan, arrives, and in a mad rash they reach the Governor hy phone and stay the execution of Ketlar. Eventually the dance leader is freed, but Joan realizes now that she never really loved him. Ketlar marries a chorus girl, while Joan finds happiness with Clarke. Palace Theatre, Thursday and Friday, December 24-25.

"East Lynne" Coming

It is doubtful if nny stage play ever has been shown to more people or in more cities and towns than "East Lynne," which William Fox has put on the screen under the direction of Emmett Flynn, and which opens a two day run at the Palace Theatre, Snturday and Sunday, December 26-27. This perennial favorite has been in the repertoire of every stock company for the last two generations; it has played on Broadway, New York, Podunk Crossing and Hog Eye, Texas; it has thrilled the social elite as well as the gallery god in nearly every country on the globe.

"The Last Man on Earth"

What would happen to the world if all men were suddenly swept nway by a plague affecting only those of the proverbial "stronger sex?"

Would women "carry on" the vocations and avocations now performed exclusively by men?

These are only a few of the questiona inspired by the new William Fox production, "The Last Man on Earth," which is due to open an engagement at the Palace Theatre on Monday, December 28th. It is reported that where ever this picture has been shown it has wielded a magical power in starting debating societies to arguing the interesting questions the unusual story raises.

"Stop Flirting"

With the great number of comedies of such high calibre as "Charley's Aunt," "Reckless Romance," and "Hold Your Breath," to their credit, Al and Charles Christie might well set themselves up as dictators of what does or does not constitute good comedy.

"Stop Flirting," the latest Christie offering, will show at the Palace Thentre, Tuesday and Wednesday, December 29-30, presents a new angle on the so-called social whirl of high society, according to Al Christie.

Notice to Tax Payers

I will be at the Charlevoix County Bank, Saturday, January 2nd, and Saturday, January 9th, to receive Charlevoix township tnxes. Cora D. Rodger, Twp. Treas.—Adv. 50t2 pd.

CORRESPONDENCE

NORWOOD

Mr. and Mrs. George Light and son visited relatives in Enst Jordan, Sunday.

Plenney Genett shot a beautiful red fox on the beach on Tuesday of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Pearl and family of Charlevoix, were Norwood callera Sunday.

William Seymour and son, Versil, of Charlevoix, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Plenny Genett.

Glen and Robert Holecheck spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Anton Holecheck near Charlevoix.

Cecil Richardson of Grand Rapids, is expected home this week to spend Xmas with his parents and other relatives.

Rev. Conklin and wife attended the meeting of the Ladies Aid Society at the home of Mrs. Empey last Wednesday afternoon.

George Sarasin and his two sons, Stewart and Robert, left last Saturday for Detroit, where they expect to spend the winter months.

R. C. Korth of Charlevoix, drove to the Supernaw farm and took back with him a truck load of fatted turkeys for his market, Monday.

Miss Hipp, teacher of the Norwood school, closed her school on Tuesday for Christmns vacation and willspend her vacation in East Jordan.

James Runyon reported that his aged father, John Runyon, of East Jordan, is in feeble health and confined to his bed a greater part of the time.

Mrs. Hull and son, Joseph, of Norwood, left last week for Gladstone, Michigan, where Mrs. Hull will visit her daughter, Mr. and Mrs. James O'Neill.

Roy Stafford, Lawrence Parmalee, and Glen R. Ikens of Charlevoix, are enjoying a few days rabbit hunting at Norwood, with headquarters at the Pearl cottage.

Mrs. Plenny Genett of Norwood, and her niece, Fern Sheldon of Manton, left Tuesday for Frenchlick Springs, Indiana, where they expect to visit Mrs. Genett's daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Irving Hallett and family, and they also will visit Mr. and Mrs. Ward Genett of Flint.

Sam Routley, who has been ill at the Charlevoix hospital for the past week, returned to his home Friday, and can not say praises enough for the good care and treatment by the nurses and Dr. McMillan, and also the Odd Fellow lodge, who so well remembered him and his family.

We sell Koolfast Radiators for Fords because we believe they are the best radiator on the market today. Benj. Brown. —Adv. 49tf.

DELAND WANTS CHANGE IN TAX

(Continued from Page One)

If all highway funds were raised by gasoline tax, declares the statement of Mr. DeLand, the stnte would save all of the expense, inconvenience and annoyance of selling the yearly license plates. One set of plates could be sold to last for the life of the car, which would be for purposes of registry and indentification only, says the poster.

The gas tax is declared to be the fairest wny devised for the collection of a highway tax. Licenses by weight must be arbitrary and are often unjust and unequal, says the poster. Attention is called to the fnct that the legislature has the power to collect all the highway funds by gas tnx, and to relieve the state of the "unequitable, expensive and burdensome weight tax."

Mr. Emrey has been issuing 1926 license plates since December 2, and urges nll to apply early as possible for the 1926 plates. It is also necessary for the applicant to present their title of ownership when applying for license plates.

No cnrs can be run after December 31, 1925, on old license plates. Secretary of State Delnnd, has issued this notice and has notified county and state officials to prosecute all offenders. Get your 1926 plates before the end of the year is the order.

W. E. Parmelee builds storm windows.—Adv. 37-tf.

CHURCH OF GOD

Wm. Eldridge, Pastor

Preaching services Sunday, December 27th, at 10:30 and 7:30. Sermon subject for Sundny morning, "Sacrifice."

Young people's meeting Sunday evening at 6:30.

Prnyer service each Wednesday evening, regardless of the weather at 7:30.

Christmas exercises nt Chapel, Thursday evening, December 24th.

Cordial invitation extended to nll.

Notice to Eveline Taxpayers

I will be at my home every Monday and Thursdny until Janunry 10, for the collection of tax monies for the township of Eveline. Robt. H. Sherman, Trens.—Adv. 51t2.

Merry Christmas

From the Grocery Store and Meat Market that serves you with a Christmas smile of good cheer each and every day throughout the year---and where you will find the spirit of fairness and good will Predominant.

—o—

A. VanAllsburg and Son

Phone 638

Prest-O-Light Storage Batteries

A Battery you can depend on
A Battery that's low in price
A Battery with a reputation

I am prepared to give personal serviee to your Batteries Winter Storage.

All work guaranteed on All Makes and All Sizes. Phone 54J for service.

Wishing you all a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year

H. R. Fowler

113 Bridge Street - - Phone No. 54-J

End the worry of Christmas Shopping

Nothing you could discover in a month of Christmas shopping would be quite as acceptable to the whole family as a Better Buick.

BUICK MOTOR CO., FLINT, MICH.
Division of General Motors Corporation

Heaton & Hooper, Boyne City, Mich.

When better automobiles are built, Buick will build them

THE SIMPLEST LIGHT & POWER PLANT IN THE WORLD

"DOES THIS PICTURE ILLUSTRATE YOUR HOME SURROUNDINGS?"

THIS happy group was made by Marco. The father's labor was lightened by the power features of this super-powered plant. The mother's hours were shortened by the labor saving devices which were operated from the current supplied hy Marco—and the eatire family is hrightened by the electric lights furnished by Marco.

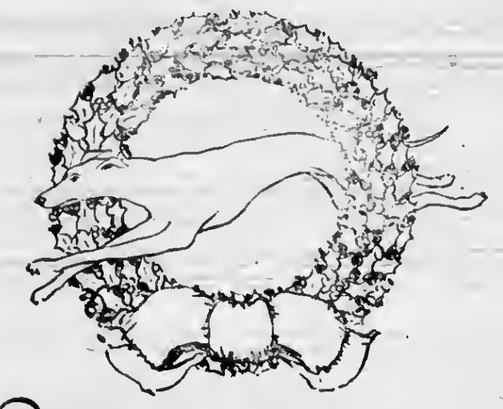
Nothing less than Marco capacity (1,500 watts) will do all the work necessary on the farm, so do not foolishly consider anything of lesser capacity because it may be cheaper.

It costs you nothing to find out what Marco can do for you—ask us.

Benj. Brown Auto Sales

Charlevoix, Michigan

The SUPER-POWERED MARCO



May this be your Merriest Christmas

The Greyhounds

W. E. Byers, Auctioneer

Twenty years experience in handling Auction Sales, both on farm and household goods.

Let Me Cry Your Sales

Phone me at Charlevoix or call the Charlevoix Courier, where all dates are made.

Cups for Lunch Furnished if Requested

A Tremendous Price Reduction

On January seventh, 1926, Dodge Brothers, Inc., will announce a tremendous reduction in the prices of their complete line of motor cars.

These reductions will apply on all cars bought after midnight, December fifteenth, 1925.

When the new prices are made known on January seventh, the full amount of the reductions will be immediately refunded to all purchasers since December fifteenth.

These revolutionary reductions are made possible by a recently completed ten million dollar expansion program---new buildings and equipment that will nearly double the capacity of Dodge Brothers factories in 1926.

There is no change in the policy upon which Dodge Brothers established their leadership eleven years ago---the policy of constant improvement without yearly models.

BENJAMIN BROWN

405 BRIDGE STREET

CHARLEVOIX - - MICHIGAN

Next Years Christmas Tree

We wish you a
Very Merry
Merry
Christmas
Not only this year but next year
too. And we want
to help to make a Merry
Christmas for you next
year. This much we know
—that if you will come in and join our Christmas Savings Club for next year—and deposit regularly for fifty weeks
—that next December, when we
mail you a nice fat Christmas
check, with 4% interest added in,
you will be as tickled as a kid with
a new pair of boots—and we
also know you will thank us, and admit that
it was one of the best things
you ever
did

Charlevoix State Savings Bank

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

W. S. Richardson, President.
A. D. Crimmins, Vice President.
Archie Livingston, Cashier.
G. W. Richardson, Asst. Cashier.

The CHARLEVOIX COURIER
Issued every Wednesday at
CHARLEVOIX - MICHIGAN

DuBois & Usher, Publishers
A. J. Usher, Editor and Business Mgr.
Courier Building Van Pelt Place

Entered at the Post Office in Charlevoix, Mich., as second class matter.

Member Michigan Press Ass'n.

Advertising Rates.

For advertising rates apply for schedule.

Notices of church or lodge socials and entertainments, where admission is charged, regular rates.

Obituary poetry, regular rates.

Card of Thanks, 25 cents.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

One copy, one year.....$2.00
One copy, six months.....$1.00
One copy, three months.....60

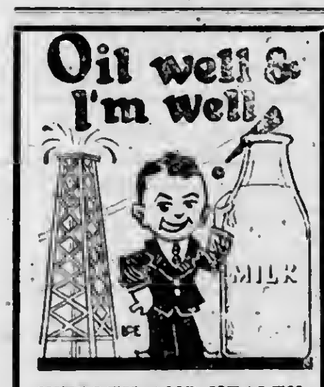
BOGUS CHECK PASSER NABBED THURSDAY

Are Now In Traverse City Jail Waiting Trial

Three young men, namely: James Traverse of Detroit, and Milton Their and Dale Chew of Petoskey, who were of the opinion they were slippery enough to evade the law, were arrested last week Thursday by Sheriff Charles Novak and a deputy sheriff from Traverse City.

The charge against the young men was that of passing bogus checks, which they succeeded in doing at Rosenthal's in Petoskey and several Traverse City stores. Their favorite method of operation was to go into a store and purchase an article costing a small sum of money and handing over a check for a considerable sum then pocketing the change. This worked quite successfully in a number of places, but they are now behind the bars in the Traverse City jail.

Young Their was a former resident of this city and, we understand, left a bunch of unpaid bills on his departure from town. One of the amusing features of the arrest was when Novak found one of the young men dressed up like a woman and about to leave town when nabbed.



WEALTH AND HEALTH

You might find wealth in an oil well, but you will find Health in a milk bottle. Be sure to order Withers' milk; it purity is unexcelled.

CAMP FIRE DANCE WELL ATTENDED

Beautiful Decorations and Unique Favors Feature Evening

A large crowd attended the dance given by the Camp Fire Girls at the Oldham Club on Tuesday evening of this week. The hall was beautifully decorated in colors appropriate to the season and unique favors were distributed to the dancers during the evening.

The Camp Fire Girls wish, through these columns, to thank Mr. Oldham for his kindness in donating the hall for the dance and want to assure him that the favor was appreciated. The girls netted a fine sum, which will be used in carrying out the work of their organization; besides furnishing an evening of enjoyment to all present.

NEW YEAR'S DANCE AT THE OLDHAM CLUB

To Be Given for Benefit of Charlevoix Hospital

A New Year's dance will be given at the Oldham Club next Thursday evening, December 31st, under the auspices of the nurses of the Charlevoix hospital, who are now busy selling tickets.

Proceeds from the dance will be turned over to the hospital. When you are asked to buy a ticket don't say that you don't dance—buy one anyway. You will be assured of your money's worth if you come to the dance, and if you don't come and buy a ticket anyway, you will be helping a good cause. Be there.

Christian Science Society

Sunday services 11:45 a. m., subject, "Christian Science."

Sunday school, 12:00.

Wednesday evening service, 7:45 p. m.

The public is cordially invited to use our reading room and attend the services.

Order for Publication

State of Michigan, The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate office in the City of Charlevoix, in said County, on the 23d day of December A. D. 1925.

Present: Servetus A. Correll, Probate Judge.

In the Matter of the Estate of William Evers, Deceased.

The above estate having been admitted to probate and Amandus Evers appointed adminstrator thereof.

It is Ordered, that four months from this date be allowed for creditors to present their claims against said estate, and that such claims will be heard by said court on Thursday, the 29th day of April A. D. 1926, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at the Probate office in the city of Charlevoix.

It is Further Ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of this order for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing in the Charlevoix Courier a newspaper printed and circulated in this county.

Servetus A. Correll,
51-t3 Judge of Probate.

For all the news, read the Courier.

CONTRACT AWARDED ON NEW CLUB HOUSE

Robert Madill, Local Contractor, Was Lowest Bidder

The contract for the erection of the club house on the new Belvedere golf club grounds was awarded last week, Robert Madill of this city being the lowest bidder.

The building has been commenced following plans of the architect, Frederick Mueller of Hamilton, Ohio, and will be continued throughout the winter months until the work is completed. The structure itself covers an area of apporximately 80 feet in length and 41 feet in breadth including a large veranda. The club house will be located on the highest point of the association's grounds facing north, which site commands a beautiful view of both Lake Michigan and Pine Lake.

The floor plan of the club house includes a men's locker room on the east end, ladies' locker room and professional's room on the west end, and the space intervening will be a large and comfortable lounge room, 21 by 45 feet, with a large stone fireplace at either end. When completed the structure will be a model of neatness, convenience and attractiveness.

SUFFERED FOR YEARS FROM HEART TROUBLE

Mrs. Horace B. Hipp Dies in East Jordan Home

Mrs. Horace B. Hipp passed away at her home in this city on Saturday, December 12th, following a two-year's illness. The immediate cause of her death was heart failure.

Nancy Murphy was born March 16th, 1847, in the state of Ohio, her parents being George and Catherine Murphy.

She was united in marriage to Horton B. Hipp at Berrin Springs, Mich., in 1875. They came to Charlevoix county, in 1876, and in 1908 located in East Jordan, where they have since made their home.

She is survived by the husband and the following sons and daughters:—Hiram C. Hipp, Clyde W. Hipp, Boyd Hipp, and Mrs. Maude Kinney, all of East Jordan; and William Hipp of Pittsburgh, Pa.

Funeral services were held from her late home Tuesday afternoon, December 15, conducted by Rev. Sidebotham, pastor of the Presbyterian church. Interment at Sunset Hill.—East Jordan Herald.

SEVENTH GRADERS HAVE XMAS PARTY

Invite Parents and Friends to Enjoy Affair With Them

The seventh grade public school pupils, Mr. Walter Alexander teacher, gave a Christmas program in their room last Friday evening, inviting their parents and friends to be their guests.

A handsome tree provided by "the boys" stood in one corner of the room which was beautifully decorated in red and green.

Santa Claus appeared after the program and found gifts for all on the tree. Much merriment was caused by the number of gifts for Alexander. Santa remarked that he must be "a very good little boy" to be so well remembered.

The teacher presented each pupil with a bag of candy and a souvenir calender which contained the names of the pupil's teacher, Superintendent and the date.

It was indeed a happy occasion for all who were present.

METHODIST CHURCH

"The Door Beautiful"—sermon subject next Sunday morning at 10:30. This is a continuation of the theme that was begun two weeks ago, which was interrupted by the Chrismas message. This is a good theme to close the old year with. Everyone is invited to attend the services of the church.

Vesper Service next Sunday at 4:15. The following features will make this an outstanding occasion.

Children's candle light processional (fifty voices.)

Presentation of attendance story books to children.

Dedication of new electric cross.

Pageant, "The Challenge of the Cross" (seven ladies present this—unique and challenging.)

Excellent musical program.

The public invited—special invitation to parents of the children—spend one great hour in the late afternoon with the great ideas of Christianity.

Save place in your New Year's schedule for the Wednesday night bible institute during the month of January. The place of meeting is at the parsonage. All you will need is a willing mind, a note book and pencil and a smile. No question will be asked those who attend. They may ask all the questions they wish. The pastor will be in charge. A bible lecture will be given each evening. The attendance is not restricted to church members. Any person, any age, is invited.

The literary and Sewing Club has reserved January eight, evening, for their great annual banquet event.

We are glad to welcome among us the students from our various schools of higher learning. Make plans on the big get-to-gether for watch night. An hour will be specially provided in this watch night service for acquaintanceship greetings. "Keep the home fires burning."

Eighteen lectures, sermons and addresses is the record of the pastor for the period, December 6-18. He is glad to serve.

The pastor met with the pastors of the Charlevoix Methodist group at Petoskey, Monday this week. The group lunched at the Perry hotel, after which intensive winter plans were discussed. Rev. Pollock is appointed chairman of the group.

Christmas tree and program this Thursday evening.

FRIENDS SURPRISE MR. AND MRS. STROUD

Help Them Observe Their Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Stroud of Hayes, were pleasantly surprised last Saturday evening when a number of their friends and neighbors dropped in to help them celebrate their wedding anniversary.

The evening was spent in playing games, music and dancing. After a bounteous lunch, the friends departed, wishing the bride and groom many more happy years of wedded life.

Subscribe for the Courier.

A Merry Christmas

to you and may the New Year bring you all the joy and happiness you wish for yourself.

M. A. Levinson & Co.

Overcoat Sale

Three Popular Prices

$20.85 $22.85 $24.85

Others at $17.85 up to $31.85

Do! Take the time to examine these values. It is by comparing values in shopping around that you discover where to save most.

Hand-Tailored Suit Sale

All of our highest grade suits have been marked down to an ordinary price $26.85 Extra pants with every suit at $5.65

Particular buyers,—here's a real opportunity for you to save money.

F. E. Cartier
Charlevoix - Clothier - Dry Cleaner

TAILOR AND CLEANER PHONE 248

With heartiest Christmas Greetings and best wishes for a very Happy New Year is our message to you.

THE TROY LAUNDRY
Sorenson and Gimble, Mgrs.

Dont Forget

10 per cent discount

—ON—

All Shoes, Oxfords and Pumps until December 31st.

Come in before its too late

CAMPBELL BOOT SHOP

THE OLDEST BANK IN CHARLEVOIX COUNTY
FORTY-FIRST YEAR IN BUSINESS

1884 1925

WE WISH YOU AND THOSE WHOSE HAPPINESS IS YOURS, A FULL MEASURE OF CHRISTMAS JOY AND SUCCESS FOR THE COMING YEAR.

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY BANK
CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN
Nicholls, Buttars & Bridge, Bankers
THE BANK ON THE CORNER

LOCAL NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

Get the Habit—Read the Courier

John Rathburn was a Petoskey visitor on Sundny last.

W. J. Gallagher of St. James, was in the city Monday on business.

Frank O'Donnell of St. James, is in the city this week on business.

Charles Edson of Ellsworth, was a business visitor in the city on Wednesday.

Earl Coulter is home from college to spend Christmas at the home of his parents.

James Bogart returned from St. James, Saturday, where he had been on business.

Monte Withers and family were Petoskey callers Tuesday afternoon of this week.

Mrs. Frederick Tyler of Petoskey, was a visitor in the city on Wednesday of this week.

Richnrd Saltonstall is home from college to spend the holiday vacation with his parents.

Freeman Coblentz of Detroit, is in the city on a ten day vacation, visiting relatives and friends.

Miss Mary Lemieur is home from Grand Rapids and will spend the holidays at her home here.

Miss Della Lemieur returned Monday from Detroit, where she has been spending the past two weeks.

Robert and Leonard Burns are home from Olivet college to spend the holidays at their home here.

Charles McFarland is home from the southern part of the state to spend Christmas with his parents.

"Bill" Paddock, who is attending Michigan State college at Lansing, is home for the Christmas vacation.

Martin Halverson left, Wednesday for the southern part of the state, where he will make an indefinite stay.

Dan P. Gallagher and George Richegars of St. James, were in the city Monday on buisness at the court house.

Elizabeth Higman is home from Michigan State college at Lansing and will spend the holidays with her parents.

Frazier Mattson, son of Rev. and Mrs. B. G. Mattson of this city, is home to spend the holidays with his parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Ross have gone to Ionia, Michigan, to spend the holidays at the home of their daughter.

Thomas Bonner and wife from St. James, were in the city Tuesday on their way to Detroit to spend the winter months.

Harry Gregory left last Thursday for Flint, where he will work this winter. Mrs. Gregory will join him there later.

Clifford Lee of Ellsworth, was a business visitor in the city on Monday of this week.

Norman Shanahan is home from Olivet college and will spend the holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lisle Shanahan.

Mrs. Charles Hebert returned Tuesday from Detroit, where she has been visiting friends and relatives for the past two weeks.

Charles E. See left last week Thursday for Warm Springs, Oregon, where he will spend an indefinite time with relatives.

Mr. and Bert McDonough of Milwaukee, were in the city Monday on their way to St. James to spend the holidays with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry O. Johnson left Tuesday for Grand Rapids, where they will spend Christmas at the home of their son.

Dick Marshall is laid up at his home on Antrim street with a badly sprained ankle, received while playing basketball last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Lou Allard left Sundny for Pontiac, Michigan, where they will spend the holidays with their son, Lee and family.

Murray Glasgow returned Saturday from Notre Dame college, South Bend, Ind., and will spend the holidays with his parents here.

Mrs. Frank Hyck left Tuesday nfternoon for Chicago, where she will spend Christmas with her sister, brother and other relatives.

Jean and Margie Swinton are home from the University of Michigan to spend the holidays with their motber, Mrs. A. A. Swinton.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Blakesleo are expected to arrive this week to spend the holidays with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Gaskin, Sr.

Mr. and Mrs. B. G. Mattson, accompanied by Miss Isabelle Mitchell, made a business trip to Petoskey on Monday afternoon of this week.

Rev. and Mrs. Herman Burns left on Monday of this week for Detroit, where they will spend Christmas at the home of their son and family.

Margaret Fitch returned last week from the Kalamazoo, and will spend the Christmas vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fiteh.

Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Sloan and son, Paul, returned Sunday from Grand Rapids, where Mrs. Sloan has been

Mr. and Mrs. George Weaver leave Thursday morning for Grand Rapids, where they will spend the holidays with their daughters and families, recovering from a recent operation.

Miss Philo Armstrong is home from Ann Arbor to spend the Christmas vacation at the home of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. R. B. Armstrong.

Miss Marguerite Brown returned last week from Alma college and will spend the Christmas vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Brown.

John T. and James R. Pollock arrived from Ann Arbor Saturday to spend the University vacation with their parents, Rev. and Mrs. C. E. Pollock.

Work is nearly completed on the new K. P. hall and it is expected the upper floor of the building will be ready for occupancy some time next week.

Mrs. Louis Orlowski and two children left last Thursday for Victor, Iowa, where they will spend some time visiting Mrs. Orlowski's parents.

Raymond Faulkner, Jr., is home from the University of Michigan and will spend the Christmas vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Faulkner of this city.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Francis leave on Thursday of this week for Grand Rapids, where they will spend the winter months at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Plank.

Jack Zeitler was the lowest bidder for tearing down or removing the buildings owned by the city on the former Carpenter property and is now engaged at the job.

Charles Dagwell, who is attending college at the University of Michigan, returned home this week and will spend the holidays with relatives and friends in the city.

William Bogart has completed the work on Arthur Joseph's new boat house on the north shore of Round lake and it surely adds much to the appearance of the shore line.

The Congregational Sunday school Christmns celebration occurs on Thursday evening at seven o'clock. Parents and friends of the children will be welcome at this service.

Richard Finucan left for Cape Vincent, N. Y., last Thursday, where he took a consignment of 1,000,000 trout eggs from the Charlevoix hatchery. He returned Saturday.

Born, December 14, to Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Dane, of Detroit, Michigan, a son, to be known as James Parsons Dane. Mrs. Dane will be remembered as Miss Marion Parsons.

Dredging operations on the site for Logan Thomson's new boat house have been suspended for the winter. Considerable progress was made this fall and the work will be resumed in the spring.

Mrs. J. M. Clark left last Friday for Ludington, Michigan, where she will spend a few weeks at the home of her duaghter, Mrs. Nels Palmer, before leaving for the east to spend the winter.

Miss Alice Chew, who is attending school at Western State Normal at Kalamazoo, returned home last Thursday to spend the Christmas vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. K. Chew.

A. J. Winnick left Saturday morning for Grand Rapids, where he will spend a few days with his son, Peter, then go on to Chicago, to spend the holidays with his son, W. P. Winnick, of that city.

Miss Cecile Louise Pollock entertained thirteen children of her Sunday school class Saturday at her home. A Christmas tree, gifts, refreshments and games helped to make the occasion pleasant.

Mrs. Earl Preston and daughter of Petoskey, were in the city last Saturday and Sunday, called here by the illness of her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Emrey. They are both improving nicely, Mr. Emrey being back on the job this week.

The Vesper service at the Methodist Episcopal church next Sunday afternoon at four fifteen is a new departure in Vesper services. You will enjoy the occasion, if you enjoy an interesting and appealing hour in the church. All people are invited.

The Christmas offering at the Methodist Episcopal church will be given for the support of the Methodist Children's home at Farmington, Michigan. This home is for orphan children and is doing a vast amount of good. While it is maintained by the Methodist Episcopal church, it has no limitations upon the religious relations of the children. The only limitations are those imposed by its capacity to care for children, and this capacity is taxed to the utmost.

Every Ford owner should have a Koolfast radiator on his car. Hundreds have made the change. We have them. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 49tf.

ALUMNI HANDS VARSITY DEFEAT

Played Good Brand of Basketball in Monday Night's Game

The alumni proved too good for the varsity of Charlevoix high school in the game played Monday night of this week at Hooker's garage, handing them a 21 to 14 defeat.

The game was a fast one with the alumni holding the lead throughout. Hallett started the scoring for the victors and was a consistent point winner through the entire game. He was ably assisted by good team work from the rest of the squad, Halverson and Jefferies helping in a strong offense. The guarding of Jones, Beeman and Durance was all that could be asked for. The high school squad showed occasional spurts of speed but threatened only once in the first half of the game.

This was the varsity's first game of the season nnd lack of practice was very evident. Locals fans are confident that when regular practice starts after the holidays the boys will get down to business in earnest.

EAST JORDAN WINS SECOND GAME HERE

Take Locals Into Camp By Score of 10 to 12

The Charlevoix Independent basketball team lost the second game of the season to East Jordan in a game played last Wednesday night at Hooker's garage. The game was a close one throughout, as the 10 to 12 score indicates.

The local boys carried their opponents off their feet in the first part of the game, piling up a lead of six points before the visitors made a counter. East Jordan soon got the lay of the floor and the half ended with the score 6 to 6. In the second half the lumber town lads continued scoring and had the locals on the bottom the rest of the game. A last minute spurt netted the home teams two field goals, but was not sufficient to overcome the lead against them. Hallett and Jones starred for the locals, who were badly handicapped by the lose of Ackert, who is laid up with a sprained ankle.

You will find high quality merchandise at reasonable prices at the Charlevoix Hdw. Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

Friends Enjoy Recital

On Monday afternoon of this week Mrs. Partridge invited guests to her home on Park avenue to enjoy a piano recital given by her three small daughters, Alice, Dorothy and Margery. Under Mrs. Swinton's direction, solos, a duet and a trio were nicely rendered by these little girls of thirteen, eleven and nine years respectively. Little Miss Dorothy also played a violin solo, accompanied by Mrs. Partridge. The girls show excellent training and their guests spent n delightful hour.

Courier Want Ads pay.

COURIER BARGAIN COLUMN.

Courier Want Advs. are One Cent per word per insertion. Minimum charge is 20 cents per insertion, for anything under 20 words. All Want Advs. are strictly cash in advance except to those who have ledger accounts. Please remember this when sending in your copy.

FOR RENT—ROOMS

FOR RENT—Furnished house. Inquire at S. M. See & Sons.—51t1.

FOR SALE—LIVE STOCK

WHITE LEGHORNS

I have a few choice English strain cockerels left at $2.00 each while they last. R. L. Harris, Norwood Road, one mile out.—50t2.

FOR RENT—HOUSE

FOR RENT—5 room bungalow with inside toilet. Call phone 18.—45tf.

WANTED—MISCELLANEOUS

WANTED—Old false teeth. We pay pay high as $10 for full sets. Don't matter if broken. We buy crowns, bridges. Western Metal Co., Bloomington, Ill.—50t2 pd.

CASH for Dental Gold, Platinum, Silver, Diamonds, magneto points, false teeth, jewelry, and valuables. Mail today. Cash by return mail. Hoke S. & R., Otsego, Mich.—12-tf.

To the Public

We thank you for your patronage the past year and wish you a Merry Christmas and a Very Happy New Year.

A. E. MASON

Our Greetings to You

Among our assets we like to count the only one that money cannot buy—your good will. And so at this Holiday Season we extend to you, not as a customer alone, but as a friend, a Merry Christmas and our Best of Wishes for the coming year.

MARTIN BLOCK
Opposite Post Office
Phone 12 or 142

Do Not Forget the Christmas Candies

A last minute reminder—do not forget the Christmas Candies. The young folks as well as yourself will be disappointed if you do. No Christmas will be complete without a plentiful supply of Candies and Nuts, and there is no place in town where you can obtain as fine a quality as at our store.

Here are just what you need for the day:

Mixed Nuts, per pound	35c
Choice English Walnuts, per popnd	35
Fresh Roasted Peanuts, 2 pounds for	25c
Xmas Candies, per pound	25c
Chocolate Candy, per pound	25c
Fresh Creams, per pound	25c
Cocoanut Bonbons, per pound	30c
Peanut Brittle, per pound	25c

Keep in mind we can supply you with Turkeys and Chickens for the Christmas Dinner, as well as fresh or smoked meats of all kinds. Place your orders as early as possible.

Milton Block
Phone 202

NEW PALACE THEATRE

ATTRACTIONS FOR THE COMING WEEK

Thursday and Friday, December 24th and 25th

Carol Demster and W. C. Fields in "THAT ROYAL GIRL." Millions loved it as a Cosmopolitan serial. Millions more read it as a novel. Now the genius of Griffith gives it soul upon the screen.

A picture as great, as sure-fire, as packed with comedy and appeal as any picture Mr. Griffith has ever made.

Also a good comedy, "The Flying Fool."

CHRISTMAS AFTERNOON A FREE SHOW FOR EVERY BOY AND GIRL WHO WISHES TO COME.

Saturday and Sunday, December 26th and 27th

Alma Rubens and Edmund Lowe in "EAST LYNNE." No play ever swayed the emotions as did "East Lynne"—no picture will grip you like this one. Don't miss "East Lynne" on the screen—it is the greatest melodrama ever written.

We also offer a comedy, "Step Lightly." Something to drive away the blues.

Monday, December 28th

Earle Foxe in "THE LAST MAN ON EARTH." Women to the right of him, women to the left of him, women everywhere, and, he was the only man in sight. This season's surpassing laughfest. A thrilling story about fifty million women.

Also a News Reel. Travel the world with the News Reels. Enjoy the trip at the Palace Theatre.

Tuesday and Wednesday, December 29th and 30th

Wandy Hawley in "STOP FLIRTING." Flirtation is a circulating library in which we seldom ask for the same volume. The heart of a flirt is like a rose. After the lovers have plucked the leaves there are only the thorns left for the husband. This comedy-drama will give you a real evening of enjoyment.

Also a News Reel. Travel the world with the News Reels. This form of traveling is interesting.

Thursday and Friday, December 31st and Jan 1st

"LAZYBONES" and a comedy, "The Heart Breaker."

NEIGHBORS

BY ROBERT STEAD

AUTHOR OF "THE COW PUNCHER," "THE HOMESTEADERS."

COPYRIGHT BY ROBERT STEAD

CHAPTER XIII—Continued

"Then he was making love to you."

"Perhaps. But it was very nice. You never noticed my lace or my ribbon. You didn't even notice this cap I have on today; I made it out of an old muff, all myself, and I just said to myself, 'I wonder if Frank will notice it,' but you didn't—"

"I did, too. I saw it first thing, and I thought how nice it looked on you."

"Spoof would have said how nice I looked under it."

"Oh, d—n Spoof!"

"Spoof's an artist, Frank. You're not."

"Nor yet a poet. But I reckon I'll make a good farmer."

"We thrashed out the ox question a while ago. Let's keep on new ground."

"Very well. Here's some new ground. When did Spoof tell you all these things? I understood he hadn't come into the house all the time we were away."

"He didn't either—hardly. But he used to come over regularly to see that everything was all right about the place and to have his 'bawth,' and he had the handsomest bathing suit—white and yellow trimmings—and Marjorie and I fixed up bathing suits, too, and we used to go in—"

"Together?"

"Of course. Only Marjorie only went in once or twice; she said she was afraid of the frogs. . . . Marjorie is a knowing girl."

"My own sister! And she would conspire. . . ." I crunched a clump of crust viciously under my heel.

"Well, seeing that you have confessed, I suppose I should own up, too," I said, after a silence. "I never told you that there was a girl out where I worked this summer."

"No? What was she like?" Jean's voice was steady, but I caught a new note in it. It augured well for my first attempt at romancing.

"Oh, she was a nice girl, all right. Her folks thought she would make a good ox, but she didn't quite fall in line. She had that broader vision you set so much on. Sort o' hinted that she and I might do well running a rooming house at Moose Jaw; they say things are humming at the Jaw. Rather suggested—"

"Oh, Frank, she never did! . . . Wanted you to marry her, I suppose?"

"No, she didn't just say that. But she's big, you know; takes a big view of things. Of course, it might have come to that in time. I remember one afternoon it rained and we couldn't work in the fields and that night she and I went to a dance—"

"Does she dance well?"

"Oh, quite well. And free. You know—nothing standoffish, or anything like that. Well, the storm came up again during the night, and we couldn't get home, and it was only a small farm house so some of us had to sleep in the hayloft, and Nellie said she'd be a dead game sport—"

"Now, Frank, don't tell me any more. I don't believe it. . . . What happened next?"

"Oh, nothing much. It was about noon when we got home, and the old man was pretty sore, but I told him I thought a good deal of Nellie and wouldn't mind marrying her if it came to that, and I asked her to come over here and visit us next summer—"

"You're lying, Frank. Let's go home."

As we walked home in silence, trailing our sleigh, the nip of the late afternoon stung our cheeks to roses and our breaths trailed behind like the gaseous tail of a very young and leisurely comet. Jean complained that one of her hands was growing cold so I took the mitten off it and drew the hand down into my deep, warm overcoat pocket, where we took all precautions against frostbite. The other hand had to take a chance.

We walked along the bottom of the gully for shelter from the wind which was rising with sunset. As we neared Twenty-two Jean stopped.

"Frank, I want to ask you a question," she said. "There was no truth in that story you told me?"

"You care?"

"Of course I care. Tremendously."

"Don't you want me to be big?"

"Not that way. I've been talking about intellectual things—spiritual things."

"I suppose Spoof's bathing suit, with the white and yellow, is quite spiritual?"

"That isn't fair."

"Oh yes it is. It is merely the other ox getting gored."

"Anyway, your story wasn't true? You made it up to tease me?"

"If I answer your question will you answer mine?"

"I can't Frank, I can't—not now. I haven't seen Spoof since Christmas. Perhaps he's sick. Perhaps he's dead. Something awful may have happened."

"His smoke goes up every morning just the same."

"Oh, you've been watching it, too. But, something has happened. I—I can't answer you now."

At the door of Jack's house we paused again. We were in the shadow there, and as she turned on the step her form swung close to mine. For a moment I seized her, no longer able to deny the soul-Platonic. . . .

"But there was no truth in it, was there?" she whispered.

"There was some truth in it," I confessed, as I turned toward the empty shack on Fourteen.

CHAPTER XIV

Next morning I was stirring my oatmeal and water when the door opened and in burst Jack. His attire gave evidence of haste; he had thrown a pea-jacket about a somewhat incomplete toilet. I was about to summon up a jocular remark when something in his face silenced me.

"Have you seen Jean?" he demanded.

"No. Why—"

"She's not in her room. Gone. Was there last night—part of the night—"

"Sure she's not in the house?"

"Hard to lose her in our two-by-four, Frank. Not at the stables—I've hunted. It's snowing, and the wind is rising; there's no trail."

This was serious. Jack sat down, and, as though oppressed with heat, threw open his pea-jacket and exposed his undershirt.

Jean gone!

In a moment he sprang to his feet again and seized me by the arm. His grip was stronger than he knew. "She's not here, Frank? Straight now, Frank, she's not here?"

I turned my open palms toward him. "If only she were!" I exclaimed. . . . "When did you miss her?"

"Ten—fifteen minutes ago, when I got up. I found my lamp out of oil, and I went to her room to borrow hers. She didn't answer, and I went in. She wasn't there. Her coat and cap are gone. How she got out without waking us!"

He turned to a window, peering through a little bare spot in the paste close to the sash. "Looks like a rough day," he said, quietly as though trying to disguise the import of his words. . . . "She's been melancholy of late; trying to hide it, but I could tell. . . . My G—d, she may have been gone four hours!"

"Then it's time we were after her!" I exclaimed, a sudden impulse for action bringing me out of my stupor. I shoved my burning porridge to the back of the stove and rushed to my room to complete dressing. And in my head was pounding one word Spoof—Spoof—Spoof!

"Where?" Jack demanded from the door of my room. "What's your guess?"

But I was already becoming an artist, that artist that Jean so eagerly sought in me.

"Just two places," I said. "She's gone to Mrs. Alton's or to Mrs. Brown's. I don't think she would go to Lucy Burks's—didn't know them so well."

Jack's look of relief was pathetic. I had always thought of Jack as being in some way my superior, born to rule while I was born to obey. Suddenly I found him a child in my hands.

"You think so?" he grasped at my words. "You think—that's—where she's gone?"

"Nothing surer. We talked a good deal about Mrs. Alton yesterday," I added, out of the fullness of my invention, "and she said how lonely Mrs. Alton must be, and that we ought to go over and see her. She's started worrying over that in the night and it's got on her mind—upset her a bit. Still, it might be Brown's. The danger is that she may be lost in this storm. Hustle back and finish dressing, and then strike for Mrs. Alton's—I'll try Brown's first, then Jake's, then Burke's. Hustle!"

It was new business for me to order Jack, but he needed ordering to keep him from utter futility at that moment. I gave his hand a squeeze and thrust him out of the door.

"Now, Mr. Spoof—now for you!" I snapped to myself. I had a revolver, an old rusty weapon which I never used, but which I kept lying around in case of something which I called an emergency. Clearly this was it. I found it and some cartridges and thrust them into my overcoat pocket; then drew it out and studied it with a peculiar sort of fascination.

"Don't be a fool," I enjoined myself, as I threw it on the bed. But in a moment I picked it up again and put it in my pocket.

Outside the snow was flying in a sifting wind from the northwest. It was not a blizzard; it was not even a storm, but it had the threat of both. The sun was not up, and the gray light of dawn penetrated the snow waste not more than a dozen yards. I studied the wind for a moment, to make sure that it was blowing steadily in one direction; having satisfied myself as to this, my problem—one of my profession—was much simplified. Carrying the wind over my right shoulder I bore off toward the south and section Two.

The trail to Spoof's had been entirely obliterated in its weeks of non-usage, and I could do nothing better than follow my sense of direction. It became apparent that the sky was too overcast to give me any benefit from the sun, although the gray circle of dawn gradually grew until the vision would carry a hundred yards or so. For the most part the crust bore me, but here and there it gave away, and once or twice sent me floundering on my face. On such occasions I was careful to test my direction by the wind before continuing. If the wind should veer I had a good chance of wandering off into the wilderness—and the unknown.

That, too, was the chance which Jean had taken. It bore more and more heavily upon me as I plodded through that measureless waste of snow. I had no doubt that she had started for Spoof's; whether she ever had reached there was another question. She was able to stand his neglect no longer—she was bound to have it out with him, just as, yesterday, I had been bound to have it out with her. . . . At moments I wished that she might not find Spoof's. At moments it seemed that almost anything was better than that. There was the possibility that she might strike a circle and wander about on these vacant sections. It was not very cold; she would not freeze until exhaustion overcame her. Possibly even now she was wandering in these milky mists, even within earshot of me.

"Jean! Jean!" I cried, raising my voice against the buffeting of the wind,

"Jean! Jean!" I Cried, Raising My Voice Against the Buffeting Wind.

but it died unechoed in the void of space.

There was the possibility that she had been overcome; that even now she was lying somewhere on the white snow, her white, cold face turned to a white, cold sky, her lithe little body, no longer lithe, forming the occasion for a drift which the sifting wind had already seized as convenient to its purpose. . . . The sweat trickled down from under my cap and I pulled it off and let the comforting snow fall on my forehead. And now I used my eyes more than ever before, to detect, if I might, any object lying on the snow. Dark specks loomed up through the mist, and many a detour I made with pounding heart, to find only a prairie boulder or a lump of tumbleweed blown into a wolf willow.

Again, Jean might have reached Spoof's. That was going to be the most difficult possibility of all. What should I do? I fingered the weapon in my pocket, but I knew that that was nonsense. If Jean had gone to Spoof she had done so of her own free will; she need not account for herself to me; she might even resent my interference. Spoof might order me out as a meddling busybody; he might subject me to the torture of taking Jean from me before my very eyes. I was even less than Jack; had I been her brother I could have held him to accountability. But I would not be ordered out; I would not be abased—Surely I had a right. I was her friend, her neighbor. . . .

Her neighbor. "Perhaps that is the trouble," she had said.

I fingered my revolver affectionately. I was glad I had brought it.

I looked at my watch. It was twenty minutes after nine. I had been fool enough to start without noting the time, and had no idea how far I had traveled. Surely I should be near Spoof's now.

But our engagement had never been quite canceled. Or had it? I tried to recall, but my mind blurred. Once we were engaged; we were to have been married before this time; Jean and I were to have been married at Christmas. Then Spoof. I was not clever enough for her. . . . Perhaps Spoof would be, I thought, and hated myself for thinking it.

Perhaps she was right. I was a good bit of a dub. Never read much, never thought much. Bounded by the corner stakes of Fourteen. An ox. Jean had as much as called me an ox. Thinking more about oats than sunsets.

Didn't even mention her new cap. When I did I turned my compliment upside down; pinned it to the cap, instead of to her. Spoof would not have done that.

Our poem. The snow would be deep on it now. Or perhaps not. It might have whipped clear. If—if anything happened to Jean I would go to that poem. I would learn over it. I would carry it, I would lean upon it—' It was snow, and would be gone in the spring. Something about keeping her guessing. I was to keep her guessing. Well, she was keeping me guessing just now, with a vengeance!

I tried to call Jean up in my memory, to visualize her profile, her eyes, her hair, her lips, the tilting lift of her ankle, the joyous stride of her young, free limbs. It was all a mist; a picture out of focus. It was a nebulous thing, vague, indistinct, unformed. Through and beyond it I saw the gray snow falling eternally. Then about this central figure—if one may call a thing so ethereal a figure—gathered a circle of light, and it grew and glowed and brightened until it haloed about her head. It was Jean!

"Oh! my G—d" I cried. "Not yet! Not yet!"

I fell in the snow. I floundered aimlessly in the broken crust. . . .

When I came back to realization the vision was gone. Only the snow, sifted through with its thin mists of light, fell on forever.

Was I freezing? The thought prodded me to consciousness. I drew a hand from my mitt and thrust it against my face. The fingers were warm. The skin of my forehead would wrinkle. I was able to wriggle my toes in my boots. No, I was not freezing. My troubles were of the mind; my bodily engines were functioning properly. . . . I got the wind over my right shoulder and pressed on.

Jean wanted me to keep her guessing. That was the easy, slungy way of putting it. Poetic license, she had called it. What she meant was that I must always have something in reserve; some mysterious corner of myself into which she had not explored. Something to keep up the sense of mystery, the spirit of adventure, in which romance is born, without which romance must die. No doubt she was right. After all, why should she marry me? What was I more than a biped beast of burden, an animal designed to eat, sleep, labor, and reproduce itself? . . . . Spoof was something more than that. Was I wise to interrupt them at all? Why not leave them alone?

(TO BE CONTINUED)

You will find high quality merchandise at reasonable prices at the Charlevoix Hdw. Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

IMPACT FORCES POLE THROUGH WINDSHIELD

East Jordan Lady Injured in Petoskey Accident

Mrs. F. E. Brotherton, of East Jordan, who was visiting her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Crowell, of 610 East Lake street, Petoskey, met with a quite serious and painful accident Tuesday morning of last week when the Studebaker Sedan she was driving ran into a truck laden with telephone poles.

Mrs. Brotherton was following the truck, which belonged to the Fochtman Lumber company, up Emmet street hill, intending to pass it when opportunity should offer. The truck driver suddenly stopped his machine and Mrs. Brotherton, unable to check the speed of her car in time to avoid collison, ran into the load of poles, one of which passed completely through the windshield and out of the back window.

Mrs. Brotherton was badly bruised and cut about the neck and back and her car damage to the extent of broken windshield and rear light and sprung steering gear.

We will allow you $2.50 on your old Ford radiator and install a new Koolfast, the best on the market. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 49tf.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

Council Chamber, Dec. 21, 1925

The common council of the city of Charlevoix met on the above date with Mayor Bergeon presiding. Aldermen present: Bridge, Eckinger, Livingston, Madill, Parmalee.

Minutes of the meeting held December 14th, and 16th were read and approved.

Moved by Ald. Madill, seconded by Ald. Eckinger that the bid of John Zeitler of $481.00 for the city buildings located on Block 10 of the city of Charlevoix be accepted and that the Mayor and clerk be authorized to enter into contract with the said John Zeitler for the razing of said building. Motion carried by the following aye and nay vote.

Ayes, Aldermen, Bridge Eckinger, Livinston, Madill, Parmalee. Nays none.

On motion of Ald. Eckinger the council adjourned.

D. S. Payton,
Deputy City Clerk.

For all the news, read the Courier.

LEGAL NOTICES

ORDER FOR PUBLICATION

State of Michigan, The Probate court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate office in the city of Charlevoix, in said County, on the 3rd day of December A. D. 1925.

Present: Hon. Servetus A. Correll, Probate Judge.

In the matter of the estate of William H. Collins, Deceased.

The above estate having been admitted to probate and Hannah M. Collins appointed administratrix, thereof.

It is ordered that four months form this date be allowed for creditors to present their claims against said estate, and that such claims will be heard by said court on Saturday, the 10th day of April, A. D. 1925, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at the Probate office in the city of Charlevoix.

It is Further Ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of this order for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing in the Charlevoix Courier, a newspaper printed and circulated in this county.

Servetus A. Correll,
Judge of Probate.

Adv. 49-t3.

Order for Publication

State of Michigan, The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate office in the City of Charlevoix, in said County, on the 3d day of December A. D. 1925.

Present: Servetus A. Correll, Probate Judge.

In the Matter of the Estate of Janet Shapton, deceased.

The above estate having been admitted and John Smith appointed executor thereof.

It is ordered that four months from this date be allowed for creditors to present their claims against said estate, and that such claims will be heard by said court on Monday, the 12th day of April A. D. 1926, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon at the probate office in the city of Charlevoix.

It is further ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of this order for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing in the Charlevoix Courier a newspaper printed and circulated in this county.

Servetus A. Correll,
Adv. 49-t3 Judge of Probate.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE.

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain real estate mortgage whereby the Power of Sale therein contained has become operative, which mortgage was given by John Pesek and Josephine Pesek, husband and wife, to Margaret M. Harsha, which mortgage was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Charlevoix, Michigan, July 5th, 1922 in liber sixty-four of Mortgages on page forty-one; and whereas the amount claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice is the sum of fourteen hundred eighty and 11 100 Dollars, together with an attorney fee of twenty-five dollars as provided for in said mortgage, and no suit or proceedings at law have been instituted to recover the money secured by said mortgage or any part thereof; and whereas the tax required by Statute to be paid on said mortgage was duly paid prior to the recording thereof.

Now therefore, notice is given that by virtue of the Power of Sale contained in said mortgage and the Statutes in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the premises therein described or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy the amount then due thereon of principal and interest together with the attorney fee, costs and expenses of the foreclosure, at public auction to the highest bidder therefor at the front door of the Court House in the City of Charlevoix, County of Charlevoix (that being the place where the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix is held) on the 20th day of February 1926 at ten o'clock in the forenoon on that day. The premises described in said mortgage being herein described as follows; to-wit:

All the north fractional half of the Southwest fractional quarter of Section Seven (7) in Township thirty-three (33) North of Range eight (8) West, containing eighty-two acres and 84-100 acres of land more or less according to the U. S. Survey thereof.

Dated November 16th, 1925.

Margaret M. Harsha,
Mortgagee.

Rollie L. Lewis,
Attorney for Mortgagee,
Charlevoix, Michigan. 46-t13

We wish you a merry Christmas and a very happy and prosperous New Year.

Korth's Market

Please Remember

If wheat prices continue to advance we are going to see higher flour prices. Better get your supply now at prices lower than wholesale.

Your choice of three high-grade flours:

PASTRY FLOUR——WHOLE-WHEAT FLOUR
GRAHAM FLOUR——RYE FLOUR
TABLE MEAL——WHEAT CEREAL
ROLLED OATS
BUCKWHEAT AND PREPARED PANCAKE FLOUR

Nearly always you will find that you can do little better at the

Charlevoix-Co-Operative Assn.

D. T. McHUGH
General Contractor
Phone 214
CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

WM. J. BOGART
CONTRACTOR and BUILDER
No Job Too Large
No Job Too Small
Phone 139 Charlevoix, Mich

R. B. ARMSTRONG
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Special Attention to Diseases of Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat
Priest Bldg. Phone 255

DR. F. F. McMILLAN
Physician and Surgeon
Office above Postoffice
Phone 17
Charlevoix - - Michigan

A. L. FITCH
ATTORNEY AT LAW
Office in Court House
Phone 48
Charlevoix - Michigan

VIRGINIA RYALL BROWN, D. C.
PALMER CHIROPRACTOR
PHONES:
Office 347 Residence 39
Postoffice Building

Ellsworth Section

FAIRVIEW-BANKS

Days are getting longer.

A Merry Christmas to nll.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. August Postmus, a boy.

Dick Oosterbaan is working for Alebtr Kuiper a few days.

A few families in this vicinity are "closed in" with scarlet fever.

Mr. L. B. Canniff of Traverse City, was in this neighborhood Monday.

The Mitchell school closed with a Christmas program Friday for the holidays.

A number from here were in East Jordnn Monday, doing their Christmas shopping.

Albert DeJong of Grnnd Rapids, is spending the holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank DeJong.

George Postmus of Kansas City, Mo., is spending his vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Postmus.

MILES DISTRICT

Fred Bancroft buzzed wood Snturday.

Merry Christmas and Happy New Year to all.

Herbert Evans is cutting wood for Mrs. Seepley LaLonde.

Marion Maddock of East Jordan, visited our school Monday.

Suepley LaLonde, who has been ailing so long, took worse Monday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Will LaLonde of Traverse City, took supper with his parents, Mr. nnd Mrs. Suepley LaLonde Thursday evening.

Mrs. G. Steenhagen received a letter from Mrs. Archie Kowalske from Miami, Florida, saying they ate their Thanksgiving dinner on the beach, the weather being like June weather in Michigan.

Electric light bulbs that give service at Charlevoix Hardware Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

ROCK ELM

Ben Smatts had some wood buzzed for the winter last Tuesday.

Lawrence Jensen made a business trip to Charlevoix last Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Spidle visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Whitfield last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Tchoe were callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Jensen last Saturday evening.

Word was received here that Mrs. William Jennings of Muskegon, a former resident of Rock Elm, had passed away recently.

The sincere sympathy of the Rock Elm neighbors is extended to Mr. Horace Hipp and family for the loss of his wife, who had been a respected resident of that neighborhood for many years.

ANTRIM CITY

Grace Brooks is home for a two week's Christmas vacation.

Mr. Brooks has sold his farm to a party in Muskegon this week.

Oscar Ward and family of Ironton, were visitors at the Baumbach home Sunday.

The program held at the Antrim Ciyt school house last Thursday evening was well attended.

Mr. and Mrs. Brooks and daughter, Grace, ate supper at the Robinson home Sunday evening.

OFFICERS NAMED FOR COMING YEAR

(Continued from page one.)

Charlevoix Hotel	25.00
Charles H. Emrey	5.00
Martin Block	25.00
J. E. Redpath	10.00
Ray Faulkner	5.00
L. A. Moon	25.00
Char. Lbr. Co.	25.00
Beach Hotel	150.00
Char. County Bank	50.00
Mich. Transit Co.	150.00
Sarah Emrey	10.00
Booth Fisheries	25.00
E. E. Cross	5.00
R. Korth	15.00
James Wyers	10.00
E. VanAllsburg	15.00
A. S. Mussellam	25.00
M. B. Hooker	25.00
Brown & Wallace	25.00
Benj. Brown	25.00
A. Bergeon	12.00
Sanitary Eng. Co.	25.00
A. J. Usher	25.00
Geo. W. Priest	10.50
Total donations	$2053.50
Road Map Adevrtising	200.00
City of Charlevoix Advertising Fund	253.30
Total Receipts	$2650.88

Disbursements

Advertising	$ 1486.84
Regatta (Boat)	242.13
Road Maps	200.00
Postage	61.44
Stenographer and Sec.	304.06
Tennis Association	83.63
Telephone and Telegraph	45.78
Frielght and Drayage	26.03
Road Map Service	3.60
Base Ball	15.50
Auto Emblems	61.25
Supplies	29.53
Rent	50.00
Photographs	10.50
Miscellaneous	3.50
Total Disbursements	$2623.79
Balance on hand, December 15, 1925	27.09
	$2650.88

A membership in the Charlevoix Association of Commerce cost but $4.00 per year. Every business man or woman in Charlevoix should belong to it—without solicitation, too. Every owner or renter of a rooming house, boarding house, eating house, boat livery, or business place, no matter how small, should gladly become a member. Every person in Charlevoix who has n cottage or cottages for rent should be not only an association member, but as n matter of business policy could well nfford to donate from $5.00 to $25.00. The rental of cottages depends entirely on a demand for them. If sufficient publicity is given Charlevoix, no trouble at all will be experienced in renting every availahle cottage and at a good pirce. This fact cannot he denied. Is there any reason then why cottage owners should not share their part of the expense of advertising and association work?

The election of officers to carry on next year's work followed, the choice of the meeting being Fred E. Cartier, president; Archie Livingston and A. J. Usher, vice presidents; and Robert Bridge, secretary and treasurer. Now that you have registered your choice of who should have charge of the affairs for the coming year, do not feel you have discharged all the duties incumbent upon you. Instead, you should realize your work has just begun. You must stand behind these men you helped select. You must encourage them and keep up the fires of enthusiasm by your personal contact and interest in civic and community affairs. It is not a job for a handful of men. It is n live, dynamic, day and night job 365 days of the year for everyone that cares to make Charlevoix a better and more prosperous place. Don't lay down on the job. Keep pepped up. Help with your influence and your dollars.

VESPER CHOIR MUCH ENJOYED

(Continued from Page One)

"Comfort Ye, My People"; Mrs. Livingston's "Rejoice Greatly" and "Come Unto Me"; Mrs. Coulter in the recitative and aria, "Then Shall the Eyes of the Blind Be Opened" and "He Shall Feed His Flock"; Mrs. Mattson in "O Thou That Tellest Good Tidings" and "He Was Despised," and Miss Adams in the brilliant and triumphant solo, "I know That My Redeemer Liveth," together with the strong work of the chorus numbers and the accurate and sympathetic support of the organist, Mrs. Stelter, held the audience in a silence and intensity of attention which was a sincere tribute.

Among the other numbers the double quarteete, singing of Neidlinger's, "The Birthday of a King," with Gilbert Saltonstall as soloist was very beautiful. Two other lovely numbers were the men's chorus rendering of "Silent Night" and Shelley's, "Hark, Hark My Soul," by the full choir. The difficult but thrilling "Hallelujah Chorus" from the Messiah brought the program to an end. Dr. Mattson gave a brief address on "The Power of Music in the Spiritual Life."

High praise and appreciation should be accorded to Mrs. Stelter for her untiring labors, her marked ability and helpful leadership in all the rehearsals as well as in the final successful performance.

At the close of the service the choir assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Slonn where they sang several numbers for the comfort and pleasure of Mrs. Slonn, who listened from her sick bed up stairs.

Some one who took a shotgun from a Hersey store one night returned it a few nights later and took two other guns, a quantity of shells, a large number of scissors and knives, automobile tools and four horse blankets. A progressive burglar.

"COLD IN THE HEAD"

is an acute attack of Nasal Catarrh. Those subject to frequent "colds" are generally in a "run down" condition.

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is a Treatment consisting of an Ointment, to be used locally, and a Tonic, which acts Quickly through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces, building up the System, and making you less liable to "colds."

Sold by druggists for over 40 Years.

F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.

THIRD ESSAY ON GOOD ROADS

KARL FISHER OF PONTIAC ILL., IS WINNER

Brings Out Fact That Good Roads Are Necessary To County's Success As a Resort

Karl Fisher, of Pontiac, Ilinois, is the winner of the third prize in the good roads essay contest sponsored this fall by "Uncle" George VanPelt, Charlevoix county's pioneer good roads advocate. Mr. Fisher has written an excellent essay and brought out points covering the great benefit good roads are to the nation, county, property valuation and community fellowship, and is right when he says than an improvement of any nature always enhances the valuation of any property. His essay follows:

"It is so ohvious that a good concrete road, built anywhere that a road of some kind is necessary, would increase the value of adjacent property, that I omit that phrase from what is already a long title.

Surely it does not need a mass of statistics, which of course are available, to prove that improvements raise valuation and hence reduce tax rates. Paint a house, build a sidewalk, drive a well, do anyone of a million things which are not necessary, perhaps, but mighty convenient and comfortable, and one knows that the value of that property on the market is immediately enhanced. But when one adds to that consideration the matter of permanency like concrete, the fact that an increasing number of people are already beginning to appreciate the beauties of the Pine Lake drive, and the further pretinent point that competition of other resort counties must be met, then there can be no question of the desirability of building a good concrete road around one of the largest and most beautiful of the northern Michigan lakes.

But I am thinking at this time of another reason for building such a road. It is not in any sence a selfish reason, although indirectly it too will bear upon the increase in value of property. But it is more far reaching in effect than just that. Its influence is national.

It is the automoble and the hard road that has wiped out sectionalism and joined county to county and state to state in a personal, intimate fashion in the last few years. In 1860 there was little communication between the North and the South, and a diversity of economic conditions split our glorious country into two parts. Only the few rivers and railroads linked these great areas together, and they were insufficient to hold them so. Alienism produced war, and war produced misery. Roads are the arteries of a nation and must be kept free and flowing. Then there can be no conflicts of economic or sentimental interests, no clashes of patroitic zeal for one unit of our republic.

In Charlevoix County there are fine towns at the eastern, western, and southern points of beautiful Pine lake. Their industrial day is over. They are still the centers of what ie a rather rich agricultural region, but greater than is their importance from this standpoint, they have the possibility of developing into one of the finest resort capitals in what is unquestionably the best summer resort state in America. But they will never do it with jealousy for each other, with supicion for the good citizens at the other end of the lake, with a feeling of rivalry that is not clean and wholesome. They must Co-operate, and concrete in roads is the cement in the friendships of cities.

Karl Fisher

* * * * * * * * * * * * *
* PILGRIM HOLINESS CHURCH *
* Phelps and Ellsworth *
* * * * * * * * * * * * *

Everyone is requested to be present at the Christmas program at the Phelps P. H. church Sunday 10:30 a. m.

The Lord is wonderfully blessing the Phelps Young People's Society, which meets at 6:30 Sunday evenings. Some eighteen were present at the last meeting. Esther Wesley Manley, president; or Edith Kloosier, secretary will give you any desired information. Join in and make it a time of blessing to your own soul.

Prenchihg regularly at 11 a. m. following Sunday school at 10 a. m. and prayer meeting every Wednesday p. m.

B. E. Manker, Pastor.

W. E. Parmelee builds storm windows.—Adv. 37-tf.

DODGE BROTHERS
SPECIAL
TYPE-A SEDAN

Distinctive in the fact that it defies social classification.

You find it driven by the very rich and by the moderately well-to-do.

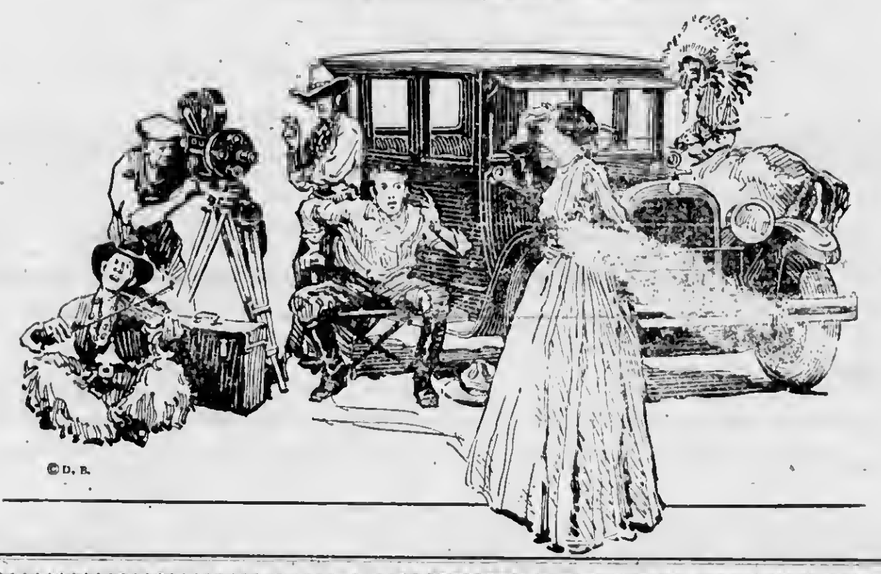
It appears to equal advantage at smart social affairs, or employed in the practical business of every day.

Its refinement naturally attracts fastidious buyers.

Its dependability is valued by those who value their time and whose time has value.

Ask us about Dodge Brothers New Credit-Purchase Plan

Benjamin Brown Auto Sales
CHARLEVOIX, MICH.



Help our Merchants to help YOU

EVERYBODY will agree that a man suceeeds and prospers only when he spends LESS money then he receives in a given period of time.

Let's apply this great economic test to the situation in this town: Our business men have invested—and continue to invest—their money in stocks of goods brought here to your very door to meet your daily needs.

Through the pages of this paper they advise you of their ability to serve this community. All of us know that they deserve our patronage. And remember, the more you trade with them the more funds they can invest in larger stocks and new lines.

Read the Ads. in this Paper

and save yourself money by trading at home

ROADS BRING IN THE TOURISTS

LEAVE HARVEST OF QUARTER MILLION DOLLARS

M. S. C. Engineer Broadcasts Facts About Road Conditions in the State

Address delivered from WKAR radio broadcasting Station, Michigan State College.

Michigan, with more than 5,000 inland lakes having thousands of miles of shore lines and good roads everywhere, may rightfully lay claim to a big tourist business. Nature has done well in fitting up our state as a playground second to none and the taxpayer has made the hundreds of places of interest accessible to the annual movement of human laden automobiles through the medium of good roads and lots of them.

These people we call tourists—and what a variety of them. During the summer months they may be found everywhere. Their trails are well beaten and lead from Berrien county to the "Soo" and from Detroit to the Keweenaw peninsula.

It is claimed that in Michigan the tourist business ranks next to automotive industry measured in dollars of business. Who would have dreamed that ten years ago in our state of great agricultural, industrial and mining activities? The Michigan Tourist Association has just reported that $250,000,000 was left in Michigan during the 1925 tourist season. This is surely an accomplishment made possible only through the agency of good roads.

A harvest of a quarter of a billion dollars in one season left with the cities, villages, farmers and merchants. We think we have invested a lot of money in improved highways in Michigan and we have, but the total construction cost of all the thousands of miles of improved roads in this state to date has amounted to only 68 percent of what was spent by the tourist in Michigan this year.

Now who is this tourist we are talking about? The merchant will give you one answer, the hotel manager another and the farmer still another. I would define a tourist as anyone, either a resident or a stranger to our state, who gets into his automobile and is on his way vacation bent. The minute that fellow leaves his own locality, his own county if you please, he immediately becomes a tourist to the other fellow.

According to this definition most of you people listening in are at some time or other in his class and his interest and problems. Let us, therefore, consider the tourist and his relation to the highway problem.

The Federal Government, State, Counties and Townships have spent millions of dollars to the end that all parts of Michigan may be made readily accessible to everyone. These improved concrete, macadam and gravel roads combined with the state's natural beauty, should be considered as an investment and as such must be safe-guarded. This investment will be profitable only to the extent of funds being made available for continued improvements and maintenance.

You tourist and automobile owners in general are now operating in this state 970,573 motor vehicles and a total of 1,000,000 may be registered before January 1st. This is more than fifteen times the total registration for the United States in 1905. Based on the average retail price of cars and trucks last year, it is estimated that there is invested in motor vehicles in Michigan not less than $750,000,000, or almost five times the investment in road construction in the state for the past twenty years. For every dollar invested in motor vehicles licensed in Michigan this year the owner is contributing three cents to the highway fund through the license tax and the gas tax. This is surely not unreasonable and I believe you are quite willing to pay it. The average motorist today is satisfied only with the best in highways and the tourists is the most exacting because he is largely pleasure bent and his personal comfort is foremost. Just a few years ago, he was satisfied with mediocre roads, had no fear for an occasional bad stretch of road and was willing to put up with some discomfort But today he abhors the word 'detour,' thinks only in terms of the perfect road and courts comfort to the extreme.

There has been some very radical changes in the design of highways during recent years. It was only a few years ago that we were building narrow roads that followed the lines of least resistance from the construction standpoint. These roads were suitable for that day's traffic, but for the motor vehicle many miles are now inadequate in every way. It was necessary to build cheap roads because they were financed largely, if not entirely by local funds, local materials had to be used with the least expense to prepare and place these materials. There was a need for the maximum mileage on funds far too limited. As a result, we have many miles of highways unable to efficiently serve today's traffic, but these low type surfaces have paid for themselves many times over and we have a state system as well as a secondary system of roads largely improved in some manner making all sections of the state accessible to the motorist.

Financing the road program for the past twenty years has brought about many problems. Until recent years the money came from a direct tax, largely a land tax, or township and county bond issue. Since the motor vehicle has come into such common usage, the license tax has played an important part and the much discussed gas tax has become a reality. So we see a gradual and inevitable shifting of road financing from the land owner to the motor vehicle owner.

The principle that the user of the road should pay towards its construction and maintenance cost in proportion to how much he makes use of is sound. The tourist, I believe, is not unmindful of what Michigan or any other state is trying to do for him and in return he is obligated to stand his share of the cost.

The tourist is one of the best if not the best advertising agency Michigan has today. The nature of his advertising is based on impressions he picks up when travelling about the state.

Now what is being done to impress the tourist favorably and make him feel at home? We have seen the highway develop from a rambling, disconnected means of transportation to the wide and efficient highway spanning the state and culminating in the super-highway. This transition has put Michigan in the front rank as a progressive state. The main roads are being paved at the rate of from ten to fifteen miles per day 365 days in the year.

The state has adopted and is following out a policy of building the grades wide enough so the stranger can stop his car anywhere on the road shoulder, clear of moving traffic and enjoy the many interesting scenes along his way. The pavements are being built wide and also smooth, offering him greater safety and comfort. Much care is exercised in laying road grades and providing first class allignment. In other words we believe in building safety into the road. This costs a little money but the investment is lasting and is the state's greatest contribution in safety for the motorist.

It is estimated that 90 per cent of our motor traffic is confined to ten per cent tof our road mileage, thus and the next and in the meantime risk on the ten per cent roads. The greatest possible care may be taken in the design, construction and maintenance of our highways, but the responsibility for safety must not stop there. Coupled with this must be carefulness on the part of the motor vehicle driver not alone for his own personal safety but for what he may contribute in the way of protection to other users of the road.

Our highway must appeal to the tourist since his trip is largely recreational. The state and some county highway departments see the need for beautifying the roadsides and these areas are gradually being cleaned up and landscaped. The plan includes planting of trees consistent with the topography and development through which the road passes. This planting, irregular and naturalistic to develop the natural beauty of the road sides will in the future reflect credit on today's efforts. The only disconcerting thing about it is that this kind of work is not being done on a big enough scale.

Then, too, the State and County parks must all be connected by this road system. Parts of Michigan in the natural state are being set aside to be preserved indefinitely for public use. These parks characteristic of Michigan are coming to be the natural haunts of the tourist. Who cares whether he pitches his tent in one of these parks or stays over night in one of the nearby hotels? The chances are he will spend all the money he can afford to spend while in the state and the people of Michigan cannot afford to discourage him in his own inclination. Remember his trip is recreational—he is in the play ground of the nation and it is your duty and mine to make his stay as safe and pleasant as is possible. Then he may come back next year and the next and in the meantimes tell his friends about us.

The mulitude now drifting towards Florida will again head north and Michigan will get her share. Thousands of these strange tourists will not be content as such, but will here and there, all over the state invest in some property to their liking and with you and I can truly say Michigan, My Michigan." — Michigan Roads and Pavements.

Give A Useful Christmas Present.

Something that Father, Brother, Mother, Sister, Uncle, Aunt, Sweetheart, or anyone who drives a car will appreciate.

5 Gallon Can En-ar-co Motor oil

"The Oil of a Million Tests"

It will give the motor new life. You will have less carbon trouble. You will have less repairs. Order Now.

A Merry Christmas to You

THE AUTO SHOP

Phone 93 204 Mason St.

Men's Florsheim's

$8.50

Until December 31st

Newest and Latest Models of America's foremost Footwear —Shoes that are selling right this minute in the cities for $10.00.

CAMPBELL BOOT SHOP

Our Season's Greetings

Kind remembrances and sincere good wishes for Christmas and the New Year.

What the New Year will bring

Our plans for the beginning of the New Year should be of more than usual interest to the people of Charlevoix.

Starting with the first week in January, it is our intention of placing our entire stock of Heavy Winter Wear consisting of Mackinaws, Sheeplined Coats, Wool Pants, Overcoats and all Leather and Leather-lined goods on sale at prices that will close out the entire line. We want the room they occupy for auto accessories, and to close them out will dispose of them at any price that will move them. Watch our space in this paper for further announcement of the coming sale.

BENJ. BROWN

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

WIRING SYSTEM — for lifetime service

WOOD BROTHERS

—Adv. 43tf.

Electric light bulbs that give service at Charlevoix Hardware Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

ROYAL ARCH MASONS ELECT OFFICERS

Installation and Election Held Monday Evening at Temple

The following officers were elected and installed last Monday evening at a meeting of the Royal Arch Masons, held in the Masonic temple:

H. P.—Charles Emrey.
King—Clarence Bartlett.
Scribe—A. R. Hull.
Treas.—Robert Bridge.
Sec.—Henry Partridge.
C. of H.—Harley Ochs.
R. A. C.—John Macey.
P. S.—John W. Kirby.
3rd V.—Joseph Smith.
2nd V.—Leo Carey.
1st. V.—M. A. Levinson.
Sentinel—P. D. Ance.

To My Customers

My shop will be closed from Wednesday, December 23, 1925, to Monday, January 4, 1926, on account of my being out of the city. Please arrange your work accordingly. Henry O. Johnston.—51t1.

Pete Scott will operate the feed stable at 101 Antrim street us in former years. Barn will be open for business Saturday, December 19th—50-t2 pd.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH
Rev. B. G. Mattson, Pastor

Morning service at 10:30 with sermon by the pastor on "The Coming of the Year."

Sunday school at 12:00 o'clock.

Y. P. S. C. E. at 6 p. m.

There will be a union service in this church at 7 p. m. in the interest of the Near East Relief. A moving picture film of great interest and beauty will be presented showing the work among the orphans of the Near East. An able speaker from Detroit will present the cause and ask for an offering. The public is cordially invited.

Uncle Silas on Christmas

Say Uncle Silas: "Christmas I'm
More joyful than at any time,
When kids and kinfolks all of us,
Do lots of work, make lots of fuss
'Bout other folks—the very way
We ought to do for them each day.
I love to watch the happy throng
whenever Christmas comes along.
There's somethin' winnin' in the smile
Of every kid that gits a pile
Of books an' toys an' everything
That good old Christmas ought to bring.
Back when I used ter be a boy
The fellers robbed me of my joy
And laffed out loud at me because
I would believe in Santa Claus.
Last year my little nephew got
A train and engine, and a lot
Of circle track and switches, too,
And tunnel that the train went through.
I played with that ding-busted thing
Till you could hear the engine sing,
When Aunt Samanthr said she'd get
A drum and rattle for me yet.
Somehow I never could elste
About this thing called man's estate;
I'd rather be a kid once more
Than gather wrinkles by the score.
I'm thankful, though, that in my heart
I still can play some youthful part
In all this Christmas joy and cheer
That marks the ending of a year.
I'm glad there ain't no law forbids
My getting' forty-'leven kids,
And rompin' with 'em all the way
To happiness on Christmas day:
For when we add the total sum,
Them folks that go to Kingdom Come,
Accordin' to the Holy Writ,
Is them that give, not them that git!"
—Platt Young, in the City Builder.

Notice to Taxpayers

I will be in Charlevoix at the State Savings Bank, Saturday, December 26, January 2 and 9, to receive Marion township taxes. Earl J. Shapton, Treas., Marion township.—Adv. 51-t2.

Norwood Taxpayers Notice

I will be at the Charlevoix County Bank on Tuesday, January 5th, for the collection of taxes for Norwood township. James Heeres, Treasurer. —Adv. 51t2.

McCools's Velvet Ice Cream now on sale at the Creamery Building, 105 Clinton street.—Adv. 45tf.

Charlevoix Hdw. Co.

GREETINGS

It is with more than ordinary pleasure that we extend to our many friends of Charlevoix and community our greetings this Holiday Season.

May our wishes for your present and future happiness and comfort be multiplied many fold each succeeding day. Our desire is that we may have the opportunity to express our happiness to you in person for the privilege of being able to call your our friends—and we are equally anxious that you may have the same friendly feeling towards us.

A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to All

Charlevoix Hardware Company

302 Bridge St Phone 1

We wish you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year

Forest & Clarence

WOOD BROTHERS

Hardware & Electrical Supplies

Flowers For Ideal Xmas Gift

Get your orders in for Cut Flowers and Plants early; to be delivered when you want them. You might select a gift for Him or Her that would cost more, that might last longer, but you cannot select a better gift than Flowers.

HYACINTH AND NARCISSUS BULBS, POINSETTAS, COLEUS, PRIMROSE, GERANIUMS, ETC.

These are a few that we suggest for gift making. Christmas cards for Gift Flowers.

A. E. Edwards, Florist.

Phone 374 Greenhouses on May St.

To our friends of the Old Year and the New

We extend many thanks for your patronage and best wishes for a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year for each of you.

A. E. Cross Service Station

CHARLEVOIX COURIER

VOLUME 32. NUMBER 52. EIGHT PAGES. COURIER, CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 30, 1925 PRICE $2.00 PER YEAR

FOURTH GOOD ROADS ESSAY

WRITTEN BY ALICE CHAPMAN OF FLINT, MICH.

Fourth Prize Winner Contains Many Reasons Why a Concrete Road Should Girdle Pine Lake

The fourth prize winning essay on the subject, "Advantages of a good concrete road around Pine Lake" was written by Miss Alice Chapman of Flint, Michigan, who was a former resident in Boyne City and East Jordan and still calls Charlevoix county her home. The essay follows:

Although attending Flint high school, having lived here some years, I was born in Boyne City, then lived in East Jordan eight years, beginning school there, and was a frequent visitor to Charlevoix, therefore, I am still interested in northern Michigan—the land of my birth—especially the region around Pine Lake.

There are some facts that are plain in regard to this proposed road. First, it would be of more value to the region it served than its cost. Its value can hardly be estimated now, surely not in dollars and cents. Farmers it served would suddenly find themselves able to haul larger loads in less time thus bringing them nearer the markets buying their produce.

On the famous paved "Dixie" just between Flint and Saginaw, (approximately (35) thirty-five miles) business done by farmers to buyers passing their doors is enormous. Roadside stands are familiar, selling every kind of farm produce, and refreshments and lunch stands do a thriving business, finding it profitable to keep open even all winter.

The Charlevoix County Herald of October 30, 1925, contained an auction sale notice of Mr. J. L. Zoulek whose fine farm of 142 acres was for sale for $3000.

We have at least six paved highways leading out of Flint whose growing population has already reached 130,000.

If this farm were located even twenty miles from Flint it would have been sold in less than twenty-four hours at this price and its value today would not be less than $12,000.

Concrete highways add immensely to the value of already valuable property now concealed by mud roads.

Second, it would be a permanent value, I say permanent for I expect when "Uncle George" said "good concrete roads" he meant it would last for the generations after us whose inventions will utilize our concrete highways to a greater extent than at present.

"He serves best who serves most."

Third, it would popularize Charlevoix county to a greater extent than ever to tourists.

That Michigan is already popular is known by every statistic of the number of tourists increasing annually, sportsmen, resorters, hunters and even hay-fever sufferers to whom Northern Michigan is a Mecca. I believe Pine Lake is the most beautiful lake of its size in the state. It is navigable for large boats and its spread of size it is ideal for small craft; and bathing beaches and pine groves abound on its shores. But at present only a small portion is easily accessible to automobiles, thus its

(Continued on Page 7)

HERE'S A WHOOPER AND IT WON PRIZE FOR LEGIONAIRE

The biggest liar in town, and probably in the world, is the distinction recently won by Frank E. Lorince, American Legionnaire of Enid, Oklahoma, Lorince excelled in a liar's carnival held by the local Legion post of that city was awarded the title "Champion Liar" and a "biggest liar's" medal.

Interviewed immediately after the contest, Lorince said: 'I'm not a bit surprised that I won. I will be a fighting liar and risk my championship against all promising liars."

Here is the flawless fib that won the liar's contest.

"During the late World war I was first in the artillery. As I was an Italian the major always was picking on me by saying 'Italian, attention.' I was transferred to the infantry because I could not step. First thing they did to me was to send me into 'no man's land' on a combat patrol by myself. I was bare-footed and bare-fisted. I only killed forty-eight of the enemy, captured nine machine guns and took 114 prisoners.

"Then the captain got mad at me, because I didn't get any ammunition from the enemy for our machine guns, so he put me on K. P. duty. Everyone but me got passes to Paris that night. I was left to hold the trenches against a whole German division. The captain told me to move the barb wire entanglements closer to the German trenches so the Americans could run and jump over the wire into the German trenches. When I looked around there were 1,000 Indians.

"I didn't have a gun so I jumped on a trusty horse a friend of mine had given me from the air division. The Indians chased me until I came to a chasm 200 feet deep, the bottom was covered with rocks. I thought it was sure death. However, the horse was well trained, and leaped for the bottom. Down and down he went. When we were six feet from the bottom I yelled 'whoa' and my horse stopped within two feet of certain destruction, but there was facing us a regiment of Prussian guards, the best the Kaiser had. The Indians were behind me, the Germans in front of me. Now a lot of people ask me how I survived. I didn't. They killed me."

HALF MILLION MARK REACHED

RAPID PROGRESS HAS BEEN MADE SINCE 1877

Michigan Bell Telephone Installs It's 500,000th Telephone at Iron Mountain Today

Michigan's 500,000th telephone will be placed in service Wednesday afternoon, December 30th, in the plant office of the Ford Motor Co. at Iron Mountain, and the first call from the new instrument will be placed over long distance wires to the office of Henry Ford at Dearborn, according to announcement made today by Judge Kuhn, president of the Michigan Bell Telephone Co.

Installation of the one half millionth telephone will mark a mile stone in the history of telephoneage in Michigan is the opinion of Judge Kuhn and as such will be made an occasion. The long distance call from Iron Mountain will be made to Mr. Ford, head of the Ford industry and an outstanding figure in the industrial world, by his personal representative in charge of the Ford property in the northern peninsula, Mr. I. G. Kingford. Judge Kuhn will be with Mr. Ford in the latter's office when the call is received.

Installation of the 500,000th telephone is to be made in the Iron Mountain Ford plant, Judge Kuhn states, because it is particularly appropriate that the first call be routed between the largest industrial places on the two peninsulas, noteing progress that has been made in developing of Michigan telephone service and paying a tribute to the state industrial world.

Michigan Bell Telephone Co. have added approximately 4,000 telephones and installation are continuing at the rate of more than 100 per day. The company has set a new record of service installation during 1925. Plant extension of Michigan Bell Telephone Co. last year was more than $18,000,000, bringing the company investment up to considerably more than $100,000,000, Judge Kuhn advises.

Telephones have grown from two instruments in Michigan in 1877 to 500,000 today. Judge Kuhn states that in the six years that he has been president of the Michigan Bell Telephone Co. the number of telephones in the state served by his company have practically doubled.

IRENE McCANN ENTERTAINS FRIENDS

Young Ladies Guests at Supper and Theater Party

A very pleasant evening was spent on Tuesday of this week, when Miss Irene McCann entertained eight of her young girl friends at her home on Bridge street, the occasion being her birthday anniversary.

The young ladies were guests to a delicious supper, the feature of which was the unique and original favors. After the supper, Miss McCann took her guests to the theater where they enjoyed the show. Irene was the recipient of many fine gifts and the best wishes of her girl friends.

OLD YEAR VESPER SERVICE SUNDAY

PROGRAM HIGHLY APPRECIATED BY LARGE AUDIENCE

Unique Service of Song and Pageantry Given at Methodist Church Last Sunday

An overflowing auditorium of people worshipped at the Methodist Episcopal church last Sunday at 4:15, upon the occasion of the last public Sunday service of the year 1925. The program was a great success and highly appreciated by those who attended.

There were three special features of the service that made it unique. It was the last afternoon service hour of the Junior church for a time, and the Juniors were well represented in numbers. Fifty or more marched in candle light processional upon the rostrum, where they sang their specially prepared Junior song. A feature of this song was the singing of the last chorus backward. It was a pleasant surprise to the congregation and was enjoyed by the Juniors. Ask them how it was done. They concluded their part of the service by singing their Coin Song, and marching to a reserved section of the church. Each Junior was given a good story book as a memorial of the occasion.

This part of the service was followed by the dedication of the beautiful illuminated cross, a gift from Mr. and Mrs. William Black. A specially prepared dedicatory service was used, consisting of responsive readings from the scripture and certain appropriate hymns, the collect of the church and a dedicatory pastoral prayer. A vocal solo, sung by Mr. Greenway concluded the second feature.

The final feature was a pageant, "The Challenge of the Crosses," rendered by seven ladies of the ladies' Literary and Sewing Club of the church. It was given under the light of the newly dedicated cross, and occupied about thirty-five minutes in its rendition. The choir assisted with this closing feature of the service, and the pageant left a very decided impression upon those who saw it as well as upon those who participated in its rendition.

Much credit is due those who rendered it for their interpretation of its teachings. This pageant is very popular in Methodist Episcopal circles, and was recently given in First M. E. church, Grand Rapids. It will probably be repeated by the Charlevoix ladies at some future church service. Rev. and Mrs. Pollock have been greatly interested in feature services for several years and find them very beneficial in church work. No doubt other equally interesting feature services will be prepared for the season which is just ahead.

Sanford Laid Up

The steamer Sanford made her last trip to Beaver Island last Friday and now laid up in the harbor undergoing repairs. Captain Sanford reports a very good year and states that his boat made around one hundred and ninety trips to the island during the past season. John McCann is carrying the mail to St. James with his tug, Venus, and will continue to do so as long as the lake is navigable.

Every Ford owner should have a Koolfast radiator on his car. Hundreds have made the change. We have them. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 49tf.

COUNTRY IS HIT BY COLD WEATHER

REACHED SOUTH AS FAR AS FLORIDA AND TEXAS

Many Deaths and Millions Lost in Fires Result of Season's Coldest Wave

The climax of the zero cold wave that has gripped the entire nation from the Rocky Mountains to the Atlantic seabourd, was reached Monday night, the United States weather bureau announced.

The entire country suffered from the recent cold wave, ten cities reporting a total of 25 deaths resulting directly or indirectly from the freezing weather.

The south was swept by near zero weather with thermometer at four above in North Carolina. A hunter in Georgia was frozen to death. Frost was feared at Tamps, where a new low record of 36 above zero was touched Monday.

Two negroes, one a woman, were burned to death in Columbus, Ohio, when extreme cold handicapped firemen, who were called out for numerous blazes, caused from heating equipment. The whole of Ohio was gripped with zero temperatures. Snow fell at San Antonio, Texas, where the mercury stood at 20. Even California was assailed by cold weather over the week-end.

Seven persons were frozen to death in Chicago in a period of twenty-four hours and a total of 13 persons succumbed to the zero weather in a period of 48 hours. The temperature in and around Chicago ranged from five below to 23 below zero.

Intense suffering, dozens of fires and delay in train schedules followed the wake of the cold weather of the present season.

Chicago police stations, lodging houses and hospitals were thrown open to shelter the poor, the helpless and the frost bitten.

Hundreds of families in the slum district were moved to police stations and hospitals when their fuel ran out and heavy clothing was provided for the sufferers. Several hundred cases of frostbite were treated by hospitals and private physicians.

Similar reports come from all over the northeastern and central northern sections of the country, where personal suffering was great and loss to property from fires caused a loss of millions of dollars.

The coldest temperature reached in this territory was around ten below zero, Lake Michigan breezes tempering the cold to some extent.

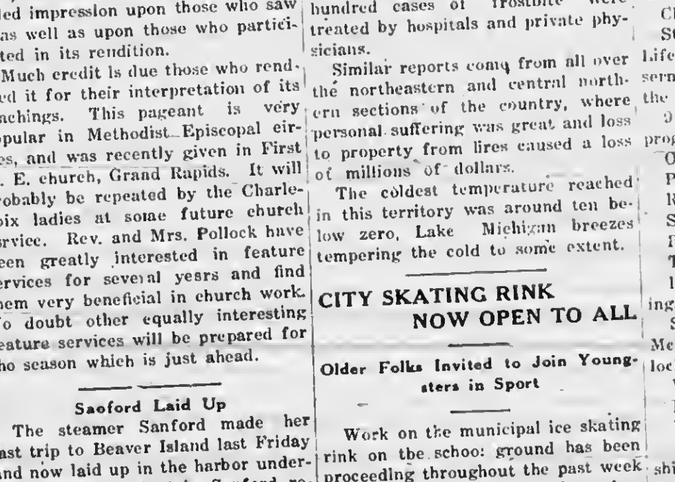
CITY SKATING RINK NOW OPEN TO ALL

Older Folks Invited to Join Youngsters in Sport

Work on the municipal ice skating rink on the school ground has been proceeding throughout the past week and the rink is now in first class shape.

Electric lights have been hung in three different places in the school yard and furnish plenty of light for skating in the evening. Youngsters have been enjoying themselves to the utmost for the past few days and it is anticipated that the older folks, having once tried the rink, will be out in force to try their tricks. Everyone is welcome to its use.

One-Nine-Two-Six



PASTOR AND WIFE RECEIVE XMAS PRESENT

Members of Church Appreciate Their Efforts the Past Year

The Christmas exercises of the Congregational Sunday school were given in the church last Thursday evening to a well filled house.

The program consisted of class exercises, scripture and hymns of the Nativity, led by a large chorus of young women with Mrs. Stelter at the organ and Mrs. Mattson at the piano. The Junior Boys Brotherhood presented the church with a beautiful American flag as a part of their work for the year. Dan Geneit made the presentation, which was accepted by Dr. Mattson with appropriate remarks. W. E. Parmalee donated the standard for the flag.

Several pupils of the Sunday school made a record attendance during the year and it is hoped that many more will try to be in regular attendance throughout 1926.

Following the program, Santa Claus gave each child a box of candy and apples. Members of the church presented Dr. and Mrs. Mattson with an electric fireless cooker.

COLLEGES WATCH NIGHT SERVICE

AT METHODIST CHURCH NEXT THURSDAY NIGHT

Old and Young Invited to Participate in Program of Faith, Food and Fun

A great community watch night festival is planned for all who feel the fine spirit of the season, or who wish to thrill with the optimism of better days.

This event is for old and young and is called "Colleges Evening", out of deference to the many students who are home for vacation at this time. Several of these returned students will have a part on the program, and all are invited to participate in the good fellowship of the evening.

The program in part is as follows:

8:30 p. m.—Organ and piano prelude.

Choral singing.

Story sermon—"The Passion for Life." The pastor will illuminate his sermon with this dramatic story by the English author, Joseph Hocking.

9:15 p. m. Musical and literary program:

Orchestra.

Piano solo, Raymond Faulkner.

Reading, Lucile Belding.

Saxophone solo, Lewis Bouriseau.

Piano solo, Cecile Louise Pollock.

Travel Talk, Robert Burns.

Piano duet, Vera and Lucile Belding.

Symposium—John Pollock, Frieda McMillan, Ellen Cook, James R. Pollock.

Vocal solo, Loren Hart.

Piano solo, Cecil Howe.

Vocal solo, Claude Greenway.

10:15 p. m.—Frolic and Fellowship with Earl Shapton and George Beeman in charge. This is in church parlors.

11:00 p. m.—Eats, etc.

11:30 p. m.—Illuminated Cross communion service.

12:00—New Year and Candles of Hope.

The public is most cordially invited to participate in a watch service that is above reproach and full of cheer. Bring your frends and be sure they will have a good time.

YOUNG FOLKS ENJOY SLEIGH RIDE

Dance and Refreshments Held at Ironton Grange Hall

Nine couple of Charlevoix young people enjoyed a sleigh-ride to the Ironton Grange hall on Tuesday evening of this week, where the time was pleasantly spent in dancing and games, the affair being topped off by an excellent "feed" at the close of the evening before returning home.

Those in attendance were the Misses Henrietta Baldwin, Doris Krulik, Luelle Belding, Opal Lewis, Irene Bogart, Leona Smith, Dorothy Fairchild, and Vera Solomon and the Messrs Floyd Brown, Ted Cooper, Harold McMulkin, Thomas Neilson, Wilbur Brown, Dean Davenport, John Kelderhouse, Leonard Burns and Doan Ogden. The party was a splendid success according to the young people.

For all the news, read the Courier.

CONDITION OF MICHIGAN CROPS

SLIGHT INCREASE IN GRAIN CROP SHOWN

Early Advent of Cold Weather Cause of Slow Growth of Cereal Crop

The preliminary inquiry relative to the acreage sown to wheat in Michigan this fall shows an increase of nine per cent over last year. Good prices have prevailed which, with a further reduction in the acreage devoted to rye, has stimulated renewed interest in wheat growing, according to a statement issued by L. Whitney Watkins, Commissioner of Agriculture and Verne H. Church, U. S. Agricultural Statistician. According to the official estimate, the acreage seeded was 905,000 as compared with 930,000 planted and 818,000 harvested, the revised estimates for one year ago. Not as much was sown as intended as wet weather interfered with the removal of some beans and other crops from ground that farmers expected to sow to wheat, and in some localities it is probable that the acreage is no greater, if as great, as it was last year. The condition is placed at 81 per cent, two per cent below last year and nine per cent below the average. Early sown fields made satisfactory growth and went into winter with about the usual amount of top, but much of the crop was sown late which has made slow progress owing to the early advent of cold weather, and occasional fields showed no growth above ground when winter set in.

For the United States, the acreage sown is estimated at 39,540,000. The revised figures for last year are 39,956,000 acres planted and 31,269,000 acres harvested. The reported condition is 82.7 per cent, 1.7 per cent above last year but nearly four per cent below the ten-year average.

Rye: The acreage of rye has steadily decreased for several years in Michigan, even more rapidly than estimated as shown by a check against the Federal census taken of last year's crops. The revised estimate for 1924 is 216,000 acres planted and the preliminary figure for this year is 184,000, a further decline 15 per cent. About three and one-half times this amount was grown in 1921 and in 1922. The condition on December 1 was 84 per cent, two per cent below that of one year ago and eight per cent below the ten-year average. As in the case of wheat, the early sown is in good condition, but a larger percentage than usual of the acreage was sown late and this has made but little growth and some fields did not get above ground.

(Continued on Page 7)

EVERY CENT OF GOOD PRICES WILL COME BACK

A lot of wise (?) writers are criticizing the farmers for holding their potatoes for a higher price, when such a good price is procurable now. Invariably these critics are the folks that have to buy their "spuds" off the open market. They are postive the farmer will make more money selling his potatoes now at $1.65 per bushel than he will to keep them for $2 and suffer the shrinkage, the uncertainty of the market, the interest on the money he has tied up in his potato cellar, etc., etc. He don't yelp half as loud when the retailers and the commission man compels him to pay $2 for a bushel of potatoes, that originally cost 50 cents. It's just the natural, ornery and general inclination of the public to begrudge the farmer every extra red cent he wrests from the soil. We're buying potatoes at our house a bushel or a half at a time, as finances allow. We are darned glad to pay the price they are selling for now, and would like to pay $5 per bushel for 'em. If our farmer friends were getting four hundred and twenty-five cents out of the five hundred. Because we know that extra money would all come trickling back into town again and we'd take our chance on getting our share of it.—Cheboygan Democrat.

And today the potato market is around $4.00 per hundred. The producer is entitled to this price. This is the first year in the past four the farmer has received a decent price for his spuds. And even at today's price, he is just about breaking even, considering the price he is forced to pay for everything needed on the farm.

Mothers Treat Colds The New "Direct" Way

No Longer Necessary to "Dose" Children With Internal Medicines to Break Colds.

Children's digestions are easily upset by too much "dosing." Vicks VapoRub being externally applied, does not upset little stomachs.

At the first sign of croup, sore throat, or any other cold trouble, apply Vicks freely. There is nothing to swallow—you just "rub it on."

VICKS VAPORUB

OVER 21 MILLION JARS USED YEARLY

CORRESPONDENCE

NORWOOD

Plenny Genett shot another beautiful red fox near Torch Lake one day last week.

Kenneth Pierce of Charlevoix, is spending his vacation with his parents this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wagner of Charlevoix, are visiting friends and relatives at Norwood for a couple of weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Ige Alward and two sons, Nelson and Marshall of Ellsworth, are visiting relatives at Norwood this week.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Pound of Saginaw, a son, December 22nd. Mrs. Pound will be remembered as Lillian Sarasin.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Stafford enjoyed Christmas day with Mrs. Stafford's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ethan Jolliffe of Atwood.

Miss Joyce Mayne one of the teachers at Rockford, Michigan, is home this week. Also her brother, Lynn Mayne, who is in college in Grand Rapids.

We are very sorry to learn of the illness of Mrs. Chase, who is in a hospital in Chicago, Mrs. Chase spends his summers in Norwood and has a host of friends here.

The number of gifts, Christmas cards and greeting received by Norwood people from our summer people goes to show that they do not forget us while they are in the busy cities.

William Supernaw received a crate of oranges and also one of grape fruit from his mother at Miami, Florida, for Christmas. Mrs. Supernaw is another one of our good neighbors that we miss.

On Tuesday of this week several hunters were lined up along the Norwood beach watching in silence for the sly old fox that might head their way. William Alward broke the rank and shot and killed him.

Mrs. Haskins, mother of her large family, entertained her children and their families Christmas day. After exchanging gifts which were many, Mrs. Haskins served a fine Chrismas dinner and all enjoyed a good time.

Mrs. Haskins entertained the members of the Ladies' Aid Society last Wednesday. After the regular meeting they enjoyed a Christmas program then came the exchange of Christmas gifts which was done in a child-like manner and all enjoyed a good time.

Mr. and Mrs. William Richardson entertained Mrs. Richardson's sisters and their families Christmas day. After the giving of many Christma gifts taken from the decorated tree which filled the corner in the living room, Mrs. Richardson served a bountiful Christmas dinner, which was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

A good time was enjoyed Christmas day at the Frank Richardson home, when Mr. and Mrs. Richardson entertained eighteen of their near relatives. The dining room was prettily decorated with Christmas bells and candles and the dining table with its burdensome "load of good eats," was decorated with sparkling candles, red apples for candle holders, and place cards arranged with Christmas bells. Miss Drucilla Richardson and Mrs. George Light served the bountiful Christmas dinner. Those present from away were: Cecil Richardson of Grand Rapids, Miss Drucillla Richardson and also Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wagner of Charlevoix.

Buy Today- benefit by Tremendous Price Reductions!

When Dodge Brothers startling new prices are made known on January 7th, the full amount of the reductions will be refunded immediately to all purchasers since midnight, December 15th.

This means that you can buy your Dodge Brothers Motor Car today, enjoy its immediate use, and still benefit fully by the savings yet to be announced.

Dodge Brothers product today is better than ever before.

Price reductions are made possible by the completion of a $10,000,000 expansion program that will practically double production.

The savings effected through this enormous increase in output are being passed directly on to the buyer—in conformity with Dodge Brothers traditional policy.

Benjamin Brown Auto Sales

Charlevoix, Michigan

DODGE BROTHERS MOTOR CARS

Your old radiator is worth $2.50 when we install a Koolfast on your Ford. Ben: Brown.—Adv. 48tf.

PHELPS

Henry Klooster of Atwood, was a caller here Monday afternoon.

Mr. Olney of Charlevoix, spent Christmas at the Clinton Blanchard home.

Miss Lula Mason of Petoskey, is spending her vacation nt the Mason home here.

Mr. and Mrs. John Brock were dinner guests at the F .R. Klooster home Christmas day.

George Klooster, Jr., of Ellsworth, spent Christmas here visiting his cousin, Lisle Klooster.

James Sitka is at home agnin after several weeks spent in Detroit. He expects to return again soon.

Gerald Telenghoff of Central Lake, is spending a few days at the John Brock nnd Dick Potter homes.

Mrs. Albert Balch and little son, Kenneth, went to Petoskey Monday evening to visit for a few days at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Harry Dunn.

Seblo Veenstra, who has purchased the farm recently vneated by Wm. Louiselle is busy moving hay, grain nnd straw and expects to move his household furniture within the next week.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Stevens and family, drove to Horton Bay Thursday evening, of last week, spending the night and Christmas day at the Ralph Klooster home. They returned home Friday evening.

Otto Eckert of Willard, Ohio, arrived here Friday evening and is spending his holiday vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Eckert, as did also Miss Esther Eckert, n dnughter, who is a high school student of Boyne City.

A very interesting and pleasing program was given at the Holiness church here, last Sunday morning at the regular Sunday school hour. In spite of the raging storm a good size congregation was present to enjoy it. Candy nad nuts were given to the children by the Sunday school.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Smith and two children and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Jardine and baby son and Mrs. Clara Mascho, all of Charlevoix, were Christmas day dinner guests at the H. L. Francisco home. The guests also include Roy Mascho. Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Mascho, Fred Mason and Miss Lula Mason.

We sell Koolfast Rndiators for Fords because we believe they nre the best radiator on the market today. Benj. Brown. —Adv. 49tf.

CLARION

G. W. Taylor is in Detroit on business.

Silas Young, and family removed to Petoskey on Monday.

Miss Idn I. Huff left Thursday for Hillsdale to visit her sister.

Rev. Pentling of Boyne City preached here on Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Padgett were guests of Boyne City friends on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Whittaker of Cheboygan, have moved into Miss Huff's house.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Palmer spent Christmas with relatives at Traverse City and Cedar.

Mr. nnd Mrs. Barkley have moved back to Clarion from their farm home nenr Horton Bay.

Mrs. W. C. Palmer was called to Traverse City on Monday, by the serious illness of her father, Mr. Hilbert.

Mr. Beatling will hold Tuesday evening services here this winter, when the state of roads and weather permit.

We will allow you $2.50 on your old Ford radiator and install a new Koolfast, the best on the market. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 49tf.

IRONTON

Mr. and Mrs. Will Case and daughter, spent Christmas day at the Ole Nelson home.

Forrest Brown from Lansing, is home visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Brown.

Doan Ogden of M. S. College, is spending two weeks with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ogden.

Dr. Mattson was unable to come out Sunday to hold services, on account of the drifted roads.

Cecil Ogden of Hart Lake school spent Xmas with his parents.

Margaret Munson of Jackson, Michigan, is spending the holidays with her mother, Mrs. Munson.

Thomas Nelson and Harold McMullkin, gave a party nt the Grange hall, Monday evening, for Doan Ogden and Pete Burns.

Mr. nnd Mrs. Sam Alexander went to Cndillac, Wednesday, to spend Xmas with Mr. Barnum and family. Ross Alexander and Doan Ogden, drove them down.

BARNARD

Mrs. Henry Walker is staying for a few weeks at the Jim Heere's home.

No church or Sunday school on Sunday on account of the storm nnd bad roads.

Mrs. John Potter is confined to her bed with rheumatism. We hope he will soon recover.

A. J. Bolhuis nnd family spent Christmas day at the George Parsons' home near Atwood.

Miss Beulah Bowdish of Evanston, Illinois, spent the holiday vacation with her mother, Mrs. Bowdish and sister Mrs. Beattie.

Notice to Eveline Taxpayers

I will be at my home every Monday and Thursday until January 10, for the collection of tnx monies for the township of Eveline. Robt. H. Sherman, Treas.—Adv. 51t2.

Notice to Tax Payers

I will be at the Charlevoix County Bank, Saturday, January 2nd, nnd Saturday, January 9th, to receive Charlevoix township taxes. Cora D. Rodger, Twp. Treas.—Adv. 50t2 pd.

Please Remember

If wheat prices continue to advance we are going to see higher flour prices. Better get your supply now at prices lower than wholesale.

Your choice of three high-grade flours:

PASTRY FLOUR——WHOLE-WHEAT FLOUR
GRAHAM FLOUR——RYE FLOUR
TABLE MEAL——WHEAT CEREAL
ROLLED OATS
BUCKWHEAT AND PREPARED PANCAKE FLOUR

Nearly always you will find that you can do little better at the

Charlevoix-Co-Operative Assn.

W. E. Byers, Auctioneer

Twenty years experience in handling Auction Sales, both on farm and household goods.

Let Me Cry Your Sales

Phone me at Charlevoix or call the Charlevoix Courier, where all dates are made.

Cups for Lunch Furnished if Requested

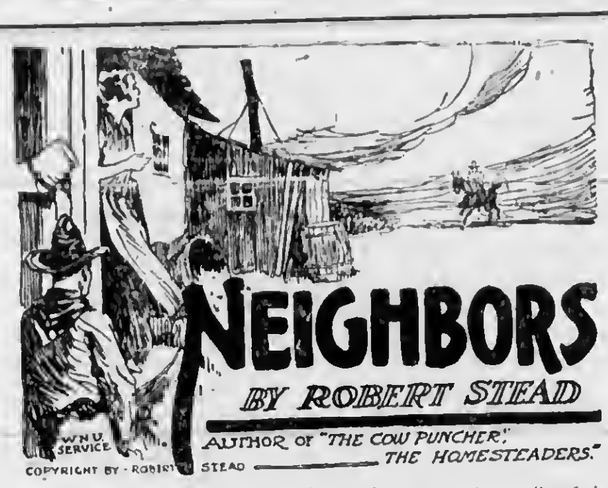
NERVES ALL UNSTRUNG

Charlevoix Folks Should Find the Cause and Correct It

Are you all worn out? Feel tired, nervous, half sick? Do you have a constant backache; sharp twinges of pain, too, with dizzy spells and annoying urinary disorders? Then there's cause for worry and more cause to give your weakened kidneys prompt help. Use Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. Charlevoix folks recommend Doan's for just such troubles.

Mrs. Frank Coatta, Jr., 108 Robinson St., Charlevoix, says:— "I had a dull ache through the small of my back and when I moved quickly, or stooped, sharp pains like the thrust of a knife darted across my kidneys. I became nervous and irritable and was in a run down condition. My kidneys were weak and acted too freely. Several boxes of Doan's Pills, from Metcalf's Drug Store, cured me."

60c, at all dealers. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.



NEIGHBORS

BY ROBERT STEAD

AUTHOR OF "THE COW PUNCHER," "THE HOMESTEADERS."

WNU SERVICE
COPYRIGHT BY ROBERT STEAD

CHAPTER XIII—Continued

It was while I wrestled with the thought of a great renunciation that the light broke about me. I was sure that animal for animal—ox for ox—Jean preferred me to Spoof. It was in those qualities that were not animal that she preferred him. It was for me, therefore, by all means, to delay her decision, and then to set about deliberately to develop the qualities in which I was at a disadvantage. I must read. These idle winter months gave me the very opportunity to read, and I cursed myself that so many weeks had slipped by unimproved.—What to read? I had my old school books and a Bible—little else. Still, if one knew his Bible—if I were to read up some book in it, develop a simple philosophy out of it, envelgle Jean into an argument, and best her, that would be keeping her guessing, wouldn't it? . . . . I could borrow books from Spoof. It was a strange sidelight on my feelings toward Spoof that even at this moment and for this purpose there seemed nothing unnatural in the thought that I should borrow books from him. Other neighbors might have books; one never can tell. Most people remain unread, not from lack of books, but from lack of application. There was Reverend Locke. I would make an excuse to town, and would borrow books from him. I would even spend a few of my hard-earned dollars on magazines, or on membership in a mail order library. Of all this Jean was to know nothing. I would keep her guessing.

I trudged on in a mood akin to cheerfulness. I had made my decision. I had stepped out of an old world into a new one. Something which must have lain dormant all these years awoke and thrilled me with the possibilities of what I might become. Life for me was no longer a thing of the body, which is death, but a thing of the mind and spirit, which are eternal. And yet. . . . In imagination I allowed myself to feel Jean's hair brushing my cheek.

Presently something waved to me out of the mist. I stopped, with eyes intent. Undoubtedly something was waving to me out of the mist. "Jean! Jean!" I called, but there was no answer. I moved toward it eagerly, and suddenly the mystery was made clear. It was a great sunflower, clothed in hoary frost, nodding in the wind. I smiled to myself at its almost spectral appearance; then glancing ahead I saw another and another and another; a whole row of them. This was Spoof's! These were the sunflowers which he had planted. Spoof's shack must be nearby. Surely, there to the left, was duller darkness through the snow.

I hurried toward it. The angular outline of Spoof's shack emerged gradually out of the mist, like a sunken boat rising slowly to the surface of the water. Half of it was concealed at best by the great drifts that bordered it. I found my way to the shack, around the corner, to the door. Should I knock? Prairie manners, particularly among bachelor neighbors, are free and easy. It would be no great breach of etiquette for me casually to enter Spoof's house without knocking. I believed I had done that before. And there would be a purpose in it, now of all times. . . . I knocked.

It Was as She Had Sat That Day—What, Only Yesterday?

There was no answer. That was subject to different explanations. A knock on a bachelor's door, miles from a neighbor, in midwinter, is a thing so unexpected that sometimes the ear does not register it; it merely cocks itself to make sure if the sound should be repeated.

I knocked again. In a moment the door opened and I saw Spoof, in a flannel shirt and smoking jacket, corduroy trousers, moccasins—I think I took in every detail of his attire. His tie was drawn neatly up to the throat; his hair was well brushed; he had not shaved. His mustache was heavier, his face paler, thinner—

"Why, Frank!" he exclaimed. I seemed to hear both welcome and embarrassment in his voice. "Come in, old man! This is quite a day at Section Two."

On account of the dull weather and the frosted windows Spoof had a lamp burning; it was a brass lamp, with a twisted, ornamental bowl and a cloth shade of some old gold color. It stood on a shelf which he had built in a corner of his only room; its subdued but cheerful light touched the objects in the little shack with a glint of color which was in sharp contrast to the drab day outside. Spoof's couch had been made up; his steamer rug lay tucked about it. The walls were a maze of firearms, prints, curios. There was the warmth of a fire and the odor of something cooking.

In the corner opposite to the lamp, on the floor, on a mat, sat Jean. Her knees were propped up in front of her and her long, supple fingers were linked about them. It was as she had sat that day—what, only yesterday?—with me under the great drift on the bank of the gully. A tapestry affair of some kind, hung on the wall, sheltered her from direct contact with the cold boards, and a cushion with a yellow dragon further protected her. She looked up at me as I entered and her face was a riddle too enigmatic to analyze. Annoyance, defiance, pleasure, humor, indifference, were strangely and inextricably interwoven.

"Hello, Frank," she said, quietly.

"You see, Je—Miss Lane is an early caller," Spoof explained. "Although not a frequent one," he added, "any more than you are. If she had known you were coming no doubt you would have come together."

"Yes, that might have been better," I said, pointedly.

"The trail is gone," Spoof continued, ignoring the jab in my remark. "It must have taken some skill to find the direction."

"Particularly before daylight," I said, more pointedly than before.

"Oh, don't quizz, Frank," Jean protested. "I'll tell you all about it presently. I was just saying to Spoof, when your knock interrupted me, how much the wiser the Japanese are than we. They sit on the floor, as nature intended them to do, and how graceful they are!—I am playing the part."

"But not for that reason, I am afraid," said Spoof. "You see, I rejoice in only one chair, called 'easy' by way of courtesy. Miss Lane refused to sit in it while I stood, and I, of course, could not sit in it while she stood. So she solved a deadlock by sitting on the floor."

Nothing very illuminating about all this. They were just chatting naturally; surely they couldn't be such actors as to stage this dialogue without a moment's notice. Still—I had had to knock the second time. . . .

"You have breakfasted?" Spoof inquired.

"Why, I am afraid I must confess I haven't. I left home rather unexpectedly." I was not disposed to beat about the bush, and the commonplaceness of their talk irritated me. Surely here was a situation bad enough without making it worse by pretending there was nothing bad about it.

Spoof glanced at a clock which chuckled away amiably on his wall. "We can have lunch within an hour," he said. With a fork he prodded something stewing on the stove. "Yes, the rabbit is almost done. By Jove, a good fat one! Fancy how they pick so lordly a living! Will you wait, or would you rather have a bite now? I can only give you bread and marmalade at once. You must be hungry."

"No, I'm not hungry," I said, truthfully enough. The fact is, I couldn't keep my eyes off Jean. Now and again, when she didn't know I watched, her face seemed to take on something of melancholy; but mostly it was bright, responsive, vivacious. She seemed to fit so wonderfully—physically and mentally she fitted so wonderfully into Spoof's shack.

So we waited for the rabbit to stew, and Spoof and Jean chatted on. I was more the audience than one of the players. They were away into some dispute about atmospheric colorings; something that had to do with rainbows, sundogs, ice prisms, light radiation. It was beyond me; so obviously beyond me that Spoof had mercy and brought Jean back to earth.

"What do you think of the scheme to form a new province here—two new provinces," he shot at me, "instead of our present districts? More autonomy and more taxes, as I see it."

"Yes, I suppose," I groped. The fact is I knew nothing about it.

(Continued on Page 6)

We offer and recommend, when, as and if issued, subject to prior sale

$1,700,000 6% First Mortgage Real Estate Serial Gold Bonds

Secured by

BARLUM HOTEL

Northeast Corner Cadillac Square and Bates Street, Detroit, Michigan

Security Appraised at $3,420,500

Normal Income Tax Up to 2% Paid by Borrower—Tax Free in Michigan

This new Barlum Hotel offering stands out decisively as one of the most attractive issues ever offered to investors in safe securities throughout America.

Building is a twenty-story, basement, sub-basement, and attic, steel frame structure, containing 612 guest rooms, each with private bath. It also contains eight stores, four of which, including the corner store, open off Cadillac Square, and four off Bates Street.

Location: The Barlum Hotel is located at the Northeast Corner of Cadillac Square and Bates Street, Detroit, Michigan, with a frontage of 120 feet on Cadillac Square. Cadillac Square is one of Detroit's three downtown streets which are 200 feet in width. It leads from the Wayne County Building on the east, to the Detroit City Hall on the west.

Rental earnings: Figuring operating expenses, taxes, etc., upon a generous scale, there is an estimated NET annual income of $414,865.60, which scales more than four times the greatest annual interest charge, and is much more than ample for principal and interest requirements.

Borrower: The borrower is the Cadillac Square Improvement Co. It is composed of men of great wealth and high standing in the community. Mr. John J. Barlum, the President, is one of the leading business men of Detroit. He is President of the American State Bank, President of the Barlum Steamship Co., President of the White Star Line, President of the Barlum Land Co., Treasurer of Thos. Barlum & Sons Co., Treasurer of the Barlum Realty Co., and is interested in a substantial way in many other large and successful enterprises.

He is the owner of the Barlum Building, the Barlum Apartments, the Woodward-Palmer Hotel, the Dixieland Hotel and Lane-Bryant Building, all of which properties were financed by the Federal Bond & Mortgage Company, and each issue was called at a premium prior to maturity.

The bonds are secured by a closed first mortgage on the land and building and a first lien on the rental income. They are in coupon form, registerable without charge as to principal. Callable at 101 and accrued interest January 1, 1928, or any interest date thereafter.

Dated January 1, 1926. Interest payable January 1 and July 1. Maturities from 3 to 15 years. Denominations $500 and $1,000 in all maturities; $100 and $5,000 denominations only in last maturity.

Prices: January 1, 1929, maturities, 101.37 to yield 5.50%. January 1, 1930, maturities, 100.88 to yield 5.75%. All other maturities, par and accrued interest to yield 6%.

Federal Bond & Mortgage Co.

Mail This Coupon

Federal Bond & Mortgage Co. Charlevoix Courier (1586)
Federal Bond & Mortgage Building, Detroit

I am in the market for $.....
Send me further information relative to Barlum Hotel issue.
I expect to be in the market about..... (date) for $.....
Please reserve bonds for me.

Name.....

Address.....

The New Year

THE NEW YEAR is here again. It means different things to different people. To some it is just another year.

To others it means a new beginning—hope and courage—twelve more months of opportunity to reinforce themselves physically, spiritually and financially.

This institution at this time extends its best wishes to all its friends, renews its pledge of loyalty and cooperation and trusts the coming months may bring an abundance of prosperity and happiness.

Charlevoix State Savings Bank

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

W. S. Richardson, President.
A. D. Crimmins, Vice President.
Archie Livingston, Cashier.
G. W. Richardson, Asst. Cashier.

The CHARLEVOIX COURIER
Issued every Wednesday at
CHARLEVOIX - MICHIGAN

DuBois & Usher, Publishers
A. J. Usher, Editor and Business Mgr.
Courier Building Van Pelt Place

Entered at the Post Office in Charlevoix, Mich., as second class matter.

—Member Michigan Press Ass'n.

Advertising Rates.

For advertising rates apply for schedule.

Notices of church or lodge socials and entertuinments, where admission is charged, regular rates.

Obituary poetry, regular rates.

Card of Thanks, 25 cents.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

One copy, one year.....$2.00
One copy, six months.....$1.00
One copy, three months..... .60

DOCTORS AND SUPERPOWER.

"Two farmers had individual lighting plants. One had more power than he needed, the other had less. They connected their plants with a copper line, result—superpower.

"Two villages had similar plants. While one needed repairs a connecting line between the two served the citizens of both places and when both plants wer running they were able to serve another village without any plant, result— superpower.

"A big centrnl electric company with efficient machinery, connected with a number of smaller towns, saved them money and gave better service, result—superpower.

"Two or three or many large generating plants may connect through many miles of transmission line. That's the commonly accepted idea of superpower. But the term is only relative and has no meuning in itself. It amounts simply to interconnection.

"Each family needs a doctor, but few can afford a private doctor, so one or more physicians serve a community. The community doctor has a better 'load factor' than a private doctor, can be in better practice and furnish better service at lower cost When physicians organize partnerships it is tantamount to superpower in electric industry."—E. H. Thomas, Seattle, Wash.

A birdie with a yellow bill Hopped upon the window sill, Cocked—his tiny little head:
"Drink more milk!" is what he said.
(With apologies to R.L.S.)

MARION CENTER DAIRY
Pure Aerated
Milk and Cream
CHARLEVOIX, MICH.

W. E. Parmelee builds storm windows.—Adv. 37-tf.

* * * * * * * * * * *
* AFTER DINNER MINTS *
* From the Soo News *
* * * * * * * * * * *

IN THE "SEVENTIES"

They did not use the telephone,
Few telephones were then abiding,
They called in person for to ask
To take a jane out buggy riding.

They did not join a motor jam,
A way through reeking gas fumes fighting
They called in leisure nearing dusk—
It was "at early candle lighting."

How fair it is across the years,
How pastoral the old, old scene!
The ladies did not smoke or swear,
What funny girls they must have been.

A correspondent mentions in a little wheeze contributed to these parts that fifty years ago, "women wore bustles, nobody discussed the price of gasoline and nobody listened in on a telephone.

So far as the contribution goes it is correct, but it isn't a summary of the placid 'seventies, else the literature of the time und the reminiscences of folk who were active then are all wrong. The 'seventies were the golden age.

It was before the day of surgical operations, before the day of intensified hygiene, before the day when physical well-being seemed the he-all and end-all of mankind. People doubtless became ill but symptoms and treatments were not considered a sprightly topic for conversation. There were other things to talk about.

The popular and almost the only soft drink was called the "milk-shake", u delectable concoction that persisted even in the face of ice cream soda water for twenty yenrs past its time, and can be secured still, or could a year ago, at a little Italian restuurant in Chicago—spiced nnd fragrant.

Prominent families had hired girls—not maids, and from this distance it would seem that the life of the old-time hired girl wns one grand sweet song. Her hours of labor were from about 4:30 a. m. until 11 p. m., and all she had to do was the washing nnd ironing and sweeping and dusting and cooking. Cooking was a broad term, it included, for example, baking bread for the family, making sauer krnut, mince meat, canning nnd preserving. The old families canned stuff by the bushel, hy the hundred weight—hundreds of cans of tomatoes, dozens nnd dozens of cans of corn nud beans, squads of quince preserve, batallions of cans of penrs and peaches—and cooking included the job of making npple buttter.

Housekeeping meant looking nfter fires, carrying wood, polishing the Sunday shoes of the children, making rag rugs, quilting, painting floors, little chores like that.

And the hired girl dragged down $1.50 a week.

The country newspaper wus in its prime about this time. It was a weekly of decided opinions on every subject under the sun, and saturated in party politics. In a republican weekly, a democrat—any democrat—got shortshrift, and it was hard for a republican editor even to sny nnything decent about a democrat at his death, no matter how worthy n man he had been. Democratic editors of course, followed the same amiable plnn. Publishing a newspaper in those days was not a buisness—it was an nvocation, a calling, gesture. If the editor happened to have a rich wife he got along pretty well, but if not, he just got along. Every country weekly editor in the 'seventies subscribed whole heartedly to the story of Elijah nnd the ravens. He lived that way himself.

There were no movies, but the small town flourished. Minne Maddern, Mrs. Yeamans, Clara Morris and other very great artists played the bowl-and-pitcher towns, and were staisfied with a $700 house. Prices were low seventy-live cents for the best seats, in which theburglars and their families sat, and fifteen cents for the gallery. Bulcony seats ran thirty-live cents. People were poor, and what is more, thrifty.

It was a period of intense social activity. Without jazz, without the automobile, without most of the things that contribute to society as it exists today, the folks managed to have a lot of fun. Straw rides and ice cream sociables in the summer time, husking bees in the fall, and oyster suppers and sleighing parties in the winter. That was the gayer, lighter side, heightened by one or two dances and formal ball on Washington's birthday. For the rest, there were spelling bees, debating societies, nnd dramatic clubs, playing "heavy" stuff. But there was something doing all the time. There were even "taffy pullings."

Every young man had a pinno-box buggy and a pacing mare, and a dollar bill would make him the hottest sport in town. Twenty-five cents was the standard price for all entertainments, and Metropolitan Grand Opera stars sang in the mid-winter Lyceum at that gate.

All that fifty years ago—hoop skirts, chignons, tiny parasols and nrt and coquetry. Side whiskers, fancy waist-coats, bell crowned hats and heavy pompousness.

And in fifty years more?

DOUBLE WEDDING CHRISTMAS EVE.

Newly Weds Will Make Charlevoix Their Home

At a double wedding at 7:45 Thursday evening, Miss Dorothy Grams and Henry White, of Charlevoix, and Miss Esther Grams and George McFarland, of Carp Lake, were united in marriage by Rev. William S. Ross, at the Parr Memorial Baptist parsonage. Both Mrs. White and Mrs. McFarland nre daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Grams of this city. Mr. and Mrs. White will reside in Charlevoix, where Mr. White is employed on the repair work of the cement company's boats, and Mr. and Mrs. McFarland will make their home on a farm near Carp Lake.—Petoskey Evening News.

SANTA, XMAS TREE PROGRAM ENJOYED

Over Twenty-five Dollars Given for M. E. Orphan Home

The big event of the Methodist Sunday school for the season was the Christmas program, Christmas tree and the appenrance of Santa Claus at the church last Thursday evening.

The church was crowded with people young and older in years, but all young in mind. The program wns well rendered, Santa was in fine form and full of fun as well as liberal with gifts. A Christmas offering of more than twenty-five dollars was given for the care of the orphan children at the Methodist Episcopal Children's Home at Farmington, Mich.

Christian Science Society

Sunday services 11:45 a. m., subject, "God."

Sunday school, 12:00.

Wednesday evening service, 7:45 p. m.

The public is cordially invited to use our reading room and attend the services.

Notice to Taxpayers

I will be in Charlevoix at the State Savings Bank, Snturday, December 26, January 2 nnd 9, to receive Marion township taxes. Earl J. Shapton, Trens., Marion township.—Adv. 51-t2.

Unless you're ashamed of yourself now and then you're not honest.

Start the New Year Right

By trading at Levinson's. A good resolution to follow for the whole year. Both of us will be benefited.

M. A. Levinson & Co.

Overcoat Sale

Three Popular Prices

$20.85 $22.85 $24.85

Others at $17.85 up to $31.85

Do! Take the time to examine these values. It is by comparing values in shopping around that you discover where to save most.

Hand-Tailored Suit Sale

All of our highest grade suits have been marked down to an ordinary price $26.85 Extra pants with every suit at $5.65 Particular buyers,—here's a real opportunity for you to save money.

F. E. Cartier
Charlevoix Clothier & Dry Cleaner

TAILOR AND CLEANER PHONE 248

E. J. HILLER WINS LETTER CONTEST

Gets $15 Cash Prize in National Competition

In a prize letter competition held recently by the Northern Hemlock and Hardwood Manufacturers' Association, E. J. Hiller of this city, was one of the contestants and carried off the fourth prize of $15 in cash.

Mr. Hiller is to be congratulated on his success in the competition considering the fact that it was a national contest open to anyone in the country. The amount of $500 was awarded, which was divided into two groups, junior and senior, Mr. Hiller being in the senior group. The subject covered was "The many advantages secured in the utilization of grnde-marked Northern Hemlock, especially in building construction."

Sandel Family Reunion

Mr. and Mrs. Lou Sandlo of this city, entertained Robert Dickie nnd fnmily, Roy Dickie and wife, Sam Peters nnd family, Clifford Peters and family, nll of Charlevoix nnd George Dickie of Flint, at Christmas dinner last Friday. This is the first time in sixteen years that Mrs. Sandle has had her family nll together at for seventeen and all had a pleasant for seventeen und all hada pleasant time.

Norwood Taxpayers Notice

I will be at the Charlevoix County Bank on Tuesday, January 5th, for the collection of taxes for Norwood township. James Heeres, Trensurer.—Adv. 5112.

People who find prosperity around the corner have to know which corner it is.

Prest-O-Light

Storage Battery

A Battery you can depend on
A Battery that's low in price
A Battery with a reputation

I am prepared to give personal serviee to your Batteries for Winter Storage

All work guaranteed on All Makes and All Sizes. Phone 54J for service.

H. R. Fowler

113 Bridge Street - - Phone No. 54-J

Let The COURIER Sell IT for YOU

THE OLDEST BANK IN CHARLEVOIX COUNTY
FORTY-FIRST YEAR IN BUSINESS

1884

1925

We wish you all a Happy and Prosperous New Year

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY BANK
CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN
Nicholls, Buttars & Bridge, Bankers
THE BANK ON THE CORNER

LOCAL NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

Get the Habit—Read the Courier.

Robert Krulik spent the holidays at his home in this city.

Mrs. Frank Coatta left Monday for Greenville, Michigan, for an extended visit.

Mrs. Nat Burney of Detroit, is spending holidays with her mother, Mrs. J. Shrier.

Mrs. Edd Heise took first prize as fastest dish washer at n pot luck party lnst Friday evening.

F. B. Sloan of Chattanooga, Tenn., is in the city for a visit with his brother, R. F. Sloan and family.

Mrs. Glenn See, who has been ill at her home for the past week, is reported much improved in henlth.

Miss Isabel Hendrickson left Tuesday for Ludington, where she will visit relatives during the holidnys.

Ed. Deuell, deputy game warden, of Boyne City, was a business visitor in the city Wednesday of this week.

Henry Marshall who has heen sick at his home on Antrim street for the past few days is reported better now.

Kenneth Pierce is spending the holidays at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harris Pierce of Norwood.

Bert Carey of Detroit, spent the holidays in the city at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Carey.

Freemnn Coblentz returned Monday to Detroit, after spending the past week here with relatives and friends.

Floyd Alldread returned Wednesday from Boyne City, where he has been spending the holidays with his parents.

William Finucan, Jr., returned to Grand Rapids, Monday, after spending the holidays in the city with relatives.

Frank Robey of Detroit, is spending the holidays at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Herrick on Petoskey avenue.

Aubrey Block returned last week from Flint and is spending the holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Block.

The Misses Doris and Wilma Stevenson are home over the holidays, visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Stevenson.

Mrs. M. A. Levinson and two children are spending a two week's vacation visiting her mother and sister in Eveleth, Minn.

Stanley Cnrtier left on Monday of this week for Grand Rapids, where he will visit his brother, Clnir, for a short time.

Robert McCall left Tuesday for Traverse City, where he will spend a few days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John McCall.

Mrs. Charles Hull left last week for Chicago, where she will spend the winter months at the home of her son, Thurlow Weed.

Miss Druscilla Richardson of this city, spent Christmns in Norwood at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Richardson.

Miss Janet and George Dancer of Petoskey, were guests Saturday of Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Blakeslee at the James Gaskin home.

Johnny Woods is here from the Great Lakes training camp at Great Lakes, Ill., enjoying a furlough at the homes of relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Ruegsegger and family of Boyne City, spent Christmas Day at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Widdifield.

Miss Mary Mellugh, who is attending school in Traverse City, spent the holidays at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Mellugh.

Clyde Coulter of Boston, Mass., is in the city this week visiting at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alvah Coulter, on Park avenue.

Dr. W. W. Michell returned last Saturday from points in Florida, where he has been spending the past two or three weeks on a vacation.

Mrs. Sarah Emrey left Wednesday afternoon for Detroit and other southern points, where she will spend an indefinite period among relntives.

Miss Katherine Geer, who teaches school at Saginaw, Mich., is spending the holidays in the city at the home of her parents, Mr. nnd Mrs. Ruben Geer.

The Congregational Ladies' Aid Society will meet next Wednesday afternoon, Jnnunry 6, at the home of Mrs. Louise Elston, 210 Antrim street.

Mrs. Ruth Katz and children of Flint, arrived in Charlevoix last Saturday and are visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Hooker.

Dnve Eckinger left last Wednesdny for Flint, where he will spend the holidays at the homes of his children, Mrs. Roy McArthur and Harold Eckinger.

George Dickie returned to Flint, Monday, nfter spending Christmas here. He wns nccompanied by Mr. nnd Mrs. Ray Dickie, who will spend the winter there.

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Stevenson of Lansing, Michigan, are spending the holidays with Mr. Stevenson's parents, Mr. nnd Mrs. W. J. Stevenson on State street.

Harold McCann leaves on Fridny of this week for White Lake, where he will lay up his tug for the winter in anticipation of the early spring fishing out of that port.

Campbell Shaw, who is working for the Pere Marquette railroad out of Chicago, arrived in the city last Thursday to spend Christmas with his family, returning Monday.

Galo and Milo Chew left last Saturday morning for Royal Oak, Michigan, where they will visit for a week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bearss, formerly of this city.

Charles Gale of the Charlevoix Hardwnre Co., returned Monday from Toledo, where he was present at a Christmas reunion nt the home of Mr. nnd Mrs. J. G. Clarke.

The regular meeting of the W. R. C. will be held in the Moose hall, Thursday, January 7. Initiation and installation of officers. Every member is requested to be present.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Jacobs and small daughter from Grand Rapids, are in the city this week, spending the holidays at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jacobs.

Edward Shanahan arrived last Saturday from the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., to spend the holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lisle Shanahan of this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Preston and daughter from Petoskey, spent Christmas in the city at the home of Mrs. Preston's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Emrey, at their home on Clinton street.

Miss Marjorie Myers returned last Thursday from Royal Oak, Michigan, where she is teaching school, and will spend a short time at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Myers.

Loren A. Hart of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, who has been spending the past week at the home of his mother, Mrs. Cassie Hart, will leave Saturday on six weeks business trip through southern California.

The first of the winter colony of fish shanties appeared on Round lake Tuesday morning. It is reported there is about three inches of ice. This is unusually early for Round lake to be froze over solid.

Miss Irma Carey was delightfully surprised Saturday when received as a Christmas gift, a crate of oranges, grape fruit and tangerines from her chum, Vera Miller of Clearwnter, Florida. (Thank you, Vera.)

Miss Krulik of Detroit, nrrived in the city lnst week to spend the holidays with her mother, Mrs. Joseph Krulik. Miss Krulik has heen on the nursing staff at the Henry Ford hospitnl in Detroit for the past year.

The county snow plow arrived in the city yesterday afternoon, hnving cleared the road from Boyne City here and on M-11 as fnr as Bay Shore. The outfit left the same afternoon on their way to East Jordan.

Mrs. Joseph Courier and daughter, Bernice, of East Jordnn, spent Christmas and the week end in the city at the home of their son and brother, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Courier, returning to their home Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Usher and daughter, Louise Ann, of Grand Rapids, left Monday for their home after spending the past six days at the homes of their parents, Mr. nnd Mrs. Wright Carr of East Jordan, and Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Usher of this city.

The Epworth Lengue of the Methodist Episcopal church held a Christmas social at the church last Wednesday evening. Games, gifts and refreshments were on the program. Rev. and Mrs. Pollock were guests with the young folks for the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Scroggie, Sr. returned last Saturday from Detroit, where they have been spending the past month at the homes of their sons. They were nccompanied home by Val. Scroggie, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Scroggie, Jr., whn will spend the holidays here.

Kenneth and Albert Widdifield are spending the holidays with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Widdifield. Both the boys nre from Chicago, Albert n student in the University of Chicago, and Kenneth holds the responsible position as the western district manager for the Youth's Companion.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Meggison and small daughter left Tuesday afternoon for Grand Rapids, where Mrs. Meggison will visit for some time. Mr. Meggison will accompany his wife to Grand Rapids and go from there to Big Rnpids where he will attend school for the next three months.

Miss Mildred Parker, who is attending school nt Grnnd Rapids, spent from Wednesdny until Saturday of lnst week at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Parker. She wns accompnnied by Miss Ruth Ann Bedford of Grand Rapids, who is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Wm. Supernaw of this city.

On Friday evening, Mrs. Willinm Poole entertained her Sunday school class of young boys nt the Methodist Episcopal church parlors. The boys enjoyed a bountiful Christmas supper, a Christmas tree nnd games. Mrs. Poole has been a greatly beloved and unusually successful teacher of boys for a generation.

Pete Scott will operate the feed stable at 101 Mason street as in former years. Barn will be open for business Saturday, December 19th—51-t2pd.

BAPTIST CHURCH

The midweek service will be held on New Year's Eve., and the young people will observe the occasion for a watch-night service. Each one will contribute a sermon text. A social hour—an hour of song and praise—a period for light refreshments—and the transacting of necessary business will make it a very enjoyable evening. The Pastor expects to be present.

Sunday Service

The Pastor will conduct preaching services both morning and evening. In the morning the ordinance of the Lord's Supper will he observed and the hnnd-of-fellowship given to the new members. The new envelopes for our offerings will he distributed. The past year has brought us large financial success and we hope our efforts will he equally blessed the coming year. God always blesses a generous people.

Dr. Burns remained over lnst Tuesday in Detroit to officiate at the funernl of Mrs. Whiting, an old friend and ncquaintance.

The Pastor and officers of the Charlevoix Baptist church extend to all their best wishes for a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

PRIZE WINNERS AT POULTRY SHOW

E. J. Hiller Gets 3rd and 5th in Holland Exhibit

E. J. Hiller's Barred Plymouth Rocks won very flattering positions in the big Holland Poultry Show, held in Holland last week. Of three entries in the cockerel class, Mr. Hiller's birds won a third and a fifth place among a very large entry from all sections of the state.

Mr. Hiller has always been able to raise prize winning Barred Rocks. He is the only one left of the old bunch of fancy poultry breeders in Charlevoix. Some ten years or so ago Charlevoix was nble to put on a rattling good poultry show. At one event some two nundred birds were entered. Hiller's birds won then as they do now. Poultry rnising is a hobby with Hiller, and his birds are known all over the state.

FRIENDS ENJOY A MUSICAL RECITAL

Rendered By Loren A. Hart at Livingston Home

A fine musical program was enjoyed last Monday evening, December 28, when a number of friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Livingston to listen to a recital given by Loren A. Hart, who is visiting his mother, Mrs. Cassie Hart, during the holiday season.

Mr. Hart sang a number of groups of songs, well calculated to display his splendid baritone voice to the best advantage. Mrs. Stelter, Miss Vnanderlugen and Mr. and Mrs. Livingston rendered additional musical numbers which were also much enjoyed by those present. At the close of the evening Mrs. Livingston served dainty refreshments.

Notice to Hayes Taxpayers

I will be nt the Charlevoix State Savings Bank on Saturday, January 2, nnd Saturday, January 9, for the collection of taxes for Hayes township. Frank C. Burnett, Treasurer. —Adv. 52t2.

COURIER BARGAIN COLUMN.

Courier Want Advs. are One Cent per word per insertion. Minimum charge is 20 cents per insertion, for anything under 20 words. All Want Advs. are strictly cash in advance except to those who have ledger accounts. Please remember this when sending in your copy.

FOR SALE—MISCELLANEOUS

FOR SALE—Timber suitable for buzz wood. Phone Joe Clark, No. 7014f2. 52t2 pd.

FOR SALE—LIVE STOCK

FOR SALE—New milch cow, brood sow and four small pigs. Inquire Clifford Peters, Rt. 3, Charlevoix. 52t1 pd.

FOR RENT—HOUSE

FOR RENT—Furnished house. Inquire nt S. M. See & Sons.—52t1.

FOR RENT—5 room bungalow with inside toilet. Call phone 18.—45tf.

WANTED—MISCELLANEOUS

CASH for Dental Gold, Platinum, Silver, Diamonds, magneto points, false teeth, jewelry, and valuables. Mail today. Cash by return mail. Hoke S. & R., Otsego, Mich.—12-tf.

Start the New Year Right by using

Monarch Coffee

Of all the coffees offered to us, we prefer Monarch Coffee because of its splendid cup qualtiy. Our experience proves to us there is none better obtainable at any price, and it costs you less.

Milton Block

Inventory Time

We are busy taking inventory of our groeery and dry goods line. In going over the stock we find odds and ends that will be placed on sale at

Greatly Reduced Prices

Watch our advertising space in Courier every week from now on, as we will have some wonderful bargains for you.

A. E. MASON

A Better grade of Canned Goods

Buying the better grade of Canned Goods is a step toward economy in shopping that is well worth learning. It is much safer, too. We offer special prices on a few mentioned below:

Corn, per can.....15c
Peas, per can.....15c
Tomato Soup, 3 cans for.....25c
Royal Baking Powder, per 12 oz. can....50c

If you want the best, buy Hart Brand canned goods and Chase & Sanborn's Teas and Coffees.

MARTIN BLOCK
Opposite Post Office
Phone 12 or 142

NEW PALACE THEATRE
ATTRACTIONS FOR THE COMING WEEK

Thursday and Friday, December 31 and January 1

Charles Jones in "LAZYBONES." It is the most human drama since "Over The Hills." Based on the New York stage hit by Owen Davis. It is emotional drama of the highest type, yet bubbling over with laughter and joy.

Also a comedy, "The Heart Breaker."

Saturday and Sunday, January 2 and 3

Tom Mix in "THE LUCKY HORSESHOE." Feats of daring thrills, romance, pep and adventure make up the picture and continue throughout the whole. Direct from its successful run on Broadway. Tom's plays are better than ever.

Also a comedy, "King Cotton," and an educational picture, "The Panama Canal."

Tuesday and Wednesday, January 5 and 6

Frank Keenan in "THE DIXIE HADICAP." It leads the field. The swiftest racing film of a generation. Fragrant with the romance of old Kentucky. Showing the aristocrats of Poverty row, and setting the pace for thrilling entertainment.

Also a Fox News Reel. Travel the world with the News Reels.

SPECIAL SALE OF
AXMINSTER RUGS

We recently bought a large number of small size Axminster Rugs and on account of the number purchased, the buying price was right. We are offering the line to you as follow:

27x52 inch Axminster Rugs, Regular Price from $5.00 to $5.50, sale price

$2.50

Our show window is full of them. Look them over and you will admit they are the best rug buy you have seen in a long time. Get your choice while they last.

S. M. SEE & SONS
Reliable Home Furnishers

Neighbors

By
ROBERT STEAD

Author of
"The Cow Puncher," "The Homesteaders".

WNU Service
Copyright by Robert Stead

(Continued from page 10.)

"Would seem more natural to follow the old district boundaries, though." Spoof commented. "They say they are going to run the provinces from south to north—as far as the sixtieth parallel. There'll be an election next year. You might to think about that, Frank. It would be some honor to sit in the first parliament of Saskatchewan."

The idea struck me as grotesque. I said so.

"Why not?" Jean demanded, and there was fire in her voice. "Perhaps not the first parliament, but some parliament," she qualified.

"Some parliament," I said to myself. "Perhaps. If I had Jean to goad me on I might do—anything."

Spoof scraped a corner clear on the window pane, and said some lines about "Snow cold—in snow." It was something about a soldier dying in the trenches; not wounded, or fighting, but just dying in the snow. I saw Jean's rapt attention; the glisten of her eyes; the gulp of her white throat. What power was this she-man had over her? Was this all a thing of mind, or was it body, too? I had told myself that, animal for animal, Jean would prefer me. As I looked at Spoof's strong figure, well knit, well clad, I wondered.

In some way we put in the hour. I did not press the subject, the question, the suspicion which was turmoiling my mind. It was Jean's move. I waited for her.

CHAPTER XV

Spoof set his little table with a linen cloth and napkins and amazingly good dishes. The meal was to consist of stewed rabbit, with potatoes and carrots; bread and cheese and tea. Jean sprang up to cut the bread and make the tea.

It was not until we had finished lunch, and Spoof had rolled me a cigarette, and the dishes were cleared away and some sort of tapestry cover substituted on the table, that Jean saw fit to refer to her behavior.

"I promised you that if you didn't quizz I would tell you all about it, Frank," she said, suddenly. "You have been a good boy, and I will keep my word."

"By Jove, I haven't fed the bullocks," Spoof exclaimed. "That's what comes of having company. I really should have a man. If the governor saw me leave my guests to feed a pair of ungracious bulls he would be permanently humiliated. You won't mind, will you?"

We wouldn't, and in a moment Spoof was plowing toward his stables.

"You think I'm a wild woman, and pretty much of a fool," said Jean. "Come, this bench is a sad invention. Let's sit on the floor."

She went back to her station in the corner, and made me sit down beside her. "There, that's better," she said. "You think I'm a wild woman, and pretty much of a fool. Let's pass the first count. On the second we agree. Now I'll give you the whole story without frills.

"You know, of coorse, why I canceled our engagement. We've covered that ground; no use plowing it again. I believed I loved Spoof; I hoped he loved me. But since Jack's wedding he had avoided us. After our talk yesterday I couldn't stand it any longer.

"I woke up this morning, about five o'clock, thinking of him, and as I thought a vague, wild plan which had been haunting me took form. If Mohammed wouldn't come to the mountain, the mountain would go to Mohammed. You see, I have reversed the figure, as is right in this case. It was a wild idea, but once I got it clearly in my head there was nothing to do but go through with it. I knew I would be found out; I knew all that you and Jack and Marjorie would think, even if you didn't say it. But there comes a time when none of these things matter—do you understand?

"So I dressed as quickly as I could, and slipped out. It wasn't snowing then; the stars were bright and numberless; I got my bearings and struck out. As I passed your shanty I stopped at your window. All was dark and still. 'Dear old boy,' I whispered against your window pane, 'I wish things were different—but they're not.'"

She had laced her fingers again about her knees, but now she dropped the hand next to me, and it fell on mine. There was nothing surreptitious about it; it was deliberate, designed, aggressive.

"I had covered most of the distance before it began to snow. Then I was in danger for a while, but I made it all right. Unfortunately, Spoof is not an early riser. He was surprised to see me."

She stopped, and for a long while gazed right space, as though studying what she would say next.

"Well, I proposed to him. He refused me," she said quietly.

"Refused you? . . . Do you mean that's the whole story?"

"That's the substance; I told you I would leave out the frills. You can decorate it to your liking. One of the secrets of art is to not to overstate yourself—leaving something to the imagination. The more intelligent the audience, the more may be left to the imagination. You are an intelligent audience, Frank."

Through my absurd concern for, I hardly knew what, her adorable tantalization seethed in me like an electric current. And so selfish am I and all men—that it was some minutes before I realized that Jean had received a knockout blow; that she had humiliated herself to this man Spoof; that she had placed her womanhood at his feet, and he had spurned it. Just what it was for me to lose Jean. Just that same exact it be for Jean to lose Spoof.

"And he refused you—refused you!" I repeated, when this thought had settled clearly in my mind. "Jean, I don't see how any man could do that."

"He was kind considerate," she said quietly. "Said he was sorry; appreciated the compliment; any man might be flattered, he said, but it was quite impossible. So I am left dangling in space."

"Well, what next?" I asked, after a long silence in which, consciously or unconsciously, she was drawing her finger tips slowly up and down between the backs of mine. "What next?"

"Go home," she said, decisively. "Jack and Marjorie will be uneasy. You will see me home, won't you?"

Spoof took an inordinately long time to feed the oxen, but when he returned, with great blowing and stamping before opening the door, we were ready for the road. We took leave without much in the way of explanations, but with his promise to come and see us at least once a week.

Our long walk home was taken in almost complete silence. Once I suggested to Jean that we should let it be understood that she had gone to Brown's, not Spoof's.

"Just as you like," she said. "I don't care."

As we neared Twenty-two Jean took my arm, although here the path was good.

"Thank you so much," she said. "I thought you would, perhaps that you would go back to what we talked of yesterday. I couldn't stand that, just now. Do you understand? You are considerate; you are—an artist," and her face smiled wanly into mine.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

You will find high quality merchandise at reasonable prices at the Charlevoix Hdw. Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

EXCHANGES

Two cases at Port Huron are to be tried at the same time by the same jury. As a matter of information, a juror will be allowed to ask a lawyer at any time which of the cases, if either, he is talking on.

A Big Rapids minister has a Bible which was printed in 1548, and is still in a good state preservation. Many people with new Bibles, determined to establish as good a record, are starting in to preserve them now.

Even if Diogenes couldn't find an honest man he may have had use for his lantern. For example, a watchman at Grand Rapids, confronted by a holdup man, smashed him over the head with his lantern and put him to flight.

An old gentleman at White Cloud is credited with having a good memory because he recalled that he had forgot to pay for a buggy whip 30 years ago. And of course there is also the remarkable fact that he remembers what a buggy whip was.

The state highway department says an item from Lansing, plans to investigate all phases of highway traffic this winter "and determine the most common cause of congestion." Without looking into the matter, our guess is that it will prove to be automobiles.

Out of the appropriation of $6,750 for a city Forestry department at Jackson, the city commission has cut off the item of $1800 for a city forester, that of $800 for a spray outfit, the $650 for a truck, and various other items. However, it is said that enough money remains to assure the success of the department with plenty of good official stationery.

The mewing of a cat at Freesoil awakened a family and saved a burning house. Family and cat then had to flee, clad only in their night clothes and their cat's pajamas.

The snow removal machines to be used on the Grand Rapids streets this winter will be painted a bright red. Experience shows that it is too difficult to distinguish those black ones against a background of city snow.

W. E. Parmelee builds storm windows.—Adv. 37-tf.

METHODIST CHURCH

"The Spokesman at the Beautiful Door"—sermon at 10:30 a. m., next Sunday. This sermon is the natural sequence to the sermon of last Sunday, and is a good theme for New Year.

"Biblical Creation" — or What about evolution?—sermon at 7:00 next Sunday evening. Can a modern student of the latest and best culture believe the message of the bible? Spend a "Happy Sunday Evening" with the people of the church, and think this matter through. The special feature of the evening will be the Prayer Song under the lighted cross. All are invited to attend these services.

Sunday school at 11:45 and Epworth League at 6:00, bigger and better than ever next Sunday. There is a place and a welcome for those who have no other church affiliation.

Remember the midweek service at 7:30 each Thursday. The pastor will be in charge this week.

The bible literature class meets Wednesday evenings at the parsonage. The meeting is at 7:15 and lasts one hour. The first course consists of four studies in the prose literature of the bible. It is an invaluable preliminary course for those who wish to understand the bible in the light of present day methods of interpretation. The class program consists of class lectures and home readings. No questions will be asked of the members of the class, but they may ask as many questions of the instructor as desired. No examinations will be required. The pastor will have charge of the class. It is open to any person of any age regardless of church affiliation. A welcome and a happy and profitable time awaits all who attend any or every class. The first meeting of the January course of studies will be held next Wednesday, January sixth.

Junior church combines with the morning worship of the adult church during Jan. Let all Juniors be present at 10:30 a. m. Reserved seats will be kept for them in front portion of the auditorium. The pastor will preach a ten minute sermon to the children. At the singing of the second hymn they will march to the Junior room where they will be instructed in the history and doctrines of the church by competent instructors. At the close of the month those Juniors who have been regular in attendance will be given a copy of the Gospel of John.

A Jackson chimney sweep expresses satisfaction over the prospective use of soft coal, as it will make more work for him. It's an ill wind that blows nobody soot.

It is related of a Detour hunter that he saw a deer coming toward him and was about to shoot it when he saw that it was being pursued by a wolf, and waited and shot the latter.

Electric light bulbs that give service at Charlevoix Hardware Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

Council Chambers, Dec. 28, 1925

The Common Council of the city of Charlevoix met on the above date with Mayor Bergeon presiding. Aldermen present: Bridge, Madill, Livingston, Partridge, Parmalee.

Minutes of meeting December 21, were read and approved.

The Finance committee submitted the followig report, having examined the following bills aggregating $1,621.66 find them correct and recomend they be allowed.

Water Fund

Morris Ackert, salary	$ 60.00
Harry Hammond, labor for Wyers	3.75
Campbell Boot Shop, sup.	.50
M. A. Levinson & Co., sup.	5.20
Traverse City Iron Works supplies	94.94
H. W. Clark Co., sup.	21.79
Mueller Co., sup.	10.80
Mich. Bell Tel. Co., toll	1.35
James Wyers, labor for Wyers	17.85
Bert Alcox, labor for Wyers	12.75
Baken, labor for Wyers	3.60
W. E. Byers, freight	4.03

Electric Fund

C. N. Bridge, salary	104.17
Floyd Rice, salary	50.00
Murley Plum, salary	50.00
Percy Mnrsa, salary	50.00
James Divis, salary	45.00
Chas. Hyers, salary	42.00
Dan Soule, salary	60.00
Robt. Allspnugh, salary	45.00
H. L. Richards, supplies	3.45
Westinghouse Electric & Mfg. Co.	6.29
L. B. Atchison, oil	63.00
Fibrico Co., supplies	84.82
C. H. Bridge, paid freight	7.60
Ernest Olney, labor	9.53
Abe Nowland, assigned to Bridge, unloading coal	23.47
Gen. Elec. Co., supplies	27.03
Cnpitol Electric Supply Co., supplies	24.08
Edw. C. Foster, drayage	17.04
Dan Soule, Exp. to Travrese City	4.66
Silas Glass, labor	10.50
Reed Genett, labor	10.20
Geo. Richards, labor	2.00
Traverse City Iron Works, work on shaft	10.75
Mich. Bell Tel. Co., toll	1.87
Wm. Byers, freight	21.53

Contingent Fund

Arthur Bergeon, salary	31.25
Elma H. Cook, salary	27.50
John Cook, salary	25.00
D. S. Payton, salary	70.83
A. L. Fitch, salary	62.50
Chas. H. Lamphear, salary	25.00
Mary E. Hamilton, services	12.00
City Treasuer, postage	1.00
Postmaster, box rent	.60

Highway Fund

Art Alcock, salary	57.50
Lou Sandle, labor	42.00
M. B. Hooker & Son, team	30.00
Charlevoix Courier, print	9.60
P. M. Ry. Co., rent of land	10.00

Fire Fund

Chas. Marshall, salary	42.50
H. D. Marshall, fire chief	25.00

Cemetery Fund

Chas. Hyers, salary	8.00

Bridge Fund

Elmer Johnson, salary	70.83

Police Fund

W. J. Weikel, salary	45.00

Health Fund

J. C. Luce, labor	15.00

Moved by Ald. Bridge seconded by Ald. Parmalee, that the bills be allowed and Mayor and city clerk issue orders for same. Motion carried by following aye and nay votes. Ayes, Bridge, Madill, Livingston, Partridge, Parmalee. Nays none.

On motion of Ald. Parmalee the council adjourned.

Chas. H. Lamphear, Clerk.

LEGAL NOTICES

Order for Publication

State of Michigan, The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate office in the City of Charlevoix, in said County, on the 23d day of December A. D. 1925.

Present: Servetus A. Correll, Probate Judge.

In the Matter of the Estate of William Evers, Deceased.

The above estate having been admitted to probate and Amandus Evers appointed adminstrator thereof.

It is Ordered, that four months from this date be allowed for creditors to present their claims against said estate, and that such claims will be heard by said court on Thursday, the 29th day of April A. D. 1926, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at the Probate office in the city of Charlevoix.

It is Further Ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of this order for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing in the Charlevoix Courier a newspaper printed and circulated in this county.

Servetus A. Correll,
51-t3 Judge of Probate.

ORDER FOR PUBLICATION

State of Michigan, The Probate court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate office in the city of Charlevoix, in said County, on the 3rd day of December A. D. 1925.

Present: Hon. Servetus A. Correll, Probate Judge.

In the matter of the estate of William H. Collins, Deceased.

The above estate having been admitted to probate and Hannah M. Collins appointed ndministratrix, thereof.

It is ordered that four months form this date be allowed for creditors to present their claims against said estate, and that such claims will be heard by said court on Saturday, the 10th day of April, A. D. 1925, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at the Probate office in the city of Charlevoix.

It is Further Ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of this order for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing in the Charlevoix Courier, a newspaper printed and circulated in this county.

Servetus A. Correll,
Judge of Probate.
Adv. 49-t3.

Order for Publication

State of Michigan, The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate office in the City of Charlevoix, in said County, on the 3d day of December A. D. 1925.

Present: Servetus A. Correll, Probate Judge.

In the Matter of the Estate of Janet Shapton, deceased.

The above estate having been admitted and John Smith appointed executor thereof.

It is ordered that four months from this date be allowed for creditors to present their claims against said estate, and that such claims will be heard by said court on Mondny, the 12th day of April A. D. 1926, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon at the probate office in the city of Charlevoix.

It is further ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of this order for three successive weeks previous to snid day of hearing in the Charlevoix Courier a newspaper printed and circulated in this county.

Servetus A. Correll,
Adv. 49-t3 Judge of Probate.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE.

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain real estate mortgage whereby the Power of Sale therein contained has become operative, which mortgage was given by John Pesek and Josephine Pesek, husband and wife, to Margaret M. Harsha, which mortgage was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Charlevoix, Michigan, July 5th, 1922 in liber sixty-four of Mortgages on page forty-one; and whereas the amount claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice is the sum of fourteen hundred eighty and 11 100 Dollars, together with an attorney fee of twenty-five dollnrs as provided for in said mortgage, and no suit or proceedings at law have been instituted to recover the money secured by said mortgage or any part thereof; and whereas the tax required by Statute to be paid on said mortgage was duly paid prior to the recording thereof.

Now therefore, notice is given that by virtue of the Power of Sale contained in said mortgage and the Statutes in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the premises therein described or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy the amount then due thereon of principal and interest together with the attorney fee, costs and expenses of the foreclosure, at public auction to the highest bidder therefor at the front door of the Court House in the City of Charlevoix, County of Charlevoix (that being the place where the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix is held) on the 20th day of February 1926 at ten o'clock in the forenoon on that day. The premises described in said mortgage being herein described as follows; to-wit:

All the north fractional half of the Southwest fractional quarter of Section Seven (7) in Township thirty-three (33) North of Range eight (8) West, containing eighty-two acres and 84-100 acres of land more or less according to the U. S. Survey thereof.

Dated November 16th, 1925.

Margaret M. Harshs,
Mortgagee.

Rollie L. Lewis,
Attorney for Mortgagee,
Charlevoix, Michigan. 46-t13

AUCTION SALE

The undersigned will sell at Public Sale on what is known as the W. A. Boss farm, 2 1-2 miles northwest of Ellsworth, on the Ellsworth-Atwood road, on

Saturday, Jan. 2

Commencing at 1:00 p. m., the following described property:

Bay Mare, 9 yrs. old, wt. 1200 lbs.	Jersey Heifer, 2 yrs. old, fresh in Spring
Sorrel Mare, 11 yrs. old, wt. 1200 lbs.	Jersey Heifer, 2 yrs. old, fresh in Spring
Durham Cow, 6 yrs. old, fresh in Spring	Full Blood Jersey Bull, 14 month old
Durham Cow, 5 yrs. old, fresh Jan. 6	Jersey Heifer, 1 year old, fresh in Spring
Guernsey Cow, 9 yrs. old, fresh Feb. 3	Heifer, 1 year old
Guernsey Heifer, 3 yrs. old, fresh	8 tons of Alfalfa Hay
Holstein Cow, 6 yrs. old, fresh April 10	12 tons of Sweet Clover
Grade Jersey Cow, 3 yrs. old fresh	5 tons of Straw
Guernsey Cow, 5 yrs. old, fresh May 29	25 bushels Sweet Clover seed, hulled
Jersey Cow, 2 yrs. old, fresh last Sept.	Set Heavy Sleighs Banner Range

TERMS OF SALE

All sums of $10.00 or under, cash; sums over $10.00, one year's time on good, endorsed, bankable paper bearing interest at 7 per cent, payable at the Citizen's Bank of Ellsworth. Five per cent off for cash on all ums over $10.00. No goods to be removed until terms of sale are complied with and all settlements must be made on day of sale.

Edward Klooster, Prop.

JOHN BOSS, Clerk
M. J. ANDERSON, Note Clerk.

W. E. BYERS,
Auctioneer.

D. T. McHUGH
General Contractor
Phone 214
CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

R. B. ARMSTRONG
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Special Attention to Diseases of Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat
Priest Bldg. Phone 255

DR. F. F. McMILLAN
Physician and Surgeon
Office above Postoffice
Phone 17
Charlevoix - - Michigan

A. L. FITCH
ATTORNEY AT LAW
Office in Court House
Phone 48
Charlevoix - Michigan

VIRGINIA RYALL BROWN, D. C.
PALMER CHIROPRACTOR
PHONES:
Office 347 Residence 39
Postoffice Building

FINANCE NEW BARLUM HOTEL

Federal Bond & Mortgage Compaoy Handle Bond Offering

Detroit's urgently increasing demand for greater hotel accomodations will shortly be nt least partially satisfied by the ereetion of a magnificent new hotel in the heart of the down town district. This atrueture will be known as the Barlum Hotel nnmed after John J. Barlum, who is president of the Cadillac Square Improvement Company, the organization responsible for the erection of the hotel. This notel will be located at the northeast corner of Cadillac Square and Bates streets, Detroit. Towering twenty stories in the nir with a hasement, sub-basement and attic this steel frame building will have a frontage of 120 feet on Cadillac Square and 100 feet on Bates street with corresponding depths on the other two sides.

The Federal Bond and Mortgage Company, one of the oldest and largest first mortgage investment institutions in the United States is under-writing the bond offering nt $1,-700,000; which is seeured by this building and real estate whose total value is conservatively appraised nt $3,420,500.

There will be 612 guest rooms in the hotel each with private bath and the building will include eight stores, four including the corner store opening on Cadillac Squnre and the other four entered from Bates street.

Particular significance nttaches itse.f to this new Detroit enterprise since the site of the Barlum Hotel has been a hotel site from upwards of a half century. Furthermore, the Barlum Hotel site rubs shoulders with many of the most famous architectural land marks of the city. But a step to the east is the Wayne County Building and just west is the Detroit City Hall. Across tho street and a little to the west at the juncture of Cadillac Square and Woodward avenue, the new twenty-two story First National Bank building occuples the site of the former famous Ponchartrain Hotel. Between Monroe avenue and Bates street on the north side of Cadillac Square is the twenty story Real Estate Exchange building. On the northwest corner of Cadillac Square and Randdolph street is the Lawyers building and between these two is the Gregory Mayor and Thom building.

There nre many unique aspects to the Barlum Hotel and to the first mortgage bond issue offered by the Federal Bond & Mortgage Company.

In the first place, the land site of the building has been in the Barlum family for more than thirty years. Mr. John J. Barlum, president of the borrowing company holds a place of foremost prominence in the civic life of the city. He is president of the following institutions: The American State Bank of Detroit, The Barlum Steamship Company, The White Star Line, the Barlum Land Company, and is treasurer of Thos. Barlum and Sons Company, and also of the Barlum Realty Company. He also has substantial holdings in many other large and successful enterprises. Thru his widespread activities in real estate he has earned a national reputation as a successful builder and operator of improved properties. He is the owner of the Barlum Building, the Barlum Apartments, the Wood-Barlum Hotel, the Dixieland Hotel and the Lane-Brynnt Building, nll Detroit properties.

It is of more than passing interest to observe at this point that all of the above buildings were financed by the Federal Bond & Mortgage Company and that in each case the issue was called by the mortgagor at a premium before maturity.

Associated with Mr. Barlum in the Cadillac Square Improvement Company is Mr. Thos. J. Barlum, a well-known Detroit capitalist who is vice-president nnd Mr. Wm. B. Thompson, former mayor of Detroit who is seeretnry of the corporation.

Some idea of the high income power of this building may be gathered from the fact that it is estimated that after generous allowance for operating expenses, taxes, etc., the hotel and stores will show a net annual income of $414,865.60 which amounts to more than four times the greutest annual interest charge. The bonds of this issue in maturities, range from three to fifteen years.

You will find hlgh quality merchandise at reasonable prices at the Charlevoix Hdw. Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

LOCAL LODGES TO CELEBRATE

January 2nd is the Date Set For Homecoming

Saturday, January 1st, will be observed as homecomlng day and celebration by all Odd Fellow and Rebekah lodges throughout the state of Michignn. A proclamation has been issued by Grand Sire, Herbert A. Thompson to the world Odd Fellowshlp, in which he urges that every lodge throughout the jurisdiction of the Sovereign Grand Lodge to observe the day in an nppropriate manner.

The following notification is sent out by the committee of the local lodge:

All local Odd Fellow und Rebekahs are requested to meet at the Odd Fellow hall on Saturday, January 2nd, at 7:30 p. m. to respond to the call. Appropriate exercises will be held und you are urgently requested to be present and you have also the privilege of inviting a friend.

Make this day a real homecoming, a day of all days in all history of Odd Fellowship.

DOUBLE BIRTHDAY SURPRISE PARTY

Chas. Carey and Mrs. M. K. Chew Happy Victims

Mrs. M. K. Chew and Charles Carey of this city, were pleasantly surprised on Monday of last week when about 51 of their friends dropped in and surprised them on their birthday anniversary.

The party, which was composed of members of the Baptist church and a number of friends, met at the home of Charles Taylor and went from there to the Carey home where they pounced in upon their unexpecting victims. Mrs. Chew wus presented with a beautiful pair of pillow cases and Mr. Cnrey, after a long and diligent search through severnl packages and numerous wrappings, found a five dollar gold piece, presents from their many friends.

The party sat down to a bountiful meal, the feature of which was a large birthday cake. Mrs. Chew and Mr. Carey were indeed plensantly surprised and the instigators enjoyed their mischief to the utmost.

LOCAL BOY WEDS CLEVELAND GIRL

Ceremony Performed December 20th in Southern City

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Nowland, who are spending the winter in Cleveland and Detroit, will be interested to hear of the marriage of their son, Frank Nowland, to Miss Lillian March of Cleveland, which occurred December 20th.

The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. W. O. Owen, 5489 Turney Road, Cleveland, by Rev. Cornell Miles, pastor of the Purk M. E. church of that city. About 35 guests were present at the ceremony and the house was prettily decornted with potted plants and Christmas creations. The young couple received many beautiful gifts from their many friends. They will make their home at 3206 East 55th street, Cleveland, Ohio.

BUSINESSMEN BUY BAY SHORE LAND

Traverse Men Have Acquired Ott Tract for Improvemeot

Through the civic pride of fifty-two business men of Travrese City, the Ott property along the bay shore on which the old saw mills stood is now owned in Traverse City and the city itself will have an opportunity to purchase it during the coming year. The purchase wns completed from a Chicago insuranee company which haa had it several years.

The purchase price was $10,000 and the men backing the proposition guaranteed this amount. This deal brings back to Traverse City the ownership of 784 feet of the most desirable bay frontage.

HOSPITAL NOTES

Elmer Ingalls of Marion Center, is receiving medical treatment at the hospital this week.

Grant Crandall of thia city, submitted to an operation on Monday of this week.

Fern Perry, daughter of Joseph Perry of East Jordan, is in a critieal condition at the hospital with a fractured skull, the result of a coasting accident.

Merrill Lee of Bellaire, was operated on last week.

Albert Dagwell of Indian River, had his tonsils removed this week.

GE WIRING SYSTEM
—for lifetime service
WOOD BROTHERS
—Adv. 43tf.

OVERHEATED CHIMNEY CAUSES BLAZE

Department Called to Shields Resident Monday Morning

The local fire department was called out at 4:00 a. m. Monday morning to extinguish a blaze which done considerable damage to the home of Mrs. William Shields, 913 State street.

The fire sturted on the first floor of the building in a partition between the dining room and a bedroom, presumably caused from an overheated stove pipe. The fire had gained considerable headway by the time the department was notified and only quick response on their part suved the building from a total loss.

The fire was confined to the two rooms mentioned with a little dnmage where the flames had worked into the second floor, and was extinguished without the use of water. The loss was covered by insurance.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH
Rev. B. G. Mattson, Pastor

The First Congregational church will celebrate the entrance upon the New Year by conducting the annual all parish canvass for the combined current expense and benevolence budget for the year 1926. Preparation has been made by the formation of a canvassing team of twenty men who will visit all the homes of the parish during the afternoon or Sunday, January third. At the morning service the pastor, Dr. Mattson will preach a sermon on "An Inventory of the spiritunl values of the Church." Immediately after the service the canvassers will dine together as guests of the trustees, dinner being served at Mont's restaurant. All members and families of the parish are asked to be at home during the afternoon to receive their callers and to be prepared to sign the subscription cards when presented.

As a preparation for this event the pastor and trustees are sending to all the parish u letter of information. These business-like methods are now the general practice of all well organized and efficient churches.

The evening service at 7 o'clock will be given over to reports and experiences by the canvassers.

Other meetings of the day will be the Ironton service at 2:30 and young people's meeting at 6:00 p. m. to be led by the pastor with the topic, "Whnt we can make of the New Year."

The services at the Congregational church last Sunday were well attended in spite of the stormy wenther. Dr. Mattson preached an end of the year sermon on the theme, "The Crowning of the Year." He dwelt on the varied character of our human experience nnd the qualities of courage, fnith and hope with which the noblest human characters have met life even in its hardest aspects. The spirit of the great and inspired voices which speak from both old and new testament scriptures calls us to share in the sublime faith that God is good and in that goodness we find the crown of all our years, of all our human experience hard or easy, joyous or sad, victorious or apparently defeated. None can fear the closing chapter of the tale of our years if they will but share in the confident experience of Jesus, the Son of God and brother of men who looked ever up into the face of God and found inspiration in His fatherly goodness.

The musical portion which is always enjoyable was rendered especially so by the addition of excellent instrumental work on violin and piano by Willard Smith and Raymond Faulkner in company with Mrs. Stelter on the organ. Mrs. Adams sang Gounod's Ave Maria with fine feeling and excellent voice with Willard Smith rendering the beautiful violin obligato.

Owing to the heavy storm and blocking of the roads Dr. Mattson was unable to get to his Ironton appointment in the afternoon.

The evening union service was held in the Congregational church with moving picture presentation of the work of the Near East Relief under the direction of Miss Stella Short representing the state committee on the Near East from Detroit. Gilbert Saltonstall operated the machine very satisfactorily. An enjoyable feature of the service was the singling of a choice composition of the Twenty-third Psalm rendered by Mr. Loren Hart. Offerings and subscriptions for all the Sonday schools and the union service totaled nearly $150.00 for the Near East.

No Sunday Milk Deliveries

After January 1, 1926, there will be no Sunday delivery of milk. Please get your week end requirements when the milk is delivered on Saturday.

Signed: William Witbers, Elmer Ingalls, Robert Gregory.
Adv.—51-t2.

The best of men are invariably men at their best.

Charlevoix Hdw. Co.

The great HOME MAKER

RADIO

See our new line of MUSIC MASTERS. The greatest GO-GETTERS yet, and the TONE and QUALITY are there too as well as beauty in the Machine and Loud Speaker.

COME IN and see 'em and hear 'em and you'll love 'em.

WE CAN FILL YOUR WANTS AND FIT YOUR POCKETS

Service also

Charlevoix Hardware Company

302 Bridge St Phone 1

EVERY day or two
SOME customer expresses
SURPRISE that we carry
CERTAIN items in stock—
LITTLE things that we DON'T often mention—
TAKE for example,
THERMOMETERS—something
EVERY home needs—and
JUST now while we sit
HERE and look over the STORE we're wondering
IF you've got a good
SAUSAGE grinder or if
YOU need a good sturdy
DAIRY pail; and do you
HAPPEN to know that we
CARRY a full line of
FRY oven glass ware?
AND here's a
DANDY vacuum bottle for
THE lunch basket;
LITTLE grinders to keep the
DULL knives sharp; and a
THOUSAND other items—we CAN'T begin to list them
ALL but you can come in
AND see them.

Forest & Clarence

WOOD BROTHERS

Hardware & Electrical Supplies

Buy Zeigler Range

Much Hotter and Cleaner—More heat for your money

All Coal
No Slack or Slate

You get what you pay for,—Good clean Coal.

Argo Milling Co.

Happy New Year to Everybody

The Greyhounds

Are You a Courier subscriber? If not, Why not

Ellsworth Section

ATWOOD

Dr. F. F. McMillan of Charlevoix, was in our vicinity Sunday.

Mildred Haan and Jane Groenink are visiting friends in Muskegon.

Mrs. Hastings is on the sick list. She makes her home with her daughter, Mrs. E. VanderSteed.

On Christmas night at 10:30 we very plainly heard "Silent Night" sang from Beeman, Germany.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. James Heeres, on Sunday, December 27, a baby girl. Congratulations to all.

A very pleasant birthday surprise was given to Henry Bos (Tillie) last week. All thoroughly enjoyed the affair.

Miss Irene Haan, who is teaching school at Hudson, Michigan, is home during the vacation period. She returns next Saturday.

In spite of the storm on Christmas eve., a nice crowd gathered at the M. E. church to hear the Christmas program. Every person seemed pleased to be present.

The following Atwood folks are radio owners: Aaron Harwood, Albert Harwood, Ethan Jolliffe, Albert Elzinga, John Bos, John VanHouten and A. W. Hartwell.

Mr. and Mrs. Furst and children and daughter, Miss Ethel, teacher of the Clark school, all came up from Traverse City on the Greyhounds Christmas morning to spend the day with Mr. and Mrs. Albert Harwood. Lester Harwood and wife of Northville, were also present.

Electric light bulbs that give service at Charlevoix Hardware Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

ANTRIM CITY

Jack Smith buzzed wood Tuesday.

Russell Spear was a visitor at the Stott home Sunday.

Mr. Baumbach hauled a load of hay to Bellaire Saturday.

Harvey Kauffman and son, Forrest, were visitors at the Brooks' home Friday.

Nelson Baker and mother, spent Christmas and the week end at the Baker home.

Mr. Brant, Mr. Robinson and family and Mr. Stott and family, spent Christmas at the Brooks' home.

FAIRVIEW-BANKS

Winter has come.

A Happy New Year to all.

Jay Kuiper buzzed wood for H. J. Timmer the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Kuiper left for Grand Rapids this week to spend the winter.

John DeGroot of Central Lake, visited Mr. and Mrs. H. DeGroot Sunday evening.

William Timmer left for Kansas City, Mo., Monday, where he will enroll as a student in the Sweeney Automobile School.

The Misses Ella and Gladys Shooks who have been visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tony Shooks returned to Grand Rapids this week.

George Postmus left for Grand Rapids, Monday, for a few day's visit. From there he will go to Kansas City, Mo., where he is employed by the government.

ROCK ELM

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Teboe ate Christmas dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Robinson.

Elmer Jensen came home for the holidays. Elmer is foreman for one of Porter's camps.

Miss Sadie Metz of Mt. Pleasant, and Edward Metz of Chicago, came home last week for the holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Kowalske and Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Spidle enjoyed Christmas dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Smatls.

Melvin and Oscar Tehoe and Ed. Robinson are taking out timber on the farm of Melvin Teboe for Dan Swanson's new barn.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Whitfield, Mr. and Mrs. Guelick Jensen, and Mr. Hansen helped Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Jensen enjoy their Christmas dinner.

Mrs. Jessie Duffey, our teacher entertained us Thursday afternoon, with a program and tree. The affair was a real success and showed labor of both teacher and pupils.

W. E. Parmelee builds storm windows.—Adv. 37-tf.

EVELINE

Lester Harwood of Atwood, drove over to Ironton Christmas and took his mother, Mrs. Phoebe Schaffer, back with him to enjoy the day with her children, grandchildren and great-grandson, Floyd Harwood. The day was a very enjoyable one and all expressed the wish that Grandma could spend many Christmas days with them.

CHURCH OF GOD
Wm. Eldridge, Pastor

Services January 3, 1926 as follows: Prenching at 10:30, subject, "God First."

Sunday school at 12:00.

Young People's Meeting at 6:30.

Preaching service again at 7:30.

Prnyer meeting each Wednesday evening at 7:30.

For all the news, read the Courier.

"COLD IN THE HEAD"

is an acute attack of Nasal Catarrh. Those subject to frequent "colds" are generally in a "run down" condition.

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is a Treatment consisting of an Ointment, to be used locally, and a Tonic, which acts Quickly through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces, building up the System, and making you less liable to "colds."

Sold by druggists for over 40 Years.
F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.

AT THE MOVIES

"Lazybones" This Week End

The William Fox production of "Lazybones" which opens at the Palace theatre for two days beginning Thursday, December 31, will have particular appeal for those who have lived in a small American town in the early 1900s, for the scenes are laid in Milo, Maine, a typical small town, and the characters are people one would expect to meet on any "Main street."

"The Lucky Horseshoe"

Tom Mix departs from the usunl western picture in his latest William Fox production, "The Lucky Horseshoe," directed by J. G. Blystone, which will be at the Palace Theatre, Saturday and Sunday, Jan. 2-3. For in this film, which starts out as a regular western, Tom appears for much of the picture as Don Juan, Spanish cavalier and lady-killer.

The cause of Tom's strange transition is a dream that comes about a third of the way through the picture. All through the dream Tom, as Don Juan, and F. Farrell MacDonald, as Pancho, his retainer, go through heroic feats of arms in behalf of Billie Dove, who is Lady Isabel, the fnirest daughter of old Spain.

Hamilton Again Dons Blackface

Lloyd Hamilton is seen again in blackface make-up in a portion of the "King Cotton" which will play at the Palace Theatre next Tuesday and Wednesday. Hamilton dons the attire and burnt cork to play the part of a negro mammy in a few scenes in the picture.

"King Cotton" presents Hamilton in a comedy of the cotton fields of the South and the big comedian has injected several new and clever gags into the two-reel laugh maker. There are few comedians on the screen who can approach Hamilton in portraying country boy comedy types and this picture gives him many opportunities to display his abilities along this line.

CONDITION OF MICHIGAN CROPS

(Continued from page one)

For the country as a whole, the area seeded to this crop, is 3,426,000 acres as compared with 4,088,000 the revised acreage estimate of the amount sown in the fall of 1924. The condition is 83.8 per cent which is 3.5 per cent below that on December 1 of last year and 6.1 per cent below the ten-year average.

Farm Labor: The supply of farm labor is estimated to be 81 per cent, and the demand 84 per cent of normal. The ratio of supply to demand is 95 as compared with 110 reported one year ago. While the ratio is less than December 1, 1924, the percentages of both supply and demand are greater than at that time.

FOURTH GOOD ROAD ESSAY

(Continued from Page One)

beauty is hidden and useless to a great extent.

A tourist from Virginia recently told me, "We have your wooded hills but not your lovely lakes."

A road such as proposed of proper width and whose trail followed the lake closely would not only be of tremendous value to shore and adjacent property but to the use of the benutiful lake itself.

It is just what is needed and I hope to find it there when next I visit my "old home town."

FROM OUR EXCHANGES
INTERESTING BITS OF INFORMATION CLIPPED

The Sturgis well in which drillers have reached a depth of 2,730 feet and are still going down, will be a very deep well, if they strike some oil.

"Nobody can tell how old a girl is by looking at her," says a Grand Rapids employer. However, you only have to ask her, and you can't tell that way either.

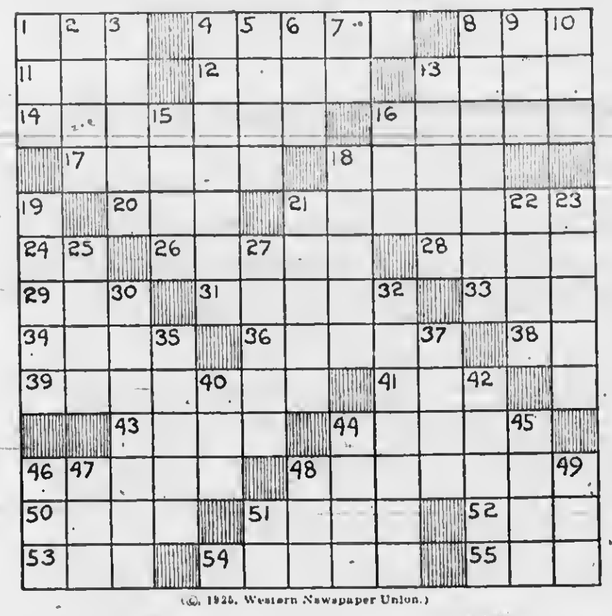
The 35 state parks which are open to the public were visited by 2,500,000 motorists during the past year, but perhaps many of them went there to park while shopping in the city.

"Tramps and sheriff first to sleep in the new court house," says a Midland headline. The fact that there was no trial going on explains why these heat the jurors to it.

The damage suit brought by the Grand Rapids owner of a bull fiddle which are struck by an automobile will be vigorously pressed. There were several spectators who testify that they say it struck and that the structure was jarred to its very foundations.

For all the news, read the Courier.

Crossword Puzzle No. 85.



(©, 1926, Western Newspaper Union.)

Horizontal.

1—Belonging to him
4—Disgrace or dishonor
8—Bovine quadruped
11—Insect 12—Halolike glow
12—A fine whetstone for sharpening razors
14—Unfamiliar or foreign
16—Threw off vapors
17—Liquid unit of measurement
18—Fleshy part of flesh or vegetable
20—A witticism
21—Small fish, usually preserved in oil
24—Belonging to
26—Of the nature of nuts
28—Wood of the agalloch
29—Short sleep
31—Female horses
33—Organ of hearing
34—The fleur de lis
36—More choice
38—Islands belonging to United States in southern Pacific (abbr.)
39—Group of people, an assemblage
41—Scarlet 43—Makes a mistake
44—To stave off 46—Belief
48—Those who barter
50—Established price
51—Precipitation of water
52—Body of water
53—Jewish territorial organization
54—Unit of measuring gold or jewels
55—To stitch

Vertical.

1—Possesses 2—Preposition
3—To play gently on a stringed instrument
4—A sacred place, or place of retreat
5—Mammoth
6—Part of "to be" 7—Mother
8—To collect into a treatise or volume
9—Unity 10—Married
13—Dutch girl's name
15—At another time
16—Animal's pelt
18—One who remunerates
19—A medicine
21—Wandering, or lost
22—Proprietor of the first ark
23—Uncanny 25—Gambling game
27—Mountain pools
30—Spicy red substance used for flavoring
32—One employed by another to work
35—A drunken carousal
37—Bamboolike grass
40—Skill in any branch of learning
42—Woman's costume
44—Musical piece for single voice
45—Woody plant
46—Prefix meaning three
47—To consume
48—Black, viscous substance
49—Observed 51—Sun god

Solution will appear in next issue.

AUCTION SALE

Having decided to quit farming, and rented my farm, I will sell at Public Auction at my farm in Atwood on Trunk Line M-11 on

Wednesday, Jan. 6

Beginning at 10 o'clock a. m. the following personal property to-wit:

Team of Horses, 6 and 7 yrs. old, wt. 2600
Team of Horses wt. 2650
Old Horse
Black Cow, 10 yrs. old, fresh
Red Cow, 6 yrs. old, fresh
Brindle Cow, 10 yrs. old, giving milk
Brindle Cow, 5 yrs. old, fresh in April
Beef Cow, 3 yrs. old
Jersey Cow, 3 yrs. old, fresh in April
Jersey Cow, 3 yrs. old, fresh
Jersey Cow, 2 yrs. old, fresh in April
Jersey Cow, 5 yrs. old, fresh
Jersey Heifer
Collie Dog, 2 yrs. old
250 White Leghorn Hens
7 Octave Organ — Piano Case
6 Cane Seated Chairs — Dining Table
6 Dining Chairs — 5 Rockers
Centre Table — Couch
2 Dressers — 4 Iron Beds
4 Mattresses and Springs — Commode
Rugs — Range — Heater

2 Extension Tables — 2 Small Tables
Kitchen Cabinet — Arm Chair
Creams Cans — Crocks
Fruit Cans — Clocks
Pictures — House Plants
Washing Machine — Tubs and Wringer
Some Bean Straw — Some Oat Straw
8 tons Alfalfa Hay — 50 Bushel Oats
Wagon with Box complete — Truck
Osborne Mower — Single Buggy
Double seat Buggy — Drag
Plow — Lever Harrow
3 Cultivators
Set Double Work Harness
Set Double Light Harness
Single Harness — Platform Scales
30 Crates — 2 Horse Blankets
20 Bushels handpicked Apples
Some Potatoes — 40 Grain Sacks
Grindstone — Bean Picker
Lot of small articles too numeorus to mention

FREE LUNCH AT NOON

TERMS OF SALE

All sums of $10.00 and under, cash; sums over $10.00; one year's time on good, approved, endorsed, bankable notes, bearing 7 per cent interest payable at the Citizen's Bank of Ellsworth. Five per cent off for cash on all sums over $10.00. No goods to be removed until terms of sale are complied with and all settlements must be made on day of sale.

Herman Poll, Prop.

H. J. TIMMER, Clerk
M. J. ANDERSON, Note Clerk.

W. E. BYERS,
Auctioneer.

Help our Merchants to help YOU

EVERYBODY will agree that a man succeeds and prospers only when he spends LESS money then he receives in a given period of time.

Let's apply this great economic test to the situation in this town: Our business men have invested—and continue to invest—their money in stocks of goods brought here to your very door to meet your daily needs.

Through the pages of this paper they advise you of their ability to serve this community. All of us know that they deserve our patronage. And remember, the more you trade with them the more funds they can invest in larger stocks and new lines.

Read the Ads. in this Paper

and save yourself money by trading at home

CHARLEVOIX COURIER

VOLUME 34. NUMBER 1. SIX PAGES COURIER, CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 5, 1927 PRICE $2.00 PER YEAR

SITUATION ON NORMAL SCHOOL

GROESBECK TRIES TO GET SITE SWITCHED

Fails to Kaep Promise Made to Seoator Paarson For Quick and Definite Decision

Retiring Governor Groesbeck held his predijuce against Petoskey for a normal site, to the last minute of his administration, despite the urging of Senator William J. Pearson and others to approve the recommendation of the state board of education says the Petoskey Evening News in its issue of January 3.

After promising Senator Pearson several times that he would get busy on the mnttер and in spito of the fact that Groesbeck requested Pearson to come to Lansing four times during the month of December, no action was taken by the former governor, and it is now in the hands of the Green administration and the 1927 session of the legislature.

Hectic measures marked the effort of Grocsbeck to foil the recommendation of the state beord of education of Petoskey as the site for the fifth normal.

It is reported that Superintendent of Public Instruction Coffey at one December meeting proposed striking out the work "Petoskey" in the resolution and inserting the word Cheboygan." This failed, according to reports, as did a similar one introduced by Mr. Cody of the board of education, with Traverse City as the substitute.

Messrs. Freeland and Jefferies, aro said to have stuck solidly to the first choico of the board namely Petoskey, and declined to be dominated by tha wish of the governor to have it in any place except Petoskey.

Senator Pearson's last conference with Groesbeck occurred in the last week of December, as which time he was assured by the retiring governor that he (Pearson) could have a decisive answer on the site matter at 2 o'clock on last Wednesday.

At 2 o'clock the governor was in Detroit, and did not unswer phone calls, his office there declaring he was in conference. After several attempts by wire and phone to get in touch with Groesbeck in accordance with his promise to Pearson and others, the Boyne Falls senator left for home.

Subsequent devolopments disclosed that in the interval Groesbeck tried desperately to call a special meeting of the state board in a dying attempt to secure an eleventh hour change in the recommendation of the members on the site.

With members Cody and Coffey ready to comply, ono moro member was needed. Mr. Freeland, according to reports was directed to haston to Dotroit by the governor, and abruptly declined. Mr. Jefferies could not be reached by phone, and the meeting did not occur.

Subsequently the former governor issued a statement that he would take no action on the matter and would wash his hands of the obligation imposed upon him by the act, and which was inserted at his own request.

The "stall" given Senator Pearson, and the lack of consideration in giving a straight forward answer by Groesbeck, was freely and unfavorably commented on by many Lansing men who had been supporters of the Groesbeck administration, who declared that in their opinion Groesbeck wanted friends and loyalty only when he could make use of them.

CHARLEVOIX SCHOOLS OPEN AFTER VACATION

Teachers Return From Vacations Spent Out-of-Town

The Charlevoix public schools open Thursday morning at the usual hour, after being closed since Wednesday, December 21, for the Christmas vacation, and the following teachers, who spent their vacations out of town have returned:

Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Northb and son from Bay City, Mich., Mr. and Mrs. Stawart Coleman from Lexington, Mich., Miss Eleanor Thomas from Williamston, Mieb., Miss Leona McKinley from Wboeling, W. Va., Supt. Coverdala from Almont, Mich., Miss Velera Koller from Howell, Miss Lamb from Shepard, Mich., Miss Elizabetb Hood from Adraln, Addison Oakley from Caro, and Walter Alexander from Detroit.

For all the news, read the Courier.

CHANGES ENDS AND THEN TURNS OVER

Alanson Man Escapes Injury in Pacular Accident, Christmas

A curious accident occurred on Christmas day, on M-13, about a mile south of Pellston, when a man from Alanson, by the name of Kleckler turned completely over in his Ford sedan and escaped unhurt. The car auffered a broken doer, glass, light and two smashed ribs in the top.

Kleckler was on his way to Pellston when about at the point indicated above his car skidded in the road, turned around end to end and, leaning against the banked up snow at the side of the road, rolled completely over, landing right side up on the tires. Passers-by wondered to see the car standing out on one side in the snow without any wheel tracks leading from the highway to the place where it stood.

Finally, Mr. Kleckley, who was alone in the car, managed to secure assistance and was put back on the road again in time to reach his distination before the turkey and cranberry sauce had been all eaten up.—Harbor Springs Graphic.

LIVE WHITE OWL SHIPPED TO PARK

CAPTURED LAST WEEK NEAR METHODIST CHURCH

Will Ba Added to Collection in Johe Ball Park in Grand Rapids, Michigan

A fine specimen of the snow-white arctic owl, captured last week by Clare Usher and Walter Bergeon in the alley near the Methodist church, was sent Monday to the park department of the city of Grand Rapids, where it will be put in the zoo at John Ball park.

The big bird had probably run into the church steeple or a electric wire and broke one of its wings above the second joint. Although unable to fly, he showed no other sign of injury and displayed a healthy appetite for raw meat and other bits of food. Tha owl had a wing spread of nearly 5 feet and showed a bad temper when efforts were mada to capture him.

This species of owl is seldom seen in this part of the country, their home being in the northernmost woods of Canada. This and neighboring states has been over-run with them this winter, they having been driven south in search of food. One look at their large beak and enormous talons shows why it is woe for the first rabbit, partridge or other small animals they come upon in their search for food. It has been a great number of years since this band of silent, white killers have made an invasion of the southern states, and their coming means the destruction of much of our small game life.

Numerous other specimens have been killed in different parts of the county this winter, but this is the first one reported locally. When seen they should ba killed if possible. If captured alive they may be easily disposed of at the various parks and zoos in the state, where their rarity makes them much in demand, or a stuffed specimen would bo a welcome addition to any taxidermist's collection.

ENCAMPMENT TO INSTALL JANUARY 15TH

Luncheon Will Follow Regular Business Session of Lodge

Attention of member of Charlevoix Encampment 19, I. O. O. F. is called to a meeting to be held Saturday evening, January 15 when the following newly elected officers will be installed:

C. P.—Harry Webster.
H. P.—P. R. Ross.
S. W.—Henry Ager.
I. W.—Floyd Ikens.
Rec. Scribe—Jud Hardy.
Fin. Scribe—John Bugbee.
Treas.—Oluf Nordrum.

1st Watch. Grant Crandall, 2nd, Wm. Cowan; 3rd, Andy McCall; 4th, Joseph Moore.

Guide—Ernest Howe.
I. O.—A. J. Hamilton.
O. S.—Fred Bergman.
G. of T.—Floyd Webster, Edd. Swanson.

A lunch will be served after the installation of officers.

Baked goods sale at Jacob's Grocery, Saturday, January 8, undar auspices of Pythian Sisters.—Adv. 1t1.

COUNTY OFFICERS TAKE NEW OUTIES

NOVAK AND EMREY CLOSE EIGHT OF FAITHFUL SERVICE

George Roderick, Clerk, and David Vaughn, Sheriff—Now Installed at Court House

January first in the odd year usually sees more or less change at all county seats, as the outgoing officials move out and their successors take their places.

In Charlevoix county, the opening of 1927 saw two changes in the court house. Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Emrey, county clerk and deputy, respectively, finished up their duties Mondey and Tuesday and turned the office over to George Roderick of Boyne City, the county clerk. Mrs. Roderick will serve in the capacity of deputy clerk. Mr. Rederick has served the city of Boyne City as clerk for a number of years and takes over his new duties with the full confidence of the voters who elected him.

As is generally known, Charles Emrey will take over the management of the local office of Kinsey & Buys, Grand Rapids realtors, and maintain an insurance business in connection. Mr. Emrey thus closes eight years in the county's employ. He formerly served a four-year term as county treasurer and the four years just closed as clerk, during which time business of the offices has been handled in a courteous and efficient manner. He leaves an excellent record as a county officer and will enter his new duties with the best wishes of a large following of friends.

The other change at the court house is in the office of sheriff, Charles Novak, who has served in this capacity the past four years in addition to a former four year term, having turned the office over to David Vaughn, also of Boyne City. It is with due respect that wo maka the statement that Mr. Novak has been one of the most active and efficient sheriffs to serve Charlevoix county. His future plans are not known. Mr. Vaughn has served in the capacity of deputy sheriff for a number of years and will no doubt make an efficient and conscientious officer.

James Simmons was elected to the office of county drain commissioner and all other officers, including A. L. Fitch, prosecuting attorney; Joseph Willism Flanders, treasurer; Frank F. Bird, register of deeds, and Willism E. Byers, road commissioner, were re-elected to succeed themselves.

BOYNE FALLS MAN PICKED UP FOR MOONSHINING

Pleaded Guilty and is Being Held in Jail for Sentence

John Harmon, whose home is four miles east of Boyne Falls, was arrested last Friday by Sheriff Charles Novak and Prosecuting Attorney A. L. Fitch for violation of the liquor law.

When brought before Justice Cooper, Harmon pleaded guilty to the charge and is now being held in the county jail for sentence. A still, a gallon of moonshina and a gallon of apple-jack were found at the time of the arrest.

Hear the colored gentlemen sing old southern songs at the Home Talent entertainment, M. E. church, Jan. 11.—Adv. 1-t1.

CURWOOD CABIN IS COMPLETED

ON HIGH POINT OVERLOOKING AUSAUBLE RIVER

Said to Ba Only Building of Its Kind On American Continent Today

In building this log manor in the style of the seigneurial seats of power where lived the French over-lords of the New France that once stretched from the Gulf of Mexico to Hudson Bay, and from the Appalachian to the Rocky Mountains, James Oliver Curwood has provided himself with the "atmosphere" in which he will write his next several novels, says the Roscommon Herald-News. These will deal in the romance attending reign of France in the new world, from 1750 to shortly before the American Revolution.

The manor though built throughout of native logs, is too pretentious to be called a "log cabin." The old cabin located nearby, in which Mr. Curwood did much of his work while writing of the lives and adventures of the Canadian Northwest Mounted, was well suited to that type of story. Now, however, with his skill turned to historical romance laid in a period whore, with all the discomforts of life in a new world, the niceties and courtesies of the social life of the Old World at the height of ancient French power was maintained, he has carried out in detail the physical likeness of one of the centers of life in New France of the period to be covered in the new historical romance, of which "The Black Hunter" is an example.

The manor, situated on the highest point of a plateau overlooking the valley of the AuSable, is constructed of great logs of Norway pine. The whole surrounding countryside was scoured to find the timber for the cabin, for in Michigan's cut over lands the great trees that once crowded each other for space have been cut years since, and such logs as were needed for the manor were hard to find.

The logs were peeled and treated with creosote before being used and the manor was built in the old fashioned way, the logs being saddled at the corners as they were laid, the ends projecting out beyond the corner. There is a great veranda along one side of the building, 38 feet long and 15 feet wide—large enough to permit the setting up of three 12 by 12 army squad tents on the porch itself.

The main room in the manor is 35 feet long and 20 feet wide and the floor is covered with a great old-fashioned rag rug, woven on a hand loom as were the carpets of the old days. There are two bedrooms, each 15 by 14 feet, and a kitchen 15 by 10 feet in dimensions.

The manor presents the appearance of a long, low building, the low, sloping roof of brown shingles continuing in a long sweep from gable to the edge of the wide veranda.

Of the entire structure, the one part of which Mr. Curwood is probably the proudest, is the fireplace and chimney. The chimney has been constructed so that the effect is as though the gods themselves had dumped down a great pile of stones of every conceivable size and color, and man had taken advantage of it to create his smokestack through the pile.

Stones of two tons and upwards in weight have been built into the chimney, requiring special tackle to hoist them into place. The weight of the chimney is so great—being more than 300 tons—that it was necessary to build a rock, steel and concrete foundation containing 36 tons of material, upon which to build the chimney

The firsplace is six feet wide and four feet high, and the field stones of which it is constructed project for about three feet on either side of the opening, and for four feet above. Instead of a mantle, a great white pine log has been set in the structure above the fireplace.

The fireplace has been fitted with all of the old cooking equipment of the original log manors of the seigneurs. Many of the meals to be served in the manor will be prepared over the log fires, as in the ancient manor.

There is not another such building on the American continent today, believes Mr. Curwood, and great interest was shown in it by visitors during its construction. This was practicularly noticeable during the tourist season, and it finally became necessary to provide a special parking place for the cars of people who came to see the building, and to station a watchman to keep the visitors from

(Continued on page six.)

NEW PRICE SCHEDULE ON

SUBSTANTIAL REDUCTION ON CHEVOLET LINE

This Classy Line of Automobiles Now Within Reach of All Prospective Buyars

Co-incident with the introduction of a new line of cars, the Chevolet Motor company announces a substantial price reduction, effective immediatoly.

On the closed car line, the reductions range from $20 to $50. The new open car price is $525, with balloon tires and disc wheels as standard equipment, whereas the former open car price was $510 without balloon tires and disc wheels.

New and old prices of Chevolet cars are as follows;

Model	New	Old
Coach	$595	$645
Coupe	$625	$645
Sedan	$695	$735
Landau	$745	$765

Touring and roadsters $525 with balloons and disc wheels, old price $510 without balloons. $535 with balloons.

A seventh model, the sport cabriolet, equiped with a rumble seat and added to the line this year, is listed at $715. The half-ton-truck price is now $395. Last year, without balloon tires and other improvements made this year, the one-half-ton model price was $375. The one-ton truck price remains unchanged at $495. All prices f. o. b. Flint, Michigan. The new truck line incorporates the same improvements that have been embodied in the passenger car line, including the addition of an air cleaner and an oil filter.

METHODIST CHURCH ANNUAL WATCH NIGHT

Fine Program and General Good Time Was Enjoyed

Another very pleasing and helpful watch night service was held last Friday evening in the Methodist Episcopal church. This is an annual affair with this church, and is proving very popular, especially with the younger set. Special features of the occasion were, Miller's orchestra, which rendered several pleasing selections; an instrumental solo by Teddy Miller, piano selections, violin piano and organ trio, a symposium of readings, choral singing, games and refreshments, the communion service and candle lighting at twelve o'clock, and a sermon by the pastor in the early part of the evening. Tha ringing of the church bell was not in the program, it being rung without permission from those in authority. Perhaps it was a neighborly echo to the bells of Petoskey, where all the church bells were officially rung at midnight. A very large attendance of old and young was present and stayed through the entire service. Happy New Years were said and a happy company of people began the new year with renewed religious fervor.

Baked goods sale at Jacob's Grocery, Saturday, January 8, under auspices of Pythian Sisters.—Adv. 1t1.

Old newspapers for sale at this office. 5c per package.

WANTS CLOSED DEER SEASON

UPPER PENINSULA SPORTSMEN BACK MOVEMENT

Will Present Proposition Before Legislature at the Coming Session

There will be a concerted effort during the coming legislative session to close the season indefinitely upon deer. This sentiment is uncovered in sections where summer tourist traffic has been heaviest. It will bo recalled that a prominent upper peninsula banker remarked last year that a live deer in the woods was worth more to Michigan residents than 50 dead deer hung up on hunting camp poles. Up there they claim that the sight of a deer crossing in front of a tourist automobile or found feeding timidly in the hardwoods is one of the best selling talks for recreation in Michigan. This is easily understood and should come in for the consideration of those who eventually aim to make Michigan the nation's summer playground. Once let the public at large get interested in our wild life, the hunters will find that the lenient bags allowed in the past will not be granted them so willingly by our lawmakers as they have been heretofore. Judging by present sentiment it wouldn't be surprising if we were facing a closed deer season within the next year or two.

Never until the last fall has Michigan witnessed the number of deer hunters in the woods. As an indication of the strength of this high powered army, the record at Lansing shows that 50,000 deer licenses were printed for the 1926 season. And before the opening day the department of conservation found it necessary to renumber and send out thousands of unused 1925 licenses to county clerks and conservation officers, whose 1926 quota were sold and distributed before the first shot was fired.

As usual the deer covers of the upper peninsula bore the brunt of the hunting. Officers stationed at the Straits of Mackinaw claim that at least 10,000 more deer hunters crossed at that point than last year. This does not mean that the northern counties of lower Michigan were without their buck trekkers. In fact the number of tenting parties throughout the territory maintained by hunters who could not secure cabin or shack accommodation established a record. At one point, about five miles west of Grayling and running clear through to the Alpena and Alcona counties and down into the valley of the AuSable there was hardly a half mile that didn't support one or more of these white homes. And interspersed were hundreds of deserted cadin commandered by trophy hunters.

Contrary to the usual stories going out from camps every year the hunters were almost unanimous in reporting plenty of four footed game. It is rather difficult at present to find anyone who is not sold on the one buck law for it has proven its worth as a conserver of deer life. There is a great predominance of does and fawns over bucks.

A record kept by hunters stationed near McMasters Bridge on the main branch of the AuSable covering the first seven days of open season revealed that they had seen 35 does and fawns and only five bucks. This same proportion held true in the country surrounding the Turtle Lake Club, one of the most fertile deer covers. There is no doubt that does outnumber bucks. It could not be otherwise, but even with the great difference the average camp had from one to three deer hanging on poles the first three days of the open season. This kill is at least average and as good as in the years preceding the present law.

Weather conditions during the first week favored the game. Instead of the much desired snow for tracking purposes the hunters were greeted with almost a steady downpour of rain, making traveling extremely wet. However, before the week was over snow fell and with tha deer in the swamps, after having been driven from the hills and tha hardwoods the usual drives set in and those who missed out during the early days were given their chance.

Last year estimates placed the bag at approximately 10,000. This year it will exceed the 20,000 mark.—Arenac Independent.

Tobogganing

The CHARLEVOIX COURIER
Issued every Wednesday at
CHARLEVOIX - MICHIGAN

DuBois & Usher, Publishers
A. J. Usher, Editor and Business Mgr.
Courier Building Van Pelt Place

Entered at the Post Office in Charlevoix, Mich., as second class matter.

Member Michigan Press Ass'n

Advertising Rates

For advertising rates apply for schedule.

Notices of church or lodge socials and entertainments, where admission is charged, regular rates.

Obituary poetry, regular rates.

Card of Thanks, 25 cents.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

One copy, one year.....$2.00
One Copy, six months.....$1.00
One Copy, three months.....$ .60

A SOUND NATIONAL STRUCTURE

The year 1926 has rolled around, and we are ready to enter 1927 with less to mar our industrial, political and economic life than at any time in our history.

Business as a whole, including every line of activity, is doing a lot more close thinking, one might say philosophical thinking, on the relationship it bears toward the public, the workers and the investors. The result is that we have the best industrial, labor and financial structure that we have ever enjoyed.

Such a condition could not be brought about by one-sided prosperity—it is the result of the greater majority of our people understanding fundamental questions affecting our local, state and national life, and sharing in the benefits resulting from a sound solution of such problems.

It is probable that no nation ever came so nearly representing the spirit of love on earth and good will toward man, as the United States does today. Such a policy has taken us much farther along the road of happiness than would fighting, discord and controversy. In addition to being morally and spiritually right, this policy has been right from a business standpoint.

Therefore, as we enter the new year, we should check up on our recent progress and endeavor to strengthen our constructive program which has brought to us such remarkable results, as a nation and as individuals.

WAGES AND PROSPERITY

"The day of labor's martyrdom is over, at least in America," says James J. Davis, U. S. secretary of labor. "Labor has come of age, and its birthright in the future shall never be a mess of pottage."

His Paean of praise is based on the general prosperity of the country and the way in which labor has entered into that prosperity, and thereby shared in the general contentment.

"Since the 43,000,000 American workers," he adds, "are by far the nation's greatest consumers and buyers, the business men of the country are convinced that well-paid workers constitute a vast asset. The American employer has adopted this policy of an ample wage, and the profit returns to all of us in this state of general employment, vast production and nation-wide prosperity we all enjoy."

Here is frank recognition, from the side of labor, of a situation seen and admitted just as frankly today by many representatives of big business and finance. The December bulletin of the National City Bank of New York says that the chief cause of the expansion of industry in these last few years is "a great increase in industrial efficiency, which has produced a wider distribution of wealth here than anywhere else and given to the mass of the people a buying power greater than that of any other country." It adds:

"The secret of continued prosperity is a fair and even distribution of it."

When both capital and labor recognize that fact, it is the best possible omen for the continued welfare of industry."

COURTS PROTECT PROPERTY RIGHTS

The State of New York lost in the United States Supreme Court three suits to compel New York City gas companies to provide gas at $1 per 1,000 cubic feet. The dollar rate was prescribed in a 1925 state law.

States may rightfully establish certain regulatory measures; but some restrictions go beyond the intent of the law and tend to confiscate or destroy. The intent in this case was the establishment of fair rates for the user and fair returns for the producers. The court held that the law in question was destructive; and that the state had no more right to take this gas company's property than it had to take the man's bank, or farm, or home, or horse, or purse. The law was held invalid only because it was confiscatory.

The big fact back of the decision is that even the state is obligated to do business according to the laws of business; the elements of labor, raw materials, service, capital charge are inseparable from ownership, and all such expenses must be paid for if the people expect the service.

NO LOGS WITHOUT CHIPS

Periodically, reports issued by state insurance departments are published locally with caption stating that the fire insurance business in a given state, for example, profited largely because losses did not amount to as much as premiums.

Like all enterprises, fire insurance is afflicted with operating expenses. Underwriters have to employ agents, clerks and officials, and pay taxes.

On the whole, operations of recent years have been marked with red ink in the form of underwriting deficits. In many states the companies pay out a great deal more in claims and expenses than they obtain in premiums. Only the growth of investment income, built up over a long period of years and maintained to secure policyholders, has made up loss deficit and stabilized the insurance business.

Most of the premiums received remain in the state where they are derived, being disbursed in the form of loses to policyholders, taxes, fees and commissions to resident agents. It is no more possible to carry on the fire insurance business without incurring operating charges, than it is to cut timber without making chips.

FARMING AND THE RAILROADS

Thomas D. Campbell, king farmer of Montana, who this year raised 418,000 bushels of wheat, 42,000 bushels of flaxseed and 25,000 bushels of oats, says:

"A sharp reduction in freight rates might impoverish some of the roads in the west. We don't want this. We want them to be prosperous so they can handle our grains as it should be handled. A 10 per cent reduction would mean a saving of only a few cents a bushel. We can send a bushel of wheat 1200 miles or more for only 20 cents. It costs a farmers almost that much for carriage, loss, etc., in getting it 20 miles to the railroad."

Mr. Campbell has the enlightened view of the rate question. Service is the prime consideration. The farmer gets his profit by intelligently increasing his unit output and reducing his own expenses; and not from freight reductions at the expense of the transportation service.

BRITISH INDUSTRY DEMANDS HALT

The Federation of British Industries have protested to Prime Minister Baldwin that British industry is being stifled by governmental interference and have demanded that a halt be called in social and administrative legislation. It is pointed out that the effect of getting money for social reform is impairing the competitive powers of English manufacturers whose position, according to the protest, has become so serious that the nation cannot be content with mere assertions. Burdens have been imposed on industry through a series of governmental measures and regulatory statutes of all kinds. The burden on employers and workers of pension and health and unemployment insurance contributions in the current year is estimated at more than two billion dollars. It is obvious that it is not only in the United States that government interference can be a serious and adverse influence in industry. Recently we have been fairly free from meddling in the United States, but there are many commissions and statutes which are still a banal influence in the industrial life of this country.

THE FAMILY BUGET

Our nation, state and political subdivisions have found making a budget of expenditures has helped solve many problems of administration. Every family should also learn to make a budget covering its principal items of expenditure, and among these, the support of some religious organization should not be omitted.

Every family would find a stimulating effect from being connected with some church organization, if only one member of the family belongs and attends.

In the same way, the family institution should carry in its budget a fixed appropriation for church support. The family needs the church—most families require marriages, morality, funerals and baptism.

Christian Science Society

Sunday service 10:45 a. m.
Subject: "Sacrament."
Sunday school at 12 o'clock.
Wednesday evening service 7:45.
Reading room open Tuesday and Saturday, 3 to 5 p. m.

The public is cordially invited to attend our service.

Cooks are important things—when you haven't got one.

The cause of crime worries many people but the crooks take it easy.

VALET
AutoStrop
Razor
sharpens itself

The Most Radio Satisfaction for the Money
When you buy radio, buy satisfaction. The Grebe Synchrophase is not cheap, but it is economical, because you get the most radio satisfaction per dollar spent.
It's easy to prove this. We'll gladly do so if you will come to our store today.
The GREBE SYNCHROPHASE
Also supplied with battery base

Withers' Variety Store AUTHORIZED DEALER

PHOENIX HOSIERY

This well known brand of hosiery at moderate prices can be had in the new shades. An all silk hose in service-weight or chiffon at

$1.95

M. A. Levinson & Co.

Save Money While You Have The Chance

Christmas and New Years has passed and our hundreds of customers favored us with a mighty nice business. Now our desire is to impress on your minds that the Big Two-in-One Sale is still on. You know that every article on sale is merchandise of every-day use—all seasonable goods, and that our prices are so low that it will mean a big saving to you to stock up while the sale is on.

We are very busy right now with our annual inventory. In going over the line of goods, we have discovered greater bargains than previously offered. If rock-bottom prices will sell merchandise, this stock will soon be cleaned up. You cannot realize what these offerings are until you visit the store and look them over yourself.

Here Are Offerings That You Cannot Afford to Miss:

HORSE BLANKETS FOR THE FARMERS

8 Stable Blankets, valued at $3.50 to close out at $2.00
6 large Wool Street Blankets, valued at $9.00 to close out at $5.00
4 large Street Blankets, valued at $6.00 to close out at $4.00

A LARGE ASSORTMENT OF HORSE COLLARS TO CLOSE OUT AT

ONE-HALF PRICE

FOR THE WORKING MAN

$1.50 Overalls or Jackets, closing out price.....98c
25c Canvas Gloves, to close out at.....19c
15c Canvas Gloves, closing out price.....11c
75c Heavy Wool Socks, closing out price.....49c
60c medium weight Wool Socks, your choice.....39c

The store is full of bargains we do not mention in this advertisement. A greater price reduction is now on. We are determined to dispose of this entire stock regardless of price. Buying merchandise of quality at prices offered during this sale is an opportunity seldom given. Visit the store and see our offerings—THEN BUY WHAT YOU NEED.

BENJAMIN BROWN

Choral Vesper Service

The choral vesper service at the Congregational church last Sunday afternoon was much appreciated by the music lovers of the city.

The church choir was assisted by other Charlevoix singers and a group of musicians from Petoskey in rendering "Holy Night," a Christmas Cantata by E. L. Ashford.

Stork Leaves Xmas Present

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Jardine are the proud parents of an 8½ pound baby boy, Donnld Douglas, who arrived at their home on Christmas Day. Thirty-one years ago the same day Mr. and Mrs. George Jardine, parents of the young couple were married. Seeing that it was the Jardine Sr.'s wedding anniversary, Santa said the baby would have to be a gift to both families.

Who remembers when a girl with an unattractive face had to let it go at that?

Preserve Your Health

By keeping your Home warm with our famous

BLUE JACKET COAL

Buy your coal by the size of your ash pile—Blue Jacket—is low in ash, high in heat. It pays—Try it.

Argo Milling Company

LYDIA of the Pines

by HONORÉ WILLSIE

WNU SERVICE COPYRIGHT by FREDERICK A. STOKES CO.

CHAPTER XVIII

Cap and Gown

The fifteen dollars, after all, were disposed of in a highly satisfactory manner. They paid for Lydia's cap and gown. Perhaps there were other members of the class to whom their senior insignia meant as much as they did to Lydia, but that is to be doubted.

In a way, Lydia's conscience smote her. She knew that her father was worrying over her attitude on her inheritance, but she continued to avoid the issue with him while the estate was being settled. Lydia was doing heavy work in college. She actually had entered all the classes in dairying possible, while carrying her other college work. And she enjoyed the new work amazingly.

Early in December, the settlement of the Levine estate was completed. John's method of "shoestringing" his property was disastrous as far as the size of Lydia's heritage went. As nearly as she could understand, one portion of the estate was used to pay up the indebtedness of another portion, until all that was left was the cottage, with a mortgage on it, and three hundred and twenty acres of land on the reservation.

"Oh, daddy!" cried Lydia, "we can't take it! Don't you see we can't?"

"I can't understand why you act so like a fool," began Amos, querulously. "And I can't see why you set your judgment up as better than mine. I swan—even your mother never did that, except on borrowing money. We won't keep the land. We'll sell it and have the money to clear up the mortgage on the cottage." He took a turn up and down the room. "I can't see what's happened to children nowadays. In my day we obeyed. Lydia, I'm not going to discuss this any longer. You've got to take that land."

Lydia sat with her thin hands clasped before her on the table, her clear eyes fastened on her father's face.

Amos looked down at his daughter grimly. "Can't you see what a fool you are?" he shouted. "The land can never go back to the Indians. John took good care of that. If you don't take it, somebody else will. Can't you see!"

"I'll do anything you want but this, dad," she said.

"But—this is all I want. It's what I've wanted for years, this little bit of land. And you haven't any idea what that feeling is."

Like a flash Lydia saw again long aisles of pines, smelled again the odor of the needles, heard again the murmuring call of the wind.

"Good God!" cried Amos, tossing his pipe on the table, "poverty's hounded me all my life—poverty and death. The only two people who cared about me, Patience and Levine're gone. Yet here's the chance for me to be independent. Here's a chance for me to make up for the failure I've made of life. A man with a little piece of property like this and a little bank account is somebody in the community. What do I care how I get it, as long's I can hold it? What's a lot of dirty Indians to stand between me and my future? But what do you care?"

"O daddy! O daddy! How can you talk so to me!" groaned Lydia. She put her hands over her eyes for a moment, swallowed a sob and then started for the outer door. She caught her coat from the nail and closed the door behind her.

An irresistible impulse had carried her from the house. She wanted to see Billy. It was still early and a lantern flickered in the Norton barnyard. She ran across to the shed door. Billy was whistling to himself as he began to bed down the cattle for the night. Lydia looked at him eagerly in the dim light. How big and strong he was!

"Billy!" she said, softly.

The young man dropped his pitchfork and came toward her. "What's the matter, Lydia!" he exclaimed.

"Dad and I've been having an awful quarrel."

"About the land?" asked Billy quickly.

Lydia nodded. "Oh, I don't know what to do!" And then, not having meant to do so at all, she suddenly began to cry.

"Why can't they let you alone, d—n 'em!" exclaimed Billy, furiously. "Come away from that cold doorway, dear." And he led her into the warm stable and over to a harness box. "There," pulling her down beside him on the box, and putting his arm about her, "don't cry, Lydia. I can't stand it. I'm liable to go over and say things to your father and Kent. I'll tell 'em both, some time, when I think of their bullying you this way."

A vague, warm sense of comfort and protection was stilling Lydia's trembling. She rose and looked up into his face gratefully. "I don't see why you're so good to me," she said.

"Do you want me to tell you?" began the young man eagerly.

"No! No!" Lydia began to move hastily toward the door. "Don't come home with me, Billy. I'll just run back alone."

Billy's face in the lantern light was inscrutable. "I'll obey tonight, Lydia," he said, "but the time's coming, when I won't," and he picked up the pitchfork he had dropped.

With the sense of comfort and protection sustaining her, Lydia went homeward under the winter stars. Kent's automobile was standing before the gate and Lydia's heart sank. It was the first time in her life she ever had been sorry at the thought of seeing Kent.

He was sitting before the base burner with her father and jumped up to help her take her coat off. He greeted her soberly.

"Your father's been telling me about your discussion, Lyd," he said. "You can't mean to stick by your decision!"

Lydia sat down wearily. "Oh, Kent, don't you begin at me, too."

"Now look here, Lydia," began Kent, "let's begin at the beginning and sift this thing out," and once more he began his arguments on the Indian question.

"Don't you see?" he ended finally.

"I see how you feel, yes," replied Lydia. "But just because you can list what you call average American business deals that are crooked, you aren't justified in being crooked, are you?"

Kent threw out his hand helplessly and for a moment there was silence in the room, then he said, "Well, after all, there's nothing so selfish as your Puritans. Of course, every one but yourselves is wrong. And, of course, it doesn't occur to you that it might be a decent thing of you to sacrifice your own scruples to do a thing that would mean so much to your father."

Lydia looked at Kent quickly. This was a new angle. He would have followed this opening at once had not Amos spoken for the first time.

"Hold up, Kent," he said in a tired voice. "Don't heckle her any more. After all, I'm getting on toward fifty and I guess it's too late for me to begin over, anyhow. I'll plod along as I always have."

Billy's Face in the Lantern Light Was Inscrutable.

"Oh, daddy!" cried Lydia, "don't talk that way! You aren't a bit old. You make me feel like a beast, between you."

"Well, we don't mean to," Amos went on, "but I guess we have been pretty hard on you."

Amos' weariness and gentleness moved Lydia as no threats could. Was she selfish? Was she putting her own desire for an easy conscience ahead of her father's happiness? Amos went into the kitchen for a drink and Kent followed her to the window and took both her hands.

"Lydia," he said, "I'm awful sorry to press you so, but you're being unfair and foolish, honestly you are. You used to let me look out for you in the old days—the old days when I used to pull little Patience's carriage with my bicycle—why can't you trust me now? Come, dearest—and next year we'll be married and live happy ever after."

"Kent!" she cried with the breathlessness of a new idea, "if I should give in and agree to take the land, would you go up there with me and turn it into a farm?"

Kent smiled at her playingly. "Why, Lyd, there's nothing in that! Why should we try to farm it? The money is in speculating with it. I could clear up a mint of money for you in a couple of years, if you'll give me the handling of it."

But Lydia's eyes were shining now. "Oh, but listen! You don't understand. Mr. Levine drove the Indians out, by fraud and murder. Yes, he did, Kent. And yet, he had big dreams about it. He must have had. He was that kind of a man. And if we should go up there and turn those acres into a great farm, and—and make it stand for something big and right—perhaps that would make up for everything!"

"Lydia," said Kent, "be sensible. See, sway money on one side, and a lifetime of hard work on the other! Yet you act as if there was a choice."

"Kent, can't you understand how I feel?" pleaded Lydia. "Have you got a blind spot in your mind where money is concerned? Are all the men in America money crazy like the men in Lake City?"

"Sure," replied Kent cheerfully. "Oh, Lydia, honey, don't be so herd! Look at your poor old dad! Think what it would mean to him. Don't be so doggone sanctimonious!"

Instead of looking at her father, Lydia looked at Kent, long and wistfully. How dear he was to her! What an inalienable part of her life he was! What was the use of always struggling against her heart. Kent smiled into her face. Her lips trembled and she hurried to look at Amos. Suddenly Lydia realized how grey and broken he looked, how bent his shoulders were with work, and there swept over her anew an understanding of his utter loneliness since her mother's and Levine's deaths.

With a little inarticulate murmur, she ran across the room and threw her arms about his neck. "Oh, daddy," she cried, "I'll do it! I'll agree to it! If only you'll promise me to be happy!"

(Continued next week)

One crop that never fails is the sweet young things.

FLIT

DESTROYS

Flies, Mosquitoes Roaches, Bedbugs

STANDARD OIL CO. (NEW JERSEY)

Zonite

For Cuts and Wounds

Prevent infection! Treat every cut, wound or scratch with this powerful non-poisonous antiseptic. Zonite actually kills germs. Helps to heal, too.

Rheumatism ease the pain

Nothing brings such comforting relief as the original Baume Bengué. It starts to drive out pain as soon as you apply it.

GET THE ORIGINAL FRENCH

BAUME BENGUÉ

(ANALGÉSIQUE)

Babies Love It

For all stomach and intestinal troubles and disturbances due to teething, there is nothing better than a safe Infants' and Children's Laxative.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SYRUP

We have never been able to understand how some magazines get through the mails.

A good motto for living pleasantly with your fellow citizens is to let them alone.

Announcing—

CHEVROLET

for Economical Transportation

The Most Beautiful CHEVROLET in Chevrolet History

TRULY the most beautiful Chevrolet in Chevrolet history! Truly an achievement which must immediately change all existing ideas as to what the buyer of a low priced car has a right to expect for his money!

Here is the irresistible appeal of new Duco colors, fashionably striped—of that flawless silhouette associated with custom-built creations.

Here are score after score of advancements in design, literally too numerous to list completely—but typified by one-piece full-crown fenders, bullet-type lamps, coincidental steering and ignition lock and large 17-inch steering wheel.

Here is definite assurance of longer life—for all models are equipped with a new AC oil filter and an improved AC air cleaner!

The spectacular growth of Chevrolet popularity has sent Chevrolet production to tremendous volume. This, and only this, makes possible the manufacture of so fine a car to sell at Chevrolet's low prices.

We urge you to come in for a personal inspection.

A host of improvements including:

New AC Air Cleaner
New AC Oil Filter
New Coincidental Lock (Combination Ignition and Steering Lock)
New Duco Colors
New Gasoline Gauge
New Radiator
New Bodies by Fisher
New large 17-inch Steering Wheel
New Heavy One-piece Full-crown Fenders
New Remote Control Door Handles
New Tire Carrier
New Bullet-Type Head Lamps
New Windshield on Open Models
New Hardware
New Running Boards

---WITH THESE AMAZING PRICE REDUCTIONS!

The COACH $595 — Former price $645

The COUPE $625 — Former price $645

The SEDAN $695 — Former price $735

The LANDAU $745 — Former price $765

The Touring Car $525 — Price includes balloon tires and steel disc wheels. Former price $535 with balloon tires only.

The Roadster $525 — Price includes balloon tires and steel disc wheels. Former price $535 with balloon tires only.

The Sport Cabriolet $715 — Entirely new model with rumble seat.

1-TON TRUCK (Chassis Only) $495

½-TON TRUCK (Chassis Only) $395

Balloon Tires now standard on all models—All prices f. o. b. Flint, Mich., effective January 1st, 1927

PETOSKEY AUTO SALES

East Mitchell Street, Petoskey, Michigan

HENRY BLOCK, Charlevoix, Local Agent

QUALITY AT LOW COST

CORRESPONDENCE

BARNARD

School began on Monday after a week's vacation.

Mrs. Ed. Ager and children of East Jordan, spent New Years at the Wm. Ager home.

Miss Dorothy Gornell spent New Years visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Gornell.

Mrs. John Walker and Charles Barnard spent the holidays with relatives at their old home in Richmond, Indiana.

Miss Lena Walker was operated on for appendicitis last Monday evening and is getting along very satisfactorily.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Shanks, of Grand Rapids, and Mrs. Will Seegmiller of Detroit, have been visiting at the John Walker home for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Dhaseleer entertained about fifty friends on New Year's Eve at a progressive pedro party. Orville Hilton and Mrs. Ed. Gregory received first prizes while Mr. and Mrs. Louis Shapton got the consolation prizes. A bountiful supper was served and everyone voted it a very enjoyable evening.

NORWOOD

James Harris is at the Norwood town hall this week for the parpose of collecting taxes.

Mrs. Frank Richardson and son, Cecil, motored to Traverse City, Monday to visit relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Santos are ill at their home. Dr. King of Charlevoix, is their physician.

The Sundny school is being held in the school house and is growing in interest and attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Nowland and two children, of Petoskey, are visiting their uncle, Irving Lord and family.

Rosy May Henry, student in the Charlevoix high school, spent her vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Henry.

Charles Lord will return to the Ann Arbor hospital this week for medical treatment, after being home for the past six weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dann and daughter, Alice, of Petoskey, visited Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Richardson from Wednesday until Saturday of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Ypma, after enjoying a two weeks vacation visiting friends and relatives and fishing and hunting, returned to their home in Grand Rapids, Tuesday.

MOUNTAIN SCHOOL NOTES

A beautiful day greets us after a week's vacation.

Bert Staley caught a beautiful whitefish on Saturday.

Jim Wilson is home and is having wonderful success fishing.

Mr. Sanderson is the proud possessor of a new chicken coop.

Harold Towsley of Charlevoix, is visiting his cousin, Clare Staley.

Ernest Staley made a business trip to Charlevoix on New Yenrs Day.

Perry and John Lewis visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gould on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Sanderson and family spent Christmas with Mr. and Mrs. Seiler of East Jordan.

Mr. Scott, director of the Mountain school, oiled the floor for us during vacation. We appreciate it.

Esther Case of Charlevoix, is spending a week with her mother, who is teaching the Mountain school.

CLARION

J. W. Colden went to Charlevoix on Monday.

Mrs. Snrah Ecker is working for Mrs. Clyde Kent.

Mrs. Mnrgaret Kent has been ill for the past week.

Miss Evelyn Young is working for Mrs. W. G. Wener.

Mrs. Embury was in Alanson several days last week.

Mr. Howard of Chandler Hill Road was in town Monday.

Mrs. Frank Regan is able to be out again after n weeks illness.

Harold Ikens of Charlevoix was in town a short time on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Whittaker of Wolverine are visiting at the Holmberg home.

Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Brill have moved to Petoskey for the winter.

John P. Colden, who has been the guest of his parents for a week, left Sanday for Pontiac.

Miss Helen Bowman has returned to her home at Mackinaw City, after a few days visit at the D. J. Herrington home.

Mrs. Lena Webb of Clarion, and Walter H. Wetherell of Hnrbor Springs, were married Friday at the Methodist parsonage at Petoskey.

EVELINE

Mrs. Griffin made a trip to Pellston, last week visiting.

R. H. Sherman and V. Pedersen spent Friday in Charlevoix.

Robert Sherman drove to Advance Tuesday and is to collect taxes.

James and Bert King left for the upper peninsula, Monday, and they will be working in the lamber woods there.

Homer Nasson returned home last week from Flint, where he has been visiting his sister, Mrs. Harold Thomas.

Treat Colds Externally

For sore throat, bronchitis or deep chest colds, rub Vicks VapoRub briskly over throat and chest and cover with warm flannel.

Vicks acts in two ways—both direct: absorbed like a liniment and inhaled as a vapor. A quick relief for the cold troubles of all the family.

VICKS VAPORUB

Over 21 Million Jars Used Yearly

METHODIST CHURCH
C. E. Pollock, Minister

Home Affairs Vesper Service, next Sunday.

We live in Charlevoix. Anything that has to do with the well being of Charlevoix people is of vital concern to the church. The church has an obligation as well as right to let the community look at itself. Features of this service will be:

Talk—"Public School Equipment for Tomorrow," Mr. A. C. Belding, school commissioner.

Talk—"The Possibility of a new School Building in Charlevoix," Mrs. Brayton Saltonstall.

Talk—"The Religious Elements In Education," Rev. C. E. Pollock.

Motion picture, "Ourselves as Others See Us," consisting of two reels of fnmiliar scenes in a certain locality in Charlevoix county will be shown. Perhaps many of us will be in the picture. Come and calmly think about our home city and our home county. The hour is four fifteen. Public invited.

Morning worship with preaching at ten thirty.

Men's meeting with supper at seven sharp next Monday evening. Mr. B. C. Mellencamp of Boyne City County Farm Agent, will be the speaker and will show two reels of pictures and speak concernig the work of his office.

The newly elected church school officers will enter upon their duties next Sunday at the school hour of twelve.

Epworth League meets for its devotional and study hour next Sunday at six p. m. The topic will be "Zones of Silence," with Miss Helen Richardson in charge.

The first of the series of Thursday evening lectures by the pastor will be given at seven thirty this Thursdny evening. The subject this week will be "The Prophet of Moral Law."

Official board meets this Thursdny evening at eight thirty.

Father and Son Banquet February twenty-eighth.

Dr. R. B. Armstrong gave a very interesting talk to the mon on the subject, "Glands," last Monday evening. A fine company of men was present.

ST. MARY'S CHURCH

Rev. Fr. Odelo, Pastor.

Sunday services 8:00 a. m. and 10:00 a. m.

Services Monday and Tuesday, 8:00 a. m.

Services Saturday 7:00 a. m.

Ladies' Altar Society meets Thursday afternoons.

Mother kept that school-girl complexion by occasionally walking five or ten miles past a lot of drug stores.

College girls are taking up boxing. They wrestle, also, but it is called dancing.

Faulty Elimination

Should Be Corrected—Good Elimination Is Essential to Good Health.

IF you would be well, see to your elimination. Faulty kidney action permits toxic material to remain in the blood and upset the whole system. Then, one is apt to have a tired, languid feeling and, sometimes, a toxic backache or headache, and often some irregularity of secretions, such as scanty or burning passages. More and more people are acclaiming the value of Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, in this condition. For more than forty years Doan's have been winning favor the country over. Ask your neighbor!

DOAN'S PILLS 60c

Stimulant Diuretic to the Kidneys

Foster-Milburn Co., Mfg. Chem., Buffalo, N. Y.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

Council Chambers, Dec. 27, 1926

At a regular meeting of the Common Council held on the above date with Mayor Bergeon presiding. Aldermen present, Livingston and Howe.

No quorum present, on motion of Howe the council adjourned.

Charles. H. Lamphear, City Clerk.

By D. S. Payton, Deputy.

Council Chambers, Jan. 3, 1927

The common council of the city of Charlevoix met on the above date, Mayor Bergeon, presiding. Aldermen present, Eckinger, Geiken, Howe Livingston. Minutes of the meeting held December 6 and 27 were read and approved.

Moved by Livingston, seconded by Howe that the following bills be allowed:

Contingent Fund
Arthur Bergeon, salary	$ 31.25
Elma H. Cook, salary	52.08
D. S. Payton, salary	70.83
Dar. F. Meech, assessor	200.00
B. A. Herman, supplies	2.05
Charlevoix Courier, printing	20.00
Barroughs Add. Mach Co. Machine No. 113,117	5.55
Floyd Ikens, services	2.00
Wood Bros., tamp	.65
Robt. Madill, services	2.00
H. S. Harsha, Agt., premium on insurance	40.00
City Treasurer, Int. and Penalty on taxes	4.88
Char. Co. Treasurer, rejected taxes	470.47
Chas. Munyon, services	2.00
Pensse, Greely & Hansen, plans for sewage disposal	750.00
Mich. Bell Tel. Co., toll	.65
Elma H. Cook, salary	52.08
Arthur Bergeon, salary	31.25
D. S. Payton, salary	70.83
City Band, concerts	100.00
Chas. H. Lamphear, salary	25.00
A. L. Fitch, salary	62.50
City Treasurer, postage	1.25
City Treasurer, Mnch. ribbon	1.00
Fire Fund
Albert Cook, alcohol	.80
H. D. Marshall, salary, fire chief	25.00
Chas. Marshall, salary	42.50
Char. Fire Department, Johnston, Sharrow and Hooker fires	46.00
Chas. Marshall, salary	42.50
Char. Coal & Ice Co., wood	11.00
Bridge Fund
Elmer Johnson, salary	70.83
Harve O'Brien, salnry	50.00
Wood Bros., nails	.56
Argo Milling Co., coal	11.50
Char. Lbr. Co., lumber	22.62
Mich. Bell Tel. Co., toll	.45
Elmer Johnson, salary	70.83
Hnrve O'Brien, salary	50.00
Argo Milling Co., coal	11.25
Char. Hdw. Co., kerosene and pail	1.85
Cemetery Fund
Chas. Hyers, salary	24.00
A. W. Rickard, stone for chapel	25.00
Brown & Wallace, pd. for freight	2.00
Wood Bros., supplies	1.35
Amos Webster, labor	65.00
Char. Hdw. Co., supplies	26.05
City Treas., license plates	.50
Argo Milling Co., cement	21.05
Char. Lbr. Co., lumber	136.35
Chas. Hyers, salary,	12.00
Geo. Glasgow, labor, assigned to D. S. Payton	14.00
Advertising Fund
G. W. Parker, exp. to Grand Rapids	25.00
Highway Fund
Charlevoix Abs. & Eng. Co., grade and curb, Antrim St.	17.00
Charlevoix Coal & Ice Co., cement	9.98
Art Alcock, salary	57.50
Lou Sandle, labor	63.00
Lloyd Hong, labor	8.75
M. B. Hooker & Son, team	46.25
Robt. Mitchell, team	15.00
Art Alcock, salary	57.50
Lou Sandle, labor	42.00
Ben Nowland, labor	10.50
M. B. Hooker & Son, team	31.50
P. M. Ry. Co., rent for 1927	10.00
Argo Milling Co., rock salt	5.50
Police Fund
W. J. Weikel, salary	45.00
Ihling Bros. Everard Co., justice's civil Guide	13.64
Mich. Bell Tel. Co., toll	2.55
W. J. Weikel, salary	45.00
Street Lighting Fund
Graybar Electric Co., lamps	28.44
Water Fund
Charlevoix Hdw. Co., supplies	5.74
Wm. Byers, freight	2.12
Gregory Elec. Co., supplies	53.00
H. W. Clark Co., supplies	2.31
C. N. Bridge, salary	32.52
L. I. S. Fund, Newman St. Sewer
Charlevoix Abstract & Eng. Co., removing stakes	7.50
H. D. Marshall, final payment on Newman St. sewer	614.80
H. D. Marshall, final payment on Grant St. Sewer	395.60
C. N. Bridge, salary	35.72
Central Sts. Gen. Elec. Supply Co., cable	26.50
Electric Fund
W. E. Parmelee, services	14.36
Southern Pine Mfg. Co., X nrms	54.75
Central Sts. Gen. Elect supply Co., supplies	54.75
Char. Lbr. Co., lumber	1.44
C. J. Litscher Elec. Co., supplies	2.18
Char. Hdw. Co., supplies	5.60
Truscon Steel Co., supplies	26.36
H. O. Johnston, supplies	3.25
Benj. Brown, supplies	19.75
Argo Milling Co., supplies	9.25
Kuhler & Friend, gas and oil	35.46
Wood Bros., supplies	21.38
Wm. Byers, freight	32.09
W. S. Shaw Co., brick and clay	20.25
Central Sts. Gen. Elec. Sup. Co., insulators	12.91
Frank Wilks, labor	50.00
Art McPherson, labor	21.00
The Hannnh & Lay Mert. Co., supplies	2.50
Vern Gardner, drayage	3.00
O. J. Orcutt, supplies	1.50
J. E. Richards, supplies	185.59
City Treas., license plates	1.00
C. N. Bridge, salnry	71.65
Murley Plum, salary	50.00
Morris Ackert, salary	60.00
Jnmes Divis, snlary	47.50
Allen Ulrich, salary	50.00
Dan Soule, salnry	62.50
Robt. Allspaugh, salary	50.00
Wm. Byers, freight	19.12
Wm. Chatfield, labor	35.00
Bert Alcox, labor	40.75
Chas. Hyers, labor	26.00
H. D. Marshall, rent of mixer	25.00
Central Sts. Elec. Supply Co., wire	90.35
Central Sts. Elec. Supply Co., wire	324.12
Charlevoix Courier, printing	8.00
Sam Straw, services	1.00
Standard Oil Co., gasoline	27.03
Gen. Electric, Co., supplies	96.95
Star Sanitary Rag Co., supplies	26.18
Graybar Electric Co., supplies	11.22
Mich. Bell Tel. Co., toll	.40
Char. Co-op. Assn., supplies	1.80
Graybar Electric Co., supplies	1.28
C. N. Bridge, Exp. on line	3.40
C. N. Bridge, pd. for demurrage	1.00
C. N. Bridge, salary	68.45
Morris Ackert, salary	60.00
Allen Ulrich, salary	50.00
Murley Plum, salary	50.00
Jas. Divis, salary	47.50
Robt. Allspaugh, salary	50.00
Chas. Hyers, salary	38.00
Dan Soule, salary	62.50
Edw. Foster, freight	2.37
Roswell Leavett, gravel	12.00
Frnnk Wilks, labor	50.00
Art McPherson, labor	30.00
Traverse City Iron Works, supplies	10.00
East Jordan Lbr. Co., lumber	213.58
Central Sts. Gen. Elec. Supply Co., insulators	21.40
Wm. Chatfield, labor	3.50
Bert Alcox, labor	10.25
Wm. Byers, freight	4.36
M. B. Hooker & Son, team	13.50
Loch Farms, over charge on lights	52.59
Park Fund
Robt. J. Madill, supplies	4.00
Interest & Sinking Fund
City Treasurer, transfer to Water Fund	309.05

Motion carried by the following nye and nay voto.

Ayes:- Aldermen, Eckinger, Geikin, Howe, Livingston.

Nays: none.

Alderman Geiken offered the following resolution and moved its adoption, seconded by Alderman Howe.

Resolution

Resolved by the common council of the city of Chnrlevoix, thnt the Michigan State Telephone Company be, and hereby is, requested to take the necessary steps toward removing its present overhead wiring and telephone poles from that part of Bridge street lying between the Swing Bridge and Hurlbut Avenue, and installing such wiring in underground conduits.

Resolved further, that the City Clerk be, and hereby is instructed to forwarn n copy of this resolution to said Michigan State Telephone Company.

Revolved further, that the Electric Light Committee of the Council make a thorough investigation of the matter of locating the city-owned electric lighting wiring in the same district in under-surface conduits, together with nn investigation of the most feasible plan therefor, and report its recommendations to the Council, together with an estimate of the cost thereof.

"Adopted nt a regular meeting of the Common Council held in the Council Rooms, in said city, on the 13th. day of December, 1926, by aye and nay votes as follows:

Ayes: Aldermen Eckinger, Geiken, Howe, Livingston.

Nnys: None.

A. Bergeon, Mayor.

Charles H. Lamphear, City Clerk.

By D. S. Payton, Deputy.

On motion duly made the council adjourned.

Arthur Bergeon, Mayor

Chas. H. Lamphear, City Clerk.

By D. S. Payton, Deputy.

A good cold weather starter now more dependable than ever

Probably no single feature of Dodge Brothers Motor Car has been more widely talked about and commended than the power and promptness of the starter.

The new two-unit starting and lighting system now advances Dodge Brothers leadership in this important respect still further.

There are now no moving starter parts when the car is in motion—no starter chain—no noise—no wear. The new starter is even more DEPENDABLE than the old, and far simpler and more compact in construction.

Many other major improvements have been added during the past twelve months, all vitally affecting performance and increasing value far beyond the apparent measure of current Dodge Brothers prices.

Touring Car $865.00
Coupe $915.00
Special Sedan $945.00
Delivered

BENJ. BROWN
CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

We Also Sell Dependable Used Cars

DODGE BROTHERS MOTOR CARS

AT THE MOVIES

$728,000 Is Paid for "Blue Boy"

Not long ago the whole world gasped at the news contained in a newspaper story that "The Blue Boy," Gainsborough's famous painting, had been secured by an American, Henry B. Huntington of Pasadena, Calif., at the astonishing price of $728,000.00.

The painting is the best known of this British artist's masterpieces.

This picture, "The Blue Boy," will be seen at the Palace Theatre, Saturday and Sunday and has been pronounced one of the most beautiful pictures ever made.

Mary Aster in New Carewe Film

Mary Aster, First National featured actress, will be seen in the role of a frivolous bon-vivant who comes to her senses before the final reckoning in "High Steppers," an adaptation of the popular Sir Philip Gibbs novel, "Heirs Apparent." At the Palace Theatre, Wednesday and Thursday, January 12 and 13.

Cloak of Modesty Hides Director

Frank Lloyd just can't help being modist. Notwithstnnding the fact that he has made whnt is acknowledged one of the mightiest productions ever brought to the screen, "The Eagle of the Sea," which comes to the Palace Theatre Saturday and Sunday, the noted director refuses to accept nny glory for its success.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

The Jannnry meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union will be held this week Thursday, 2:30 p. m., with Mrs. Geo. Russell No. 202 Grant St. Mrs. H. B. Jacobs is the program lender.

The meeting is called earlier in the month than usual because thu national society has set Jnnunry 6th as a day of Prayer for Prohibition. Every praying woman is invited to observe the dny with the local union nt the nppointed plnce.

BUSINESS CARDS

Farm Property — Lake Frontage
A. C. BELDING
REAL ESTATE BROKER
Charlevoix, Mich.
Game Preserves — Detroit Property

GLASSES FITTED
Consult
DR. J. LEAHY
OPTOMETRIST
Expert on Eye-Strain,
Petoskey, Mich.
Phone 443 for Appointment

BELLE LOUISE FLEWELLING
Palmer Chiropractor
Post Office Building
Phone 347
Office hours 2 to 5 daily
Monday, Wednesday and Friday
7 to 8

R. J. MADILL
Building Contractor
Ask for Estimates
Phone 121 Charlevoix, Mich.

D. T. McHUGH
General Contractor
Phone 214
CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

R. B. ARMSTRONG
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Special Attention to Diseases of Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat
Priest Bldg. Phone 255

DR. F. F. McMILLAN
Physician and Surgeon
Office above Postoffice
Phone 17
Charlevoix - - Michigan

A. L. FITCH
ATTORNEY AT LAW
Office in Court House
Phone 48
Charlevoix - Michigan

Cheese, says a dietitian, is one of the oldest of foods, and no archaeological expedition was needed to unearth that fact.

CHARLEVOIX COURIER

VOLUME 33. NUMBER 1. EIGHT PAGES. COURIER, CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 6, 1926 PRICE $2.00 PER YEAR

WHAT IS THIS GULF WATERWAY

ILLINOIS PLAN OF BIG CONCERN TO ALL MICHIGAN

Lowering of Lakes Level By Chicago Drainage Canal Covered in Series of Articles

If there is any lake shore city in Michigan more interested in the present condition of Lake Michigan water than Charlevoix, we would like to know where it is located. For the past five or six years we have watched the water recede, until the condition has become alarming. Boat houses have been left entirely out of water; the channel from Round Lake to Lake Michigan has become so shallow that boats of over 12 foot drnught can hardly make the pasage. During the past two months the water has receded six inches and is still going down. The eause or causes of this condition has been luid to many different things, but the one uppermost in the people's mind is the Chicago Drainage Canal water steal.

Arthur W. Stace, connected with the Grand Rapids Press, also one of our best known summer visitors at the Belvedere Club, has covered the situation in a series of articles in The Press. The Courier has asked permission to reproduce them for the benefit of our readers. Following is the first of the series from the pen of Mr. Stace:

What is this Lakes-to-Gulf waterway to whicn congress is asked to give "for navigation purposes" 10,000 cubic feet per second of Loke Michignn water—as much as half a dozen Michigan rivers pour into the lake in their averuge summer flow? Here are the onswers, every nnswer from a different point of view, every answer true, but every answer forming only a part of the whole truth.

It's All of These

The Lakes-to-Gulf Waterway is an alluring freight-saving project within 60 easy miles of realiztion.

The Lakes-to-Gulf waterway is a gaseous cloud of political buncombe serving ns a smoke screen for the awful mess the Chicago Sanitary district is dumping upon the Illinois river valley.

The Lakes-to-Gulf waterway is promise of greater opportunity and lnrger profit to middle western industry and enterprise.

The Lakes-to-Gulf waterway is Chicago's old "I must keep what I've grubbed" line of offense and defense shifted from a "snnitation" to a "navigation" base now that a United States supreme court decision has blown up the former and the war department has ordered n sewage clean up through disposal works with a gradual reduction from 8,500 cubic feet per second diversion of lako water to the authorized 4,167 c. f. s.

The Lnkes-to-Gulf waterway is a practical engineering undertaking—not in itself dependent upon 10,000 c. f. s. diversion—with a broad popular, patriotic nppeal which is being used shrewdly in intrlgue and log-rolling to influence the over-riding by congress of the effeets of the United States supreme court's decision and the war department's orders.

The Lakes-to-Gulf waterway is camouflage to hide the continued taking of 5 to 6 inches depth of water from Lake Michigan, Huron, St. Clair, Erie and Ontario, and all their harbors and connecting waters, for the production in Illinois of water power worth millions of dollars a year.

All these things and more is the Lakes-to-Golf waterway, which, loaded with that 10,000 cubic feet per second diversion from Lake Michigan has swept into congress as one of the major issues of the present session.

What Interest Has Michigan?

"What interest has Michigan in the waterway?" is the question asked, in a tone of surpirse, when one seeks waterway information along the Illinois valley.

(Continued on Page 7)

PIONEER RESIDENT PASSES

HAD LIVED HERE FOR PERIOD OF 40 YEARS

John F. Mitchell Dies at Home of Daughter in Almont, Michigao

John F. Mitchell, a resident of this county for about 45 years, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Charles H. Wilson, in Almont, Michigan at 8 o'clock last Thursday morning, after an illness of nearly a year's duration.

Mr. Mitchell was born in Blairgowrie, Scotland, August 25, 1846, and was in his 80th year at the time of his death. He was married in Arbrath, Scotland, to Miss Anna Will, and the couple came to this country and settled on a farm near Ironton, where they resided up until 14 years ago, when they took up their residence in this city, Mrs. Mitchell passing away here about three years ago. After the death of his wife, Mr. Mitchell moved to Almont, Michigan, his later years being spent with his dnughter, at whose home he passed away.

He is survived by six children—four daughters: Mrs. Charles H. Wilson, Almont, Mich.; Mrs. Roy F. Swinton, Ann Arbor, Mich.; Mrs. Earl H. Coleman, Hastings, Mich., nnd Miss Isabelle Mitchell of this city, and two sons, John of Boyne City and Dr. W. W. Mitchell of Charlevoix, all of whom were present at the funeral.

The remains were brought to Charlevoix and funeral services were held last Sunday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, from the home of his son, Dr. W. W. Mitchell, 110 Park avenue, Rev. B. G. Mattson, pastor of the Congregationol church, officiating. Interment in the family lot at Brookside.

During his many years of residence in this county and in the city of Charlevoix, Mr. Mitchell had acquired a large following of friends nnd acquaihtances who knew him for his honesty and sterling character, and he will be greotly missed from our rapidly diminishing ronk of early pioneers.

IF THIS DREAM WOULD ONLY COME TO HOME FARMERS

Once a farmer had 1,800 bushels of wheat. Which he had sold not to one grain merchant, but to 1,800 different dealers a bushel to each. A few paid cash, but far the greater number soid they would pay later. A few months possed and the man's bank account ran low. "How is this," he said "my 1,800 bushels of grain should have kept me until another crop is raised, but I have parted with the grain and instead I have a vast number of accounts, small and scattered that I cannot get oround and collect fast enough.

So he posted a public notice and asked all who owed him to come and pay quickly. But a few came. The rest soid: "Mine is a small matter ond I will pay you some other day." Though each account was very small when oll were put together it meant a goodly sum to the mon and enough to enable him to pay his own bills and meet his needs. Things went on thus. The man got to feeling so badly that he fell out of bed and awoke. Running to his granory he found the 1,800 bushels of wheat still there.

The next day he went to the publisher of his home-town paper and said: "Here sir is pay for your pnper and when next year's subscription is due you can count on me to pay promptly. I stood in the place of an editor last night and I know how it feels to have his earnestly earned money scattered all over the country in small amounts."

The moral is: "Go thou and do likewise."

W. C. T. U. MEETING FEBRUARY 17TH

Hon. Parm C. Gilbert Will Talk on Law Enforcemont

One of the coming events of interest to Charlevoix people will be a meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperanee Union, scheduled for Wednesday evening, February 17, 1926, in the parlors of the Methodist Episcopnl church, ot which the Hon. Parm C. Gilbert will be the principal speaker.

Mr. Gilbert's message will cover the subject of law enforcement and will be of interest to everyone. Law enforcement is one of the vital questions of the day and everyone is requested to reserve this date and be present. The meeting will be preceded by a banquet.

Let us demonstrate an Atwater Kent boforo you decide on a radio. Wood Bros.—Adv. 1tf.

DANCE NETS A TIDY AMOUNT

LARGE CROWD ATTENDED PARTY NEW YEAR'S EVE.

Summer Visitors Give $55, Making a Total of $348.81 Raised for Local Hospital

The New Year's dance given last Thursday evening at the Oldham Club, by the nurses of the Charle-Charlevoix hospital, wns a decided success from every nngle. A large crowd was in attendance nnd enjoyed a wonderful evening. The favors and decorations were unlque and original, showing that considerablr time hud been spent in their preparation, nnd from a financial standpoint the nffair was more than successful

The total receipts from all sources nmounted to $348.81. Expenses amounted to $48.00, leaving $300.81 which was turned over to the hospitnl. Miss Inrson and the nurses wish to take this means for thanking all those who contribute to their aid, financially or personal, in making the affair the success that it was. Especial thanks is due Mr. Harry Oldham for his kindness in donating the hnll for the dance and his interest in sending tickets to some of our summer visitors which resulted as follows:

Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Friedman, $5.00.
Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Tohias, $5.00.
Mr. and Mrs. Jonas Hiller, $5.00.
Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Baer, $5.00.
Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Golden, $10.00.
Mr. nnd Mrs. E. J. Block, $10.00.
Mr. and Mrs. Greensfelder, $5.00.
Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Webb, $10.00.

Thanks is also due Alonzo Powers for his services in making the egg-shaped containers holding the balloon fnvors, which were let loose during the evening.

The dance was typical of all charitable affairs given for the benefit of the hospital, showing the same spirit of cooperation which has mnde the local institution a success from the very stnrt.

FEDERAL-AID FUNDS APPORTIONED STATES

Michigan's Share is $2,217,418 to Aid in Road Work

Secretnry of Agriculture Jardine announced last Thursday the opportionment of $73,125,000 to the states for use in the consnruction of federal-aid roads. This apportionment was nuthorized by the post office appropriation act of February 12, 1925, and is for the fiscal year beginningsJuly 1, 1926.

fiscnl yenr beginning July 1, 1926.

The new funds will be spent entirely on the federal aid highwny system under the same plan of cooperation with the states that has been in successful operation for ten years. The roads included in the system are the most important in the country and reach directly or indirectly every city of over 5,000 population. The bureau reports thot approximately 10,000 miles of federal-aid road were brought to completion during 1925 and the indications are that the coming year will be equally successful.

Notice to Hayes Taxpayers

I will be at the Charlevoix Stote Savings Bank on Saturday, January 2, and Saturday, January 9, for the collection of taxes for Hayes township. Frank C. Burnett, Treasurer. —Adv. 52t2.

NEXT YEAR HOLDS BRIGHT FUTURE

PAST YEAR SHOWS BOOM IN TOURIST BUSINESS

Total of $75,000,000 Spent in Michigan By 34,000 Visitors—Real Estate Moves

In a summary of the annual progress of Michigan the growth of the state as a summer resort must be considered along with the ndvance of industry, commerce und agriculture. For us of western Michigan the tourist has become of so much importance that we may ronk the summer resort business at or near the top as a promoter of our wealth. Only those most directly concerned with his husiness renlize its amazing growth in recent years and its big future possibilities.

In western Michigon summer resorting is a business. Being a business, it requires organization to handle it. Only after organization came into the field to direct this husiness did it begin to grow, and grow wonderfully. To promote further growth organization must be still more effective. Before we can make others helieve in us, we must first believe in ourselves. We must set our house in order to receive the guests of the state.

Heritage Priceless

Michigan once hnd a priceless heritage in her forests. We cut down those forests to supply the timbers for the dwelling places of the inhabitants of neighboring states and to furnish their industry with raw material. When our forests vanished we beheld a wilderness of cut-over land. Many thought this wilderness could never be reclaimed. They were so near to it that they saw only its desolation. They did not realize possibilties of transforming this wilderness into an attraction for those milllons of human beings who are impelled to seek the outdoors after months of cooped-up existence in congested cities. They overlooked the streams, the lakes, the new cover for game, the climate, the sunshine, the invigorating atmosphere. All these things are necessary for the well-being of the intensively active modern man, who must play at times that he may work at other times.

This wilderness, which "experts" declared to be economically worthless, is in fact n source of untold wealth. It may not all grow agricultural products, but it will serve man in other ways as profitably as if its acres were sown to wheat. In fact, "this worthless land" already is selling at prices per acre which rival the prices of cultivated farm lands in this and other states. Michigan has become indeed "The Playground of the Nation" and men eagerly pay more for the privilege of playing than they pay for the mere privilege of existence. Whole townships, abandoned since the days of the mighty pine, are ringing with the laughter of growing children, whose summers spent in Michigan assure them mature health and physical vigor. The lakes and streams, buried for half a century in the brush of fallen forests, are traversed by nature-loving revelers and their shores are dotted with cottages and tents. Scoreely have the snows melted ond the gentle fragrance of the arbutus pronounced the coming of spring before there is life in the "wilderness."

Today the harvest of the "playground" is two-fold—first in the happiness of the hundreds of thousands who come to Michigan to enjoy life in the summer time, and second in the millions of dollars they bring into Michigan, forming a part of our established income and remaining a part of our community wealth.

Careful statistics have been kept of the tourist trnffic and business. These statistics tell us that during the summer of 1925 approximately 34,000 persons visited western Michigan and that they expended while in the state upwards of $75,000,000. This is only a beginning, only an indication of what the tourist business can be developed into through more tnorough organization and greater publicity. Within 24 hours of both the geographical and commercial center of the United States, Michigan has an inexhaustible source of tourist traffic. The multitudes compelled to live in the crowded cities of the middle west must seek recreation, and they can find it nowhere so near or so perfectly as in Michigan. But we must send them the message of welcome and we must keep on sending that message year after year. We must let them know what we cun give

(Continued on page six)

LAST OF GOOD ROAD ESSAYS

PROKOP PESEK OF EAST JORDAN IN FIFTH PLACE

All Contestants Are United in Opinion That Road Would Increase Land Value

Winner of fifth place in the good roads and cross-word puzzle contest instigoted by "Uncle" Geo. H. VanPelt, father of concrete roads, is prokop Pesek of East Jordan. The writer thinks the concrete ribbon around Pine Lake would increase land vnlues; would save money in road construction, and be of general benfit both to farmers and the county as a whole. The essay follows:

"A good reinforced concrete road around Pine Lake would increase the valuation of properties around lake shore, and adjacent properties as well. Because a good concrete road around a property would beautify a place and the people living on these properties would have a privilege to use this good road nearly all their lives. Thereby the valuation of such properties would increase.

"A good concrete road would outlast many gravel roads as for its duration and quality. Thereby money would be saved by building a good concrete road instead of any other roads.

"If once the people build a good reinforced concrete road, they will find out that it is cheaper to build this rond than to build any other kind of a road as for durntion nnd quality and they will not want any other thnn a good reinforced concrete road."

HONOR CLASS BOYS IN CONTEST LAST MONTH

Winning Members Entertained With Supper and Games

During the month of December, the boys of the Honor class of the Congregational Sunday school held a three-sided attendance contest among themselves.

The winning team, composed of Frank Ross, David Coulter and Richard McCann, were entertained with a "feed" and games at the monthly business meeting last Monday night, which was held in the church parlors. A similar contest is plnnned for January.

NEW YEAR'S PARTY AT McGHAN HOME

Guests Enjoyed Delicious Chicken Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. Harlan McGhan were host and hostess to a number of their friends nt a New Year's party given at their home on W. Lincoln avenue last Friday evening.

The guests, Mr. ond Mrs. John Gallagher, Mrs. Spross, Mrs. Nellie Smith, Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Turner ond Miss Dorothy Hewitt were treoted to what was termed to be a wonderful chicken dinner and an evening of visiting and renewing friendships was enjoyed by all present.

Atwater Kent Radio—the one you have heard so much about. Wood Bros.—Adv. 1tf.

His Annual Stunt

TWO CHILDREN DROWNED MONDAY

MEET FATE IN WATERS OF ROUND LAKE

Break Through Ice While Sliding Down Hill Near Old Booth Fisheries Plant

Two Indian children, Jimmy John, age 11, and Louisn Denemy, age 10, were drowned in Round Lake, Monday at about noon when they broke through the ice and sank before help could reach them.

The boy and girl had returned home from school during the noon hour and were sliding down hill behind the old Booth Fisheries Co. plant on the north side of the lake and then out onto the ice. There being no eye witness to the accident it is not definitely known in just what manner the children broke through, but inasmuch ns there was solid ice all around the place where they snnk, it is assumed that they stepped into a hole.

The boy's father, Peter John, and one of the Cross boys who was fishing on the ice near the center of the lake, were attracted by the struggles of the drowning children, but were unsuccessful in their efforts to reach them on account of the unsafe condition of the ice. Peter went out nearly to them, but the ice sank beneath him. He then returned to the shore and tried to push a boat out, but was unable to move it alone, and the children sank with help within a very few feet away. The boy climbed part way out on the ice at one time and probably would have saved himself and possibly the other had he not been pulled back in the water by the girl in her frantic struggles for life.

The work of recovering the bodies was greatly hindered by the ice and much time was taken by the coast guard hoat and John Cross with his tug in breaking it up so that the hottom could be dragged. Three and four inches of solid ice was encountered around the spot where the two children sank. The body of the girl was recovered at about two o'clock by Ray Hamilton and the boy's body was recovered at about 4 o'clock.

Jimmy John is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter John of this city and is survived by his parents and several brothers and sisters. The girl, Louisa Denemy, is survived by her father, John Denemy of Detroit, and was making her home with Peter John and family. Funeral services will be held for both children Thursday afternoon, from See's funeral parlors, Rev. Herman Burns officiating. Interment at Brookside.

LURED FROM HOME FOR A PURPOSE

Radio Troubles Aid in Carrying Out Well Planned Plot

Lured from home by a close friend who used the excuse of radio trouble as the method of getting him into his house, A. J. Hamilton wns the victim of a birthday surprise pnrty last Saturday evening, staged at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Livingston.

"Colonel" was busy testing out both the wiring and static producing nparatus of the machine when another party entered the room with a request that he immediately proceed to his home and fix up his rodio. This was followed by a third request from a person with an unusual amount of static, although not a radio owner. Then he began realize thnt something unusual was "in the air."

The surprise was complete—and the victim had naught to say. After congratulations, the evening was spent in card playing and n general good time. A 67-tuhe "super-hydrogen" birthday cake occupied the most prominent position on the table at which Mr. Hamilton sat during the fine lunch served. To relieve his embarrassment and in a manner, show high esteem in which he is held by those present, A. L. Fitch, in behnlf of the bunch, presented him with a gold I. O. O. F. insigna. This left the Col. speechless, but he subsoquently recovered nnd thanked the givers.

Notice

Annual meeting of county school officers will be held, next Tuesday, January 12th, at the Palace Theatre, Charlevoix. State officers will be present to answer all questions. All county officers are requested to be present.—Adv. 1-t1.

Children's Colds

Are best treated externally. Check them overnight without "dosing" by rubbing Vicks over throat and chest at bedtime.

VICKS VAPORUB

CORRESPONDENCE

NORWOOD

James Harris was at Norwood last Saturday collecting taxes.

After a two week's vucation school opened Monday at Norwood.

Mr. James of Phelps, spent Sunday with Sam Routley and family.

William Supernaw spent New Years day with his family in Charlevoix.

Wesley and William Jolliffe of Atwood, spent New Years day with Mr. and Mrs. Raymond of Norwood.

Mr. nnd Mrs. Irving Lord and family spent New Years day with Mrs. Lord's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Santos.

Rosie May Henry, student of the Charlevoix high school, spent her Christmas vacation with her parents at Norwood.

Miss Irene Halverson of Charlevoix, spent one day last week with Miss Joyce Mayne while she was home on her vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Greeley and son, Charles, spent New Year's day with their daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William Genett and family of East Jordan.

Mrs. Haskins received word that her sister, Mrs. Mary Blair of South Bend, Ind., who is eighty-four years old afflicted with rheumatism, has been confined to her bed for two years is gradually failing.

A man driving his car through on the trunk line M-11 from Traverse City to Charlevoix last Tuesday, said to a farmer the only blockade of snow I came in contact with was, after I drove into Charlevoix. He asked, "Where is your snow plow?"

We sell Koolfast Radiators for Fords because we believe they are the best radiator on the market today. Benj. Brown. —Adv. 49tf.

BARNARD

January thaw.

School opened on Monday after two week's vacation.

The Ladies' Aid Society will meet next Wednesday, January 13th, with Mrs. Peter Block. Ladies are requested to bring their thimbles.

Mrs. Howard Shanks returned to Grand Rapids on Saturday, after spending the holiday weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Walker.

Miss Dorothy Gornell came home on Monday from Chicago where she is employed, for a visit of ten days or two weeks with her pareats, after which she will accompnay the Thorse family to Florida for the remainder of the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Beattie gave a progressive pedro party for several married couples of their friends on New Years Eve. Mr. and Mrs. Louis Shapton won the first prizes while Mr. Daschler won the gent's consolation and the ladies consolation was divided between Mrs. Charlotte Willis, Mrs. Rose Ager, and Mrs. Mabel Cummings. A bountiful supper was served and every one departed at an early hour voting it a most enjoyable occasion.

Your old radiator is worth $2.50 when we intsall a Koolfast on your Ford. Ben: Brown.—Adv. 49tf.

EVELINE

There is a gang of men cutting wood on the Bowen farm.

R. H. Sherman has n brand new radio installed in his home now.

Mr. Curtis, from the F. H. Skow farm, has moved on the E. E. Orvis farm.

Hans Johnson helped Valdemar Pederson. butchered n couple of pigs Tuesday.

James Zitka has been home from Detroit and spent the holidays with his wife and children.

Stewart Stevenson and W. J. Stevenson with their families spent Monday with R. H. Sherman and family.

Mr. and Mrs. John Nasson and Mr. nnd Mrs. Peter Anderson spent Friday evening with Mrs. Peter Johnson and Hans Johnson.

Miss Dorothy Pederson, daughter of Martin Pederson of the Loeb Farms, spent part of her vacntion with her grandparents.

ANOTHER CHARLEVOIX CASE

Time-tested By a Charlevoix Resident

Just another report of sickness and sufferiag relieved by Doan's Pills. Another Chnrlevoix case that tells of lasting benefit. What can be more convincing? Thousands recommend Donn's for headache, dizziness and distressing urinary disorders. Donn's aro n stimulant diruetic to the kidneys. They have helped thousands. A Charlevoix case:

Daniel Himebauch, 107 W. Upright Ave., Charlevoix, says: "My back ached and mornings when I got up, catches took me ucross my kidneys. My kidneys were weak nnd acted irregularly. I heard a lot about Doan's Pills, so I used a few boxes, from Fessenden's Drug Store, and they fixed me up in fine shape."

(Statement given May 4, 1920.)

On October 10, 1924, Mr. Himebauch said: "I am glad to recommend Doan's Pills for they certainly helped me."

60c, at nll dealers. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

CLARION

Mrs. D. McDonald was quite ill last week.

School opened Monday after two weeks vacation.

Derwin Banks has gone to Battle Creek for a short time.

G. W. Taylor returned last week from a business trip to Detroit.

D. H. Geyer, who has been ill for months, is able to be out doors again.

Rural carrier Everts is confined to his home by mumps and his wife is carrying the mail during his absence.

Miss Gwendolyn Griswold returned to Traverse City on Sunday, after spending her vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Griswold.

ROCK ELM

Anna Kowalske is on the sick list this week.

Miss Sadie Metz returned to Mt. Pleasant Saturday.

Leo LaCroix and wife of Detroit, were home over the holidays.

Norman Jensen won the five tubo radio given away by the Corner garage nt Ellsworth last week.

Arthur Secord of Kalamazoo, and Juineta of Jackson, have returned to their school work since the holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Kowalske and Mr. and Mrs. Ben Smatts ate New Year's dinner with Mr. nnd Mrs. Wilbur Spidle.

We will allow you $2.50 on your old Ford radiator nnd install a new Koolfast, the best on the market. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 49tf.

Old newspapers for sale at this office. 5c per package.

Lower Prices Greater Values! Benefit Now by both!

Dodge Brothers, Inc., are able to make a tremendous reduction in prices because they are practically doubling production.

They believe in passing on to the buyer the full benefit of savings effected through greater and better facilities.

The completion of a $10,000,000 expansion program puts them in a better position than ever before to meet the enormous demand for a product that was always exceptionally good and is now better than ever.

New prices, to be announced January 7th, apply on all purchases since midnight December 15th.

You can therefore buy today, enjoy the immediate use of your car, and still benefit fully by the sweeping reductions.

Benjamin Brown Auto Sales

Charlevoix, Michigan

DODGE BROTHERS MOTOR CARS

METHODIST CHURCH
C. E. Pollock, Minster

Rev. Clark S. Wheeler, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church in Petoskey, will be the preacher next Sunday morning at 10:30. An exchange of pastors has been arranged for the morning service, and the Charlevoix pastor will preach in Petoskey.

The Junior church will meet as usual in the morning church service at 10:30. At the singing of the final stanza of the second hymn before the sermon, they will mnrch to the Junior room for instruction in the history of the church.

The Sundny school attendance wns well above the two hundred mark last Sunday. The aim for January is three hundred. There is room for many more. Help both yourself and us by being one at bible school at 11:45 next Sunday. A good orchestra plays. Great lessons are studied.

A room full of Epworthians is the usual thing each Sunday evening at six o'clock, the League fellowship hour. All young people who are interested in best things are welcome.

"Transforming affection" — Story sermon next Sunday at 7:00. Features of this service will be the illuminated prnyer song and the gripping story of Silas Marner. The pastor will preach.

CHURCH OF GOD
Wm. Eldridge, Pastor

There are some churches desighated, "The Church With a Welcome." Real churches nre churches with a welcome. You are laways welcome and appreciated at our services. at 7:3 0nnd is usually well attended. uary as follows:

Preaching at 10:30 and 7:30.

Sunday school at 12:00, an entirely new series of Sunday school lessons began with us last Sunday, tenching Bible doctrine in particular. Subjects last Sunday, "The Scriptures, the Word of God." Next Sunday: "God, A Personal Being." If you are not already located at a Sunday school, we would be glad to have you studying these lessons with us.

Young People's meetings each Sunday at 6:30.

The best service of the week should be the evening prayer service. Ours is held each Wednesday at 7:30 and is usually well attended. Come and worship with us.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH
Rev. B. G. Mattson, Pastor

Services for Jnnunry 10th. Morning worship at 10:30 with sermon on "The Christian and the World He Lives In." Sunday school at 12:00. Young People's meeting at 5:30 on the new plan. Light luncheon will be served by a committee of young people assisted by two of our church women. Following the luncheon an interesting program with formal friendly features and singing, closing with brief worship service. The younger group including seventh nnd eighth grades will have separate program under direction of Mr. Alexander.

Evening service at 7:00 with first of a few short stories of Hebrew Life told by the pastor in story form. The title of the first story is "The Princess and the Foundling Bnbe."

Ironton service at 2:30.

Chrislian Science Society

Sunday services 11:45 a. m., subject, "Sacrament."

Sunday school, 12:00.

Wednesday evening service, 7:45 p. m.

The public is cordially invited to use our reading room and attend the services.

Let us demonstrate an Atwnter Kent before you decide on a radio. Wood Bros.—Adv. 1tf.

POCAHONTAS LUMP COAL

A car of No. 4 mine Pocahontas Lump Coal will arrive in our yards the last of the week.

The price is right

The coal is good

Good Pocahontas coal has been hard to get on account of the coal strike. We believe this car will be exceptionally good. Phone in your orders at once for delivery next week.

Charlevoix-Co-Operative Assn.

W. E. Byers, Auctioneer

Twenty years experience in handling Auction Sales, both on farm and household goods.

Let Me Cry Your Sales

Phone me at Charlevoix or call the Charlevoix Courier, where all dates are made.

Cups for Lunch Furnished if Requested

CHAPTER XV—Continued

I lied glibly about having found Jean at Mrs. Brown's; Mrs. Brown was well, but one of the children had a sore throat; Brown had slipped on the ice and hurt his hip, not badly; they were—longing for English mail. I knew all this duplicity must be found out, but I was content to delay the evil day. By some sort of telepathic understanding we did not discuss Jean's behavior. We were glad enough to have her back safe and sound; we were willing to agree that the stress of winter had perhaps been too much for her. She would be all right presently.

The days that followed were busy times for me. I immediately began to glean the neighborhood for books, and the harvest was much more liberal than I expected. Spoof lent me Byron and the Decline and Fall; Brown supplied a complete Shakespeare, in one volume; Bella Donna contributed a Life of Lincoln; Burke, much to my surprise, had a copy of Whitman, from which he quoted copiously, gesticulating to me in an empty stall—he was a deep pool where I had looked for shallow water; Andy Smith was equally insistent upon rehearsing Burns, and particularly to the effect that the rank is but the guinea's stamp, etc. I did not call upon Mrs. Alton, nor venture into the unguessed possibilities of Hansen's and Sneezil's, although after my experiences I was almost prepared to find Ole Hansen buried in The Wealth of Nations, and Sneezil poring over Carlyle. Neither did I, at the time, enlist the good offices of the Reverend Locke. In a community that I had supposed destitute of anything of the sort I had unearthed more books than I could read.

At first I had to drive myself to it, but presently I began to be carried away in the spirit in the new world which was opening before me. With joy I noted; suddenly, that I had forced my boundaries far beyond the corner stakes of Fourteen, beyond even the prairies, the continent, the times in which we live. My mind, from sluggishly hibernating for the winter, became a dynamo of activity.

One day Jean came over to Fourteen, alone. I buried my Shakespeare under a pair of old overalls and opened the door. Perhaps she saw me glancing about, as though looking for Marjorie.

"Unchaperoned, today," she said. "You don't mind?" She began to draw off her gloves; new knitted gloves which I had not seen before.

"New gloves, Jean?" I queried.

"Yes, just finished knitting them, from yarn mother sent. Feel them. Aren't they soft?"

"I envy them very much," I said, and was much pleased with my subtlety.

"Envy them—why? . . . Oh, you mean because they're—they're always holding my hands," and a happy wave of color flushed into her cheeks. "You are very clever."

"Thanks, Jean. Now take off that pretty little cap of yours, which is not half as beautiful as the hair it hides, and let me draw off your overshoes—I have a grievance against them, as well—and we'll just sit down and settle the affairs of the universe."

"I wish we could," she said, with a note that had lost most of its joyousness; "I rather wish we could. But where have you been hiding? And why? And did that afternoon we spent toasting here you so that you have never asked me out since?"

"Oh, I've been busy," I said. "Very busy."

"Busy? At what?"

Then I could forbear no longer. My secret was about to burst from me. I took Jean's coat and cap; I seated her; I drew off her overshoes; I stirred the fire.

"Busy? Yes, I'm very busy. I have a big world to think about. In the words of the poet:

I love not man the less, but Nature more,
From these our interviews, in which I steal
From all I may be, or have been before,
To mingle with the universe, and feel
What I can ne'er express,
Yet cannot all conceal.

"Lovely!" she exclaimed. "Why, Frank! . . . That's from—from—"

"I have you guessing, Jean," I remarked, dryly.

"You memorized that on purpose; you dug a pit for me," she protested. "Still, better that than none. Come, 'fess up. Where is it?"

I drew my Byron from its place of concealment.

"Ah, if you had started at the beginning of the stanza with, 'There is a pleasure in the pathless wood,' I would have known," she said. "Still—"

The book lay open before us. Her hands had fallen on its printed pages. I drew them slowly into mine; drew them up and about my neck. "Jean," I whispered, "You know there is only, ultimately, one answer. Why not give it now?"

"Not yet, Frank. We shall see. Don't you understand? I must wait and see whether you have really—outgrown yourself—or are just memorizing verses with me for a prize."

"All right," I said. "I'll wait and prove it. But I warn you—I can't foresee where this thing is going to lead. It may not be content with books, only; already I'm rather sure it will want more than books. It may lead me out into the world. There are other women, there, Jean," I added, significantly.

"I know. I understand. I must take my chance. It is worth even that to be sure—in the end."

After a while I made tea, and just as we were sitting down to it came a knock at the door. It was a sharp, dignified knock; not the boisterous thump which either Jack or Marjorie would have given it.

"Who's that?" we asked each other.

"Alas, we are discovered!" Jean rippled. "It is a real adventure."

I opened the door to find Spoof's tall figure outside, and in his arms a large and pudgy and uncertain bundle. It was a moment before I saw the second figure—that of a woman. She wore a heavy fur coat, and her face was veiled for the inclement day.

"Why, Spoof! . . . Come in!" I commanded. "Jean and I are just having tea. Let me put your oxen in."

"They are all right for the moment; they're in the shelter. I must make introductions, first."

We welcomed them in, and Spoof set his bundle down on end in the middle of the floor, and began to unwind it. The woman removed her coat and cap and veil. It was Mrs. Alton. The bundle resolved itself into Mrs. Alton's boy.

"Miss Lane, let me present my wife," said Spoof. "My wife. And my son Gerald."

CHAPTER XVI

After the first blank moment of surprise I turned, not to Spoof or "Mrs. Alton" or the boy, but to Jean. There was a momentary tremulousness, but almost instantly Jean had herself under control; she was more the artist than I knew. I began to realize how far her artistry carried.

"This is news!" she cried. "When did—" She stopped short. A wave of color flushed her face. Gerald did not admit of casual explanation.

Spoof and his wife and I still stood as though rooted to the floor. The woman seemed to avoid my gaze, but when at times I caught a glimpse of her face—there was something finer than embarrassment in it; there was embarrassment, it is true, but something almost seraphic as well.

Suddenly, "I think we women should go over to Twenty-two," Jean exclaimed. "Marjorie must know the great news. Come, Jerry!"

At the door the collie joined them, capering uneasily in the snow. Spoof and I watched them as they took their way along the well-trodden trail across the gully; then we stabled his oxen in silence.

Back in the house, Spoof drank a cupful of tea and rolled me a cigarette—I never smoked cigarettes except under Spoof's malign influence—before he showed a disposition to talk. Then, seated on one of my rough benches behind the blue haze of his own tobacco smoke, he spoke.

"I married this woman that you know as Mrs. Alton five years ago Christmas day. You will understand why Jack's wedding was something of an anniversary to me. In course of time Gerald was born. Up until then, and for some time afterward, everything was all right.

"Then—something happened. In what I chose to call righteous indignation I turned her out. Perhaps it was more mortified pride, or just blind, beast jealousy. Never mind. Through it all I gave myself credit for being just, even generous. I gave her half of my ready money, which wasn't much; I've never been much of a money-grabber, Hall; it has always seemed such an inconsequential business. But I gave her half of what I had, and settled on Gerald the small income I could command, and let her keep the boy. That was the biggest thing. I see a good deal of it through different light today, but for letting her keep the boy I demand some credit still. I've done one or two hard things, Hall. You know. That was one of them."

He finished his cigarette and lit another.

"Then I came out here," he continued. "It seemed the wisest thing to do. I was settling into the hope of forgetting it all and making a new start when she followed me." He held up his hand as if to silence me, although I had made no move to speak. "I don't blame her—now," he said. "But then—last summer, you know—it rather interfered. I may as well be frank with you. I had an idea that Jean would just about complete section Two. She's a wonderful girl, Jean. You know—the other day. . . . That was one of the hard things I was thinking about when I spoke of them a moment ago.

"Why, Spoof! Come In!" I Commanded. "Jean and I Are Just Having Tea."

"Frank, she lit a thousand old fires of memory that morning. Moving about in my room; sitting at my table; pouring my tea—O, man, do you understand? It was too much for anybody. . . . I don't know what would have happened. At any rate, I ask you to believe that I was making my fight. . . . Then you came."

He threw away half of an unsmoked cigarette and rolled another.

"Then I spent some sleepless nights, Frank, old boy. I was glad you had come, and even in my gladness for that sometimes I wished you— We humans are such queer mixtures; beyond analysis. But the more I admitted these things to myself the more I had also to admit that something might be said for Alice. Alice had once been to me all that it now seemed that Jean might be. I wondered if, by some miracle, that might not come again. Women are strange creatures.

"Besides, I wanted tremendously to see the boy.

"So yesterday I hitched the oxen and broke trail over to 'Widow Alton's.' My afflictions had brought me to a sufficiently humble frame of mind to let Alice say her say. For awhile she couldn't say anything; just wept, you know, and cried my name over and over, and sometimes Gerald's. Mighty uncomfortable for a man standing around and feeling that in some way he's to blame for it all.

"Well, we talked it all over, and"—and for the first time in his narrative Spoof's face lighted with a gentle smile—"I didn't go back to Two last night at all. We're planning a sort of quinquennial honeymoon progress about the district, and, properly enough, our first call is at Fourteen. And now that that's off my chest, behold a man happy once more. I am amazed at the folly that denied me all these years—Men, too, are strange creatures.

"There's just one thing—a very insignificant thing compared with Alice's happiness, and mine, and Gerald's, but it's this: In taking up her homestead she had to declare herself a widow. She did it for the boy's sake, and she knows she will have to give up the claim, but will she get into further trouble? Will they let it go at that?"

That was a poser, and I turned it over in my mind for some minutes. "Better see Jake about that," I suggested. "He'll find a way."

"That's right!" said Spoof. "Jake's the boy. And he owes me something yet on that cogitation nut transaction.

"Just one more thing," Spoof resumed, after a little. "I've told you a great deal more than I propose to tell anyone else. It seemed to me that you—and Jean—had a peculiar right to know."

It had been arranged that during the busy season I should take my meals at Jack's, and Jean had volunteered the duty of carrying my afternoon lunches to the field. There was little time now for either poetry or prose, and yet we lived amazingly in the spirit. Between the plowhandles one must think of something, and I recalled and re-recalled those things I had read during the winter. At lunch time, or in the evenings, I would talk of them with Jean, always trying to approach her from some new and unsuspected angle. As, for instance, when a summer shower threatened us, I quoted (I had borrowed a Shelley from Spoof):

"I bring fresh showers for the thirsting flowers,
From the seas and the streams;
I bear light shade for the leaves when laid
In their noonday dreams.
From my wings are shaken the dews that waken
The sweet buds every one—"

One evening Spoof came over, carrying his gun.

"There's good crane shooting out at Reed lake," he said. "Brown and I were up last night; got four beauties. Jean seems to be shooting rather well; thought you and she might like to go out on a crane hunt, so I brought over my gun."

"But you—you'll come won't you?"

"No, not this time," said Spoof, sagely. "I've got all I can use for some days."

Jean was enthusiastic, so we quit work early the next afternoon and drove to Reed lake, about seven or eight miles to the west.

I fastened a horse blanket to the side of our wagon, dropping one edge to the ground. In front of it I spread another on the grass, and here we sat, sheltered from the cool night breezes that came solemnly whispering over the tops of the reeds that bordered the lake.

"There they come!" I suddenly breathed, across during to whisper, as a new note came up from the water. "Quietly—quietly."

We rose to our feet and stalked silently to the water's edge. There was nothing to be seen. We were surrounded entirely by reeds higher than our heads. We were sinking slowly in the moist mud; water was trickling through the lace holes in my boots.

"We'll have to go in," I whispered. "Are you game?"

I felt the pressure of her free hand upon my arm.

"Anywhere—with you."

So we stepped quietly but boldly into the water. It came to the ankles, the calves, the knees. Then we were through the reeds and the lake lay before us, dim and misty, like a sheet of frosted glass.

"We'll wait here. If we're lucky they'll come our way."

Presently, and without notice save the soft splashing of water, they came wading down the shallows close to where we stood, their great bodies dim and dark against the frosted glass; their long necks stretched high, or grubbing in the reeds beside them. One—two—three—four—five—six; and they came.

(Continued on Page 6)

Ford

NATIONAL SHOW WEEK
JANUARY 9-16

Exhibiting the Improved Ford Cars and Featuring the latest Ford Equipment

From January 9 to 16, all Ford Dealers will hold a National Show—exhibiting the improved Ford cars and featuring the latest Ford equipment.

This will be the finest display of Ford passenger cars the public has ever seen. It will give you an entirely new conception of the beauty and utility of the various Ford body types. Even if you have already made a careful inspection of the improved Ford cars, you should see this Display—for it is something entirely new.

The Show will begin Saturday morning January 9, and will last until Saturday night, January 16. Be sure to see it!

Sponsored by

Ford Motor Company

THE SIMPLEST LIGHT & POWER PLANT IN THE WORLD.

IT TRANSFORMS THE FARM HOME INTO A FAIRY LAND OF LIGHT AND HAPPINESS

HOW many lives do you expect to live? If only one like the most of us, then enjoy that elemental and essential comfort—electric lights.

But the Marco Light and Power Plant pays for itself in a hundred other ways. The engine can be removed from its base and used to pump water, to run the wood saw, feed grinder, potato digger, binder, etc.

No other light plant has an engine that can be utilized in this manner.

The Marco engine has 80% to 100% more power than other plant engines and runs at 800 instead of 1,200 R. P. M., which means long life.

Benj. Brown Auto Sales
Charlevoix, Michigan

The SUPER-POWERED MARCO

SPECIAL SALE OF

AXMINSTER RUGS

We recently bought a large number of small size Axminster Rugs and on account of the number purchased, the buying price was right. We are offering the line to you as follow:

27x52 inch Axminster Rugs, Regular Price from $5.00 to $5.50, sale price

$2.50

Our show window is full of them. Look them over and you will admit they are the best rug buy you have seen in a long time. Get your choice while they last.

S. M. SEE & SONS
Reliable Home Furnishers

3 handy packs for 5¢

WRIGLEY'S P.K.
NEW HANDY PACK
Fits hand ~ pocket and purse
More for your money and the best Peppermint Chewing Sweet for any money
Look for Wrigley's P. K. Handy Pack on your Dealer's Counter

EXPERIENCE-- A Great Teacher

PEOPLE who have a checking account with us know this:

Their money is safe in our bank.

With a check book they can always make the right change.

No bills will ever be paid twice when they have a cancelled check for their receipt.

Their check stubs keep an accurate record of their expenditures at all times.

Is it any wonder they consider a checking account indispensible?

You will never be without these conveniences if you once try paying by check.

Charlevoix State Savings Bank

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

W. S. Richardson, President.
A. D. Crimmins, Vice President.
Archie Livingston, Cashier.
G. W. Richardson, Asst. Cashier.

The CHARLEVOIX COURIER
Issued every Wednesday at
CHARLEVOIX - MICHIGAN

DuBois & Usher, Publishers
A. J. Usher, Editor and Business Mgr.
Courier Building Vnn Pelt Place

Entered at the Post Office in Charlevoix, Mich., as second class matter.

Member Michigan Press Ass'n.

Advertising Rates.

For advertising rates apply for schedule.

Notices of church or lodge socials and entertainments, where admission is charged, regular rates.

Obituary poetry, regular rates.

Card of Thanks, 25 cents.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

One copy, one year.....$2.00
One copy, six months.....$1.00
One copy, three months.....60

ISLAND'S EARLIEST SETTLER IS DEAD

William Gallagher Witnessed Many Historic Events

William Gallagher, 71, one of the last survivors of the stirring days of Beaver Island, when "King" Strang ruled his St. James Mormon colony with an iron hand and attempt to prevent any one not a member of the Mormon cult from remaining there, died at his home in Escanaba, December 26.

Mr. Gallagher was one of the earliest settlers at St. James. He was born in Ireland and came to the United States at an early age, working as a seaman on the lakes and living the adventurous life of a pioneer in a wild and strange land.

He saw the last bitter fight between the Mormons and the government over the occupation of Beaver Island, in which Strang lost his life. He remained in St. James many years as the operator of a boat line, buying fish in the Beaver Islands and inking them to Chicago market.

Mr. Gallagher's keen memory and his natural ability as a story teller made his recollections of the historic events of great interest. A few years ago the Wisconsin Historical society sent an interviewer to get his description of the Mormon times.

Gallagher has been widely quoted in subsequent histories and magazine articles. James Oliver Curwood, novelist, conferred at length with Mr. Gallagher when he was preparing his novel, "The Courage of Captain Plum."

Mr. Gallagher retired from business at St. James about twenty-five years ago.

WHEN you or the children come in drenched by an April shower the best remedy is a glass of hot milk. Ensure a steady supply by leaving your order for daily deliveries.

MARION CENTER DAIRY
Pure Aerated Milk and Cream
CHARLEVOIX, MICH.

BASKETBALL GAME FRIDAY, JANUARY 8TH

City Team vs. County Normal at Hooker's Garage

There will be a basketball game at Hooker's garage, on Friday evening of this week, between the city Independent team and the Charlevoix county normal. The game will start at eight o'clock and a stiff battle is looked forward to.

The Independents, after dropping two games to the East Jordan outfit, showed much better form in the last game with the high school team and gave the latter a neat trimming. The normal outfit is said to be strong and fans are looking for a fast game. Turn out and give the boys your support.

Pete Scott will operate the feed stable at 101 Mason street as in former years. Barn will be open for business Saturday, December 19th—51-t2pd.

NEW YEAR'S PARTY AT MYERS HOME

Music, Dancing, "500" and Radio Program Feature Evening

A very pleasant evening was enjoyed last Friday, December 31, when Mr. and Mrs. William Myers entertained about twelve couple of their friends at their home on Antrim street, the occasion being a New Year's party.

The evening was spent in cards, visiting and dancing and the guests saw the old year out and the New Year in by the music of the radio. At a late hour a potluck luncheon was served and the guests were unanimous in their opinion that Mr. and Mrs. Myers were royal entertainers in the Nth degree.

Raising Orphan Pigs Is Rather Difficult Task

It is a very difficult task to raise young pigs, since they must be fed from six to eight times per day for the first week or so. After that the time between feeding may be increased.

Whole, sweet, fresh cow's milk is considered best. Don't adulterate it. Sow's milk is richer in all nutriments and especially fats than cow's milk.

Hand-fed pigs are more likely to be overfed than underfed when it is understood that a sow has only about one quart of milk per day for a whole litter of pigs. A little more cow's milk can be fed than sow's milk. Add a few middlings to the milk when the pigs are about two weeks old. The great danger with pigs fed by hand is indigestion. A little castor oil is good for this.

People rich in experience are often poor in spot cash.

Dry Cellar for Wintering Bees

Where Temperature Falls Below 25 Degrees Good Quarters Needed.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In localities where the average winter temperature falls below 25 degrees Fahrenheit it is usually best to winter bees in a cellar, especially if the apiary is unprotected from the winter winds and when the winter stores are of satisfactory quality. The placing of bees in a cellar is only another way of insulating the entire number of hives in one lot instead of insulating them in groups or singly as is done in outdoor wintering.

A good dry cellar under a residence heated by a furnace ordinarily makes a desirable place to winter bees. Partition off a portion of the cellar through which some of the furnace pipes run in order to provide sufficient heat for the bees. If the room becomes too warm, insulate the pipes somewhat. A temperature of 50 degrees Fahrenheit is suitable for a cellar in which bees are being wintered. If the dwelling has no cellar of the kind required it may be possible to construct one in a sandy hillside, using the soil as a floor and building wooden walls to prevent the cellar from caving in. A cellar excavated in moist soil will require walls and floor of waterproof concrete. Locate the ceiling below the frost level, which, in regions where bees are best wintered in cellars, is at least 2½ feet below the level of the ground. Leave a distance of 6½ feet between the floor and ceiling. If the ceiling is higher than this it will usually result in too low a temperature at the floor.

Insulate Ceiling.

Cover the ceiling completely on top with some insulating material, such as sawdust, to a depth of 1½ feet. If the cellar is built in a sandy soil it is possible to use the soil as a cover for the ceiling, a 3-foot layer of soil over the inner roof of the cellar being sufficient. The entire insulating material of whatever kind used should then be protected by a roof projecting at least 2 feet, preferably more, beyond the outside of the cellar wall. Make provision for carrying off the water from the roof. Locate the cellar, if possible, close to the apiary, not further away than 50 yards at most, where the drainage is good and where the snow drifts deeply, thus providing additional insulation for the cellar. If the cellar is on level ground the drifting of snow may be increased by the construction of open fences such as are used to prevent drifting over railway tracks.

A ventilating shaft six inches square running through the ceiling of the cellar to the outside and so constructed as to admit no light will be sufficient for any cellar adapted to wintering of bees. The top of the ventilating shaft, which should extend at least six feet above the outer roof, may be painted black in order to induce greater movement of air when the sun shines. At times during the coldest weather the ventilator may be nearly or entirely closed. In a warm cellar built in a sandy hillside no ventilating shaft need be constructed.

Best Type of Vestibule.

In constructing an entrance to the cellar proper insulation must not be overlooked. The best type of vestibule is a long narrow passage leading into the cellar, with heavy doors at each end of the vestibule. The heavier and thicker the doors the better for the bees. It is important that the vestibule be built and protected so that the temperature within it will never fall below freezing. It is desirable also that the vestibule be constructed so that bees may readily be carried in and out of the cellar.

The cellar must be well drained, either by natural or artificial means.

Before carrying the bees into the cellar give it a good cleaning and leave it open to air several days.

Storing Seed Beans to Keep Little Weevil Out

A problem that often confronts the farmer and housewife who wishes to keep some of the seed from the garden is, how may this seed be stored to keep the bean weevil out? If the beans are kept only for eating purposes, one may heat them before putting them in a box, sack or fruit jar; or boiling water may be poured over them. However, for seeding purposes, neither of these will work. In this case the beans should be thoroughly dry and put into a fruit jar with camphor gum. A small amount of the gum is all that is necessary as it is strong and lasting. Usually the eggs are laid in the beans before they were hulled and the gum must be used to help in controlling the young weevils when they hatch. If the seed is put into an open container the beans may become contaminated or infested. So they should be kept in a jar or something that is tight enough to keep the adult beetle or bug out.

Business and Success

You can nearly always tell a farmer's success and business ability by the appearance of his house and barn. No good business man will permit his buildings to remain unpainted and in a dilapidated condition for he knows that he is losing money by doing so and the man who is unconcerned about the appearance of his premises is apt to be careless in his farm practices.

For all the news, read the Courier.

Special Prices

on Ladies' Coats

To close out the balance of our Winter Stock of Ladies' Coats we will offer them at Special Low Prices.

An opportunity to purchase a new coat at a big saving.

M. A. Levinson & Co.

Overcoat Sale

Three Popular Prices

$20.85 $22.85 $24.85

Others at $17.85 up to $31.85

Do! Take the time to examine these values. It is by comparing values in shopping around that you discover where to save most.

Hand-Tailored Suit Sale

All of our highest grade suits have been marked down to an ordinary price $26.85 Extra pants with every suit at $5.65

Particular buyers,—here's a real opportunity for you to save money.

F. E. Cartier
Charlevoix - Clothier - Dry Cleaner

TAILOR AND CLEANER PHONE 248

LISTENED IN ON RADIO PROGRAM

Friends Enjoy New Year's Eve. at Fox Home

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Fox was the scene of a pleasant evening gathering New Year's eve, when a number of friends surprised the host and hostess and took possession of the home for an evening of fun.

The evening was spent in card playing and listening in on the radio. During the program put on by eastern stations the bunch heard the ringing of the Liberty bell at Philadelphia and other notables on the program.

A midnight luneh was served thus bringing to a happy end an evening greatly enjoyed by all present.

NEW MANAGEMENT AT COUNTY FARM

Board Engages Services of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Francis

At a recent meeting of the Charlevoix County Board of Poor, the resignation of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Beals as keeper and matron of the County Poor Farm near East Jordan was accepted.

Mr. and Mrs. William Francis of Boyne City, were appointed to fill the vacancy and took up their new duties this week. Mr. and Mrs. Francis formerly operated a farm and for several years past have been residents of Boyne City, where Mr. Francis was affiliated with a hardware store.—East Jordan Herald.

A wise man knows he is acting foolish to fall in love this close to Christmas.

Prest-O-Light Storage Battery

A Battery you can depend on

A Battery that's low in price

A Battery with a reputation

I am prepared to give personal service to your Batteries for Winter Storage

All work guaranteed on All Makes and All Sizes. Phone 54J for service.

H. R. Fowler

113 Bridge Street - Phone No. 54-J

Let The COURIER Sell IT for YOU

THE OLDEST BANK IN CHARLEVOIX COUNTY
FORTY-FIRST YEAR IN BUSINESS

1884 1926

Pay by Check in '26

TO SAVE TIME
TO PREVENT MISTAKES
TO PROVIDE RECEIPTS
TO PROMOTE ECONOMY

A Checking account here, does all these. It is the sensible systematic way of handling your business or personal finances and we cordially invite your account.

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY BANK
CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN
Nicholls, Buttars & Bridge, Bankers
THE BANK ON THE CORNER

LOCAL NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

Get the Habit—Read the Courier

Regular communiention of Charlevoix lodge, No. 282, F. & A. M., Tuesday evening, Jnnuary 12th.

Ney Smith of Detroit, was in the city lnst week Thursday on business.

Cleo LnPeer of East Jordan, was in the city last Friday on business.

Joseph Courier of East Jordan, was in the city Tuesday on business.

Enrl A. Young made a trip to Traverse City last Saturday, on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Widdifield visited relatives in Boyne City last Sunday.

John Suitor of Boyne City, was in the city Tuesday, on business at the court house.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Clnir Webster, last Friday morning, January 1, 1926, a son.

E. A. Robinson of Boyne City, was a business visitor in the city on Tuesday of this week.

L. C. Balch of East Jordan, was a business visitor in the city on Saturday of last week.

Richard Lewis of East Jordan, was a business visitor in the city on Thursday of last week.

Hugh Whiteford of East Jordan, was in the city on business at the court house lnst Saturday.

Earl Coulter returned last Thursday to Lansing to resume his studies at the Michigan State college.

Richard Gregory of this city left Monday for Flint, where he will spend some time visiting relatives.

Miss Helen Mason left Sunday for Ypsilanti, where she will attend college during the second semester.

Miss Maggie Colter was down from Enst Jordan n few days last week, visiting friends. She returned Friday.

R. W. Paddock left Monday for Mt. Dora, Florida, where he will visit a brother and other relatives for an indefinite period.

Mrs. B. W. Miller left on Wednesdny of this week for Allandale, Florida, where she will spend the remninder of the winter.

Miss Margaret Fitch returned Sunday to Kalamazoo, after spending the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fitch.

Miss Isabel Hendrickson returned last week from Ludington, where she spent the holidays visiting at the home of her sister.

Tom Winder returned the latter part of last week from Chicago, where he had been spending the holidays with relatives.

Mr. nnd Mrs. North and child returned lnst Snturday nfternoon from Bay City, where they had been spending the holidnys.

Murray Glasgow left Mondny afternoon for Notre Dame college South Bend, Ind., after spending the holidays at his home here.

The Woman's Christinn Temperance union meets Thursday afternoon, January 7th, with Mrs. M. B. Hooker on Antrim street.

Emmet Coulter was called last week Thursday to Rochester, Mich., oo account of the denth of his brother, William M. Coulter.

Mrs. Harry Gregory left Monday nfternoon for Flint, where she will join her husband, who has employment there for the winter.

Miss Lillian Kaye, teacher in the Charlevoix public schools, returned Sunday from Ypsilatni, where she has been spending the holidays.

Mrs. Corcelia Bailey left on Wednesday of this week for Washington, D. C., where she will spend the winter at the home of her sister.

Rev. and Mrs. Herman Burns returned last Saturday from Detroit, where they had been spending the holidnys at the home of their son.

Mrs. H. H. Belding returned lnst Friday to her home in Muskegon, after spending the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Correll.

Miss Nina Mattson, who teaches school at Birch Run, near Saginaw, is in the city this week visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Russell.

T. P. Tyrrell, Wm. Wolfsen and Rev. Joseph B. Peating of Boyne City, were in the city on Tuesday of this week on business at the court house.

Miss Marjorie Myers returned the first of the week to Royal Oak, after spending the holiday vacation here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Myers.

Mrs. A. A. Stafford and dnughter, Jessie, returned Monday from Detroit, where they hnve been for the past two weeks visiting friends and relatives.

The Pilgrim Circle of the Congregational Ladies' Aid will meet Wednesday nfternoon, January 13th, with Mrs. Mattson, at the prrsonnge, for work.

Edward Shapton returned lnst Thursdny from Flint, where he has been confined to the hospital forsome time suffering from an nttnck of pneumonia.

A. C. Belding, county school commissioner, left Monday for Grand Rapids and Lansing, where he will spend until Thursday of this week on business.

Miss Marguerite Brown returned to her school duties nt Alma, Monday, after spending the holiday vacation with her parents, Mr. und Mrs. Benj. Brown.

Miss Hazel Geer, whn has been spending the holiday vacation with her parents in the city, returned Monday to Chicago, where she is attending school.

Glen Ingalls returned to the Detroit Technical college, Saturdny, after spending a two week's vacation with his pnrents, Mr. nnd Mrs. D. E. Ingalls.

Miss Phila Armstrong, who has been spending the holidny vacation with her parents in this city, returned Mondny to Ann Arbor to resume her school work.

Jenn and Margie Swinton returned to Ann Arbor, Monday, to resume their school duties at the U. of M., after spending the holiduys at their home in this city.

Rev. B. G. Mattson left for Grand Rupids, Mondny, on buisness connected with the Congregational conference. He expects to return Thursday or Friday.

Lloyd Curtis of Centrnl Lake, is the new assistant at Fessenden's drug store during the absence of Harold Meggison, who is attending school at Big Rapids.

Mrs. Arthur Bergeon and son, Ormiston, returned Monday afternoon from Traverse City and Ionia, where she has been spending the holidays with relatives.

Albert Widdifield, who has been spending the holiday vacation with his parents here, returned Sunday morning to Chicago, to take up his studies at the University of Chicngo.

Lee F. Correll, who had been spending a couple of weeks at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Correll, last Friday for Lawrence, Long Island, to resume his school duties.

Miss Kathleen McCall returned Monday afternoon from Traverse City, where she had been spending the week-end at the home of her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. John McCall.

Nnssau Burns left last Snturday for Plainwell, Michigan, where he will spend the remainder of the winter. Mr. Burns and son, Bernard, are operating a garage and service station in that city.

Miss Mary Lemieur, who has been spending the holidays at her home here, left Sunday for Big Rapids, where she will visit friends for a day before going on to Grand Rapids to resume her school duties.

The Literary and Sewing club of the M. E. church will hold election of officers at the church, Friday afternoon, January 8th, meeting to be cnlled at 2:30 sharp. All members are requested to be present.

Clude M. Curtis of Ludington, is the new official court stenographer nppointed recently by Governor Groesbeck for the 13th judicial district, to fill the vucancy caused by the resignation of Mr. Henderson of Cadillac.

Benjamin Brown of the Brown Auto Sales, and Oakley J. Hammond left Monday for Detroit, where they will attend a general meeting of Dodge Brothers' salesmen and representatives of the United States. They expect to return Saturday.

Word comes from Chicago that Mrs. Ren Molet, daughter of Mrs. J. J. Howe, was badly injured by an auto in the down down town district of Chicago the day after Christmas. Her knee cap was torn out of place and ligaments badly injured. Her injuries are quite painful but she is getting along as well as can be expected.

There will be a dnnce in the Odd Fellow Temple Thursday evening, January 7, for Odd Fellows and Rebekahs. Invitations will be issued to non-members.—Adv. 1-t1.

Judge Our Groceries
—By—
the Quality
the Taste

The Economy of Serving Good Food to Your Family

The price is no higher than you pay elsewhere and the goods are backed by our guarantee.

Milton Block

NEW LICENSE PLATES NOW GOING RAPIDLY

County Clerk Emrey Reports 500 Sold to Date

The office of the county clerk has been the scene of feverish nctivity for the past few days, nuto owners from nll parts of the county mnking a grand rush to secure license plates for the new year.

Chas. H. Emrey, county clerk, reports in the neighborhood of 500 licenses sold to dnte, with something like 2,800 motor vehicles in the county. The time limit for 1925 licenses is up and every car driver is notified to displny a 1926 license or keep his car in the garage. It is cited by officials that there is no excuse for nny car owner not having his license in a smnll and sparsely settled county like Chnrlevoix, where there is no congestion nnd a small number of buyers. Plates hnve been on snle for some time in the clerk's office nnd there is no excuse for not hnving them.

You will find high quality merchandise at reasonnble prices at the Chnrlevoix Hdw. Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

LIVE STOCK

HOW TO KEEP FLIES AWAY FROM ANIMALS

There is probnbly nothing that will keep flies nwny from live stock, to the extent that they will not be more or less irritnted by them.

Most of the coal tar products used for "dips" to kill external parnsites are nsefnl when used over the body, well dilnted and nppiied from n spray pump. Oil or tar or pine tar can often he used to advnntnge in protecting places that hnve become sore from the irrhation of flies.

The following mixture has usually given as much satisfactioa as any other: Synthetic oil of sassafras, four ounces; lard, or neatsfoot oil, two pints, and crude petroleum enough to make one gallon. This will cost ubout $1 n gallon.

A less expensive mixture and one that will not need to be nppiied as often as the other is as follows: Fish oil, 100 parts; pil of tar, 50 parts, and crude carbolic acid, 1 part.

The best time to "swat the fly" is before he is born Allowing piles of manure to necumulate in the stables nnd yards, for flies to breed in, and then nppiying some kind of "dope" to keep flies nwny from the nnimnls, is inconsistent, to say the least.—G. H. Glover, Colorndo Agricultural College, Fort Collins, Colo.

Separate Self-Feeders Are Gaining Popularity

Self-fed hogs gain 7.4 per cent faster than when hand-fed, according to thorough tests at the Missouri agricultural experiment station. Yet hogs self-fed require no more feed to produce a given nmount of gain than when hand-fed Hence the practice is a labor saver. When each feed is placed in a separate self-feeder the hogs will choose the different feeds so that the gain will be both rapid and economical

Experiments here have shown that the proper nse of supplementnry feeds like tnnkage, linseed oil meal or wheat middlings incrense the profits derived from swine feeding. A ton of tnnkage saves 160 bushels of corn. A ton of linseed oil meal saves 90 bushels, and n ton of wheat middlings saves 38 bushels.

These experiments have shown that fattening hogs gained 23 per cent faster on a ration of corn and wheat oiddlings than on corn nlone, 32 per cent faster on corn and linseed oil meal, 32 per cent faster on corn and tankage, und 38 per cent faster on corn and soy beans.

The saving of grain resulting from the nse of pasture crops is found to be from 20 to 50 per cent.

This so-called painted knee fad seems to be one of these things everybody knows all about and nobody has ever seen.

COURIER BARGAIN COLUMN.

Courier Want Advs. are Ona Cent per word per insertion. Minimum charge is 20 cents per insertion, for anything under 20 words. All Want Advs. are strictly cash in advanca except to those who have ledger accounts. Please remember this whan sending in your copy.

FOUND

FOUND—We have a nurse in our office which was found in a Cadillac Oil station and forwnrded here. Owner must identify.—1-t1 pd.

FOR SALE—MISCELLANEOUS

FOR SALE—Timber suitnble for buzz wood. Phone Joe Clark, No. 7014f2. 52t2 pd.

FOR SALE—4 burner New Process oil stove with built in oven. Inquire of Mrs. S. L. Geer, 214 W. Lincoln.—1-tf.

FOR SALE—Dry, clear cedar wood. Delivered, $3.25 per cord. Richard K. Paddock, Rt. 1, phone 7009f3. 1-t2.

FOR SALE—Dry Cedar kindling in bundles. 30 bundles for $2.50, delivered. R. R. Farmer, Rt. 4, Charlevoix.—1-t1.

FOR RENT—HOUSE

FOR RENT—5 room bungalow with inside toilet. Call phone 18.—45tf.

WANTED—RESORT PROPERTY

WANTED TO BUY

Acreage along Lake Michigan in tracts of 100 to 1000 acres. Prefer to deal with owner. Send full description of property, with location plat, price and terms. Address, P. O. Box 16, Grand Rapids, Mich. 1t2.

WANTED—MISCELLANEOUS

WANTED—Old horses at Hooker's Gnrage.—1-t2.

CASH for Dental Gold, Pintinum, Silver, Diamonds, magneto points, false teeth, jewelry, and valuables. Mail today. Cash by return mail. Hoke S. & R., Otsego, Mich.—12-tf.

January Sale of White Goods

Towels, Sheets, Sailor Girl, Table Linen and Sheeting

15c Cotton Huck Towel, all white 15x24 inches for 12½c
22c Cotton Huck Towel, Red border, 16x32 inches for 18c
25c Cotton Huck and Turkish Towels, 18x38 inches 25c
50c Turkish Towels, colored borders, 18x36 inches....40c
75c Turkish Towels, colored borders, 18x36 inches....60c
85c Turkish Towels, all white 22 1-2 x 47 inches.....70c
$1.15 Turkish and all Linen Huck Towels for.....90c
$1.75 Bar-None Sheets, 72x90 inches for $1.49
$1.85 Bar-None Sheets, 81x90 inches for.....$1.59
70 Lockwood Sheeting, 72 inches wide, for.....55c
75c Bar-None Sheeting, 81 inches wide, for.....60c
60c Peppercll Unbleached Sheeting, 81 inches wide..49c
25c Hope Cotton, 36 inches wide for.....20c
30c Berkley 60 Cambrie for.....25c
45c Berkley 100 Cambric for.....39c
25c Sailor Girl, 18 inches wide for.....20c
40e Sailor Girl, 36 inches wide for.....32c
50c Sailor Girl, 54 inches wide for.....40c
$1.60 Irish Linen, 36 inches wide for.....$1.35
$1.00 Cotton Damask, 72 inches wide, for.....80c
$1.50 Cotton Damask, 72 inches wide for.....$1.15
$1.75 All Linen Damask, 68 inches wide for.....$1.39
$2.25 All Linen Damask, 68 inches wide for.....$1.75
$3.00 All Linen Damask, 72 inches wide for.....$2.50

A. E. MASON

No Cereals Used in This Market

This we want you to distinctly understand. Nothing but clean, wholesome meats are put in our Sausages, Frankfurters and Bologna. Cleanliness is a habit with us. We invite your inspection of our market and grocery.

This week in our Meat Department we offer:

1 lb. Bologna for.....15c
1 lb. Frankfurters for.....15c
1 lb. Liver Sausage for.....15c

In our Groeery Department we will give you good goods, honest weight and quiek delivery. Allow us to prove this statement by delivering your next order.

MARTIN BLOCK
Opposite Post Office
Phone 12 or 142

Buy Zeigler Range

Much Hotter and Cleaner—More heat for your money

All Coal
No Slack or Slate

You get what you pay for,—Good clean Coal.

Argo Milling Co.

NEW PALACE THEATRE

ATTRACTIONS FOR THE COMING WEEK

Saturday and Sunday, January 9th and 10th

Jacqueline Logan in "WHEN THE DOOR OPENED." A life-time of adventure packed into an hour-and-half's entertainment. This is a James Oliver Curwood story and that alone spells a picture well worth seeing.

Also a comedy, "Hooked," and an edueational pieture, "King of the Rails."

Wednesday and Thursday, January 12th and 13th

Buck Jones in "TIMBER WOLF." Here is a drama of conquest, of gold and of love—stirring because it beats like a human pulse. A story of the out-of-doors, of great men among great forests.

Also a Fox News Reel. Travel the world with the News Reels. The very best of travel.

Neighbors

By
ROBERT STEAD

Author of "The Cow Puncher," "The Homesteaders"

WNU Service
Copyright by Robert Stead

(Continued from page 3.)

"Take the first two; I'll take the next."

Our guns came to our shoulders in the darkness; we looked, rather than sighted, at the great birds scarce a rod away; then—right barrel—left barrel!—we woke the echoes of the lake and filled the air with tempestuous noises. From every side came the splash of water and the rush of wings. The stillness, the gentleness of the night in a moment became the wildest babel of confusion.

But we had no thought for that. Splashing right before us were great forms; flapping, struggling, eddying about. I would have held Jean back but she rushed ahead of me into the melee. She had one by the neck; the lust of killing was upon her; it was a fight to a finish. . . . Afterward we dragged them out—three of them. Jean declared there had been another, but he maringed to hide himself in the rushes.

Then we built a fire beside the willow and warmed ourselves.

* * * * * * *

Before the water was warm enough for bathing I sent to Regina for a bathing suit. "The gaudiest thing you have," I said, and they took me at my word. It was a great day when I made my appearance in it. In the evenings, after a day of dust in the fields, we reveled in the cool waters of our pond. Jean would race me from end to end, but she was much too good a swimmer for me.

Then came one of those rare summer nights—rare on the prairies—when the air does not cool off with the approach of evening, and all the heat of day seems hemmed in by black clouds crowding overhead. I had gone to bed, but not to sleep. The far away flashing of heat lightning continuously lit my room with a vague twilight; my blankets had become unbearable, and I threw them off. The silence was intense; the very night seemed to brood over me; the perspiration stood out upon me. It took me back to the hot nights of the East, so little knowe with us, and from that starting point my mind went wandering down through old ways, down to the dam and the millwheel and the little boy and girl who were the starting point of all my recollections. Jean it had been then; Jean it was, with whom all my thoughts were linked; Jean was still the innermost hope of my heart.

But I had not talked of love. It had been my conception of artistry to speak no more of love, during all my hope in the prospect that the fires which I guessed had been rekindled in Jean's heart would in time burst all her womanly restraint. Then she would come to me. Jean was big enough for that.

But there must be an end—sometime—sometime soon. I was not all artist, like Jean. Artistry was my means to an end. . . . Which would be the beginning. . . .

Came a tapping on my window. I sat up quickly.

"Yes?"

"Asleep?"

"Not within miles of it. Whew! Ever see a night like this?" I had thrust my head through the open window and could see her form dimly outlined against the night.

"Used to be the usual thing, down East," she answered. "But we get out of the way of them, here. Get up and let's go for a swim."

A flash of lightning revealed her in her bathing suit. I was soon out of bed and into mine.

"Beat you to the other end of the pond," she said, as we threaded our way down the well worn path.

"You always beat me," I confessed. "But I'm game; I'll try again."

We took the water together; its comforting tide wrapped us about as we swung through it with long, easy strokes. Jean suited her pace to mine; her body was a rhythmic machine, lithe, supple, almost serpentine in its movements. Her hair was down. When a glow of distnat lightning fell about us her face was ivory white, cameolike, against the black water.

At the far end was a small beach of sand, and we drew ourselves up upon it. Jean drew her feet up tailor-wise, shook out her hair; traced idly with her fingers in the sand.

"I had a dream, Frank," she said at length. "I dreamed you were wrecked on a lonely island, where you seemed doomed to spend all your days. But one night when you were sleeping a nymph of the wilderness stole up and whispered something in your ear. And this is what she said: 'Go down to the beach at midnight and light a fire on the sand, and a beautiful maiden shall come up out of the sea. Take her; she is yours.'

"And you turned in your sleep and said, 'Mine—forever?' And the nymph said, 'Forever, if you will obey the law.'

"And you said, 'What law?' And the nymph said, 'The law of romance, which is the law of life. If you are true to that law she shall be yours not only now, but forever, and this shall no longer be a lonely island, but a place called Paradise.' And then I woke up."

"That was a very wonderful dream, Jean," I said. "A very wonderful dream."

"And I have been wondering, Frank," she continued, her liquid voice dropping very low and soft, "I have been wondering if you were to light a fire on this beach—what would happen."

"It would be an interesting experiment," I agreed; "but I have no matches."

"I have provided against that. See, on this stone are matches, and beside it wood for a fire."

"Jean!" I exclaimed, a great light breaking about me. I extended my arms toward her; I would have rushed to her, but she evaded me.

"Suppose you try the experiment, Frank," she said. "Let us see if there is anything in dreams."

I found the stone with the matches; I struck one; its light glowed genially in my face. I found the little pile of dry wood which she had gathered together; I knelt and set my match to it. I think in that moment I felt somewhat like a god before an altar; a whiff of fragrant willow smoke filled my nostrils like incense. Then I stood up and looked around for Jean. She was gone.

Found the Stone With the Matches; I Struck One; Its Light Glowed Genially In My Face.

My little fire crackled and burned up merrily, sending its shaft of pale blue smoke heavenward in the night. The distant clouds still hellographed each other across the sky; their flashlights blinked on the surface of our pond from time to time.

Then I sat down and tried to recall what Jean had said. "A beautiful maiden shall come up. . . . Take her. . . . She is yours—forever—if you obey the law."

"I will—I will obey!" I breathed.

Out on the dark water glowed a phosphorescent point. It drew steadily, straight toward me. It was the ripple of white water as a sleek graceful figure cleft the tide in two. Onward she came, steadily, stroke by stroke. A flash of distant lightning lit her face cameo-like against the depths behind. She had touched the sand; she drew up from the water; she stood before me. I took her in my arms.

"Dreams do come true, if they're properly staged," she said when she could speak.

[THE END.]

Electric light bulbs that give service at Charlevoix Hardware Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

WHAT IS THIS GULF WATERWAY

(Continued from Page One)

What interest has Michigan? Unconsciously and innocently in that question the Illinoisian betrays that purely self-centred concern and that seeming disregard of others and their right, properties, feelings and opinions that has been so galling to neighboring states on the great lakes in all this 10,000 cubic feet per second discussion.

What interest has Michigan? One interest has to do with the big argument made by the waterway promoters themselves that freight rates will go tumbling throughout the middle west as soon as barges can travel between Lake Michigan and the Mississippi river.

But Michigan's direct and immediate interest is focused in that 10,000 c. f. s. diversion of water from Lake Michigan which is hooked up with the waterway scheme—a diversion which engineers say lowers lake levels 5 to 6 inches in times of normal inflow and which may lower them even more when there is a shortage of inflow, as at present, due to prolonged deficiency in precipitation throughout the great lakes basin.

Michigan has an interest in inquiring whether the Illinois waterway really needs 10,000 cubic feet per second diversion from Lake Michigan to make it feasible and serviceable.

Michigan has an interest in inquiring whether a foot of water depth added to the Illinois waterway is worth more to general commerce and navigation than half a foot of depth along 1,200 miles of Michigan coast line and along thousands of miles of shoreline of harbors, inside lakes and slack-water rivers.

Michigan has an interest in knowing whether what it will gain from the Illinois waterway will make up for the damage it suffers in handicaps to navigation, in injury to recreational property, and in other ways from loss of that diverted half foot in times when lake levels sink to their present low stages, even though that sinking is only periodic and only temporary.

Michigan has an interest in knowing that guarantees will be given and enforced, in the event of the 10,000 c. f. s. diversion being legalized, that lake levels actually will be restored by the so-called compensating works offered by diversion advocates as a remedy for the existing situation.

The lakes-to-gulf waterway is almost a fact at the present time. Just one gap prevents the operation of barges of 6 to 7 foot draft from Lake Michigan all the way to the gulf of Mexico. The gap is 60 miles long, from the end of the drainage canal at Lockport to the head of Illinois river navigation near Utica. The state of Illinois is now building a $20,000,000 waterway between these points. The state could finish the job within four years from funds now available if it cut out politics and 10,000 c. f. s. hokum and went at the job in a square, competent, businesslike way.

The first white discoverers of the Illinois waterway were Father Jacques Marquette and Sieur Louis Joliet. They traveled its course on that historic voyage which began at St. Ignace on the Straits of Mackinac, carried them along the north shore of Lake Michigan, down Green Bay, up Fox river, across portages to Wisconsin river, and down the Wisconsin to discover and explore the Mississippi. They paddled up the Illinois river on the return from their exploration of the Mississippi. When they came to where the Des Plaines and Kankakee join to form the Illinois they continued on up the Des Plaines. A portage of several miles just west of the present Chicago carried them across the low divide between the Mississippi valley and the great lakes basin. A short paddle down the Chicago river brought them back to Lake Michigan.

Here's the Present Waterway

The lakes-to-gulf waterway follows this same course reversed. Here is its present status:

Chicago river and south branch from Lake Michigan to Robey-st., 21-foot government channel, 6.3 miles.

Drainage canal of Chicago sanitary district, Robey-st. to Lockport power house, ship canal 24 feet deep and upward of 164 feet wide, 28 miles.

Des Plaines river, Lockport power house to mouth of Kankakee river, not navigable except for small craft, now being canalized as part of the Illinois state waterway, which will have a navigable channel of 8 feet, 14.4 miles.

Illinois river, juncture of Des Plaines and Kankakee rivers to Utica, now being canalized as part of Illinois state waterway, 15.9 miles.

Illinois river, Utica to LaSalle, part of government district, unimproved, but navigable except in low water, 7 miles.

Illinois river, LaSalle to Mississippi river at Crafton, government channel with minimum depth of 7 feet, but with actual depth usually much greater, thanks to water diverted from Lake Michigan by Chicago sanitary district, 223 miles.

Mississippi river, from mouth of Illinois to St. Louis, government channel with minimum depth of 6 feet at low water, but with greater navigable depth for most of navigation season, 36 miles.

Mississippi river, from St. Louis to mouth of Ohio river at Cairo, government channel with 8-foot minimum depth, but with greater depth usually available, 183 miles.

Mississippi river, from the mouth of the Ohio to deep water at New Orleans, government channel with 9-foot minimum depth, 1,065 miles.

It will be noted that the Illinois state waterway is an 8-foot project. The Illinois river government project calls for 7 feet, and the Mississippi river projects call for 6 feet to St. Louis, 8 feet St. Louis to Cairo, and 9 feet to the gulf.

Waterway boosters are clamoring for 9 feet all the way, to match the Ohio river project. This can be secured in the state waterway by taking the full 10,000 c. f. s. diversion from Lake Michigan and in the Mississippi river by additional dredging through the bars.

The Chicago sanitary district, which has chestnuts of its own to pull out of the fire, is one of the big force behind the waterway movement. It is the author of the diversion from Lake Michigan. What its present attitude towrads diversion is will be told in the next article of this series.

G-10-24-NP

The Better BUICK

Starts easily

Buick motor cars are designed to run efficiently in every temperature, and under every climatic condition. Only a small percentage of the million and more Buicks have the opportunity to go to California or Florida for the winter.

Buicks start quickly, even at zero. The new, high-speed starting motor accomplishes this most desirable result.

Runs smoothly

Buick Automatic Heat Control reduces another cold-weather starting annoyance—that of bucking, spitting, misfiring engines. This exclusive Buick feature heats the fuel supply, and saves gasoline, automatically and immediately.

Stops safely

In rain, snow or sleet Buick mechanical 4-wheel brakes stop the car firmly, in a straight line. Neither heat nor cold affects the direct mechanical action of these brakes. There is no liquid in them to expand, contract or leak away.

Buick is a better Motor Car—In Every Kind of Weather

HEATON & HOOPER

BOYNE CITY, MICH.

MAKES GOOD RECORD

ALAN G. STRAIGHT,

Commissioner, of Public Safety of Michigan.

Road Improvement Paid for in Shorter Time

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The improvement of the important roads of the country pays for itself in a remarkably short time, according to the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. Data collected in a survey of highway transportation in Maine indicate that on the basis of present traffic the 300 miles of most heavily traveled road in the state could be improved from an earth-road condition to a high-type pavement at a cost, with interest at 4 per cent, which could be repaid by the savings in operating costs of passenger cars only in slightly more than four years.

The actual saving would be even greater than this. Records show that traffic on the Maine highways doubled in the period from 1916 to 1919, that it doubled again from 1919 to 1923, and a careful analysis indicates that it will double again in the period 1921 to 1930. As the traffic increases naturally the savings in motor-vehicle operation will increase.

Rapid increase in highway traffic and large possible savings in motor-vehicle operation due to the improvement of important roads is a condition common to every state. Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the bureau of public roads, says: "We pay for improved roads whether we have them or not, and we pay less if we have them than if we do without."

* * * * * * * * * * * *

LEGAL NOTICES

* * * * * * * * * * * *

Order for Publication

State of Michigan, The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate office in the City of Charlevoix, in said County, on the 23d day of December A. D. 1925.

Present: Servetus A. Correll, Probate Judge.

In the Matter of the Estate of William Evers, Deceased.

The above estate having been admitted to probate and Amandus Evers appointed adminstrator thereof.

It is Ordered, that four months from this date be allowed for creditors to present their claims against said estate, and that such claims will be heard by said court on Thursday, the 29th day of April A. D. 1926, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at the Probate office in the city of Charlevoix.

It is Further Ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of this order for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing in the Charlevoix Courier a newspaper printed and circulated in this county.

Servetus A. Correll,
Judge of Probate.

51-t3

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE.

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain real estate mortgage whereby the Power of Sale therein contained has become operative, which mortgage was given by John Pesek and Josephine Pesek, husband and wife, to Margaret M. Harsha, which mortgage was recarded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Charlevoix, Michigan, July 5th, 1922 in liber sixty-four of Mortgages on page forty-one; and whereas the amount claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice is the sum of fourteen hundred eighty and 11 100 Dollars, together with an attorney fee of twenty-five dollars as provided for in said mortgage, and no suit or proceedings at law have been instituted to recover the money secured by said mortgage or any part thereof; and whereas the tax required by Statute to be paid on said mortgage was duly paid prior to the recording thereof.

Now therefore, notice is given that by virtue of the Power of Sale contained in said mortgage and the Statutes in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the premises therein described or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy the amount then due thereon of principal and interest together with the attorney fee, costs and expenses of the foreclosure, at public auction to the highest bidder therefor at the front door of the Court House in the City of Charlevoix, County of Charlevoix (that being the place where the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix is held) on the 20th day of Februnry 1926 at ten o'clock in the forenoon on that day. The premises described in said mortgage being herein described as follows; to-wit:

All the north fractional half of the Southwest fractional quarter of Section Seven (7) in Township thirty-three (33) North of Range eight (8) West, containing eighty-two acres and 84-100 acres of land more or less according to the U. S. Survey thereof.

Dated November 16th, 1925.

Margaret M. Harsha,
Mortgagee.

Rollie L. Lewis,
Attorney for Mortgagee,
Charlevoix, Michigan. 46-t13

Good Roads Notes

****

One-way national roads may be the next thing in thoroughfares.

* * *

With noise rapidly becoming one of the serious problems of city life and the increasing desire of employers to reduce the nerve strain of employees, the advantage of silent rubber street paving is obvious.

* * *

The great advantage resulting from doubling the width of the main highways leading into Chicago, as is now proposed, is that it will afford better facilities for people to get away from the place.

* * *

Nevada boasts with truth that it has a highway paved with gold. An analysis of the gravel being used in paving the highway between Ruth and Ely shows flour and flake gold but not in commercial quantities.

* * *

It required 2,631,690 freight cars to haul all the motor vehicles, supplies, equipment and road material produced in the United States last year. Automobiles alone occupied 740,000 freight cars, while gasoline and lubricating oil were transhipped in 692,000 tank cars.

For all the news, read the Courier.

ROAD BUILDING

STRONG PREJUDICE AGAINST DETOURS

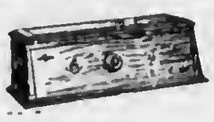
On the worst modern highway detour, dust that is only grit in the pessimist's teeth carries good roads rainbows for the optimist.

Ordinarily, detours are found now only in localities where new and better permanent construction is in progress on the regular highways. The detour still suffers from a notoriously bad name of long standing, in spite of the large outlays to raise its standing with the road-using public. As a rule, it is condemned without even a trial. Only by presenting a perfectly smooth way can the detour surmount the mountain of public prejudice and get even a fair rating.

Special efforts are made by the Minnesota highway department to provide good detours—and allay the common prejudice against detours. Where construction will close a section of trunk highway, the department always tries to select the best possible detour. Nearly always the detour is strengthened and sometimes virtually rebuilt to carry the extra burden of traffic that is to be thrown upon it and often the preparations are begun months in advance. There are limits on the expense that reasonably may be incurred to furnish a temporary route during the progress of improvement of the permanent highway. In some situations involving large volume of traffic, provision of a first-class detour would cost practically as much as the building of the permanent heavy-duty highway. That is especially true on sections on light, sandy soil.

The department policy, however, is to keep detours in the best condition that reasonable expenditures will permit, all things considered, and to ask road users who are paying all the bills to bear in mind that a little dust nuisance and temporary discomfort are making large savings for them and are merely the forerunners of a good road soon under their vehicles.

Jokes about "pots of gold" for highway contractors at the ends of detour rainbows are barred—anyway they do not always materialize under the present low price levels on highway building in Minnesota.



Pfanstiehl

"OVERTONE" PRINCIPLE

has made

Single-Dial Tuning a SUCCESS

SINGLE-DIAL tuning is so much simpler and better than any multiple control that every radio maker would provide it IF HE COULD master the difficulties.

In the first place you cannot tune with one dial circuits which are not electrically EQUAL. That is self evident. And to make them equal requires complete control of the radio stream passing from circuit to circuit. Any spilling over between circuits would destroy the balance.

Pfanstiehl last year laid the foundation for an efficient single dial by finding a way to hold the radio stream intact. The pattern of vibrations comes through unmarred. There is no stray energy to "spill" over. That is also the secret of perfect overtone reproduction and the matchless tone of the Pfanstiehl Overtone receiver.

In the second place, a triple unit condenser had to be devised which could take the place of hitching together three separate condensers. The latter would never work. The former is both accurate and flexible. It is an exclusive Pfanstiehl accomplishment.

Single-dial control will add much to your enjoyment of radio. In the Pfanstiehl you get one which works, without any auxiliary adjusters. It is SINGLE. Come in—see it and HEAR it.

S. M. SEE and SONS

Charlevoix, Mich.

D. T. McHUGH
General Contractor
Phone 214
CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

R. B. ARMSTRONG
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Special Attention to Diseases of Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat
Priest Bldg. Phone 255

DR. F. F. McMILLAN
Physician and Surgeon
Office abave Postoffice
Phone 17
Charlevoix - - Michigan

A. L. FITCH
ATTORNEY AT LAW
Office in Court House
Phone 48
Charlevoix - Michigan

VIRGINIA RYALL BROWN, D. C.
PALMER CHIROPRACTOR
PHONES:
Office 347 Residence 39
Postoffice Building

NEXT YEAR HOLDS BRIGHT FUTURE

(Continued from page one.)

them nnd thus make them wnnt to come to enjoy everything that the great outdoors can offer. We must work together in sending the message and then in caring for the tourist when he accepts the invitation and comes to Michignn.

The Michigan Tourist & Resort nssocintion, is the central organization which acts in this capacity for nll the people of western Michignn. This is the organization which day in and day out, year in and year out, trumpets the message: "Come to Michigan, the Playground of the Nation." The message is broadcast in every conceivable way—through advertisement, through letters, by wire and by wireless, by word of mouth, hy sending emissaries to deliver it directly, person to person.

To perform this task the association must have finnncial backing. This backing it has, but only in a modest degree. It requires much more financial support if its activities are to be 100 per cent productive. The Michigan Tourist & Resort association, organized in 1917, started with $200. Since then $218,476 hns been pald into its treasury. Out of its funds it was enabled during 1925 to advertise in newspapers and magazines with a combined following of 6,250,000 readers, what Michigan is and what it has to attract visitors and make them enjoy their stay in the state. Out of its funds it also bore the expense of sending out tens of thousands of guidebooks, maps and broadsides with information about western Michigan, its roads, lakes, trout streams and summer advantages. Thousands of letters were received and answered. The association did a work whose results in ndding to the wealth of the state were far, far beyond the buying value of the dollars expended.

Can Reach $300,000,000

A review of the recent past gives us an inkling of the possibilties of the immedinte future. The resort business, now nppronching $100,000,000 a year, can be developed until it reaches twice and thrice that figure. How fast and how extensive that development shall be depends most upon ourselves, Singly, as individuals, we can do little to promote the tourist traffic. Working together, sharing the expense so that it will not be burdensome upon any one person, is the way to do it. Working together, we can work best through the Michigan Tourist & Resort association, which already has shown marvelous results through its nctivities, and which fully merits incrensed support by every interest in the western portion of the state.

It should not be forgotten that every dollar left in the state by summer visitors remains here. The visitors buy the lhings made in our fnctories, grown on our farms, handled by our wholesalers and retailers. They furnish employment to workers in industry, commerce and transportation.

It should not be forgotten that every year more and more resideats of other states acquire land that experts have declnred of no real eeonomic value, but which is of value for resort purposes, and that they thus become tuxpayers and increase the price of our real estate holdings. Briefly to illustrate the extent to which the summer tourist husiness is aiding Michigan, I cite three instances, in widely separated localities, which may be taken as examples of what has occurred in every section of western Michigan.

One of Michigan's state banks states that in July and August, 1924, its gross deposits were $938,451 of which 60 per cent was the result of tourist and resort business. During those months the bank handled 12,500 foreign or outside checks. The records of all Grand Rapids, Detroit and Chicago banks show thnt west Michignn banks are now shipping money out during the summer months, whereas only n few years ago they were comparatively large borrowers. So much for active trade.

Outsidere Pay Taxes

Onekemn township, Manistee county, assessors advise that in 1922 43 per cent of taxes were paid by outside resorters. During 1923 and 1924, on account of new summer cottages, the percentage was raised from 43 to 50. This would indicate permanency.

Finally, as to increasing vnlues. A well known real estate dealer advises he recently sold 17 acres of Lake Michigan frontnge at $700 per acre, which a few years ago was purchased at $20 per acre. Similar transactions, equally as significant, are becoming a matter of daily record.

It is natural that some of this progress would have come without the Michignn Tourist & Resort association. Human interest nlways gravitates toward natural values. But it would not have come as rapidly, as firmly, or as effectively. So great were the demands upon the association this year that it became apparent that it could not continue to function within its present income. It was necessary either to limit its services or extend the scope of the work.

The responsibilities of the Michigan Tourist & Resort association are not limited to the extending of invitations, to advertising or to the furnishing of information to visitors. The association does more than that. It has conducted an active campaign for a better western Michigan. It has helped every community benefiting from tourist travel to take care of its business. Hotels have been improved, and made safe against fire. Whole towns have been encouraged to clean up and put on their best appearance to meet and entertain their summer visitors. Clean and wholesome eating places have been encouraged and complaints investigated where food or service has been deficient. In all matters, so fnr as its means and organization have permitted, the Michigan Tourist & Resort association hns extended its influence and offered its guidance in caring for this, one of the greatest of Michigan's assets, the tourist and resort crop of the western half of the state.

New and enlarged nctivities are contemplnted. More interest is being taken in the nssociation and more support will be pledged this ycnr. The aid of the association has been asked in the mnrketing of much of the remaining cutover land unfit for cultivation, but admirably suited to recreation and summer living. Hand in hand with this work goes reforestration, the establishment of state parks, betterment of roads and a strict watchfulness over the representations that are made of Michigan by ambitious speculators. We wnnt progress in Michigan, but we do not want a boom. We want people here, both in winter and summer, but we do not want them to be disappointed when they come here, either in the state itself or our accommodations. To that end, the Michigan Tourist & Resort association invites your earnest cooperntion and good will. Every new dollar added to the income of the commonwealth is shared in by all.

CATARRHAL DEAFNESS

is often caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing. Unless the inflammation can be reduced, your hearing may be destroyed forever.

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE will do what we claim for it—rid your system of Catarrh or Deafness caused by Catarrh. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE has been successful in the treatment of Catarrh for over Forty Years.

Sold by all druggists.

F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.

AT THE MOVIES

"When the Door Opened"

"When the Door Opened," a thrilling melodramatic romance of the Canadian Northwest, produced by William Fox under the direction of Reginald Barker, will open at the Palace Theatre, Saturday and Sunday, January 9 and 10.

The story revolves around Clive Greafal, a young American, and Teresa de Fontenac, grand-daughter of n crabbed old French recluse who hns buried himself in a massive old chnteau in the midst of the Canadian woods.

Jacqueline Logan and Walter McGrail ure featured in the leading roles. Others in the cast are Frank Keenan, Ray Laidlow, Margaret Livingston and Robert Cain.

"The Timber Wolf"

Speed nnd uction—these two ingredients are foremost in "The Timber Wolf," n thrilling William Fox story of the lumher camps, starring the peerless Buck Jones, who appears next Wednesday and Thursdny at the Palace Theatre.

Swift action and Buck Jones are synonomous—the big Fox western star thrives on rapid movement. In this latest production both the agile Buck and Director W. S. VanDyke have outdone themselves in conceiving and executing many new, daring thrills.

Elinor Fair heads the supporting cnst, playing the leading role opposite Buck. Dave Dyas, Will Wolling, Sam Allen and Robert Mack have prominent roles.

"The Timber Wolf" was ndapted from a popular book of the same name by Jackson Gregory, noted author of western fiction. It was directed by W. S. VanDyke from a scenario by John Stone.

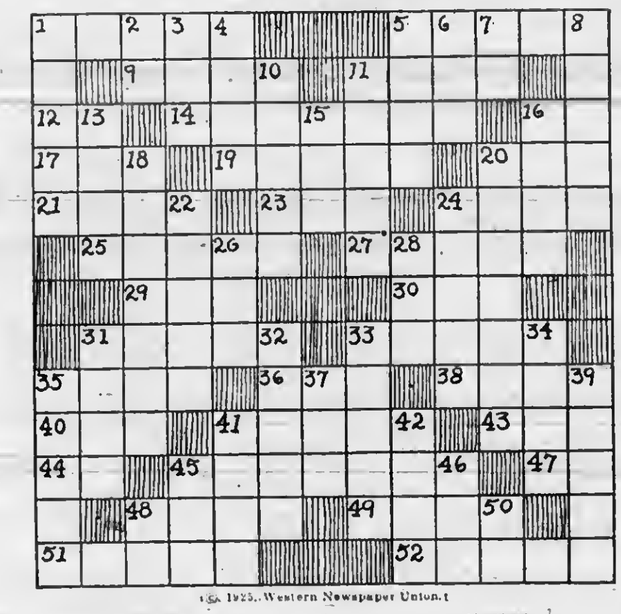
FRESHENING BREEZES

"Dentist fatally shot," a news dispatch tells us. Without reading the story, we concluded the deed was committed by a patient whose back collar button had been tapped during one of those painless jobs.

"One hundred dry agents ousted in New York" snys a recent headline. In every clean-up the sponge has to be squeezed now and then.

Christmas is one day that requires no organized drive to assure its observance.

Crossword Puzzle No. 86



(C) 1925, Western Newspaper Union.

Horizontal.

1—Very venomous snake of Asia
6—Common laborers (chiefly Latin American)
9—Type of small boat
11—A slave 12—Negative
14—Pasty composition used for covering walls
15—Third note of musical scale
17—African antelope
19—Of excellent grade, quality or size
20—An idiot 21—To drive out
23—To color by dipping in fluid
24—To search for
25—Is becoming to
27—Flat dish 29—Cheering cry
30—Poisonous viper
31—Protective dress covering
33—To praise or glorify
36—An entreaty
38—To point at
39—Biblical character who sold his birthright
40—A pole or cane
41—A region supposed by some theologians to be on the edge of hell
43—Kind of soft metal
44—That is (abbr.)
45—Assistants
47—Thoroughfare (abbr.)
48—To succeed in an examination
49—True
51—Waterways surrounding castles
52—One of a number of steps

Vertical.

1—A kind of black tea
2—Near, or next to
3—To knock gently
4—Shoemakers' tools
5—An equal in rank
6—To make a mistake
7—Belonging to
8—To change 10—Praises
11—Precipitous, as a cliff
13—A burden, or obligation
15—Man assigned to get enemy information in wartime
16—Horse's hair
18—Encroached upon
30—A post or station at a distance from the main body of an army
28—Jewelled headdress
24—A hurry
26—Notwithstanding (contracted form)
28—Slack, or unrestrained
31—Wood of the agalloch
32—Spikes 33—Ash 34—A den
35—The last king of Troy
37—An evil sprite 39—Beneath
41—Minus 42—Native metals
45—Head covering
46—Reclined upon 48—Father
50—Note of musical scale

Solution will appear in next issue.

Answer Cross-Word No. 85

H	I	S		S	H	A	M	E		C	O	W
A	N	T		A	U	R	A		H	O	N	E
S	T	R	A	N	G	E		F	U	M	E	D
	O	U	N	C	E		P	U	L	P
T		M	O	T		S	A	R	D	I	N	E
O	F		N	U	T	T	Y		A	L	O	E
N	A	P		M	A	R	E	S		E	A	R
I	R	I	S		R	A	R	E	R		H	I
C	O	M	P	A	N	Y		R	E	D		E
		E	R	R	S		A	V	E	R	T
T	E	N	E	T		T	R	A	D	E	R	S
R	A	T	E		R	A	I	N		S	E	A
I	T	O		C	A	R	A	T		S	E	W

AUCTION SALE

The undersigned will sell at Public Auction on what is known as the Jacob J. Klooster farm, 7 miles south-west of Charlevoix, or 1-2 mile north of the Clark school house, on the State Road, on

Tuesday, Jan. 12th

Commeneing at 1:00 p. m., the following deseribed property:

Black Horse, 15 yrs. old, wt. 1300
Bay Horse, 16 yrs. old, wt. 1300
Black Cow, 3 yrs. old, fresh last October
Guernsey Cow, 3 yrs. old, fresh April 3
Red Cow, 9 yrs. old, fresh next Fall
Holstein Cow, 8 yrs. old, fresh March 24
Holstein Cow, 7 yrs. old, fresh May 1
Holstein Cow, 9 yrs. old, fresh April 9
Holstein Cow, 6 yrs. old, fresh March 28
Holstein Cow, 6 yrs. old, fresh March 1
Two Heifers, coming 2 yrs. in Spring
One Pig Five Chickens
Box for front Bob sleigh Wagon
Wagon Box and spring Seat
Top Buggy Sleigh
Mowing Machine Hay Rake
Disc, 10 Blade Cutter
Set of Work Harness Buggy Harness
Two Cultivators Extension Ladder
Siekle Grinder Stone Boat
Harpoon, Rope and Blocks
Kerosene Barrel
Woven Wire Stretcher
Cream Can
Cream Separator, LeLavel, No. 12
Pair Horse Blankets
Corn Planters and Forks, Chains and other artielcs too numerous to mention.

TERMS OF SALE

All sums of $10.00 or under, eash; all sums over $10.00, one year's time on good, approved, endorsed, bankable paper bearing interest at 7 per cent, payable at the Charlevoix County Bank. Five per cent off for eash on all sums over $10.00. No property to be removed until terms of sale are complied with and all settlements must be made on day of sale.

Est. of Jacob J. Klooster

John and Thomas Klooster, Adms.

JOHN BOSS, Clerk
ROBT. BRIDGE, Note Clerk

W. E. BYERS, Auctioneer.

Help our Merchants to help YOU

EVERYBODY will agree that a man succeeds and prospers only when he spends LESS money then he receives in a given period of time.

Let's apply this great economic test to the situation in this town: Our business men have invested—and continue to invest—their money in stocks of goods brought here to your very door to meet your daily needs.

Through the pages of this paper they advise you of their ability to serve this community. All of us know that they deserve our patronage. And remember, the more you trade with them the more funds they can invest in larger stocks and new lines.

Read the Ads. in this Paper

and save yourself money by trading at home

PRICE CUT IS A BOOMSHELL

INDUSTRY IN QUANDARY AS TO NEXT MOVE

Sharp Increase in Rubber Costs Threaten General Increase in Automobile Prices

Dodge Brothers announcement of a tremendous price reduction was a bombshell in the ranks of the automobile industry, developments have prove.

The announcement, made last week, declared that the new low prices would be made public on January 7th, but that they would apply retroactively on all retail sales made after midnight December 15th.

Completion of a $10,000,000 expansion program, including new buildings and equipment of great magnitude, were cited as the reasons that make the reductions possible, even though improvements are being made constantly in the quality of Dodge Brothers product.

Newspapers in New York and other mertopolitan centers comment freely on the fact that many other manufacturers were contemplating increases in prices on account of the enormous advance in rubber costs. The Dodge Brothers announcement leaves them in a quandary, as ti would not seem consistent to the public if one manufacturer were able to make a big reduction and others simultaneously announce they were forced to increase.

The following extract from an article by E. Y. Watson, automobile editor of the Detroit News, is typical of the comments on the rubber situation and the threatened general advance in automobile prices.

"Automobile manufacturers, according to a survey of the Detroit factories made last week, face the possibility of being forced to increase prices of cars by January 1, because the prices of tires have been rising continually throughout the year, due to the British crude rubber restriction. Many of them believe that the increases will be such as to wipe out any benefit the public is to gain from the two per cent Federal excise tax reduction ratified by Congress.

"Up to now the tires put on new cars by the makers have been bought on the basis of crude rubber prices that prevailed months ago, when the crude rubber rate was as low as 26 cents a pound. Since that time, owing to the limitation placed on export by the British government, prices have risen by leaps and bounds. They range from $1.00 to $1.10 per pound.

"This makes it cost the tire makers from $8.00 to $12.00 more to produce each tire in various sizes. The consequence is that the automobile makers in the medium price field will have to pay the tire makers from $35.00 to $50.00 more than they have been doing this year to equip every car they turn out. This added expense must naturally be taken into prices and it will be up to buyers of new cars to dig down for an extra amount—how much has not been determined yet.

"The price relief to be gained from last week's two per cent tax reduction on a $1,500 car on which the tax has up to now been $60, will amount to approximately $22, while the very minimum added cost under the new tire price schedule approximates $38, according to calculations.

"The factory purchasing agents can see no way out of it; neither can the tire makers."

Dodge Brothers did, however, and have so announced to the world.

January Prices

10 lbs. Granulated Sugar 70c

10 lbs. Choice Yellow Onions 50c

Creamery Butter 50c

Jello All Flavors 10c

12 Oz. Royal Baking Powder 45c

Urma Coffee 50c

2 Cans Pork and Beans 25c

Borden's Milk, large Cans 10c

5 lb. Can White Karo 35c

2 Packages Raisins 25c

5 lbs. Pure Lard $1.00

5 lbs. Cottosuet 80c

5 lb. Pail Pure Honey 75c

Louis S. Orlowski

Every Ford owner should have a Koolfast radiator on his car. Hundreds have made the change. We have them. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 49tf.

BOURISSAU RESTAURANT BEING MOVED

Will Occupy Second Floor of Herman Building

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Bourissau are moving their restaurant equipment to the second floor of the Central Drug store building this week and will continue its operation there for a short time at least.

The change was made necessary on account of the tearing down of the Carpenter building, where they have been located for some time past. It is understood that Mrs. Bourissau will again move her business into the Madison building, now occupied by Edgar Cmith's cigar store, with a possibility that Smith will occupy one side of the new County bank building, when it is completed. It is expected that the new building will be ready for occupancy within the next two or three weeks.

Electric light bulbs that give service at Charlevoix Hardware Co.—Adv. 35-tf.

The DAIRY

FIRST STEP FORWARD IN CALF PRODUCTION

The dairyman should not overlook the fact that to produce high-grade milk his cows must be healthy. A cow in abnormal condition will produce abnormal milk and should the unfortunate condition arise of having tuberculosis in the herd, then the milk is a grave source of danger not only to the immediate family of the dairyman, but also to the public health in general. Fortunately the tuberculin test enables the dairyman to locate the cows afflicted with this disease.

Milk coming from cows which are off feed should be discarded, or at least not put in with the milk that is going on the route, or to be shipped to the distributor. If the cow is being treated with drugs or if she is about to calve, or if she has calved within five days, her milk should not be used for distribution.

The problem of keeping the cow clean is not such a difficult one if a few simple elements are adopted and followed. Before milking, the cow's udder, flanks and tail should be thoroughly cleaned. The cow should be kept in a stall that has the right length. Sufficient bedding should be provided and a number of dairymen clip the hair from udder, flanks and bellies to make cleaning a little easier and possibly more effective. The hairs will drop off from time to time and they carry with them a large number of bacteria. The grooming of the cow, however, should be done in sufficient time before milking so that the dust will have settled when milking begins. —R. W. Fairbanks, Colorado Agricultural College.

Considerable Variation in Weights of Calves

Careful dairymen always weigh their new-born calves unless the herdsman is sufficiently skillful in judging the weight. This is done in order that the right amount of milk may be fed to the calf. As a rule, male calves average considerably heavier than do heifers, and the weight of the calf usually is from 6 to 8 per cent of the weight of the dam.

There is considerable variation in the normal weights of calves of various breeds, and men who have raised beef cattle and then acquired a Jersey cow to supply milk to their families often think the calves weak and puny. Calves of the beef breeds generally average heavier than the light breeds of dairy cattle. The following figures show the weights of normal calves:

Breed	Avg. Birth Weight
Jersey	55 lbs.
Guernsey	71 "
Ayrshire	78 "
Holstein	90 "
Milking Shorthorn	75 "
Brown Swiss	100 "

Atwater Kent Radio—the one you have heard so much about. Wood Bros.—Adv. 1tf.

The Impolite Sex.

You never hear a woman with a cigaret ask a man if smoking annoys him.—Boston Transcript.

Fanmakers Get 35c a Day.

Spanish girls who make the famous fans of Valencia are paid about 35 cents a day.

First Requisite for Advice.

Let no man presume to give advice to others that has not first given good counsel to himself.—Seneca.

Green Manuring Improves Soil

Crop Turned Under Contributes Fertilizing Elements Needed.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Green manuring as a means of increasing or maintaining soil productivity has come down to us from ancient times. The agricultural fraternity early discovered the value of turning under crops while green or soon after ripening for the purpose of soil enrichment. Nitrogen, a very costly element when purchased in concentrated form, exists in unlimited quantity in the atmosphere. When a green-manure crop is turned under it contributes to the soil not only the various fertilizing elements that have entered into the production of the crop itself, but it also adds to the soil a quantity of organic material theretofore not present. This organic matter, or humus, is beneficial in a number of ways. It makes the soil more porous and therefore capable of absorbing a large amount of water. This increased supply of humus is especially desirable in the case of heavy clays and sandy soils.

Requirements of Roots.

